PREFACE

TO THE

COURTEOUS READER.

IT may be thought unfair Dealing to make conſiderable Additions to a Book twice or thrice reprinted, becauſe it uſually renders all the former Editions imperfect and deficient. But I have endeavoured to contrive the Matter ſo, that he who hath theſe Supplementory Additions, ſhall have the Subſtance of the whole, whatever Edition he hath bought already.

I have alſo made an Index of thoſe Additions, that, by inſpecting it, the Reader may eaſily perceive whether any thing conſiderable may farther be expected from theſe Additions.

The Treatiſes added to this Addition are theſe:

I. A Diſſertation concerning the Baptiſm of Infants, on Matth. xxviii. 19. p. 15.

II. An Anſwer to Mr. Whiſton's Diſcourſe, on Matth. xxiv. p. 25.

III. An Examination of his Diſcourſe concerning Abiathar the High Prieſt, on Mark ii. 36.

IV. A Diſcourſe concerning the Imputation of Chriſt's perfect Righteouſneſs to us for Righteouſneſs or Juſtification, p. 68, &c.

V. A Defence of a Paſſage in the Preface to the Epiſtle to the Galatians.

VI. A Diſcourſe enquiring whether the Apoſtles, in their Writings, ſpake as conceiving that the Day of Judgment might be in their Days, p. 113.

VII. A Parallel betwixt the Apoſtacy of the Jewiſh and the Papal Antichriſt, p. 119.

I muſt alſo do that excellent Perſon, Mr. Louth, the Juſtice to own that he hath changed the Sentiments which I reflect on, in the Preface to The Divine Authority of the Holy Scriptures; and therefore, tho' his Name, againſt my expreſs Order, ſtill continues there, it ought to have been expunged.

I have nothing more to add, but only to aſſure the Reader he ſhall receive no more Trouble of this kind from

His Friend and Servant,

DANIEL WHITBY.

ADDITIONAL ANNOTATIONS TO THE NEW TESTAMENT.

(1) ΤΗΣ καινῆς διαθήκης ἅπαντα, All the Books of the New Testament.) It is observed, by the Reverend (a) Dr. Hammond, that this Title refers to the "Conſent of the "Catholick Church of God, and the Tradition "which giveth Teſtimony to theſe Books, as "thoſe, and thoſe only, which complete the "Canon of the New Teſtament; and the "Word ἅπαντα all, ſignifies as the Titles "of other Authors, ἅπαντα τὰ διδόμενα all "the Books which have been written, and "by God's Providence derived to the Church, "ſo as to be received into the Canon, or in to the Number of Writings, which were confeſſedly indited by the Apoſtles, and Diſciples of Chriſt. I cannot indeed find, that this Title is of any conſiderable Antiquity, but the more ancient Title of ἡ καινὴ διαθήκη, The New Covenant prefixed to theſe Books, doth plainly intimate their full and general Perſuaſion, that in theſe Books was compriſed, that whole New Covenant of which the Bleſſed Jeſus was the Mediator, and the Apoſtles were the Miniſters and the Diſpenſers; and then ſurely they muſt contain all that is requiſite for Chriſtians to believe, or do, in order to Salvation, or in order to their Performance of the Conditions, on which Salvation in this New Covenant is tendered; there being nothing which can be deem'd a more neceſſary and eſſential Part of the New Covenant, than the Conditions upon which Salvation is to be obtained by it.

And that the Ancients thus conceived of theſe Books, is evident from the other Title of the Rule, and Canon of Scripture, given to them, even from the Time of (b) Irenæus, who ſtiles the Scriptures τὸ ἀκλινῆ τὸ ἀληθείας τὸ κανόνα, the invariable Rule of Truth. A Canon, ſaith Phavorinus, is a perpetual Rule, a Meaſure that cannot be falſe, πᾶσαν προσθέσιν, καὶ ἀφαίρεσιν μηδαμῶς ἀποδεχόμενον, and which by no means admits of any addition to it, or Subſtraction from it. A Canon, and a Rule, ſaith (c) St. Baſil, if it want nothing to make it truly ſuch, οὐδεμίαν προσθήκην εἰς ἀκρίβειαν ἐνδέχεται admits of no addition to the Exactneſs of it; for addition belongs to that which is ſomewhat deficient, or imperfect; whereas, ſaith he, if Rules and Canons be imperfect, they do not well deſerve that Name. To a Canon, ſaith (d) G. Nyſſen, belongs ἡ τελειότης, ſuch perfection as hath nothing wanting, or abounding; and therefore of the Canon of Scriptures, he aſſerts that it is χρηστήριον ἀσφαλὲς τῆς ἀληθείας ἀπαύλου δόγματος, an infallible Rule of Truth in every Doctrine. Upon thoſe words, As many as walk by this Canon, Gal. 6. 16. Theodoret ſaith, He calls the Doctrine propounded by him a Canon, as having μήτε ἔλλειπον τι μήτε περιττὸν· nothing wanting, or ſuperfluous: And upon thoſe words, Philip. 16. Let us walk by the ſame Canon. (e) Chryſoſtom ſaith, A Canon neither admits of Addition or Diminution, otherwiſe it loſeth the Property of a Canon. Elſewhere, (f) he ſaith, That it is eaſy to judge of the Controverſies in Religion, having the Scripture for our Canon. (g) Theodoret, on the Place, ſaith, The Apoſtle calls the preaching of the Goſpel the Canon; adding, That a Canon is a boundary of Right, wanting nothing. Oecumenius ſaith, The Apoſtle ſpeaks of Faith; for as to a Canon, or Rule, if you add any thing to it, or diminiſh from it, the whole is ſpoiled; ſo is it with reſpect to Faith. So that in the Judgment of the Fathers, the Holy Scriptures being the Rule and Canon of Faith, no Article of Faith can be wanting in them, or ought to be added to them. Hence alſo, by juſt Conſequence, we infer the Perſpicuity of Scripture in all the neceſſary Articles of Chriſtian Faith, and Rules of Life; for a perfect Canon muſt as well be plain as full; a Rule by which I am to regulate my Actions, and my Faith, muſt be clear; for if it be not plain and intelligible, I cannot, by attending to it, know what I am obliged to believe and do: And therefore, Chryſoſtom ſaith, There needs not much Enquiry, where there is a Rule to which all things muſt be adapted; but it is eaſie to perceive who takes wrong Meaſures. Hom. 34. in Acta Apoſt. To. 4. p. 800.

(2) Ver. 4. TO the Note here add,] Dr. Allix saith, There was but 366 Years from the First of Joshua to the Birth of David; and this is certain, because from the Going of the Children of Israel out of Ægypt, to the Building of the Temple, in the Fourth Year of Solomon, passed 480 Years. Now if you add to 366, the Forty Years the Children spent in the Wilderness, the Seventy Years of David's Life, mentioned 2 Sam. 5. 4. and the Four Years of Solomon, they make exactly 480 Years: He therefore supposes that Salmon begat Booz, when he was 96 Years old; Booz begat Obed, when he was 90 Years old; Obed, when he was 90, begat Jesse; and Jesse, when he was 85, begat David.

CHAP. II.

(3) V. 2. After these words, among the Jews, add,] The learned Dr. Allix, saith the Jews believed that there were Prophets in the Kingdom of Saba, and Arabia, they being of the Posterity of Abraham, by Keturah, as you may learn from the Note of the Bishop of Ely, on Gen. 25. 2, 3. and that they prophesied, or taught successively in the Name of God, what they had received by Tradition from the Mouth of Abraham. And so when Solomon was exalted to the Kingdom, these Sabæans said, perhaps he is the Messiah, and therefore came to him; for this he cites Berischith Rabba Moses Haddarsan, Cap. 25. B. Now if this Tradition continued with them to these times, as in all likelyhood it might, seeing, as Philostorgius relates, ἐκ ὀλίγου πλῆθος Ἰουδαίων αὐτοῖς ἀναπέφυγλαι, a considerable Number of the Jews was mixed with them; here is a more plausible Account, both of the Coming of the Arabian Magi, and of their Faith in the King Messiah.

V. 15. After these words his Son out of Ægypt, add this Note of the same Dr. Allix, viz.] The Jews have no Cause to blame the Evangelist for ascribing these things to the Messiah, which in their literal Sense, belong also to the People of Israel, it being the manner of their Nation so to do. So the Author of Midrash Tehillim, on Psal. 2. 7. saith, The Mysteries of the King Messiah are declared in the Law, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa. In the Law, as it is written, Ex. 4. 22. Israel is my Son, even my first born. Hence R. Nathan in Schemoth Rabba, on those words speaks thus; As I made Jacob my first born, as I said, Ex. 4. 22. So have I made the Messiah my first born, as it is said, Psal. 89. 28. I will make him my first born, higher than the Kings of the Earth. And since God delivered this People out of Ægypt, with respect to the Messiah who should be born of them, those Places which do immediately respect the People of Israel, may well be thought to have a farther respect to that Messiah, who was to be born of them. (4)

At the close of this Chapter, I think it proper to consider two new Opinions of Mr. Whiston, who in his Harmony of the Gospels asserts,

1*st*, That Herod slew the Infants at Bethlehem the same Day that he cut off his Son Antipater; that is, saith Josephus, but five days before his Death.

2*dly*, That

Digitized by Google

2*dly*, That Joseph fled into Egypt, and returned thence before the Purification of the Virgin Mary in the Temple at Jerusalem. Now the second Opinion is demonstratively false; for the Virgin Mother coming to Jerusalem with her Offering when the Days of her Purification were accomplished; Luke 2. 22, — 34. must come thither before her flight into Egypt, or not at all, seeing at their return from Egypt into the Land of Israel, St. Matthew hath expressly told us, that Joseph was afraid to go into Judea, Chap. 2. 22. and that by a Divine Admonition, he was diverted from any thoughts of doing so, and ἀνεχώρησε returned, or went back into Galilee to his own City Nazareth, and how absurd is it to imagine, that after his own Fears, and the Divine Admonition to the contrary, he should go on, not only into Judea where Archelaus then reigned, ver. 24. but even to Jerusalem where he continued till he took his Journey to Rome? Nor is Joseph bid to return back into the Land of Judea, but into the Land of Israel, Matth. 2. 20. that is, as that Message is farther explained, ver. 22, 23. into Galilee to his own City Nazareth.

Object. But it is said, that he could not pass from Egypt to Nazareth but thro' the Land of Judah.

Answ. The way from Pelusium to Nazareth was by Gaza, Azotus, Joppa and so on by the Sea-side till you turn up to Nazareth. Now tho' in the Division of the Tribes, Gaza was added to the Tribe of Judah, they did not long possess it, but it was in Samuel's time a City of the Philistines, 1 Sam. 6. 17. and was afterwards by (a) Pompey made a free City, and annexed to Syria; and tho' he in his Journey might pass thro' either the City or the Desert, he might not hear that Archelaus reigned till he got to Azotus in the Tribe of Dan, and so might fear to go into Judea.

Object. St. Luke saith, Chap. 2. 39. That when they performed all things according to the Law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee into their own City Nazareth.

Answ. 1*st.* This place seems rather to confute than to establish this Assertion, as shewing that when the Days of her Purification were accomplished, they brought him not out of Egypt, but from Bethlehem to present him to the Lord; for, ver. 15. the Shepherds go to Bethlehem to see him; and, ver. 21. he is circumcised still at Bethlehem; and then immediately it follows, ver. 22. that they brought him to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord; i. e. they brought him from Bethlehem to Jerusalem; no other place of his abode, nor any intimation of his removal thence before, being mentioned.

Answ. 2*dly*, St. Luke having brought them up from Nazareth to Bethlehem to be entolled, he here informs us, that after this Purification they returned not to Bethlehem, as some have imagined, to abide there, but that their future Abode was their own City in which they formerly had dwelt, but that nothing hapned between this Purification and their setled Abode there, or that they fled not after from thence into Egypt, he saith not. All therefore that St. Luke saith may be true, tho' Joseph fled after this Purification from Jerusalem, or from Nazareth into Egypt; but what St. Matthew saith cannot be true, if Joseph came with them from Egypt to Jerusalem before he went to Nazareth. In fine, as St. Luke saith nothing of their going any whither after the Purification of the Virgin, but to Galilee, so he says nothing of their going any whither after Christ's Circumcision, but to the Temple at Jerusalem at the Purification; so that the Argument from St. Luke's Silence can be no stronger for their Flight into Egypt before, than after the Purification.

Object. 3. Had this Flight and Slaughter been deferr'd till after the Purification, that was a thing so publick, and attended with such publick Circumstances in the Temple, that it was not possible for Herod to be ignorant of it.

Answ. 1*st.* He who makes this Objection should have considered, That he earnestly contends that Herod was not then at Jerusalem, but at Jericho under the Extremity of his numerous Distempers, and so there was no fear of his being instantly advertised there of what was done in the Temple; but to wave this, I answer, That Herod, tho' he was then at Jerusalem, neither repaired to the Temple, into which he could have no admittance, nor troubled himself with any thing done there, unless 'twere done in a riotous, seditious manner, and much less with the Talk of one old Man and Woman, not regarded, that we read of, by any but Joseph and the Virgin Mother. We find another Story published by the Shepherds of the appearance of Angels, declaring that one Christ the Lord was born in this very City of David, which made all the People wonder at the things which they had spoken, and yet Herod takes no notice of it.

Answ. 2*dly*, Herod knew nothing either before or after, that this was the Child the Magi came to worship; for then, why should he slay all the young Children about Bethlehem without distinction, and so they staying there so little time, might be as safe there as elsewhere; tho', lastly, the possibility that these things might come to his Ear, or that his Curiosity might move him to enquire what Children were born at Bethlehem during the time of the Taxation, and removed thence to other places, was perhaps the occasion of the Angel's being sent to Joseph to hasten his Flight from Jerusalem, or Nazareth into Egypt. For whereas some imagine, that the Text of St. Matthew seemeth to imply, that the Angel appeared to Joseph immediately after the departure of the Wise Men; and therefore whilst he was at Bethlehem, the Text doth not enforce this Inference; for it saith only that ἀναχωρησάντων αὐτῶν, they being returned, he did so, leaving the time indefinite. See Woltzogenius on Matth. 2. p. 105, 106, 107.

Arg. 2. Moreover, (b) Josephus saith expresly, That Herod had sent Messengers to Rome concerning the Conspiracy of Antipater before the Disciples of Judas and Matthias attempted to pull down his Eagle; for which, after Examination, and Imprisonment for some time at Jericho, they suffer Death upon the Third of March Old Stile, and that these Messengers return'd with Letters from the Emperor but five days before his Death. Now can a Man imagine, that they should spend nine Months in such a Journey to Rome and back again, which even in winter might be performed in less than two? And yet this evidently must be done, if Herod died not till the 25th of November following, and yet died in five days after their return.

It therefore is highly probable, and will appear so to any one who reads Josephus carefully, that Herod died some time before the Passover, which that Year hapned on the 5th of April, in which interval Archelaus might do all that was requisite to celebrate his Father's Funeral, and yet come to Jerusalem, as (c) Josephus saith he did, a little before the Passover; now if his Father died the 25th of November, he must spend four full Months in celebrating his Funeral; which sure must seem incredible to any who considers that he was ἔχων τάχος, intent upon the quickest performance of his Journey to Rome for Confirmation of his Royal Dignity. For tho' in Hereditary Kingdoms, where the Successor is proclaimed the same day that the King dies, and hath no Competitor, these Funeral Solemnities may be deferr'd for some considerable time; yet seeing the validity of that Will which made Archelaus King, depended absolutely upon the Pleasure of the Emperor, and a Competitor was ready, and appeared as quick as he at Rome, to contest the matter with him by virtue of a former Will, it cannot reasonably be thought that Archelaus would make so long a stay before he took his Journey to Rome.

Object. Against this Argument it is objected, That the Funeral could not be performed in so short a time, because the very Journey from Jericho to Herodion was, saith Josephus, 200 Stadia, that is 25 Miles; and, saith the same Josephus, they went only eight Stadia, i. e. one Mile per diem, and so must be 25 days in going to Herodion.

Answ. 1*st*, This Objection is upon this account highly improbable, that it must either find them a Town at every Mile's end, sufficient to contain so great a Concourse as then attended on the Corps of Herod, or make them lodge many days in the open Field, or Wilderness, in the Winter-time, provided Herod died on the 25th of November.

Answ. 2. 2*dly*, It is built upon a false Foundation; for tho' (d) Josephus doth expresly say, that Herodion was 200 Stadia distant from Jericho, i. e. the Castle of Herodion was at that distance from it; he doth not say they went but one Mile a day, but only that (e) ἦλθον ὑπὸ Ἡρῳδίῳ σταδία ὀκτώ, they came (viz. the first day) within eight Stadia of Herodion; i. e. they came to the Town there built by Herod, which was eight Stadia from the Castle; it being, saith he, a large Town like a City, from which there was an Ascent of 200 Marble Steps to the Mammèa, or Place of his Interment. This being so, I am of the Opinion of (f) Kepler, Dr. Allix, and Langius, that all that Josephus mentions after the Eclipse, till the Death of Herod, may be comprised within 20 or 22 days, which is the interval betwixt the 13th of March and the 5th of April New Stile, especially if we consider that (g) Eusebius saith, that what was done after the 13th of March, was done παραυτικα, ἐξαχρῆμα, by the Divine Vengeance very suddenly, till the time of his Death.

Arg. 3. 3*dly*, We are assured from (h) Josephus, that it was after the Disease of Herod had Been some time upon him, that Judas and Matthias moved their Scholars to cut down the Eagle Herod had placed upon the great Porch of the Temple, as being contrary to their Laws, judging this time of Herod's Distemper καιρὸς ἐπιτηδειότατος, the fittest time for the Enterprise; and that they moved this the more confidently, upon a Report that the King was dying; that when he sent to the principal Men of the Jews to assemble about this matter, he was carried to to them in a Bed, ἀδυναμία τ σῆναι, being so weak that he was not able to stand; that instantly after the 13th of March, he lay under such a complex of Diseases that all Men thought he could not live long, a violent inward Feaver burning up his Bowels, attended with a Boulimia, or perpetual Voracity, which must needs feed his Fever, Ulcers in his Bowels, Cholick Passions, an Asthma, Convulsions in all Parts, a Putrefaction in his Scrotum breeding Worms, so that he stank alive; and when presently he went to the hot Baths at Callirhoes, he had there a Deliquium, and was for some time dead, and had no hopes left of Life, and was, saith Josephus, ἀπιὼν τ βίυ, even departing; when he shut up the Jews in the Hippodromium at Jericho. Now can any Man think he should live above eight Months after this, and keep the Jews shut up there all that time, as he must have done if he lived till the 25th of November following? especially if we consider that the next thing Josephus mentions of him, is that he endeavoured to stab himself with a Knife, and then kills Antipater; who hearing this, attempted to escape from Prison, and in five days after dies. Now is it reasonable to conceive, that an Angel should be sent to command Joseph to fly into Egypt but seven days, as Mr. Whiston's Computation hath it, before the Death of Herod, (when his whole Body was full of Torment, and his Heart of Grief, and his Head full of other Employments,) to avoid Herod's future Attempts to slay the Child, when he might have been as secure any where in the Land of Israel for so short a time, and could scarce get thither before his death?

Mr. Whiston indeed saith in answer to this, that there is no time set for the duration of the Disease of Herod; but in opposition to this, (i) Josephus expressly affirms, that he did εἰς νόσον ἐμπιπλειν, fall into his Disease after the time that he had sent his Messengers with Letters to Rome concerning the condemnation of Antipater; and that upon the Receipt of an Answer to them, he kill'd (k) Antipater, and five days after died: Allowing then two Months for the going, and return of his Messenger, he must die within two Months and five days after he fell sick, and so could not live from the 13th of March, when his Disease encreased, till the 25th of November.

Arg. 4. 4*thly*, According to Mr. Whiston's Opinion, Herod must be near eight Months at Jericho before he died; for he went thither, saith Josephus, soon after the Slaughter of Judas, and Matthias, with their Disciples, and there continued till his Death; and yet the History of St. Matthew, especially according to his supposition, that it relates to what hapned only two Weeks and a few Days before the Death of Herod, plainly proves the contrary; for he informs us, that the Wise Men came to Jerusalem, adding that at their coming thither, Herod was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him; that he enquired of the chief Priests, and Scribes, whose Residence was there, where Christ should be born; and of the Wise Men, then at Jerusalem, what time the Star appeared to them; and this, saith Mr. Whiston in his Harmony, p. 159. was a Consultation at Jerusalem. From thence therefore he sends them to Bethlehem, when therefore he bids them bring him word again when they had found the Child, must he not bid them bring him word to Jerusalem, the place where he consulted with them? Must he not there expect them? When therefore being frustrated of his expectation of their return thither, ἐξαπέστειλεν, he sends forth his Officers to slay the Infants of Bethlehem; must he not send them from Jerusalem? And is not all this sufficiently intimated in their Divine Warning, μὴ ἀνακάμψαι, not to return back to the place from whence they came to Bethlehem? How therefore could it be that the Wise Men should come to him at Jerusalem but two or thee Weeks before he died? Or, Why doth he now deny that Herod was then at Jerusalem, when he sent forth to slay the Infants? Why also doth he say in contradiction to his former self, I believe the famous and unexampled Summons of all the chief of the Jews a little before Herod died in Josephus, was the very same Summons mention'd in St. Matthew for the enquiry of the place where the King of the Jews was to be born, upon the coming of the Magi, and that by consequence the Summons was to Jericho, and not to Jerusalem? Which is as great an instance of a Man resolved to say any thing, tho' never so improbable, δολίαν ὑποθέσιν, to salve an Hypothesis which otherwise must fall, as can be offered: He is the first, and I believe will be the last who ever entertained such a vain imagination. For, (1*st*,) That the Wise Men came to Jerusalem, and that at their coming thither Herod was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him, the Text saith expressly: And can it then be reasonably said, that Herod was not then at Jerusalem. (2.) The Men shut up in the Hippodromium were the ἐπίσημοι κ ἀξιόλογοι ἀφ' ἑκάστης κώμης, the Nobles of every Village, (who were then at Court;) nor was there one word said unto them when they were thus shut up. The Men convened in St. Matthew

Matthew were only High-Prieſts and Scribes, whoſe Reſidence was at Jeruſalem, and enquiry is made of them where Chriſt ſhould be born. 2*dly*, When (l) Herod was dead, Salome and Alexas ſent theſe Men home, ἐπὶ τὰς ἀγρὰς, into the Fields, or Villages, to mind their own buſineſs, whereas the High-Prieſts had no buſineſs to do there. And, (3*dly*,): Herod ſhut them up ἤδη τελευτῶν, καὶ ἀπιὼν ἐκεῖθεν, when he was a dying, and ready to depart this Life, ſaith Joſephus: And was this a time for him to ſay to the Wiſe Men, Bring me word of the Child, that I may come and worſhip him? In a word, there is not one word of St. Matthew's Story in Joſephus, or of the Story of Joſephus in St. Matthew; and can it then be reaſonable to think they relate to the ſame thing? To conclude, this new Opinion confounds the general Doctrine of the Fathers from Origen to Theophylact, that Herod fell into that Diſeaſe, which ſo tormented him ob cædem Infantum, for the Slaughter of the Infants, ſeeing, according to this Opinion, he muſt have lain long under theſe Torments, and been ready to expire with them, before he did this Fact, it being done, ſaith this Opinion, but five days before his Death. To come now to conſider what Mr. Whiſton offers to confirm his Opinion:

1*ſt*, He ſaith, that in the ancient account of the Jewiſh Feaſts and Faſts, viz. in the Megillah Taanitz, we find the ſeventh day of the Month Chiſleu, which anſwers to our 25th of November, recorded for an Anniverſary Holy-day, becauſe Herod the King, who hated the Wiſe Men, died on that day.

Anſw. Dr. Allix in his Anſwer to Biſhop Uſher concerning the true Date of the Death of Herod, ſaith, That had Biſhop Uſher ſeen this Book, he would never have cited it; for it is not the Megillah Taanitz mentioned by the Miſnah, but a late fabulous, ignorant Author, not known to, and much leſs credited by the Jews, who do not follow, or agree with him in this matter, and who mentions a Feaſt in the Month Chiſleu not known to the Jews, not extant in their Kalendar publiſhed by Mr. Selden. nor by Buxtorf, among their occaſional Feaſts; and which would never have been permitted by Herod's Family, who governed till the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

Mr. Whiſton ſaith farther, That this is wonderfully confirmed by the Circumſtances of Herod juſt before his Death; and by the words of Auguſtus concerning his Barbarity to his Children recorded by Macrobius, it appearing by Joſephus, that Herod was in a ſtrange fury and rage but a few days before his Death.

Anſw. Here the Point in diſpute is ſo plainly, and ſo fully given up, that if Mr. Whiſton will abide by his own words, it muſt be at an end; for it is evident from the words of Joſephus that he fell into this Rage, or ἐξεθεσωσεν ἀκρατῶ τῇ ὀργῇ, was exaſperated to the outmoſt Rage, upon ſuſpicion of the contempt of the Jews; and that he was confirmed in this ſuſpicion by the following attempt of the Diſciples of Judas and Matthias, who thereupon are taken by one of (m) Herod's Captains, examined by Herod, then ſent to Jericho, and after conſultation with the chief Men of the Jews, they are ſlain on the 13th of March. If therefore Herod fell into this Rage but a few days, yea even juſt before his Death, 'tis certain that he muſt die ſoon after this 13th of March, as indeed he did, and therefore could not live till the 25th of November, that is, eight Months after. He therefore elſewhere contradicts himſelf, i. e. ſaith, p. 154. That Herod burnt theſe Men alive ſome conſiderable time before his Death; tho' it is plain from Joſephus, that he did it after that Rage, which ſaith he, happenn'd juſt or a few days before it.

2*dly*, To proceed to the words of (n) Macrobius, they ran thus, When Auguſtus had heard that among the Children within two Years old, which Herod King of the Jews had commanded to be ſlain in Syria, his own Son was killed, he ſaid, It is better to be Herod's Hog, than his Son. It is obſervable here:

1*ſt*, That as Strauchius ſaith, There are not wanting Men who look upon this Story of Macrobius, as a meer Fiction; as alſo doth Grenobius in his Notes upon theſe words; (1*ſt*,) Becauſe no R. Hiſtorian whatſoever, before Macrobius, who lived almoſt 400 Years after Auguſtus, nor any Chriſtian Writer, tho' both Hiſtorians, Commentators, and Homeliſts, ſpeak largely of the Cruelty of Herod towards the Infants of Bethlehem, make any mention of this Jeſt, which gives juſt reaſon to ſuſpect it is a Fiction; like to that other in Philo's Book of Chronology, that Herod had then a Son of two Years old begot by one Salome of the Line of David, whom he then ſlew. Or, 2*dly*, We may ſay with (o) Grotius, That Macrobius finding that the Chriſtians kept the Solemnity of Innocent's Day, when, ſaith Origen, Horum memoria, ut dignum eſt, in Eccleſia celebratur, the Memory of theſe Infants is deſervedly celebrated in the Church, he out of Error applied the Jeſt of Auguſtus to it.

2*dly*, Theſe words contain no Teſtimony of Auguſtus about this matter; he only ſays, It is better to be Herod's Hog than his Son; and this he might ſay rather upon occaſion of of Herod's slaying his two Sons, Alexander and Aristobulus, against his Advice; to which Dr. Allix refers this Speech, than his slaying Antipater; which being done with his permission, he had no just occasion to pass this Jest upon him for doing that which he himself allowed. Moreover, Antipater being slain by Herod but five days before his Death, Augustus could not hear of it till he heard also of his Death, and then it seems too late to pass this Jest upon him; whereas Alexander and Aristobulus being slain long before, might give a just occasion for it. And he who contradicts the full Assertion of so many Fathers of the Second and Third Century, saying, That our Saviour was baptized when he began to be 30 Years old, as St. Luke also doth; may permit us to question the Authority of Macrobius as to the occasion of a Jest made 400 Years before, and mentioned by him alone.

3*dly*, It is evident, that if any Son of Herod's was slain inter Pueros, among the Infants of Bethlehem, it could not be Antipater, he being neither slain among them, nor near Bethlehem, but alone at a Castle far distant from it. Nor, 2*dly*, could he be slain at the same time with these Infants; for it plainly appears from Josephus, that Antipater was slain soon after the Eclipse which hapned on March 13. the Infants, saith Mr. Whiston, were slain Nov. 20. Antipater was slain not long before the return of Archelaus to Jerusalem, the five days of his Father's Life, and his Funeral Solemnity only intervening; and yet we learn from (o) Josephus, that Archelaus came thither, ἐνστάσης τῆς τῶν ἀζύμων ἑορτῆς, the Passover being then at hand. Lastly, The Infants were slain whilst Herod was at Jerusalem; for thence he sent forth to slay the Children at Bethlehem, whereas he had left Jerusalem, and was gone to Jericho before he slew Antipater; tho' therefore it might so happen, that Augustus might hear of the Relation, or discourse of both these Acts of Cruelty at the same time; it is impossible that they should happen both at the same time.

CHAP. IV.

(5) V. 24. Καὶ δαιμονιζομένους, and Men possessed with the Devil.] Dr. Lightfoot gives two Reasons, why Judæa then especially abounded with such Persons. (1*st*,) Because they were then advanced to the very Height of Impiety; the Truth of which Assertion Josephus fully proves. See the Note on Rom. 2. 1. (2*dly*,) Because they were then strongly addicted to Magick, and so, as it were, invited evil Spirits to be familiar with them: And it seems strange to find Men, at this distance of Time, questioning the Truth of that, which neither Pharisees, nor Sadducees then doubted of, or ever did object against the Pretensions of Christ or his Apostles, to cast them out: And both Josephus, and the Acts of the Apostles, Chap. 19. 13, 14. speak so positively of Jewish Exorcists. See the Preface to the Epistles, p. 31.

CHAP. V.

V. 22. Εἰκῇ without Cause.] St. Jerome here (6) notes, that in quibusdam codicibus legitur sine causâ, cæterùm in veris definita sententia est; as if εἰκῇ without cause, had not been in the true Copies: But how little St. Jerome is to be trusted in these Matters, is evident from this, and many other Instances of like nature; for certain it is, that we find this Word in Justin's Epistle ad Zenam, &c. p. 311. D. Nor is it any Objection against this reading, that in his Second Apology, p. 83. the Word εἰκῇ is omitted, the whole Citation there running thus, ὃς δ' ἂν ὀργισθῇ ἕνοχος ἔσται εἰς τὸ πῦρ, for this is only a brief Recapitulation of the whole: And you may as well argue, that neither Racha nor μωρὲ were in that Verse, as that εἰκῇ was not there. A like Instance I find in Irenæus, who when he gives a brief Recapitulation of our Saviour's words, saith, That instead of these words, Thou shalt not kill, he commandeth, Ne irasci quidem, Not to be angry: Yet whenever he cites these words (as he doth thrice, viz l. 2. c. 56. p. 189. Col. 1. l. 4. c. 27. p. 314. c. 1. & c. 3. p. 320. Col. 2.) he always adds, sine causâ, without Cause; so also doth St. Cyprian, Test. l. 3. p. 64. Constit. Apost. l. 2. c. 53. p. 199. So Chrysostome, Euthimius, Theophylact, without any Hint of a various Reading; so also reads the Syriac. And this, with what I have added, Exam. var. Lection. D. Millii. l. 2. c. 1. n. 1. I think sufficient to justify this Reading.

V. 27. After these words, forbidden by (7) this Precept., add] Pertinent here is the Observation of St. Jerome on this place. Dixerunt Juriſperiti, ſi videat quis Mulierem quam in deliciis præ uxore habeat, uxorem demittat, atque eam ducat. Their Expositors of the Law said, if a Man sees a Woman whom he loves better than his Wife, let him divorce his Wife and marry her. This adulterous Eye our Lord here stiles Adultery; and v. 31, 32, severely taxes their Divorces upon any Cause: See the Note on Rom. 2. 22.

V. 34. After these words, Or none at all, (8) add.] And therefore St. Jerome here truly notes, that Judæi per Angelos, & urbem Jerusalem, & Templum, & Elementa jurantes, Creaturas, Reſque Carnales venerabantur obſequio, & honore Dei. The Jews are guilty of Idolatry in swearing by Angels, the Temple

Temple, and by other creatures. And therefore, by Parity of Reaſon, the Papiſts, who ſwear by Saints, Images and Reliques, muſt be guilty of the like Idolatry.

CHAP. VII.

(9) V. 18. After the words, Evil Fruit, add.] Good here is the Note of St. Jerome, that Judas being once a good Tree, brought forth bad Fruit, when he betrayed his Maſter. And Saul being once a bad Tree, brought forth good Fruit, when he became a Veſſel of Election: Tamdiù ergo Arbor bona fructus non facit malos, quamdiù in bonitatis ſtudio perſeverat, & mala Arbor tamdiù manet in fructibus peccatorum, quamdiù ad pœnitentiam non convertitur. So long then as the good Tree perſevereth in its Goodneſs, it bringeth not forth evil Fruit; and the evil Tree continues to bring forth the Fruits of Sin, till by Repentance it is turned into a good Tree.

CHAP. IX.

(10) V. 6. After theſe words, truly God, add,] The Jews here ſay, that it was proper to God to forgive Sins; and this Chriſt denies not, but only proves, that the Son of Man had this Power alſo, leaving them to make the inference. The Multitude, indeed, glorified God who had given this Power to Men; in which words, tho' there was a Miſtake in thinking that Chriſt wrought his Miracles as the Prophets did; not by an internal Power reſiding in them, but only by the Aſſiſtance of the Power of God; yet ſeeing even this Acknowledgment, tended to the Confirmation of Chriſt's Prophetick Office, and ſo to induce them to embrace all Chriſt's Doctrines and Inſtructions, as the Word of God, they by this glorified God, thro' our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Theophylact here adds, That our Lord bid the Paralytick carry his Bed, partly ἵνα μὴ φαντασία δόξῃ, to ſhew the Cure was real, and not imaginary only; and partly to convince the Multitude of the Miracle thus done by ocular Demonſtration.

(11) V. 20. Προσελθοῦσα ὄπισθεν, Coming behind him.] The Woman having an Iſſue of Blood, which rendered her Touch defiling, according to the Law, ſeems therefore to have come behind him, as fearing ſhe might not have been permitted to touch him, had her Diſtemper been made known.

CHAP. X.

(12) V. 29. A Sparrow falls not to the Ground without your Father.] This as, (a) Buxtorf hath obſerved, is like that Saying of the Jews, Avicula ſine cœlo non perit, quantò minùs homo. A Bird periſheth not without the Providence of God, much leſs a Man.

(13) V. 41. After Paſtoral Charge, add] To receive them in the Name of a Prophet, is to receive them on that account, that they are ſuch. As to learn the Law Liſemah (b) in the Name of the Law, is to learn it upon that account; and to do a thing (c) al ſhem, or leſhem, in or for the Name, is, ſaith he, to do it upon that account, as when they ſay, Let all thy Works be done, Leſhem ſhammaim, in the Name of Heaven, that is with reſpect to God, and to his Glory.

(14) V. 42. CHAP. XI.

(15) V. 20, 24. If the Works — had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented, &c.] Excellent here are the Words of Mr. Thorndike. " Tho' Grotius and Jan- " ſenius make theſe Words ſignifie no more " than that in probability they would have " repented at the Sight of ſuch Miracles; " yet ſo I find no good Reaſon to infer, as " our Lord doth, that poſitively, Chora- " zin, Bethſaida, and Capernaum, ſhall be " tormented more than Tyre and Sidon, So- " dom and Gomorrah, becauſe they probably " would have repented at the Sight of ſuch " Miracles: The ſame I ſay to others, who " would have our Lord ſay only thus; That " had theſe Miracles been done in Tyre and " Sidon, they would have repented, but " not from the Heart: For in Conſcience, " is there Reaſon that Chorazin, and Beth- " ſaida, ſhould fare worſe than Sodom, and " Gomorrah, becauſe Tyre and Sidon would " have repented as Hypocrites; containing " no leſs Sinners than they that repented " not? And to ſay as others do, that had " God ordained theſe Miracles to be done " at Tyre and Sidon, Sodom and Gomorrah, " he would have determined their Wills " by his immediate Act to be converted, " is to ſay, that our Lord, by a mental Re- " ſervation, ſays that whereof he expreſſes " not

" not the Reaſon, and ſo cozens them who " ſatisfie themſelves with the Reaſon which " he expreſſeth. Moreover, were this immediate Act neceſſary to render even Miracles effectual to induce Men to repent; Why doth our Saviour ſay, that Tyre and Sidon would have repented, had the like Miracles been done among them? Or why doth he pronounce theſe Woes upon Chorazin and Bethſaida, and declare their Puniſhment more tolerable in the Day of Judgment, than that of the moſt unnatural Sinners, and moſt vile Idolators, for want of that Repentance, which notwithſtanding all the mighty Works that he had done among them, he knew it was impoſſible for them to perform, for want of that immediate Act he was not willing to afford them? Why, laſtly, doth he do this for a Reaſon which did not in the leaſt remove this Diſability? See alſo Exam. var. lect. Millii. l. 2. c. 1. n. 5.

(16) V. 39. The Sign of the Prophet Jonas.] Of Jonah, and his Preaching, theſe things ſeem here conſiderable. (1ſt.) That as Jonah was ſent to preach to the Gentiles, ſo Chriſt here inſinuates, that through the Infidelity of the Jews, it ſhould be with his Diſciples. (2dly,) That as Jonas prevailed upon the Ninevites, by ſurviving after he had been ſo long in the Whale's Belly; this miraculous Eſcape, with which they doubtleſs were acquainted, confirming to them the Truth of his Prophetick Office. So Chriſt, whilſt living, with all his Miracles, prevailed but little; but as he had foretold Joh. 12. 32. after his Death, he drew all Men after him. (3dly,) As Nineveh repenting then at the Preaching of Jonah, relapſed afterwards to their old Sins; and therefore, according to the Computation of Biſhop Uſher, verified the Words of Jonah in the Prophetick Stile, a Day for a Year: So the Nation of the Jews, after they had received the Baptiſm of John, calling them to believe in him that ſhould come after him, periſhed by their Infidelity, about Forty Years after the Preaching of the Baptiſt to them.

(17) V. 12. Καὶ ὃ ἔχει ἀρθήσεται, From him that hath not, ſhall be taken away what he hath.] Some think the Reading ſhould be here, and Mark 4. 25. as it is in Luke 8. 18. ὃ δοκεῖ ἔχειν, what he ſeems to have; becauſe, ſay they, a Man may ſeem to have what he hath not, but cannot truly have what he hath not; but how then can that be taken from him? Beſides our Expoſition which renders the Senſe thus, What he unprofitably, or without Improvement hath, is fully confirmed from Chriſt's Application of theſe Words to the unprofitable Servant, who improved not his Talent, Matt. 25. 29. and from the Reaſon he aſſigns, why he ſpake to the Jews in Parables; to wit, becauſe they would not improve the Light which they had received already. Whence Jerome's Note upon the Place is this, That we might not ſuſpect this Groſſneſs of Heart, and Heavineſs of Ears, was the Effect of Nature, and not of Choice, Subjungit culpam arbitrii & dicit, & oculos ſuos clauſerunt; He ſubjoyns the Fault of the Will, ſaying, their Eyes have they ſhut.

V. 33. The Kingdom of Heaven is like to Leaven.] St. Jerome here by this Kingdom, underſtands the Doctrine of the Goſpel, and ſaith, it leavens the whole Man, conſiſting of a rational Faculty of iraſcible and concupiſcible Paſſions, by directing his Reaſon to embrace, and approve true Wiſdom, turning his Anger into an Hatred againſt Sin, and his Deſires into a Love of, and longing after Vertue; and theſe three Faculties are, ſaith Theophylact, the three Meaſures mentioned in the Parable. (18)

V. 44. To a Treaſure hid.] This Treaſure, ſaith St. Jerome, is either Jeſus Chriſt, in whom are hid all the Treaſures of Wiſdom and Knowledge, or the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make us wiſe to Salvation, and which contain the hidden Wiſdom of God, 1 Cor. 2. 7. V. 3. V. 13. Every Plant which my Father hath not planted, ſhall be rooted out.] Hence ſome infer, ſaith Jerome, that the Plant which God hath planted cannot be rooted up: But let them hear, ſaith he, the Words of the Prophet, ſpeaking thus in the Name of God, Jer. 2. 21. I had planted thee a true Vine, how then art thou turned into the degenerate Plant of a ſtrange Vine? Plantavit quidem Deus, & nemo poteſt eradicare (21)

plantationem ejus, ſed quoniam iſta plantatio, in voluntate proprii arbitrii eſt, nullus alius eam eradicare poterit, niſi ipſa præbuerit aſſenſum. God plants, and no other Man can root up his Plantation, but this Plantation being in the free Will of Man, he himſelf can do it.

Dr. Mills, in this Chapter rejects the Text in four places, without juſt ground, and againſt plain Evidence for the Reading of the Text, v. g. in thoſe words, v. 4. τίμα τὸ πατέρα σου, he ſaith, σου is wanting in many MSS. in Irenæus and Chryſoſtom; but it is in Origen in Matth. p. 244, and in Theophylact, in the Syriac and Arabic; and tho' it be wanting in the Latin Irenæus, as being not in the Vulgar: Yet Chryſoſtom ſaith expreſly here, τίμα γάρ φήσι τὸ πατέρα σου, and the words following, καὶ μὴ τιμήσῃ τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ, ſhew that σου is to be retained; nor can the words bind us to honour any other Father ſave our own. 2*dly*, Whereas v. 8. the Text ſaith, ἐγγίζει μοι ὁ λαὸς οὗτος τῷ στόματι αὐτῶν, καὶ τοῖς χείλεσι με τιμᾷ. The Genuin Reading, ſaith the Doctor, both here and in Iſaiah, Cod. Alex. & March. is this, ὁ λαὸς οὗτος χείλεσι με τιμᾷ! But (b) Origen, after all his Labours about the Septuagint, knew of no ſuch Reading, either here, or in Iſaiah; for in his Commentary on theſe words of St. Matthew, he teacheth, that our Lord being willing to deſtroy all the Traditions of the Phariſees, by a Teſtimony from the Prophets, λόγον παρέθετο ῥηθὲν ἀπὸ τοῦ Ἰσαΐου ὅπερ αὐτοῖς λέξεσιν οὕτως ἔχει, καὶ εἶπε ὁ Κύριος ἐγγίζει μοι ὁ λαὸς οὗτος ἐν τῷ στόματι αὐτῶν, καὶ τὰ ἑξῆς. He produces a Paſſage ſpoken by Iſaiah, which occurs there in theſe very words, ἐγγίζει μοι, &c. And indeed theſe words are found there both in the Hebrew, and the Septuagint; and ſo our Saviour here producing them from thence thus, well ſaid Iſaias propheſying of you, λέγων, ſaying, doubtleſs produced his words as he found them there. 3*dly*, On theſe words, v. 26. οὐκ ἔστι καλὸν, καλὸν, ſaith he, is added to the Text; and yet it is found in Chryſoſtom, St. Jerome, Theophylact, the Vulgar Syr. and Arab. 4*thly*, V. 30. He rejects κωφούς· and v. 31. κυλλοὺς ὑγιεῖς, as Additions to the Text, againſt the Evidence of the words; for if κωφούς were not in the 30th Verſe, how comes κωφοὺς λαλοῦντας into v. 31; and if κυλλοὺς be the true reading v. 30. κυλλοὺς ὑγιεῖς muſt anſwer to it, v. 31.

CHAP. XVI.

(22) V. 3. Ye Hypocrites, ye can diſcern the Face of the Sky, and can ye not diſcern the Signs of the Times?] Here Jerome again ſaith, Hoc in pleriſq; codicibus non habetur; whereas tho' the Word Hypocrite be wanting in Chryſoſtom, and the Vulgar, and ſome Verſions; yet the Sentence is in all the Greek Scholiaſts, and in all the Verſions; ſo little reaſon have we to depend upon his Teſtimony here. Moreover the Word Hypocrite is in Theophylact, the Syriac, and Arabic, and in the parallel Place, Luke 12. 56. and ſo was certainly the Word uſed by Chriſt, ſince otherwiſe St. Luke muſt have added to his words.

V. 9. And what thou ſhalt bind on Earth, ſhall be bound in Heaven.] Here St. Jerome notes, That hence ſome Biſhops and Presbyters did aſſume to themſelves ſomewhat of the Haughtineſs of the Phariſees; Ut vel damnent innocentes, vel ſolvere ſe noxios arbitrentur, cum apud Deum non ſententia Sacerdotis, ſed reorum vita quæratur. And he obſerves from Lev. 14. 7, 11. That as the Prieſt is ſaid to make him clean, or unclean, whom he pronounceth, upon ocular Inſpection, ſo to be; ſo the Biſhop, or Prieſt, is here ſaid to bind or looſe.

CHAP. XVII.

V. 19, 20. Ἐρεῖτε τῷ ὄρει τούτῳ, Ye ſhall ſay to this Mountain, be thou removed, &c.] (23) That is, ſaith Origen, to this Lunatick Devil, περὶ οὗ ἐζητήσατε, of whom you have propounded this Queſtion. For Confirmation of this Expoſition, let it be obſerved from Buxtorf, and the Note on 1 Cor. 13. 2. that in the Hebrew Idiom, to be a Remover of Mountains, ſeems only to import to be a Doer of thoſe things which are exceeding difficult, and beyond the Power of Nature to perform; when therefore Chriſt ſaith here, and Mark 11. 13. Whoſoever ſhall ſay to this Mountain, be thou removed, &c. there being no particular Mountain mentioned, or pointed to in theſe Words, it ſeemeth reaſonable to interpret them as I have done in the Paraphraſe, viz. Whoſoever ſhall, with a ſtrong Faith in God, attempt the moſt difficult things for the Promotion of the Goſpel, ſhall, whilſt the Gift of Miracles remains, be ſucceſsful in ſo doing.

V. 21. That this Verſe belongs to St. Matthew, and that καὶ ἐλυπήθησαν σφόδρα belong to the Text, v. 23. See proved againſt Dr. Mills, Exam. Millii. ibid.

(b) P. 247.

Note alſo, that from the deſcants of the Fathers, and Commentators on theſe words, we learn how far they were from thinking that the Liberty of a Viator, or of Perſons in a ſtate of tryal, was well conſiſtent with a neceſſity of doing Good or Evil; For Chryſoſtom, and Theophylact, here obſerve, that Chriſt ſaith this, ὁ τὸ αὐθαίρετον τ ἐξουσίας ἀναιρῶν οὐδὲ τ ἐλεύθερον τ προαιρέσεως, οὐδὲ ἀνάγκη τινὶ πραγμάτων ὑποβάλλων τ βίον, not to take away the Freedom of our Faculties, or the Liberty of our Election, or to ſubject the Actions of our Life to any neceſſity. St. Jerome here ſaith, That if it were neceſſary for a Man to ſcandalize, ſine culpa eſſet, he would be without blame in ſo doing. He alſo well obſerves the Neceſſity of this Caution to the Apoſtles, contending then for Dignity; for, ſaith he, Si in hoc vitio permanſiſſent, poterant eos quos ad fidem vocabant per ſuum Scandalum perdere, dum Apoſtolos viderent inter ſe de honore pugnare. Had they continued in this Vice, they might have given Scandal to thoſe whom they called to the Faith, by contending among themſelves for Honour.

V. 10. The Son of Man is come to ſave, &c.] Hence it ſeems plainly to follow, that they may be loſt, thro' their own neglect to cut off their offending Members, or tho' the Offence which others miniſter, whom Chriſt came to ſave: As alſo from v. 14. that they may periſh thro' the Offence of others, whom God would not have to periſh; and therefore hath not, by his own Decree of Preterition, deſigned for Deſtruction, or left inevitably to periſh.

CHAP. XIX.

(25) V. 5. Καὶ εἶπεν, And he ſaid, for this cauſe ſhall a Man leave Father and Mother, &c.] Here alſo, ſay the Greek Scholiaſts, it was not God, but Adam, who ſaid this; other Interpreters conceit that Moſes ſaid this by Divine Inſpiration, and ſo God ſaid it by him; hence the Jews, ſaith (a) Mr. Selden, repreſent this as a Law againſt inceſtuous Marriages. Or elſe theſe may be the Words of Chriſt, who v. 4. εἶπεν αὐτοῖς ſaid to them, He that made them in the Beginning, made them Male and Female, καὶ εἶπεν; and he ſaid alſo for this Cauſe, &c. citing the words recorded, Gen. 2. 24; and this ſeems probable from Mark 10. 6, 7. where the whole words are plainly aſcribed to Chriſt.

(26) V. 9. Εἰ μὴ ἐπὶ πορνείᾳ, except for Fornication.] St. Jerome here ſaith, that if the Woman hath committed Adultery, Non debet teneri, ſhe ought not to be kept by her Husband, leaſt he fall under Condemnation, he being pronounced a Fool, and a wicked Perſon, qui Adulteram tenet, who retains an Adultereſs, as the Septuagint reads Prov. 18. 27. The Greek Fathers ſay almoſt generally it is καλὸν ἐκβάλλειν an honourable thing to caſt her out: And (b) St. Auſtin having ſaid it was permitted, but not commanded ſo to do, retracts that Saying, as being contrary to the Words of Solomon. He that retains her, ſay the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions is, φύσεως θεσμὸν παρανόμῳ, a Tranſgreſſor of the Law of Nature. L. 6. c. 14.

V. 10. Εἰ οὕτως ἐστὶν ἡ αἰτία.] Grotius (27) Caſaubon and Bois, render αἰτία here the Condition, in which Senſe it is frequent among the Latins; but ſeeing αἰτία is in Heſychius, τὰ καθ' ἀρχὴν πράγματα; and in Phavorinus ἀρχὴ ἡ πήγη the Beginning or Original of the Thing. And Chriſt is here ſpeaking of the Original of Matrimony; or of what it was ἀπ' ἀρχῆς, and reducing things to that State; why may not the Apoſtles be conceived to ſpeak thus, if this be indeed the Original of Matrimony; and thou intendeſt to take from us the Liberty of Divorces which Moſes granted, and to reduce Marriage to its firſt Original, it will not be good to marry.

V. 13, 14. Then they brought unto him (28) little Children.] To the Argument here uſed for the Baptizing of young Children, it may be anſwered that they were brought to him, that he might put his hands upon them, and heal them; for Mark 10. 13. Luke 10. 15. they were brought, ἵνα ἅψηται αὐτῶν, that he might touch them: Now as the Prophets, under the Old Teſtament, healed by laying their hands on the Diſeaſed, and praying over them; 2 Kings 5. 10. So more certainly were Perſons healed by the Touch of this Great Prophet; for as many as touched him were made whole, Mark 6. 56; and upon that account, as many as had Diſeaſes ſought to touch him, Mark 3. 10. See Mark 5. 23, 39, 42.

But to this I reply, that when any came thus to Chriſt to touch him, or to deſire him to lay his hands upon them, in order to a Cure; we find either expreſs Declaration, or ſufficient Intimation, that they accordingly were healed; whereas there is not the leaſt Intimation of any bodily Cure wrought upon theſe Infants, but rather an Intimation of ſome ſpiritual Benediction; it being not here ſaid, ἐθεράπευσεν, he healed, but, εὐλόγησεν, he bleſſed them. 2dly, Chriſt doth not ſay, ſuffer little Children that are diſeaſed, or ſick, to come unto me, but without Limitation, or Diſtinction, ſuffer them to come. Nor, 3*dly*, Doth he ſay, ſuffer them to come, for they need to be healed as much as thoſe of riper Years, but for a Reaſon which equally belongs to all Children born of Parents, who are in Covenant with God, viz. for of ſuch is the Kingdom of God.

It may be farther ſaid, that they brought them to Chriſt, as the Jews do now their Children to their famous Doctors; or as we do ours to the Biſhop, to receive his Bleſſing. But to this I anſwer, that had that Cuſtom then obtained among the Jews; neither could the Diſciples reaſonably have forbidden them; neither would our Lord have aſſigned this as the Reaſon, why they ſhould not be forbidden, for of ſuch was the Kingdom of God.

(29) V. 28. After theſe words, known Metaphor, add,] Moreover the Greek Interpreters here generally ſay, παλιγγενεσία ἡ ἀνάςασιν νοεῖ, Regeneration here ſignifies the Reſurrection. But, (1*ſt.*) We read of no Aſſeſſors with Chriſt then, but rather that all ſhall ſtand before his Judgment Seat. 2*dly*, The Apoſtles here are only ſaid to judge the Twelve Tribes of Iſrael; whereas, as they preached the Goſpel, both to Jew and Gentile, ſo by their Doctrine ſhall they then judge both Jew and Gentile, Rom. 2. 16. ſome of the Latin Fathers put a Stigma after Regeneration, and interpret the words thus: You that have followed me in the Regeneration, that is, in Faith and Holineſs; but this Interpretation is confuted by the parallel place, Luke 22. 20. which makes this the Reward of their abiding with him in his Temptation, not of their new Birth, in which they could not follow Chriſt at all.

(30) V. 30. But many that are firſt ſhall be laſt.] Chriſt ſpeaking here of the Bleſſings which belong to his Kingdom, and ſaying, that as to the Participation of them, the Jews ſhall be the laſt, ſeems to confirm the Doctrine of St. Paul, that the Jewiſh Nation ſhould be converted at the Cloſe of the World, or the laſt Age, when the Millenium ſhall begin.

CHAP. XX.

(31) V. 1. The Kingdom of Heaven is like, &c.] The two Expoſitions of the Fathers, viz. (1*ſt.*) That they who were called at the firſt Hour, were Adam and Eve, or Enoch, and Noah; they at the Second were Abraham and the Patriarchs; they at the Sixth were Moſes and the Jews; they at the Ninth, the Prophets. Or, 2*dly*, That this relates to the ſeveral Ages of Man to thoſe who are called in their Infancy, as Samuel and the Baptiſt; or in their Youth, Manhood, middle Age, old Age, cannot be true. Not the firſt, tho' it be as ancient as Origen, if not as (a) Irenæus; becauſe this is a Parable of the Kingdom of Heaven, and therefore can only reſpect thoſe times, when the Kingdom of Heaven was come among them. 2*dly*, Becauſe of thoſe many that were called, few were choſen, which is not true of thoſe ſaid by this Expoſition, to be called at the Firſt, Third, and the Ninth Hour; not the Second, becauſe this plainly is a Parable relating to the Jewiſh Nation, v. 16. and therefore not to all Perſons called in all Ages and Places of the World.

V. 15. Ἐν τοῖς ἐμοῖς.] This ſaith Dr. Mills from his Vulgar, is Commentarius non Textus, a Commentary added to the Text; but theſe words are found in Origen, on Matth. p. 407. in Chryſoſtom, Theophylact, and in all the other Verſions.

V. 22. After theſe word Plautus Rudent. 3. 6. add] This Phraſe among the Jews, from whom we have reaſon to conceive our Lord received it, ſignifies, Lethale poculum bibere, or to taſt of Death; as when Chriſt ſaith, Father, if it be thy Pleaſure, let this Cup paſs from me. Thus R. Caiia comforts R. Lakis, concerning the Death of his Child, by ſaying of this Cup, multi biberunt, multi bibent, many have drank, and many ſhall drink. It follows, καὶ τὸ βάπτισμα ὃ ἐγὼ βαπτίζομαι, βαπτισθῆναι; which words, ſaith Dr. Mills, belong not to St. Matthew, but St. Mark; they being wanting in the Vulgar, St. Jerome, and, ſaith he, in Origen, who after he had cited theſe words, δύνασθε πιεῖν τὸ ποτήριον ὃ ἐγὼ μέλλω πιεῖν, adds ἢ ὡς ὁ Μάρκος ἀνέγραψε, ὃ ἐγὼ πίνω, καὶ τὸ βάπτισμα καὶ τὰ ἑξῆς; tho' there it be uncertain whether Origen cite Mark for the Omiſſion of the latter Clauſe, or only for the Change of μέλλω πιεῖν into πίνω. However, theſe words are found both in the 22, and 23. Verſes in Chryſoſtom, and Theophylact, and in Baſilius Seleucenſis, Hom. 24. p. 134. And again in Chryſoſtom, Ed. Mor. To. 1. p. 381, 382. and in the Syriac and Arabic Verſions. And ſeeing they are introduced by St. Mark thus, but Jeſus ſaid unto them, can ye drink, &c. and can ye be baptized, &c. they were certainly ſpoken to them by our Lord, and why then ſhould not St. Matthew relate them as our Saviour ſpake them?

(34) V. 28—31. To the Note there add.] And in this Interpretation I have the Suffrage of (b) Origen upon the place, who saith, in my Judgment the Parable contains τὸ περὶ τῆς ἀπειθησάντων Ἰσραὴλ τῷ Θεῷ λόγον, καὶ τὸ περὶ τῆς πιστεύσαντος λαοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ἐθνῶν, a Discourse of the Infidelity of Israel, and of the belief of the Gentiles. Of the same Opinion are Theophilus Antiochenus, Hilary, Can. 22. in Matth. St. Jerome, opus imperfectum, Chrysostom, and Theophylact.

CHAP. XXII.

(35) V. 3. The Kingdom of Heaven is like to a Man who sent his Servants,] Here note that tho' all the Ancients from Origen, except St. Hilary, say that the Servants first sent out were the Prophets of the Old Testament; yet this seems plainly contrary, to the Text, (1*st.*) because this also is a Parable concerning the Kingdom of Heaven, and therefore respecting only those times when that Kingdom was come. 2*dly*, It is a Parable of a King making a Marriage for his Son, which is generally interpreted of Christ the Bridegroom of his Church, and therefore only can respect the times of his advent. 3*dly*, The Servants sent out the second time, were sent to the same Persons to whom the first were sent, v. 4. And yet it is granted, that the Servants sent out the second time were the Apostles of our Lord.

(36) V. 13. Bind him hand and foot.] Theophylact here notes, that this present time is the only time of working; in the future all the practical Powers of the Soul are bound, καὶ οὐκ ἐστὶ ποιῆσαι τι ἀγαθὸν εἰς ἀνίσησιν τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν, and then we can do nothing good to make a Compensation for our Sins.

(37) V. 16. After the words that Herod was the Christ (c) add,] Tho' he himself, in his Dialogue against the Luciferians, hath these words, Herodiani Herodem Regem suscipere pro Christo, received Herod the King for Christ; this also was the Opinion of Tertullian in his Book de Præscript. Cap. 47. Of Epiphanius, Hær. 7. and of Philastrius, Cap. 48. And to the end of this Note add.] Origen therefore rightly conjectures that they were called Herodians, who taught τελεῖν τὸ φόρον καίσαρι, that tribute Money was to be paid to Cæsar; the Soldiers were so called by the Pharisees, saith St. Jerome here, quia Romanis tributa solvebant, because they paid Tribute to the Romans.

Col. 2. If we may judge of Eusebius, from whom no place is cited, the Doctor must mistake in both; for Origen expressly cites these words, Hom. 15. in Jer. p. 145. and citing v. 15. in Matth. p. 326. He stiles the words, The second Woe denounced in the Gospel of St. Matthew against the Scribes and Pharisees; they are also owned by Chrysostom, Theophylact, and by all the Versions.

(41) V. 15. Βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, the Abomination of Desolation,] to the Note there add: It is said, by some, that the Argument used against the Jews, from the Completion of the Weeks of Daniel, that their Messiah must be come, was not taken notice of by any of the Ancients before Tertullian; nor did the Apostles ever use it to that end; but tho' it be not mentioned by the Apostles, yet was it urged by Clemens Alexandrinus in the Close of the Second Century, Stro. 1. p. 330, 331; and it seems here plainly to be referred to by our Lord in these words, When you see the Abomination of Desolation spoken of by the Prophet Daniel standing in the holy place; he that readeth let him understand, viz. the Completion of that Prophesy; and that this also was the Sense of the Ancient Jews, we learn from Josephus, who saith, that at the same time, καὶ περὶ τῶν Ρωμαίων ἡγεμονίας ἀνέγραψε, καὶ ὅτι ὑπ' αὐτῶν ἐρημωθήσεται. Sup. τὸ ἔθνος ἡμῶν. He writ concerning the Government of the Romans, and that the Jewish Nation should be brought to Desolation by them; and that these things were left on Record, that the Readers, τὰ συμβάντα σκοπεῖν, seeing them accomplished, might admire the Honour conferr'd upon him by God, Antiq. l. 10. c. 12. p. 355.

the Event, there being no ſuch appearance in the Heavens before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, it alſo is rendred improbable from the Silence of Joſephus and Euſebius, which two Hiſtorians have given us the fulleſt Narrative of all the Circumſtances relating to that terrible Deſtruction. In fine, a late (a) Author hath eaſed us of all our Diſputes about this Sign, by ſhewing that as the Sign of Jonas the Prophet, Matth. 12. 39. is the Sign which is Jonas the Prophet; ſo the Sign of the Son of Man enquired after, Matth. 24. 3. is the Son of Man coming in the Clouds of Heaven. And this Interpretation is confirmed from the parallel places, Mark 13, 26. Luke 21. 27. where inſtead of the Sign of the Son of Man, mentioned here, we read thus; hereafter ſhall they ſee the Son of Man coming in the Clouds: And from Matth. 26. 64. From henceforth ye ſhall ſee the Son of Man coming in the Clouds of Heaven.

(43) V. 33. Ὅτι ἐγγύς ἐστιν ἐπὶ θύραις, That it is nigh even at the Door.] This I have interpreted in compliance with our Tranſlation of the Ruine of the Jewiſh Nation. I now think it more agreeable to this Phraſe in Scripture to underſtand ἑστὼς ille. He, the Son of Man mentioned, v. 30, ſtands at the Doors; for ſo St. James plainly interprets this Phraſe, by ſaying, ἡ παρουσία τοῦ κυρίου ἤγγικε, the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, ὁ κριτὴς πρὸ τῶν θυρῶν ἕστηκεν, The Judge ſtandeth before the Door, Chap. 5. 8, 9. And St. Luke, by varying the Phraſe thus; know that the Kingdom of God is nigh, Luke 21. 31. i. e. The Coming of Chriſt to execute his Kingly Office on the Jews, and give his Kingdom, thus taken from them, to the Believing Gentiles, Matth. 21. 43.

(44) V. 39. Καὶ οὐκ ἔγνωσαν, and knew not till the Flood came.] 'Tis certain, that they of the old World had ſufficient Intimation of the Judgment threatned to them from Noah, a Preacher of Righteouſneſs to them, 2 Pet. 2, 5; and from the Ark he prepared for the Preſervation of himſelf, and of his Family, before their Eyes, Hebr. 11, 7. from the ſtriving of his Spirit, by his Prophets, with them, and from the term of 120 Years aſſigned for their Repentance, Gen. 6. 3. they are therefore here ſaid not to have known this, becauſe they did not ſavingly improve their Knowledge of it to the preventing of that Judgment. So after all our Saviour's Inſtructions of them, in the way of Life, the Jews are ſaid not to have known the time of their Viſitation, or the things which belonged to their Peace, Luke 19. 42.

He alſo adds, that hinc intelligimus Gentilium, & Philoſophorum bonam vitam recipere Dominum; Hence we underſtand, that our Lord approves of the good Life of Heathens and Philoſophers. I ſuppoſe, becauſe this is the beſt Improvement of their Talents, and all that could be reaſonably expected from them, God having given them no other Rule to walk by; and ſo requiring no more of them than their ſincere Conformity to that Law of Nature he had given them. (47)

V. 42. I was hungry, and you gave me no meat.] Here Theophylact well obſerves, that it is not ſufficient to preſerve us from that dreadful Sentence, depart from me, &c. that we have done no Evil, if we have been deficient in thoſe Acts of Charity, and Mercy, we owe to the Members of Chriſt's Body. V. 39. My Father, if it be poſſible, let this Cup paſs from me.] Woltzogenius here notes, that it is evident, that Chriſt could not be truly God, becauſe he could not deliver himſelf from Death, but was forced to pray to his Father for that Deliverance. I anſwer, that hence indeed it follows, that he would not do this; but that he could not (49)

So Phavorinus ſaith, τὸ λοιπὸν ἀντὶ τοῦ ἀκολούθως, the word λοιπὸν ſignifies hereafter: It ſignifies, ſaith Stephanus, deinceps, poſtea. So may it well be rendred, Acts 27. 20. 2 Tim. 1. 8. Hebr. 10. 13. and this Interpretation ſeems to be confirmed by the Word ἀπέχει, added by St. Mark, Chap. 14. It is enough that you have ſlept ſo long; or if with the Vulgar, the Gloſſaries, and our Bois, we here interpret τὸ λοιπὸν jam now, as our Tranſlation doth theſe words, being rendred interrogatively, give the Senſe thus: Do you ſleep now, and take your reſt? When the Hour of Temptation, and the Traytor is at hand, ἀπέχει, it is enough that you have ſlept ſo long; ariſe now, and let us go hence.

A DISSERTATION

Added to the NOTE on CHAPTER XXVIII. 19.

(54) GO ye therefore and teach all Nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoſt:] In the Note here I have aſſerted, and I think proved, that μαθητεύειν here ſignifies to make Diſciples, by teaching the Nations to believe in Chriſt, that ſo they might be his Diſciples. But then I took care to add, the Cauſe of Infant Baptiſm needed not this Interpretation of the Word μαθητεύειν; nor was it needful that Infants be made Diſciples, any more than that they be made Believers by Baptiſm, but only that they be admitted, if they be Children of believing Parents, into the Chriſtian Church by Baptiſm; and that it was no Objection againſt this Admiſſion, that Infants, whilſt they continue in their Childhood, cannot be taught, or believe the the Chriſtian Faith, and to confirm theſe Aſſertions, I ſhall endeavour to prove.

1*ſt.* "That there is nothing in this, or "any other Paſſages of Scripture which "prove, that Infants are uncapable of Chriſtian Baptiſm.

2*dly*, "That this Commiſſion delivered "to the Apoſtles, is vertually a Commiſſion, to baptize the Children of believing Parents, or of Parents making a viſible Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Faith.

My firſt Aſſertion is, That there is nothing in this, or any other Paſſages of Scripture, which proves, that Infants are uncapable of Chriſtian Baptiſm. And,

To remove the Arguments offer'd againſt the Baptiſm of Infants, from their ſuppoſed incapacity, to be fit Subjects of that Ordinance, I aſſert.

Prop. 1.

Prop. 1*ſt*, That no Argument taken from the Baptiſm uſed by the Baptiſt, or our Lord's Diſciples, can be ſufficient to prove that Infants of believing Parents, are to be excluded from Chriſtian Baptiſm. 1*ſt*, Becauſe neither of them by Baptiſm admitted any Perſons into Covenant with God, or into Church-membership, but only call'd them of the Jewiſh Nation by Baptiſm to Repentance, who were in Covenant with God, and Members of his Church already. 2*dly*, Neither of them baptized in the Name of Chriſt; not the Baptiſt, for had he done ſo, there would have been no queſtion whether he himſelf were the Chriſt or not, as we find there was, Luke 3. 15. Nor any occaſion for that Queſtion, Why baptizeſt thou, if thou be not the Chriſt? John. 1. 25. He only call'd them to Repentance for the Remiſſion of Sins, and admoniſhed them in general, that they ſhould believe in him who was coming after him. Acts 19. 4. And the Baptiſm of his Diſciples was not into this Belief, that their Maſter was the Chriſt, for that he forbids them to divulge, till he was riſen from the Dead. Matth. 16. 20. 17. 9. And therefore hath not before allowed, or authorized them to do it in that ſolemn manner: They therefore only did baptiſe as John had done, into the Faith of the Meſſiah, which was to come, and with that Baptiſm of Repentance which prepared the Jews for the Reception of his Kingdom, ſo that both of them baptiſed, thoſe who as yet believed not in Chriſt; whereas the Baptiſm inſtituted by Chriſt, was in his Name, and belonged only to them who believed in him, and to their Children. It is not therefore to be wondred that they baptized not thoſe Infants, who could not by an actual Repentance, prepare themſelves for the coming of that Meſſiah who was then at hand. 3*dly*, John's Baptiſm was begun, and ended, before the Covenant of Grace was by the Death of our Mediator confirm'd and ratified, and therefore cannot be reaſonably thought ſo fully to ſeal that Covenant, or to aſſure us of the Bleſſings of it, as doth that of Chriſt, as many as are baptized into Chriſt, being baptized into his Death. Rom 6. 3.

Prop. 2. 2*dly*, I add, That as the Incapacity of an Infant for doing that which is required of an adult Perſon to Salvation, cannot render an Infant dying ſo, incapable of Salvation; ſo neither can it render him incapable of Baptiſm, that he cannot do all that is required of an adult Perſon, not yet owning Chriſt, in order to his Baptiſm; for if that Faith, Repentance, and Obedience which is required of an adult Perſon to his Salvation, cannot be required of an Infant in order to his Salvation, ſo as that the neceſſary abſence of it ſhall exclude him from a Capacity of Salvation, provided that he dieth in his Infancy or his Minority, then by Parity of Reaſon, that Faith and Repentance which is required of an adult Perſon in order to that Baptiſm by which he is made a Member of Chriſt, and is admitted as a Subject of his Kingdom, cannot be required of an Infant in order to his being made a Member of Chriſt, or his being admitted as a Subject of his Kingdom.

Vain therefore are all thoſe Arguments which are taken from the Examples in the Holy Scripture of adult Perſons baptized only upon their Faith and Repentance; v. g. St. Peter ſays to the Jews and Proſelytes who heard the Apoſtles ſpeak with Tongues, and propheſy, Repent ye, and be baptized in the name of Chriſt Jeſus, for the Remiſſion of Sins; and Ananias to Saul, ariſe, and be baptized, and waſh away thy Sins, calling on the Name of the Lord. Acts 2. 38. 22. 16. But to argue hence, that Infants cannot be baptized, becauſe they cannot repent, or call upon the Name of the Lord, is, as if I ſhould argue thus, The ſame Apoſtle ſaith Repent, and be converted, that your Sins may be blotted out. Acts 3. 19. Therefore the Sins of Infants, who cannot repent, cannot be blotted out; and St. Paul ſays, Whoſoever ſhall call upon the Name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved. Rom. 10. 13. Therefore Infants who cannot do this, cannot be ſaved: Chriſt alſo ſaith to the ſame Jews to whom St. Peter ſaid repent and be baptized, Except ye repent, ye ſhall all periſh. Luke 13. 3, 5. And this Repentance is ſtiled Repentance to Life, and to Salvation. Acts 11. 18. 2 Cor. 7. 10. Muſt therefore Infants periſh, or be incapable of Salvation for want of that Repentance which to adult Perſons is the condition of Life and Salvation; if not, why are they thought incapable of Baptiſm, becauſe, whilſt Infants, they cannot repent?

When it is ſaid by Mr Tombs, That from theſe Words of Philip to the Eunuch, Acts 8. 37. If thou believeſt with all thy Heart, thou mayeſt be baptized, it appears neceſſary that the baptized Perſon ſhould declare his own Faith, it doth as much appear from thoſe Words of St. Paul, If thou ſhalt confeſs with thy Mouth the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and ſhalt believe in thy Heart that God hath raiſed him from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved. Rom. 10. 9. That it is neceſſary for him that is ſaved, to confeſs with his Mouth, and believe with his Heart the Reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and therefore to infer that no Infant can be ſaved. Hence therefore it doth only follow that the baptized Perſon, provided he be ſuch as the Eunuch was, a Gentile, to whom the Goſpel was firſt preached to beget Faith in him, muſt declare his Faith, but not that Infants of believing Parents are to be excluded from Baptiſm Baptiſm, for want of ſuch a Declaration of their Faith.

When he argues thus; He that believeth, and is baptized, ſhall be ſaved; that is, he only, no other, not otherwiſe; this Gloſs muſt damn all Infants dying ſuch; yea it muſt damn them for not being baptized, that is, for not receiving the Ordinance of which Chriſt himſelf, according to the Doctrine of theſe Men, hath declared them incapable. Moreover, to argue thus, an Infant muſt believe, before he be baptized, becauſe believing in theſe words, is ſet before baptizing, is no better than to argue thus; the Infant that is ſaved muſt be baptized, becauſe Baptiſm is ſet before Salvation.

When others argue thus, we are all made the Children of God, by Faith in Chriſt Jeſus, Gal. 3. 26. and therefore Infants cannot be made the Sons of God by Baptiſm, becauſe they have no Faith; they might as well argue thus; by Grace we are ſaved thro' Faith, Eph. 2. 7. but Infants have no Faith, therefore they cannot be ſaved; or thus, He that believeth not ſhall be damned, Mark 16. 16. Infants do not believe, ergo all Infants ſhall be damned. The Apoſtle plainly ſpeaks there, of Perſons converted from Heatheniſm to Chriſtianity, who therefore were baptized being adult Perſons. And ſo alſo he ſpeaks to them in the Epiſtle to the Epheſians, and in the Goſpel of Saint Mark. This place therefore can with no more reaſon be applied to the Caſe of Infants, than the Places cited from that Epiſtle, and from the Goſpel of Saint Mark.

Prop. 3. 3*dly*, A preſent Incapacity as to ſome ends of Baptiſm, cannot render the Children of believing Parents unfit for, or uncapable of Baptiſm, provided they be capable of ſome other ends of that Ordinance, this will be evident.

1*ſt*, From the Example of our Saviour, repairing to the Baptiſt to receive his Baptiſm, tho' he was uncapable of the chief Ends, for which it was deſigned, with reſpect to others. For Chriſt being without Sin, could neither repent, nor promiſe Amendment of Life; being the Wiſdom of the Father, he could be taught nothing; being the Chriſt, he could not profeſs to believe in him that was to come after the Baptiſt, that is in himſelf; and yet he comes to Baptiſm, to profeſs his Willingneſs to fulfil all Righteouſneſs: and alſo that by this Rite, he might be initiated into his Prophetick Office, and conſecrate himſelf to the Service of his Father.

2*dly*, From the Example of Circumciſion among the Jews, which laid an Obligation on all adult Proſelytes, as well as the Jews, to obey the whole Law of Moſes. Gal. 5. 2. and to advance to the Spiritual Circumciſion of their Hearts, but could lay no ſuch preſent Obligation on their Infants ſo to do. So likewiſe the ſame Proſelytes were firſt to be taught the Precepts of the Law; and then upon the Profeſſion of their Faith, and their Promiſe of Conformity to them were to be baptized, but this could not be required of their Children, who notwithſtanding were baptized with them. And therefore to repreſent it as a thing repugnant to Reaſon, that a Divine Inſtitution ſhould belong to Perſons uncapable of underſtanding the Nature and Ends of it, muſt highly reflect upon the Wiſdom of God, in appointing Circumciſion for Children eight Days old, they being then as uncapable of underſtanding the Ends of it, as our Children are of underſtanding the Ends of Baptiſm.

Prop. 4. 4*thly*, Infants are capable, whilſt ſuch, of ſome ends of Baptiſm; as firſt of a ſolemn and obliging Dedication to the Service of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt; for if Parents, in circumiſing of the Male Child, obliged him afterwards to own the God of Iſrael, as his God in Covenant, and yield Obedience to his Law, Gal. 5. 2. If the Vow of Sampſon's Parents obliged him to be a Nazarite for ever, Judg. 16. 17. If the Vow of Hanna, to which her Husband gave conſent, that Samuel ſhould be lent to the Lord for ever, devoted Samuel for ever to his Service, why ſhould we think the Dedication of the Chriſtian Parent inſufficient to paſs an Obligation on his Child, to ſerve that God, who made that Jeſus who redeemed him, and that good Spirit by whom alone he can be ſanctified? Why therefore might not God appoint this to be done for Children, by that only Rite, which he had inſtituted under the New Covenant, for entering any into the Number of his fœderal Servants? That they are capable by this Rite of entering into Covenant with God, ſo as to be enrolled in the Number of his choſen Generation, and peculiar People, and his holy Nation, is evident, becauſe the Jewiſh Infants obtained this Privilege by Virtue of their Circumciſion on the eighth Day; which therefore Saint Paul reckoneth among their Privileges, Philip. 3. 5; and hence, when by their Parents, this Circumciſion was neglected; they are ſaid to have broken his Covenant, Gen. 17. 14. Yea, that Children are capable of entring into Covenant with God, we learn from theſe words of Moſes to all the People, Deut. 29. 11. You ſtand this Day before the Lord your God, you and your little ones, that thou ſhouldſt enter into the Covenant of the Lord thy God, that thou mayſt be a People to him, and he may be thy God; and if Excluſion from this Covenant was a Loſs to the Child, as is apparent from thoſe words; The Infant not circumciſed ſhall be cut off from my People; which in the mildeſt Senſe muſt ſignifie, that he ſhall not be owned as one of them; ſurely it muſt be a Bleſſing to him to enter into this Covenant. 2dly, As they are capable of Obligation, by entring into Covenant; ſo are they, by it, capable of thoſe Bleſſings which they want whilſt Children. Chriſtian Baptiſm is appointed for an Entrance into the Kingdom of God; for without that, ſaith Chriſt, we cannot enter into this Kingdom, John 3. 5. By this we become Members of his Body, we being all baptized into one Body, 1 Cor. 12. 13. this is the Laver of Regeneration, by which we are born a-new, Tit. 3. 5. this is the Water inſtituted for the waſhing away of Sin, and for procuring the Remiſſion of it, Acts 2. 38. 22. 18. By this, laſtly, we are put into a ſtate of Salvation, Tit. 3. 5. in the way to eſcape Death, by the vertue of our Intereſt in the Death and Reſurrection of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. For, ſaith St. Peter, Baptiſm anſwers to the Ark of Noah, which ſaved him and his Children, for it now ſaveth us from Death, by the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt. Now either Infants are made capable of theſe ends of Baptiſm, or they are not; if they are not they cannot, by the ordinary means appointed by God, be born again, and therefore cannot enter into the Kingdom of God, they cannot be Members of Chriſt's Body, and ſo cannot be ſaved by him, who only is the Saviour of his Body, or obtain Remiſſion of Sins; they cannot be intereſted in Chriſt's Death, and ſo can have no Share in a happy Reſurrection from the Dead. If they are capable of theſe Bleſſings, it muſt be either by, or without that Baptiſm, which is by Chriſt appointed for the obtaining of theſe Bleſſings, if only by Baptiſm the Cauſe is gained; if without Baptiſm, they who aſſert this, muſt aſſign ſome other Cauſe, which procures them a Right to theſe Bleſſings, which I believe they cannot do. Moreover, Infants of believing Parents, being all the Off-ſpring of Adam, and therefore all obnoxious to Death, by reaſon of his Sin, Rom. 5. 12. they being born of the Fleſh, and therefore Fleſh, John 3. 6. and wanting a new Birth on that account, they being without Chriſt, and Strangers to the Covenants of promiſe, Eph. 2. 12. till they enter into Covenant with God and Chriſt, they cannot be delivered from this Death, be born a new, or be in Chriſt, but by the Grace of God which Chriſt hath purchaſed for, and promiſed to them only who are made ſome way Members of his Body, and Children of God. Why therefore ſhould we not conceive they ſhould obtain this Favour by that means, which is alone appointed by Chriſt, for making any one a Member of his Body, and be born again by that Water and Spirit, without which, ſaith our Lord, none can enter into the Kingdom of God? In a Word, ſeeing the Infants of Jewiſh Parents were to be cut off from his People, and from a Covenant-Relation to God for want of Circumciſion, why ſhould we think the Children of Chriſtian Parents ſhould enjoy all, or any of the Bleſſings of the New Covenant without Baptiſm?

Prop. 5. 5thly, I add, that no Objections can be valid againſt the Right of Infants born of Chriſtian Parents to Chriſtian Baptiſm, which equally deſtroy the Right of Jewiſh Infants to Circumciſion; becauſe they, by Divine Inſtitution, had a Right to Circumciſion. 'Tis therefore no good Argument againſt their Right to Baptiſm.

1ſt, " That the end of Baptiſm, viz. to " be a viſible Sign of inviſible Grace is " wanting in the Baptiſm of Infants; Bap- " tiſm ceaſing before the thing repreſented " by Water, is ſignified to the Infant. For according to this Argument, Circumciſion could be no Sacrament to a Jewiſh Infant, dying before he could perceive the Signification of it, or know it was a Seal of the Covenant. 2dly, Tho' I own that Baptiſm, by Water, is Baptiſm by a Sign of ſome inviſible Grace, viz. the purifying of the Soul, from the Guilt and Pollution of Sin; yet I deny that this is by Divine Appointment, any end of Baptiſm. 3dly, It is not neceſſary, by virtue of this School Definition of a Sacrament, which is not founded upon Scripture, that a Sacrament ſhould, de preſenti, be a Sign to the recipient; for ſo it would not be to the Perſon circumciſed on the eighth Day; but only that it be a Sign, or an Aſſurance to the Parents, and Congregation of God's Grace to, and favourable acceptance of the Child, and his admiſſion into the Flock of Chriſt, who by appointing for them the outward Sign, ſhews he is willing to confer upon them the Grace of Baptiſm.

When, 2dly, It is ſaid, that " except " the Perſon to be baptized, muſt be a Be- " liever, and a Penitent, there can be no " way to ſhew who is to be baptized or " not, nor any reaſon to be given for the " Excluſion of any Perſon whatſoever. This alſo will be anſwered from the Conſideration of the Practice, and Inſtitution, concerning Circumciſion; for that belonging to all Children that were capable of that Rite, Baptiſm, by Analogy, belongs to all Children born of Chriſtian Parents, admitted into that Covenant, where there is no difference of Male and Female, Gal. 3. 28. and are as capable of Baptiſm, as the Male-Children of the Jews were of Circumciſion; all born in Holineſs, i. e. ſeminally holy, as being the Off-ſpring of them who were equally an holy Nation, a chosen Generation, a peculiar People, 1 Pet. 2. 9. and therefore as fit to be admitted into that Covenant, which made their Parents so. Moreover the Practice of admitting Proselytes to Circumcision, from the first Institution of it, seems to plead fairly for the admission of Christian Infants to Baptism. For as in the first Institution of that Rite, God commanded that he that was born in Abraham's House, or bought with his Money, should be circumcised; not that he was to be compelled to it, (seeing that would have been a Profanation of that Sacrament) but that Abraham was to persuade them to it; or if he could not do it, he was to dismiss them; so that no adult Person was to be circumcised without his free Consent, and his Instruction in the Nature of the Covenant, into which he entered; and yet upon his entrance into Covenant by Circumcision, his Children also were to be circumcised, so may we reasonably conceive it is with reference to Christian Baptism. Now hence it follows, that Infants are not to be excluded from Baptism.

1*st*, By reason of their Incapacity, whilst they continue Infants to understand the Nature, or the Ends of Baptism, the Jewish Infants being as uncapable, whilst they continued so, to understand the Nature, or the ends of Circumcision. Or,

2*dly*, Because they cannot enter into Covenant by their own personal Consent, nor promise sincere Obedience to the Laws of Christ, for the Jewish Infants entered into Covenant with God without this personal Consent, and were obliged to obey the Law of Moses without this Promise.

3*dly*, When therefore the Anti-pædo-baptists argue thus: "That which makes Baptism "saving, is the Stipulation of a good Con- "science towards God, 1 Pet. 3. 21. there- "fore Baptism cannot be salutary to Infants, "who cannot make this Stipulation: This is as if I should say, the true Circumcision before God is not the outward Circumcision of the Flesh, but the inward Circumcision of the Heart and Spirit, Rom. 2. 29. therefore the Jewish Infants, for want of this, were not to be admitted into Covenant with God, by Circumcision; for the Argument is plainly parallel, the Answer of a good Conscience is required, that the Baptism may be salutary, therefore they only are to be baptized, who can make this Answer; and the inward Circumcision is required as the only acceptable Circumcision in the Sight of God; therefore they only are to be circumcised who have this inward Circumcision of the Heart.

Prop. 6. 6*thly*, The Institution of Baptism delivered in these words; Go, teach all Nations, baptizing them, &c. Matth. 28. 19. or those; he that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved, Mark 16. 16. doth not infer an indirect, or consequential Prohibition of Infant Baptism, because these words were not intended to exclude them from their former Right of being admitted into Covenant with their Parents, but only to declare what was required of their Parents to obtain a Right to Baptism, both for themselves, and for their Children. For, 1*st*, had the Commission given to Christ's Apostles run in these words, Go teach all Nations, circumcising them, would they have thought that Infants of those Nations had been excluded from Circumcision by it, because they were uncapable of being taught; could they especially have understood him thus, who knew their Infants were circumcised at an Age uncapable of Knowledge? Why therefore should we judge they thought Infants excluded by these words, Go teach (or proselyte) all Nations, baptizing them, since it was equally the Custom in making Proselytes to their Religion, to teach them the Fundamentals of the Jewish Law; and upon their Profession of the Belief of it, not only to Baptize them, but their Infants also. The Gerberith, or Proselyte of the Covenant of Justice, was first to be instructed in the Fundamentals of the Law, the Weight or Burden of it, the Penalties, and the Rewards, or Blessings contained in it, and then to promise his Submission to it; and yet none of these prerequisites excluded the Infants of those Proselytes then born from Baptism, or Circumcision, why therefore should the like Conditions required of the adult Christian Proselyte exclude his Children? Or, why should we imagine, that those Apostles should so apprehend these words, who knew full well that these Conditions were required of the Jewish Proselyte adult; and yet that by the Sentence of of the Sanhedrin, they stood obliged to baptize his Children, as having Right to Baptism, by his Parents Faith. "Is it reasonable, saith Dr. Still. to "think that when our Saviour bid the A- "postles gather the Jews and Gentiles into "a Church State, they should imagine In- "fants were to be excluded from it, when "the only Nation that was in such a State, "and all that were at any time admitted to "it, had their Infants so solemnly admit- "ted? To this Mr. Tombs answers, (1*st*,) That they who were born of that Nation, were by Birth, not by Circumcision, visible Members of that Church. Now, (1*st*,) were this true, it would evidently prove, that the Infants of Christians are also visible Members of Christ's Church, as having the same Title to it as the Jewish Infants had to be Members of their Church, to wit, that they are born of Christian Parents; and why then are they admitted into that State, by Baptism, when they are adult? 2*dly*, This is impertinent, it being certain that they could not continue Members of that Church without Circumciſion, ſince the want of it renders them Violaters of God's Covenant, and upon that account, to be cut off by Death, or by excluſion from that Church. And 3dly, This Aſſertion contradicts both the words of the Inſtitution, and the conſtant Opinion which the whole Jewiſh Nation had of it; for the words of the Inſtitution ran thus, Gen. 17. 11. This is my Covenant, i. e. The Rite by which you ſhall enter into Covenant with me. Ye ſhall circumciſe the Fleſh of your Foreskin, and it ſhall be a ſign of the Covenant between me and you. And Ver. 13. The Child of thy Houſe ſhall be circumciſed, and my Covenant ſhall be in your Fleſh. The Sindick or Sponſor who held the Child in his Arms till it was circumciſed, was called Baal berith, the Maſter of the Covenant; and when the Child was circumciſed, the Father ſaid, bleſſed be the Lord who hath commanded us to cauſe this Child to enter into the Covenant of Abraham, ſo certain it is that the whole Jewiſh Nation thought they entred into Covenant by this Rite.

Mr. Tombs ſaith, " That our Saviour's " Words Matth. 28. 19. are to be expound- " ed not according to the Apprehenſions of " the Apoſtles at firſt, for they miſtook him Acts 10. 14. But as the Words did expreſs his Meaning.

Now I grant that the Apoſtles miſtook the meaning of thoſe words, Go teach all Nations baptizing them, thinking the former Words related only to the teaching of the Jews diſperſed thro' the World, and to the Proſelytes of all Nations they had made. Acts 11. 19. But this is much to our Advantage; for ſeeing they did this in Complyance with the received Tradition of their own Nation, that it was unlawful to converſe with the Gentiles, as being uncircumciſed and unclean, we may be more aſſured that they acted in baptizing them according to the received Tradition of their Nation, that Rite being uſed by them to make the Gentiles clean. 2dly, Our Lord was pleaſed to correct their Error about the Perſons to be taught by a miraculous Viſion vouchſafed to Peter; ſeeing then we read of nothing done to correct their other ſuppoſed Error, we have no reaſon to believe it was an Error, but rather to judge it a true Interpretation of the extent of their Commiſſion. It being therefore unqueſtionable among thoſe Diſciples to whom our Lord directed this Commiſſion, that the Children of Jews and Proſelytes were admitted to enter into Covenant by the ſame Rite and Ceremony by which their Parents did ſo; tho' they were as incapable of underſtanding the ends of the Inſtitution, or doing what was required of the Parents to fit them for the Inſtitution, as our Children are that being thought ſufficient for their Admiſſion, quod a Parentibus eorum factum fuit, which the Parents did by their own free Choice and Faith: It being alſo evident that our Lord choſe that Baptiſm for the admiſſion of Perſons into his new Covenant and Church, by which their Proſelytes were cleanſed, and fitted to enter into the Jewiſh Church, what cauſe have we to think either that Chriſt's Diſciples would not ſo underſtand his Commiſſion, as to extend it to the ſame Perſons who formerly were admitted by the ſame Rite, or that Chriſt did not intend it ſo, as to include the Infants of believing Parents, and then the Admiſſion of them muſt not be thought an Alteration of Chriſt's Inſtitution, or an Addition to it; but only a right Underſtanding of it, and as an Inſtitution of Baptiſm, inſtead of that Circumciſion which was to ceaſe under the new Covenant, as being only a Rite appointed for the entrance into the old. In fine, ſuppoſe ſome Perſons ſent to the Indians from Churches which retain Infant Baptiſm, with this Commiſſion, Go teach the Indians baptizing them; could they who were thus ſent, conceive the Intent of this Commiſſion was to exclude the Infants of believing Indians; if not, then muſt it not be thought our Saviour's Purpoſe to exclude them by the like Words ſpoken to them who baptized the Infants of believing Parents, and which were neceſſary for ſuch a Commiſſion as ſent them to the unbelieving World. For tho' this Commiſſion, as Mr. Tombs ſays, went from our Saviour, and not from the Jewiſh Church; yet ſince it was a Commiſſion given to Perſons who even after they had own'd the true Meſſiah, and had received the Holy Ghoſt, were very tenacious of their Jewiſh Rites; and ſince it concern'd a Rite of common uſe in their Church, and by which they cleanſed the Infants of all thoſe who came into Covenant with God as Proſelytes, applying to them the ſame Rite by which their Parents were fitted to enter into Covenant, our Lord in this his Inſtitution expreſſing no diſlike to that way, and ſaying nothing of the unſuitableneſs of it to a Goſpel State, muſt in all reaſon be ſuppoſed to approve the doing of it after the manner of that Church. And laſtly, This will farther be confirmed by returning a clear anſwer to the Arguments produced to prove that Infants are excluded by the Words of this Commiſſion. As,

Argument 1. 1ſt, It is not lawful ſaith Mr. Tombs, where Chriſt hath aſſigned the thing to be done expreſſing the Qualification of the Perſon, to do it to others, or otherwiſe.

I anſwer, Hence it only follows, That no Heathens are to be baptized, till they be firſt taught to believe in Chriſt: Extend it farther, and 1ſt, it cuts off all the Members of a Chriſtian Church from Baptiſm, for the Argument runs as ſtrongly thus, where Chriſt hath appointed the thing to be done, and expreſſed the Qualification of the Perſon, it is not lawful to do it to others, but the only Perſons aſſigned in this Commiſſion to be taught and baptized, are τὰ ἔθνη the Heathens or unbelieving Gentiles, therefore it is not lawful to teach, or baptize a Jew, or any Perſons who were never Heathens; and ſo the Quakers and Socinians who deny Water Baptiſm to be a ſtanding Ordinance, muſt be in the right. 2dly, It was not lawful for the Jews either to baptize, or circumciſe an Heathen, till he was taught the Fundamentals of the Jewiſh Law; but will it hence follow, that it was unlawful either to baptize or circumciſe their Children before? And yet the Caſe is parallel, for teaching was undoubtedly the Qualification aſſign'd for the adult Heathen to be admitted a Proſelyte of Juſtice, and therefore by this Rule it was not lawful to admit his Children.

Argument 2d. " They who are to be bap" tized, muſt be taught to obſerve all things " which Chriſt commanded his Apoſtles.

Anſw. 1ſt. The Text doth not ſay they muſt be firſt taught all theſe things, but rather they muſt be firſt taught to believe in Chriſt, then baptized, and after taught to obſerve all Chriſt's Commands, and this Interpretation is certain from the Practice of the Apoſtles, who inſtantly baptized whole Houſes on the Belief of ſome, or all of them, that Jeſus was the Chriſt, without any farther teaching. 2dly, The Heathen who was to be admitted as a Proſelyte of Juſtice, was to be firſt taught the Fundamentals of the Law of Moſes, before he either was baptized or circumciſed: But was it therefore requiſite that his Children ſhould firſt be taught? Again, all that were born in Abraham's Houſe, or bought with his Money being his own, are to be circumciſed; as for thoſe taken in War, Abraham was to perſuade them to it, and if they would not be perſuaded, to diſmiſs or ſell them, if being of Age, they conſented to circumciſe them, (for to compel them to receive Circumciſion, had been a Profanation of that Ordinance) muſt therefore their Children be circumciſed only when they could conſent?

Argument 3d. " Go teach all Nations baptizing them, cannot be meant of them
" whilſt Infidels, but when taught to believe,
" and ſo when made Diſciples.

Anſw. It was abſolutely neceſſary that Heathens ſhould be firſt taught to renounce their Idolatry, and to believe in Chriſt, before they were baptized in his Name, as it was neceſſary for Idolatrous Heathens to own the true God, and to believe the Law of Moſes, before they were admitted Proſelytes of Juſtice, and ſo baptized and circumciſed; but as it was not therefore neceſſary that their Children ſhould ſo believe that they might enter by the ſame Rites into the ſame Covenant; ſo neither is it neceſſary for Children born of believing Parents under the Goſpel ſtate.

Argument 4th. To be baptized in the Name of Chriſt, is to own Chriſt, as it appears from the Words of the Apoſtle, were you baptized in the Name of Paul? 1 Cor 1. 13.

Anſw. 1ſt, This Argument is built upon a falſe, or at the leaſt an unneceſſary Interpretation of the Apoſtle's Words, which may well bear this ſenſe, ſtand you obliged by Baptiſm to have Paul for your Maſter, to yield Obedience to him, or Chriſt? And then as the Infant was obliged by Circumciſion to yield Obedience to the Law of Moſes, ſo may the Chriſtian Infant be obliged by Baptiſm to yield Obedience to the Laws of Chriſt.

2dly, The Apoſtle here plainly ſpeaks of thoſe he had converted from Heatheniſm to the Faith of Chriſt, and therefore muſt be obliged by their Baptiſm to own Chriſt as their Saviour; but hence it will not follow that their Children may not be baptized till they could do ſo. The adult Perſons who were admitted as Proſelytes to the Jewiſh Religion, were firſt obliged to own the God of Iſrael, as the true God, and the Law of Moſes as derived from him; but yet when they had done this, their Infants were admitted both to Baptiſm and Circumciſion, tho' they could do neither of theſe things.

Prop. 7th. Had Chriſt intended to exclude the Infants of believing Parents from this Sacrament, there was great reaſon for his eſpecial Prohibition, but little indeed of his Command upon his Intention to admit them, or of expreſs naming them in a Commiſſion to baptize directed to the Members of the Jewiſh Church, to whom Pædo-baptiſm, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot, was ſo well known, uſual, and frequent in the Admiſſion of Proſelytes, that nothing almoſt was more known or frequent.

1ſt, " There was no need ſaith he, to " ſtrengthen it with any other Precept than " that which converted Baptiſm into an " Evangelical Sacrament, for Chriſt took " Baptiſm into his hands, and converted it " into an Evangelical Precept, as he found " it; this only added, that he might promote
" it to a more worthy end and nobler uſe.
" The whole Nation knew well enough " that little Children uſed to be baptized,
" there was no need of an (expreſs) Precept,
" for that which had ever been, by common
" uſe prevailed. If a Royal Proclamation
" ſhould now iſſue out in theſe words,
" Let every one on the Lord's Day reſort to " the Publick Aſſemblies in the Church, would

" would it be reaſonable thence to argue, " that Prayer, hearing of Sermons, ſinging " of Pſalms, were not to be performed in " the Publick on the Lord's Day, becauſe " there was no mention of them in the Pro- " clamation, there being no need to make " mention of the particular kinds of di- " vine Worſhip to be celebrated there, " when they were always and every where " well known, and always in uſe before the " Proclamation. The Caſe is the very ſame " in Baptiſm; Chriſt inſtituted it for an " Evangelical Sacrament, whereby all ſhould " be admitted into the Goſpel Covenant, as " heretofore it was uſed for Admiſſion of " Proſelytes to the Jewiſh Religion, the " Particulars belonging to it, as the manner " of baptizing, the Age, the Sex to be " baptized, &c. had no need of a ſpecial " Rule, becauſe they were by common uſe " of them ſufficiently known to the moſt " ignorant Men.

On the other hand, there was need of a plain and open Prohibition that Infants and little Children ſhould not be baptized, if Chriſt would not have them baptized: For ſince it was common before, for the whole Nation of the Jews to baptize them, had Chriſt deſigned to have that Cuſtom aboliſhed, " it is reaſonable to preſume he would have " openly forbid it, Therefore his Silence, " and the Silence of the Scripture in this " matter, is a Confirmation of the received " Practice. This Mr. Tombs retorts thus, If Chriſt had intended to continue Infant Baptiſm, had there not been great reaſon he ſhould have poſitively told us ſo; but had he conſider'd that Chriſt ſpake not to us, but to them who were Jews; and that he did this when he was giving this Commiſſion to them whom he found ſtill very tenacious of their former Rites, he would have ſeen it more reaſonable to conceive, that had Chriſt intended a Prohibition of that Rite for the future, and by it ſo great an Alteration of the State of Infants, in reference to their Church Membership, he had far greater reaſon poſitively to ſay he intended that Alteration of the ſtate of Infants, than by his Silence tacitly to permit them to go on ſtill in the Obſervation of that Rite; ſince they who were ſo unwilling to underſtand his plain Commiſſion of preaching to the Gentiles contrary to their received Traditions, would be more unlikely to underſtand his Silence as a Prohibition of the like Tradition.

Prop. 8th. We have great reaſon to conceive that Chriſt and his Apoſtles did admit of Infants Baptiſm, and thought the Practice of it lawful, and ſuitable to the Goſpel ſtate: For 1ſt, 'Tis certain that our Lord's Diſciples thought Chriſt's Command to teach all Nations concerned only the Jews and Proſelytes of Juſtice of all Nations, for they ſtill look'd on all the Gentiles as unclean, tho' they were Proſelytes of the Gate, and deemed it unlawful to go in to, or converſe with the Gentiles. Acts 10 28. 11. 3. And this Opinion they held after they had baptized thouſands; and could they then imagine that his Commiſſion excluded thoſe who by the Law of Moſes were admitted to Circumciſion, and by their conſtant Cuſtom were baptized together with their proſelyted and believing Parents. Since notwithſtanding the teaching prerequiſite to the Admiſſion of adult Proſelytes of Juſtice, and their eſpecial Caveat de iis non niſi ſponte circumcidendis, of not circumciſing them without their Conſent, they both baptized and circumciſed their Infants, muſt they not alſo be ſuppoſed to have dealt thus with the Infants of their proſelyted Parents to Chriſtianity? eſpecially conſidering that they thought of nothing leſs than of the changing the Cuſtoms and Traditions then received among them. Acts 20. 21. Among which this was one, (a) That he is no Proſelyte who is not baptized, as well as circumciſed, and that without this he is ſtill a Gentile, and unholy. 2dly, That Baptiſm is a Rite of Initiation to Chriſtians, as Circumciſion was to the Jews, appears from the Apoſtle's Declaration Col. 2. 12. That in Chriſt we are circumciſed with the Circumciſion made without hands, and conſiſting in the putting off the Body of Sin, we being buried with him in Baptiſm, and thence concluding we do not need the Circumciſion of the Fleſh; whence it may juſtly be inferred, that Baptiſm is Chriſt's Ordinance for the Admiſſion of Infants of believing Parents into the Church of Chriſt, as Circumciſion was of old for the Admiſſion of the Infants of the Jews into his Church and Covenant; for if it had been otherwiſe, and Infants under Chriſtianity had not been received by any federal Rite into Covenant with God, the Objection of the neceſſity of Circumciſion as to them, would have been ſtill in force, they entring into Covenant by no other Rite, and ſo remaining Strangers from the Church, and as much Aliens from the Adoption, the Covenant, and Promiſes, as Gentiles were, which ſure the Jews would have objected to the reproach of Chriſtianity, if truly they could have done it; for the more averſe to Chriſtianity they were, the more ready would they be by ſuch Arguments as theſe to ſhew the Imperfection of that Inſtitution, and the Advantage of the Jew on this account above the Chriſtian. For Inſtance, 'twas

'twas hotly disputed, Acts 15. whether the believing Gentiles were to be received into the Church, by Circumcision, or not; and this Question, as far as it concerned the believing Gentiles, was carried by the Council in the Negative; they then who were concerned for the Affirmative, being Christians, must either think the Children of such Persons, about whom they disputed, were to be admitted by some other way, or not; if so, what other way, besides that of Baptism, can be imagined; if not, they must conclude them unclean, excluded from God's Church and Favour, and from all the Blessings they ascribed to Circumcision. The Christian Institution therefore must, for the Satisfaction of their believing Parents, afford some way of sanctifying these Infants, or of admitting them into the Number of God's People, which being confessedly no other than that of Baptism, it must be supposed to allow that to them; that by it, in the Phrase of (a) Irenæus, infantes & parvuli renascantur in Deum; Infants and little Children may be regenerated.

In a Word, Infants are thought capable of the Remission of Sin, and therefore of that Baptism which is instituted for the Remission of Sin, they being born of the Flesh, are Flesh, and therefore need some way or other to be born a new; and since they cannot be thus begotten by the Word, what more likely way can be imagined, than that this new Birth should pass upon them by the Laver of Regeneration, Tit. 3. 5. or that they should be born again of Water, and of the Holy Ghost, they may be Members of Christ's Body, he being only the Saviour of his Body, and therefore must be capable of that Ordinance by which we are all baptized into one Body. They are capable of entering into the Kingdom of God, into which they cannot enter saith our Lord, except they be born of Water, and the Holy Ghost; they may obtain a blessed Resurrection, and therefore must be buried with Christ in Baptism. Deny all, or any of these things to Infants, and they are lost for ever. Christ must have dyed as to them in vain, they being yet in their Sin, and without Christ, in their unregenerate Estate, uncapable of entering into the Kingdom of God, and of a blessed Resurrection; and so it must have been better for them, dying in their Infancy, that they had never been. Christ must have no real Kindness for them, and their Condition must be far worse under the Gospel, than it was under the Law, when they had both the Seal and Promise given to them, that God would be their God; that they are capable of all these Blessings, by virtue of their Baptism, provided they be capable Subjects of it, is evident from those Scriptures, which ascribe all these Blessings to Persons duly receiving Baptism, and do not, by any unworthy Act, render themselves unworthy of them.

AN APPENDIX,

In Answer to Mr. Whiston's Dissertation on Matthew the xxiv.

MY Notes upon the 24th Chapter of St. Matthew, and my Appendix to that Chapter, seem to me to depend upon such solid and strong Reasons, that Mr. Whiston durst not formally attack, and so they need no defence against his Dissertation on that Subject; yet, because he seems to have made a shift to evade some few things there said, I shall first propound the difference in this Matter, betwixt his Sentiments and mine, and then consider his several Observations, and shew there is no strength in them, either to confirm his own Opinion, or to invalidate the Arguments, which I, and Doctor Hammond, have produced against it. And,

1st, He delivers his Opinion thus: "That "the Question which gave occasion to this "Discourse is double, or really two distinct "Questions, viz. the one when these brave "Buildings of the Temple were to be de- "stroyed; the second, what should be the "Sign

" Sign of his coming to Judgment, and of " the end of the World. I, on the contrary, have aſſerted, and proved by three Arguments, that the Queſtion is indeed but one, and concerns only the Deſtruction of the People, and the Temple, and the Polity of the Jews, and the Signs when this was to happen.

That two diſtinct Queſtions are offered to our Saviour, he proves from the Account given of them, by St. Matthew, whoſe firſt Queſtion, tell us when theſe things ſhall be? relates to the Deſtruction of the Buildings of the Temple; his ſecond, what ſhall be the Sign of thy coming, and of the end of the Age? relates, as Mr. Whiſton thinks, to the Signs and Tokens of Chriſt's coming to Judgment, and of the end of the World. To which I anſwer, That there be indeed two Queſtions in St. Matthew, but then they both relate to the ſame thing, viz. when theſe things ſhould happen to the People, and Temple of the Jews, Luke 13. 34, 35. 19. 43. 44. and what Signs ſhould precede, or accompany that Deſolation. For, Argum. 1*ſt*. Firſt, tho' the Words of St. Matthew are larger than the Words of the other Evangeliſts; yet, being all inſpired Perſons, they cannot contradict, or thwart each other. Now St. Luke ſaith expreſly, Chap. 21. 7. That the Queſtion of the Diſciples were theſe two; When ſhall theſe things be, and what is the Sign when they ſhall come to paſs: St. Mark, Chap. 13. 4. ſaith as expreſly they were theſe; Tell us when theſe things ſhall be, καὶ τί τὸ σημεῖον ὅταν μέλλη πάντα ταῦτα συντελεῖσθαι, and what is the Sign when all theſe things ſhall come to paſs; ſeeing then that (a) Mr. Whiſton grants, that ταῦτα, ταῦτα πάντα, theſe things, and all theſe things, refer particularly to the Buildings of the Temple, which were to be deſtroyed in that Age, without any Relation to the Day of Judgment, and the Signs thereof: And ſeeing both St. Mark, and St. Luke expreſly ſay, that the ſecond Enquiry was when πάντα ταῦτα, all theſe things were to come to paſs, or συντελεῖσθαι, to be conſummated, 'tis evident they muſt either contradict St. Matthew, in ſaying this was the ſecond Enquiry of the Diſciples, or elſe their ſecond Enquiry in St. Matthew, muſt relate to the ſame thing, to wit, to the Deſtruction of the People, and the Temple of the Jews.

Argum. 2. My ſecond Argument, for Confirmation of my Opinion, is this; Chriſt ſo anſwers to the Queſtions, touching the Signs of his coming, as manifeſtly to ſhew they were contemporary with the Deſolation of the People, Polity, and Temple of Jeruſalem, ſaying, Verſ. 27. as the Lightning cometh from the Eaſt, and ſhineth to the Weſt, ſo ſhall ἡ παρουσία the coming of the Son of Man be, Matth. 24. 27. for ver. 28. where the Carcaſs (i. e. the Jewiſh People) is, there ſhall the Eagles be gathered together, i. e. the Roman Army, whoſe Enſign is the Eagle; ſo that the coming of that Army to deſtroy them, and the coming of the Son of Man, muſt be contemporary. And again, ver. 37. 39. as it was in the Days of Noah, ſo ſhall ἡ παρουσία the coming of the Son of Man be; for two ſhall be in the field, two grinding in the Mill, the one ſhall be taken, and the other left, ver. 40, 41, which words are followed in St. Luke with theſe, Where the Carcaſs is, there ſhall the Eagles be gathered together, Chap. 17. 34.

Now to this Mr. Whiſton replies only by this ſorry ſhift, that the 27, & 28 Verſes in St. Matthew are miſplaced, and belong to their fellows, ver. 37th of the ſame Chapter. Which if Men may ſay at Pleaſure, all Certainty from the Connexion of the words in Scripture is deſtroyed.

2*dly*, Why doth he ſay that they are placed here without any viſible Connexion. When the Connexion runs ſo clearly thus, hearken not to them, who ſay that Chriſt is in the ſecret Chambers, for the coming of the Son of Man will not be ſecret and obſcure, but bright as the Lightning, &c.

3*dly*, The ſame words in St. Matthew follow the ſame words, Luke 17. 27, as will be evident, by comparing Matth. 24. 23, with Luke 17. 23. and μὴ ἐξέλθητε, Matth. 24. 26, with μὴ ἀπέλθητε, Luke 17. 23. ſo that if the words of Chriſt be not miſplaced there, they cannot be miſplaced here.

And, 4*thly*, place them where you will, the Argument hath ſtill the ſame Force to prove that the coming of the Son of Man muſt be contemporary with the coming of the Roman Army to deſtroy the People of Jeruſalem; this being given as the Reaſon, why the coming of the Son of Man ſhould be ſo conſpicuous, that where the Jews were, there ſhould the Roman Army be gathered together to deſtroy them.

Argum. 3. My third Argument is this, by comparing the words of Chriſt elſewhere, with thoſe contained in theſe three Evangeliſts; this will be farther evident, for Chriſt ſaith, Mark 9. 1. there be ſome ſtanding here who ſhall not taſt of Death, till they ſee the Son of Man coming in his Kingdom; and Matth. 26. 64. within a while ye ſhall ſee the Son of Man ſitting at the right hand of Power, and and coming in the Clouds of Heaven; when therefore it is said, Matth. 24. 30. Mark 13. 26. Luke 21. 27. Ye shall see the Son of Man coming in the Clouds of Heaven with great Power and Glory; this Advent must be whilst some were living that then stood by Christ, and within a while, and so not at the end of the World.

Now in reply to this, behold a noble Criticism, viz. the Word in all these places is not παρὼν, but ἐρχόμενος, not present, but coming, and what then? Will he not be παρὼν present, when he is come in his Kingdom? Will not his παρέλευσις be παρουσία, his advent be his coming? But saith Mr. Whiston, no Example can be given out of this Discourse, of the using the Word παρουσία in any other Sense, but of the Presence and Appearance of Christ at the last Day. I answer,

1*st*, Let him produce Examples of Christ's coming in the Clouds of Heaven, in Power and great Glory; and I will undertake to prove his παρουσία used in another Sense elsewhere.

2*dly*, I have proved already, that it is used of Christ's coming to destroy the People of the Jews, Matth. 24. 27. Luke 17. 24. I have proved also, that it must bear this Sense, when (a) St James speaks twice of the παρουσία τῦ κυρίυ coming of the Lord, Chap. 5. 7, 8. and when I come to vindicate my Interpretation of 2 Thess. 2. I shall prove that it bears the same Sense there, ver. 8. And,

3*dly*, St. Mark, Chap. 9. 1. brings in Christ speaking thus: Verily, I say unto you, there be some standing here, who shall not taste of Death, till they see the Kingdom of God come in Power; and St. Luke, Chap. 9. 27. I say to you of a Truth there be some standing here who shall not taste of Death till they see the Kingdom of God come; whence it is evident, that Kingdom must come, while some of that Age were living; when then the same St. Luke saith, Chap. 21. 34. When you see these things come to pass, know that the Kingdom of God is near, If he speaks of the same Kingdom of God then must that also come in the same Age; if of the Day of Judgment, why doth he immediately add, Verily, I say unto you, this Generation shall not pass away, till all these things be fulfilled; which words, saith Mr. Whiston, have no Relation to the Day of Judgment, Page 292.

That συντέλεια τῦ αἰῶνος, signifies the end of the World, he attempts to prove from the Signification of the Word. But,

1*st*, It appears from St. Mark, that what in St. Matthew is σημεῖον συντελείας τῦ αἰῶνος, the Sign of the end of the Age, is the same with what is the Sign, ὅταν μέλλη πάντα ταῦτα συντελεῖσθαι, when all these things shall be accomplished. And that it is the same with the end of the Jewish State, appears from the whole Thread of our Lord's Answer. For to this Enquiry he answers, Matth. 24. 6. Mark 13. 7. Luke 21. 9. You shall hear of Wars, and Rumours of Wars, ἀλλ' ὅπω ἐστὶ τὸ τέλος, but the end (you enquire after) is not yet; and ver. 13. He that endureth, εἰς τέλος, to the end, shall be saved; and ver. 14. the Gospel shall be preached, ἐν ὅλῃ τῇ οἰκυμένῃ, thro' the whole Roman Empire, καὶ τότε ἥξει τὸ τέλος, and then shall the end come; that is, ἡ ἐρήμωσις αὐτῆς, the Desolation of Jerusalem, Luke 21. 20. now the Gospel was preached thus throughout the World, saith St. Paul, Col. 1. 6. 23 about eight Years before the Destruction of Jerusalem. Till then Mr. Whiston can find any other end mentioned by the Apostles, to which our Lord returns this Answer, he must be forced to grant, that this is an Answer to their Question, περὶ τῆ συντελείας τῦ αἰῶνος, i. e. concerning the end of the Age they enquired after. Moreover, when the Apostle says, that Christ appeared, ἐπὶ τῇ συντελείᾳ τῶν αἰώνων, at the Consummation of Ages, to take away Sin by the Sacrifice of himself. Heb. 9. 26, and then adds, that he shall come, ἐκ δευτέρυ, a second time without a Sacrifice for Sin, for the Salvation of them that expect him. Must not the συντέλεια τῶν αἰώνων, the end of Ages, signifie a time as distinct from the Day of Judgment, as was our Lord's Passion, from that Day, which is not yet come. And, lastly, Why is he thus confident, when he hath not returned one Word of answer, either to Dr. Hammond, on this Chapter, note (b), or to Dr. Lightfoot on the place.

2*dly*, Moreover, " Mr. Whiston owns that " the Apostles look'd upon these two Que- " stions, as belonging to the same time; " and imagin'd that our Saviour would not " destroy Jerusalem, and its Temple, till " he came to put an end to the present " State of the World, at the Day of Judg- " ment: And this, saith he, appears by the " Words of the Question, set down in St. " Mark and St. Luke, which evidently " shew, that they did not distinguish them " in their own Thoughts, but look'd upon " them as coincident. Now tho' it doth not follow hence that these things really were coincident; yet it doth follow that, to inform them of the Time and Signs of the Destruction of Jerusalem, was all our Saviour had to say, in Satisfaction to their Question; for surely he answers fully, who anſwers to all that they intended to enquire after. Add to this, That it neither is, nor can be proved, that Chriſt in theſe three Chapters gives any one Sign of the coming of the Day of Judgment; for the Signs he mentions, evidently relate to the θλίψις, or Affliction of the Jews, and are immediately connected with them, as will inſtantly be proved: 'Tis therefore certain that in theſe Chapters Chriſt doth not anſwer to this Queſtion, What is the Sign of thy Coming, and of the end of the Age in Mr Whiſton's Senſe.

3*dly*, Tho' he is very confident that the Jews had no Notion of any Age to ſucceed after that of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; yet ſeeing their Evangelical Prophet ſpeaketh of Chriſt as of the Father, τῦ μέλλοντ@ αἰῶν@, of the Age to come. Iſa. 9. 7. Seeing St. Paul in his Epiſtle to them, ſpeaketh of an οἰκουμένη μέλλουσα, a World to come, Chap. 2. 5. Seeing the Prediction of their renowned Elias runneth thus, That as there was two Thouſand Years To-hu, or before the Law; ſo ſhould there be two Thouſand Years of Continuance of the Law, and two Thouſand Years of the Meſſiah; and St. Paul ſaith in Alluſion to theſe three Ages, That upon the Chriſtians of his time were come, τὰ τέλη τῦ αἰώνων, the end of the Ages. 1 Cor. 10. 11. And that Chriſt had appeared ἐπὶ συντελείᾳ τῦ αἰώνων, at the end of the Ages, to take away Sin by the Sacrifice of himſelf, Heb. 9. 26. And ſeeing the Jewiſh Writer ſpake ſo frequently of an Holam Habba, and Vetter, or an Age future and to come in the Days of the Meſſiah, why might not the Apoſtles ſpeak in their own Phraſe of the Conſummation of the Jewiſh Age?

The ſecond Thing in which we differ is this, That he aſſerts that only what occurs in this Chapter, from the 4th. to the 28th. Verſe, is to be expounded of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; whereas I aſſert, That from thence to the 35th. and probably to the 43d. Verſe, all is to be expounded of the Deſtruction of the Temple, Polity, and People of the Jews, and of the Signs and Occurrences relating to that Deſtruction.

Now here let it be noted, that if the Diſcourſe in St. Matthew concerning the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem ends at the 28th. Verſe, it muſt end in St. Mark at the 23d. and in St. Luke at the 24th. Verſe; becauſe the 25th. Verſe in St. Luke, and the 24th. in St. Mark, anſwer directly to the 29th. in St. Matthew. Now againſt this I have made a particular Diſſertation in my Appendix to Matth. 24. to which Mr. Whiſton hath not returned one Word of Anſwer: To which I add, That the Arguments produced againſt his Opinion in the Notes on that Chapter, ſeem to be demonſtrative, eſpecially theſe two.

1*ſt*, The Argument taken from the plain Connection of the Words following v. 29. with the Words preceding, which ſaith (a) Mr. Whiſton every Body will allow, are to be expounded of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem: For St. Matthew having ſaid, v. 21. That then there ſhall be θλῖψις μεγάλη, great Tribulation. Adds v. 29. That εὐθέως μετὰ τὴν θλῖψιν τῶν ἡμερῶν ἐκείνων, immediately after the Tribulation of thoſe Days, the Sun ſhall be darkned, &c. And St. Mark having ſpoken of this θλῖψις, Tribulation that ſhould happen in thoſe Days. v. 19. Saith v. 24. That ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις, in thoſe Days, after this Tribulation the Sun ſhall be darkned, &c. St. Luke ſaith v. 23. Woe to them that are with Child, and give Suck in thoſe Days; for (in thoſe Days) there ſhall be great Affliction and Wrath upon that People, and they ſhall fall by the edge of the Sword. And v. 25. (in thoſe Days) there ſhall be Signs in the Sun, and in the Moon, &c. St. Matthew goes on, and ſays v. 30. καὶ τότε, and then (i. e. immediately after that Affliction) the Son of Man ſhall appear in the Heavens. St. Mark ſays, v. 26. καὶ τότε, and then (in thoſe Days of Tribulation) ſhall they ſee the Son of Man coming in the Clouds with Power and great Glory. St. Luke v. 27. ſaith, that τότε then ſhall they ſee the Son of Man coming, &c. Is it not therefore evident to a Demonſtration, that all theſe things which Mr. Whiſton refers to the Day of Judgment, were to happen immediately after that Tribulation, and not almoſt two Thouſand Years after it? St. Mark adds v. 27. τότε ἀποστελεῖ, then ſhall he ſend his Angels to gather his Elect, &c. Plainly connecting the ſending of them with that time, and ſo demonſtrating that the ſame Words Matth. 24. 31. muſt belong alſo to that time. Moreover our bleſſed Saviour ſaith to the Jewiſh Sanhedrim, Matth. 26. 62. ἀπάρτι within a while. And in St. Luke Chap. 22. 69. ἀπὸ τῦ νῦν, from this time ſhall ye ſee the Son of Man ſitting at the right Hand of Power, and coming in the Clouds of Heaven, which aſſures us that the like Words mentioned in all theſe Chapters of the three Evangeliſts, cannot relate to his coming at the Day of Judgment, but only to his coming at, or about the time of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. Now from theſe things we may eaſily diſcern the Inconſiſtency of Mr. Whiſton's Senſe of the Words of St. Luke, Chap. 21. 24. Jeruſalem ſhall be troden down till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. καὶ ἔσονται σημεῖα, and there ſhall be ſigns in the Sun, viz. That the Fulneſs of the Gentiles was to come in before theſe things ſhould happen: For he doth not ſay, that μετὰ τὸ πληρωθῆναι τὰ ἔθνη, after the Fulneſs of the Gentiles is come come in, there shall be Signs, but that there shall be in those Days Signs, and that then shall they see the coming of the Son of Man in the Clouds, which, as is proved, cannot relate unto Christ's second Coming.

2*dly*, My second Argument is this, That after our Lord had spoken of all those things which Mr. Whiston saith relate unto the Day of Judgment, he adds these Words, v. 34. Verily I say unto you, this Generation shall not pass away, till all these things (before mentioned) be fulfilled. Where it is observable that these Words in all the three Evangelists, follow the Words which Mr. Whiston saith are spoken of the Day of Judgment; whence it is evident that they cannot relate only to the Destruction of Jerusalem, unless all the things mentioned before relate to that Period, or to some Season which was to follow in that very Age; for otherwise to make our Saviour, after he had said so many things relating to the Day of Judgment, add with an Asseveration, Verily I say unto you, this Generation shall not pass away, till all these things are fulfilled, is to make him aver, with an Asseveration, a manifest Untruth; and surely that Interpretation must be false which gives the lie unto our Saviour: And indeed his Paraphrase on these Words, (a) "I have given you the Signs of the De-" solation of Jerusalem; but as for your o-" ther Question about the Time and Signs " of the great and general Judgment, do not " think to confound them with the other. That I confidently say is not a Paraphrase upon any Words of the Evangelists, but a plain Addition to the Text, and the pure Invention of the Brain. I proceed now to answer what Mr. Whiston offers to the contrary. And,

1*st*, Whereas he observes, "That (b) in " that part of the Discourse which belongs " to the Destruction of Jerusalem, our Lord " still speaks in the Plural; but in that part " of it which directly belongs to the Day of " Judgment, the second Person Plural is not " once used.

The Falshood of this Observation appears from Matth. 24. 32. ἀπὸ δὲ τῆς συκῆς μάθετε, learn a Parable from the Fig-tree. And v. 33. οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς, even so ye. So Mark 13. 28. 29. and Luke 21. After the Evangelist had said v. 27. Then shall they see the Son of Man coming in the Clouds, he adds, And when these things come to pass, ἀνακύψατε, καὶ ἐπάρατε τὰς κεφαλὰς ὑμῶν, look up, and lift up your Heads, because your Redemption draweth nigh; and then follows the Parable of the Fig tree in the Plural Number. But saith Mr. Whiston here, our Saviour returns to caution them about the Observation of the Signs before the Destruction of Jerusalem; so apparently doth he beg the Question, that between him and us, being only this, whether our Lord in the intermediate Words from v. 28. to v. 33. speaks of the Day of Judgment, or of the Destruction of Jerusalem, and so indecently doth he make our Saviour, without any Intimation, leap from one thing to another: In fine, if the preceding Words relate to the Day of Judgment, the Parable of the Fig-tree must relate to the same time, as the Connection shews; for both in St. Matthew and St. Mark, after these Words, Then shall he send his Angels, and gather his Elect from the four Winds, which are the Words most likely to refer to the Day of Judgment, immediately follow these Words, ἀπὸ δὲ συκῆς, therefore from the Fig tree learn a Parable. Indeed the whole of this doughty Observation comes at last only to this, that there be three Verses in which Christ speaks not in the Plural Number from v. 28. to v. 32. exclusively. And for this rare Invention, I return him this, That there be five Verses, viz. from the 9. to the 15. in which he doth the like; Mr. Whiston therefore hath only the Glory of being the Inventor of an Observation manifestly false; and not worth a Rush, were it as true as the Gospel.

His second Observation is like unto the first, " viz. " That in all this Discourse our Sa-" viour useth different Numbers of the " Nouns when he speaks of the Desolation " of Jerusalem, and of the Miseries of the " Jews, either antecedent or consequent, " and when he speaketh of the Day of Judg-" ment. In the former Case he always stiles " them the Days of Vengeance in the Plu-" ral, but in the latter he speaks only of one " great Day, and one great Hour, which in " the Phrase of the Jews, and ours ever " since have been confined to the end of the " World, and the Day of Judgment.

Answ. I am not willing to spoil the good Man's Observations; yet 1*st*, I must tell him that I doubt the truth of his first Observation, that the great Day and Hour both in the Phrase of the Jews, and of us Christians, have been still confined to the end of the World, and the Day of Judgment. For Joel 2. 31. ἡμέρα τοῦ κυρίου ἡ μεγάλη καὶ ἐπιφανὴς, the great and terrible Day of the Lord is mentioned, and this St. Peter plainly interprets of the Day of Christ's first coming. Acts 2. 20. The Prophet Malachi Chap. 3. 1. speaks of a Messenger to be sent to prepare the Way of the Lord, and of the Lord's coming after him to his Temple, and then enquires, v. 2. Who shall abide the Day of his coming, and who shall stand when he appeareth; eth; which Verſe ſaith Dr. Pocock, relates to the Deſtruction of the Country, City, and Temple of Jeruſalem, by the Romans, about the 70th Year of Chriſt; and Chapter 45. he adds, behold, I will ſend you Elijah the Prophet, πρὶν ἐλθεῖν τὴν ἡμέραν κυρίου τὴν μεγάλην καὶ ἐπιφανῆ, before the great and terrible Day of the Lord cometh; which again the Doctor underſtands of that Coming of Chriſt againſt the Nation of the Jews, which ended in the Deſtruction of the Unbelievers among them; and ver. 1. behold, ſaith he, the Day cometh that ſhall burn as an Oven, and all the proud, and all that do wickedly, ſhall be as the Stubble, and the Day that cometh ſhall burn them up; which, ſaith Dr. Pocock, is a Deſcription of the final Judgment of the Jews, and can be applyed to the Day of Judgment, only by way of Accommodation. For to the Nation of the Jews, did Malachi then ſpeak as a Meſſenger, peculiarly ſent to them, to reprove them for their Sins, and to declare to them ſuch things as concerned them, and not immediately ſuch things as were common to the whole World?

And this, I hope, may be ſufficient to ſhew him that, in the Phraſe of the Jews, one Day even of the Lord's coming, is not confined to the end of the World, and the Day of Judgment. Nor,

2*dly*, Is it ſo in the New Teſtament, for thus our Saviour ſpeaks, Verily I ſay unto you, that the Hour is coming, and now is, when the Dead ſhall hear the Voice of the Son of God, and they that hear ſhall live; for that thoſe words cannot be meant of the Day of Judgment, is proved in the Note there. So Rom. 13. 11. this do εἰδότες ὅτι ὥρα, knowing that now is the Hour to awake out of Sleep, which I ſuppoſe Mr. Whiſton dares not interpret thus, knowing that now is the Day of Judgment.

Again it is not true, that when Chriſt ſpeaks of the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. He always ſpeaks of it in the plural Number; for he ſpeaks twice of it in the ſingular Number, Luke 17. 30. ſo ſhall it be, ἐν ᾗ ἡμέρᾳ, in that Day, when the Son of Man is revealed; and Ver. 31. ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ἡμέρᾳ, In that Day, he that is upon the Houſe, and hath his Stuff in his Houſe, let him not deſcend to take it away; which words anſwer to Matth. 24. 17, 18. and therefore, by Mr. Whiſton's Confeſſion, muſt relate to the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

Laſtly, It is not true, according to Mr. Whiſton's Opinion, that our Lord always ſpeaks of the Day of Judgment, in the ſingular Number. For St. Luke ſaith, Chap. 17. 26. As it was in the Days of Noah, ſo ſhall it be, ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις, in the Days of the Son of Man; which words exactly anſwer to thoſe in Matthew 24. 37. as it was in the Days of Noah, οὕτως ἔσται ἡ παρουσία, ſo ſhall be the coming of the Son of Man, which, ſaith Mr. Whiſton, muſt be ſpoken of the Day of Judgment; and Mark 13. 24. ἐν ἐκείναις ταῖς ἡμέραις, In thoſe Days ſhall the Sun be darkned, &c. which words, ſaith he, (a) I do interpret of the Day of Judgment, tho' indeed, he doth it without the leaſt Shadow of Reaſon: For the ſame, or more tragical Expreſſions being uſed of the Deſtruction of the Land of Babylon, Iſaiah 13. 9, 10. of the Idumæans, Iſa. 34. 3, 4. of Zennacharib and his People, Iſa. 51. 6. of the Deſtruction of Egypt, Ezek. 37. 7. and that in words as plain, and free from miſtical Expreſſions, as the words of Chriſt; and this very Deſtruction being foretold by Joel, in the very words of Chriſt, Chap. 2. 31. 3. 15. Why ſhould not that Tribulation, which, ſaith our Lord, was ſuch as was not from the beginning of the World to that time, nor ever ſhould be after, Matth. 24. 21. be repreſented in the like tragical Expreſſions? In fine, his Obſervation is alſo on this account impertinent, that where that Day and Hour occurs, we allow that the words may be interpreted of the Day of Judgment; tho' whoſoever ſeriouſly conſiders, Matth. 24. from ver. 37. to the 42d; and Luke 21. 34, 35, 36, will ſee cauſe to think, that they primarily refer to the Deſolation of the Jewiſh Nation.

We alſo grant, that the latter part of the 24th Chapter of St. Matthew, and the whole 25th belong to the Day of Judgment. But then note, 1*ſt*, That Dr. Lightfoot very probably conjectures, that the Diſcourſe of Chriſt, upon this Subject, ended at Verſe 42. or 44, as in St. Mark, and St. Luke it doth; and that the words following were, as St. Luke places them, Chap. 12. 29. ſpoken at another time, and upon another occaſion; tho' becauſe they alſo well accord with this place, and this occaſion, and do there as well as here, follow the Exhortation given, Verſe 43. St. Matthew hath added them to this Chapter.

um to, and lively Emblem, and Example of God's dealing with the like Sinners, at the great Day, and a full Proof of that final Judgment, which ſhall be upon all the Enemies of Chriſt's Kingdom. It is no wonder, that our Lord immediately paſſes from it, to a Diſcourſe on that Day, it being his uſual manner, upon occaſion offered, to advance to a Diſcourſe on Matters of the higheſt Moment.

Additional Annotations on the Goſpel of St. Mark.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 14. NOW after that John was put into Priſon, Jeſus came into Galilee preaching the Goſpel of the Kingdom of God; v. 15. and ſaying the time is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God is at hand.] So Matth. 4. 12. When Jeſus had heard that John was caſt into Priſon, he departed into Galilee; and v. 17. From that time he began to preach, and to ſay, repent for the Kingdom of God is at hand: Till that time, ſay the Fathers, and the Scholiaſts ἀνέμεινε αὐτὸν μαρτυρῆσαι περὶ αὐτοῦ, he waited for John's Teſtimony concerning him. Accordingly St. Peter repreſents Chriſt, as beginning thus to preach from Galilee, μετὰ τὸ βάπτισμα ὃ ἐκήρυξεν ὁ Ἰωάννης, after the Baptiſm which John preached was ended, Act. 10. 37. Now hence it is evident, that his coming into Galilee, mentioned Luke 4. 14. muſt refer to the ſame time, that ſo all the Evangeliſts may accord together; as appears farther from the following words, v. 15. He taught in the Synagogues, and was glorified of all; and v. 31. He went into Capernaum, and was teaching in their Synagogues on the Sabbath Day. For we learn from Mark 1. 21, 22. that this was done after that John was put in Priſon, v. 14. and alſo from the words of St. Luke, which ſay, v. 14. That a Fame went out thro' the whole Region concerning him; for we are aſſured, from Matth. 4. 12.—24. that this alſo followed St. John's being caſt into Priſon.

V. 26. Ἐπὶ Ἀβιαθὰρ τοῦ Ἀρχιερέως, in the Days of Abiathar the High-Prieſt.] Good Mr. Whiſton hath given us an ingenious Treatiſe upon this Place, in which he attempts to ſhew, that neither the Abimelec, nor the Abiathar, mentioned in the Hiſtory of David's eating the ſhew bread, were High-Prieſts at all; but another Abiathar, not mentioned at all there, but 2 Sam. 14. 3. was then H. Prieſt: And I who never am backward to yield to Evidence, will give him the Honour of having found out the beſt Solution of this Difficulty that I have yet ſeen, when he hath anſwered theſe enſuing Arguments.

Argument (1*ſt*,) That Joſephus, who being a Jew, and a Prieſt, and who mentions the Genealogy of their High-Prieſts carefully preſerved to his days, and ſo muſt be ſuppoſed a competent Witneſs in this Caſe, ſtiles that very Abimelec, who gave David the ſhew bread, and who was ſlain by Doeg, ſix times Abimelec the High-Prieſt. Abiathar his Son is alſo ſeveral times ſtiled the High Prieſt by the ſame Joſephus. It is no ſufficient Anſwer to this, to ſay, as Mr. Wh. doth, that neither Abimelec, nor Abiathar, are ſtiled High-Prieſts; but the one is Abimelec the Prieſt, the other Abiathar the Prieſt. For it is a certain Truth, from Eleazar, the Son of Aaron, in the Book of Deuteronomy, to Hilkiah, in the Cloſe of the Book of Chronicles, not one Perſon is by Name ſtiled N. N. the High-Prieſt, tho' there was all that while an High-Prieſt in being. Now what Reaſon is there to deny, that Abimelec Hacoen ſignifies Abimelec the High-Prieſt, when no other Name is given to any High Prieſt in Scripture, for above 400 Years: Of leſs Importance is it to ſay, that we read not that either of them officiated as H. Prieſt, in the great Day of Expiation, when we read not of any one that did ſo in the Books of Samuel, Kings or Chronicles.

Argu-

Argument 2d. That Abimelec was High Prieſt, is proved from the Accuſation which Doeg lays againſt him, that he enquired of the Lord for David, 1 Sam. 22. 10. and from Abimelec's own Confeſſion, that he had done the ſame thing before, v. 15. and by the Teſtimony of (a) Joſephus, ſaying, that he did, πολλάκις προφήτευσαι, oft conſult the Oracle for him: Whereas the High-Prieſt alone, having on the Ephod of Judgment, had not Abimelec been H. Prieſt, he neither could have done ſo, nor could he reaſonably have been accuſed of doing it.

To this it is anſwered, That Abimelec prayed, or enquired of God for David, but no Circumſtances being mentioned, it does not appear, whether it was any thing more than affording David a Place in the publick Prayers of the Tabernacle, or the lending him the ſacred Garments, and giving him proper Opportunities for his own Enquiries (as a Prophet) of the Almighty.

But ſure 'tis better to ſay nothing, than to uſe ſuch ſorry Shifts as theſe, he required of the Lord for him; that is, he prayed for him, or gave him a Place in the publick Prayers of the Tabernacle, or he lent him a Linen Ephod to enquire in; let him ſhew one Inſtance of any Prieſt that is ever ſaid to enquire of the Lord, beſides the High-Prieſt, and he will ſay ſomething to leſſen the Force of this Argument, which is yet left in its full Strength; let him ſhew one of the conſecrated Ephods that were lent to a Lay-man, or where lending one an Ephod, or giving him a Place in the publick Prayers of the Tabernacle, if then there were any ſuch Prayers, or any ſuch uſage, ſignifieth Shaal lo bejehovah, i. e. to enquire for him from Jehovah, and he will ſay ſomething pertinent to this Objection. As for Rebeccah, ſhe required not of a Prieſt, but, ſay the Jews, of a Prophet; and this ſhe did long before there was any High-Prieſt wearing an Ephod, by God appointed for this very end. And, ſaith the Biſhop of Ely, it is moſt reaſonable to think, that ſhe went her ſelf, and enquired at the Shechinah, or Place of the Divine Preſence, and the Lord anſwered her by an Angel, Gen. 25. 23.

Argument the 3*d*. That Abimelec had then the Ephod to enquire by, is evident becauſe when Abiathar his Son fled thence to David, he carried the Ephod in his Hand; he went down, ſaith the Septuagint, ἔχων ἐφὸδ ἐν τῇ χειρὶ αὐτοῦ having the Ephod in his Hand; and that this was the very Ephod to which the Breſtplate was annexed, the Biſhop of Ely proves, (1*ſt*.) Becauſe it is not ſtiled a Linen Ephod, ſuch as the Prieſts uſed, but emphatically the Ephod. (2*dly*,) Becauſe when David was about to enquire of the Lord, he ſpeaks twice to Abiathar, thus, bring hither the Ephod, 1 Sam. 23. 9. 30. 7. Whereas, had it been only a Linen Ephod, it could have done him no Service in his Enquiries. This being ſo, if David himſelf enquired of the Lord, by this Ephod, he invaded on the Prieſts Office, and ſo was guilty of the higheſt Sacrilege; but if he made this Enquiry by the Mouth of Abiathar, the Son of Abimelec who was ſlain at Nob, then was Abiathar H. Prieſt, and ſo Mr. Wh's. Scheme is overthrown. Some think, ſaith the Biſhop of Ely, that David put on the Ephod, and then asked the Lord's Advice; but that is a great Miſtake; for the H. Prieſt was the Perſon appointed by God, to ask Council of him, for the ſupreme Governour, Numb. 27, 21. therefore David ſpake theſe words, by the Mouth of Abiathar; when therefore it is ſaid, that David enquired of the Lord, it is reaſonable to conceive, that he did this both in the places mentioned; and 2 Sam. 2. 1, 5, 19. by the Perſon appointed by God to ask Council for him, i. e. by Abiathar the H. Prieſt; theſe being all Caſes concerning War, in which the Ordinance of God appointed the chief Governour to ask Council of him. Joſh. 27. 20, 21. and hence this very Phraſe is uſed, when other Men asked Council of the Lord in the like Caſe. So Judg. 1. 1. The Children of Iſrael asked Council of the Lord, who ſhall go up for us againſt the Canaanites; and Chap. 30. 18. they aroſe and went up to the Houſe of God, and asked Council of God, ſaying, Who ſhall go up firſt to the Battle againſt Benjamin; and again, v. 23. but that they did this by Phineas the H. Prieſt is evident from theſe words, v. 27, 28. And the Children of Iſrael enquired of the Lord, for the Ark of the Covenant was there in thoſe days; and Phineas the Son of Eleazer, the Son of Aaron ſtood before it in thoſe days. So Saul asked Council of the Lord, 1 Sam. 14. 37. but this he did by Ahiah the H. Prieſt, v. 36. See v. 18.

Obj. But ſaith Mr. Wh. " The H. Prieſt, " in the latter end of Saul's Reign, was " with Saul, and not with David. For " Saul, a little before his Death, enquired " of the Lord, and the Lord anſwered him " not, neither by Dreams, nor by Urim, nor " by Prophets, 1 Sam. 28. 6; which words " ſurely imply, that Saul had cauſed Enquiry to be made by Urim, which being peculiar to the H. Prieſt, doth ſhew that " the Jewiſh H. Prieſt was then with Saul, " which we know Abiathar the Son of Abimelec was not.

Anſw. This is a conſiderable Objection, to which I ſhall not anſwer as ſome do, that Saul had cauſed another Ephod to be made, or that he ſent to David to enquire of Abiathar in his behalf, for there is no Evidence for the Second, and the Firſt could do him no ſervice, he having no High-Prieſt to enquire by. But I anſwer, That tho' it be ſaid that God anſwered not Saul by Urim, that only is put in becauſe it was one uſual way of Anſwering, not becauſe Saul had tryed that way, for he himſelf ſpeaketh to Samuel thus, God is departed from me, and anſwereth me no more, neither by Prophets, nor by Dreams, v. 15. making no mention at all of his not Anſwering by Urim. And David obſerves, 1 Chron. 13. 3. That Saul, after the evil Spirit came upon him, enquired not at the Ark, as formerly he had done, 1 Sam. 14. 18. So that this Paſſage as it is tranſlated, ſeems only to ſay, that God gave him no Anſwer at all by any of the uſual ways: Not by Dreams, becauſe the Spirit of the Lord was long ſince departed from him. 1 Sam. 16. 14. Not by any Direction of his Prophets, becauſe he had ſlain the Lord's Prophets; not by Urim, becauſe he neither had the Breaſt-plate of Urim, nor an High-Prieſt to conſult, and laſtly tranſlate the Words thus, Saul feared ve jeſcheal, for he had enquired of the Lord, viz. Since the time of his being rejected of God, and the Lord had not anſwered him by any of theſe ways, and then this Text is impertinent: And of ſuch Tranſlations of the Hebrew, the Inſtances are very many. See Glaſſius de verbo l 3. Tr. 3. Canon. 46.

Argument the 4th. That Abiathar the Son of Abimelec who was ſlain at Nob, was High-Prieſt, is proved 1*ſt*, Becauſe Joſephus three times calls him ſo, viz. l. 6. c. ult. p. 207. l. 7. c. 11 p. 247. 248. 2*dly*, Becauſe he who was removed by Solomon from the High-Prieſthood, was the ſame Abiathar who was with David in his Exile; for he was that Abiathar who bore the Ark before David, and who was afflicted in all in which David was afflicted. 1 Kings 2. 26. which agrees only to that Abiathar who was the Son of Abimelec ſlain at Nob.

To this Mr. Wh. anſwers, " That there " was an Abiathar who was the Son of Abi- " jah, who was High-Prieſt in the Days of " Saul, when David and his Men did eat " the Shew-bread: That he had a Son named " Abimelech, who was High-Prieſt in the " Days of David, and this is the Abimelec " mention'd 2 Sam. 8. 17. in theſe words, " And Zadok the Son of Abitub, and Abime- " lec the Son of Abiathar were Prieſts, and " this Abimelec had a Son named Abiathar, " who was High-Prieſt after him, and this " was the Abiathar removed by Solomon, and " not Abiathar the Son of Abimelec of Nob.

Now to this I reply, That he offers no Proof that his firſt Abiathar was the Son of Abijah, or that his Abimelec had a Son named Abiathar, or that either of the three were High-Prieſts. The Text now cited, ſaith that Zadoc and Abimelec the Son of Abiathar were Prieſts, but that cannot ſignify that they were High-Prieſts, becauſe there could not be two High-Prieſts together, and therefore the Biſhop of Ely, and the Generality of Commentators ſay theſe two were the chief of the Family of the Prieſts, next to the High-Prieſt which was Abiathar, and who were called Secondary Prieſts, 2 Kings 25. 18. And whereas Mr. Wh. ſaith of his ſuppoſed Abiathar, that he was afflicted with David, by undergoing the peril of a Spy in the time that Abſolom was in Jeruſalem, and David was fled from him; let any reaſonable Perſon judge, whether on the account of the peril of ſo few Days, if indeed he lay under any peril, he could have been ſaid to have been afflicted, Beeol, in all the things in which David had been afflicted. Sure the Words of the Biſhop of Ely here are much more agreeable to the Hiſtory, viz. That this Abiathar underwent all the Hardſhips which David endured in his Exile.

But ſaith Mr. Wh. " If that Abiathar who " was deprived by Solomon was the Abiathar " of the Family of Ithamar, and Son of A- " bimelec of Nob, ſuppoſing that he began " his Office at Thirty, as the Prieſts did, " and continued with David Forty Years, he " muſt be a very old Man, almoſt Eighty " Years old before he died, whereas this " contradicts God's Threat againſt the Fami- " ly of Eli, that all the encreaſe of his Houſe " ſhould die in the flower of their Age, and " that there ſhould not be an old Man in his " Houſe for ever 1 Sam. 2. 33.

Now to this I anſwer 1*ſt*, in the Words of the Biſhop of Ely on 1 Sam. 2. 33. That this Threat did not belong to all the Family of Ithamar, but only to the Family of Eli. 2*dly*, Seeing King David died when he was Seventy Years old, 2 Sam 5. 4. And ſeeing there could be no Age ſet for the High-Prieſt's entrance on his Office, that depending on the Death of his Father, Abimelec coming to an untimely end, Abiathar might be very young when he firſt entered upon his Office, and begin it as the Prieſts after did at Twenty, and ſo be not much above Sixty, when David died: And laſtly, when that Threat had been executed in ſuch a dreadful manner by the ſlaughter of the Prieſts at Nob, we may reaſonably conceive that one ſingle Perſon made an Exile, and afflicted in all that David was, might for the Service he had done to that good King, and the Affliction he had already ſuffered, have his Life prolonged above Sixty or Seventy Years.

(3) V. 19. After these Words should obey even such Persons, add,] (a) Origen indeed declares his Belief that Judas γνησίως ποτε ἐπὶ πίστει was once a sincere Believer: For saith he, had Christ found him at the first to have been a Thief, he would not have committed the Bag to him: Whereas, since he continued the Bag to him, when he had found him so to be, and his Apostleship, even after he had pronounced him a Devil, John 6. 70. (for he fell from it only by his Transgression in betraying his Master, Acts 1. 25.) I see no necessary Reason why he might not appoint him the Bag, even tho' he knew he was addicted to Theft. 2*dly*, He also argues thus, Christ sent him as he did the rest of the Apostles, attended with the Power of Miracles, and with Commission to say to any City where he came, Peace be to this City, and with a Promise, That if a Son of Peace was there, that Peace should rest upon him, if not, it should return into their Bosom, which saith he, Christ would not have done, had not Judas then been a Son of Peace. But 1*st*, Christ hath inform'd us that Miracles might be done even by the Workers of Iniquity, Mat. 7. 22. 23. 2*dly*, The twelve Disciples were sent by two and two, Mark 6. 7. And so one of them being sincere, and a Keeper of the Word of God, John 17. 6. This Prayer for Peace might come upon them that were worthy for his sake, rather than for the sake of Judas. This Opinion therefore of Origen, as it is not certainly true, so neither can it certainly be disproved.

CHAP. IV.

(4) V. 22. To the Note here add] Hence also observe, that had Christ's Apostles so obscurely delivered or writ the Gospels, and those other Scriptures which contain the Rule of Faith even in things necessary to be believed, or done unto Salvation, as the Romanists pretend they did, they must have hid this Candle under a Bushel, and not have manifested it to the World, as Christ here requires them to do.

(5) V. 24. 25. Moreover, what can be more evident than this Inference from these Verses, That the Word of God read and preached being the ordinary Instrument of our Conversion, and a Savour either of Life unto Life, or of Death unto Death, Conversion must depend partly on our Attention to it, our Care to meditate upon it, and fix it in our Hearts, and to act suitably to it in our Lives: and that Christ by adding these Words as a Motive to take heed to what we hear, that to them that thus hear shall more be given, doth plainly teach us that the salutary Efficacy of the Word of Life depends partly on our Affection to, and our Improvement of what we have heard, and partly on the Disposition of the Hearer, to wit, his Freedom from a prevailing Love to those Enjoyments and Pleasures of the World which avert our Thoughts from this Attention, and so choak the Influence of the Word, and hinder our Reception of it into good and honest Hearts: And also that our Neglect so to improve it, is our own wilful Fault, or our Neglect to do that which God hath enabled us, or would upon this Care enable us to do; and therefore is thus threatned with the Removal of those means of Grace we so unprofitably do enjoy. See the Note on Mat. 13. 19.

CHAP. VI.

V. 6. Ἐθαύμασε δὲ ὁ Ἰησοῦς τὴν ἀπιστίαν αὐτῶν, and he wondered because of their Unbelief: So when the Centurion by his Answer had shew'd the strength of his Faith, Christ marvelled, and said to them that followed him, I have not found so great Faith, no not in Israel. Mat. 8. 10. Whereas, had not God vouchsafed sufficient Power to those of Israel to believe, as well as to the Centurion, what ground can we imagine for this marvelling, for sure Christ could have no sufficient cause to marvel either that Faith should be found where it was, or not found where it was not, if believing depended on an omnipotent Act of God producing Faith in all that did at any time believe, (unless that could be a just ground of marvelling, that God by his Omnipotence could work Faith in whom he pleased) or that Man should not do more than he had Power, or than God would enable him to do. (9) V. 31. Καὶ μετὰ τρεῖς ἡμέρας ἀναστῆναι, and after three days to riſe again.] Here note, (1*ſt*,) That it is ten times expreſly ſaid, that our Lord roſe, or was to riſe again the third day, viz. Matth. 16. 21. 17. 23. 20. 19. Mark 9. 31. 10. 34. Luke 9. 22. 18. 23. 24. 7, 48. Act. 10. 40. And ſo the Expreſſion which is moſt uſed, both in our Lord's Predictions before his Death, and in his and his Apoſtles Language after his Reſurrection, being this, either that he did, or ſhould riſe again the third day, and the Hiſtory of our Lord's Reſurrection agreeing fully with it, theſe other Forms of Speech which are but once or twice found in Scripture, muſt be interpreted, ſo as to accord with the Expreſſion ſo frequent in the Holy Scripture.

2*dly*, Obſerve, That according to the Language both of the Hebrew, and the Greek that is ſaid to be done after ſo many Days, Months, or Years, which is done in the laſt of thoſe Days, Months, or Years. So Deut. 14. 18. At the end of three Years, Seventy μετὰ τρία ἔτη, after three Years thou ſhalt bring in all the Tything of thy Encreaſe. And yet, Deut. 26. 12. The third Year is the Year of Tything. So Deut. 31. 10. μετὰ ἕπτα ἔτη, after ſeven Years, in the Solemnity of the Year of Releaſe, thou ſhalt read the Law; and Deut. 15. 1. and yet it is plain, that the Year of Releaſe began with the ſeventh Year, for ſo we read, Deut. 15, 12. Thy Brother ſhall ſerve the ſix Years, and in the ſeventh Year thou ſhalt let him go free. Thus Rehoboam ſaid unto the People, Come again after three days, 2 Chron. 10. 5. and yet v. 12. The People came again the third day, as the King bad them, ſaying, come again the third day: So Luke 2. 46. After three days they found Chriſt in the Temple; that is on the third day, for they ſpent one Day in their Journey; on the ſecond they returned to Jeruſalem; and the next Day they found Jeſus in the Temple.

Note, 3*dly*, That it is evident, that both the Jews, and the Evangeliſts, underſtood this Expreſſion, after three days, to ſignifie no more than on the third Day. The Jews did ſo; for having told Pilate that Chriſt had ſaid, after three days I will riſe again, they deſire only that a Watch might be kept ἕως τῆς τρίτης ἡμέρας till the third Day. And this is as plain of the Evangeliſts; for what St. Mark here rendreth thus, He taught, that after three days he ſhould riſe again; St. Matthew, and St. Luke, record thus, He taught, that he ſhould riſe again the third Day. And even St. Mark, Chap. 9. 31. 10. 34. brings in our Lord, teaching that he ſhould be raiſed the third Day.

And tho' we do not read that they gave occaſion either to his Impriſonment, or to his Death, yet may we reaſonably conceive, that they who thus thought, and ſpake of him, were well pleaſed at it; whence Chriſt might ſay, they did unto him what they liſted; it being not for fear of them, but only of the Multitude who accounted him as a Prophet, that Herod, for a Seaſon, was reſtrained from killing him, Matth. 14. 3. After theſe words, ſee the Note on John (16) 20. 17. add.]

Objection the 6th. Here it is ſaid, v. 12, 13. that the two Diſciples returning from Emmaus, told theſe things, (concerning our Lord's Reſurrection) to the Reſidue, neither believed they them. But Luke 24. 34. 'tis ſaid that at their Return, they heard them ſaying, The Lord is riſen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

Anſwer. They ſaid this indeed, but not with a firm Faith, excluding doubting; for after this Jeſus himſelf appearing to them, doubtful Thoughts aroſe within them, Luke 24. 38. And when our Lord had ſhewn them his Hands and his Feet, they believed not yet for Joy, and wondred, v. 41. See Dr. Lightfoot on Luke 24. 34.

CHAP. I.

(1) V. 7. THEY were both προβεβηκότες well ſtricken with age.] Here ſaith Theophylact, becauſe a Virgin was to bring forth a Son προοικονόμησεν ἡ χάρις ἵνα γεᾶυς τέκη, ἐ κ νόμον Φύσεως, εἰ κ μετ' ἀνδρός, God provided that an old Woman ſhould bring forth a Son, not according to the Courſe of Nature, tho' with a Man, they being both aged.

(2) V. 12. Καὶ ἐταράχθη, κ φόβος ἐπέπεσεν ἐπ' αὐτόν. This Verſe is wanting only in the Æthiopick Verſion, being in all the other Verſions, in Theophylact, in Hilary the Deacon, in Jerome, and Chryſoſtome, Ed. Mor. Tom. 5. p. 475. and yet Dr. Mills ſuſpects hunc verſum fictum eſſe ab aliquo ob ſimilia quæ ad Mariam dicuntur, v. 24. Append. p. 20. tho' this Suſpicion be confuted by the words following μὴ φοβοῦ Ζαχαρία.

V. 22. After the Words or female v. 7, 8. Blot out the following Words, and add] But I have ſince found cauſe to judge otherwiſe, for that the ancient Reading was αὐτῶν is evident from theſe words of (a) Origen, Si ſcriptum eſſet propter Purgationem ejus, i.e. Mariæ, nihil quæſtionis oriretur, & audacter diceremus Mariam quæ homo erat Purgatione indiguiſſe poſt Partum, nunc vero in eo quod ait Dies Purgationis eorum, non videtur unum ſignificare, ſed alterum ſive plures: So alſo read St. Jerome con. Helvid. Tom. 2. F. 7. lit. A, Euthymius, Theophylact, and the Syriac Verſion; nor is there any fear of aſcribing any moral Impurity to the holy Jeſus by allowing this reading, ſince this Purgation imports only a Compliance with a Ceremonial Law in order to their admittance into the Congregation of God's People, to which Chriſt being made of a Woman, made under the Law, was to ſubmit, that he might fulfil all Righteouſneſs: on which account alſo he was made relatively holy by being conſecrated to the Lord, according to the Law concerning every Male that openeth the Womb, v. 23.

V. 40. Καὶ ἐκραταιοῦτο πνεύματι. Here ſaith (4) Dr. Mills πνεύματι adjectum eſt ex hujus Evangelii c. 1. 80. Proleg. p. 44, not only againſt the reading of Theophylact, and all the Verſions, but againſt the fierce Diſpute betwixt the Arians and the Orthodox about theſe Words, the Arians objecting that he who increaſed in Spirit could not be God; ſome of the Orthodox anſwering that this related only to Chriſt's human Nature, viz. Athanaſius, Epiphanius, Ambroſe, Cyril Alex. and Fulgentius; and others that he thus waxed ſtrong in Spirit not in his own Perſon, but in the Perſon of the Church, or in the Demonſtration of the Spirit; as Origen, and many others cited by Maldonate on the place, but none of them queſtioning this reading; for Titus Boſtrenſis, the only Father produced by the Doctor, is by Dr. Cave proved to be ſpurious.

V. 47. Ἐπὶ τῇ συνέσει κ ἀποκρίσεσιν αὐτοῦ at (5) his Underſtanding and Anſwers. As the Word ἀποκρίνομαι often ſignifies only to ſpeak, both in the old and new Teſtament, and ſo is oft uſed by the Septuagint to anſwer to Dabar in the Hebrew, ſo alſo doth the Noun ἀπόκρισις in theſe Words, Deut. 1. 22. They ſhall bring us word τὸ απόκρισιν. Here then being no mention of any Queſtions put to Chriſt, or of any Anſwers he gave to the Doctors, the words may be rendred thus, they were amazed at his Underſtanding and Speeches.

(8) V. 14. Offer for thy cleanſing.] Pious here is the Note of Theophylact, that μεθ' ὅ τις καθαρίζεται, ἄξιος ἐστι προσφέρειν τὸ δῶρον: then only is a Man fit to offer to God his Gift, when he is cleanſed from his Sin. Hence the unclean Perſon who came into the Sanctuary, was, by the Law of Moſes, to be cut off from his People, Num. 19. 20.

CHAP. VII.

(11) V. 37. Ἰδοὺ γυνὴ ἐν τῇ πόλει, And behold a Woman in the City.] Here are two Arguments againſt the Opinion of (a) Huetius, and others, that this Woman was Mary, the Siſter of Lazarus; and that Simon the Leper mentioned, Matth. 26. 6. Mark 14. 3. was the ſame with the Simon mentioned here. (1ſt,) Becauſe this Mary was a Woman of that City, that is, either of Nain, or Capernaum, the only Cities mentioned here; whereas Mary, the Siſter of Lazarus, was of no City, but of the Town, or Village of Bethany, John 11. 1. (2dly,) After the Collation here, which is not ſtiled a Supper, our Lord went through every City, and Village, preaching the Kingdom of God, Chap. 8. 1. whereas, after he raiſed Lazarus, Jeſus walked no more openly. And laſtly, Mary's Unction was made for Chriſt's Interment, and but ſix days before Chriſt's laſt Paſſover, John 12. 7. when he continued in Bethany, and in Jeruſalem, Mark 11. 11.

CHAP. VIII.

(12) V. 8. Ταῦτα λέγων ἐφώνει ὁ ἔχων ὦτα ἀκούειν·] Theſe words are owned by all the Verſions, Theophylact and Jerome, and yet are rejected by Dr. Mills, on the ſole Authority of three MSS.

(13) V. 10. To the Note here add.] Hence alſo we may learn the Power and Efficacy of the Word, when it is heartily believed, and ſeriouſly attended to, to work in thoſe that hear it, Converſion to the Salvation of the Soul; it being only thro' the Want of ſeeing, and of underſtanding; that is of believing, and conſidering the Importance of it, that it hath not this Effect upon Men. V. 52. Οὐαὶ ἤρατε τὴν κλεῖδα τῆς γνώσεως, Ye have taken away the Key of Knowledge.] At the Ordination of a Jewiſh Rabbi to be a Teacher of the Law, a Key was given him, to ſhew that he was appointed to open the Scriptures to the People. Hence Chriſt pronounces a Wo upon thoſe Doctors of the Law, who being thus deſigned to open thoſe Scriptures to the People which concerned the Kingdom of Heaven, or of the Meſſiah; they by their falſe Interpretations, and corrupt Traditions, touching the Scriptures relating to that Kingdom, did ſhut the Kingdom of Heaven up againſt them. (17)

(24) V. 1. He looked, and saw Men casting their Gifts into the Treasury,] That which was thus cast into the Treasury, was design'd, saith Theophylact, not only for Relief of the Poor, but for sacred uses, and, εἰς κοσμὸν τοῦ ναοῦ, for the Ornament of the Temple; and this might give ground to Josephus to say the Temple was built not only with the Bounty of Herod, that being not sufficient for the Work, but with all that was contained in the Holy Treasury, and with the Tributes sent from all Parts of the World; and so that which Men thought could never be finished, was thro' Patience, and length of time, accomplished. *De Bello. Additional Annotations to the Goſpel according to St. John.

Postscript to the Preface of St. John's Goſpel.

I Come now to the chief Controverſie betwixt me and Mr. Whiſton, which is concerning the time of Chriſt's Preaching, and his Baptiſm.

He ſaith, Prop. the 8th, "That the beginning of our Saviour's Miniſtry, both as to his Preaching, and Miracles, commenced ſoon after that of John the Baptiſt, towards the beginning of the famous fifteenth Year of Tiberius, long before his own Baptiſm, i. e. according to his Computation near two Years before it.

Now to this Propoſition, I oppoſe the contradictory Aſſertion of (a) Cyril of Jeruſalem, viz. That Jeſus Chriſt preached not before his Baptiſm, but then only began to preach when the Holy Ghoſt bodily deſcended on him in the ſhape of a Dove: And this probably he might know from the Tradition of the Jewiſh Converts, who might be baptized with him. Agreeable to this Aſſertion is that of (b) Euſebius of Paleſtine, That our Lord beginning to be thirty, came to John's Baptiſm, καλαρχὼ τὲ ϖοιεῖ τλωικαῶτα τ̃ κ̃ῡ τὸ ϵ̃υαγγέλιον κηρύγμαλ@, and from thence he began to preach the Goſpel. (c) Epiphanius, who was born in Paleſtine of Jewiſh Parents, ſaith, That our Lord came to the Baptiſm of St. John the Baptiſt in the 30th Year of his Incarnation, κ̀ ἀπενταῦθεν, and from that time preach'd the acceptable Year of the Lord. And laſtly, (d) Irenæus ſaith, That he neither could have Diſciples, nor could teach before he began to be thirty, Magiſtri ætatem non habens; but then he came to his Baptiſm, triginta quidem annorum exiſtens cum veniret ad Baptiſmum, deinde Magiſtri ætatem perfectam habens, being then of perfect Age to be a Teacher. And hence aroſe that (e) Canon of the Church, to ordain a Presbyter, τριάκονλα ὄνλα ἐτ̃ῶ, when he was thirty Years Old. This being by all the Fathers (one alone excepted) gathered, and thought certain from St. Luke, that Chriſt came to his Baptiſm when he was in his 30th Year; ſee the Note on Luke 3. 33. where this is proved, and the Senſe of the words of St. Luke is fully conſidered: And ſaith (f) Langius, That which hath this full conſent of Antiquity, and is agreeable to Scripture, is certainly the Truth.

2*dly*, It is the expreſs Aſſertion of St. Luke, That the Baptiſt began his Miniſtry in the fifteenth Year of Tiberius; for then, ſaith he, the Word of the Lord came to him, and he came forth preaching the Baptiſm of Repentance, Luke 3. 2, 3. and it is the general Aſſertion of all Antiquity, that Chriſt was baptized in the ſame Year; it is therefore impoſſible that either John ſhould ſo long begin to preach, or that Chriſt ſhould preach ſo long, as he ſaith he did, before his Baptiſm. And,

3*dly*, That which Mr. Whiſton offers from (g) Euſebius in favour of his Opinion, is a perfect Demonſtration againſt it; for he ſaith, St. John writ his Goſpel to ſupply the defects of the other Evangeliſts, who had omitted τ̀ ϖρ̃ῶτ̃ῶ ἐν ϖροφ̀τοις κ̀ καλ' ἀρχὼ τ̃ κηρύγμαλ@ τ̃ῦ τ̃ Χρ̃ῦ ϖεπραγμένων διήγησιν, the Narrative of the things done by Chriſt at the beginning of his Preaching: Now, ſaith the ſame Euſebius, in the ſame Book, Chriſt beginning to be thirty Years old, came to John's Baptiſm, καλαρχὼ τὲ ϖοιεῖ τλωικαῶτα, &c. and from thence he began to preach the Goſpel; moreover, he makes the defect of the other Evangeliſt to conſiſt in this, that they ſaid nothing of the time of the beginning of Chriſt's Preaching, (which, ſaith he, was from his Baptiſm by John in Jordan,) till after John's Impriſonment, whereas the Evangeliſt St. John begins there, (i. e. at the beginning of Chriſt's Preaching after his Baptiſm,) ſaying, This beginning of Miracles did Jeſus; and goes on through all the time of John's baptizing afterward, till his Impriſonment, as he ſhews by ſaying, John was baptizing in Ænon, near Salim, for John was not yet caſt into Priſon, John 3. 23. Who ſees not now that Euſebius places all the time of Chriſt's Preaching mentioned by St. John from the ſecond to the fifth Chapter, betwixt Chriſt's Baptiſm, and St. John Baptiſt's being caſt into Priſon: Now this being the way that Jerome, Euſebius, ſebius, and all the Ancients, who undertook to anſwer the Cavils of Porphyry, and others, wo queſtioned the Truth of the Goſpels, took to reconcile the Evangeliſts in this matter, demonſtrates that they knew, and believed nothing of this new Revelation, that our Saviour preached about two Years before his Baptiſm.

To proceed now to the Arguments from Scripture concurring with the Sufferage of Antiquity, I aſſert,

1*ſt*, That John the Baptiſt did ſee the Holy Spirit deſcending from Heaven, and abiding upon Chriſt at his Baptiſm. This is evident, (1*ſt*,) From the Nature of the thing, it being almoſt inconceivable that there ſhould be ſuch a glorious Opening of the Heavens, and ſuch a viſible Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt in a bodily Shape, and that he who ſtood by all the while, and ſaw Chriſt come out of the Water, ſhould not diſcern what was more viſible, as being a more glorious Appearance.

2*dly*, This ſeemeth farther evident from the words following, καὶ ἰδοὺ, and behold a Voice from Heaven, ſaying, οὗτος, this is my beloved Son; for as in the like Caſe, καὶ ἰδοὺ, and behold a Voice out of the Cloud, ſaying, οὗτος, This is my beloved Son, hear him, Matth. 17. 5. was an Advertiſement to the Diſciples preſent there, that God from Heaven gave them this Teſtimony concerning him who was transfigured before them; ſo the καὶ ἰδοὺ οὗτος, And behold this, &c, Matth. 3. 17. muſt be an Advertiſement to the Baptiſt, that he on whom the Holy Ghoſt thus deſcended, was the Son of God. And hence John's Teſtimony is thus related, Chap. 1. 32, 33, 34. He that ſent me to baptize, ſaid, On whomſoever thou (baptizing) ſeeſt the Spirit deſcending, and abiding on him, he it is that baptizeth with the Holy Ghoſt; and I ſaw (this) and (hearing alſo at the ſame time the Voice from Heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son,) I teſtified that this is the Son of God.

Nor is it any Objection to the contrary, that St. Mark, Chap. 1. 11. and St. Luke, Chap. 3. 22. give the words of the Voice from Heaven thus, Thou art my beloved Son; for as neither of them hath the Advertiſement to behold, which St. Matthew hath, ſo he that ſaith to another of Chriſt in his Audience, This is my beloved Son, ſaith in effect to him, Thou art ſo.

Hence I infer, That the Baptiſt ſaw not the Holy Ghoſt deſcending upon Chriſt as a Dove before Chriſt's Baptiſm, and conſequently that his Teſtimony of this matter, John 1. 32. muſt relate to what he had ſeen at his Baptiſm, ſince otherwiſe the Baptiſt muſt have ſeen him twice deſcending thus upon Chriſt, in the very ſame Shape, and after the ſame manner; whereas, if by the firſt Viſion the Sign of the Meſſiah promiſed to him was ſo fully given him, that he declares that he had ſeen it, and by it was enabled to teſtifie Chriſt was the Son of God, what need was there of a ſecond Viſion, or to what end was it deſigned.

3*dly*, There is no reaſon to ſay, that the Holy Ghoſt deſcended twice in the ſame Shape, and with the ſame Circumſtances from Heaven upon Chriſt, as this Opinion doth ſuppoſe, ſince by the firſt Deſcent upon him he muſt be ſufficiently ſanctified, and conſecrated to his Office. Moreover, he ſpeaks of himſelf, John 3. 17. as of one ſent into the World by the Father, and therefore ſanctified already, John 10. 36. And the Baptiſt ſpeaks of him not only as one who teſtified what he had ſeen and heard (at his Baptiſm) but alſo as one ſent from God, and filled with his Spirit above meaſure, and who had all things put into his hands, complaining that no Man received his Teſtimony, tho' God the Father had ſet his Seal unto it, ver. 31 ——— 34. Now is it reaſonable to conceive, as Mr. Whiſton's Opinion forces us to do, that all this ſhould be ſaid by Chriſt, and by the Baptiſt, before, that Baptiſm in which alone the Father had declared him to be his beloved Son.

Object. It is objected, That when Chriſt came to be baptiſed of John, he not only knew him, but ſpeaks thus to him, I have need to be baptized of thee, and comeſt thou to me? Which words imply not only his Knowledge who he was, but alſo that he baptized as well as himſelf; yet after his Baptiſm was over, and not before Jeſus went up out of the Water, and the Heavens were opened, &c. ſince then the Baptiſt ſaid, I knew him not, but had this Signal given me whereby to know him, viz. the Deſcent and Aboad of the Holy Ghoſt, how comes he to be ſo well acquainted with him before his Baptiſm, as the words above-mentioned do imply?

Anſw. 1. To this I anſwer, (1*ſt*,) That as theſe words, He it is that baptizeth with the Holy Ghoſt, and with Fire, do not intimate that Chriſt did then, or whilſt he was on Earth, do this, but only that he was to do it after his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion John 7. 39. Acts 1. 5. 11. 16. So the word of the Baptiſt, I have need to be baptized of thee, do not intimate the Baptiſt's Knowledge that Jeſus then baptized, (partly becauſe it is not true, ſince Jeſus baptized not whilſt John was at Jordan, but only when he was baptizing at Ænon, John 3. 23. partly becauſe Jeſus himſelf baptized not, but his Diſciples only, John 4. 2. and ſurely John who had Commiſſion from God to uſe this Baptiſm, and probably had baptized theſe Diſciples, could not need their Water-Baptiſm;) they therefore only ſignifie, that Chriſt was the Perſon who ſhould afterwards baptize with the Holy Ghoſt and Fire, and that John needed that Baptiſm which would enable him to work Miracles, and to ſpeak with unknown Tongues.

Anſw. 2. 2*dly*, I anſwer, That John the Baptiſt being filled with the Holy Ghoſt from his Mother's Womb, Luke 1. 15. knew by the afflatus of that Spirit, that he who then came to him, was the very Perſon on whom the Holy Ghoſt ſhould deſcend ſo glorioufly, and on whom he ſhould abide, that he might impart him to others, ſuch Matters being frequently imparted to holy Prophets by an immediate Intimation of the Holy Ghoſt; ſo Simeon being told, he ſhould not die till he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt, Luke 2. 26. had alſo an afflatus, declaring to him that our Lord was the Chriſt, ver. 27, 32. So Samuel, being told by God, that on the Morrow a Man ſhould come to him to be the Captain over his People Iſrael, 1 Sam. 9. 15. when Saul appears, had another afflatus reſembling that of the Baptiſt's here, viz. Behold the Man of whom I ſpake to thee, ver. 17. In a Word, the Baptiſt being moved to ſay, When he baptized with Water, that another was coming after him who ſhould baptize them with the Holy Ghoſt, God tells him, that of this he ſhould ſee an Evidence by the viſible Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon that Perſon, who from his Fulneſs was to impart of this Spirit to all Believers, and when our Lord came to be baptized, tells him again, this was that very Perſon.

Anſw. 3. 3*dly*, It is not ſaid I knew him not, but οὐκ ἤδειν αὐτὸν, I had not known him, John 1. 31, 33. and this is ſo ſaid as to give us juſt reaſon to believe, that this was ſaid after our Saviour's Baptiſm, for the words of the Baptiſt bear properly this ſenſe, And I had not known him, but that I came for this cauſe to baptize with Water, that he might be made manifeſt to Iſrael (by me) then follow the words of the Evangeliſt, ver. 32. And John bare record, ſaying, I ſaw, (Gr. have ſeen) the Spirit deſcending from Heaven like a Dove, and it abode upon him, (which, as I have proved, the Baptiſt ſaw at his Baptiſm,) and no Man can prove that he ſaw this before. Then follow again the words of the Baptiſt, ver. 33. And I had not known him, (viz. by this Sign of the Spirit's deſcending on him,) but (that) he who ſent me to baptize with Water, the ſame (had) ſaid to me, upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit deſcending and remaining on him, the ſame is he who baptizeth with the Holy Ghoſt. Now, why is the Baptiſt ſo particular in ſaying twice, that he had not known, except he that ſent him to baptiſe had given him this Sign, if this Sign had not been given him at his baptizing of Chriſt; but long before, why doth he ſay, he came to baptize that he might be manifeſt to Iſrael? (viz. by him baptizing) if he were not to be made manifeſt to him by his baptizing him, but long before. Why, Laſtly, ſhould a thing of ſo great Moment to the Confirmation of Chriſt's Miſſion, and the Baptiſt's Teſtimony of him, as this Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon Chriſt in this manner, ſo long before his Baptiſm, be never hinted in the leaſt in any place of the New Teſtament, the Scripture being as ſilent in it as in the Aſcent of Chriſt into Heaven after his Baptiſm, which the Socinians have imagined? To make this farther evident, conſider that the Baptiſt only ſaith in the other Evangeliſts, ἔρχεται, one cometh; or is coming after me, who ſhall baptize you with the Holy Ghoſt; but the Evangeliſt St. John begins his Teſtimony thus, John bare record, and cryed, ſaying, This is he of whom I ſaid, he that cometh after me is preferr'd before me, Chap. 1. ver. 15. Plainly, according to the Obſervation of the Ancients, beginning his Teſtimony after Chriſt's Baptiſm, whither the other Evangeliſts had only brought him; for when St. Matthew had introduced John, ſaying, One cometh after me, &c. whoſe Fan is in his hand, &c. he immediately adds τότε, then cometh Jeſus to be baptized of John in Jordan; the words then this is he, of whom I ſaid this, muſt intimate that this was ſpoken after Chriſt's Baptiſm, and not almoſt two Years before it. Moreover, when the Prieſts and Levites, ſent from Jeruſalem to Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing, asked him why he baptized? The Baptiſt anſwers, I baptize with Water, but there ſtandeth (Gr. ἔστηκεν, hath ſtood) one among you whom ye know not, he it is who coming after me is preferr'd before me: Now, (1*ſt*,) when had Chriſt ſtood in the midſt of them, but when he came from Galilee to Jordan to be baptized of John, ſeeing we find not in all the Evangeliſts, that Jeſus ever went any whither but to a Feaſt at Jeruſalem when he was twelve Years old, till he went from Nazareth to Galilee to be baptized of John in Jordan? Mark 1. 9. Matth. 3. 13. Whereas the Evangeliſt St. John repreſents him firſt at Cana, then going thence to Capernaum as to his Abode, then to the Paſſover, then to Samaria, which ſhews that this was done after his Baptiſm. 2*dly*, Theſe words whom ye know not, fairly intimate, that the Baptiſt then knew him, as alſo doth the demonſtrative Pronoun οὗτος, this is he who coming after me, &c. and the words ſpoken the next day, This is he of whom I ſaid, He that cometh after me is preferr'd before me; which, as I have ſhewed, were then ſaid, when Chriſt came to be baptized of John; whereas the Baptiſt ſaith, I had not known him had not God given me this Sign of the Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon him, to know he was that very Perſon, and therefore when Chriſt came to his Baptiſm, God ſaith firſt to John, by an afflatus, This is the very Perſon on whom thou ſhalt ſee this Sign, and then inſtantly upon his Baptiſm affords it to him. Moreover, the Evangeliſt adds, theſe things were done at Bethabara where John was baptizing; they therefore muſt be ſpoken before the Baptiſt left that place to go to Ænon, and therefore after Chriſt's Baptiſm; for that the Baptiſt ever returned afterwards to Jordan, where Chriſt was baptized we read not.

Object. 1. Chriſt was then only baptized when all the People had been ſo, Luke 3. 21.

Anſw. To this I anſwer, That Chriſt was baptized of John in Jordan, Mark. 1. 7. whereas John continued afterwards at Ænon, and the People came and were baptized of him there, John 3. 33. ſo that when St. Luke ſaith, When all the People were baptized, Jeſus was baptized alſo; 'tis evident, he meaneth only all the People then preſent, or baptized at Jordan by him, Matth, 3. 5, 6. And hence the Scripture makes an exact diſtinction betwixt John's baptizing at Jordan, and afterwards at Ænon, and perhaps at other places, by ſaying, John 10. 40. that Chriſt went again beyond Jordan to the place, ὅπου Ἰωάννης ἦν τὸ πρῶτον βαπτίζων, where John was firſt baptizing, making it evident, that John ſtill followed his Office after he had baptized Chriſt, baptizing ſtill in other places; falſe therefore is the Inference from St. Luke's mentioning the Impriſonment of John before he ſpeaks of Chriſt's Baptiſm, that our Saviour was baptized at Jordan at the concluſion of John's Miniſtry, that being only the place of John's firſt Baptiſm; after which, he comes to Ænon, in the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, within the Precincts of Samaria, and baptizeth, and the People come to him there, and were baptized, for John was not yet caſt into Priſon, John 3. 23, 24. St. Luke therefore ſpeaks of John's Impriſonment by a long anticipation, that he might put all that he had to ſay of the Baptiſt together, which perhaps St. John intended to intimate, by ſaying the Baptiſt was not yet caſt into Priſon.

Object. 2. All the other Evangeliſts after Chriſt's Baptiſm, ſay nothing of him more, but that he was tempted in the Wilderneſs; and then when John was caſt into Priſon, ἀνεχώρησεν, he returned into Galilee, came to Nazareth, and ſo to Capernaum, Matth. 4. 12, 13. Mark 1. 14. Luke 4. 14. Whence it ſeems to follow, that Chriſt was baptized but a little before John was caſt into Priſon.

Anſw. 1*ſt*, But how much more natural is the Obſervation of the Ancients, That the Evangeliſt St. John obſerving this, begins where they had ended, viz. at the firſt Appearance of our Bleſſed Lord after his Baptiſm, John 1. 29. and gave the Teſtimony of him recorded, ver. 15. and ver. 26, 27. a little before that.

Anſw. 2. 2*dly*, All the other Evangeliſts ſpeak only of the Baptiſt as the Fore-runner of Chriſt, or as one ſent before him to prepare his way, and to preach the Baptiſm of Repentance to the People, πρὸ τῆς εἰσόδου αὐτοῦ, before the entrance of Chriſt upon his Office, Acts 13. 24. which, all theſe three Evangeliſts having told us that he did, and by what Arguments he enforced this Repentance on them, they all immediately ſubjoin our Lord's coming to Jordan to be baptized of him, and the Hiſtory of his enſuing Baptiſm; the Baptiſt being therefore only his Fore-runner till Chriſt by his Baptiſm was anointed with the Holy Ghoſt, and conſecrated by this Unction to his Office, they had no more to ſay of the Baptiſt afterwards; and ſo they only ſpeak of what Chriſt began to ſay after that John was caſt into Priſon, viz. the time is fulfilled, &c. Mark 1. 14, 15. But the Evangeliſt St. John ſpeaks of the Baptiſt, not as the Fore-runner of, but as one ſent to be a witneſs to Chriſt, ch. 1. 6. which he was enabled to be, only by what he ſaw and heard of Chriſt's Baptiſm, v. 31, 33. before which time, he only ſpake indefinitely of one coming after him; but when he had baptized him, he ſaith demonſtratively, This is he of whom I ſpake; and therefore he had reaſon to ſpeak of him as long as he bore witneſs of him, as he afterwards amply did at Ænon, and of our Lord's Performances before John was caſt into Priſon; they being alſo Teſtimonies of Chriſt's Miſſion, and that he was the Son of God, and yet entirely omitted by the former Evangeliſts. And whereas,

3*dly*, It is ſaid by the other Evangeliſts, That Chriſt returned again into Galilee, this well agrees with St. John, ſaying, After he had ended his whole Hiſtory of the Baptiſt, that Chriſt ἀπῆλθε πάλιν, went again, or receded into Galilee, to avoid the Fury of the Phariſees, Chap. 4. 3. And it ſeems worthy of obſervation, that after Chriſt was baptized he came to Capernaum, ſaith St. Matthew, that what was ſpoken by the Prophet of the Land of Zebulon and Naphthali, in the Borders of which Capernaum lay, might be fulfilled; whereas, if Chriſt did what St. John mentions, Chap. 2. before his Baptiſm, he muſt have been there before, and probably have taken up his Abode there, John 2. 12. and muſt have done many Miracles there before; ſince, when he came to Nazareth, they ſpake thus to him, What things we have heard done in Capernaum, do alſo in thy own Country, Luke 4. 23. and ſo he needed not to come thither again after his Baptiſm to fulfil that Propheſie.

Object. 3. 3*dly*, From the connexion of the Words of St. Luke concerning Christ's Temptation in the Wilderneſs, Chap. 4. 1. with thoſe following Ver. 13, 14. And Jeſus returned in the Power of the Spirit into Galilee, and there went out a Fame of him throughout all the Region round about; it is argued that theſe two things muſt be immediately connected.

Anſw. 1. This is ſaid, not conſidering that both St. Matthew and St. Mark aſſure us, that this was only done after that John was caſt into Priſon; which as I have ſhewed already, was long after our Lord's Baptiſm at Jordan.

Anſw. 2. There is nothing more common in St. Luke than ſuch connexion of things done a conſiderable time after one another: Thus when he had ſpoken of Chriſt's Circumciſion, he immediately ſpeaks of his Appearance at the Temple when he was forty Days old; and yet Mr. Whiſton will have his Flight into Ægypt, and his Return thence, to intervene. He introduceth John, ſaying, I baptize with Water, but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whoſe Shoes I am not worthy to unlooſe, Chap. 1. 16. and then follows Chriſt's Baptiſm, v. 21. and yet the Baptiſt tells us, this was he of whom he had ſaid this, John 1. 27. and ſo according to the Opinion of Mr. Whiſton, he muſt have ſaid this almoſt two Years before our Saviour's Baptiſm. Again, He ſpeaks of the Baptiſt's Impriſonment by Herod, Chap. 3. 20. before Chriſt's Baptiſm, and yet 'tis certain that he could not baptize Chriſt in Jordan after he was in Priſon. In fine, having ſpoken of Chriſt's preſentment in the Temple after he was forty Days old, Chap. 2. 39. He adds, v. 40. That the Child being filled with Wiſdom, encreaſed, and waxed ſtrong in Spirit, which ſuppoſes him then of ſome Years capable of Wiſdom.

Object. 4. But ſaith Mr. Whiſton, this Opinion that Chriſt was baptized before he did the things mentioned in the four firſt Chapters of St. John, puts a chaſm of almoſt two Years betwixt Chriſt's Baptiſm, and his return to Galilee, after the Impriſonment of the Baptiſt.

Anſw. 1*ſt*, It is ſomewhat ſurpriſing to find that which hath been the obſervation of all the Fathers who have writ upon this ſubject, from (a) Clemens Alex. to Theophylact, that is, for a thouſand Years, turned now into an Objection; their Obſervation is this, That the other Evangeliſts have paſſed over all that our Saviour did after his Baptiſm till John was caſt into Priſon; but the Evangeliſt St. John paſſing by all that they had ſaid of Chriſt to his Baptiſm, and Temptation, begins where they left off, and having told us of many things done after by Chriſt, he adds, that John was not yet caſt into Priſon; clearly ſhewing, that according to the Tradition they had received, the Evangeliſt ſpeaks in theſe four Chapters, of what hapned between the Interval of Chriſt's Baptiſm and St. John's Impriſonment.

Anſw. 2. Moreover, ſeeing there muſt be a like chaſm of Time in theſe Evangeliſts, who ſpeak not one word of Chriſt's leaving Nazareth till he came thence to be baptized of John, or of his Preaching, Miracles, or baptizing others before he was himſelf baptized, what abſurdity is it to place this chaſm after Chriſt's Baptiſm, as the (b) Ancients do, who alſo poſitively ſay, that Chriſt preached not before he was baptized, rather than againſt the Suffrage of all Antiquity, to place it before his Baptiſm. This will be farther evident from the Words of St. Peter, rightly interpreted, viz. of thoſe who have accompanied with us all the time that our Lord Jeſus went in and out among us, ἀρξάμενος ἀπὸ βαπτίσματος Ἰωάννου, (he beginning ſo to do from the Baptiſm of John till the Day that he was taken up from us,) muſt one be choſen to be a witneſs of his Reſurrection, Acts 1. 20, 21. For, (1*ſt*,) I have proved Note on v. 20. That to go in and out is to perform his Prophetick Office. (2*dly*,) Thoſe words beginning from the Baptiſm of John, cannot be expounded truly of Chriſt's Entrance on his Office at the beginning of John's Baptiſm; for then the Baptiſt could not be Chriſt's Fore-runner, nor could he repreſent Chriſt as one that was to come after him, nor could he ſay he came to baptiſe, that he might be made manifeſt to Iſrael, ſeeing his Preachingand his Miracles by which he manifeſted his Glory, John 2, 11. —3. 2. according to the Opinion of Mr. Whiſton, muſt be done long before his Baptiſm! and much leſs could St. Paul ſay ſo emphatically, That John was ſent προκηρύττειν πρὸ προσώπου τῆς εἰσόδου αὐτοῦ, to preach firſt the Baptiſm of Repentance to all the People of Iſrael, before the Entrance of Chriſt upon his Miniſtry, Acts 13. 24. but, as Grotius truly ſaith, they are to be underſtood of the time, ex quo Jeſus fuit à Johanne baptizatus, from Chriſt's being baptized by John; for it is reaſonable to conceive, St. Peter ſpeaks of his Baptiſm, of whoſe Aſcenſion he ſpeaks in the ſame place, ſince otherwiſe the terminus à quo, the Baptiſm, and the terminus ad quem, his Aſcenſion, will not reſpect the ſame Perſon, it being, doubtleſs, Chriſt's Aſcenſion that is ſpoken of. In a Word, if Chriſt preach'd two Years before his Baptiſm, he preach'd a Year and a half before his Fore runner; for it was only in the 15*th of Tiberius that the Word of the Lord coming to the Baptiſt, he went out, and preached the Baptiſm of Repentance*, Luke 3. 2, 3. Now in this very 15*th* of Tiberius, the Baptiſm of Chriſt is placed by all the Ancients, ſaying that he was baptized duobus Geminis Conſulibus, which fixeth his Baptiſm to that very Year. And hence Mr. Whiſton's Inference, that St. John's Preaching and Chriſt's muſt begin in the ſame Year, is confirmed by all Antiquity, declaring that Chriſt was baptized, and afterwards began to preach in the ſame 15*th* Year of Tiberius and the Epocha of the Baptiſt's Preaching, ought to be made the beginning of the Goſpel, becauſe, as St. Luke truly ſaith, John did εὐαγγελίζασθαι τὸν λαὸν, preach the Goſpel to the People, he preaching that Men ſhould believe on him that ſhould come after him, that is, on Jeſus Chriſt, Acts 19. 4. He not only baptized with the Baptiſm of Repentance for the remiſſion of Sins, but pointed to the Lamb of God which taketh away the Sins of the World, John 1. 29. Now this Faith, and this Remiſſion of Sins thro' the Blood of Chriſt, are the two great Doctrines of the Goſpel.

And whereas, to avoid the Teſtimony of St. Luke, who when he had ſpoken of Chriſt's Baptiſm after the People were baptized, and the Deſcent of the Holy Ghoſt upon him in the ſhape of a Dove, and of the Voice from Heaven, ſaying, Thou art my beloved Son, which in St. Matthew and St. Mark are expreſly ſaid to follow Chriſt's Baptiſm, immediately adds, And Jeſus himſelf began to be about thirty Years of Age; Mr. Whiſton ſaith, this relates not to the time of his Baptiſm, but of his Miniſtry long before his Baptiſm; in this, as he contradicts all the Ancients, ſo he makes St. Luke to relate firſt what hapned at Chriſt's Baptiſm, and in his own Opinion at the end of the Baptiſt's Miniſtry; and then in the immediate enſuing words, to ſpeak of what was done almoſt two Years before, than which nothing can be more improbable. 2*dly*, They who refer the word ἀρξάμενος to the beginning of Chriſt's Miniſtry, or preaching as ſome Chronologers, and others do, ſtill refer it to his Miniſtry after his Baptiſm; ſo that Mr. Whiſton is ſtill left alone with his new Notion of Chriſt's Miniſtry long before his Baptiſm, and his groundleſs diſtinction betwixt Chriſt's private and his publick Miniſtry, for which there is neither Foundation, nor colour in Scripture or Antiquity. And, 3*dly*, Whereas Mr. Whiſton will not allow the Word ἀρχόμενος to refer to Chriſt's Years, but will rather have it refer to κηρύξαι, or ſome ſuch Word, i. e. to a Word not uſed, i. e. to a matter not ſo much as hinted by him, as I have in my Note juſtified the Greek from the cenſure of the Criticks, and ſtrengthned our Verſion with the concurrence of all the Greek Fathers who accord with it, and thence infer, that Chriſt was beginning his 30th Year at his Baptiſm: So may it be confirmed by the concurrence of (a) St. Jerome, and of all the ancient Verſions, with the ſenſe of our Tranſlation.

Laſtly, Whereas he cites, for Confirmation of his Opinion, the Words of the Jews, ſaying, Luke 23. 5. He ſtirreth up the People, teaching thro' all Judea, beginning from Galilee to this place; and thoſe of St. Peter, Acts 10. 37. The Word ye know which was publiſhed through all Judea, beginning from Galilee, after the Baptiſm which John preached.

Anſw. 1. 1*ſt*, I anſwer that theſe words agree exactly with our Hypotheſis, who ſay, that after Chriſt's Temptation, he returns to John, and receives his Teſtimony, that he was the very Perſon of whom he had before indefinitely ſpoken, yea, that he was the Son of God, Joh. 1. 34. which he had heard only at his Baptiſm. And that he was the Lamb of God that taketh away the Sins of the World, of all which things the other Evangeliſts had given no account; then he goes into Galilee, manifeſting his Glory there; from thence to Jeruſalem, then to Judea, where he baptizeth by his Diſciples, as John did, into the Faith of the Meſſiah, whoſe Kingdom was ſhortly to be ſet up, and for which they were to prepare themſelves by the Baptiſm of Repentance, and then again goes back to Galilee. See the Note on John 3. 22, 26.

Anſw. 2. 2*dly*, St. Peter plainly ſaith, That this word was ſpoken by Jeſus of Nazareth, (1*ſt*,) when he had been anointed by the Holy Ghoſt, and Power, which after his Baptiſm he was; for then he return'd from Jordan full of the Holy Ghoſt, Luke 4. 1. and into Galilee, ἐν δυνάμει τοῦ πνεύματος, in the Power of the Spirit, ver. 14. whereas, before his Baptiſm, nothing of this nature is ſaid of him. 2*dly*, That he is ſaid to begin from Galilee after the Baptiſm which John preach'd, i. e. after that Baptiſm was concluded by the Impriſonment of the Baptiſt; now tho' our Lord was baptized above a Year before, and by his Disciples did baptize after the manner of John; and to the same Ends, whilst John himself continued so to do, and no longer, yet it was after the ceasing of the Baptism of St. John, that he begins in Galilee to preach the Kingdom of God, and declare it was now coming. Thus St. Mark tells us, That after that John was put in Prison, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, and saying, the time (of the coming of the Messiah to erect it) is fulfilled, and the Kingdom of God is at hand, repent ye therefore, and believe the Gospel, Mark 1. 14, 15. and in like manner St. Matthew, that from that time (that the Baptist was cast into Prison,) Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand, Matth. 4. 17. the time before, recorded by the Evangelist St. John, was spent in doing such Miracles, and teaching such Doctrines, as might prepare them to receive, and believe in him, when he began to preach the Doctrine of his Kingdom, and to set it up. And hence we find, That tho' Christ had Disciples, or Followers before, yet he had called none before to follow him, or be continually with him, as afterwards he did, Matth. 4. 19, 21. Mark 1. 17, 20. Here therefore seems to be a clear Account of this whole Matter, Christ cometh from Nazareth to Jordan to be baptized of John, that he might see the Sign God had promised, and here him stiled from Heaven the Son of God, and so by testifying these things, might make him manifest to Israel; he hereupon declares what he had seen and heard, and so pronounces Christ the Son of God; then Christ goes on during the Baptism of John at Bethabara, at Ænon, and perhaps elsewhere, to work Miracles, and to declare that God had sent his Son to be the Saviour of the World, (but not yet saying that he was that Son,) and by his Disciples to baptize Men, as St. John did, to fit them for, and to prepare them to embrace the Doctrine of his Kingdom, when it was to be set up. When therefore John was cast into Prison, and so his Ministry was finished, and gave place to that of Christ's, Christ goes into Galilee, and there begins to preach that Doctrine which was to commence at the Cessation of John's Baptism, and succeed to it; and therefore the three first Evangelists passing by what Christ did after his Baptism to fit Men for this Kingdom, begin, what they had farther to say of him, when Christ himself began to preach the Doctrine of that Kingdom. And Christ himself saith, with relation to that Epocha, From the Days of John the Baptist till now, the Kingdom of Heaven suffers violence, Matth. 11. 12. and Luke 16. 16. ἀπὸ τότε, From the time of John the Kingdom of Heaven is preached, and all Men press into it.

Note also, that whereas in the Preface to the Gospel of St. John p. 438. I had said, the Passovers during the time of our Saviour's Ministry were but four. I find now reason to conceive with the Right Reverend Bishop of Worcester, Dr. Allix, and Mr. Whiston that they were five.

First, From our Saviour's Baptism, which by the Suffrage of all Antiquity, was in the 15th of Tiberius, which began on the 19th of August, and so Christ's first Passover must begin in the same fifteenth of Tiberius, and so his last Passover, which according to the Greek Chronicle of Eusebius was in the nineteenth of Tiberius, and according to Phlegon in the fourth Year of the twenty second Olympiad, must be his fifth Passover.

2*dly*, Christ was baptized in the fifteenth of (a) Tiberius duobus Geminis consulibus, i. e. C. Rubellio Gemino & C. Fusco Gemino Cos. He dying therefore in the nineteenth of Tiberius, must die, Servio Sulpitio Galba, & L. Cornelio Sulla Cos. That is, in the fifth Year following. And this I also gather from (b) Dion, who saith, That Tiberius died after 22 Years, 7 Months, 7 Kal. April, or the 26th of March, Cn. Proculo & Pontio Negrino Cos. Now reckon the Consuls backward to the Nineteenth of Tiberius, and you come to Galba and Sulla.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. Was the Word.] The plainest Reason why this Essential Son of God is stiled the Word, seems to be this; that as our Words are the Interpretation of our Minds to others, so was this Son of God sent to reveal his Father's Mind to the World. (2)

To this Light the Baptiſt beareth Witneſs, that all Men might believe in him v. 6, to eternal Life, Chap. 3. 36; and therefore with this Light he, coming into the World, enlightneth every Man, viz. who doth receive him, v. 12.

CHAP. II.

(8) V. 20. Τεσσαράκοντα καὶ ἓξ ἔτεσιν ᾠκοδομήθη ὁ ναὸς οὗτος, Forty and ſix Years hath this Temple been building.] Mr. Wh. here ſaith, the words ſhould be rendred Forty ſix Years hath this Temple been built, but our Verſion is juſtified from the uſe of the ſame Word in the Septuagint, in the ſame Caſe, Ezra 5. 16. ἀπὸ τότε ἕως τοῦ νυῦ ᾠκοδομήθη καὶ οὐκ ἐτελέσθη, this Temple hath been building from that time to this, and hath not yet been finiſhed. 2*dly*, The Argument of the Jews requires this Senſe, which our Tranſlation giveth of theſe words, for it is plain Folly to ſtate thus the Years from which it had been built, to prove it could not be built again in three Days; ſince this could have no more Force to prove it could not be built in three Days, than its being built at any other time; but the Argument is plain and ſtrong, according to our Verſion, viz. That it could not reaſonably be thought that Chriſt himſelf, or with his ſmall Retinue ſhould do that in three Days, which had already coſt many thouſand Labourers forty ſix Years to build.

Mr. Whiſton's Computation, I confeſs, is very plauſible at the firſt View. it begins thus, " (c) Joſephus aſſures us that the ναὸς " or Temple was begun in the 18th Year of " Herod from the Death of Antigonus, and " that it was finiſhed in a Year and ſix " Months; now from theſe Circumſtances " we may certainly find the Year we enquire " for, Antigonus was ſlain about July, A. " p. J. 4677. and ſo Herod's 18th Year " muſt begin about July 4694, and con- " tinue till July 4695. Let us ſuppoſe the Temple begun about the Feaſt of Tabernacles in this 18th Year 4694, add a Year and ſix Months, the ſpace in which it was building, and it will appear to have been finiſhed at the Paſſover Niſan 4696; from that Paſſover let us count forty ſix Years, and this will bring us to the Paſſover we enquire for, Niſan 4742. which is A. D. 29. But yet from an exact view of this Computation, I find it fails in almoſt every Particular. For,

1*ſt*, It is certain from (d) Joſephus that Antigonus neither was, nor could be ſlain in the Month of July, becauſe the Temple was not taken by Herod and Soſius till the 10th Day of September, it being taken, ſaith Joſephus, τῇ ἑορτῇ τῆς νηστείας, on the Feaſt of the Faſt, by which words, ſaith (e) Langius, he intends no other than the Faſt preſcribed by the Law of Moſes, and mentioned in his own Hiſtory as a Faſt; for he names the Day, that every one might know certainly when the City was taken, which had there been more Faſts, they could not have done by this Character, Sed omnem dubitationem eximit appoſita vox ἑορτῆς, but the word Feaſt added to it, puts the Matter beyond doubt, for there was but one Faſt ſo called in the Year. This, ſay I, is demonſtrable from the word ἑορτὴ, the Feaſt of the Faſt, the 10th of Tiſri, being the only Faſt mentioned among the Feaſts of the Lord, and and called a Sabbath of Sabbaths, Lev. chap. 16. and chap. 21. and being by all Writers called the Feaſt of expiation. And this is alſo evident from the word νηστεία, for this being the only Faſt of God's appointment is by the Scriptures, Philo and Joſephus emphatically ſtiled the Faſt Day: thus, ſailing was dangerous, ſaith St. Paul, becauſe the Faſt was paſt, Acts 27. 9. for on the 10th Day of the ſeventh Month we faſt till eventide, ſaith (a) Joſephus and on the 15th Day of the ſaid Month τρέπει ὁ καιρὸς εἰς τὸ χειμέριον ὥραν, begins the Winter. Ἡ λεγομένη νηστεία the Day by us called a Faſt is reverenced every where, ſaith (*) Philo. This, ſaith (b) Joſephus, is the Day ἣν ἰουδαῖοι νηστείαν ἄγουσιν, on which the Jews faſt; which had they then obſerved any other annual, and ſtated Faſts, could have been no Character of time, as in Joſephus and St. Paul it is. This is yet farther evident from what Joſephus ſaith in the ſame place, viz. that the City was taken, ἐπὶ ὀλυμπιάδος τῆς γ μηνὶ, in the 3d Month of the 185th Olympiad. Now the Years of the Olympiads beginning in July, the 3d Month of any Year of an Olympiad muſt anſwer to the Julian September. Mr. Whiſton, indeed will not allow that ancient Writers uſe to cite the Months of an Olympiad, but he may be convinced of his miſtake in this matter, from the Teſtimony of (c) Diogenes Laertius, who ſaith, that Socrates was born in the 4th Year of the 77th Olympiad Θαργηλιῶνος ἕκτῃ, on the 6th of Thargelion, that (d) Plato was born in the 88th Olympiad Θαργηλιῶνος ἑβδόμῃ, on the 7th of Thargelion, and that (e) Epicurus was born in the 3d Year of the 109th Olympiad on the 7th of Gamelion.

Mr. Wh. to avoid this, ſaith the City was taken on the Day of a ſolemn Faſt in the 23d of the 3d Month Sivan, kept for the Defection and Idolatry of Jeroboam. But (1*ſt*.) Joſephus doth not ſay it was taken in a Faſt, on the 3d Jewiſh Month, but ὀλυμπιάδος τῆς γ μηνὶ on the 3d Month of the 185th Olympiad, which anſwers to September, and then by way of appoſition τῇ ἑορτῇ τῆς νηστείας at the Feaſt of the Faſt, which plainly fixes the taking of it to the 10th of September. (2*dly*,) As Jeroboam celebrated a Feaſt in the 8th Month which he deviſed of his own Head. ſo Mr. Wh. hath deviſed a Faſt of his own Head in the Month Sivan, not mentioned by Joſephus, nor any Jewiſh Writer, of or near thoſe times, nor extant in (f) Buxtorf's Hiſtory of their Feaſts and Faſts, but a pure product of that famous Chronicle Megillah Taanith, of which I have already given an account. (3*dly*,) When Herod began to batter the Wall it was then Summer, ſaith (g) Joſephus, and ſo he had no hinderance from the Weather; now there being three Summer Months, let us take the middle of them; July the 15th, the firſt Wall, ſaith (h) Joſephus, was taken after forty Days, i. e. Auguſt the 25th; the ſecond, fifteen Days after that, i. e. on the 10th of September; ergo, not on the Month Sivan, when Summer was but juſt begun. (4*thly*,) Joſephus adds, (i) that Herod began the Siege λήξαντος τοῦ χειμῶνος when Winter was over, ſuppoſe about the midſt of March, that he went ſoon back to Samaria, and married the Daughter of Ariſtobulus, that then he gathers a greater Army, and Soſius comes to him with Auxiliaries, and then he places his Camp near the North Wall, let all this be done by the 10th of April; and then he adds, that after this the Party of Antigonus endured the Siege πέντε μησὶ five Months, i. e. till the 10th of September; how therefore is it poſſible that the City ſhould be taken in the Month Sivan or the 3d Month. Nor was Antigonus ſlain till about a Month or more after the City was taken. For (k) Joſephus informs us, that he was afterwards carried by Soſius to Antioch, where Anthony then was, and that he kept him there intending to reſerve him to his Triumph at Rome; but when he heard that the Jews had ſo great Favour for him, and ſo great Hatred to Herod, that they would not be prevailed upon by torments to own him as their King, he beheaded him at Antioch. Antigonus therefore in all probability, could not be ſlain till about the 10th or 15th of October, and ſo Herod's 18th Year could not begin till that time. And ſo if Herod began his Project of building the Temple, on the very 1*ſt* Day of his 18th Year, which yet is both uncertain and improbable, he could not begin it at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, that being fixed to the 15th Day of September.

2*dly*, (l) Joſephus doth not ſay that Herod began to build the Temple in his 18th Year, but only that ὑπεθάλετο he caſt in his mind to do ſo, and when he had propoſed this to the Rulers of the Jews, he engages not to attempt the Work, till he had prepared all the Materials for it, nor doth he ſay how long he was preparing theſe Materials, tho' ſaith Caſaubon, all Men will think it reaſonable to allow him at leaſt a Year for that; and Biſhop Uſher ſaith, they were only provided in two Years ſpace. So that Herod

Herod could not begin the Work till the middle of his 19th Year (a) Now admit the Phanſie that the ναὸς was firſt built in eighteen Months, he could not finiſh the building of it till his 21*ſt* Year from Antigonus, from thence he reigned only thirteen Years; now thirteen and twenty nine will never make forty ſix Years.

But, 3*dly*, That which entirely confoundeth this account is this Conſideration, that when Herod began to build, he firſt built the ἱερὸν, i. e. the Court of the Gentiles, and Lay Jews, and the building of this, ſaith Joſephus, took up eight Years, abſolutoque octo Annis reliquo edificio, tandem etiam Templum ipſum ſacerdotum operâ ſeſquianno perfecit, and having finiſhed that in eight Years, he afterwards by the aſſiſtance of the Prieſts, built the ναὸς or the inward Temple, in a Year and half more; ſo that according to Joſephus, the ναὸς was not built till the 20th of Herod; i. e. but ſix Years before his Death, now ſix, and twenty nine make only thirty five Years.

Mr. Whiſton indeed ſaith that I perplex the matter, when I place the building of the ἱερὸν before the ναὸς, i. e. the outward before the inner Temple. But this I do with good Authority, and with better reaſon; for Joſephus ſaith the ἱερὸν was finiſhed in eight Years, and then follow theſe words (b) τῷ δὲ ναῷ ἀπὸ τῶ ἱερέων οἰκοδομηθέντι ἐνιαυτῷ καὶ μησὶν ϛ ἅπας ὁ λαὸς ἐπληρώθη χαρᾶς, καὶ τῷ τάχος ᾠρῶτον τῷ θεῷ τὰς εὐχαριστίας ἐποιοῦντο, then the Temple being built by the Prieſts in a Year and ſix Months, all the People returned thanks to God, and celebrated the encænia. Who ſees not now that the Work done about the ναὸς was done laſt of all, and that inſtantly thereupon follow the encænia for the dedication of the whole? And this is alſo ſuitable to reaſon, for the Jews fearing that Herod would not be able to perform his promiſe, would ſurely keep that part of the Temple on which their daily Sacrifices, and the Service of the great Day of expiation depended, ſtanding, till they ſaw by what he had done about the other Temple, that he was likely to accompliſh his undertaking, and would not have ſuffered themſelves to be deprived of the benefit of thoſe Sacrifices for nine Years and a half, as they muſt have done, if either the Temple of the Prieſts had not been ſtanding, or not dedicated till that time. Wherefore for the right ſtating of this matter, let it be noted,

1*ſt*, That whether this Computation of the Jews be true or falſe, neither Chriſt, nor the Evangeliſt are concerned in the matter, ſeeing St. John only relates what the Jews ſaid to Chriſt, and if they ſaid any thing that was not true, he who relateth truly what they ſaid, can loſe no Credit by it. Note,

2*dly*, The Opinion of them who ſay the ſecond Temple was (including the times of the interruption to its compleat finiſhing) forty ſix Years in building, tho' it may not be true, as Druſius thinks it was, yet was it ſo as here he ſaith, ex opinione vulgi & ſapientum, according both to the Opinion of their Wiſe-men, and the Common People; and it is certain from (c) Joſephus, that they had not compleatly finiſhed it till long after; for he having told us that the Foundation of it being laid in the cloſe of the Reign of Cyrus, it was interrupted nine Years till the time of Darius, that (d) Ezra finiſhed the Temple for Service in the ninth Year of Darius, in whoſe ſecond Year they began again to build; adds, (e) That in the twenty fifth of Xerxes (i. e. Artaxerxes) Nehemias was ſent with his Commiſſion to repair the Walls of Jeruſalem, and τὸ λειπόμενον τῆ ἱερᾶ τελειῶσαι, to finiſh the Remainder of the Temple, the Court of the Sanctuary being not yet built. Neh. 2. 8. And ſeeing they conſtantly called the Temple built by Zorobabel, and reſtored by Herod, the ſecond Temple, till the Deſtruction of it by Titus, and of neceſſity it muſt be ſo in ſome true ſenſe, that the Propheſie of Haggai concerning Chriſt's coming to that very Temple might be fulfilled. They who always called this the ſecond Temple built by Zorobabel, why might they not ſay of that, according to their received Computation, forty ſix Years was this Temple in building.

But, 3*dly*, The Opinion of Ludovicus Capellus, Dr. Allix, and others who underſtand this of the Temple of Herod, is exact, plain, and evident; for if you begin the time of the building in the eighteenth of Herod, when he began to ſet about it, and employ'd a thouſand Carts to bring the Materials, and provided the moſt skilful Artificers for that Work, from that time to his Death is exactly ſixteen Years. This was ſaid to Chriſt in the thirtieth Year of his Age, at the firſt Paſſover after his Baptiſm. Now thirty and ſixteen make forty ſix Years.

Object. If it be here objected that Joſephus informs us that Herod's Temple was finiſhed in nine Years and an half,

Anſw. The Anſwer is, that it was then finiſhed as to Uſe; but ſaith Capellus, Planum eſt ex eodem ſemper aliquid additum & extructum ab eo tempore fuiſſe in illo Templo, It is plain from the ſame Joſephus that from that time there was always ſomething added to, or new built in the Temple, even till the time of Agrippa Junior, i. e. about the ſpace of ſixty Years. Biſhop Uſher adds, that all Herod's rod's Wealth was not sufficient for the building, but that was continued still by the Gifts consecrated to God: And this is confirmed by the saying of (a) Josephus, That all the holy Treasures, and the Tributes sent from all Parts of the World were spent in building and adorning the Temple. And that the abundance of Money, and the largesses of the People were beyond Expression, and so τὸ μηδὲ ἐλπισθὲν ἔχειν πέρας ἐπιμονῇ χρόνοις λῦσαι ἀνύσιμον, that which Men thought would never be finished (the Attempt of (b) Herod being τῷ μὴ τῆ ἐλπίδι ἄπιστον, beyond all Mens Hopes) was thro' patience, and length of time, expedited. Yea, (c) he farther saith, in the time of Florus, or the tenth of Nero, τότε τὸ ἱερὸν τελέλεσται. then was the Temple finished.

(9) V. 6. That which is born of the Flesh is Flesh. To the Note there add] Hence some infer that Man, in his natural Estate can do nothing but what is carnal, and therefore sinful, and only can begin to do what is truly good when he is born again of the Spirit: Whereas,

1*st*, This exposition renders it impossible for a man to do any thing towards his own Conversion, and so renders all God's Commands and Exhortations to the wicked to turn themselves from their Iniquity, all his Promises of Pardon to them that do so, and all his Threats of Death if they neglect to do so, and all his Complaints against them that they would not do so, vain and absurd: And as Cyril of Alexandria saith; ῥαψῳδήμα κενὸν, a vain Rhapsody, they being then only Commands and Exhortations to others to perform that which, if it ever be done, he must do himself.

2*dly*, This Expositon makes the word Flesh and Fleshly Birth, to signify one corrupted by his fleshly Appetite, and so led, and governed by the motions of the Flesh; whereas (d) Tolet well observes, that to be born of the Flesh here only signifies that natural Generation by which a Man is born into the World of the will of the Flesh, this being the only Birth Nicodemus spake of as of a thing incredible; because then a Man must enter twice into his Mother's Womb. This therefore is the plain meaning of our Lord, that besides that natural Birth by which we receive only our Flesh and Body from our Parents, there is need of a Spiritual Birth to fit us for the Kingdom of God; but he saith nothing of any necessity lying upon us, till we are thus born again, to do only evil, or of our Incapacity to do any thing which may contribute to this new Birth.

V. 35. Say you not there be yet four (10) Months of the Harvest &c. The sense of these words seemeth to run thus; In your common harvest you usually say after your Seed is sown, four Months hence will come the harvest, or the time when you shall reap the Fruit of the Seed sown; but in this spiritual harvest it is otherwise, for the seed of the Word sown in the heart of the Woman of Samaria in your absence, hath made the Samaritans already ripe for the harvest.

I shall not here consider all his Evasions, but observe only that he is obliged from the force of those Words, All that are in the Graves shall come forth, to own that all Mankind shall arise, but yet he will not own that the Distribution of them who thus come forth into them that have done good, and into them that have done evil, contains all, but some of them only, viz. such, as have had the Gospel made known to them; which is as great an Instance of a Man who will say any thing σοφίσασθαι ἐθέλει to serve his Hypothesis as can be offered; for what Instance can be given thro' the Scripture of an universal Proposition distributed into two parts, in which the opposite Members do not contain the whole general? What is this in effect, but to allow the truth of this general Proposition, Omne Animal est sensibile, every living Creature is sensible? And yet to deny the truth of this Distribution, τῶν ζώων ἀισθητῶν τὰ μὲν λογικὰ τὰ δὲ ἄλογα, that of sensible Creatures, some are rational, some irrational; let us see the absurdity of it in some Scripture Instances, Matth. 25. 32. The Son of Man shall sit on the Throne of his

(12) V. 40. It is the Will of him that sent me, that every one that believeth in me should not perish, but have everlasting Life.] Some hence infer, that every true Believer must persevere unto the end, since otherwise he cannot have this Life eternal.

But to this, and to all other Promises and Declarations of a like Nature, which engage that God will give eternal Life to the Believer, I answer, that nothing is more evident, than that they can only be understood of such a Faith, as doth endure to the end, Matth. 24. 13. and so includeth Perseverance in it; for either these Promises are made to temporary Believers, and so to those which after fall away, which is contrary to the Tenor of the Scripture, and makes the Promises of eternal Life, and the Threats of Perdition belong to the same Persons, viz. to them who having lived by Faith draw back, Heb. 10. 38, 39. or else they depend on this Condition, that such Men do continue in the Faith, according to those express words, He hath reconciled us to God if we continue in the Faith, rooted and grounded, and be not drawn away from the hope of the Gospel, Col. 1. 21, 23. we are Christ's Household, if we hold our confidence and rejoycing of hope firm to the end, Heb. 3. 6. & v. 14. We are made Partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our Confidence firm to the end; and then it is demonstratively certain, that Perseverance is included in them, and made the Condition on which the Blessing promised doth depend, and therefore cannot be proved from them.

(13) V. 45. It is written ἐν τοῖς προφήταις, in the Prophets,] viz. expressly, Isaiah 54. 13. and in effect, Jer. 31. 33, 34. in these words, I will put my Law in their Hearts, and write it in their inward Parts, and they shall not teach every Man his Neighbour, saying, know the Lord, for they shall all know me from the greatest unto the least.

(15) V. 70. Οὐκ ἐγὼ ὑμᾶς τοὺς δώδεκα ἐξελεξάμην, Have I not chosen you Twelve, and one of you is a Devil?] Hence it appears, saith Theophylact, that ἡ ἐκλογὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ οὐ βιάζεται τὴν προαίρεσιν ἡμῶν, God's Election lays no Force upon the Will of Man, but leaves him ἐθελοθρέπτον ζῶον, one that may turn to good or evil as he will.

CHAP. VII.

(16) V. 5. Neither did his Brethren believe in him, to the Note there add,] Yet that afterwards they believed we learn from Act. 1. 14. where they are numbered among those who cleaved to the Apostles.

(17) V. 24. Judge not according to appearance, &c. to the Note there add,] For to exempt Moses from Blame, for commanding that Work to be done on that Day which is more laborious, and less beneficial, out of respect to him; and to condemn me, a greater Prophet, for doing with a word what is more beneficial on that Day, out of disrespect to me, is manifestly to judge with respect to Persons; so Theophylact.

CHAP. VIII.

(18) V. 25. To the Note here add,] So that I would render the whole thus; Sum id quod locutus sum vobis prius, I am what I told you before I was; it being very common, in answer to a Question, to omit sum id, or somewhat of like import; so σὺ εἶπας, Matth. 26. 25. 64. σὺ λέγεις, Chap. 27. 11. i. e. Sum id quod dicis, or dicis quod res est, it is as you say, or I am as you say.

(19) V. 35. The Son abideth ever,] i. e. I, who am the Son of God, abide for ever, and so am able for ever to confer this Freedom from Sin of which I speak; for this Sense the following words (if the Son therefore make you free, &c.) fairly plead for, it being reasonable to conceive that the Son, in this Verse, should bear the same Sense with the Son in the following words, which give the reason of what is here said.

CHAP. IX.

(20) V. 39. That they who see not might see, &c. To the Note there add,] Ἵνα τὰ ἔθνη οἱ μὴ βλέποντες βλέψωσι, καὶ οἱ βλέποντες Ισραηλιτυφλοὶ γενώνται, that the Gentiles, saith (a) Origen, who are now blind may see, and Israel

rael who now ſees may be made blind, thro' their Infidelity; ſo alſo Cyril, and St. Chryſoſtom, referring us to the words of St. Paul, who ſaith, That Blindneſs, in part, had happened to the Jews, till the Fullneſs of the Gentiles ſhould come in, Rom. 11. 25. (and this according to the Prediction of the Pſalmiſt, v. 9. & 10.) and who ſaith of the converted Gentiles, ye were ſometimes Darkneſs, but now are the Light in the Lord, Eph. 5. 8; ſee Note on Rom. 13. 12.

CHAP. X.

(21) V. 15. Becauſe it is ſaid here, that Chriſt laid down his Life for his Sheep, elſewhere that he doth it for his Friends, John 15. 13, 14. and for his Church, Eph. 2. 26; and all are not his Sheep, his Friends, or his Church; hence ſome conclude, that Chriſt did not die for all.

Anſw. Tho' it be certain, from the places cited in the Note there that Chriſt died intentionally for all, i.e. deſigning the Benefits of his ſalutary Paſſion for them, upon their Performance of the Conditions of the new Covenant eſtabliſhed in his Blood, according to thoſe plain words of the Apoſtle, 2 Cor. 5. 15. He died for all, that they who live might not live unto themſelves, but unto him who died for them; and ſo none periſh, becauſe he died not for them, but becauſe they do not live to him who died for them; yet is it alſo true, that he eventually is only the Saviour of his Body, and died only for his Sheep, and Friends, becauſe they only do perform the Conditions of the New Covenant, and therefore to them only can this righteous Judge aſſign, at laſt, the Bleſſings promiſed in that Covenant.

2*dly*, In none of theſe places is it ſaid, that Chriſt died only for his Sheep, for his Church, or for his Friends, and therefore none of them ſay any thing, which contradicts the more general extent of Chriſt's Redemption, this Argument may therefore be retorted thus; He that died for his Friends, and for his Enemies, died for all, but Chriſt died for his Friends, and for his Enemies, for when we were Enemies, Chriſt died for us, Rom. 5. 8. Again, he that died for the Church of God, and for the Unrighteous, that he might bring them to the Church of God, died for all; but Chriſt died for both, for he ſuffered for us, the Juſt for the Unjuſt, that he might bring us to God, 1 Pet. 3. 18. Laſtly, He that died for his Sheep that heard his Voice, and for the loſt Sheep that did not hearken to his Voice, died for all; but Chriſt died for his Sheep that heard his Voice, as the Text ſaith here, and for his loſt Sheep, For became to ſeek, and to ſave, that which was loſt, even the loſt Sheep of the Houſe of Iſrael, Matth. 18. 11, 12. 10. 6, therefore he died for all.

CHAP. XIII.

V. 2. To the Note here, after Mark 14. (22) 20, add] Againſt what is here ſaid, it may be objected that Chriſt here ſaith, v. 38. The Cock ſhall not crow before thou haſt denied me thrice; now this ſeems to have been ſaid at Chriſt's laſt Paſſover. To this I anſwer, that when Chriſt ſaid this to Peter elſewhere, he always adds the Circumſtance of time, either ἐν ταύτῃ τῇ νυκτὶ, the Cock ſhall not crow this Night, Matth. 26. 34. Mark 14. 30. or σήμερον, this Day, Luke 22. 34. whereas here no Circumſtance of time is added, which makes it probable, the words here were not ſpoken at the ſame time.

2*dly*, The words here were ſpoken upon occaſion of St. Peter's Anſwer to theſe words of Chriſt, Whither I go thou canſt not follow me now, v. 36. but the like words in St. Matthew, and St. Mark, were ſpoken upon occaſion of our Lord's Prediction, that they ſhould all be ſcandalized at him that Night, Matth. 26. 31. Mark 14. 27. and in St. Luke, upon occaſion of Chriſt's ſaying to Peter in particular, Satan hath deſired to winnow thee, Luke 22. 31, 32. which makes it farther probable, that theſe words here were ſpoken at a different time.

V. 18. Hath lift up τὴν πτέρναν αὐτοῦ, his (23) Heel againſt me. To the Note here add,] Theophylact here notes, that this is a Metaphor taken ἀπὸ τῶν παλαιόντων, from Wreſtlers, others ſay from Racers, who following others endeavour to trip up their Heels, and throw them down; ſo Eſau ſaid of Jacob, who had his Name from the Word Akab here uſed, is he not rightly called Jacob, ἐπτέρνικε γάρ με, for he hath trip'd up my Heels, or overthrown me, twice, Gen. 27. 36. & Jer. 9. 4. Every Brother will ſupplant, πτέρνῃ πτερνιεῖ, he with his Heel will trip up his Brother's Heels.

CHAP. XIV.

V. 20. I am in the Father, and the Father (24) in me, and I in you; to the Note here add,] Theophylact obſerves, that we muſt not ſay, that this is ſo in the ſame manner; for Chriſt is in the Father, ὡς ὁμοούσιος, as being of one Subſtance with him, but in the Apoſtles only, ὡς βοηθὸς καὶ συνεργὸς, as an helper and co-worker with them; but perhaps the Apoſtles underſtood Chriſt thus; I as a Prophet work Miracles by the Spirit of my Father dwelling in me, Matth. 12. 28. and you ſhall work yours, mentioned v. 12. by my Spirit abiding with you, v. 16.

CHAP. XV.

(25) V. 13. Μείζονα ταύτης ἀγάπην οὐδεὶς ἔχει ἵνα, Greater Love than this hath no Man than that one should lay down his Life for his Friend.] Here it is observable, that ἵνα after μείζονα signifies ἢ ἵνα quam ut; so in the third Epistle of St. John, v. 4. μειζότερον τούτης οὐκ ἔχω χαρὰν ἵνα; I have no greater Joy than that I may hear my Children walking in the Truth.

(26) V. 16. To the Note there add,] It follows, that you should go and bring forth Fruit, &c. ἵνα ὅ τι ἂν αἰτήσητε, that whatsoever ye shall ask the Father, in my Name, he may give it you. I have observed Note on v. 25. that there is often somewhat deficient after ἵνα; so 1 Cor. 1. 31. ἵνα (sub. γένηται) that (it may be) as it is written; and so it seems to be here, the full Sense being either that, being thus imployed, or being thus fruitful, ye may ask what ye will.

CHAP. XVI.

(27) V. 25. These things I have spoken to you ἐν παροιμίαις in Parables,] παροιμία ὅτι λόγῳ ὠφελίμῳ μετ' ὀπτρύψεως μελέτας ἐκδεδόμενον, A Proverb, saith St. Basil, is a profitable Speech uttered with some Obscurity, and so it is here, as is apparent from the Answer of the Apostles, v. 29. Lo now speakest thou plainly, and speakest no Proverb; and from the following words in the same Verse, hereafter I shall no more speak to you in Proverbs, but shall shew you plainly (the Will) of my Father.

CHAP. XVII.

V. 3. To the Note after Psalm 81. 9, add,] See also the Word Solus, so used by Irenæus often, as when he saith of the Maker of the World, that he is (a) Solus Deus, and Solus Dominus, and Solus Conditor, and Solus Pater, and Solus continens omnia, and yet puts into the Symbol of Faith owned by all Christians, that Christ (b) is ὁ κύριος ἡμῶν καὶ θεός. See the Note on 1 Cor. 8. 3.

(28) V. 5. Glorifie me with the Glory which I had with thee, &c. after the word made Flesh add,] And therefore Theophylact gives the Sense thus, τὴν ἀνθρωπίνην μου φύσιν ἄγαγε εἰς τὴν δόξαν ἣν εἶχον πρός σοὶ ἐγὼ ὁ λόγος, bring my humane Nature into a Participation of the Glory which I the λόγος had with thee before the beginning of the World.

(29) V. 11. Οὓς δέδωκάς μοι; See Examen Millii. in locum.

V. 21. Ἵνα πάντες ἓν ὦσι, that all may be one.] (30) Origen here saith the Apostles and the Prophets shall then know the Father, ὅταν γένωνται ἓν ὡς ὁ υἱὸς καὶ πατήρ ἐν ἐσμεν, when they are become one as the Son, and the Father are one, which he thus explains in his Commentary on these words, Rom. 5. 5. The Love of God is shed abroad in our Hearts, by the Spirit that he hath given us; ut per istud spiritus sancti donum compleatur ille sermo quem Dominus dixit, sicut tu pater in me, & ego in te, & isti in nobis unum sint, divinæ scilicet naturæ participes effecti in abundantia charitatis per Spiritum Sanctum ministratæ, That by this Gift might be fulfilled that saying of the Lord, that they may be one in us, as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, being made Partakers of the Divine Nature, in the abundance of Love ministred to them by the Holy Spirit: And in this Sense the Fathers often say, that at the Resurrection we shall be θεοποιούμενοι, as being then compleatly made Partakers of the Divine Nature, by the Spirit of God, then more fully dwelling in us, and so God will be all in all in his glorified Saints.

CHAP. XVIII.

V. 23. To the Note here add.] It is (31) the Observation of Suidas and Phavorinus, that δέρω signifies, τὸ ἐκδέρω, to excoriate, δαίρω ἢ τὸ τύπτω, but δαίρω to smite; but it is certain that δέρω bears the Sense of smiting in the New Testament; thus ἀέρα δέρων is smiting of the Air, 1 Cor. 9. 26. εἰς πρόσωπον δέρειν, to smite on the Face, 2 Cor. 11 20. see Mark 12. 3. Acts 16. 37. and also in profane Authors, so δέρεσθαι καὶ δέρειν δι' ἡμέρας, is daily to beat, or to be beaten; Scholiast Aristoph. in Vespis, p. 463. F. See Examen Millii.

CHAP. XX.

V. 19. After these words, solid Body, (32) add. And to this agree those words of Cyril of Alexandria, ἀδύνατον σῶμα διὰ σώματος διήκειν μὴ τέμνον καὶ τεμνόμενον, it is impossible that one Body should go thro' another without cutting it, or being cut.

CHAP. XXI.

V. 22. To the Note there add.] Won- (33) derful here are the words of Theophylact, for he not only saith, that some held, that John then lived, and was to do so till the coming of Antichrist, when he, with Elias was to preach Christ, and to be slain by Antichriſt, but adds this as the Import of Chriſt's words, what if I will that he tarry till I come, that he ſhould remain in Galilee till the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem; as (ſaith he) John did till the coming of Veſpaſian, and only departed when Jeruſalem was to be taken.

Additional Annotations to the Acts of the Holy Apoſtles.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 1. Ὧν ἤρξατο which Jeſus began to do,] That is which Jeſus did, for the Goſpel of St. Luke contains what was done by Chriſt from the beginning of his Miniſtry to his Aſſumption; and that ἄρχομαι is frequently an expletive, See Matth. 16. 22. Mark 2. 23. Luke 15. 24. Acts 11. 15.

(2) V. 12. Note alſo that the Day of Chriſt's Aſcenſion ſeems not ſetled in the Church then, or that Chryſoſtome thought not of it when he here ſaid, That becauſe Chriſt's Aſcenſion was on the Sabbath-Day, therefore St. Luke informs us, that the way the Diſciples went out with him, exceeded not a Sabbath-Day's Journey; Hom. 3. in Acts 3. 12.

CHAP. II.

(3) V. 31. Οὐ κατελείφθη ἡ ψυχὴ αὐτοῦ εἰς Ἅιδου.] Here Dr. Mills is confident that the words ἡ ψυχὴ αὐτοῦ, were inſerted from v. 26. becauſe they are wanting in Irenæus, l. 3. c. 12. p. 229. in the Vulg. Syr. & Cod. Alex. but as theſe words are owned by the Arab. Chryſoſtome, and Oecumenius in locum, and by (a) Origen, in his Commentary on the Kings, where he ſays, that they are read in the Pſalms, and are interpreted in the Acts of the Apoſtles; ſo is it evident from the very words that they ought to be retained, for the words of the Pſalmiſt being theſe, ὅτι οὐκ ἐγκαταλείψεις τὴν ψυχήν μου εἰς Ἅιδου, the Apoſtle here ſaying that David ſpake this of the Reſurrection, ought to uſe the words that David ſpake: And, 2dly, This is farther evident from the words following, οὐδὲ σὰρξ αὐτοῦ, nor did his Fleſh ſee Corruption, they having a plain Relation to ἡ ψυχὴ αὐτοῦ going before.

CHAP. V.

(4) V. 34. After theſe words, among the People, add,] The Right Reverend Biſhop Pearſon very probably conjectures, that the Sadducees, after our Lord's Reſurrection, being the greateſt Enemies to the Apoſtles; they being grieved that they preached through Chriſt the Reſurrection from the Dead, Acts 4. 2. 5. 17. Gamaliel being a Phariſee, and ſo a ſtiff Aſſertor of the Reſurrection, did therefore give his Advice for the Diſmiſſion of the Apoſtles; for we find the Phariſees, almoſt in the ſame words, pleading for St. Paul, preaching the ſame Doctrine, viz. that they ought not to moleſt him, leſt they ſhould be found θεομάχοι, Fighters againſt God, Acts 23. 9.

CHAP. VII.

(5) V. 6. After theſe words, The evil Treatment of thy Seed, add,] Some, I know, begin the Computation of the 430 Years from the firſt Call of Abraham from Ur of the Chaldees; but ſince the Holy Scripture hath given us no Intimation of the Age of Abraham, when he went from Ur of the Chaldees to Charran, nor of the time of his ſtay there, this Computation is upon both theſe accounts precarious; and the Scriptures being ſo expreſs in ſaying, Abraham was ſeventy five Years old when he left Charran to go into Canaan the Land of Promiſe, if the Holy Ghoſt deſigned to give us any Chronological account of theſe Matters, it ſeems more naturally to direct us to the time aſſigned by theſe Years, than to the time of which it hath not given us any Character at all: And tho' the Scripture doth not tell us the exact time when Iſaac was weaned; yet ſince it tells us the Child was grown up, or increaſed, Gen. 21. 8. and was playing with Iſhmael, v. 9. hence it is probable, that the Tradition of the Jews, mentioned by Jerome, that Iſaac was five Years old when he was weaned, may be true.

(6) V. 25. After theſe words, to be their Deliverer, add,] For to be δυνατὸς ἐν λόγοις, may well ſignifie one that is endued with the Spirit of Prophecy, λόγῳ σοφίας καὶ γνώσεως, being frequently uſed to ſignifie ſome extraordinary Knowledge and Wiſdom, and the Perſon gifted with them, being by (b) Clemens, Rom. ſtiled ὁ δυνατὸς γνῶσιν ἐξειπεῖν a Man a Man able to declare this Knowledge, and then δύνατος ἐν ἔργοις will signifie a Man of extraordinary, and miraculous Performances.

(7) V. 40. Ὁ γὰρ Μωσῆς οὗτος οὐκ οἶδαμεν; as for this Moses.] This Construction occurs often both in the Old and New Testament, so Psalm 11. 4. Jehovah in the Heavens is his Throne, Κύριος ἐν οὐρανῷ ὁ θρόνος αὐτοῦ· Ixx. Ps. 18. 30. ὁ θεός μου ἄμωμος ἡ ὁδὸς αὐτοῦ, as for God, his way is perfect, Ps. 104. 17. The Stork, the Firtrees are his House. See Eccl. 2. 14. Hos. 12. 2. Nah. 1. 3. So Matt. 21. 12. λίθον ὃν ἀπεδοκίμασε οὗτος, as for the Stone which the Builders refused, it is become the head corner Stone; See also Rev. 2. 26. and the Note on 1 John 2. 27. καὶ ὑμεῖς τὸ χρίσμα ὃ ἐλάβετε ἀπ' αὐτοῦ, &c.

V. 42. Then God gave them up to worship the Host of Heaven.] That is, from their worshipping him in Images against his Command, he suffered them to proceed to the Worship of the Creature instead of the Creator. See the Note on Rom. 1. 21, 24. The Invention of Idols (i. e. Images) saith the Book of Wisdom, was the beginning of Fornication, that is Idolatry. See the Note on John viii. 41. and therefore according to the Fathers, God is said to have given this Host of Heaven εἰς θρησκείαν, Deut. 4. 19. See Drusius in Locum & προσκυνεῖν ὡς θεούς, Justin M. Dial. p. 274. Clemens Alex. Strom. 6. p. 619. B. because he suffered them to proceed to that more gross Idolatry in Punishment of their Worship of him by Images: And to this alludes that of the Septuagint. Hos. 13. 4. God gave not the Host of Heaven προδίδως ὀπίσω αὐτῶν, to go after them, but sent his Prophets to forbid it, which he did not to the Heathen World.

CHAP. VIII.

(8) V. 1. They were all scattered abroad πλὴν τῶν Ἀποστόλων, except the Apostles.] It is a very antient Tradition mentioned by (a) Clemens of Alexandria that our Lord assigned twelve years after his Ascension, for the Conversion of the unbelieving Jews in Judea, lest any of them should say οὐκ ἠκούσαμεν, we have not heard; saying to his Apostles μετὰ δώδεκα ἔτη ἐξέλθετε εἰς τὸν κόσμον, go ye out into the World after twelve years; and (b) Apollonius who flourished at the same time, speaks of this, ὡς ἐκ παραδόσεως, as delivered by Tradition, that our Lord commanded his Apostles ὅτι δώδεκα ἔτεσι μὴ χωρισθῆναι τὴν Ἱερουσαλήμ, not to recede from Jerusalem by the space of twelve years. Now if there be any truth in this tradition, it shews the Reason why the Apostles continued at Jerusalem when the rest of the Disciples were scattered abroad.

V. 9. After these Words Simon the Holy God, add,] However, seeing both Irenæus and Theodoret in the places mentioned, say expressly, Ἰουδαίοις μὲν ὡς υἱὸν φανῆναι πατρὸς δὲ Σαμαρείτας ὡς πατέρα καταλελυθέναι, ἐν δὲ τοῖς ἄλλοις ἔθνεσιν ὡς πνεῦμα ἅγιον ἐπιφοιτῆσαι, that Simon pretended to appear to the Jews as the Son, to have descended to the Samaritans as the Father, and to other Nations as the Holy Ghost: this seems to shew that the Doctrine of the blessed Trinity was embraced by all Christians from the beginning; as St. Basil proves from the Testimonies of the Fathers from the beginning, and from these Words of Clemens Rom. Ζῇ Θεὸς καὶ ὁ κύριος Ἰησοῦς Χριστὸς, καὶ τὸ πνεῦμα ἅγιον· Basil. de Spiritu Sancto, Tom. 2. c. 29. p. 357, 358. V. 12. Περὶ τοῦ ὀνόματος, concerning the Name of Jesus Christ;] That is, concerning the Power of that Name, when it was used by Believers to do the greatest Miracles; so ch. 3. 16. his Name, through Faith in his Name hath made this Man strong, that is, his Power, upon the Invocation of his Name with Faith, hath done it: So the Sadducees enquire of the Apostles ch. 4. 7. by what Name have ye done this? and they answer, v. 10. by the Name, that is the Power, of Jesus; and afterwards they pray v. 30. that Signs and Wonders may be done by his Name, i. e. by using of his Name with Faith, and Invocation of him; the Power of Christ being then present with them that did so. V. 37. Εἰ πιστεύεις ἐξ ὅλης καρδίας ἔξεστι] This Clause by Dr. Mills is taken pro commate παρεμβεβλημένῳ a primis Christianismi sæculis injecto, ut & alia in libro Actorum Apostolicorum haud pauca, for a supposititious Clause put into the Text from the first Ages of the Church, as many other Clauses are in the Acts of the Apostles: And yet this Clause is found in the Vulgar, and Arabick Versions, in Irenæus l. 3. c. 12. l. 4. c. 40. in Tertullian de Baptismo c. 18. in Cyprian ad Quirinum l. 3. §. 33. in St. Jerom Tom. 4. fol. 46. lit. I. in St. Austin de Fide & Operibus c. 9. 12. and in Oecumenius in locum: And even the Doctor Proleg. p. 40. col. 2. owns it in contradiction to his former self; and hence we may judge of his other supposed Additions, so confidently and so frequently mentioned, in this and in the other sacred Books; which were there any truth in what he says, as blessed be God there seldom is, would render the whole Scriptures of the New Testament dubious and uncertain. See Examen Millii in c. 9. 5.—10. 6, 21.—11. 6, 12.—15. 20, 29.—16. 14.—18. 10, 17, 21, 27.—20. 24.—21. 3, 8, 13, 22. (11)

(12) V. 19. The Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip.] He did it, ſaith Oecumenius, becauſe the Eunuch had requeſted him to go with him into Ethiopia; whereas God had deſigned him to preach the Goſpel in other places of the World, and ſo by removing him thus from the Eunuch, prevented his compliance with him in that Requeſt.

CHAP. IX.

(13) V. 7. To the Note there add,] Oecumenius affords a third Solution viz. that they heard the Voice of Saul ſpeaking to Chriſt, ὑ ἄνωθεν, not the Voice of Chriſt ſpeaking to him.

(14) V. 17. To the Note there add] But yet by comparing theſe with the Words of the ſame Perſon, the God of our Fathers hath before choſen thee to ſee that juſt one, ch. 22. 14. as alſo from the enquiry of St. Paul, am I not an Apoſtle? have I not ſeen the Lord? 1 Cor. 9. 1. and from thoſe Words 1 Cor. 15. 8. laſt of all ὤφθη κἀμοὶ, he was ſeen of me alſo, it is certain that St. Paul ſaw the Perſon of Chriſt, and therefore highly probable that he did it at this time, or at his return to Jeruſalem, Acts 22. 17, 18.

CHAP. XI.

(15) V. 18. Τοῖς ἔθνεσιν ὁ Θεὸς μετάνοιαν ἔδωκεν, then hath God given to the Gentiles Repentance.] From theſe Words, and from Eph. 2. 8. Faith is the Gift of God, and from God's Promiſe to the Jews, I will give them an Heart to know me, Jer. 24. 7. I will give them a new Heart, Ezek. 11. 19.—36. 26. ſome argue thus, what God gives, we only receive from him, and ſo are only paſſive in it; but God gives Faith, Repentance and a new Heart; therefore we neither do, nor can do any thing towards the obtaining of them.

In anſwer therefore to theſe and all other Paſſages of a like Nature diſperſed through the Scriptures, I ſhall ſhew firſt that they muſt be conſiſtent with God's Commands, and exhortations directed to us to perform our Duty, with his Promiſes and Motives to excite us to the Performance of it, and with his Threats denounced againſt thoſe who do neglect it; and ſo muſt be ſo far from excluding, that they do rather preſuppoſe our Induſtry: as will be evident, Firſt, becauſe he promiſes thoſe very Bleſſings he is ſaid to give, to their Induſtry and Diligence who receive them, V. G. The Lord giveth Wiſdom, Eccl. 2. 16. but then he gives it only on this condition, that we ask it in Faith, James 1. 5. that we apply our Hearts to ſeek it, Eccl. 7. 25. ſo that to argue, as theſe Men do in this caſe, is plainly to contradict the Mind of the Holy Ghoſt, who for this very reaſon that God is the Giver of it, requires us to incline our Ears to Wiſdom, and to apply our Hearts to Underſtanding, to cry after Knowledge, and lift up our Voice for Underſtanding, to ſeek for her as for Silver, and to ſearch for her, as for hid Treaſure; ſuſpending our Enjoyment of her upon all this Diligence, by ſaying then ſhalt thou underſtand the Fear of the Lord, and find the Knowledge of God, for the Lord giveth Wiſdom, Prov. 2. 2.—6. Again, Faith cometh by hearing of the Word of God, Rom. 10. 17. this is the ordinary Inſtrument which works Repentance and Converſion in us; but that it may have this good Effect, we muſt hear it with good Attention, and improve the Knowledge received from it, for to him that thus hath, ſhall more be given, Mark 4. 24, 25. we muſt receive it into a good and honeſt Heart, and treaſure it up there, Luke 8. 15. for to them only it is given to know the Myſteries of Chriſt's Kingdom, who thus improve the Knowledge and Talents which they have received, Matt. 13. 11, 12.—25. 20.

2*dly*, When there is a want of theſe, or ſuch like Diſpoſitions, or ſome evil Diſpoſitions which prejudice us againſt, or indiſpoſe us for the Performance of thoſe Duties, then it is ſaid, that theſe things are not given: So Matt. 13. 12. to them it is not given, for this People's Heart is waxed groſs, and their Ears are dull of hearing, and their Eyes have they cloſed; leſt at any time they ſhould ſee with their Eyes, and hear with their Ears, and underſtand with their Hearts, and be converted, and I ſhould heal them. So Deut. 29. 3, 4. Ye have ſeen the Temptations, Signs and Miracles which God wrought for you, yet the Lord hath not given you an Heart to perceive, and Eyes to ſee, and Ears to hear unto this Day, which muſt not be imputed to any want of Power in theſe things to move them, much leſs to a want of the Divine Grace to work upon their Hearts by them, for then they could not be blamed for not having ſuch an Heart, but it was wholly to be aſcribed to their own Negligence and Perverſeneſs, which rendred them indiſpos'd to receive this Gift: as will be farther evident, Firſt, from God's vehement Deſire that ſuch good things might have been given them, which thro' their own Defect in the Performance of their Duty were not given them, as V. G. an Heart to fear God, ſo Deut. 5. 29. O that there were ſuch an Heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my Commandments always; which is an Expreſſion of a moſt earneſt Deſire that it might be ſo, and therefore an aſſurance that there was nothing wanting on God's part that was requisite to the obtaining such an Heart. 2*dly*, from his frequent Commands requiring men to believe, repent and turn to him, and to give their Hearts to seek him; so 1 Chron. 22. 19. and now δότε, give your Hearts and your Souls to seek the Lord: For seeing God neither commands what 'tis impossible for us to do, nor what he himself will do without us, these Commands must relate to something which is in our Power, because it is our Duty to perform: And 3*dly*, from the Commendations which the Scriptures give to them who believed, repented, and turned to the Lord; and the Reprehensions it gives, the Punishments it threatneth to them who neglect to do so; for seeing no Man can receive a Reward for what he had no hand in doing, or blame, and punishment for not performing what he could not be capable of doing, these Praises and Reprehensions shew that these things might, and ought to have been done by us.

Having premis'd this, I proceed.

2*dly*, To shew what are the various imports of this Phrase in Scripture, or how and why God may be said to give what by our Industry, or our Cooperation with his Grace, and Blessing upon our Endeavours, we enjoy.

First, Then when the thing said to be given is morally evil, that God who can neither himself do, nor incline others to do evil, can only be said to give it; because he gives those Faculties by which Men are enabled to do it, and suffers them without restraint to follow the Inclinations of their own wicked Hearts, so ἔδωκε ὁ Θεὸς, God gave a lying Spirit in the Mouth of Ahab's Prophets, 1 Kings 22. 23. so ἐδόθη τῷ θηρίῳ, it was given to the Beast to speak great things and Blasphemies, Rev. 13. 15. and v. 7. ἐδόθη, it was given to him to make War with the Saints, and overcome them; and that in this Sense God is said to give the Heathens up to a reprobate Mind, to the Lustings of their Hearts, and to dishonourable Affections, See the Note on Rom. 1. 28. that thus only he gave to the Jews a Spirit of slumber, See the Note on Rom 11. 8. 2*dly*, Sometimes to give doth only signifie to pronounce, teach, and prescribe, as when God saith thou shalt give the Blessing on Mount Gerizim, Deut. 11. 29. i. e. thou shalt pronounce it thence; thus is God said to give to the Jews his Sabbaths, viz. by commanding the Observation of them, Ex. 16. 29. and to give them those Laws, and Commandments he prescribed and taught them by his Servant Moses; and in this sence he is said to give Wisdom, because out of his Mouth proceedeth understanding, Prov. 2. 6. and so he saith give to the Wise, i. e. Instruction, and he will still be wiser, Prov. 9. 9. and in this sense also may he be said to give both Faith and Repentance; because he hath so frequently prescribed them, and taught us the Advantages we shall reap by them, the means to produce them, the Inducements to perform them, and the evils we shall suffer from the want of them.

3*dly*, I lay this down as a most certain rule, that where God is said to give us any thing which 'tis our Duty to obtain, the Exercise of that Faculty is still suppos'd which he hath given us already; and God is only said to give it by giving us those Faculties by which we are enabled to obtain it, and the means, and motives which are sufficient to excite those Faculties to the Performance of their proper Actions; I say the Exercise of these Faculties is always presupposed, and when God is said to give what we are to get, and what it is our Duty, and will be our Advantage to perform, the meaning only is, he puts it into our Power by the Exercise of those Faculties which he hath given us, by attendance to the Motives which he affords to excite us thus to exercise them, and by the Assistance he is ready still to give us upon our willingness to do what he requires to obtain those things. And

1*st*, Thus it is always with respect to natural Gifts; for thus God giveth Riches, Eccl. 5. 19. 6. 2. because he giveth Power to get Wealth, Deut. 8. 18. but yet it is the diligent hand, and the Blessing of God upon our Labours, that maketh rich, Prov. 10. 4, 22. he giveth us our daily Bread, yea he giveth Food to all Flesh, Ps. 136. 25. and yet we must eat it in the sweat of our Brows, and procure it with the Labour of our Hands, Gen. 3. 19. he giveth all things to all Men, Acts 17. 25. and to the Beasts their Food Ps. 147. 19. but then they must imploy those Faculties which God hath given them to get it: wherefore to argue thus, God giveth Faith and Repentance, and therefore we do nothing to obtain them, is as if I should say, God giveth us our daily Bread, therefore we must not Labour for it, God giveth Food to all Flesh, therefore they are not to seek after it.

2*dly*, Thus it is also with respect to Spirituals; thus, God giveth Wisdom, but it is to them who incline their Ears to the Instructions he hath given them to make them wise, and who apply their Hearts to Understanding. Thus the Jews argue that God had given Repentance to the Gentiles; because he had commissionated St. Peter to preach to them Peace through Jesus Christ, and Remission of Sins, and they upon his preaching had believed in Christ, and received the Holy Ghost: So also tho' Faith be an assent to a Divine Revelation, and Faith in Christ an Assent to the Revelation made in Scripture concerning him, and so must be an Act of the Understanding, requiring only the Evidence of of the Truth of that Revelation to produce it; yet is it ſaid to be the Gift of God, becauſe the Objects of that Faith are only made known to us by Divine Revelation; the Motives to embrace it are all contained in the ſame Revelation, and both are confirm'd, and made credible to us by the Teſtimony which God hath given to them, and ſo God hath done all that is requiſite on his Part to produce this Faith in us.

(16) V. 18. After Maccab 7. 27. add] And according to this Senſe the Word ſignifies ἡ τροφὴν φέρειν, to bring them Nouriſhment, as God did Manna every Day, or τρέφει δίκην φορεῖν, to bear them as a Nurſe or Mother doth her Child to give him ſuck, or bring him up; which in Euſtathius is τροφοφορεῖν, Oduſs. β. v. 131. But tho' this makes a very good Senſe, and very appoſite, it ſeems not neceſſary; for (c) Origen citing Deut. 1. 31. thrice reads ἐτροποφόρησεν, he bore their Manners, ſaying it ſignifies ἁρμόζεσθ σὲ πρὸς τὸ ἀδενὲς, to accomodate himſelf to the Infirmitics of his Children: Procopius on the words of Moſes ſaith that τὸ τροποφορεῖν, properly ſignifies ἡ παῖδα δυσκελαίνοντα τρέπειν κ μεταφέρειν διὰ συμπαιδιῶν κ συγκαταβάσεων, to carry about, and appeaſe a froward Child by pratling with and accomodating our ſelves to him, and in the Scoliaſt on Ariſtophanes τροποφορεῖν is τοῖς τρόποις ὑπερφέρειν, to bear with the Manners of another, and ſo the Word is uſed by Cicero &c. See Examen Milii in locum.

V. 20. After theſe Words, this Computation was not exact, add] (17) ſome here tell us that the true reading here is 350. years; but ſeeing I find not one Copy, Verſion, or Father to countenance that Reading, I think it dangerous to admit of that Solution of this Difficulty; eſpecially if we conſider that St, Luke continually, both in his Goſpel and in the Acts, follows exactly the Computation of the Septuagint and of the Jews, as we learn from his inſerting Cainan, Luke 3. 36. his making Saul to reign 40. years v. 21. of this Chapter, and from this Verſe where he accords exactly with Joſephus.

V. 13. Ἤθελε θυεῖν, he would have ſacrificed (18) to them] Here ſee, ſaith Chryſoſtom, the Devil's Malice, he would have brought in ἀνθρωπολατρείαν Divine Worſhip of Men by thoſe very Perſons who were ſent to convert Men from it, perſuading them again to eſteem Men as Gods, as formerly they had done: And how fully he hath done this in the Roman Church, where innumerable Men are worſhipped with Invocation, and even mental Prayers, which ſuppoſe them to know the Hearts of the Supplicants and ſo to have the Property aſcribed to God alone in the Scripture: I have fully ſhewed in a Treatiſe on that Subject.

CHAP. XVII.

(22) V. 18. After the words places of Merchandise, add,] Oecumenius here saith, that a little Bird that gathered up the Seeds scattered in the Market-place, was called by this Name, and hence, τὸν ἐυτελεῖς, καὶ ἐκ ἀξίας λόγου σπερμολόγους ἐκάλουν, despicable Persons, not worthy to be named, were called σπερμολόγοι; and in this Etymology Suidas, Phavorinus, the Scholiast upon Aristophanes de Avibus, p. 569. and almost all the Grammarians do agree.

(23) V. 30. God who overlooked the times of Ignorance, τανῦν ἀπαγγέλλει πᾶσι πανταχῆ, hath now sent his Message to all Men every where to repent.] The τανῦν here, seems not to refer to μετανοεῖν, to repent, as if God did not formerly require Men to repent of their Sins committed against the Law of Nature, for then they were not obliged to reform, or turn from them; but it refers rather to the Word ἀπαγγέλλει, and signifies that whereas before he had sent no Messengers, or Prophets, to the Heathen World, to proclaim his Wrath against them for their Ungodliness, and Unrighteousness, and call them to Repentance for those Sins, he now had sent his Apostles to all the Ends of the Earth, with this Message; and that by them he had given them a fresh Assurance of his Purpose to judge and condemn the Impenitent, by the Resurrection of that Son of God, whom he had appointed to be the Judge of all Men: Mr. Dodwell therefore seems to be mistaken, when he concludes from these words, and from Acts 14. 16. that God had not obliged all other Nations, but only the peculium, to worship himself, before he had revealed his Pleasure to them, and (a) saith, " That these words rather " plainly imply the contrary, that while the " Supreme God was ἄγνωστος, unknown, " God did excuse them from that Duty, " on account of their Ignorance of what o- " therwise would have been their Duty, if " it had been required of them, and they " had known that the Supreme Being had required it: For 1*st*, This is directly contrary to the express words of the Apostle Paul, who declares that, τὸ γνωστὸν τ Θεῦ, that which might be known of God was manifested to them, for God had declared it to them, to wit, his eternal Power and Godhead; and also that this was manifested to them, from the beginning of the World, not by any positive Revelation, but from the visible things of the Creation, Rom. 1. 19, 20. and that this Manifestation rendred them ἀναπολόγητοι, without excuse, who did not glorifie (and therefore worship) him as God, neither were thankful to him for his Benefits conferr'd upon them. And this is farther evident from the two places cited by him; for tho' God so far suffered them to walk in their own ways, as that he sent no Prophet to instruct them, nevertheless he left not himself without a Witness, that it was he who did them good, &c. Acts 14. 17. and who was therefore to be thank'd, and worshipped as their great Benefactor; see the Note there: And tho' he winked at the times of Ignorance, yet even then he expected they should so seek the Lord that they might find him, Acts 17. 17. see the Note there; and it is strange that the dreadful Consequences of this Assertion did not deter him from espousing it; for hence it evidently follows, 1*st*, That no Man can know who is the true God, or that he is to be worshipped, by the Light of Nature, without a Revelation. 2*dly*, That either Idolatry, or Atheism, must innocently obtain throughout the whole Heathen World; for if they are left ignorant of the true God, and it is not their Duty to worship him, they must either not be obliged to worship any God, or left free, if not obliged to commit Idolatry, by giving the Worship due to the true God alone, to them who by Nature are no Gods. And, 3*dly*, That they must either be obliged to worship the very Devil, or left free to do it; the Gods of the Heathens, saith the Scripture, being Devils, and seeing God is the Fountain of all Obligation, he must oblige them thus to worship his grand Enemy. 4*thly*, Hence it follows, that when they had the Gospel-Revelation imparted to them, they could not be obliged, as he saith they were, to repent of their former Idolatry, in giving the Worship due to the true God, to Idols, or false Gods; because he plainly here asserts, they could not know, that 'twas their Duty to worship the true God, and so the first and second Commandments must be only positive Precepts, but no Parts of the Law of Nature, or the Moral Law, that being of perpetual, and universal Obligation.

CHAP. XIX.

V. 19. They burnt their Books before all Men.] Note also, that they sold not those Books, tho' they were of great value, because, saith Oecumenius, they would not be Gainers by such wicked Arts, nor would they contribute by selling them to the teaching others the same Arts. (24)

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 14, 15. FOR I am a Debtor, &c. ὅτο.] Here it is obſervable, that our Tranſlators begin the 14th Verſe with for, tho' there is nothing that anſwers to it in the Greek; I would render the words thus, I am a Debtor to the Greek, and the Barbarian, to the Wiſe, and the Unwiſe, viz. ὅτω, or ὅτω καὶ, and therefore as much as in me lies, I am ready to preach the Goſpel to you alſo that are in Rome. For tho' ὅτω and ὅτως, when joyned with ὡς, ſignifie generally ſo, yet when they are put abſolutely, and eſpecially, when they begin a Sentence, they ſignifie idcirco, itaq; and anſwer to Al Cen, in the Hebrew: So Rev. 3. 16. ὅτι χλιαρὸς εἶ, wherefore becauſe thou art luke warm; upon which place the Criticks note that ὅτως, hîc non, eſt ſimilitudinis, ſed ratiocinativum, valetque, צֵל כֵּן igitur: So Rom. 6. 11. Knowing that Jeſus Chriſt, being now raiſed from the dead, dyeth no more; ὅτω καὶ ὑμεῖς λογίζεσθε, therefore alſo reckon ye your ſelves dead unto Sin, 1 Cor. 15. 44,45. ὅτω καὶ γέγραπται, and therefore it is written; ſo Luk 24. 26. ſo it is written, καὶ ὅτως, and therefore Chriſt ought to ſuffer; and John 4. 6. Jeſus then being weary with his Journey, ἐκαθίζετο ὅτως, ſat therefore upon the Well.

Mr. L. here reads ἐκ ἐνόησε ὅτι, and renders the Words thus, who knowing the Judgement of God, knew not, that they, who did theſe things were worthy of Death; but this reading cannot ſtand; for what righteous Judgement of God could they know to be due to them, who did theſe things, who knew not that they were worthy of Death, and to whom Sin, ſaith he, could not be imputed without a poſitive Law, which we know the Gentiles had not? (7) V. 8. Πειθομένοις δὲ τῇ ἀδικίᾳ, but obey Unrighteouſneſs] Here Chryſoſtom notes that the Apoſtle doth not ſay Βιαζομένοις, τυραννουμένοις who are forced to, but who obey Unrighteouſneſs ἵνα μάθῃς ὅτι προαιρέσεως τὸ πλῆμα, οὐκ ἀνάγκης τὸ ἔγκλημα ὅθεν καὶ ἀσύγγνωστοι, that thou mayeſt learn, that they offend of Choice, and not of Neceſſity, and therefore are unworthy of Pardon.

(8) V. 12. Ἀνόμως ἀπολοῦνται ἐν νόμῳ κριθήσονται, as many as have ſinn'd without Law, ſhall alſo periſh without Law, and as many as have ſinn'd in the Law, ſhall be judged by the Law.] Here (a) Mr. Dodwell ſays, "That "ſome Advantage may be taken from the "Words ἀπολοῦνται, and κριθήσονται, that which "is called periſhing in the Caſe of the "Gentiles, and ſo may be underſtood as "well of ceaſing to be, as of any poſitive "Inflictions, being oppoſed to be judged "in the latter clauſe relating to the Jews. But (1*ſt*) the Word ἀπολλύειν, to periſh, is often uſed in the new Teſtament, and eſpecially in the Epiſtles of thoſe Chriſtians, who by his own Hypotheſis, are to periſh by being ſubject to eternal Puniſhments, as in thoſe Words μὴ ἀπόλλυε deſtroy not with thy Meat thy Brother, for whom Chriſt died. Rom. 14. 15. and in the 1 Cor. 8. 11. καὶ ἀπολεῖται, and ſo ſhall thy Brother periſh for whom Chriſt dyed; So alſo 2 Cor. 2. 15. 4. 3. 2 Theſſ. 2. 10. 2 Pet. 3. 9. yea this Criticiſm would exempt not only Judas the Traytor, that υἱὸς ἀπωλείας, Son of Perdition, John 17. 12. but even the very Devils from this future Puniſhment; for their Queſtion is ἦλθες ἀπολέσαι ἡμᾶς art thou come to deſtroy us before the time? Mark 4. 34. It is uſed in the Goſpels of Chriſt's little ones in thoſe Words, it is not the Will of my Father ἵνα ἀπόληται, that one of theſe little ones ſhou'd periſh, Matth. 5. 29. 18. 14. of loſing the Soul by denying Chriſt, Matth. 10. 39. 16. 25. And laſtly, 'tis uſed of the Deſtruction of Soul and Body in Hell, Matth, 10. 28. (2*dly*) κριθήσονται here applied to the Jews, ſignifies καὶ κατακριθήσονται, they ſhall be condemned, as appears from the Oppoſition it bears to δικαιωθήσονται, they ſhall be juſtified v. 13. And this it ſtill doth, and muſt do, when it relates to the Judgement paſſed upon the wicked at that Day. So John 3. 18. 12. 48. 16. 11. 2 Theſſ. 2. 12. Heb. 13. 4. And this being introduced as a Proof, that in that Day there ſhall be Tribulation, and Anguiſh upon every Soul, that worketh evil, whether he be Jew, or Gentile, and that becauſe God is no Reſpecter of Perſons, ſhews that both Jew and Gentile working evil muſt fall under that Tribulation and Anguiſh. And the reaſon of the Variation of the Words may be probably this, that the Gentile being condemned by the Law written in his own Heart, and ſo being as it were a confeſſed Criminal, there needs nothing more than to ſentence him to the Perdition, which his Sin deſerves; whereas the Jew being to be ſentenc'd by a written Law, which he may think he has not violated, ſo as to deſerve Condemnation, he muſt be judged and condemned by the Sentence, which the Law hath pronounced againſt him.

later doth by giving his Honour to an Idol. And of this Sin they being accuſed by God himſelf, declaring by his Prophet Malachy, that they had robbed him in Tythes and Offerings, doubtleſs they were more guilty of it in theſe worſt times of the Jewiſh Nation.

(12) V. 6. Even as David λέγει τ μακαεισμὸν] ſpeaks of the Bleſſedneſs of thoſe, to whom God imputeth δικαιοσύνην, Juſtification, i. e. Exemption from the Guilt, and Puniſhment of Sin, without ſuch Works as can juſtly plead for that Exemption and Freedom from Puniſhment, by ſaying, bleſſed is the Man to whom the Lord imputeth no Sin. In which Citation there is not one Word of any Work to make him righteous in the Sight of God, and therefore bleſſed but only of an Act of free Grace in the Forgiveneſs or the Non-Imputation of his Sin, in which the Evangelical Juſtification formally conſiſts. See the Preface to the Epiſtle to the Galatians Section the 4*th*.

(13) V. 14. Faith is made void, in the laſt Edition this Note is changed thus] It is made void to them, who are not of the Law, becauſe then without it they cannot be made Heirs, and it is alſo made void to them that are of the law, becauſe they were then Heirs not by Virtue of the Promiſe, but of the Law.

(14) V. 15. For the Law worketh Wrath] to wit, to the Tranſgreſſors of it, For where there is no Law, there is no Tranſgreſſion. It is a very great Miſtake to think, as ſome do, that the Apoſtle lays down this as a general rule, that where there is no poſitive Law to which Threats and Puniſhments are annexed, there is no Tranſgreſſion; for the plain Conſequence of this would be, that the Heathens having no poſitive Law, could be guilty of no Tranſgreſſion, whereas the Scripture repreſents them as dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins, Eph. 2. 1. Coloſſ. 2. 13. as Perſons, who ſhall be judged hereafter according to their Works, Rom. 2. 6. and ſhall receive Tribulation and Wrath for working evil v. 9. who ſin without (a poſitive) Law, and ſhall therefore periſh without Law, v. 12. and as Men, who are condemned in their own Conſciences by the Law written in their Hearts, v. 15. The Apoſtle therefore muſt be only conceived to prove from this general rule, that where there is no Law at all, there is no Tranſgreſſion; and that if the Law of Moſes worketh Wrath, there muſt be a Tranſgreſſion of it rendring Men obnoxious to the Death it threatneth, v. 19, 20. vide Examen Millii.

CHAP. V.

V. 13. Here alſo note, that the Apoſtle (15) cannot be rationally conceived to aſſert as Mr. L. Suggeſts, that no Man can incur a Penalty without the Sanction of a poſitive Law declaring, and eſtabliſhing that Penalty. For this Aſſertion entirely deſtroys the Obligation of the Heathens to perform any Duty, ſince no Man can be obliged to do that, which he may omit without fear of Puniſhment, and renders the Heathens who had no poſitive Law given them, uncapable of incurring any Penalty by any ſins they had committed. The meaning therefore of the Apoſtle ſeems to be only this, That the Law threatning Death to Adam, being not made to all Mankind but to him alone, all Men, good and bad, could not then generally die for their own Sins; but this Mortality fell on them all without diſtinction in that Interval on the Account of that one Sin of Adam, which rendred all his Poſterity ſubject to that Mortality he had incurr'd by his Sin: wherefore to ſay, that all Men were not ſubject to Mortality by reaſon of the Sin of Adam, wou'd be to contradict St. Paul; but to ſay, that they, who were ſwept away by the Flood with an untimely Death, did not die for their own, but for Adam's Sin, is to contradict God himſelf, ſaying, I will deſtroy Man from the Earth, for the Iniquity of Man is very great, &c. Gen. 5.

V. 19. After Irenæus l. 5. c. 56. add] (16) Moreover we in the new Teſtament find frequently expreſſions equivalent to theſe, the Holy Ghoſt ſtill ſpeaking of Chriſt's Sufferings for our Sins in the Metonymical Senſe; as (1ſt) when Chriſt is ſaid to bear our Sins, only becauſe he bore the Puniſhment due to them, 1 Pet. 2. 24. (2dly) when he is ſaid to be made Sin for us, 2 Cor. 5. 21. he being made ſo not by contracting the Guilt of Sin, but only by ſuffering the Puniſhment of it in our ſtead; and when he is ſaid to appear a ſecond time χωὶς ἁμαρτίας, without Sin, i. e. without a ſecond Sacrifice to purge away our Sins, Heb. 9. 28. And (3dly) when he is ſaid to be made a Curſe for us, Gal. 3. 13. He being only ſo by ſuffering the Death which the Law ſtiles accurſed, and not as being ſo in the ſight of God.

(18) V. 4. After the Words married to another add] In like manner you being made dead to the Law, to which you are eſpouſed, by the Death of Chriſt, as being buried and crucified together with him, the Law can have no farther Power over you to retain you in Subjection to it, and ſo you muſt be free to be married or put into Subjection to another Husband, even Chriſt to whom I have eſpouſed you, 2 Cor. 11. 2.

(19) V. 5. Ὅτε γὰρ ἦμεν ἐν σαρκὶ for when we are in the Fleſh] When I conſider that οἱ ὄντες ἐν σαρκὶ, and οἱ κατὰ σάρκα ὄντες, chap. 8. 5. 8. ſignifies thoſe that are acted and govern'd by the fleſhly Principle, in oppoſition to the Guidance and Motions of the Holy Spirit, and that εἶναι ἐν σαρκὶ, v. 9. ζῆν, περιπατεῖν κατὰ σάρκα, v. 4. 12. 13. bear the ſame Senſe; I judge, that when we were in the Fleſh, here doth not only ſignifie to be under the carnal Ordinances of the Law, for ſo were all the Pious Jews, who liv'd from Moſes to the Goſpel times, but more eſpecially relates to them, who living under theſe Ordinances, were themſelves carnal, and without any Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit, and ſo had the Law of the Fleſh ſtill warring againſt the Law of their Minds, and bringing them into Captivity to the Law of Sin, which could not be the State of Zacharias and Elizabeth, or any other of thoſe Perſons who were righteous before God, and walked in all the Commandments of the Lord blameleſs. And if of ſuch only we underſtand the Apoſtle's following Diſcourſe in this Chapter the Senſe will be clear.

(20) Ibid. Τὰ διὰ τοῦ νόμου the Motions of Sin which were by the Law] Here Mr. L. ſaith Interpreters caſt a ſtrange Imputation on the Law of God, by ſaying it excited Men to Sin by forbidding it, whereas they only ſay that the carnal Minds of Men excited them to tranſgreſs the Law when they were under it, as the Apoſtle ſaith v. 8. and Mr. L. in his Gloſs on the 8*th* verſe ſays, Sin took the Opportunity of my being under the Law to ſtir up Concupiſcence in me; for without the Law, which annexes Death to the Tranſgreſſion of it, Sin is not able to have its will upon me; Now is this any more an Imputation upon the Law of God, than 'tis an Imputation on his providence, that it provides that Corn and Wine which carnal Men abuſe to Drunkeneſs and Exceſs.

(21) V. 6. After the Words as Mr. Clerk thinks, add] But (1*ſt*,) as the Oppoſition ſhews, to ſerve him with a Freedom from the Prevalency of the Fleſh by Virtue of the Spirit, which enables us to mortifie the Deeds of the Fleſh, chap. 8. 13. (2*dly*,) to ſerve God not chiefly with bodily Service and carnal Ordinances, but in the Spirit of our Minds, chap. 12. 2. Philip. 3. 2. having our Minds transform'd after the Image of God in Holineſs, and Righteouſneſs, and Truth; Eph. 4. 23. 24. (3*dly*,) to ſerve him by the Aſſiſtance of the Spirit.

V. 15. Οὐ γινώσκω, I allow not] This Interpretation ſaith Mr. L. makes the following Words a Tautology, whereas I judge it very reaſonable to ſay, I allow not, becauſe I would not, yea I hate to do, what I do. (22)

CHAP. VIII.

V. 1. Τοῖς μὴ κατὰ σάρκα περιπατοῦσι, ἀλλὰ κατὰ πνεῦμα, theſe Words ſaith Dr. Mills are an Addition to the Text, ſee the Proof of the contrary Examen Millii in locum. (23)

V. 3, Τὸ γὰρ ἀδύνατον τοῦ νόμου, for what could not be done by the Law] i. e. that Freedom from the Guilt of Sin and Death it could not miniſter, ὁ θεὸς τὸν ἑαυτοῦ υἱὸν πέμψας ἐν ὁμοιώματι σαρκὸς ἁμαρτίας, God ſending his Son in the likeneſs of ſinful Fleſh, Sub. δυνατὸν ἐποίησε, hath made feaſible: Examples of the like Ellipſis are numerous: So Luke 11. 17. every Kingdom διαμερισθεῖσα, divided againſt it ſelf is brought to Deſolation, καὶ οἶκος ἐπὶ οἶκον, Sub. διαμερισθὲς, and an Houſe (divided) againſt a Houſe falleth. That this is the Senſe is evident from Matth. 12. 25. and Mark 3. 25. where it is οἰκία μερισθεῖσα καθ' ἑαυτὴν, ſo κεκωλύσθων, commanding is to be underſtood after κωλυόντων, forbidding 1 Tim. 4. 3. And καυχάσθω let him rejoice is to be ſupplyed from the 9*th* verſe Jam. 1. 10. (24)

Ibid. καὶ περὶ ἁμαρτίας and by a Sacrifice for Sin condemned Sin in the Fleſh] The plain meaning of theſe Words ſaith Mr. L. is this, that Sin it ſelf was condemned, or put to death in Chriſt's Fleſh, i. e. was ſuffered to have no Life or being in the Fleſh of our Saviour, he being in all things tempted as we are, yet without Sin, Heb. 4. 15. But this certainly is a falſe Interpretation, for as Sin could not be put to Death in him, in whom it never lived, or could have any Being, ſo much leſs could this be done by his Offering a Sacrifice for Sin, that being only done at the cloſe of his Life; whereas Chriſt was free from Sin from his Conception, and being done then by a Sin-Offering to make Atonement for the Guilt of Sin. The true meaning of the Words is therefore this, That Juſtification, or Freedom from the Guilt of Sin, which the Law could not procure, becauſe of the Weakneſs of the Fleſh rendring us obnoxious to Sin, and ſo to Death for it; God by ſending his Son in our humane Nature did procure, and by giving up his Son to be a Sacrifice to make Atonement for the Sin committed by the Fleſh, ἔκρινε κατ' ἁμαρτίαν, he judged againſt Sin in the Fleſh, that is, either he ſhew'd that it deſerved Condemnation as requiring (25) an Atonement, to free us from the Guilt of it; or elſe he, by this Sacrifice, condemned that which before condemned us, and took away it's Power of condemning Believers, enabling them to ſay, Who is he that condemns us? It is Chriſt that died? v. 34.

(26) V. 6, 7. To be carnally minded, (Gr. φρόνημα σαρκὸς, the Wiſdom of the Fleſh) is death, becauſe the carnal mind, (Gr. the Wiſdom of the Fleſh) is Enmity to God, for it is not ſubject to the Law of God, neither can be; ſo they who are in the Fleſh cannot pleaſe God.] Hence 'tis by ſome inferr'd, that the Unregenerate can do nothing that is truly good, nothing but what is evil, and diſpleaſing to God.

To this I anſwer, that this is one of the Texts abus'd by ancient Hereticks, to prove that the Fleſh was by Nature evil; we learn from (a) Epiphanius, and from St. Chryſoſtom upon the Place, who therefore well obſerves, that by Fleſh here, we are not to underſtand the Body, or the Subſtance of the Body, ἀλλὰ τὸ σαρκικὸν βίον καὶ κοσμικὸν, καὶ τρυφὴς, καὶ ἀσωλίας γέμοντα, τὸ ὅλον σάρκα ποιοῦντα τὸν ἄνθρωπον, but a worldly carnal Life, full of Luxury, and riotous Living, and turning the whole Man into Fleſh, as is evident from the Phraſe, the Wiſdom of the Fleſh, engaging us only to mind the things of the Fleſh, and to be of the Fleſh, as the true Chriſtian is of the Spirit, being led by, and walking in the Spirit. And, ſaith (b) Methodius, were this ſaid of them, who are in this Body of Fleſh, that they cannot pleaſe God; they who commit Theft, Whoredom, or any other like Sin, could not, on this account, be ſubject to Reprehenſion, by a juſt Judge; it being then impoſſible for the Fleſh to be ſubject to the Law of God; nor could then the intemperate Perſon be reduced to Chaſtity and Virtue, the Body lying under a natural Neceſſity, not to be ſubject to the Law of God.

2*dly*, The Apoſtle doth indeed ſay, that they who thus mind carnal things, while they continue ſo to do, cannot pleaſe God; this being only in effect to ſay, in the words of Chryſoſtom, ἀδύνατον πονηρὸν μένοντα, that whilſt Men go on in their ſinful Courſes, they cannot pleaſe God, or live in Subjection to his Laws: But then, ſaith he, as Chriſt only ſays, an evil Tree, whilſt it continues ſuch, cannot bring forth good Fruit; but doth not ſay an evil Tree cannot be made good, but on the contrary ſaith, make the Tree good, that the Fruit may be good, Matth. 12. 33. ſo is it here; for the Apoſtle, by his frequent Exhortations to theſe carnal Men, to crucifie the Fleſh, and mortifie the Fleſh, with it's Luſts, or the Deeds of it, and to put off the old Man with his Deeds; by his Threats, that if they live after the Fleſh they ſhall die; and by his Promiſes, that if thro' the Spirit they do mortifie the Deeds of the Fleſh, they ſhall live, doth ſhew, that Men may ceaſe to live according to the Fleſh, and may ſo mortifie the Deeds of the Fleſh, that they may live. God, ſaith Chryſoſtome, hath put this ἐν ἐλευθερίᾳ προαιρέσεως, in our free Choice, ſo that ἐν σοὶ λοιπὸν, τὸ καὶ τοῦτο γίνεσθαι, κἀκεῖνο. Since the Vouchſafement of the Goſpel, it is in thine own Power to be carnally minded, or ſpiritually, there being now greater Strength, and Inducement, ſo to be, than ever.

V. 9. If any Man be in Chriſt he is a new (27) Creature; and he that hath not the Spirit of Chriſt dwelling in him, is none of his.] Hence it is plain, that none are truly ſaid to be in Chriſt, by a Profeſſion of Faith, provided they live not anſwerable to that Profeſſion, or be not renewed in Mind, Will, Affections, and Converſation, and from the following words; If the Spirit of Chriſt dwell in you, he that raiſed the Lord Jeſus from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies by his Spirit dwelling in you: It is evident, (1*ſt*,) That it is not the Soul, but the mortal Body, which the Spirit is ſaid here, ζωοποιεῖν, to give Life to. (2*dly*,) That the Promiſe of being raiſed by the Spirit of Chriſt, belongs only to them, whoſe Bodies ſhall be raiſed to the Reſurrection of Life eternal: As for others, they being only, χριστιανοὶ ὀνομαζόμενοι, Chriſtians in Name, and not in Truth and Sincerity, 1 Cor. 5. 11. and Perſons to whom Chriſt will then ſay, I never knew you, they ſhall be raiſed by the Power of Chriſt, but not by virtue of any Union with the Spirit of Chriſt.

V. 11. Ζωοποιήσει τὰ θνητὰ σώματα ὑμῶν, ſhall (28) quicken your mortal Bodies.] The late Commentator, and Paraphraſt, here expoſed by Mr. Lock, is D. W. and yet he is ſo unhappy, as neither to approve of Mr. L's Interpretation, nor diſlike his own. He cannot approve of Mr. L's Interpretation, that σῶμα νεκρὸν, and θνητὸν, ſignifie a Body morally dead, becauſe Sin reigns not in it; (1*ſt*,) Becauſe σῶμα νεκρὸν, abſolutely put, bears no ſuch Senſe in Scripture, but only ſignifies a Body without Life, or Breath, Jam. 2. 26. (2*dly*,) Becauſe this Interpretation makes the Apoſtle ſay, v. 10. the Body is dead already, i. e. as to all Activity of Sin, which reigns no longer in it, it's ſinful carnal Luſts being mortify'd, and yet makes him promiſe, v. 11. that if the Spirit of God dwell in us, God ſhall quicken our mortal mortal Bodies, i. e. ſaith Mr. L. He ſhall deliver them from the Dominion of their carnal Luſts; that is, it makes him promiſe God ſhall do hereafter what he told us, v. 10. was already done. (3*dly*,) In thoſe words, he that raiſeth Chriſt from the dead, the Apoſtle muſt be ſuppoſed to ſpeak of a real Death of the Body; and therefore in the latter Clauſe of the ſame Sentence, he ſhall quicken their mortal Bodies, 'tis reaſonable to conceive, he ſpeaks of quickening thoſe Bodies in the ſame Senſe, viz. by raiſing them from the dead. Nor hath Mr. L. ſaid any thing of weight againſt this Senſe. For,

1*ſt*, Whereas, he ſaith, It cannot be proved that θνητὰ, mortal Bodies here ſignifies the ſame as νεκρὰ. (1*ſt*,) He hath not proved the contrary. (2*dly*,) His own Interpretation plainly makes them both to ſignifie the ſame. And, (3*dly*,) What is more likely than that σῶμα νεκρὸν, v. 10. & σώματα θνητὰ, v. 11. ſhould be of the ſame import.

2*dly*, When he addeth, that θνητὸν, mortal, always ſignifies the thing joyned with it to be living; he conſidered not that the ſame Apoſtle ſaith, That at the Reſurrection from the Dead, τὸ θνητὸν τοῦτο, this mortal Body ſhall put on Immortality; and that when, τὸ θνητὸν τοῦτο, this mortal Body ſhall have put on immortality, Death ſhall be ſwallowed up in Victory. 2*dly*, I add, that θνητὸν, when it relates, as here, to a Body, to be quickened, never bears any other ſenſe, but that of a dead Body.

3*dly*, If by quick'ning here, ſaith he, be meant the raiſing them to life from the dead, how can this be mentioned as a peculiar Favour to thoſe who have the Spirit of God? For God will alſo raiſe the Bodies of the Wicked. Anſw. True, but he will raiſe them by his Power, not by his Spirit dwelling in them. Not as the Sons of God, to be made Joint-heirs with Chriſt, v. 16. 17. but as the Children of Satan, to be caſt into the Fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels. Not, laſtly, to live an happy Life, v. 13. but to die the ſecond Death.

Laſtly, Whereas he objects the Want of Connexion in this Interpretation, with the ſubject the Apoſtle is here diſcourſing of, that is very plain; for the Apoſtle is here diſcourſing of the Benefits, and Advantages, which Chriſtians ſhall receive by living, not after the Fleſh, but after the Spirit, that this will cauſe them to mind ſpiritual things, v. 5. that it will give them Life and Peace, v. 6. So that tho' their Bodies die becauſe of Sin, they ſhall obtain an happy Reſurrection, thro' the Spirit dwelling in them, ἄρα οὖν, therefore, ſaith he, v. 12. 13. we are Debtors not to live after the Fleſh, for they that do ſo, ἀποθνήσκουσι, ſhall die (not in the moral, but the penal Senſe,) but they who thro' the Spirit do mortifie the Deeds of the Fleſh ſhall live; for v. 14. As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the Sons of God, and ſo ſhall obtain the Adoption, i. e. the Redemption of the Body from Corruption, v. 23.

V. 28. Called according to his Promiſe.] (29) From theſe words, ſome argue thus: If all that love God are called according to his Promiſe, then had he no purpoſe of calling them that do not love him. If they who are foreknown are prædeſtinated to be conformed to the Image of his Son, they who are not conformed to it, were not fore-known. Now, in anſwer to theſe Arguments, let it be obſerv'd, that this Text expreſly ſpeaks of thoſe, who actually love God, not of thoſe whom God hath loved, with this ſuppoſed diſcriminating Affection; and that to love God, and to be called according to his purpoſe, are words put by way of Appoſition, to ſhew that they are both of the ſame Import; that which God purpoſed, in calling us by Chriſt, being this, that we might be holy and unblamable before him in love, Eph. 1. 4. 9. ſo that the whole of this Argument may be granted: They who are called by God according to his purpoſe, or are effectually called; ſo that God's Calling hath its deſigned effect upon them, being only ſuch as love God, and are conformed according to the Image of his Son. And let it farther be obſerved, that when the Apoſtle ſaith, in the following Verſe, ὅτι οὓς προέγνω, for whom he fore-knew, &c. the Particle ὅτι is connective, and this Verſe giving the Reaſon, or Confirmation of what was ſpoken in the former, it ſeems neceſſary to interpret theſe words thus, whom he foreknew to be Perſons called according to his purpoſe, and therefore qualify'd for the Adoption mentioned, v. 23. them he prædeſtinated to be conformed according to the Image of his Son: And it deſerves to be conſidered, that all Antiquity to the time of St. Auſtin, do with one Conſent concur in the Interpretation of Pſeudambroſius on this place, viz. quos præſcivit ſibi devotos, ipſos elegit ad promiſſa præmia capiſcenda; thoſe whom he foreſaw would be devoted to his Service, he elected to the Reward promiſed ſuch Perſons, thoſe whom he foreknew to be τοὺς ἀξίους τῆ κλήσεως, worthy to be called. So Theodoret, and Theophylact, ſome of them in their deſcants upon theſe words, called according to purpoſe, expound them of the purpoſe, or free will of Man, declaring that a Man is called κατὰ προαίρεσιν, according to his Choice; and, that (a) ὁ κλῆσις μόνον, ἀλλὰ ἀλλὰ καὶ ἡ πρόθεσις τῶν καλουμένων σωτηρίαν ἐργάσαται, it is not the Calling only, but the Purpoſe of thoſe that are called, which works Salvation. For who, ſaith (a) Origen, ſhould be called to Juſtification, but thoſe God loves. The Apoſtle, ſaith he, τὸ τοῦ ἐφ' ἡμῖν αἰτίαν προῖσησι τὴ προθέσεως καὶ τὴ προγνώσεως, makes the Will of Man the Cauſe of God's Purpoſe, and Foreknowledge, by ſaying, we know that all things work together for good, to them that love God. Ὅτι ἄξιοι εἰσι συνεργέσεως, they being worthy of his Co-operation. And in his Latin Commentary on theſe words, he ſaith, he uſes the Word foreknew, to ſhew, that they were foreknown by God; in quibus, ſciens quales eſſent, amorem ſuum Deus, affectumq; poſuiſſet, on whom God placed his Affection, as knowing what that would be.

2*dly*, If, ſaith he, you will refer this Purpoſe to God, Men are then called according to the purpoſe of him, qui ſciens in eis religioſam mentem, & ſalutis ineſſe deſiderium, who knowing they had a religious Mind, and a Deſire of Salvation called them; and in this ſenſe, neither the Cauſe of our Perdition, or Salvation, will be placed in God's Fore-knowledge, nor our Juſtification, only in our Calling; neque gloriari de noſtrâ penitus poteſtate ſublatum eſt; nor will our Glorification be wholly exempted from our own Power. Moreover he adds, that by embracing this abſurd Opinion, which ſaith, Man therefore is not juſtified, and ſo not glorified, becauſe he is not prædeſtinated —, and that he is not prædeſtinated, becauſe not foreknown; ingentem feneſtram aperiemus eis, qui negant in hominis poteſtate eſſe ut ſalvus fiat; we ſhall give great Advantage to them, who deny that it is in the Power of Man to be ſaved; whence they infer, that they are guilty of no Fault, who are not juſtified, becauſe they are not called, are not prædeſtinated, are not foreknown. And, Oecumenius ſaith, the Apoſtle mentions being called according to the purpoſe, that he might not fall into an Abſurdity, which would follow, εἰ ὁ Θεὸς τινὰς μὲν ἐποίησε, τινὰς δὲ ὄ, καὶ προσωποληψίας ἀπαλλάττει ὁ Θεὸν, if God ſhould do good to ſome Perſons, and not to others; and that he might free him from being an Accepter of Perſons. Wherefore, according to the received Interpretation of the ancient Fathers, the Import of theſe words is this: Thoſe whom God foreſaw would be true Lovers of him, fit for the Kingdom of God, and ἄξιοι worthy of the Peace and Bleſſings of the Goſpel, he fore-appointed to be conformable to the Image of his Son, that is, to be like him in Glory, v. 17. them alſo he called in due time to the Salvation promiſed, and offered in the Goſpel, 2 Tim. 1. 8, 9. Tit. 1. 2, 3. and they believing in Chriſt, upon his Call, he juſtified them from, and remitted all their paſt Sins, Acts 13. 38, 39. Eph. 1. 7. and them he alſo glorified, by giving them that Spirit, who is the Earneſt of that Glory, Eph. 1. 13. and by Participation of which Spirit, Chriſtians are ſaid not only to behold the Glory of the Lord, but alſo to be changed into the ſame Image, from Glory to Glory. So Origen on this place. And this Expoſition agrees well with the Context; for the Apoſtle had ſaid before, that Chriſtians having the firſt Fruits of the Spirit, groaned after this Redemption of the Body, v. 23. & v. 26. that the Spirit helpeth their Infirmities, interceding for them, with ſilent Groanings after it; and that he intercedeth for the Saints, according to the Mind of God, to give them this Redemption; and then it follows οἴδαμεν ὅ, therefore we know that all things ſhall work together for good, to them that love God.

V. 33 34] Here it is well obſerved by Mr. L. that theſe words being read by way of Interrogation, as is v. 35. carry a full and clear Senſe thus: Who ſhall plead againſt God's Elect? Shall the God who juſtifies them do it? Who is he that condemns them? Can it be that Chriſt who died for them? (30)

V. 35. Nothing ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the Love of God, which is in Chriſt Jeſus.] To anſwer the Argument hence Urged, to ſhew that Men cannot fall from Grace, becauſe if once they truly loved God, they cannot ceaſe to do ſo, let it be noted: (31)

1*ſt*, That this Enquiry is not who ſhall ſeparate us from the Love with which we love God and Chriſt, but who ſhall ſeparate us, who truly love God, and teſtifie that Love by our Obedience to his Commands, John 15. 10. and our patient Sufferings for his ſake, v. 36, 37. from his Affections towards us?

The Apoſtle therefore only intimates, that ſuch Perſons continuing in the Love of God, ſhall be preſerved by him from, or enabled to overcome the Temptations here mentioned, and ſo ſupported by his Grace, and holy Spirit, as to be able to triumph over them. But he doth not ſay, that the Love of no Chriſtian ſhall wax cold, Matth. 24. 12. that none of them ſhall loſe his firſt Love, Rev. 2. 6. were there no Fear of this, why doth Chriſt exhort his Diſciples to continue in his Love? John 15. 9. and his Apoſtles exhort others to keep themſelves in the Love of God, Jud. 2. 1. to continue in the Grace of God, 13. 43. to look diligently gently to it, that they fall not from the Grace and Favour of God, Heb. 12. 15. Note, 2*dly*, That the Apoſtle doth not ſay that nothing ſhall ſeparate true Believers from the Love of God, or Chriſt, but only ſaith, πέπεισμαι, I am perſuaded nothing will do it; nor have I any Cauſe to fear, that any of theſe temporal Sufferings, or Enjoyments, ſhould ſhake their Stedfaſtneſs, in Expectation of thoſe eternal, and ineſtimable Bleſſings which God hath promiſed, and Chriſt hath purchaſed for his Church; theſe light Afflictions being not worthy to be compared with the Glory that ſhall be revealed, v. 18. and all co-operating for the good of them that love God, v. 28. that as for the Weakneſs of the Fleſh, which rendred theſe Temptations ſo dreadful, and gave ſtrength unto them; they lived in hopes of a glorious Redemption of the Body from them; v. 23. and whilſt they groan under them, they have the Aſſiſtance of the Spirit of God to ſtrengthen them, and help them to bear their Infirmities; a powerful and loving Father to be with them, a Saviour exalted to the right Hand of God to intercede for them, v. 33, 34. Upon all which accounts, he might well ſay, I am perſuaded, that none of theſe things ſhall ſeparate you from the Love of God, which is in Chriſt Jeſus. The Apoſtle doth not, by theſe words, intend to teach Believers that they could not be ſhaken by theſe things, for this would have contradicted the Drift of his Epiſtles, in which he doth ſo often expreſs his Fears, leaſt they ſhould be ſhaken with them; and ſo far tempted by them, as to be moved away from the hope of the Goſpel, Col. 1. 23. and render all his Labours vain, 1 Theſſ. 3. 3, 5. and offers ſo many Arguments, and Motives, to prevent the Effect of thoſe Temptations, but only doth intend to ſay, that upon theſe Conſiderations, they had ſo great Inducements to perſevere, and continue in the Love of God, as made him ſtrongly perſuaded that they would do ſo.

CHAP. IX.

(32) V. 6. Are not all Iſrael?] The Apoſtle having declared, that both Jew and Gentile had ſinned, and fallen ſhort of the Glory of God, and ſo were to be juſtified only by Faith in Chriſt, Rom. 3. 23, 24. the Jews objected againſt this, (1*ſt*,) That they being the Seed of Abraham, to whom the Promiſes were made, 'twas not conſiſtent with the Divine Veracity, to exclude them from the Bleſſings promiſed, and to confer them on the believing Gentiles. To the firſt Part of this Objection the Apoſtle anſwers, by diſtinguiſhing betwixt the Seed of Abraham, according to the Fleſh, and according to Promiſe; or the ſpiritual Seed, from v. 6. to the 14th, at thoſe words, What ſhall we ſay then, is there Injuſtice in God? He begins to anſwer the ſecond Part of the Objection, that the Adoption, and the Promiſes belonging to the Jews, v. 4. and the Gentiles being Strangers from the Covenant of Promiſe, it ſeemed unreaſonable to confer thoſe Bleſſings on them, and not upon the Jews. To this the Apoſtle anſwers, that this juſtly befel them, becauſe they continued in their Infidelity, after all the Miracles wrought to convince them, that Chriſt was the true Meſſiah; and ſo, as by this Obſtinacy, like to that of Pharoah, they had made themſelves obnoxious to the ſevereſt of his Judgments; ſo had they rendred themſelves incapable of the Bleſſings promiſed to Abraham, and his Seed, they who are of Faith, being only the Children of Abraham, and Heirs according to the Promiſe, Gal. 3. 7. 9. 29. whereas the Gentiles believing in Chriſt, are thro' this Faith entituled to the Bleſſings promiſed to Abraham and his Seed, v. 14. for they being Chriſt's by Faith, are Abraham's Seed, and Heirs according to the Promiſe, v. 29.

V. 11. Ἡ κατ' ἐκλογὴν πρόθεσις θεῦ, The Purpoſe of God according to Election.] Here I ſhall briefly conſider the Import of the words πρόθεσις, the Purpoſe; πρόγνωσις, the Fore-knowledge; προώρισμος, the Fore-appointment of God; of all which, let it be noted. (33)

1*ſt*, That none of them relate to particular, and individual Perſons, (ſave only when they are uſed of our bleſſed Lord, and his Sufferings for us) but only to whole Churches and Nations; and in general, to the whole Body of believing Jews, and Gentiles, whom God had choſen, προορίσας, fore-appointing them to the Adoption, by Jeſus Chriſt, Eph. 1. 5. in whom alſo, ſaith he, ἐκληρώθημεν, we are made his Portion, or peculiar People, προορισθέντες κατὰ πρόθεσιν, being fore-appointed ſo to be according to his purpoſe, v. 11. God having purpoſed, and fore-appointed, that this ſhould be the Portion of Believers, and the Conſequence of Faith in Chriſt, by which we become the Sons of God. To all the converted Jews throughout their Diſperſions, they being choſen κατὰ πρόθεσιν, according to the Purpoſe of God the Father, 1 Pet. 1. 2. And laſtly, to the Poſterity of Jacob, of whom that ἡ κατ' ἐκλογὴν πρόθεσις, the Purpoſe of God, according to the Election, might ſtand: It was ſaid, when Rebecca bore Twins, the Elder ſhall ſerve the Younger.

2*dly*, That this Fore-knowledge, Purpoſe, or Appointment, is only that of calling Men to the Knowledge of Salvation, by Chriſt Jeſus. Thus the Apoſtle teacheth, that he was appointed to preach to the Gentiles, the unſearchable Riches of Chriſt, acccording to the ancient purpoſe which God had made in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, Eph. 3. 11. and that according to his Purpoſe before Ages, he called us with an Holy Calling, 2 Tim. 1. 9.

3*dly*, This Calling is deſign'd by God ἐπὶ τῷτο, for this end that they who are called might obtain Salvation thro' Sanctification of the Spirit, and Belief of the Truth, 2 Theſſ. 2. 13. thro' Sanctification of the Spirit to Obedience, and thro' the Sprinkling of the Blood of Jeſus, 1 Pet. 1. 2. All Chriſtians being choſen to this end, that they might be holy, and unblameable before God in Love, Eph. 1 4. But hence it cannot reaſonably be concluded, that this Election is no larger than the Holineſs deſign'd to be produced by it; For the Riches of God's Goodneſs, Patience, and Long-ſuffering are deſigned to lead all thoſe to whom it is vouchſafed, to Repentance. But hence it cannot be concluded that this Riches, Goodneſs, Patience, and Long-ſuffering is exerciſed to none but thoſe; who truly do repent, ſeeing the Apoſtle mentions many who deſpiſed theſe means, and after the Vouchſafement of them, ſtill continued to treaſure up Wrath againſt the Day of Wrath, Rom. 2. 4. The Baptiſt was ſent to turn the Hearts of the Fathers to the Children, and of the diſobedient unto the Wiſdom of the juſt, but his preaching was far from having its effect on all, that heard him. The end of the Meſſiah's Advent to the Jews was that he might ſave his People from their Sins, and might engage them to ſerve him in Holineſs, and Righteouſneſs all the Days of their Life, Luke. 1. 74. But yet it ſadly failed of this Effect upon that ſtubborn People; The ſaving Grace of God appear'd to all Men to teach them, denying Ungodlineſs, and worldly Luſts, to live ſoberly, righteouſly, and godly in this preſent World; but yet it is too ſadly evident, it hath not had this good effect on all.

4*thly*, As Men were appointed from the beginning to be called, ſo the Goſpel, which is the Wiſdom of God thro' Faith unto Salvation, was that, ὡ προώρισεν, which God had fore appointed to be preacht to Men for that end, 1 Cor. 2. 7. This word of God giving the Hope of that Salvation, which he had promiſed before all Ages. And hence by Virtue of this Promiſe, and Fore-appointment Men were in time called by the Goſpel, to the Faith in Chriſt, whence they who were thus called, are ſaid to be called, according to the Purpoſe of God, Rom. 8. 28. and according to his Purpoſe, and Grace given us thro Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Pet. 1. 10. The Knowledge, and Purpoſe from the Foundation of the World of ſending Chriſt to die for the Remiſſion of Sins, being the Ground of this calling, on which account he is ſaid, to be given up to the Death according to the Foreknowledge of God, and his fore-appointed Counſel, Acts 2. 23. And they who ſlew him, are ſaid to have done only what his Counſel had foreappointed to be done, Acts 4. 28. Theſe Obſervations will direct us to anſwer what is argued from theſe, and ſuch like places of Scripture in Favour of an abſolute Election.

CHAP. X.

V. 13 After the 1 Cor. 1. 1, 2. add] (34) Mr. L. indeed attempts to invalidate the Force of both theſe Arguments, (1*ſt*,) by ſaying, that this calling upon the Name of the Lord doth not import the Invocation of Chriſt, but only an open Profeſſion of Faith in him, becauſe St. Paul argues cloſely, and yet in the three preceding verſes requires an open Profeſſion of the Goſpel. Anſw. There is not one Word of Profeſſing either in the 11*th*, or 12*th* verſes; in the 9*th* or 10*th* he mentions Confeſſion with the Mouth, and believing with the Heart as neceſſary, becauſe the Scripture ſaith, whoſoever believeth ſhall not be aſhamed, the ſame Lord over all being rich to all that call upon him. For Joel 2. 32. whoſoever ſhall call upon the Name of the Lord ſhall be ſaved. If then St. Paul be a cloſe Reaſoner, he muſt ſpeak of Invocation of the Name of the Lord. Moreover this being the Character of the Diſciples of Chriſt, even before they were called Chriſtians, ſee Note on Acts 9. 2. and the continual practice of all Chriſtians from the beginning, ſee Note on 1 Cor. 1. 2. The Apoſtle might well argue from Believers, to thoſe that call upon Chriſt's Name. The firſt Argument he would invalidate by denying that the Words cited by St. Paul from Joel are to be underſtood in the Senſe which they are uſed by the Prophet, which in effect is to deny that the Apoſtle argued either cloſely, or truly for the whole of the Apoſtles Inference is loſt, if either the Lord v. 13. be not the ſame Lord with him in v. 12. or if to call upon him, doth not bear the ſame Senſe in both places.

V. 15. Moreover from the Words, how (35) ſhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard, v. 14. and from thoſe v. 17. Faith comes by hearing, &c.] it follows that thoſe Gentiles who never had the Goſpel preach'd to them, or any Opportunity of hearing it, cannot be condemned for want of Faith in Chriſt, or his Doctrine, that being to condemn them, for the want of that, which they were never in a Capacity to have, if therefore they are capable of a Reward, as they muſt be who are obliged to believe that God is a Rewarder of all them, that diligently ſeek him, Heb. 11. 6. Chriſt muſt be a Sa- a Saviour to them who thus ſeek God, tho' they knew nothing of a Saviour.

(36) V. 18. After the Word Heathens add] Moreover that Kav-ram, which we render there Line, Pſal. 19. 4. does ſignifie their loud Cry, and ſo is well rendred by the Apoſtle here ὁ φθόγγος αὐτῶν, their Sound i. e. the Sound of the Apoſtles is fully proved by Dr. Pocock, Miſcel. c. 4. p. 48.

CHAP. XI.

(37) V. 6. The Election of Grace] See Note on v. 28. and add] That many who belonged to this Election, fell away is evident from the Epiſtle to the Hebrews; See the Note on 2 Theſſ. 2. 3. and whereas Dr. Mills contends that the Words following, viz. εἰ δὲ ἐξ ἔργων, οὐκ ἔτι ἐστὶ χάρις, ἐπεὶ τὸ ἔργον οὐκ ἔτι ἐστὶν ἔργον, are Suppoſititious, as being not found in the vulgar, in Hilary the Deacon, and in the Latin Origen: That they are genuine, is proved from the Syriac, and Arabick Verſions, from Theodoret, Photius, Oecumenius, and Theophylact, who all retain them: And from theſe Words of Chryſoſtom, who Tom. 5. Ed. Morell. p. 718. explains, and confirms them thus, He that contends he is to be ſaved by the Works of the Law hath no Title to Grace, ὅπερ ἦν τῷ Παύλῳ αἰνιττόμενος ἔλεγεν εἰ χάριτι, &c. εἰ δὲ ἐξ ἔργων, οὐκ ἔτι ἐστὶ χάρις, ἐπεὶ τὸ ἔργον οὐκ ἔτι ἐστὶν ἔργον· See Examen Millii in locum.

(38) V. 14. After theſe Words ſhare in all theſe Bleſſings add] Hence alſo it appears that the Apoſtle did not think they were ſo blinded or given up to a Spirit of Slumber, but that they might ſtill be ſaved.

(39) V. 21. Μήπως οὐδὲ σοῦ φείσεται, leaſt he alſo ſpare not thee] φόβος, Fear is to be repeated from the former verſe. So 1 Theſſ. 3. 5. I ſent to know your Faith μήπως ἐπείρασεν ὑμᾶς Subaud. φοβούμενος, fearing leaſt the Tempter ſhou'd have tempted you.

And whereas Dr. Mills contends the true reading is τῇ μνείᾳ τῶν ἁγίων, ſee this abundantly confuted in the Examination of him upon this place.

(41) V. 19. Avenge not your ſelves] When Phocion was condemned to die by the Athenians, ſome of his Friends deſired him to leave ſome Precept to his Son, how he ſhould demean himſelf. His Command therefore to him was μηδὲν Ἀθηναίοις μνησικακεῖν, not to remember the Injuries the Athenians had done him, and for this ſaith Ælian, every wiſe Man muſt, ὑπερθαυμάζειν τὸν ἄνδρα, very much admire the Man, Var. V. 18 Οὐ γὰρ τολμήσω λαλεῖν τι, for I will not dare to ſpeak any thing of what Chriſt hath not wrought by me.] The Criticks here tell us, that they take off the Force of the Apoſtle's Words, who render them, I dare not, becauſe that Intimates the Apoſtle had a mind to do ſo, but Fear witheld him; they therefore would have the Words rendred here, and Jude 9. οὐκ ἐτόλμησε Michael contending with the Devil durſt not bring againſt him a railing Accuſation; non ſuſtineo, I ſuffer not my ſelf, and he ſuffered not himſelf, but our Tranſlation may be juſtified, by a like Expreſſion of the ſame Apoſtle in the ſame Caſe, οὐ γὰρ τολμῶμεν ἐγκρῖναι, ἢ συγκρῖναι ἑαυτούς τισι, we dare not make our ſelves of the number, or compare our ſelves with ſome, who commend themſelves. 2 Cor. 10 12. And this doubtleſs, he ſaith, not to intimate that he and Timothy had a mind to do that themſelves, which there he repreſents as folly in others, but only to Intimate, that he did not think it fit, and prudent ſo to do, and therefore durſt not do it, and this Senſe the Word well bears, 1 Cor. 6. 15. and Jude 9. When he calls upon the ſimple to hear Wiſdom; chap. 8. 5. And promiſes to give Subtilty to the ſimple; chap. 1. 4. and when he adds, chap. 21. 11. when a Scorner is puniſhed, the ſimple is made wiſe, this expoſition being more pertinent to the Words, may be preferred before the other. CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 21.] Ἐπειδὴ γὰρ · 22. ἐπειδὴ καὶ ·] The Argument here seems to lie thus. The wise Men among the Greeks, the Scribe or Interpreter of Scripture among the Jews, are by this Dispensation convinced of Folly, and Insufficiency to give Men the Knowlege of saving Truth; ἐπειδὴ γὰρ, for since the World by all its Wisdom could not obtain the right Knowledge of God, he by this Dispensation hath given this saving Knowlege to Believers. And ἐπειδὴ καὶ, seeing also the unbelieving Jews for Confirmation of this Doctrine require a Sign, and the Greeks seek after humane Wisdom in it, and we preach a crucified Christ, who is on that account a scandal to those Jews, and in the Estimation of the unbelieving Greeks is Foolishness; yet is he, and his Doctrine to the believing Greeks, Christ the Wisdom of God, they seeing in it Wisdom sufficient to engage them to believe this Doctrine; and to the believing Jews the Power of God, they being convinced of its Truth by the Signs wrought in Confirmation of it, and with great reason do they so esteem it; for what the unbelieving Greeks deem Foolishness, hath more of sound reason in it, than all the Wisdom of the Greeks, or those who are accounted Wise-Men by the Jews have shewn; they, who by them are deemed Fools, having discovered that Wisdom of God in a Mystery, which they with all their Wisdom never knew, and that which they stile Weakness, is attended with such a visible Power of God, as enables it, without humane Power, or Wisdom, to prevail over all the Strength and Wisdom which Jew or Gentile can oppose against it.

Section I.

THE Imputation of Christ's active and perfect Obedience to us being in my Judgement a very false and pernicious Doctrine, and yet being of late propounded by an eminent and good Bishop as a thing absolutely necessary to our Justification, and to obtain a Title to eternal Life. I shall

1*st*, Lay down this Doctrine in the Bishop's own Words.

2*dly*, I shall endeavour to shew that it hath no Foundation in the Holy Scripture. And that the good Bishop hath produced nothing either from Scripture, or from Reason which is sufficient to confirm it. And,

3*dly*, That it is fully and directly contrary to Scripture and to Reason.

And 1*st*, The Bishop in the 8th Article concerning his private Thoughts of Religion;
p. 85 delivers this Doctrine in these Words. "He "(viz. the Son of God) being in and of "himself perfectly coequal, coessential, "and coeternal with the Father, was in "no sort bound to do more than the Father "himself did, and so whatsoever he should "do which the Father did not, might just-"ly be accounted as a Work of Supererо-"gation, N. B. which, without any Viola-"tion of Divine Justice, might be set on "the Account of some other Persons, even "of such as he pleased to do it for. And
p. 86. "hereupon, out of Mercy and Compassion "to fallen Man, he covenanted with his "Father, that if it pleased his Majesty to "accept it, he would take upon him the "Suffering those Punishments which were "due from him to Man, and the Perfor-"mance of those Duties, which were due "from Man to him; N. B. So that what-"soever he should thus humble himself to "do, or suffer, should wholly be on the ac-"count of Man: Himself being not any "ways bound to do, or suffer more in time "than he had from Eternity.

"This Motion the Father out of the "Riches of his Grace and Mercy was plea-"sed to consent unto; Add hereupon the "Son assuming our Nature into his Deity, "N. B. becomes subject, and obedient both "to the moral and ceremonial Laws of his "Father, and at last to Death it self, even "the Death of the Cross; In the one he paid "an active, in the other a passive Obedi-"ence, and so did not only fulfil the Will "of his Father in obeying what he had "commanded, but satisfied his Justice in "suffering the Punishment due to us for the "transgressing of it. His active Obedience "as it was infinitely pure and perfect, did "without doubt infinitely transcend all the "Obedience of the Sons of Men, even of "Adam too in his primitive State; for the
p. 88. "Obedience of Adam, make the best of it, "was but the Obedience of a finite Crea-"ture, whereas the Obedience of Christ was "the Obedience of one who was infinite "God as well as Man. By which means "the Laws of God had higher Obedience "performed to them, than themselves in "their primitive Institution required; for "being made only to finite Creatures, they "would command no more than the Obe-"dience of finite Creatures; whereas the O-"bedience of Christ was the Obedience of "one who was the infinite Creator as well "as a finite Creature.

"Now this Obedience being more than "Christ was bound to, and only performed "on the Account of those whose Nature "he had assumed, as we by Faith lay hold "upon it; so God, thro' Grace, N. B. imputes "it to us as if it had been performed by us "in our own Persons. And hence it is, that "as in one place Christ is said to be made "Sin for us, 2 Cor. 5. 21. So in another "place he is said to be made our Righteous-"ness, 1 Cor. 1. 30. and in the forecited "place, 2 Cor. 5. 21. as he is said to be "made Sin for us, so we are said to be "made Righteousness in him, but what Righ-"teousness? our own? No the Righteous-"ness of God radically his, but imputative-

" ly ours, and this is the only way whereby
" we are said to be made the Righteousness " of God, even by the Righteousness of
p. 88. " Christ; being made ours by which we are " accounted and reputed as righteous before " God. These things considered, I very " much wonder how any Man can presume
" to exclude the active Obedience of Christ
" from our Justification before God; as if " what Christ did in the Flesh was only of " Duty, not at all of Merit, or as if it was for " himself, and not for us; especially when I " consider that Suffering the Penalty is not " what the Law primarily required, for the " Law of God requires perfect Obedience,
" the Penalty being only threatned to, not " properly required of the Breakers of it;
" for let a Man suffer the Penalty of the " Law in never so high a manner, he is not " therefore accounted obedient to it, his " Punishment speaks not his Innocence, but " rather his Transgression of the Law. Hence
" it is that I cannot look upon Christ as ha" ving made full Satisfaction to God's Ju" stice for me, unless he had performed the " Obedience I owe to God's Laws, as well
" as born the Punishment that is due for my " Sins. For tho' he should have born my " Sins, I cannot see how that could deno" minate me Righteous or obedient to the " Law so as to entitle me to eternal Life,
" according to the Tenor of the old Law, do
p. 89 " this and live, N. B. which old Covenant " is not disanulled or abrogated by the Co" venant of Grace, but rather established,
" Rom. 3. 31. especially as to the Obedience
" it requires of us in order to the Life it
" promiseth, otherwise the Laws of God " would be mutable, N. B. and so come short " of the Laws of the very Medes and Per- " sians which altered not. Obedience there" fore is as strictly required under the New,
" as it was under the Old Testament, but " with this difference, there Obedience was " required in our own Persons, as absolute" ly necessary, here Obedience in our Surety " is accepted as completely sufficient: But " now if we have no such Obedience in " our Surety (as we cannot have if he did " not live, as well as die for us) let any " Man tell me what Title he hath, or can " have to eternal Life. I suppose he will " tell me, he hath none in himself, because " he hath not performed perfect Obedience " to the Law, N. B. and I tell him he hath " none in Christ, unless Christ hath perfor" med that Obedience for him, which none " can say he did, who doth not believe his " active as well as passive Obedience to " be wholly upon our account. Now these Words contain these several Propositions.

1*st*, " That the Son of God covenanted " with his Father that he would take upon " him the Obedience which was due from p. 86.
" Man to him, so that whatever he should " do, should be on the account of Man, and " that to this Motion the Father, of his " rich Grace and Mercy, was pleased to " consent.

2*dly*, " That he in persuance of this Co" venant; became obedient, and subject
" both to the moral, and ceremonial Laws
" of his Father, and so by his active Obe" dience to these Laws, fulfilled the Will
" of his Father in obeying what he had " commanded.

3*dly*, " That this Obedience of Christ was p. 86.
" perfect, and did infinitely transcend all 87.
" the Obedience of the Sons of Men, even " of Adam in his Primitive State, and so " Christ performed higher Obedience to the " Laws of God than was required of Man
" in the Primitive Institution.

4*thly*, " That this Obedience being more " than Christ was bound to, and being only " performed on the account of those whose " Nature he had assumed, it is by Virtue p. 87.
" of our Faith imputed to us, as if it had " been performed by us in our own Per" sons.

5*thly*, " That we are to be entitled to " eternal Life according to the Tenor of the " old Law, Lev. 18. 5. that old Covenant
" being not disanull'd, and abrogated by the p. 89.
" Covenant of Grace, but rather establish'd,
" Rom. 3. 31. especially as to the Obedience
" it requires from us in order to the Life
" it promises: And,

6*thly*, " That therefore Obedience is as Ibid.
" strictly required under the New, as it was " under the Old Testament, but with this " difference; there Obedience in our own
" Persons was required as absolutely neces" sary, here Obedience in our Surety is ac" cepted as compleatly sufficient.

7*thly*, " That no Man hath, or can have a " Title to Eternal Life unless Christ hath paid
" perfect Obedience to the Law for him,
" and so Christ could not have made full " Satisfaction to God's Justice for us, unless " he had performed the Obedience due to " God's Laws, as well as born the Punish" ment due to our Sins.

8*thly*, " That therefore the only way " whereby we are said to be made righte" ous with the Righteousness of God, is by " the Righteousness of Christ, being made " ours, by which we are reputed, and ac" counted righteous before God.

Having thus given you the state of the Question in the Bishop's own Words; I shall proceed briefly to consider what he hath laid down as the Foundation of this Doctrine, and then to make some brief Reflections upon these several Propositions.

Now the Foundation of this Doctrine is laid down in theſe Words; " He (i. e. the " the Son of God) being coequal, coeter- " nal, and coeſſential, with the Father (and " ſo depending not upon him either for his " Exiſtence, or Actions p. 83.) was in no " ſort bound to do more than the Father " himſelf did, and ſo whatſoever he ſhould " do, which the Father did not, might juſt- " ly be accounted as a Work of Supereroga- " gation, which, without any Violation of " Divine Juſtice, might be ſet upon the ac- " count of ſome other Perſons, even of ſuch " whom he pleaſed to do it for. Now " this is ſuch a Scheme of new Divinity as " as cannot eaſily be match'd.

For, 1*ſt*, Here is a God Coequal and Coeſſential with the Father, and who depends not on him either for his Exiſtence or his Actions, and therefore not God of God, but plainly another God, exiſting and acting independently on the Father, and ſo the Father cannot be, as ſaith (a) Dr. Bull, all the Fathers, without Fear pronounced him Principium, cauſa, ἀρχὴ, αἰτία, Auctor Filii & αἴτιον τοῦ εἶναι.

2*dly*, We have this God independent in Exiſtence (which is the ſame with Eſſence) and Actions on the Father bound to do ſo much as the Father, now all Obligation ariſing from a Law to which the Perſon bound is ſubject, by whoſe Law muſt this Coequal Perſon be bound to do ſo much!

3*dly*, This Independant God is ſaid to ſupererogate by doing more than he was bound to do: Now Supererogation ſuppoſes the Perſon ſupererogating under a Command, and exceeding the virtuous Action commanded; but how can he who is independent on any, both as to Exiſtence and Actions, be ſubject to the Commands of another. Moreover ſeeing the Father was not bound to create the World, or ſend his Son to be the Saviour of it, or to do any other thing which 'twas not neceſſary from the Perfection of his Nature to perform, why muſt not he in all theſe actions ſupererogate as well as his Coequal, independent Son.

2*dly*, That which merits from God muſt be ſomething from which he receives ſome Benefit or Advantage; but the Father is incapable of receiving any Advantage, from this ſuppoſed Supererogation of his Son. And, 3*dly*, that which merits for another, muſt oblige the Perſon of whom he merits in Juſtice to accept his Action for another; now God the Father cannot be obliged to accept this Action of his Son for us; becauſe it was not done by us, and ſo if he doth accept it as if it had been done by us, this muſt be perfectly of his free Grace, or as the Biſhop ſaith, out of the Riches of his Grace and Mercy. For the Obedience of Man to the Laws of God, was certainly a Perſonal Due, it being that which God required of him in Perſon; and therefore the Obedience of another to the Law given to him, and not to another, can do nothing to acquit him from the Performance of what God perſonally required of him and not of another, but by a pure Act of Grace: Nor can the Action of another be reckoned as done by him, but by a falſe Imputation; for ſuch muſt that be which imputes that as done by me, which indeed was not done by me, but by another. As therefore to ſpeak exactly, God doth not impute Chriſt's paſſive Obedience to us, or account that we have ſuffered, becauſe he did, but only doth exempt us from ſuffering becauſe he hath ſuffered in our ſtead; ſo neither can he impute the Obedience of another to us, or account that we have obeyed, becauſe another hath done it upon our account, but only exempt us from Obedience in Perſon upon that account. p. 86.

Laſtly, Here is a rich Fund for the Pope's Treaſury of meritorious ſupererogating Actions, that which the Papiſts have imagin'd to fill up this Treaſury, being only the Merits of Finite Men, whereas ſaith the good Biſhop, The Obedience of Chriſt was the Obedience of one that was infinite God as well as Man, the Obedience of one who was the infinite Creator, as well as a finite Creature. Yea, if any thing could be meritorious in reſpect to God, this Doctrine would render every good Action of a Beleiver meritorious, or an Act of Supererogation; for if as the Biſhop ſaith, under the new Covenant Obedience in our Surety is accepted, as compleatly ſufficient, and Chriſt hath performed that Obedience for us by which we have a Title to life eternal. All Believers who have by Faith laid hold on Chriſt, and ſo have his Obedience imputed to them as if performed by them in Perſon, muſt be entirely exempted from any Obligation to perform perſonal Obedience, and ſo all the Obedience they perform muſt be ſo many Acts of Supererogation. p. 87. p. 89.

To proceed now to the Conſideration of the Propoſitions plainly collected from his Words. Of which the firſt is this.

" That Chriſt Covenanted with the Father " that he would take upon him the Obedi- " ence which was due, from Man, to him; " ſo that whatever he ſhould do, ſhould " wholly be on the account of Man, and that " to this Motion the Father was pleaſed to " conſent.

This Propoſition is founded on a Chimerical Covenant, betwixt God the Father, and the Son, of which there is not the leaſt item in the Holy Scripture; and ſo the whole Scheme of this Doctrine, being built upon this vain Imagination, muſt be alſo vain.

2*dly*, This Covenant is alſo both in the Nature of the thing impoſſible, and in the immediate Conſequences of it irreligious. It is in the Nature of the thing impoſſible, that Chriſt ſhould covenant, to perform the Obedience due from Man to God's Law, for him, or in his ſtead; and that God the Father ſhould accept, and repute, what he thus did for him, as if performed by Man, perſonally; becauſe the Moral Law, the Law engraven on the Heart of Man, is indiſpenſible; it being abſolutely neceſſary, that Man ſhould be obliged, perſonally, to obey the Moral Law, and that God ſhould require him, in Perſon, ſo to do; and ſo no Promiſe of another to perform it for him, can avail any thing to exempt him from the Obligation he was, is, and ever will be under, to perform it perſonally: This is apparent from thoſe words of Chriſt, in which he gives us the Abridgment of the Law and the Prophets, viz. (a) Thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy Heart, and with all thy Mind, and with all thy Soul; and thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf: From the perſonal Obſervance of which Laws, who ever thought he was, or he could be, exempted by any thing which Chriſt had done for him? It therefore is profane, and irreligious, to ſay, that either the holy Jeſus made ſuch a Covenant, or that the Righteous God ever conſented to ſuch a Motion; or that the Obedience of our Surety, to the Moral Law, ſhould be accepted in the New Covenant, as compleatly ſufficient to give us a Title to eternal Life; this being, in effect, to ſay, that Chriſt, by his Obedience to the Moral Law, hath freed every one that believes in him, from his whole Duty to God, his Neighbour, and himſelf; and that God the Father hath conſented, that all ſuch Perſons ſhould be free from any Obligation, perſonally to live righteouſly, ſoberly, and godly, in this preſent World; becauſe what hath already been performed by their Surety, is compleatly ſufficient to denominate them righteous, or obedient to the Law, ſo as to entitle them to eternal Life; and ſo they cannot be obliged to a perſonal Performance of thoſe Duties, in order to that End, tho' the Apoſtle plainly ſaith, they are, Tit. 2. 12, 13. p. 88. 89.

2*dly*, When he ſaith, in the ſecond Propoſition, that Chriſt, by his active Obedience to God's moral and ceremonial Laws, fulfilled the Will of his Father, in obeying what he had commanded: Doth he mean what the Father had perſonally commanded him? If ſo, Chriſt himſelf muſt lie under a perſonal Obligation to fulfil both the moral, and the ceremonial Law; and ſo in doing this, he could do only what he himſelf was commanded to do, and could not merit for another; and ſo the only Reaſon, why the Biſhop wonders at them, who ſay, that what Chriſt did in the Fleſh, was only of Duty, muſt be this, becauſe, as he obſerves, that would exclude Chriſt's active Obedience from our Juſtification before God. If he mean what the Father had not commanded him, but only had required us to obey, then can he not be properly ſaid to have herein obeyed at all; Obedience, of neceſſity, importing a Relation to a Command laid upon him who is obedient; and much leſs could he fulfil that Command which was never given to him, and ſo the Father might ſay to him, in the Words of the Prophet, (b) Who hath required this at thy Hand? He himſelf declares, he had (c) received a Commandment from his Father, to lay down his Life for his Sheep; and in perſuance of it, (d) he became obedient to the Death, even the Death of the Croſs. And he who ſaith, Chriſt alſo did perform his active Obedience, on our account, and by that fulfilled the Will of his Father, in obeying what he had commanded for us, muſt produce a like Command of the Father, requiring him thus to obey for us; which is, 1*ſt*, needleſs, we being ſtill of neceſſity, under as ſtrong an Obligation of perſonal Obedience, to the moral Law, as a Rule of Duty, as we were before Chriſt performed that Obedience in his humane Nature. 2*dly*, It alſo neceſſarily infers a perſonal Exemption of all Believers, from any Obligation to obey the moral Law; the pernicious Conſequences of which Doctrine, hath been already ſhew'd. 3*dly*, It is contrary to the words of the Biſhop himſelf; for he affirms, p. 89. that under the old Teſtament Obedience, was required in our own Perſons, as abſolute neceſſary; and that this old Covenant was not diſanulled, but rather eſtabliſhed by the Covenant of Grace, eſpecially as to the Obedience it requires, in order to the Life it promiſeth. The Obedience then required under the old Law, as abſolutely neceſſary, in order to the Life it promiſeth, being Obedience to be performed in our own Perſons, to uſe the Biſhop's Words, who can ſee how the Obedience of Chriſt, that is of another in our ſtead, could denominate us righteous, or obedient to the Law, ſo as to entitle us to eternal Life, according to the p. 88. p. 88.

Tenor of the old Law, do this, in your own Perſons, and live. In a Word, we neither are, nor can be exempted from Obedience to the moral Law, as a Rule of Duty; but we are exempted from Obedience to it, as a means of Juſtification, or we are not exempted from an Obligation, to perform the Righteouſneſs of the Law, but only from the Curſe of the Law pronounced againſt them (a) who continue not in all things written in the Book of the Law to do them. And from this Curſe we are delivered, ſaith the Apoſtle, not by Chriſt's active and perfect Obedience to the Law, imputed to us, but by his Sufferings on the Croſs for us.

3*dly*, Of the Third Propoſition, that the Obedience of Chriſt did infinitely tranſcend all the Obedience of the Sons of Men, as being the Obedience of an infinite God. I ſhall only obſerve, at preſent, that tho' the Obedience of an infinite God, and infinite Creator, be abſurd Expreſſions (as importing a Subjection of this infinite God and Creator, to the Laws of ſome Superior, or paying infinite Obedience to his infinite ſelf) yet was it neceſſary to be aſſerted, that Chriſt's active Obedience might ſuffice, by reaſon of this ſuppoſed infinite Excellency, to be imputed to all Men; ſince otherwiſe, it being only that which every individual Man was perſonally obliged to perform, it could only have anſwered the Obedience required of one ſingle Perſon.

4*thly*, To the Fourth Propoſition, That the Obedience of Chriſt being more than he was bound to, it is by vertue of our Faith, imputed to us, as if it had been performed by us in our own Perſons: I anſwer,

1*ſt*, That it being certain, that the Obedience which God requires by Law from us, muſt be perſonal, (for where there is no Law requiring perſonal Obedience, there can be no perſonal Tranſgreſſion) whence it is evident, that there can be no Performance of perſonal Obedience, by a Surety, and therefore no true Imputation of his Obedience to us, but only an Exemption from any Obligation to that Obedience, which hath been performed for us, by our Surety.

2*dly*, When he ſaith, That this Obedience was more than Chriſt was bound to do, if he means this of the Obedience of the Divine Nature; this, if it be not that which was condemned in the Arian Hereſy, is a great Abſurdity in the Suppoſition; that he who is abſolutely Supreme, ſhould be obedient, i. e. ſubject to the Law of a Superior; if of Chriſt's humane Nature, in that he was certainly obliged to fulfil all Righteouſneſs, i. e. all things required of all Men, by the moral Law; this alſo was abſolutely neceſſary, to the Diſcharge of his Prieſtly Office, viz. that he ſhould be perfectly Righteous, and without Sin in his own Perſon; for ſuch an High Prieſt became us as was holy, ὅσιος, free from evil, undefiled, ſeparated from Sinners, who had no need to offer firſt for his own Sins, (b) ſince otherwiſe he muſt have died not for ours, but his own Sins; now that perſonal Righteouſneſs, which was abſolutely neceſſary, to render him a fit High-Prieſt, to offer a true Expiatory Sacrifice for our Sins, could not be more than he was bound to do, as our High-Prieſt.

5*thly*, That his Fifth Propoſition, which affirms, that we are to be entitled to eternal Life, by the Tenor of the old Law, do this, and live, &c. is a flat Contradiction to the Doctrine of St. Paul, in his Epiſtles to the Romans, to the Galatians, and to the Hebrews, will be hereafter fully manifeſted.

6*thly*. The difference betwixt the Juſtification, and Obedience required by the Old and the New Covenant, doth not conſiſt, as the Biſhop ſaith it is, in this, That the firſt Obedience, in our own Perſons, was required as abſolutely neceſſary; in the ſecond, Obedience in our Surety is accepted as compleatly ſufficient: But in this, That whereas the old Law required perfect Obedience, in order to our Juſtification, allowing no Pardon for Sins committed, but leaving all under the Curſe, who continued not in all things, written in the Law to do them, Gal. 3. 10. The New Covenant requires only Faith in the Blood of Chriſt, for the Remiſſion of our paſt Sins, as will be fully proved hereafter. And tho' the New Covenant doth not exempt us from the Moral Law, as a Rule of Duty; it being a Contradiction, to ſay that God permits us to omit our Duty, or tranſgreſs his Law, (ſince that Permiſſion would render Duty no Duty, and Tranſgreſſion no Tranſgreſſion) yet doth it accept of ſincere Obedience, pardoning the Sins of Ignorance and Infirmity, which ſtill cleave to our Duties, in this imperfect State; not for the Active, but Paſſive-Obedience of the Bleſſed Jeſus, according to theſe words of St. John: (c) If ye walk in the Light, as God is in the Light, the Blood of Jeſus Chriſt, N. B. cleanſeth you from all Sin. And again, (d) If we ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the Righteous, and he is the Propitiation for our Sins.

7*thly*, The ſeventh Propoſition will be proved falſe in every Branch of it, in the Third Section.

SECTION II.

HAving, in the foregoing Section, ſufficiently declared what is the Doctrine I reject, viz. That which aſſers, that Chriſt's active and perfect Obedience muſt be imputed to us, to eternal Life, or to Juſtification. I proceed,

2*dly*, To ſhew, that this Doctrine hath not the leaſt Foundation in the Holy Scriptures; now this I ſhall make evident, by a particular Conſideration of the Texts of Scripture produced by the good Biſhop, and other Patrons of this Doctrine, in favour of it. And,

1*ſt*, Whereas the Biſhop ſaith, that as
p. 87. Chriſt is ſaid to be made Sin for us, ſo are we ſaid to be made the Righteouſneſs of God in him, 2 Cor. 5. 21. and thence concludes, that the only way whereby we are ſaid to be made the Righteouſneſs of God, is by the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt's being made ours, by which we are accounted, and reputed as Righteous before God. I am ſorry to find he was ſo unacquainted with the true Import of either of theſe Phraſes, or ſo regardleſs of the Context. For,

1*ſt*, This Phraſe, the Righteouſneſs of God, doth never ſignifie the active Obedience, or Righteouſneſs by Chriſt, performed unto the Law, but always hath Relation to the Righteouſneſs of Faith, in oppoſition to the Law, or that Righteouſneſs, which is procured, by Faith, in the Blood of Chriſt, and accepted by God, to our Juſtification; thus Rom. 1. 17. ἡ δικαιοσύνη θεοῦ ἐκ πίστεως, the Righteouſneſs of God, thro' Faith, is reveal'd in the Goſpel, to beget Faith in us, as it is written, the Juſt ſhall live by Faith: Now theſe very words the Apoſtle uſeth to prove, that no Man is juſtified by Obedience to the Law, before God. For, ſaith the Scripture, the Juſt ſhall live by Faith, but the Law is not of Faith; but, in oppoſition to it, ſaith, Lev. 18. 5. The Man that doth theſe things ſhall live by them; which are the very Words the Biſhop uſeth to prove, againſt St. Paul, that we muſt be denominated righteous, or obedient to the Law, ſo as to have a Title to eternal Life, according to the Tenor of the
p. 88, Old Law, do this and live, Lev. 18. 5. So
89. again, Chap. 3. 21. ἡ δικαιοσύνη θεοῦ, The Righteouſneſs of God, without the Law, is manifeſted, being teſtified by the Law, and the Prophets, to wit, the Righteouſneſs of God, communicated to all Believers, by Faith in Chriſt's Blood, v. 22. we being juſtified freely, by the Redemption which is in Chriſt Jeſus, v. 23. in whom we have Redemption, thro' his Blood, even the Remiſſion of Sins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. God having ſet him forth for a Propitiation, thro' p. 117
Faith in his Blood; ſo evident is it, that the Righteouſneſs of God, twice mentioned, is that Juſtification God vouchſafes to us, thro' Faith, in Chriſt's Blood, ſhed for the Remiſſion of our Sins. Again, Rom. 10. 3. The Jews not knowing, τὴν δικαιοσύνην τοῦ θεοῦ, the Righteouſneſs of God, but ſeeking to eſtabliſh their own Righteouſneſs, which was by the Works of the Law, have not ſubmitted, τῇ δικαιοσύνῃ τοῦ θεοῦ, to the Righteouſneſs of God, which is the Righteouſneſs to be obtained by Faith in Chriſt. Now this Righteouſneſs of the Law, which the Jews ſeeking after, ſubmitted not to the Righteouſneſs of God, is, ſaith the Apoſtle, that which Moſes mentions, Lev. 18. 5. which ſaith the Man that doth theſe things ſhall live by them: So groſly doth the Biſhop miſtake, in ſaying, that this very Righteouſneſs was eſtabliſhed by the Covenant of p. 89
Grace. What is the Righteouſneſs of Faith the Apoſtles preached in oppoſition to it? Even a Belief that God hath raiſed Chriſt from the dead, v. 9. He dying for our Sins, and riſing again for our Juſtification, Rom. 4. 24. Can then any thing be more clear from the Apoſtles words, than that the Righteouſneſs of God thro' Faith, ſtands in direct oppoſition to the Righteouſneſs of the Law, which ſaith, do this and live; and therefore cannot conſiſt in Chriſt's perfect Obedience to the Law imputed to us, as our Righteouſneſs. And laſtly, Philip. 3. 9. ἡ ἐκ θεοῦ δικαιοσύνη, the Righteouſneſs of God, thro' Faith in Jeſus Chriſt, ſtands directly oppoſed to the Righteouſneſs of the Law, or to that Righteouſneſs which the Jews ſought for, by Obedience to the Law.

2*dly*, The Phraſe, He was made Sin for us, is only capable of theſe two Senſes: 1. He was made guilty of our Sins by Imputation, which I fear is the Biſhop's Senſe; partly, becauſe the oppoſite Imputation of Chriſt's Righteouſneſs to us, as if perſonally perform'd by us, is by him ſaid to be meant by our being made the Righteouſneſs of God in him; partly, becauſe he plainly ſeems to own it in theſe words: His Righ- p. 72.
teouſneſs being as really by Faith imputed to me, as my Sins were laid upon him; and then, as his Righteouſneſs is imputed to me, as if it had been perſonally performed by me, ſo my Sins muſt be imputed to him, as if they had been performed by him, and ſo he muſt be by God's own Imputation, guilty of ſo doing; Murther, Idolatry, Adultery, and all the other Sins committed by Mankind; which Blaſphemy will be more fully rebuked in the following Section: Or, 2*dly*, He was made ἁμαρτία, a Sin-offering, or expiatory Sacrifice for us, which is the frequent sense of the Word ἁμαρτία in the Levitical Law, concerning Sacrifices; and is here put upon the words, by all the Commentators I have seen. Now this Interpretation of the Phrase, relating to the Death of Christ, as an Expiatory Sacrifice, the proper and immediate Effect of it, cannot be the Imputation of the Obedience of Christ's Life unto us, but our Freedom from Condemnation, on the account of Sin, in which our Justification is still placed by the Apostle; for such an Effect must of necessity be signified by these words; We are made the Righteousness of God in him, which suits with the Cause of it, viz. the Death of Christ, as an Expiatory Sacrifice for the Remission of Sin, now the proper and direct Effect of such a Sacrifice, is Deliverance from the Guilt and Punishment of Sin, and not the Imputation of Christ's Active-Obedience unto Men: For Christ offered this Expiatory Sacrifice, not that men might be made Righteous by the Righteousness of Life, but that Sinners might be justified by his Blood, shed for the Remission of Sins, and reconciled to God by the Death of his Son, Rom. 5. 9, 10. This therefore must be the true Import of our being made the Righteousness of God in him. And,

3*dly*, This is farther evident from the Context; for God was in Christ, saith the Apostle, reconciling the World unto himself; How hath Christ done this? He hath, saith the Apostle, reconciled us to God in the Body of his Flesh by Death, Col. 1. 21. He adds, That God was thus reconciling the World to himself, by not imputing to them their Trespasses; Why did he not impute them? Because Christ, by his Death, had made an Expiatory Sacrifice for the Remission of them; for he saith, he made him a Sacrifice for Sin, who knew no Sin; whence it must follow, that we are made the Righteousness of God, in him, by the Reconciliation purchased for us by his Death, and the Non-Imputation of Sin to us, as the consequent of that Death.

And it may farther be observed, That every Branch of this Exposition is confirmed, and the Sense imposed on these words, by the Bishop, is plainly confuted by the Descants of the Ancient Commentators on this Place. For,

1*st*, They plainly say, that by the Word (a) ἁμαρτία, Sin, we are to understand τὸ περὶ ἁμαρτιῶν θῦμα, a Sacrifice for Sin; (b) non immerito peccatum factus dicitur, quia & hostia in lege quæ pro peccatis offerebatur, peccatum nuncupabatur, the Sacrifice offered in the Law, for Sin, being so called.

2*dly*, They add that to be made the Righteousness of God in Christ is, (c) δια συγχωρήσεως δικαιωθῆναι δι' αὐτῦ, to be justified by a Gracious Pardon thro' him: That this is the Righteousness of God, ὅταν τις χάριτι δικαιωθῇ ἔνθα πᾶσα ἁμαρτία ἠφάνισται, (d) when a Man is so justified by Grace, that all his Sin is made to vanish away.

3*dly*, They add, that we are then righteous with the Righteousness of God, when we are justified, μὴ ἐξ ἔργων νόμε, ἀλλ' ἐκ τῆ χάριτος τῦ θεῦ, not by the Works of the Law, but by the Grace of God.

Ἐκείνη μὲν ἡ παλαιὰ, νόμε καὶ ἔργων δικαιοσύνη αὐτὴ ἡ θεῦ δικαιοσύνη, the first, saith Chrysostom, is Justification by the Law; this, that of God. I conclude then in the words of Gataker against Gomarus, producing this very Text for the same purpose as the Bishop doth, quid fere clarius contra se producere poterat quam illud 2 Cor. 5. 21.

The second Text produced by the Bishop, contains these words, of him are you in Christ Jesus, who is made unto us of God Wisdom, and Righteousness, and Sanctification, and Redemption?

Answ. From these words it is evident, that Christ is in no other sense said to be made unto us Righteousness, than he is said to be made to us, Wisdom, Sanctification, and Redemption. Hence therefore, I retort the Argument thus: Christ is not here said to be made unto us of God, Wisdom, Sanctification, and Redemption, by his Wisdom, Sanctification and Redemption imputed to us; therefore he is not here said to be made our Righteousness by his Righteousness, or Active Obedience imputed to us. The Consequence is evident; for they who hence say, that Christ is made our Righteousness by his Righteousness imputed to us, have the same Reason to say from this Text, that he is made our Wisdom by his Wisdom, and our Sanctification by his Holiness, and our Redemption by his Redemption imputed to us. The Antecedent is also evident; For, 1*st*, it is evidently absurd to say, we are made wise by the same Wisdom with which Christ was wise imputed to us.

And 2*dly*, If we are made Sanctification by the Holiness of Christ imputed to us, there can be no necessity, that we our selves should have our Fruit unto Holiness, that the end may be eternal Life, Rom. 6. 22. Nor can it be true, that Without personal Sanctification, no Man shall see the Lord. Heb. 12. 14. nor could it be necessary, that he should give up himself to the Death, for his Church, that he might sanctifie her, Eph. 5. 25, 26, 27. He having done this compleatly, by the Holiness of his Life imputed to her. And, 3*dly*, The Redemption here mentioned being distinguished from, and following Justification, and Sanctification, ctification, it must import the Redemption of the Body from Corruption; now is it not absurd to say, that the Redemption of Christ's Body from Corruption, is imputed to us; and will it not hence follow, that we are not to expect any personal Redemption of our own Bodies from Corruption. It remains then that we say, (a) with the Ancient Commentators, that Christ is made to us Wisdom, by being, αἴτιος τ σοφίας, the Author of our spiritual Wisdom of our Justification, τ ἁμαρτιῶν τ ἄφεσιν δωρησάμενος, (b) by procuring for us by his Death, that Remission of Sins, in which consisteth our Justification, our Sanctification, τὸ πνεῦμα χαριζόμενος, by giving us the Spirit of Sanctification, and our Redemption, by procuring for us, τ ἀπολύτρωσιν τ σωματοποιήσεως, the Redemption of Life, or of our Bodies, from Corruption into the Glorious Liberty of the Sons of God, Rom. 8. 21, 23.

3*dly*, Whereas the Bishop argues, that the Old Covenant, which saith, do this and live, Lev. 18. 5. is not disannull'd, or abrogated by the Covenant of Grace, especially as to the Obedience it requires from us in order to the Life it promiseth; because the Apostle saith, Rom 3. 21. Do we then make void the Law, thro' Faith? Nay we establish the Law, and because otherwise the Laws of God would be mutable. One would wonder how he could fall into so plain a Contradiction, to the express words of the Apostle, in his Plea for Justification by Faith, and not by the Works of the Law; in his frequent Declarations, not only of the Freedom of Christians from the Yoke of the Law, but also of the Necessity of the Change of the Law; and much more how he could do it from those words, which considered with the Context, are a full Confutation of his Doctrine. For,

1*st*, The Apostle saith twice expressly, that the Righteousness of the Law, which he disputes against, and by which no Man can be justified before God, is that very Righteousness, which saith, Lev. 18. 5. The Man that doth these things, shall live in, and by them; see Rom. 10. 5. Gal. 3. 12.

2*dly*, St. Paul having declared, that the Law was only given till the promised Seed should come, Gal. 3. 19. and that he being come, we were no longer under the Pædagogy of the Law; that Christians were dead to the Law, thro' the Body of Christ, Rom. 7. 4. that it was evacuated, 2 Cor. 3. 11. and they were loosed from the Law, that being dead wherein they were held, Rom. 7. 6. that they were redeemed from it by Christ, Gal. 4. 5. and ought no more to be subject to that Yoke of Bondage, or return to those beggarly Elements, vi 9. Chap. 5. 1. that it was only to continue to the time of Reformation, Heb. 9. 10. that the Priesthood being changed, there was a Necessity of the change of the Law, Chap. 7. 12. and that there was a disannulling of the Commandment going before, because of the weakness and unprofitableness of it, v. 18. and that God, by speaking of a New Covenant, πεπαλαίωκε, had pronounced the first Old; and that that which decayeth, and waxeth old, was ready to vanish away, Chap. 8. 13. and lastly, That there was to be a Removal of those things which were shaken, i. e. of the Law given with the shaking of the Earth, Chap. 12. 25, 26, 27. with many things of a like nature; that after all this, the Bishop should so positively say, That the Covenant of Grace had not disannull'd, but establish'd this Old Law; and speak of it as an Absurdity, that those Laws of his should be mutable, which he himself declared were only to continue till the promised Seed should come, and till the time of Reformation, is matter of just Admiration. And,

3*dly*, This is still the Infelicity of the Assertors of this Doctrine, that the Texts they produce for it, considered with Relation to the Context, are the fullest Confutation of it. For the Apostle is proving, from v. 20. of this Chapter, to the end of the 40th, that no Flesh can be justified by the Works of the Law, v. 20. and that the Justification, which is of God, is manifested to be by Faith, without the Works of the Law, and he concludes the Argument of this Chapter thus, λογιζόμεθα ἄν, we reckon therefore, from the Premises, that a Man is justified by Faith, without the Works of the Law, v. 28. Now can he, who is only justified by the Works of the Law accounted as if performed by himself, be justified by Faith alone, without the Works of the Law? The Ancient Commentators here say.

1*st*, That the Apostle, by the Word (c) ἱστῶμεν, we establish, or make the Law to stand, shews it to be, κείμενον, σαλευόμενον, καταλελυμένον, fallen, shaken, and dissolved; and that (d) non evacuit legem cum illam cessare debere jam docet; and that he doth not make void the Law, by teaching that it must now cease.

2*dly*, They give two Senses of these Words; 1*st*, That he established the Law, by establishing the Work of the Law, which was, δίκαιον ποιῆσαι τ ἄνθρωπον, to make Man righteous; for the Law being not able to do this thro' the Infirmity of the Flesh, Rom. 8. 3. subjecting all Men to sin, Faith hath performed it, ὁμῶ γὰρ τις ἐπίστευσε καὶ ἐδικαιώθη; for as soon as a Man believes, he is justified; fied; ſo Chryſoſtom, Oecumenius, and Theophylact.

2*dly*, We eſtabliſh the Law by Faith, ſaith Theodoret, becauſe the Law and the Prophets have given in their Teſtimony to the Juſtification by Faith, Rom. 3. 21, 22. the Law, by giving us the Knowledge of Sin, v. 20. the Prophets, by ſaying, Hab. 2. 4. the Juſt ſhall live by Faith, and ſo becoming our School-maſter to bring us to Chriſt, who is the end of the Law, εἰς δικαιοσύνην, for Juſtification, Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 4. 24. δεχόμενοι τοίνυν ἡ πίστιν βεβαιοῦμεν ἡ νόμον, ſo that by embracing Faith, we eſtabliſh the Law, ſaith Theodoret. And this I conceive to be the trueſt Interpretation of the Text.

4*thly*, The Biſhop argues from the Title of Surety Given to Chriſt, Heb. 7. 22. For, p. 90. ſaith he, " A Surety is bound to pay our " Debt, in caſe we are inſolvent. Now " there are two things we owe to God, 1*ſt*, " Obedience to his Laws, and he is our " Creator and Governour: And; 2*dly*, and by " conſequent, the Puniſhment that is annex- " ed to the Breach of thoſe Laws, of which " we are guilty. Now tho' Chriſt ſhould " pay the latter part of our Debt for us, " by bearing the Puniſhment that is due un- " to us; yet if he did not pay the former, " and principal Part of it too, i. e. per- " form the Obedience which we owe to " God, he would not fully have performed " the Office of Suretyſhip, which he under- " took for us, and ſo would be but an half " Mediator, and half Saviour. Now here " it may deſerve to be obſerved.

1*ſt*, That the Biſhop cites this Paſſage, to prove our Obligation, to perform Obedience to the old Law, from a Chapter which expreſly teacheth, v. 12. that the Prieſthood being changed, there was a neceſſity of the Change of the Law, v. 12. and that there was a diſannulling of the Commandment, by reaſon of the weakneſs, and unprofitableneſs of it, v. 18. and that the Law made nothing perfect, v. 19.

2*dly*, This Paſſage is produced to prove, that Chriſt was our Surety for the performance of the Old Covenant; whereas the Text ſaith expreſly, he was the Surety of a better Covenant, which introduced a better Hope, v. 19. and was eſtabliſhed upon better Promiſes, Chap. 8. 6. even a New Covenant oppoſed to the Old, as to that, which was ready to vaniſh away; and which, thro' his Death, procured the Remiſſion of Sins, committed under the Old Covenant, Chap. 9. 15.

3*dly*, Ἔγγυος, a Sponſor, ſay the Civilians, is only one that promiſeth for another, and ſo he is obliged to do no more for him than he promiſed: And I have ſhew'd already, that neither could Chriſt promiſe to yield perfect Obedience to the Law for us, nor could the Father conſent that we ſhoud be accounted as obedient to it upon ſuch a Promiſe. And laſtly, his phanſy, that we can ſtand bound, to yield perfect Obedience to the Law, ſo as never to offend; and yet to undergo the Puniſhment due to all our Tranſgreſſions; and that without doing both, no Satisfaction can be made to Juſtice, and no Title to eternal Life can be procured, will be proved falſe in the enſuing Section; at preſent therefore, I ſhall only add, that it ſeems to me as ridiculous, as to ſay a Thief cannot ſatisfie the Law by being hang'd, unleſs he alſo did yield perfect Obedience to the Law, which ſaith, Thou ſhalt not ſteal.

This is all that the Biſhop hath produced to confirm this Doctrine; others produce ſome other Arguments from Scripture, which ſhall here briefly be conſidered, as v. g.

1. That the Apoſtle teacheth, that as by one Man's (Adam's) Diſobedience many were made Sinners, ſo by the Obedience of one many ſhall be made Righteous; (a) but Men were made Sinners by the Diſobedience of Adam imputed to them; therefore by the active Obedience, or Righteouſneſs of Chriſt imputed to us, we muſt be made Righteous.

Anſw. This is the only Text of Scripture which ſpeaks of the Obedience of Chriſt, and of our being juſtified, or made righteous by it, and ſo hath any true appearance of an Argument; and yet that it is only an appearance, is evident from this one Conſideration, that the Apoſtle, in that whole Chapter, ſpeaketh not one word of the antecedent Obedience of Chriſt's Life, but only of his paſſive Obedience, i. e. his Obedience to the Death.

For the Apoſtle having ſaid, Chap. 4. 24. That Chriſt was delivered to Death for our Sins, and raiſed again for our Juſtification: He adds, Chap. 5. 1. that being juſtified by this Faith in Chriſt's Death, we have Peace with God; he dying for Sinners, and for the Ungodly, v. 6. 8. and we being juſtified by his Blood, and reconciled to God by his Death, v. 9, 10. and then follows this Compariſon, with a διὰ τοῦτο, intimating, that it was made upon the account of our Lord's ſalutary Paſſion, and ran thus: That as Death, the Puniſhment of Sin, paſſed upon all Men, by reaſon of one Sin of one Man; ſo thro' one Righteouſneſs of one Jeſus Chriſt, the free Gift came upon all Men to Juſtification of Life, v. 18. and this Juſtification is, ſaith the Apoſtle, ἐκ πολλῶν πολλῶν παραπτωμάτων, from many Transgressions and what can Justification from Offences signifie, but Freedom from the Condemnation due unto us for them; now that can never be obtained for Sinners by Christ's active Obedience, for could we, after many Offences committed, perform as perfect Obedience as Christ did, we only could thereby perform our Duty for the future, but could do nothing to procure the Pardon of our past Offences. 3*dly*, The Disobedience by which many were made Sinners, is plainly declared by the Apostle to be one single Act of Disobedience in Adam, and therefore the Obedience opposed to it cannot in reason be the active Obedience of Christ's whole Life, but that Obedience to the Death which the Apostle mentions, Philip. 2. v. 8. now by this passive Obedience we cannot be made formally righteous, but only metonymically, by being made Partakers of that Freedom from the Guilt and Punishment of Sin, and of that Reconciliation which Christ hath purchased by his meritorious Death and Passion.

2*dly*, I answer that it was not by Adam's active Disobedience imputed to us, that Death or Condemnation to it passed upon all Men, but by the Punishment he suffered for that Disobedience, as will be fully proved hereafter; for he being by that Disobedience made mortal, and obnoxious to Death, γεγόνασιν ἐξ ἐκείνου πάντες θνητοὶ, all that were begotten of him became mortal, say all the Greek Commentators here; and so by the Obedience of Christ to the Death in their stead, who were thus obnoxious to Death, or by his Suffering that Death which was the Punishment of Sin, we became justified, i. e. exempted from that Punishment.

Object. 2. 2*dly*, Whereas it is said, Rom. 8. 3, 4. that Christ by being made Sin for us, i. e. a Sacrifice for Sin, condemned Sin in the Flesh that the Righteousness of the Law might be fulfilled in us, &c. Hence some conclude, that Christ's active Obedience must be imputed to us; for, say they, the Righteousness of the Law can in no sense be said to be fulfilled in, or by us, but only by Christ's perfect Obedience to the Law imputed to us.

Answ. The Text by no means will admit of this Interpretation. For,

1*st*, The Righteousness here mentioned is not to be fulfilled, ἐν Χριστῷ, in or by Christ, but ἐν ἡμῖν, by us personally.

2*dly*, It is not to be fulfilled by the Imputation of Christ's Righteousness to us, but by our walking in the Spirit, for to be spiritually minded is Life, v. 6. and if thro' the Spirit we do mortifie the Deeds of the Flesh, we shall live, v. 13. for as many as are led by the Spirit of God they are the Sons of God, v. 14. and being Sons are Heirs of God, Joint-Heirs with Christ, and to be glorified with him, v. 17. Whence it is exceeding evident, that the Righteousness here mentioned is to be fulfilled not by the Imputation of the Righteousness of another to us, but by our own Obedience perform'd by the Assistance of God's holy Spirit.

Section III.

I Hope I have returned a sufficient Answer to the Texts alleged to prove the necessity of the Imputation of Christ's active and perfect Obedience to the Law to us for Righteousness.

It remains now that I should propound those Arguments which, in my Judgment, seem fully to confute that Doctrine, and they are these.

Arg. 1. (1*st*,) This Doctrine is contrary to all those Scriptures, which expresly say, that Faith is imputed to us for Righteousness, and which prove this from the Example of Abraham the Father of the Faithful: For they inform us, that Abraham believed in God, and it (i. e. this Faith of his) was imputed to him for Righteousness, Rom. 4. 3. and v. 5. that to him that worketh not but believeth in him that justifies the ungodly (that is in God the Father, for it is God that justifieth, Rev. 8. 33.) his Faith is imputed to him for Justification, and v. 9. we saying then that Faith was imputed to Abraham εἰς δικαιοσύνην for Justification, and v. 20. 22. He was strong in Faith giving Glory to God, wherefore it (i. e. this Faith) was imputed to him for Justification. Whence the Apostle makes this general Conclusion, that what the Scripture saith of Abraham, viz. that his Faith was imputed to him for Righteousness, was not written for his sake alone, but for us also to whom it (that is the like Faith) shall be imputed (for Righteousness) if we believe on him who raised up Jesus from the dead, (that is on God the Father.) In the 3*d* Chapter of the Epistle to the Galatians he repeats the same example of the Faith of Abraham, saying Abraham believed in God, and it (i. e. his Faith in God) was imputed to him for Righteousness, v. 6. and thence he makes Inference, Know therefore that they who are (the Children) of Faith, are the Sons of Abraham, and v. 9. that they who are of Faith are blessed with faithful Abraham. And v. 24. He adds that the Law was our Schoolmaster to bring us to Christ, that we might be justified by Faith, the Scripture foreseeing that God would justifie the Gentiles thro' Faith. Now hence,

1*ſt*, It is evident that the Doctrine of Juſtification by the very Act of Faith is expreſly, and frequently delivered in the Holy Scriptures, whereas it hath been proved already that the Doctrine of the Imputation of Chriſt's active Righteouſneſs to us for Juſtification, hath no Ground in Scripture..

2*dly*, What Interpretation of the Apoſtle's Words can be more uncouth and unſound than this, Faith is imputed to us for Righteouſneſs, i. e. it is not Faith, but Chriſt's active Righteouſneſs which is imputed to us for Righteouſneſs. Is not this evidently to convert the Apoſtle's Affirmative, into a Negative, to deny conſtantly, what he as conſtantly aſſerts, and to make him always mean what in relation to Juſtification, He doth never ſay? To him that believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his Faith, ſaith the Apoſtle, is imputed; 'tis not his Faith, ſaith this Interpretation, but Chriſt's Righteouſneſs which is thus imputed? And how then doth God juſtifie the ungodly, if he only juſtifies them who have as true a Title to Chriſt's perfect Obedience as if they had perſonally performed it, and upon that account alone are juſtified, can they be ſtyled the ungodly who are, and muſt be as righteous as Chriſt was, before they can be juſtified?

3*dly*, This Interpretation cannot poſſibly agree to the Faith of Abraham; for 'tis not only ſaid that he believed in God, not in the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt, but that his Faith was in that God who quickens the dead, and calleth the things that are not as if they were, v. 17. that he was ſtrong in Faith, being fully perſuaded, that what God had promiſed, he was able to perform. It therefore is evident, that it was Faith in God's Promiſe, and in his Power to perform it, by which Abraham was juſtified. Now what Affinity hath this Faith with Chriſt's Obedience to the Law, not yet given as the Apoſtle argues, Gal. 3. 17. tho' it hath an evident Affinity with God's Promiſe of juſtifying him that believeth in Jeſus, and who believeth in that God who hath raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, Rom. 4. 24?

Arg. 2. 2*dly*, This will be farther evident from all thoſe places which ſhew, that our Juſtification conſiſts entirely in the Remiſſion of Sin, and that to be juſtified, and to be freed from Condemnation, or to have the Guilt and Puniſhment of our Sins remitted, are Phraſes of the ſame import. This we may learn,

1*ſt*, From thoſe Arguments by which the Apoſtle proves, that Jew and Gentile are to be juſtified by Faith without the works of the Law, viz. (1*ſt*,) becauſe both Jew and Gentile lay under Sin, Rom. 3. 9. and ſo both needed to be juſtifyed by Faith, or by an Act of Grace, pardoning their Sins, thro' Faith in Chriſt, v. 24. that therefore by the Law no Fleſh can be juſtified, becauſe by the Law is the Knowledge of Sin, rendring us obnoxious to Condemnation; where then there remains the Guilt of Sin, there can be no Juſtification; where therefore there is a Remiſſion of the Guilt of Sin by God, there is Juſtification. Again, All have ſinned, ſaith he, and fallen ſhort of the Glory of God, therefore Abſolution from this Sin muſt be ſufficient to make us obtain this Glory of God. We who have thus ſinned are juſtified, ſaith he, freely by his Grace, thro' the Redemption which is in Chriſt Jeſus, v. 24. Now what is this Redemption? It is, ſaith the Apoſtle twice, Remiſſion of Sins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. To the ſame effect, he ſaith, Gal. 3. 21, 22. that Juſtification cannot be by the Law becauſe the Law cannot give Life; and this it cannot do, becauſe the Scripture hath concluded all under Sin, and ſo hath ſhut out that way of being juſtified. Our Freedom therefore from the Guilt of Sin muſt be ſufficient for our Juſtification to Life. In his 4*th* Chapter to the Romans he deſcribes that Juſtification, in which Faith is accounted to us for Righteouſneſs, by the Non-imputation and Forgiveneſs of Sin, and proves this from the Words of David, ſaying, Bleſſed is the Man whoſe Iniquity is forgiven, and whoſe Sin is covered; Bleſſed is the Man to whom the Lord imputeth no Sin, from v. 4. to v. 8. Since then the Bleſſedneſs of which the Apoſtle there diſcourſeth, is that of Juſtification of the ungodly by Faith; and ſince this Bleſſedneſs is ſaid to conſiſt in the Remiſſion, the covering, the not imputing his Sin to him, it cannot reaſonably be denyed, that the Bleſſedneſs of a juſtified Perſon is here deſcribed by the Bleſſedneſs of a pardoned Perſon, as being one and the ſame thing.

2*dly*, This will be farther evident from the Conſideration of the Phraſes the Apoſtle uſeth as equivalent to Juſtification, and Interpretative of it. As

1*ſt*, Reconciliation to God; that this is the ſame with Juſtification appears by theſe words, much more being juſtified by his Blood we ſhall be ſaved from Wrath by him, for if when we were Enemies, we were reconciled to God by the Death of his Son, much more being reconciled we ſhall be ſaved by his Life, Rom. 5. 9. 10. where being juſtified by his Blood, and being reconciled by his Death, ſeem plainly the ſame thing; now that Reconciliation is effected by the Remiſſion of Sins is evident from theſe Words, 2 Cor. 5. 19. God was in Chriſt reconciling the World to himſelf, not imputing their Treſpaſſes to them, and therefore Juſtification muſt be ſo obtained.

2*dly*, Juſtification ſtands directly oppoſed to Condemnation in theſe Words, who ſhall lay any thing to the Charge of God's Elect, τις ἐγκαλέσει κ̄ϛ, who ſhall object a Crime againſt against them? It is God that justifieth, who is he that condemneth them? Rom. 8. 33, 34. And again, if the Ministration of Condemnation, i. e. the Law which renders us obnoxious to Condemnation, was glorious, much more the Ministration, ἡ δικαιοσύνης, of Justification exceeds in Glory: Now what is it that Mankind is accused of, or charged with by the Law but Sin? What do they stand condemned for at God's Bar, but the Transgression of his Law? Justification therefore, which stands opposed to it, must be a clearing and discharging them from the Guilt, or the condemning Power of Sin.

3*dly*, Justification is said to be from Sin, by him all that believe are justified, ἐκ πάντων, from all those Sins from which they could not be justified by the Law of Moses, Act. 13. 39. and again, the Judgment was from one Sin to Condemnation, but the free Gift to Justification, ἐκ πολλῶν παραπτωμάτων, from many Sins, Rom. 5. 16. Now what can Justification from Sin signifie besides our Absolution from the Guilt of Sin?

4*thly*, The justifying the Believer, and the Remission of his Sins are only different Expressions of the same thing, as is apparent from these Words, God hath justified us freely by his Grace, having set forth Christ to be the Propitiation for our Sins, thro' Faith in his Blood, to declare his Righteousness in the Remission of Sins to those who have this Faith, Rom. 23, 24, 25. i. e. to manifest the way of Justification by Faith which he alone admits of for the Remission of Sins.

5*thly*, We are justified, saith the Apostle, thro' the Redemption that is in Jesus, thro' Faith in his Blood, Rom. 3. 24, 25. thro' his Blood, Rom. 5. 9. Now what doth this Blood procure for us? Remission of Sins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. it being shed for the Remission of Sins, Mat. 26. 28. What Benefit have Believers by it? He hath loved them and washed them from their Sins in his own Blood, Rev. 1. 5. He hath made Peace for them by the Blood of the Cross, Colos. 1. 20. With a God only angry for Sin. He hath obtained eternal Redemption from Transgressions by it, Heb. 4. 12, 15. by all which equivalent Expressions it appears that God's justifying the Sinner, in St. Paul's Sense of the Expression, is his absolving him from the Guilt of his past Sins, from Punishment and Condemnation by the Law for them, by an Act of Grace and free Pardon of them thro' the Blood of Jesus, his being as fully reconciled to us as if we never had offended against the former Covenant we were all under, till that new Covenant was established in the Blood of Jesus, which promises God would be merciful to our Iniquities, and would remember our Sins no more, Heb. 8. 12.

Now this Observation perfectly destroys the Imputation of Christ's active Obedience to us for Righteousness, since they who contend for that Doctrine do make Remission of Sins but one half of Justification, and Christ's active Obedience imputed to us still necessary to procure us a Title to eternal Life; and that by the first, God only looks upon us as perfectly innocent, and therefore not p. 72. fit to be cast down to Hell; whereas by the other he looks upon us as perfectly Righteous, and therefore fit to be brought up to Heaven. 2*dly*, These two things are plainly needless, and even inconsistent; for he that is discharged from the Guilt of all his Sins, must also be discharged from that penal Death which is the Wages of Sin, and so must by that Freedom have a Title to Life; for between Freedom from Condemnation, and Absolution, Freedom from the Death due to Sin, and the Gift of Life in subjects capable of either, (a) there is no medium. Moreover either this want of Righteousness is our Sin, or it is not; if it be not, then is it not our Duty to be thus righteous in order to our Justification before God: So neither can we be under that Covenant which saith, do this and live, nor can Christ's active Obedience be necessary on that account, if it be our Sin, then must the want of it be forgiven by the Remission of all our Sins; whereas if God requires that Christ's perfect Obedience should be imputed to us, the want of it neither is, nor can be forgiven, since then God must impute that as Sin to us. And hence ariseth a third Argument against the Imputation of Christ's active, and perfect Obedience to us for Justification, viz.

Arg. 3. That it renders the Death of Christ to procure the Remission of our Sins vain, and that upon manifold accounts.

1*st*, Because the perfect Righteousness of Christ imputed to us, doth render his Death unnecessary to procure any farther Righteousness or Justification in our Behalf; for if by virtue of this Imputation we be as righteous as Christ was in his Life, there can be no more need that Christ should die for us, than that he should die for himself, or any other should die for him; yea then Christ dying only for the Benefit of Believers could not have died for the unjust, but only for the just, i. e. for them for whom there could be no necessity that he should die, but only that he should live for them; seeing Faith in him as a Mediator performing perfect Obedience to the Law for them, must make them for whom whom there could be no necessity that he should die, but only that he should live for them; seeing Faith in him as a Mediator, performing perfect Obedience to the Law for them, must make them for whom he thus obeyed, perfectly Obedient, and therefore must have given them a full Title to the Promise, do this and live. Add to this, that perfect Obedience is unsinning Obedience, and sure there can be no necessity, that Christ should die for the Sins of them, who by his Life had performed unsinning Obedience. To strengthen this Argument, consider that Christ performed his active Obedience to the Law, entirely before he suffered for our Sins; and so this Righteousness being first performed, and purchased for us, should be first imputed, and made over to us; and might, for any thing I can perceive to the contrary, have been imputed to all that believed in him before he actually suffered; yea to all such Persons, tho' he had returned to Heaven without dying. For seeing nothing more can be required to a perfect Justification, from the Condemnation of the Law, than a perfect Righteousness, i. e. a perfect fulfilling of the Law, there could be no need of Satisfaction made to divine Justice, for any Violations of it, since that must necessarily suppose that Law not perfectly fulfill'd by Christ, upon their account.

2*dly*, According to this Doctrine, there remains no place for the Remission of Sins to Believers, for God neither did, nor could forgive any Sin in Christ, because he was perfectly righteous, and in him was no sin; if then Believers be righteous with the same Righteousness, imputed to them, with which Christ was righteous, they must be as compleatly righteous as Christ was, and so have no more Sin to be pardoned than he had, and so no more need to be pardoned than he had; whereas the Apostle saith, That if we Christians sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the Righteous, and he is the Propitiation for our Sins; (a) thus doth that Doctrine destroy Christ's Intercession for us, according to the words now cited; and also the necessity of his salutary Passion, according to those words of St. Paul, if Righteousness, i. e. Justification, come by the Law, then Christ is dead in vain; for if Righteousness cannot come by the Law, it cannot come by Christ's perfect Obedience to the Law; but if it can, then the Apostle's Inference is plainly this, that Christ is dead in vain, i. e. there could be no necessity of his dying upon this account, that we had personally transgressed the Law, since he who hath a Righteousness, or an Obedience to the Law imputed to him, as perfect as was that of Christ, can be no more condemn'd for transgressing the Law, than Christ himself.

3*dly*, According to this Doctrine, God can see no Sin in Believers; for certain it is, he saw no Sin in Christ: If then Believers be Righteous, with a Righteousness as perfect as Christ's was imputed to them, he can see no more Sin in them, than he beheld in Christ.

4*thly*, This Doctrine renders it unnecessary for a Believer to repent, at least, of sins committed after he truly hath believed: For our Repentance must suppose an antecedent Failure, since that time, in our Obedience; whereas, there being no such Failure in the active Obedience of Christ, if that, by Imputation, be made as much; and truly the Obedience of Believers, as if they personally had perform'd it, there can be no Failure in the Obedience of a Believer, and so no Place for his Repentance. The perfect Obedience which Christ performed to the Law, was the Reason why he needed no Repentance, if then, thro' Faith, it be as much theirs by Imputation, as if they personally had perform'd it, must it not be equally a Reason, why they need no Repentance. Lastly, The Assertors of this Doctrine say, Christ's perfect Obedience must be imputed to Believers, that they may have a just Title to eternal Life, by virtue of this Precept, do this and live: This Title he, who is a Sinner, i. e. a Violator of the Law, requiring perfect Obedience, can never have; and therefore, he who needs Repentance cannot have it, that being only needful for the Remission of Sins, and that we may live and not die.

Argum. 4. 4*thly*, This Doctrine renders it unnecessary, to have any personal inherent Righteousness; for as Christ's passive Obedience, sustained in our stead, makes it unnecessary, if not unjust, that we should personally suffer any Punishment for the Remission of those Sins, which render us obnoxious to Death; so in like manner must Christ's active and perfect Obedience to the Law imputed to us, render it as unnecessary, that we should personally be righteous, by doing Righteousness, that we may live; for if we can be as righteous as Christ was without doing Righteousness; surely we need not be more than so; yea, then we may have a Title to Life eternal, without any inherent Righteousness; and so there can be no need of having our Fruit unto Holiness, that the end may be eternal Life.

p. 86. form thoſe Duties which were due from Man to God, provided what he thus did, ſhould wholly be put on the account of Man; and the Father was pleaſed to conſent to this Motion. Can the Father, after this Conſent, require that Man himſelf ſhould perform all, or any of thoſe Duties, to God, which Chriſt already had performed on his account? If, as he ſaith, p. 87. Chriſt performed that Obedience, only on the account of thoſe, whoſe Nature he had aſſumed, as they, by Faith, lay hold upon it; and God, by Grace, imputes this Obedience to them, as if it had been performed by them in their own Perſons. Can God require, that after Chriſt's Performance of it perfectly, they ſhould imperfectly perform the ſame again? Or after the Imputation of Chriſt's perfect Obedience to them, as fully as if they had performed it perſonally, require that they ſhould perform it perſonally? When Chriſt, by his Obedience imputed to them, hath entituled them to eternal Life; as he ſaith, p. 88. Can it be ſtill neceſſary, that they ſhould have their Fruit unto Holineſs, that the end may be eternal Life, Rom. 6. 22. when as he ſaith, p. 89. Under the New Covenant, Obedience in our Surety, is accepted as compleatly ſufficient; can perſonal Obedience be required of us by the ſame Covenant?

To ſay that Faith will put the Perſon, that is, poſſeſſed of it, upon Obedience to God, is nothing to the purpoſe; for the Queſtion is, not what Faith will do, but what he is obliged to do; who by this Faith is as much entitled to Chriſt's perfect Obedience, as if it had been perſonally performed by him? And what God, after this perfect Obedience, imputed to him, can require him to do, in order to that eternal Life, which this perfect Obedience imputed, hath given him a certain Title to, whether it be neceſſary for him, after this, by patient continuance; in which doing, to ſeek for Glory and Immortality, that he may have eternal Life, (a) and thro' the Spirit, to mortify the Deeds of the Fleſh, that he may live; (b) and to live righteouſly, ſoberly and godly, in this preſent World, that he may comfortably expect the bleſſed Hope; (c) I conclude then in the words of the beloved Apoſtle, good Chriſtians, let no Man deceive you; not he who applies Chriſt's active Righteouſneſs to himſelf, tho' he never did it; but, he that doth Righteouſneſs, is righteous, even as he (i. e. Chriſt) is righteous. (d)

Argum. 5. 5thly, It is a thing impoſſible, that by the Obedience of another imputed to us, we can obtain a Title to the Life promiſed by that Law, which ſaith, do this and live.

1ſt, Becauſe the Law requires perſonal Obedience, that we may live, by ſaying, The Man that doth theſe things ſhall live by (doing) them: And this the Biſhop grants, by ſaying, The Obedience the Old Covenant p. 89. required, as abſolutely neceſſary, was that of our own Perſons; whereas the Obedience of another cannot be our perſonal Obedience, nor can it be imputed to us, but by the Relaxation of the Law, which requires of us perſonal Obedience; and ſo our perſonal Obedience, which is the only thing required by the Law, muſt be remitted, that we may be made righteous, with the Righteouſneſs of another. To make this farther evident, let it be noted, that Men do generally miſtake, when they ſay, Chriſt, by his Sufferings, in our ſtead, made Satisfaction to the Law, which ſaid, In the Day thou eateſt thereof thou ſhalt die the Death: This he could not poſſibly do, becauſe the Law expreſly ſaith, the Soul that ſinneth he ſhall die; and only threatneth Death to the Perſon that violates the Law. He indeed made a Satisfaction to divine Juſtice, by ſuffering in our ſtead, that Death, which Juſtice might have perſonally inflicted upon us; but then this Admiſſion of another, to ſuffer in our ſtead, is a full Relaxation of that Law, which required us perſonally to ſuffer, and an entire Remiſſion of the Puniſhment the Law required of us perſonally; and ſo is it alſo in this Caſe, 3dly, Becauſe the Law requires unſinning Obedience, ſaying, Curſed is the Man that continueth not in all things written in the Law to do them, (e) not promiſing any pardon to the Sinner; ſo that unleſs Chriſt's Righteouſneſs imputed to us, can make us never to have been Sinners, and ſo never to have needed Forgiveneſs of Sin, it cannot afford us a legal Righteouſneſs. Hence the Apoſtle Apostle saith, Christ hath redeemed us from the Curse of the Law, not by his Continuance in all things written in the Law to do them, but by suffering the Punishment which the Law threatned to Offenders, to wit, by being hanged on the Tree.

Argum. 6. 6thly, This Doctrine partly answers, and partly confutes all the Arguments which the Apostle useth in his Epistles to the Romans, and the Galatians, to prove that Justification must be by Faith only, and not at all by the Works of the Law: For,

1*st*, This Doctrine destroys that Argument of St. Paul, by which he proves, that no Man can be justified by the Works of the Law, because all Men have sinned, and therefore stand condemned by the Law of Works; affording a full Answer to it, by saying, that tho' we could not be thus justified by our own personal Obedience, we might be justified by Christ's active Obedience imputed to us, that being perfect Obedience to the Law.

2*dly*, Whereas, neither the Apostle, nor the Holy Scripture saith, that Christ was righteous or obedient to the Law, for us, or that by his Obedience to the Law, imputed to us, we are made legally righteous, but absolutely denies that Righteousness could have been by the Law, because the Law could not give Life; for saith St. Paul, Gal. 3. 21. had there been a Law which could have given Life, verily Righteousness, i. e. Justification to Life, should have been by the Law. This Doctrine plainly contradicts those words of the Apostle, by introducing a Necessity of perfect Obedience to the Law, that we may live; and contending that we must be entitled to eternal Life, according to the Tenor of that Law, which saith, do this and live, p. 88, 89.

3*dly*, Whereas this Doctrine makes it necessary, that the Reward should be of Works, as well as of Grace, yea of the Works of that Law, which saith, do this and live. St. Paul puts these things in an absolute Opposition to each other, and represents the one as entirely destructive of the other. For, saith he, to him that worketh, the Reward, is not reckoned, κατὰ χάριν ἀλλὰ κατὰ ὀφείλημα, of Grace, but of Debt; but to him that worketh not, but believeth in him that justifies the ungodly, his Faith (without Works) is imputed for Righteousness, even as David speaketh of the Blessedness of the Man to whom the Lord imputeth Righteousness, χωρὶς ἔργων, without Works, Rom. 4. 4, 5, 6. whereas God cannot impute Justification, or Righteousness, to any, without Works, if he impute it to them only to whom Christ's perfect Works of Righteousness belong: Nor can this Righteousness be of Grace, thro' Faith, and not of Debt, if it belongs to them only who are Debtors to fulfil the whole Law; since the Apostle saith expressly, that they who are thus Debtors to fulfil the Law, or sought for Justification, by fulfilling it, are fallen from Grace, Gal. 5. 4. Nor can it be here said, that they were not indeed Debtors to fulfil it personally, but only to have that Obedience, by which Christ fulfilled it, imputed to them: For the Apostle saith, in the immediate preceding words, Christ is become of none effect to you, whosoever of you are seeking to be justified by the Law; whereas he could not be of none effect to them, who was the only Person by whom they were enabled to perform that Law to their Justification. Again the Apostle puts this plain difference betwixt that Righteousness, which is by Faith, and by the Works of the Law; that the first requires only believing from the Heart to Salvation; the second requires Works excluding Grace, by saying, He that doth these things shall live by (doing) them, Rom. 10. 5. 9, 10. whence he argues thus; that if Justification be of Grace, it is not of Works, otherwise Grace is no more Grace; and if it be of Works, it is not of Grace, otherwise Work is no more Work, Rom. 11. 6.

4*thly*, This Doctrine flatly contradicts all the places in which the Apostle positively asserts, that by the Works of the Law can no Man be justified, but by Faith only, or by Faith without the Works of the Law; as Rom. 3. 20. 22. 24. for if a Man be justified by the Righteousness of Christ imputed to him, he must be justified by the Works of the Law, because the active Obedience of Christ consists, as truly, in the Performance of those Works, as our own personal Righteousness would have done. Moreover, if the Righteousness of God consisted in the Imputation of Christ's legal Righteousness, it could not be manifested, as the Apostle saith it is, without the Works of the Law; because, to such a Righteousness, the Works of the Law are plainly necessary.

So again, when he saith, Gal. 2. 16. Knowing that a Man is not justified by the Works of the Law, but by the Faith of Jesus Christ, even we our selves have believed in Christ, that we might be justified by the Faith of Christ, and not by the Works of the Law. Doth not this Doctrine contradict these Words, by teaching that we are to be justified by the Works of the Law perform'd by Christ, and imputed to us, as if we personally had perform'd them; for Christ's Performance of them, alters not the Nature and Property of the Works, they being still the Works of the Law; whosoever doth them, and so he that is justified by them, done by another in his stead, must be still justified by the Works of the Law.

Note also here, That the Apostle doth not say, a Man is not justified by the Works of the Law, but by the Works of Jesus Christ, or not by the Works of the Law, as performed by us, but only as performed by Christ; but on the contrary saith, We have believed, that we might be justified by the Faith in Christ, and not by the Works of the Law, excluding the Works of the Law from Justification by Faith in Christ; whereas this Doctrine makes Faith entitle us to the Works of the Law, performed by Christ, and made over to us for our Justification.

3*dly*, When the Apostle argues thus, that no Man is justified by the Works of the Law is manifest, because the Scripture saith, the Just shall live by Faith, but the Law is not of Faith, i. e. it speaks nothing of, and promiseth no Justification to any Man by Faith; but (only) saith the Man that doth these things (which are required of him, by the Law) shall live by (doing) them, Gal. 3. 11, 12. Doth not that Doctrine fully contradict these words, which saith, The Man that is justified by Faith, must do the things required by the Law, that he may live, and must have a true Title to a perfect Observance of the Law, in order to that end?

4*thly*, When the Apostle saith, if they who are (Observers) of the Law be Heirs, (with faithful Abraham, who was justified by Faith) Faith is made void, as being insufficient to justifie us without the Observation of the Law, Rom. 4. 14. Doth not this Doctrine say also, that Faith is insufficient to justifie us, without the Observation of the Law, and so as plainly make void Justification by Faith? Doth it not also make them Heirs, who are Observers of the Law, as having Life by virtue of a legal Righteousness imputed to them, as fully as if it had been personally performed by them?

And tho' these things are so clear, that they need no farther Confirmation, yet may it here be noted, That whereas not one of these Scriptures can be wrested from the plain Sense they literally bear, or from asserting, that no Justification can be had by the Works of the Law, but by this Distinction, that true indeed it is, that no Justification can be had by the Works of the Law, personally performed by us, but it may be had by the perfect Obedience of Christ imputed to us. The Apostle, throughout this whole Discourse against Justification by the Works of the Law, never gives the least Hint of this Distinction: And whereas the Bishop places the better half of Justification, to wit, that which gives us a Title to eternal Life in this perfect Righteousness of Christ imputed to us by Faith; the Apostle mentions not one Word of this in either of his Epistles, but in both sums up the matter so as plainly to demonstrate that he meant no such thing. For in his Epistle (a) to the Romans he thus concludes, τί ἐν ἐροῦμεν, what is it then that we say, even this, that Israel following after the Law of Righteousness hath not attained to the Law of Righteousness, because they sought it not by Faith, but as (if) it were (to be obtained) by the Works of the Law. Now might they not according to this Doctrine, that the works of the Law perform'd by Christ are upon our Faith imputed to us for Righteousness, as truly as if they had been personally performed by us, have sought it both by Faith, and by the Works of the Law? In his Epistle (b) to the Galatians he concludes thus, stand fast therefore in the Liberty (from the Observance of the Law to Justification) in which Christ hath made you free, and be not again entangled in the Yoke of Bondage; behold I testifie to you that if you be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing, mark the Reason, v. 3. For every one that is circumcised is a Debtor to do the whole Law: Whence the Argument runs thus, Him that is a Debtor to do the whole Law, Christ will profit nothing, but (saith the Bishop) every Christian is a Debtor to perform the whole Law, (for what else can be the import of these Words) p. 89. the old Covenant which saith, do this and live, Lev. 18. 5. is not disannull'd, but rather established by the Covenant of Grace, especially as to the Obedience it requires from us in order to the Life it promiseth, therefore (according to the Apostle) Christ can profit him nothing. Now how could the Apostle have made this inference, had he believed as the Bishop did, that even Faith it self could profit us nothing without entitling us to that Obedience which the Law requires from us, as performed by Christ our Surety: Surely this Doctrine saith, in full Contradiction to St. Paul, that nothing but Christ's active Obedience can profit us as to the Life, which the Law promiseth, and that for this very reason, that we are still Debtors to perform the whole Law. In fine, the great Indignation of the Jews against the Apostle for teaching the Doctrine of Justification by Faith, was this, that by it he made void the Law as to Justification, but had he only sought it in the sense of the Bishop, he had as the Bishop contends, not disannulled but rather had established the Law even as to Justification of Life, and so must rather have ingratiated himself with than so incensed the Jews against him. Since

Since then he must have said what would have been highly acceptable to them, viz. that their Law was still of a perpetual and necessary Obligation even in order to Justification, and that Christ himself had so established it as to enable both us and them to yield perfect Obedience to it in order to that Life it promised.

Arg. 7. 7thly, The Apostle saith expressly, Rom. 3. 24. that we are justified freely by God's Grace thro' the Redemption that is in Christ Jesus, i. e. thro' the Remission of Sins purchased by his Blood, for we have Redemption thro' his Blood, even the Remission of Sins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. and v. 25. that God hath set forth Christ as a Propitiation thro' Faith in his Blood, that he might be the Justifier of him that believeth in Jesus, and chap. 5. 9. that we are justified by his Blood, and reconciled to God by his Death, v. 10. that Christ hath redeemed us from the Curse of the Law by suffering that Death the Law pronounced accursed, Gal. 3. 11. that Christ entring once into the holy Places by his Blood, hath purchased eternal Redemption for us, Heb. 9. 12. And that thro' Christ's Will to suffer for us, we are sanctified thro' the Offering of the Body of Christ, Heb. 10. 10. ascribing our Justification, our Reconciliation to God, our Propitiation, our Redemption, from the Curse of the Law, our eternal Redemption, our Sanctification in the sacrifical Sense, i.e. our Freedom from the Guilt of Sin, for which alone we can be condemned to die, to the Death and Blood of Christ. Now all this, saith the Bishop, makes him but an p. 90. half Mediator, or half Saviour; this indeed, says he, frees us from Death, but gives us no Title to eternal Life. Hence is it, saith he, that I cannot look upon Christ as having made full Satisfaction to God's Justice for me, unless he had performed the Obedience I owe to God's Laws, as well as born the Punishment that is due to my Sins, &c. p. 88. so that according to the Bishop, Christ cannot have redeemed us from the Curse of the Law by his Death for us, or by his Blood have obtained eternal Redemption for us, that being certainly Redemption from dying for ever, or ἀπολύτρωσις τ῀ ϖϱοιήσεως, Redemption of Life, Eph. 2. 14. And if our Saviour's Blood, and Passion gives to Believers no Title to eternal Life, why doth the Apostle say that we have Freedom to enter into Heaven by the Blood of Jesus, Heb. 10. 19. and that by his Death undergone for the Redemption of Transgressions, we receive the Promise of an eternal Inheritance, Heb. 9. 14. Moreover when God justifies from the Guilt of Sin, i. e. from transgressing the Law, what Charge can the Law lay against us, as having not performed what it required? Can God be propitious, and fully reconciled to us by the Blood shed for us, and yet exclude us from his blissful presence? Can Christ have brought us nigh to God, and made him at Peace with us thro' the Blood of the Cross, Eph. 2. 13, 15. and yet exclude us from the Glory of God, who having Peace with him rejoice in the Glory of God? Rom. 5. 1, 2.

Arg. 8. 8thly, This Doctrine renders it impossible that God should make a Covenant of Grace with Man, and consequently asserts that Christians must be under the same Obligations as ever to perform the Covenant of Works, and this the Bishop p. 89. not only asserts, but contends for. For how can a Man be more under the Law, and under the Covenant of Works, than by being under an Obligation to do all that the Covenant of Works requires, and to yield perfect Obedience to the Law, that he may be accounted righteous before God: Whereas the Apostle saith expressly, we are not under the Law but under Grace, Rom. 6. 1. that δικαιοσύνη, Justification is by Faith that it might be of Grace, Rom. 4. 16. that we are justified freely by the Grace of God, not thro' the active Obedience, but thro' the Redemption that is in Christ Jesus, i. e. thro' the Remission of Sins procured by his Blood, that by Grace we are saved thro' Faith not of Works, Eph. 2. 8. And in fine, that if Justification be by Grace, then is it not of Works, Rom. 11. 6.

And this is still more evident from this Consideration, that this Doctrine plainly makes both the two Covenants the same, for where the Parties covenanting are the same, the thing covenanted for, is the same; if the Conditions of the Covenants be the same, the Covenant must be the same: Now here it is certain that the Persons Covenanting, to wit God and Man, are the same; the thing covenanted for Life, and Acceptance with God, are the same; if then the Condition of both, do this and live, be the same (which is the thing asserted p. 89.) the Covenants themselves must be the same.

Nor is it material to answer here in the Bishop's Words, that the Condition of the first Covenant was this, do this in your own Persons, and live: The Condition of the New only do this by your self, or by your Surety, and live; for even this disjunctive was also contained in the first Covenant, or it was not; if it was, then the Condition of the first Covenant could be only that which is said to have been the Condition of the second also, i. e. do this by thy self, or by another, and live. If it were not, then the doing this by another could not make us legally righteous; because the Law required this Obedience in our own Persons, saith the Bishop, p. 89. as absolutely necessary; and so Christ's Obedience to the Law imputed to us, but not performed by us, could not fulfil that Law which only ſaith, do this in your own Perſons, and live. And evident it is that the allowing another to do that Duty for me, or in my ſtead, which I owe perſonally to God, is as truly an exempting me from doing that Duty in my own Perſon, as the allowing another to ſuffer the Puniſhment due to my Sins in my ſtead, is an exempting me from ſuffering that Puniſhment in my own Perſon. And had the Biſhop attended to his own Words, he would have ſeen this Conſequence for his Argument, p. 82. "That one Man can merit by that "which another performs is a plain Contra- "diction; for in that he merits, it is as ne- "ceſſarily implyed that he himſelf acts that "by which he is ſaid to merit; but in that "he depends upon another's Action, it is as "neceſſarily implyed that he himſelf doth not "do that by which he is ſaid to merit. By changing the Word Merit into obey, runs thus, that one Perſon can obey the Law by the Obedience which another performs, is a plain Contradiction; for in that he obeys, it is neceſſarily ſuppoſed that he himſelf doth that by which he is ſaid to obey; but in that he depends on the Obedience of another for the performing that which the Law requires of him, it is as neceſſarily ſuppoſed that he himſelf doth not do that by which he is ſaid to obey the Law.

Arg. 9. 9thly, As the Foundation of this Imputation is precarious, there being no evidence in Scripture of ſuch a Covenant as is here mentioned, p. 86. but only a Command laid upon Chriſt that he ſhould lay down his Life for his Sheep, ſo is there in the Scripture no ſuch Notion of Imputation as is here ſuppoſed. For, 1ſt, Whereſoever this Phraſe occurs affirmatively, that ſuch a thing was imputed to ſuch a Perſon, it is ſome perſonal Action or thing which is thus ſaid to be imputed: As when it is ſaid, Rom. 2. 26. if the Uncircumciſion (i. e. the uncircumciſed Perſon) keep the Righteouſneſs of the Law, his Uncircumciſion, εἰς περιτομὴν λογισθήσεται, ſhall be accounted for Circumciſion, i. e. he ſhall be as well accepted, as if he were circumciſed. So Rom. 4. 3. Abraham believed God, and it (that is his Faith) was imputed to him for Righteouſneſs; for ſo it is explained, v. 5. in theſe words, to him that worketh not, but believeth, his Faith is imputed to him for Righteouſneſs, and v. 9. we ſay that Faith was imputed to Abraham for Righteouſneſs. So alſo Gal. 3. 6. Jam. 2. 23. and of our Faith in him who raiſed Chriſt from the dead, it is ſaid, Rom. 4. 24. it ſhall be imputed to us for Righteouſneſs.

I alſo add that the Righteouſneſs of one cannot be truly thus imputed to another, by him who ſpeaks of things as they truly are. God indeed may and often doth good to one, eſpecially in Temporals, for the Righteouſneſs of another, as he did to the Jews for the ſake of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, and at the Prayer of Moſes and Aaron, in which Senſe ſaith St. James the effectual fervent Prayer of a righteous Man availeth much, Chap. 5. 16. He alſo ſheweth Mercy to the Poſterity of them that fear him, for their Parents ſake, but he neither doth, nor truly can λογίζεσθαι, reckon, or repute them righteous, becauſe Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, or their Parents were ſo; becauſe as Sin, ſo Righteouſneſs is a perſonal Action or an Habit inherent in the Subject that doth it. And therefore to remove the common Inſtances which are uſually produced with Relation to this matter, I add as the Concluſion of what I ſhall offer on this Subject, Laſtly, That in the Holy Scripture there is no mention of the Imputation of any Man's Sin, or Righteouſneſs to another, but only of the Imputation of his own good Deeds for Righteouſneſs, or of his evil Deeds for Puniſhment. And therefore I ſay, 1ſt, That it cannot truly be affirmed, that we all ſinn'd in Adam, and by his Diſobedience were made Sinners; becauſe his Sin, and Diſobedience was imputed to us: for I have ſhew'd already that the Scripture no where maketh the leaſt mention of any thing of any others imputed to us, but only of ſome perſonal Thing or Action of our own accounted to us for Reward or Puniſhment. Moreover this Imputation either makes the Sin of Adam truly ours, or it doth not; if it doth not, how can we be made Sinners by it? If it doth, then Death came upon us for our own Sin, and ſo not for the Sin of one, but for the Sin of all. Whereas the Apoſtle ſaith expreſly, that Death came upon us, διὰ τοῦ ἑνὸς παραπτώματος, by the Sin of one, Rom. 5. 15, 17. διὰ ἑνὸς ἁμαρτήσαντος, by one Man ſinning, v. 16. and διὰ ἑνὸς παραπτώματος, by one Offence of that one Man, v. 18. 3dly, I ask whether this Imputation made the Poſterity of Adam Sinners, or whether it found them ſo before? if it found them ſo before, it muſt be plainly needleſs. Seeing then they might have been condemn'd to Death without it: If it made them ſo, then ſince this Imputation is the Act of God, and not of Man, it plainly follows, that God muſt be the Author of that Sin; becauſe this Imputation flows immediately from him, without the Intervention of any Action on the Part of any of thoſe Men to whom it is imputed: Moreover then the Imputation muſt be falſe, as charging them with Sin, whom he did not find Sinners, but only by his Arbitrary Imputation made them ſo. Now far be it from any Chriſtian to aſſert that God ſhould falſly impute Sin to any Man. In a Word, λογίζεσθαι, imputare, is to reckon or account any thing to any Man, to charge him with it, or lay the Charge of it to him; this therefore on God's Part muſt ſuppoſe in the very Nature of it, ſome Action done by the Poſterity of Adam which is blame worthy, and may be juſtly charged upon them, before there can be any Ground for Imputation of it, and this ſhews that it is impoſſible that this Imputation ſhould be the very thing that renders them blame worthy, or Perſons worthy to be charged with Guilt, and yet if the Sin of Adam becomes ours only by Imputation; it muſt be ours only becauſe it is by God imputed to us, and not imputed, becauſe it is ours, that is, God by this Imputation muſt make us Sinners, and not find us ſuch: for this imputation is the Action of the Judge, and not of the ſuppoſed Criminal; remove or take away this Action, and no Crime can be charg'd upon him. In fine, if the Sin of Adam becomes ours only by Imputation, it deſerves Condemnation only by the ſame Imputation, that is, by the Action of God; that therefore we deſerve Condemnation for it, is to be aſcribed directly to the Action of God, and only by accident to the Action of Adam; whence therefore is our Deſtruction, according to this Opinion, but of God who makes us worthy of Condemnation by imputing to us that Sin which by his Imputation only we ſtand guilty of.

2*dly*, It cannot truly be affirmed that our Sins were ſo imputed to Chriſt when he became our Surety, as that he became Partaker of the Guilt of them, but only ſo as that he ſuffered the Puniſhment which was due unto us for them. It being abſolutely neceſſary not only in the Caſe of Chriſt, but of all vicarial Puniſhments, to ſeparate the Puniſhment from the Guilt; for tho' a Man may become obnoxious to the Puniſhment, or Sufferings of another by an innocent Conſent, he can never partake of the Guilt of another's Action, but by a criminal Conſent unto it; and ſo far as he ſuffers for that Action of which he becomes guilty by this criminal Conſent, he ſuffers for his own Sin, becauſe that Conſent made the Sin his own; whence in ſuch Caſes he ſuffers not as a Subſtitute, but as a Party. Seeing then our Bleſſed Lord could not be guilty of any criminal Conſent to any of our Actions, it is impoſſible that he ſhould contract the Guilt of Sin by his Conſent to ſuffer for us, when therefore the Prophet ſaith, (a) that God laid on him the Iniquity of us all, we are to underſtand this only of the Puniſhment, or the Chaſtiſement of our Sin, and to extend this farther, and ſay with ſome, that by his Conſent thus to ſuffer, he ſuffered for thoſe Sins which he had truly made his own, is not only falſe for the forementioned Reaſon, but is contrary to the whole Tenure of the Scripture, which ſaith negatively, that he was (b) ſuch an High-Prieſt, who was holy, undefiled, ſeparate from Sinners, and who needed not to offer up Sacrifices for his own Sins, that he was in all things like to us, χωρὶς ἁμαρτίας, Sin only excepted, that we are redeemed by the precious Blood of Chriſt, as of a Lamb without Spot or Blemiſh; that he did no Sin, that he knew no Sin, that he ſuffered the Juſt for the Unjuſt; and affirmatively that he died not for his own, but for our Sins, (c) that he ſuffered for our Sins according to the Scriptures; He ſuffered for the Sins of the Unjuſt; he was the Propitiation for our Sins, and made Reconciliation for the Sins of the People. In a Word, This Aſſertion borders upon Blaſphemy, for if Chriſt made all our Iniquities his own, he made himſelf as guilty, and as great a Sinner as were all the Sinners, for whoſe ſake he ſuffered. Nor is it any Refuge here to ſay, he was the greateſt Sinner only by Imputation of Sin to him, not by Commiſſion of Sin perſonally. For as the Righteous God cannot impute Sin to him who did no Sin, and gave no criminal Conſent to the Sin of others; or whom he doth not firſt look upon as a Sinner, and a guilty Perſon; ſo is it not conſiſtent with the Virtue, the Intent, and Nature of our Saviour's Sufferings, that God ſhould look upon him as a Sinner, and a guilty Perſon; for then he muſt have looked upon him as one who had deſerved to die for his own Sin, or as one guilty of Death, and then his Death could have made no Satisfaction for the Sin of others; yea, then he muſt have ſuffered Death, not for our Sins, as they were ours, but as they were his own by Imputation; whereas the Scripture always ſaith, he ſuffered Death for our Sins, but never for his own by Imputation, or Inheſion. I conclude therefore, in the words of (d) Biſhop Davenant, and (e) Doctor Outram, that Chriſt was willing ſo far to take our Sin upon him; non ut inde peccator, ſed hoſtia pro peccato conſtitueretur; not as to be made a Sinner, but only a Sacrifice for Sin by and for them.

(3) V. 7. We ſpeak the Wiſdom, ἣν προώρισεν ὁ Θεὸς πρὸ τῶν αἰώνων, which God hath ordained before the World to our Glory, after Theodoret add,] Hence alſo it ſeems plain, that God hath appointed his Goſpel for the Salvation of all, to whom it is revealed; for tho' the Apoſtle chargeth many of the Church of Corinth with thoſe things that would exclude them, without Repentance from this Glory, yet he excludes none of them from being by God ordained, or appointed to receive Glory by it.

(4) V. 9. Eye hath not ſeen,] After the Firſt of St. John 3. 2. add, Yea the words of Iſaiah 64. 4 in their primary Senſe may only intimate, that no Man, by his own Senſe, or Reaſon, or by Inſtruction from others, can diſcern any other God beſides the true God, or know what Kindneſs he will afford them that wait on him. And both the Context, and the Appoſition of theſe Words to the Revelation of theſe things by the Spirit, ſhew the primary Intent of the Apoſtle to be this, that no humane Wiſdom, by any thing that may be ſeen, heard of, or conceived by us, can acquaint us with the things taught by the Holy Spirit, without a Revelation.

(5) V. 16. Ὃς συμβιβάσει αὐτὸν, That he may inſtruct him.] Tho' theſe words in the Prophet Iſaiah do certainly refer to God, they lying in the Hebrew thus; Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord? And (who is) the Man of his Council, that hath made him to know, Chap. 40. 13, 14. yet as they are varied here thus, who hath known the Mind of the Lord? Who will (or can) direct him? They ſeem plainly to refer to the ſpiritual Man, and to affirm, that he could not be inſtructed in the Myſteries of the Goſpel by any human Wiſdom. (1ſt.) Becauſe our knowing of the Mind of Chriſt from him, may enable us to direct others; but not that Lord who affords us this Knowledge. (2dly.) Becauſe this is plainly introduced as a Proof, that the ſpiritual Man can be judged, or diſcerned by no other Perſon, who is not ſpiritual, and therefore muſt reſpect not God, but him.

CHAP. III.

(6) V. 2. Οὔπω γὰρ ἠδύνασθε, For yet you could not, add, bear it.] So in the Old Teſtament, lo ochal is often uſed, i. e. I cannot, or, I would not, where endure, or bear it, is underſtood; ſo, Job 31. 23. by reaſon of his Highneſs I could not, ſup. endure, Pſal. 101. v. 5, him that is of an haughty Eye, and proud look, I cannot, Iſa. 1. 13. The calling of Aſſemblies, I cannot, i. e. bear.

V. 3. After theſe words, receive ſome Illuminations from him, add,] Or as one that is not purely governed by the Revelation made by the Spirit, but rather walks κατ' ἄνθρωπον, as a Man attending not the Dictates of the Spirit, but of human Reaſon, or of his natural Inclinations, for that this is the genuin Import of that Phraſe, to walk as Men; ſee Note on Rom. 3. 5. 1 Cor. 9. 8. (7)

V. 9. Θεοῦ γεώργιον, God's Husbandry.] This I think is better rendred God's Field, by (a) Chryſoſtom, Oecumenius, and Theophylact, who hence infer, that the Field is God's; the Apoſtles only, γεώργοι αὐτοῦ, his Labourers ſent forth to labour in it, and enabled by him for that Work; and that they ought as a Field to be fenced, ἐνὶ τῷ φραγμῷ τῆς ὁμονοίας, with the Hedge of Concord, and not be divided into Parties. Accordingly the Word anſwers to the Hebrew Shadeh: So Prov. 24. 30. I went by γεώργιον, the Field of the Slothful; and Chap. 31. 16. The wiſe Woman conſidereth, γεώργιον, a Field, and buyeth it. (8)

CHAP. IV.

V. 5. After theſe words, which it belongs not to us to judge of, add,] And this appears both from the words, and the occaſion of them; from the words, for they reſpect the hidden things of Darkneſs, and the Councils of the Heart, of which no certain Judgment can be paſſed. From the occaſion of them, they paſſing their Cenſures on St. Paul, v. 3. and queſtioning his Fidelity in his Office, v. 2. of whom they had no Authority ſo to judge, nor any occaſion ſo to judge. CHAP. V.

V. 1. After the word indifferent, add] It is conjectured, that this Woman co-habiting with her Son-in-law, had divorced her ſelf from her Husband; and true it is, as I have obſerved, Note on Chap. 7. 11. that the Attick Laws allowed the Woman to do this, but then ſhe was firſt to bring, τὰ ἀπολείψεως γεγράμματα, the Cauſes why ſhe deſired to leave her Husband before the Archon, or Judge of ſuch Matters, and to have his allowance ſo to do; if this Step-mother did not this, ſhe was ſtill her Husband's Wife, if ſhe did, and the cauſes ſhe alledged were allowed of by the Judge; this freed her from that Relation to her former Husband, and (10) and then he suffered no wrong by this Action, as the Apostle intimates that he did, by stiling him, ἀδικηθέντα, the Person that had suffered wrong, 2 Cor. 7. 12.

(11) V. 6. Ὀυ καλὸν τὸ καύχημα ὑμῶν. Some Latin Copies omit the Negative, οὐ, whence, saith Dr. Mills, this is undoubtedly the true reading; whereas it is retained by all the Greek Commentators, and all the Versions, by Hilary the Deacon, and Cod. Alex. and so undoubtedly ought to be read: That also φύραμα ζυμοῖ, and not ὅλοι, is the true reading here; and Gal. 5. 9. see proved Examen Millii here.

(12) V. 8. More intolerable is it in the Doctor to reject these words, ἀλλ' ἐν ἀζύμοις εἰλικρινείας, καὶ ἀληθείας, upon the sole Authority of the Æthiopic Version, they being owned by all the other Versions, by all the Greek Scholiasts, by Origen Ed. Huet. in Jer. p. 143. in Matth. p. 170. in Joh. p. 163. 172. by Hilary D. by Jerome, l. 1. contra Pelag. F. 97. and the very Word Mattsoth Azymos might have taught him the Pertinency, and Elegancy of these words; that signifying, saith Bochart, panes puros, & sinceros, Chap. 6. 5. He rejects, οὐδὲ εἷς, upon the sole Authority of the same Version, tho' it be owned by all the other Versions, and all the Greek, and Latin Commentators: See the Mischief of this Licentiousness, Examen Millii in locum.

(14) V. 18. After these words, defiled by its Filthyness, add,] This Argument against Fornication, from the Defilement of the Body by it, plainly shews, that it is a Sin against the Law of Nature, and is a Fault in Man, as Man.

(15) V. 20. Δοξάσατε δὴ τὸν Θεόν: See this Reading justified, Examen Millii in locum.

CHAP. VII.

(16) V. 6. Καὶ συγνώμην,] Here I mistook in referring these words to the preceding Command concerning Marriage, v. 2. which being God's Institution to avoid Fornication, and the Apostle's Command, when it was necessary for that end, the Apostle could not say of it, This I speak by Permission only, and not by Command. This therefore respects not what the Apostle had said, but what he was about to say of Continence, it being very usual with the Apostle, to make this Preface to what he was about to say: So v. 29. of this Chap. τοῦτο δὲ φημι, But this I say Brethren, the time is short, 1 Cor. 1. 12. τοῦτο δὲ λέγω, But this I say, viz. that every one of you saith I am of Paul, 1 Cor. 11. 17. τοῦτο δὲ παραγγέλλων, but as to this I am about to declare unto you, I praise you not, 1 Thess. 4. 15. See Gal. 3. 17. blot out therefore the Note here, and substitute this in the room of it.

V. 11. After 1 Tim 32. 12. add,] And (17) therefore tho' the Word ἀφιέτω be used both, v. 12, & 13. 'Twas not amiss in our Translators, when it related to the Man to render it; let him not, ἀποπέμπειν, put, or send her away; and when related to the Woman to render it, let her not, ἀπολείπειν, leave him.

V. 12. After the words, into all Truth, add,] (18) Theophylact here notes, that this, and the former Verse speak of those who were both Infidels when they first married; for saith he, οὐδ' ὅλως ἐξῆν πρὸς ἄπιστον ζευγνύσθαι, it was not lawful for a Christian to be joyned to an Infidel.

V. 14. Else were their Children, ἀκάθαρτα, (19) unclean, &c.] I think that the other Translation, else were their Children Bastards, is not sufficiently confuted by saying, that then the Argument will not prove what the Apostle had asserted; for what more strongly enforceth the Believer of each Sex to own, that they may lawfully co-habit still as Man and Wife, than this Inference, that otherwise they must own that the Guilt of Whoredom lay upon them both; and that their Children were born, ἐκ πόρνης, i. e. Bastards, Deut. 23. 2. but then the Word used for a Bastard by this Apostle, being νόθος, Heb. 12. 8. and the Word γνήσιος, being the proper Word for a legitimate Offspring, had the Apostle intended such a Sense, he would have used the words, which in the Greek Writers are generally used in that sense, and not such words as in the Septuagint; and in the Jewish Language always have a Relation to fœderal Holiness, or the want of it; but none at all to the Legitimacy, or Spuriousness of the Birth.

V. 18. After de ponder. & mensur. add.] (20) He also says, that Esau did this, and therefore God said, Esau, have I hated. Photius apud Oecum. p. 423.

V. 24. Let him abide with God.] Neither (21) deserting his Master upon Pretence of being God's Servant, nor doing any thing against the Laws of God, in Obedience to his Master.

did more diligently attend to these things, we should avoid sinning against our Brethren, and wounding their weak Conscience. Ἵνα μὴ εἰς Χριστὸν ἁμαρτάνωμεν, that we may not sin against Christ. Πολλάκις ἀπολλυμένων ὁ μόνον τῇ ἡμετέρᾳ γνώσει, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἄλλοις τισὶ τρόποις καὶ ἡμᾶς ἀδελφῶν, δι' ὧν ὁ Χριστὸς, ἀπέθανεν ἐφ' οἷς εἰς Χριστὸν ἁμαρτάνοντες τοσούτῳ δίκαιος ἐνδικεμένης τ τ ἡμᾶς ἀπολλυμένων ψυχῆς. ἀξ ἡμῶν. Our Brethren that are among us, for whom Christ died often perishing, not only by our Knowledge, but by many other ways, and things; in which things we sinning against Christ, shall suffer Punishment, the Soul of them that perish by us, being venged of, and argued upon us.

CHAP. IX.

V. 2. The Seal of my Apostleship are ye in the Lord.] This Text seems very much abused by our Sectaries, when from these words they argue, that seeing they have been instrumental to work some Reformation in others by their Preaching, or Discourses; therefore they have a legal, yea divine Call to exercise their Ministry, and to administer the Holy Sacraments; which Argument will plead as much for Masters, or Mistresses of large Families, who have successfully employ'd themselves in a religious Education of their Children, and Servants; and for School-masters, who have instill'd good Principles of Virtue and Religion into their Scholars; and for every good Man, and Woman, who spend themselves in Examples of Exhortations, and Encouragements to others, to lead a virtuous and religious Life, and therefore prevail more than others; because they know they do it not from prospect of Advantage, or in pursuance of their Calling, but out of pure Affection to their Souls. Moreover I enquire, what it is they would prove from these words; is it that they are of the Number of Christ's Apostles? If not, why do they use this Text? Is it that they have converted Men from Heathenism, to Christianity, by Signs and Miracles; and Powers of the Holy Ghost? Or that the Signs of an Apostle have been wrought among their Auditors, by Signs, Wonders, and powerful Operations, as this Apostle doth, 2 Cor. 12. 12? Or that they have given their Hearers such a Proof of Christ speaking in them, as St. Paul did, Chap. 13. 3? Or that by their means their Hearers were endowed with the gifts of Tongues and Prophecy, as the Corinthians were? If not this Text cannot concern them at all, who had no such Seal, or Sign of their Apostleship, as St. Paul saith he had.

CHAP. X.

V. 9. After these words against the Socinians, add,] That the Apostle here cannot speak, as Crellius contends, of Moses is plain. (25)

1*st*, Because tho' the Name of Jesus be once given to Joshua, Heb. 4. 8. in the New Testament, as being the true Import of his Name, and the Translation of it by the Septuagint; yet is the Name Christ never given to Moses, nor doth it bear any Affinity with his Name. Nor,

2*dly*, Is Moses ever called Christ in the Old Testament? For tho' Crellius contends that Name is given him in these words of Habakkuk, Chap. 3. 13. Thou wentest forth for the Salvation of thy People with thy Christ; yet it is evident, that this is spoken of God's going forth with Joshuah, by the Captain of the Lord's Host, (who is described, Josh. 5. 14, 15. and so honoured by Joshuah, as to leave no place of doubting, that he was a divine Person) for, v. 11. the Prophet saith, the Sun and Moon stood still, as they did only in the time of Joshuah, Chap. 10. 12. & v. 12. Thou didst march thro' the Land in Indignation, thou didst thresh the Heathen in anger, as he did by Joshuah, and then follow the words cited. 2*dly*, This appears farther from the words tempt, and tempted, which both in the Old and New Testament, signifie distrusting the Power, or the Will of God to do, what he had given those who tempted him sufficient evidence, he was both able and willing to perform. See this proved, note on Matth. 4. 7. Now thus they did not tempt Moses, Numb. 11. 6. but God by distrusting his Power to give them Bread and Water in the Wilderness, v. 5.

Their second Answer therefore is, that there being no accusative Case expressed after the words καθὼς καί τινες αὐτῶν ἐπείρασαν, as some of them tempted, they may as well add God, as we add him. But,

1*st*. This Exposition must ascribe, that Divine Power to Christ, which belonged unto him, they tempted in the Wilderness, by vertue of the preceding Argument, and also render it as wicked, and as dreadful to tempt Christ now, as it was to tempt God then; and so by consequence it must ascribe to him that Divine Nature, from which a Divine Power is inseparable.

2*dly*, They have not yet produc'd one Instance, where the Person spoken of in reference to the same Action, in the same Instance, is thus changed. Crellius indeed, who never wants a Shift, such as it is, brings his Instance from v. 6. viz. These things were spoken, that we might not be Lusters after ter evil things, as they also lusted; but as here is the Fallacy of a Transition, εἰς ἄλλο γένος, from things to Persons; so is here nothing said, v. 6. to signifie, that the evil things forbid to the Corinthians, to be the Subject of their Lusts, were to be Quails, or Flesh, as in the Jews they were, but only that they were for the kind, Evil, as theirs also were.

(26) V. 21. After the words, and committed Idolatry, add,] The eating of the Feast made of things offered to Idols in the Idol Temple, being as much a fœderal Rite, as was the eating the Peace-offerings of the Jews, eaten in the Temple, or the Holy City, or the sacramental Bread eaten in the Church, by Christians, whence the Oblations made there, were stiled σπονδαὶ ἐν τιμῇ Δαιμόνων Oblations, in Honour of the Dæmons.

CHAP. XI.

(27) V. 21. After the words despised them, add,] And with that agrees the Note of St. Chrysostome, on the place, that an Assembly is called, ἐκ ἵνα διηρημένοι ὦμεν οἱ συνελθόντες, ἀλλ' ἵνα οἱ διηρημένοι συνημμένοι, not that they who came together might be divided, but that they who are at home divided, may joyn together.

CHAP. XII.

(29) V. 12. So is Christ;] That is, saith Chrysostome, τὸ τοῦ Χριστοῦ σῶμα, the Body of Christ, that is his Church, as appears from v. 21. The Head cannot say to the Feet, I have no need of you; this being not true of Christ, the Head of that Church, which is his Body, but only of the ministerial Heads under him.

CHAP. XIII.

(30) V. 12. Καθὼς καὶ ἐπεγνώσθην, even as I am known,] I do not think that either these, or the words of St. John, we shall see him as he is, afford any just Grounds for the Speculations of the Schools, touching the intuitive Vision of the Essence of God, or their speculum Trinitatis, without which the Invocations of Saints and Angels cannot be excused from Idolatry: For as the words, 1 Joh. 3. 2. refer not to the Vision of God the Father, but of Christ Jesus, appearing at the Day of Judgment, in his Glory, and rendring our Bodies like unto his glorious Body; so these words refer not to the Knowledge of God's Essence, but rather to the Knowledge of those great things he hath prepared for those that love him, revealed now in part, by the Spirit of Prophecy, and Wisdom, 1 Cor. 2. 9, 10. which then, saith the Apostle, we shall know in the most clear and perfect manner, as we our selves are known of God.

CHAP. XIV.

V. 21. In the Law it is written, &c.] St. (31) Jerome upon Isaiah 28. 11, 12. saith the Apostle cites this not according to the Translation of the Septuagint, or of Symmachus, or Theodotion, but from the Hebrew. But (a) Origen saith, Εὗρον τὰ ἰσοδυναμοῦντα τῇ λέξει ταύτῃ ἐν τῇ τοῦ Ἀκύλα ἑρμηνείᾳ κείμενα, I found in the Translation of Aquilas, words equivalent to those of the Apostle here.

CHAP. XV.

V. 12. After these words, I find no reason (32) to believe, add,] Much less, that the false Apostle, or Apostles, so stiled by St. Paul, not in his first but second Epistle to the Corinthians, should be of the Jewish Sadduces, for they being the great Opposers of Christ's Resurrection, Acts 4. 1, 2. and the great Adversaries of St. Paul, upon this very account, that he testified that Christ was risen from the dead, Acts 23. 6. 8. and this Doctrine being of so great Importance, that the denying of it, rendered both the preaching of the Apostles, and the Faith of their Hearers vain, v. 14. of this Chap. Sure the Apostle could not say of such Men, are they the Ministers of Christ? I am more; so 2 Cor. 11. 23. or that they transform'd themselves into the Apostles of Christ? v. 13.

V. 28. Τότε καὶ αὐτὸς ὁ υἱὸς, the Word υἱὸς (33) crep'd in, saith Dr. Mills, from the Margin; see this confuted by full Authority, Examen Millii.

V. 29. Ἐπεὶ τί ποιήσουσιν οἱ βαπτιζόμενοι ὑπὲρ, (34) were it not so, what will they do, who are baptized for the Dead?] Here Mr. Dodw. refers to the Custom mention'd by Epiphanius, that some Hereticks, when any, who profess'd Christianity, died without Baptism, baptized others in their stead; whereas the words are only capable of these two Interpretations, either that of the (b) Ancients, why are they baptized for the Resurrection of the dead, that is in Expectation, and Belief of that fundamental Article of the Christian Faith? Or, why are they baptized for, or on the account of that Jesus who is dead; and, say they, is not risen from the dead, which is the ſenſe I have given of theſe words? To make this evident, and ſhew the Vanity of the Interpretation which Mr. Dodw. hath embraced, let it be noted.

1*ſt*. That the Conjunctive Particle, ἐπεὶ, as Phavorinus, and Budæus have obſerv'd, ſignifies, εἰ ὃ μὴ, alioquin, quid ſi non; if it be otherwiſe, or were it not ſo, thus it is uſed by the Apoſtle, ten ſeveral times, Rom. 3. 6. ἐπεὶ, if it be not ſo, that God is Righteous, how ſhall he judge the World? Chap. 11. 6. ἐπεὶ, if it were otherwiſe, Grace would not be Grace, ἐπεὶ, and were it otherwiſe, Works would not be Works; and v. 22. ἐπεὶ, o therwiſe thou ſhalt be cut off, 1 Cor. 7. 14. ἐπεὶ, were it not ſo, their Children would be unclean, Chap. 14. 16. ἐπεὶ ἐὰν, otherwiſe, when thou bleſſeſt in the Spirit, how ſhall the unlearned ſay, Amen? Heb. 9. 17. ἐπεὶ, otherwiſe his Will is of no force; and v. 26. ἐπεὶ ἔκ ἄν ἔπαθεν ὁ, otherwiſe they would not have ceaſed to be offered: (which by the way is a probable Inducement to believe, that the Epiſtle to the Hebrews was written by St. Paul; this Conjunction being not once uſed in this ſenſe in the Evangeliſts, or in the other Epiſtles:) Now hence it clearly follows, that this Conjunction muſt contain an Inference from what was ſaid before, viz. that Chriſt was riſen, as the firſt fruits of them that ſlept, and were to be raiſed by him from that Sleep, and was to reign till he had vanquiſhed their laſt Enemy Death; for ſaith the Apoſtle, if this were not ſo; that is, if Chriſt were not riſen, or being riſen were not to reign till he had overcome Death, and ſo had raiſed us alſo from it; why are Men baptized, ὑπὲρ τῶν νεκρῶν, for a dead Jeſus, or in hopes of a Reſurrection by him from the dead; ſo that one of theſe two Senſes of this dark Paſſage muſt obtain.

2*dly*, Obſerve, that the Apoſtle's Queſtion runs not thus; Why do they baptize others for the dead? Or, Why are others baptized in their ſtead? But, τί ποιήσουσιν, What will they do, who are baptized? Which Queſtion relating to the Deportment of thoſe who undergo this Baptiſm, and not at all to them for whoſe ſakes they do it, excludes any Relation of theſe words to that pretended Practice; for if it was done by any, it was not with Relation to their own Deportment, who were living, but with Relation to the Dead. Moreover, the three Queſtions, Why are they baptized for the Dead? Or, Why ſtand we in Jeopardy every Hour? Or, What advantageth it me, if I have fought with Beaſts at Epheſus? Seem plainly to relate to the ſame matter, and therefore muſt all relate to the Deportment of the living under the Evils, and Perſecutions, which Chriſtians ſuffered in this preſent Life, and be to this effect: Why are they who ſay Chriſt is not riſen, and therefore can expect no Reſurrection from him, baptized in his Name, or in Expectation of this Benefit from him? What will they do in the times of Perſecution? What Inducement can they have to ſtand to their Baptiſmal Covenant, and own a dead Man as their Lord and Saviour?

Add to this, that tho' (a) Tertullian, by ſaying, Si autem & baptizantur quidam pro mortuis, ſuppoſes ſuch a thing might be done by ſome, yet he neither mentions Time nor Perſons. (b) Epiphanius, in the Fourth Century ſaith, they had a Tradition concerning ſome Hereticks in Aſia, and Galatia, ὡς τινῶν μ' παρ' αὐτοῖς προφθανόντων τελευτῆσαι ἀνὺ βαπτίσματος ἄλλους ὑπ' αὐτῶν εἰς ὄνομα ἐκείνων βαπτιζ, that ſome among them being prevented by Death, from receiving Baptiſm, others of them were baptized in their Names, ἐφ' τοῦτο ἕνεκα ἡ παράδοσις ἡ ἐληλυθυῖα παρ' ἡμᾶς φησι τὸν αὐτὸν ἅγιον Ἀπόστολον εἰρηκέναι εἰ ὅλως, &c. and that he had received it by Tradition; that upon this account the Apoſtle ſaid, if the dead riſe not at all, why are they then baptized for the dead? But as he is the only Perſon who ſpeaks of this Tradition, ſo is he guilty of a manifeſt Contradiction in his Relation of it; for having told us that the Hereticks, who practiſed thus, owned indeed, the Reſurrection of our Lord; (which, ſaith he, the Corinthians denied, and therefore were not of this Sect,) but yet ſaid, νεκροὺς ὃ οὐκ ἐγείρεσθαι, that the Dead were not to be raiſed, and ſo denied the Reſurrection of the Dead; yet he adds, that they uſed this Practice, ὑπὲρ τὸ μὴ ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει ἀναστάντας αὐτοὺς δίκην δοῦναι τιμωρίας βάπτισμα μὴ εἰληφότας, that they who died without Baptiſm, might not at the Reſurrection, be puniſh'd for want of Baptiſm. St. Chryſoſtome, and Theophylact ſay, that the Marcionites, when any of their Sect died without Baptiſm, put a live Man under the Bed, in which the dead Man lay, and then asked the Dead, whether he would be baptized; and the Man under the Bed anſwering, yes, they baptized the dead Man, εἶτα ἐγκαλέμμοι; and being accuſed of this ridiculous Practice, they pleaded, that the Apoſtle ſpake of ſome who were baptized for the Dead, τὸ ὃ οὐκ ὅτως ἔχει, whereas he ſaid no ſuch matter; but only ſaid, if the dead riſe not, why are they baptized for the Reſurrection of the dead? They therefore knew of no ſuch Practice in the Apoſtles time, or of any Tradition relating to it; and certain it is, the Apoſtle could could not relate unto this Practice of the Marcionites, seeing Marcion began his Heresy in the second Century, and so long after the writing of this Epistle. In a Word, if they who are supposed to practice thus, believed the Resurrection, they could not be concerned in the Apostle's Argument against them, who did not believe it, if they did not believe the Resurrection of the Body, when once dead, it cannot be imagin'd, why they should be concern'd to baptize a dead Body, or any other Body for it.

(35) V. 32. After these words, in Deaths often, add,] If this Sense be not liked, you may interpret κατ' ἄνθρωπον, according to the Intention of Men, it being the Intention of the Men of Asia in that Tumult, to deal so with Paul's Companions, and much more with him, had not his Friends dissuaded him from entring into the Theatre; see Note on Acts 19. 29. And Note also, that cruel and bloody-minded Men are often represented under this Metaphor of Beasts: So (a) Ignatius, when he was carried from Syria to Rome, under a Band of Soldiers, (who, saith he, are the worse for the Kindness I shew to them) he saith, ἀπὸ Συρίας μέχρι Ρώμης θηριομαχῶ, from Syria to Rome I fight with Beasts. And (b) Heraclitus the Ephesian saith, Ephesiorum cives conversos esse in bestias, the Ephesians were turned into Beasts, because they slew one another.

(36) V. 35. How are the Dead raised? ἢ ποίῳ σώματι, or with what Body do they come? After the Sentiments of the Jews, add,] That here are two Questions is granted, but then both have respect to the Manner, or the Qualities of the Bodies to be raised, for the Apostle saith not διὰ τί, why are dead Men raised to Life again? Or, why do they live again? But, πῶς ἐγείρονται, how, after what manner are they raised? Are they raised with such mortal Bodies, as they had before, or with Bodies subject to the like Distempers and Infirmities, which we now suffer in this Life; or if not, with what kind of Bodies? Do their Bodies rise naked? Or, are they cloathed upon? This is exceeding evident from the whole Discourse of the Apostle, in answer to these Questions, which gives no reason, why they being dead do rise again, but wholly is employed in shewing what are the Qualities and Conditions of the raised Bodies of good Men.

(37) V. 45. The first Man Adam was made, εἰς ψυχὴν ζῶσαν, the last Adam, εἰς πνεῦμα ζωοποιοῦν, add,] Moreover, that Christ is said here to be εἰς πνεῦμα ζωοποιοῦν, for a quickning Spirit; not with relation to his quickning the Soul, but the Body only is visible to any, who will peruse the whole Discourse of the Apostle here, since it relateth only to the Truth and Manner of the Resurrection. For after the Apostle had dispatched his Proof of our Lord's Resurrection, he concludes thus: Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first Fruits of them that slept; for as by Man came Death, so by Man came also the Resurrection of the dead. For as, ἐν τῷ Ἀδὰμ, by Adam all Men die, so also, ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ, by Christ all, ζωοποιηθήσονται, shall be made alive again. Now this is the very Word used by Christ, in reference to his Power of raising the dead, when he saith, As the Father raises the dead, καὶ ζωοποιεῖ, and makes them live again; so the Son, ζωοποιεῖ, gives Life to whom he will. For as the Father hath Life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have Life in himself, John 5. 21. 26.

After this the Apostle proceeds to the Enquiry of the Unbeliever, how are the dead raised up, &c? And in answer to this, he begins with the same Word; that which thou sowest, οὐ ζωοποιεῖται, is not quickned except it die, and then shews the difference of our present Body subject to Death, and the Condition of our future Bodies, saying, it is sown, or born into the World, σῶμα ψυχικὸν, an animal Body; that is, a Body, which, by the animal and vital Spirits in it lives, moves, perceives, and conveys Nourishment to all its Parts; it is raised, σῶμα πνευματικὸν, a spiritual Body, that is, a Body quickned by the Spirit of Christ, Rom. 8. 11. and advanced so far to the Perfection of Spirits, as to be immortal as they are, Luke 20. 35, 36. and so fitted for the cœlestial and immortal State: For, saith he, so it is written, the first Man Adam, from whom we all derive our Bodies, and our animal Life, was therefore made εἰς ψυχὴν ζῶσαν, with a Soul giving Life to his Body, and conveying this animal Life to others; Gen. 2. 7. the second was made, εἰς πνεῦμα ζωοποιοῦν, to revive the Body, and quicken it by his Spirit, John 6. 63. for having promised, that he would raise up them, who spiritually did eat his Flesh, and drink his Blood, he adds, τὸ πνεῦμα ἐστι τὸ ζωοποιοῦν, it is the Spirit that quickeneth. He saith also, that the first Man, whose Image we bear in our Bodies, was χοϊκὸς, formed, ἀπὸ χοὸς, from the Dust, and so is to return to the Dust. The second Man, whose Image we shall bear is the Lord from Heaven, to wit, descending from it with his glorious and heavenly Body, whose Image we shall bear by having Bodies made like unto his glorious Body; not then consisting, when they ascend thither of Flesh and Blood, or subject to Corruption, as now they are; for this corruptible must put on Incorruption, and this mortal Body must put put on Immortality. And this happy Reſurrection, is to be effected by the Spirit of Chriſt dwelling in us; for if the Spirit of Chriſt dwell in us, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ζωοποιήσει καὶ, ſhall alſo quicken our mortal Bodies, by his Spirit dwelling in us, Rom. 8. 11. whence it is evident, that Chriſt, the ſecond Adam, is ſaid to be, εἰς πνεῦμα ζωοποιοῦν, not with relation to our Souls, but to our Bodies, to be raiſed by him. And thus are theſe words expounded by Photius in Oecumenius, and by Theophylact on the Place.

(38) V. 53. Δεῖ γὰρ τὸ φθαρτὸν τοῦτο,] It is here ſaid, τὸ φθαρτὸν, and τὸ θνητὸν, have not σῶμα for their Subſtantive, but are put in the neuter Gender abſolute, and ſtand to repreſent, νεκροὺς, the dead; but this is a great Miſtake, for the words are not only, τὸ φθαρτὸν, τὸ θνητὸν, but, τὸ φθαρτὸν τοῦτο, τὸ θνητὸν τοῦτο, this corruptible, this mortal, now iſtud, ſaith Tertullian, is a Word demonſtrative of the Body; this hoc, ſaith Ruffinus, eſt vox corpus ſuum quodammodo contingentis, is the Voice of one, as it were, pointing to the Body: Moreover what is mortal and corruptible; what puts on Incorruption, but the Body ſown in Corruption, and raiſed in Incorruption? ver. 42. What is mortal but the Body? What therefore can be raiſed to Immortality but the ſame Body? When it is farther ſaid, that the Apoſtle, ſaying, οὐ πρῶτον τὸ πνευματικὸν ἀλλὰ τὸ ψυχικὸν, that is not firſt which is ſpiritual, but that which is natural; he uſes the neuter Gender, to ſignifie the Perſons of Adam, and of Chriſt, that is another plain Miſtake; they plainly being uſed to ſignifie the Body received from Adam, and raiſed by Chriſt, as it is evident from the precedent words, ἔστι σῶμα ψυχικὸν, καὶ ἔστι σῶμα πνευματικὸν, there is an animal Body, and there is a ſpiritual Body; but that Body which is ſpiritual is not firſt, but that which is animal.

Store, that there be no gathering when I come:] From theſe laſt words it is gathered, that θησαυρίζειν is to put into a common Box his Charity; becauſe, if they had kept it at home, there would have been need of gathering it, when the Apoſtle come. But the words ἕκαστος παρ' ἑαυτῷ τιθέτω, let every one place it with himſelf; admit not of this Senſe, nor when this was done, could there be any neceſſity of making Collections, as that imports, ſolliciting the Charities of others, but only of receiving the Charity thus laid by, for the uſe of the Saints; and yet that ſuch need there was, is evident from the 8th, and 9th Chapters of the Second Epiſtle; for why is ſo much Care taken that they might be ready, if their whole Contribution was already in the common Box?

(1) Ver. 1. (11) V. 9. I confeſs it is difficult to give the clear Senſe of the Apoſtle's words, from v. 1. to v. 9. to do my Endeavour farther towards it; obſerve,

1*ſt*, That it cannot be proved from any thing ſaid here, or in any other place of St. Paul's Epiſtles, that the Apoſtle himſelf either thought, or taught others to think, that the Coming of Chriſt was not far off, as I have fully proved in the Note, on 1 Theſſ. 4. 15. And indeed this Doctrine being found by Experience to be falſe, had he himſelf aſſerted, or taught others to expect, that the Coming of our Lord to Judgment was at hand; ſeeing in that he muſt have been miſtaken, and miſled others; what Certainty can we have, that he was not miſtaken, or did not miſlead others, in what elſe he taught in his Epiſtles? Thus, v. 9. if when he ſaid, 1 Cor. 7. 29. 31. Brethren the time is ſhort, and the Scheme of the World paſſeth away; He thus dogmatically ſpake not of the time of human Life, and the Relation we had to the World, and the World to us; but of Chriſt's coming to Judgment, and the Deſtruction of the World, he certainly taught falſe Doctrine. If when he ſaith, Chap. 10. 11. That upon them the End of the Ages was come; he meant not the laſt, that is the Jewiſh, concurring with the Goſpel Age, but the end of the World, he then taught falſe Doctrine. If, when he ſaid, Heb. 10. 37. Yet a little while, and he that ſhall come, will come, and will not tarry; he meant this not of Chriſt's coming to the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and of the Jewiſh State, and Nation, but of his coming to the final Judgment; he again taught falſe Doctrine, and endeavour'd to ſupport them with falſe Hopes, which ſure muſt be ſufficient to impair his Credit in other Matters, taught in his Epiſtles. Laſtly, That here is no ground, for this Opinion is proved, Note on v. 5; they indeed, who had the firſt Fruits of the Spirit in them might wait for his Coming, as all good Chriſtians do, but they could not by virtue of his Words expect it ſuddenly.

2*dly*, Obſerve, that the Apoſtle here cannot intend to aſſert, that good Chriſtians, as ſoon as they die, ſhall inſtantly be cloathed upon with their Houſe from Heaven, but only that they ſhall be ſo at the Reſurrection; for, ſaith he, we deſire to be thus cloathed upon, that Mortality may be ſwallowed up in Life, now this he had told us, 1 Cor. 15. 54. was only to be expected at the Reſurrection; for, when this corruptible ſhall have put on Incorruption, and this mortal Immortality, then ſhall be brought to paſs the ſaying that is written, Death is ſwallowed up in Victory.

3*dly*, Obſerve that the time of the Reſurrection of the Juſt, being declared to be the time of their Recompence, their being crown'd, and like to the Angels, and being ever with the Lord, as hath been fully proved in the Note on 2 Tim. 4. 5. they had good reaſon to be groaning after the Redemption of the Body, and that Crown of Glory, which God would give them at that Day.

Day. But then, ſay they, we do not groan thro' Impatience, under our preſent Afflictions; nor, as ſome Philoſophers, from an Opinion, that the Body is the Priſon of the Soul, and hindrance to the Knowledge of the Truth; and therefore counting it an Happineſs to be diveſted of it, but from a vehement deſire of that glorious Reſurrection of it, which ſhall compleat the Happineſs both of Soul and Body, and place us forever with the Lord.

Laſtly obſerve, That at the Reſurrection there ſhall not only be an ἔνδυμα, or cloathing of the Soul with its former naked Body; but an ἐπένδυμα, a cloathing of the Body raiſed, with a Covering that ſhall preſerve it from Corruption; and this is plainly the Apoſtle's meaning, in the Similitude of Grain riſing not naked, as it was ſown, but cloathed upon, as is proved, Note on v. 3. here; and on 1 Cor. 15. 37. And this, I think, is the meaning of thoſe words, v. 3. if ſo be, or ſeeing we ſhall be, ἐνδυσάμενοι, cloathed upon, as the Bodies of the Juſt will be, and not, γυμνοὶ, naked, as the Bodies of the Wicked ſhall be. For that the Wicked ſhall have immortal Bodies at the Reſurrection, I no where find clearly delivered in the Holy Scripture, but only that the Deſtruction of their Bodies, as well as the Torment of their Souls will be everlaſting. See the Reading of the Text, v. 3. vindicated, Examen Millii in locum.

But the (a) Scholiaſt upon Sophocles informs us, that ἀριστερὰ οἱ παλαιοὶ τὰ μωρὰ ἐκάλουν, δεξιὰ δὲ τὰ συνετὰ, that the Ancients ſtiled fooliſh things left handed, but wiſe things dextrous. And in (b) Ariſtophanes, μανθάνειν δεξιὰ, is to learn wiſe things, and ſo this Armour may be to protect them againſt the Follies of the Vulgar, and the Wiſdom of the Philoſophers, and wiſe Men of the World.

V. 1. At the Mouth of two or three Wit- (23) neſſes;] Tho' theſe words ſeem to be cited from Deut. 19. 15. rather than from Matth. 18. 16. it being rare to find this Apoſtle citing any thing from the New Teſtament, without calling it an Ordinance of the Lord; yet it is probable, that the Apoſtle here alludes to the Practice there preſcribed, for the reclaiming of Offenders, and then his Firſt Epiſtle being written with this Introduction, Paul an Apoſtle, and Soſthenes; his Second thus; Paul, and Timotheus; may paſs for two or three Witneſſes; and his Preſence the Third time in Perſon, to exerciſe his Cenſures on theſe Offenders, before the Body of the Church, may bear a fair Reſemblance to the Preſcription relating to the Church.

V. 7. To the Note there add;] And tho' (24) ἀδόκιμοι here ſeems to ſignifie one that cannot give a Proof of his Power, as when it relates to the Apoſtle, v. 6, 7. yet ſeeing the Apoſtle, pretending that the Lord had given him this Power, muſt be ἀδόκιμος, one fit to be rejected as a falſe Pretender, if he had it not; and tho', when it relates to the Corinthians, v. 5. it ſignifies Perſons, who could not give a Proof, that they belonged to Chriſt, or had his Preſence with them; yet ſeeing the Want of this Proof ſhewed, they were to be rejected as Perſons not approved by Chriſt; this differs not much from the Senſe aſſigned of that Word.

An Advertisement relating to the Preface to the Epiſtle to the Galatians.

ONE Paſſage in the Preface to the Epiſtle to the Galatians, hath met with very hard Uſage from different Hands; but more eſpecially from one, who ſtiles his Book, The Preacher, but gives full Demonſtration that he is no Solomon; his Words are theſe, p. 153. (a) " And can we imagine that that " other Author hath a better Opinion of the " Writings of the New Teſtament, who " tells us, that in all the Scriptures of the " New Teſtament, there is not to be found " one Exhortation to believe in Chriſt, or " to act Faith on Chriſt. And accordingly he " adds afterwards: Now what Account can " be given of this thing, by thoſe who are " ſo zealous in their Sermons, to exhort " Chriſtians to believe in Chriſt, and are ſo " full of Motives to perſuade them ſo to do? " It ſeems we have been in a great Error, " and Miſtake, hitherto; and all our Ser- " mons to our Chriſtian Auditors, to per-

" ſuade them to exert Faith in our Lord " Chriſt, have been idle and vain; and the " more zealous we have been in this Mat- " ter, the more fooliſh we have been; for " Chriſtians are no where exhorted in the " New Teſtament to believe in Chriſt, they " are only unconverted Jews and Gentiles, " who are called upon to do this. And ſuch were the Apoſtles, and Diſciples, when our Saviour exhorted them to believe in God, and to believe alſo in him, who ſees not that is abuſing the Scriptures. Now here.

1*ſt*, Sure I have Reaſon to complain of very hard Meaſure, and of great Injuſtice; that after all the Pains I have taken to prove this Propoſition: (a) That the Apoſtles, and Evangeliſts, endited theſe Scriptures, by the Aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt; and that therefore I allow no Slips of Memory, no Rules of Human Prudence, without the Guidance and Direction of the Holy Spirit, §. 3. I ſhould be publickly traduced as one, that cannot be imagined to have a better opinion of the Writings of the New Teſtament, than one who aſſerts, that (b) there are ſeveral Repugnances in ſeveral parts of it; that it is altered in very many places, and ſome of the greateſt Moment; and hath too many Diſagreements which are material, and weighty. How far I am from thinking any thing of this nature, how zealous in my Oppoſition to ſuch Sentiments, the World will ſhortly farther ſee. And that the words here cited by the Preacher, have no Relation to, and contain no Detraction either from the Authority, or Veneration due to that inſpired Book, is evident to all diſcerning Perſons; ſuch vile, and ſcandalous Suggeſtions, without all Ground, or ſhew of Reaſon, is that of which I hope I never ſhall be guilty.

2*dly*, I add, that the Aſſertion here expoſed, as a viſible abuſe of Scripture, is as certain and demonſtrable, as any Propoſition in the Book of Euclid. Thus,

Definition. A Chriſtian is one that believes in Chriſt; nor can he ceaſe to do ſo, whilſt he is a Chriſtian; as a Man cannot ceaſe to have an human Nature, whilſt he lives.

Poſtulatum. It cannot be conſiſtent with the Wiſdom of the Holy Ghoſt, or of the Holy Scripture, to exhort any Chriſtian to do what he knows every Chriſtian muſt do, and cannot chuſe to do, any more than a living Man can ceaſe to have an humane Nature.

Ergo. It cannot be conſiſtent with the Wiſdom of the Holy Ghoſt to exhort any Chriſtian to believe in Chriſt; this being the ſame in effect, as to exhort a living Man to retain his human Nature during Life.

3*dly*, To the Argument of the Preacher, from John 14. 1. I have returned a full Reply, in my Anſwer to a late Pamphlet, p. 20. 21, 22, 23. to which I add, that it is not certain that theſe words contain any Exhortation to believe in Chriſt; even the Synopſis informs us, that they may be rendred in the indicative Mood thus; Creditis in Deum, & in me creditis; in which ſenſe they contain no Exhortation, but an Aſſertion only of this great Truth, that the Diſciples of Chriſt believed in God the Father, and in Chriſt his only Son; and from that Faith had ground of Comfort under all the Troubles they ſhould meet with in the World.

4*thly*, Had he not changed my words, he would have had no Shew of Ground for his vain Imagination, that I count it a great Error to perſuade Chriſtians to exert Faith in our Lord Chriſt: Now this I no where ſay, but only that there is no Exhortation in the New Teſtament, to any Chriſtian to believe in Chriſt, or (in the Senſe of the Presbyterians, and Independants, againſt whom I there diſpute) to act Faith on Chriſt; to exert that Faith we have in Chriſt, by ſhewing forth the Fruits of it, and walking anſwerably to it, and comforting, and ſupporting our ſelves from the Conſideration of it; and the encouraging our ſelves to the Performance of all Chriſtian Obedience, is the Duty of all Chriſtians, to which I there ſay, the Scripture doth exhort them; but to act Faith on Chriſt for Juſtification, or that Chriſtians may be Believers, which is the Senſe thoſe Writers put upon the Phraſe, is an unſcriptural Expreſſion.

In fine, It might have reaſonably been expected, that after all theſe hideous Outcries, after theſe terrible Accuſations, that by this Aſſertion I have viſibly abus'd the Holy Scriptures, and made it unimaginable that I have any good Opinion of the Writings of the New Teſtament: Some plain Text ſhould have been produced from thoſe Scriptures, exhorting thoſe, who were already Chriſtians, to believe in Chriſt; and tho' I judge my Aſſertion a Truth equally certain to a Demonſtration, yet when either the Preacher, or the Pampleteer, or any other bold Condemner of it, ſhall ſhew the contrary by one plain Text, containing ſuch an Exhortation, I promiſe to renounce it publickly.

Additions on, and Annotations to the Epiſtle of St. Paul to the Galatians.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 4. Ἵνα ἐξέληται ἡμᾶς ἐκ τοῦ ἐνεστῶτος αἰῶνος πονηροῦ, that he might deliver us from this preſent Evil World;] That this preſent Evil Age, ſhould ſignifie the preſent Jewiſh Conſtitution, and Nation together, is very improbable: For did Chriſt die for our Sins, to deliver the Galatians, and other Gentiles from the Jewiſh Nation, or from that Conſtitution they were never under? How much more natural is it to ſay with the Fathers, he died for our Sins, that he might deliver us, ἐκ τῶν πονηρῶν πράξεων, καὶ διαφθαρμένης ζωῆς, from the evil Actions, and corrupt Manners of this preſent World, or Age, from thoſe Luſts of the Fleſh, and that Corruption of Mind, in which the Heathens formerly lived, κατὰ τὸν αἰῶνα τοῦ κόσμου τούτου, according to that Courſe of Life, the Men of the World then led, Eph. 2. 2, 3. when they were guided by the Wiſdom, τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, of this World, 2 Cor. 4. 4. and under the Power of the Rulers, τοῦ σκότους τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου, of the Darkneſs of this World, Eph. 6. 12.

(2) V. 7. Ὃ οὐκ ἔστιν ἄλλο.] Theſe Words cannot ſignifie, which is not any thing elſe; or, which is not owing to any thing elſe, as one here thinks. For the Pronoun ὅ hath no other antecedent but ἕτερον εὐαγγέλιον, v. 6. Nor is it any Objection againſt our Tranſlation, that the Apoſtle doth not ſay, ὅ οὐκ ἔστιν ἕτερον, as before, but ἄλλο; it being noted by Budæus, and others, that the Greeks uſe ἄλλο, καὶ ἕτερον ἐκ περιλήψεως, theſe two words as equivalent. And when two allos come together, the ſecond is always rendred ἕτερος, another, ἄλλος πρὸς ἄλλον λέγοντες, ſaying one to another, Acts 2. 12. & 21. 34. So ἄλλη σὰρξ ἀνθρώπων, ἄλλη δὲ κτήνων, there is one Fleſh of Men, and another Fleſh of Beaſts, &c. 1 Cor. 15. 31. and again, v. 41. The Apoſtles meaning then is, that the Preaching of the Goſpel to you, παρ' ὃ εὐηγγελισάμεθα, beſides that which we have preached, would be the Preaching of another Goſpel; but that which theſe Perverters of the Galatians taught as ſuch, was not indeed another Goſpel, but rather a ſetting up of the Law in Oppoſition to the Goſpel. Note alſo, that εἰ μὴ here is uſed, as Chap. 2. 16. 1 Cor. 7. 17. Rev. 9. 4. 21. 27.

(3) V. 10. Ἢ ζητῶ ἀνθρώποις ἀρέσκειν, theſe words which Dr. Mills ſaith crept in from the Margin, are owned by all the Greek Scholiaſts, by the Vulgar, the Cod. Alex. Hilarius Diac. and St. Jerome. See Examen Millii in locum.

(4) V. 19. Note alſo, that (a) Nicephorus ſaith, this James, was τοῦ μνήσορος τοῦ Ἰωσὴφ υἱὸς, the Son of Joſeph, the Husband of the Mother of our Lord.

(5) V. 23. Ἦν πόλε ἐπόρθει; ſee this Reading vindicated, Examen Millii in locum.

CHAP. II.

(6) V. 4. Διὰ δὲ, &c.] Here alſo it ſeems neceſſary, to ſupply the Senſe from the firſt Verſe thus; συνπαρέλαβον δὲ τίτον διὰ τοὺς ψευδαδέλφους; and I took with me Titus, becauſe of the falſe Brethren. Examples of the like Ellipſis, or Deficiency, to be ſupplied from the precedent Words, in the Old Teſtament, are very numerous; ſee Glaſſius de figuris Grammaticis, l. 4. Tract. 2. Obſerv. 11. So Matth. 2. 10. ἰδόντες δὲ τὸν ἀστέρα, ſeeing the Star, ἑστῶτα ἐπάνω οὗ ἦν τὸ παιδίον, add, ſtanding over the Place where the Child was, v. 9. they rejoiced. This Addition was neceſſary, becauſe they before, ſaw the Star going before them, v. 9. ſo John 9. 3. neither hath he ſinned, nor his Parents; add, from v. 2. ἵνα τυφλὸς γεννηθῇ, that he ſhould be born blind, ἀλλὰ ἵνα; but add again, He was ſo born, that the Works of God might be made manifeſt in him, 1 John 2. 19. They went out from us, but they (who thus went out) were not of us; for if they had been of us, they might have remained with us, ἀλλ', Supple, ἐξῆλθον ἵνὰ ἡμῖν, but (they went out from us) that it might appear they all were not of us.

(7) V. 5. Οἷς οὐδὲ πρὸς ὥραν εἴξαμεν τῇ ὑποταγῇ.] Here Dr. Mills contends from the Authority of the vulgar Tertullian, and Hilary D. that οὐδὲ is an Addition to the Text; tho' Jerome poſitively ſaith, that this, was only reading quorundam Latinorum Codicum, reclamantibus Græcis, of ſome Latin Copies againſt the Authority of the Greek Fathers: See this Reading confuted, Examen Millii in locum. And there alſo, οἱ δοκοῦντες, v. 6.

is proved againſt the Doctor, not to be irreptitious.

(8) V. 6. Οἱ ἀπὸ ὄ, as ſome would read, if not ſuitable to the Greek Idiom; begin the Words as you muſt the Conſtruction, ὁποῖοι ὄ ποτε ἦσαν ἀπὸ τῶ δοκεῖν εἶναι τι, and the Senſe is plain, but of what Quality they were, who ſeemed to be ſomewhat, or were of Reputation, οὐδέν μοι διαφέρει, I was not the better for it, where note, that the Scholiaſt, on Thucydides, ſaith thus; διαφέρει, i. e. ὠφελεῖ λυσιτελεῖ, the Word ſignifies to profit, or be advantageous. Phavorinus, and Heſychius ſay, that it ſignifies βέλτιον ἐστιν, to be the better, ſo that the Words may be thus rendred. It was no advantage to me, I was not the better for it, and this ſenſe is confirmed by the following Reaſon; for they who were of Reputation added nothing to me.

(9) V. 17. Or theſe Words may be paraphraſed thus; εἰ γὰρ ἃ καλέλυσα, if the things which by Chriſt's Authority committed to his Apoſtles, Matth. 18. 18.] I have looſed [by declaring Men abſolved from the ritual Precepts of the Law of Moſes.] I again build up [by teaching they are to be obſerved,] I make my ſelf a Tranſgreſſor.

CHAP. III.

(10) V. 1. Τῇ ἀληθείᾳ μὴ πείθεσθαι; Theſe words, ſaith Jerome, are not extant in exemplaribus Adamantii, in the Copies of Origen; but they are extant in the Arabick Verſion, the Vulgar, Hilary D. Theodoret, Oecumenius, and Theophylact.

(11) V. 8. Preached the Goſpel to Abraham, ſaying, &c.] Well might the Apoſtle argue thus from the Example of Abraham, he being ſtiled by the Jeruſalem Talmud, Abraham the juſt, Gen. 15. 1. 18. 2. and theſe words being paraphraſed thus; in thy Righteouſneſs ſhall all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed. Here Jerome ſaith, Hoc autem in omnibus penè teſtimoniis, quæ de veteribus libris in novo aſſumpta ſunt teſtamento obſervare debemus, quod memoriæ crediderunt; Evangeliſtæ, vel Apoſtoli, & tantum ſenſu explicato, ſæpè ordinem tranſmutaverunt, nonnunquam vel detraxerint verba, vel addiderint; for which wild Note this Verſe miniſters no occaſion; for tho' the words, in thy Seed, occur not, Chap. 22. yet Chap. 12. 2. they are found expreſly as they are cited here, only with the Addition of ἀπὸ γῆς of the Earth, which adds nothing to the ſenſe. So again, on v. 10. he makes this Note, Incertum habemus, utrum Septuaginta Interpretes addiderint omnis homo, & in omnibus, an in veteri Hebraico ita fuerit, & poſtea a Judæis deletum ſit, in hanc me ſuſpicionem illa res ſtimulat, quod verbum omnis, & in omnibus Apoſtolus vir Hebrææ peritiæ, & in lege doctiſſimus, nunquam protuliſſet, niſi in Hebræis voluminibus haberentur; whereas, as I have ſhewed, that nothing is here added, but what was neceſſarily included in the full ſenſe of the words, and therefore is in the Verſion of the Septuagint; ſo to imagine, that all the Apoſtles, who underſtood Hebrew, muſt have cited all that they produced out of the Old Teſtament, exactly according to the Hebrew, and not at all according to the Septuagint, is an Imagination contrary to ocular Demonſtration.

(12) V. 13. For it is written, ἐπικαλάρατος πᾶς ὁ κρεμάμενος ἐπὶ ξύλου.] Here again St. Jerome's Note is: Scire non poſſum quare Apoſtolus in eo, quod ſcriptum eſt, maledictus a Deo omnis qui pendet in ligno, vel ſubſtraxerit aliquid, vel addiderit; ſi enim ſemel Authoritatem Septuaginta Interpretum ſequebatur, debuit, ſicut ab illis editum eſt, & Dei nomen adjungere, ſin vero, ut Hebræus ex Hebræis id quod in linguâ ſuâ legerit, putabat eſſe veriſſimum, nec omnis, nec in ligno, quæ in Hebræo non habentur aſſumere, ex quo mihi videtur, aut veteres Hebræorum libri (libros) aliter habuiſſe, quàm nunc habent, aut Apoſtolum ſenſum ſcripturarum poſuiſſe, non verba, aut quod magis æſtimandum eſt, poſt paſſionem Chriſti, & in Hebræis, & in noſtris Codicibus ab aliquo Dei nomen appoſitum, ut infamiam nobis inureret, qui in Chriſtum madedictum a Deo credimus. But to omit the incredible Suppoſition, that the Jews ſhould have falſified both the Hebrew, and Greek Text, and the Samaritan Copy ſhould agree with them in that Falſation.

1*ſt*, The words ἐπὶ ξύλου are no Addition to the Text, עץ תלוי, being in the former Verſe, which ſaith, ye ſhall hang him on a Tree; and ἐπικαλάρατος is in effect, καλάρατος ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ.

2*dly*, The Buſineſs of the Apoſtle here, is to ſhew, that Chriſt had redeemed us, ἐκ τῆς κατάρας, from the Curſe, by being made a Curſe for us, i. e. by ſuffering that Death, which by the Law was counted execrable; now to prove this, it was ſufficient to ſhew, that by being hanged on the Tree, Chriſt ſuffered that Puniſhment, which by the Law was ſtiled execrable.

3*dly*, The Hebrew, ſaith Chilelah beloim, accurſed by the Judges, is he that is hanged on a Tree. Now theſe Judges being the Ordinance of God, he that receives an execrable Sentence from them, may be ſaid to lie under the Curſe of God, as receiving that execrable Puniſhment, which his Vicegerents do inflict upon him, by the determinate Council of God; in which ſenſe Chriſt is ſaid to be ſmitten of that God, who made our Sins to meet upon him, Iſaiah 53. 4. 6. and to be delivered up for our Offences; and he, who ſuffers a Death, which the Law ſtiles ſtiles accurſed by the Heloim, or Magiſtrates, who are appointed to execute the Judgment of the Lord, may be ſaid to undergo his Curſe.

(13) V. 15. Ὅμως ἀνθρώπου κεκυρωμένην διαθήκην οὐδεὶς ἐπιδιατάσσεται;] Here I would read ὁμῶς, which ſignifies ὁμοίως, ſimiliter, in like manner; in which ſenſe ὅμως is plainly uſed in theſe words, ὅμως τὰ ἄψυχα, and is tranſlated, in like manner, 1 Cor. 14. 7.

(14) V. 20. After the Citation from Campejus Vitringa, add,] 2*dly*, This Expoſition is confirmed from the Place parallel to this, Rom. 4. 14. 16. for as there it is argued, that if οἱ ἐκ νόμου κληρονόμοι, they that are of the Law be Heirs, Faith is made void, and the Promiſe is of no effect: So here he argues, v. 18. that if ἐκ νόμου κληρονομία, the Inheritance be of the Law, it is no more of Promiſe. And as there the Apoſtle adds, v. 16. that therefore the Inheritance is of Faith, that the Promiſe might be made firm to all the Seed; not that of the Law only, but to that part alſo, which becomes ſo by the Faith of Abraham, who is the Father of us all: So here he muſt be ſuppoſed to argue, that the Inheritance could not be by the Law, delivered by Moſes, to the Jews, as the Mediator, betwixt God, and them, becauſe he was not the Mediator, παντὶ τῷ σπέρματι, to all the Seed of Abraham; but to that part of it only, which was of the Law, that is to the Jews only; or the words may be paraphraſed thus. The Promiſe, I ſay, was made to the Seed of Abraham, ὡς ἀφ' ἑνὸς, as of one, v. 16. ὁ δὲ Μεσίτης, but this Mediator, Moſes, is not the Mediator of one, [i. e. of that one Seed Chriſt, which was to bring the Bleſſing,] but God [who made the Promiſe, that in this one Seed, all the Nations of the Earth, whether Jew, or Gentile, ſhould be bleſſed,] is one [and the ſame, always true to his Word;] ſo Dr. Allix.

(15) V. 23. After the words, Condemnation to Death, add,] Or this may be ſpoken of the Jews, who only were under the Law; and were by virtue of the peculiar Obſervations it required, an encloſed People, ſeparated from Communion with all other Nations, till the Meſſiah, the great Object of their Faith, ſhould be revealed.

CHAP. IV.

(16) V. 18. Ἐν καλῷ.] It is thought, that by this Expreſſion, St. Paul means himſelf; but it ſeems not reaſonable to think, that he would call himſelf a good Man, when he was ſpeaking to them, who had ſo bad an Opinion of him; but he might ſay this of his Doctrine, nor will the Greek bear the other ſenſe.

(17) V. 25. Τὸ γὰρ Ἄγαρ Σινᾶ ὄρος ἐστὶν ἐν Ἀραβίᾳ.] Note, that it ſeems very unreaſonable to me, to expunge theſe words, Σινᾶ ὄρος ἐστὶν ἐν Ἀραβίᾳ, againſt the plain Evidence of all the Ancient Verſions, and the concurrent Suffrage of all the Ancient Interpreters, Chryſoſtome, Theodoret, Oecumenius, and Theophylact, among the Greeks, Ambroſe, and St. Jerome among the Latins, who take not the leaſt notice of any various reading here; and to add ὃ for γὰρ, only to ſalve a Difficulty; for if this Liberty may be allow'd, we may take the ſame Liberty in all other Places; and ſtrike out ſuch words as ſpurious, or ſuſpected, which create the Difficulty. And this is leſs to be allow'd; when the words rejected according to the deſcants of the Ancients give a plain reaſon, why Agar is made the Symbol of the Covenant given from Mount Sinai, viz. τὸ γὰρ ὄνομα τῷ Ἄγαρ, becauſe the Name Agar, ſaith Bochart, is by Interpretation a Rock; and ſay the Greek Interpreters, is the Name given to Mount Sinai, ἐν Ἀραβῶν γλώσσῃ, in the Arabian Tongue. But we need here no various Lection, the Interpretation, which Dr. Mills hath excellently given us of this Place, being very clear only by adding κατ' ὑποδιάστασιν, by Repreſentation after the Word ἐστὶν, which is the ſenſe it uſually bears in Allegorical Propoſitions, and by referring συστοιχεῖ δὲ τῇ νῦν Ἱερουσαλήμ, not to the Mountain, but to Agar; for then the ſenſe of the whole runs thus: Theſe two Sons of Abraham, Iſmael born of Agar his Handmaid; and Iſaac born of Sarah the Free-Woman, contain an Allegory, in which the Name is put for the thing ſignified, or repreſented by it; for theſe two Women, and their Children, are by Repreſentation, the two Covenants; the one Covenant being that from Mount Sinah, gendring to Bondage, ἥτις ἐστὶν, which is, by Repreſentation, Agar, the Bond-Woman, and ſo bearing a Child, which alſo was in Bondage, τὸ γὰρ Ἄγαρ; for that which is ſignified by Agar, from whom Iſmael deſcended, is Mount Sinai, in Arabia, whence the Law was given; and this Agar anſwers to Jeruſalem, that now is, and is in Bondage, with her Children, to the Law, as the Bond-Woman and her Child was to Abraham; but the Jeruſalem, which is above ἐλευθέρα ἐστὶν, is by Repreſentation Sarah the Free-Woman, whoſe Son was born, not according to the Fleſh, but according to the Promiſe; and this Woman is the Mother of us all; for we Brethren, as Iſaac was, are the Children of the Promiſe, and ſo the ſpiritual Seed of Abraham, and Heirs according to the Promiſe. And this Interpretation is confirmed by the Concluſion of the whole Allegory thus: So then, Brethren, we are not the Children of the Bond-Woman, but of the Free. O ſi ſic omnia!

(18) V. 8. This Perſuaſion cometh not of him that calleth you.] Here Jerome's Note runs thus: Perſuaſio noſtra non eſt ex eo, qui vocavit nos, ſed ex nobis, qui conſentimus, vel non conſentimus vocanti aliud quippe Dei opus, aliud hominum, Dei opus eſt vocare, hominum credere, vel non credere, & ſicubi alitèr de ſcripturis liberum hominis affirmatur arbitrium, ut ibi ſi volueritis, & ſi audieritis me, Ex. 19. 2. & iterum, & nunc Iſrael, quid petit a te Dominus Deus tuus? Deut. 10. & ex hoc loco vel maximè comprobatur.

Accuſat enim, quare non obediverint veritati, oſtendens in eorum arbitrio poſitum vel obedire vel non obedire. And in this he ſpeaks the Senſe of all the Ancients till St. Auſtin's Time.

(19) V. 9. A little Leaven, &c.] That is, ſaith Chryſoſtome, Circumciſion, tho' it be but one Command, brings us under an Obligation to obey the whole Jewiſh Law, as the Apoſtle teacheth, v. 3.

(20) V. 14. The whole Law is fulfilled in this, thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf.] So that if thou be ſtill deſirous to fulfil the Law, thou mayſt do it by obſerving this comprehenſive Law of Love. So Oecumenius.

CHAP. VI.

(21) V. 10. Let us do good to all Men.[By this Precept, ſaith Chryſoſtome, he extends the Love of the Chriſtian beyond that of the Jews, which was confin'd, πρὸς τὸς ὁμοφύλους, to Men of their own Nation, and Religion.

(22) V. 12. After theſe words, our Lord's Death and Sufferings, add,] St. Jerome here ſaith, that Octavianus Auguſtus, Tiberius, and Cajus Cæſar had made Laws, that the Jews, diſperſed thro' the whole Roman Empire, ſhould live according to their own Laws, and Ceremonies; whoſoever therefore was circumciſed, tho' he believed in Chriſt, was by the Gentiles deemed a Jew; but they who had not this Token of a Jew, viz. the Circumciſion of the Fleſh, were perſecuted both by Jews and Gentiles, has igitur perſecutiones hi, qui Galatas depravaverant, declinare cupientes, circumciſionem pro defenſione diſcipulis perſuadebant; and hence they who perverted the Galatians, perſuaded them to be circumciſed, that they might avoid Perſecution.

(23) V. 15. Ἐν γὰρ χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ οὔτε περιτομή τι ἰσχύει, Doctor Mills omits the words ſcored, and reads οὐ περιτομή τι ἐστιν; but the words, as they are in the Text, are not only owned by the Vulgar, Arab. Theodoret, Oecumenius, and Theophylact, but are exactly the ſame in Chap. 5. 6. See Examen Millii in locum.

(24) V. 17. Let no Man trouble me, ἐγὼ γὰρ τὰ στίγματα τοῦ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ ἐν τῷ σώματί μου βαστάζω, for I bear in my Body the Marks of the Lord Jeſus,] i. e. Let no Man henceforth queſtion, whether I truly ſtile my ſelf Paul the Servant of Jeſus Chriſt, or fight the good Fight of Faith, as a good Soldier under this Captain of Salvation; ſeeing whereas Servants and Soldiers have only one, στίγμα, as a mark of their Relation to their Maſters, and Generals, in their Hands, or Wriſts, I bear many marks of theſe Relations to the Lord Jeſus, thro'out my whole Body, in thoſe many Wounds and Stripes I have received for his ſake.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 1. ΚΑΙ' πιστοῖς, and (that is) to the Faithful.] So οἱ ἐκ περιτομῆς πιστοί, are the Believers of the Circumciſion, Acts 10. 45. τὶς μέρις πιστῷ μετ' ἀπίστου, what Portion hath a Believer with an Infidel? 2 Cor. 6. 15. ſo Acts 16. 1. 1 Tim. 4, 3. 10, 12. 5, 16. 6, 2. Tit. 1. 6. yet it is very probable, as Mr. L. here ſuggeſts, that here, and Coloſſ. 1. 2. theſe words may particularly relate to ſuch Chriſtians, as kept the Doctrine of Chriſt from the corrupt Mixtures of thoſe Judaizers, who went about, καπηλεύοντες, 2 Cor. 2. 17. κὴ δολοῦντες τ λόγον, corrupting, and handling the Word of God deceitfully.

(2) V. 4. That we may be ſancti, & immaculati, holy, and unblameable.] There is a difference, ſaith St. Jerome, betwixt theſe two things, parvuli quippe immaculati ſunt, quia integro corpore nullum fecerunt peccatum, & tamen non ſancti, quia ſanctitas ſtudio, & labore comparatur; ſo Children are unblamable as having done no Sin in the Body, and yet they are not holy, becauſe Holineſs proceeds from the Will, and the Endeavour; this in other Men would be ſtiled Pelagianiſm.

(4) V. 7. Redemption thro' his Blood.] Here St. Jerome ſaith, duplicitèr ſanguis Chriſti, & caro intelligitur, vel ſpiritualis iſta, atq; divina, de quâ ipſe dixit, caro mea eſt verè cibus, & ſanguis meus verè eſt potus, niſi manducaveritis carnem meam, & ſanguinem meum biberitis non habebitis vitam æternam, vel caro, & ſanguis, quæ crucifixa eſt, & quæ militis effuſa eſt lanceâ; Where he plainly diſtinguiſhes the Fleſh and Blood received in the Sacrament, from the Fleſh of Chriſt crucified; and his Blood ſhed upon the Croſs, calling the firſt Spiritual, in Oppoſition to his material Fleſh and Blood.

(5) V. 9. From this Ninth Verſe it appears, that the Election, and Fore-appointment mention'd, v. 4. 5. is as large as is his Manifeſtation of his Will to the Gentiles; for as προορίσεν, he fore-appointed them to Sonſhip by Jeſus Chriſt, v. 5. ſo here, προέθετο, he purpoſed before to make known his Will unto them; ἐν αὐτῷ, in him, according to the ſame Pleaſure of his Will. Note alſo, that the Words being not ἐν ἑαυτῷ, but ἐν αὐτῷ, ſhould not have been rendred in himſelf, that is in God the Father, but in him, that is in Chriſt, v. 4. as the following, and preceding Verſes ſhew.

(6) V. 11. Ἐν ᾧ καὶ ἐκληρώθημεν.] Note alſo, that here the Alexandrian Copy, and the Syriac, read ἐκλήθημεν, we are called, and the Note of St. Jerome here is this: Vult Deus, quæcunq; ſunt rationis plena, & conſilii, vult ſalvari omnes, & in agnitionem veritatis venire, ſed quia nullus abſq; propriâ voluntate ſervatur, liberi enim arbitrii ſumus, vult nos bonum velle, & cum voluerimus, vult in nobis ipſe ſuum implere conſilium.

(7) V. 12. Τὸς προηλπικότας, who before truſted in Chriſt.] I ſee no reaſon, why us, and we, in the firſt ten Verſes may not ſignifie Believers in the General, and then us, and we, v. 11. may ſignifie the believing Jews, who literally were προηλπικότοι, Believers in Chriſt, before the Gentiles; nor could any thing tend more to the Eſtabliſhment of the Freedom of the believing Gentiles, from Judaical Obſervances than this Conſideration, that the Jews themſelves could only obtain the Benefits of Chriſtianity, by being choſen a-new to be God's People, thro' Faith in Chriſt.

(8) V. 14. Ὅς ἐστιν ἀρραβών, who is the earneſt of our Inheritance.] It was the Cuſtom, both of the Jews, and Heathens, to confirm a Promiſe, or a Bargain, by giving ſomthing as an Earneſt of, or Obligation to perform it. This the Latins ſtiled arra, the Greeks ἀρραβών, ἢ ἐνέχυρον; ſee Plaut. Moſtell. Act. 3. Sc. 1. Miles Glori. Act. 4. Sc. 1. The Jews Eraban: So when Judas had promiſed Thamnah a Kid, he gives her ἀρραβῶνα, an Earneſt, that he would perfom his Promiſe, Gen. 38. 17. 18. And in like manner God having promiſed to his faithful Servants an eternal Inheritance gives them his Holy Spirit as the Earneſt of it.

(9) V. 19. Καὶ τὶ τὸ ὑπερβάλλον μέγεθος, and that is the exceeding Greatneſs of his Power towards us, to the Note there add,] The Apoſtle doth not here pray as Mr. L. ſuggeſts in his Paraphraſe, that the Epheſians might have the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation, that they might know the exceeding Greatneſs of that Power God had employed already in bringing them to the Faith, for that they knew already; it being the mighty Power of thoſe Miracles they had ſeen done before their Eyes, which induced the Gentiles to believe, Rom. 15. 18. 19. But he prays, that by theſe means they might know, what at preſent they had no experience of, viz. how glorious was the Object of their Hope, how great their future Inheritance, and how excellent was the Power God would ſhew in raiſing them up from the Dead, as he had done Chriſt, to the Enjoyment of it.

(10) V. 21. A Name above every Name,] That the Word ὄνομα doth alſo ſignifie Perſons; ſee note on Acts 2. 15. and Men of great Power and Dignity, are ſtiled both in Scripture, and in other Writers, Anſhe, Haſhem, οἱ ἄνδρες οἱ ὀνόμαστοι, Men of Name, i. e. Renown. So are the Giants called, Gen. 6. 4. And the Princes of the Congregation, Num. 16. 2. ſo that to be exalted above every Name, that is named, is to be advanced, even in his human Nature, above Men and Angels of the higheſt Divinity, by being exalted to the right Hand of the Father, Heb. 1. 4, 5. After the Dignity of Chriſt was conteſted by the Arians, the Fathers to avoid their Argument from theſe words, choſe rather to interpret this of the Name of the Son mentioned by St. Paul, Heb. 1. 6. To which of the Angels ſaid he, thou art my Son? So Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact on this place, and Epiphanius, Hær. 69. p. 325. tho' the words, v. 20. He hath raiſed him from the Dead, and ſet him on his right Hand on heavenly places, ſtrongly plead for the firſt Interpretation.

rection will be your Portion, you may learn from what God hath already done for you; for he hath quickened you, who were dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins, v. 1. and ſo hath brought you into a State of Salvation, v. 5. and made you meet to be Partakers of the Inheritance of Saints in Light, Coloſſ. 1. 12. He alſo hath raiſed up your head, and placed him, and in him your nature in heavenly Places, and ſo hath, in a manner, raiſed you up, and made you ſit together with him there, v. 6. you being hence aſſured, that all his living Members ſhall be raiſed up to live for ever with him; for if we believe that Chriſt is riſen, we muſt believe that them who ſleep in Jeſus, will God bring with him, to be forever with the Lord, 1 Theſſ. 4. 14. 17. and to him that overcometh, ſaith Chriſt, will I give to ſit down with me, on my Throne, even as I have overcome, and am ſet down with my Father on his Throne, Rev. 3. 21.

(12) V. 3. Καὶ ἦμεν τέκνα φύσει ὀργῆς, and were by nature Children of Wrath.] We were Children of Wrath, ſaith Jerome, vel propter corpus humilitatis, corpuſq; mortis, by reaſon of the vile mortal Body, to which our Souls was condemned, which was the Opinion of Origen; or, quòd ab adoleſcentiâ mens hominum appoſita ſit ad malitiam, becauſe the Mind of Man is prone to Iniquity from his Youth; vel, quòd ex eo tempore, quo poſſumus habere notitiam Dei, & ad pubertatem venimus, omnes, aut operâ, aut linguâ aut cogitatione peccamus; or, becauſe, when we come to Ripeneſs of Years, and attain to the Knowledge of God, we offend all in Thought, Word and Deed; where it is obſervable, that tho' he brings in Origen's peculiar Opinion, as one Reaſon of this Appellation; yet hath he not the leaſt Hint of our being the Children of Wrath, on the account of Adam's Sin. See my Interpretation confirmed by Mr. Thorndike, &c.

(13) V. 12. Ἄθεοι, without God, after 1 Theſſ. 1. 9. add,] Thus the Chriſtians ſtiled the Heathens Atheiſts, becauſe τὸν μὴ ὄντως ὄντα Θεὸν ἠγνοήκησαν, they ſaw not the true God; ſo Clemens Alexandrinus protrept. p. 14. and Theodoret here. And the Heathens ſtiled the Chriſtians ſo, becauſe they denied thoſe to be Gods, whom they eſteemed truly ſo. So Juſt. in Apol. 2. p. 56. Athenag. p. 6. And the Stoicks reckoned two kinds of Atheiſts; one that contemned the Gods; the other, τὸν ἀναλόγως τῷ Θεῷ λεγόμενον, them that ſpake things contrary to the Deity. Diog. Laert. l. 7. §. 119.

(14) V. 16. Ἐν ᾧτῷ,] i. e. ἐν τῷ σταυρῷ, By the Croſs; ſo Chryſoſtome, Theodoret, Oecumenius, and Theophylact read. Other Copies read ἐν ἑαυτῷ in himſelf: But this Reading, ſaith St. Jerome, is only of the Latin Copies, and it ſeems to have had its riſe from the former Verſe; ſee Examen Millii.

CHAP. III.

V. 7. Οὗ ἐγενόμην διάκονος, of which I am made a Miniſter.] Mr. L. thinks, that this ſtrongly implies a Denial, that others were made Miniſters of the ſame Doctrine: but as it cannot imply that Barnabas, and others appointed to go with him; or that Silas, and Timotheus, who preached the ſame Doctrine, 2 Cor. 1. 19. were not alſo Miniſters of that Doctrine; ſo the Commiſſion Chriſt gave to all his Apoſtles, being to preach the Goſpel, and to make Diſciples thro' all the Gentile World, it is not eaſie to conceive, that thoſe Nine, who were ſent to preach to the Gentiles, as well as St. Paul, ſhould none of them underſtand their Commiſſion aright; eſpecially if we conſider how fully the Council met at Jeruſalem, eſtabliſh St. Paul's Doctrine, with reſpect to the Gentile Converts, declaring, as St. Peter doth, that they being the Jews expected to be ſaved by Faith in Chriſt, as did the Gentiles. That God had put no difference betwixt them, and the circumciſed Jews, purifying their Hearts by Faith, and giving them the Holy Spirit, as he had done to the believing Jews; and that therefore to endeavour to put the Yoke of Circumciſion on their Necks, was to tempt God, that is, to diſtruſt the Evidence that he had given of his Acceptance of them without Circumciſion, Acts 15. 8, 9. 10, 11. And the whole Synod declare, that they who ſaid, they ought to be circumciſed, and to keep the Law, troubled them with words tending to the Subverſion of their Souls, v. 24. whereas it ſeemed good to the Holy Ghoſt, and to them, to lay upon them none of theſe Burthens, v. 28. And laſtly, that they who were Pillars of the Church of the Circumciſion, knowing the Grace given to St. Paul, approved his Commiſſion of preaching to the Gentiles, as he did, Gal. 2. 9. (15)

V. 9. Διὰ Ἰησοῦ χριστοῦ, See theſe words vindicated, Examen Millii in locum. (16)

V. 10. After 1 Pet. 1. 12. add,] That the words ἐπουράνιος, and ἐπουράνια, always ſignifie things, or Perſons in Heaven, is very evident. So πατὴρ ἐπουράνιος, is our heavenly Father, Matth. 18. 25. ὁ ἐπουράνιος, the Lord from Heaven, 1 Cor. 15. 48, 49. τὰ ἐπουράνια, heavenly things, to be taught only by him, who was in Heaven, John 3. 12, 13. σώματα ἐπουράνια, heavenly Bodies, viz. the Stars; 1 Cor. 15. 40. βασιλεία ἐπουράνιος, the Kingdom, to be enjoy'd in Heaven, 2 Tim. 4. 18. Heb. 11. 16. Ἱερουσαλὴμ ἐπουράνιος, The Jeruſalem that is above, Heb. 12. 22. ὑπόδειγμα τῶν ἐπουρανίων, the Pattern of things in Heaven, Heb. 8. 5. τὰ ἐπουράνια, heavenly things, Heb. 9. 23. are they diſtinguiſhed from things on Earth, or under the Earth, Philip. 2. 10. The words are five times uſed in this Epiſtle, and always ſignifie heavenly Places. So it doth when we are ſaid to ſit down with Chriſt, ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, in heavenly Places, Chap. 2. 6. when Chriſt is ſaid to be ſat down with God, ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, in heavenly Places, Chap. 1. 20. that being the Conſequence of his Aſcenſion into Heaven, 1 Pet. 3. 22. Heb. 13. 10. 12. and therefore it is well rendred in heavenly Places, v. 3. So it ſignifies, when the Apoſtle ſpeaks of Principalities, Powers, and ſpiritual Wickedneſſes, ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις, Chap. 6. 12. and ſo it muſt ſignifie, when he ſpeaks here of good Angels in the ſame Places: Nor can it be well joyn'd with σοφία, becauſe διὰ τῆς ἐκκλησίας intervenes.

To Mr. L's Objection, that 'tis not eaſie to conceive, that the Declaration of this Myſtery ſhould be to this Intent, that the Angels, good or bad, ſhould be acquainted with it, it may be anſwered,

1*ſt*, That the Apoſtle doth not ſay this was God's ſole Intent in the Revelation of this Myſtery; but only, that this, amongſt others more important, might be one.

2*dly*, That the Particle ἵνα ſignifies, adeo ut, ſo that; ſee Note on 1 Cor. 14. 13. and then the words will not reſpect God's Intention in this Revelation, but only the Conſequence of it.

CHAP. IV.

(18) V. 9. After theſe words, the lower part of the Earth, add,] "We cannot be aſ- "ſured, ſaith (a) Biſhop Pearſon, that the "Deſcent of Chriſt, which St. Paul here "ſpeaketh of, was performed after his "Death, nor can we be aſſur'd, that the "lower parts of the Earth do ſignifie Hell; "they may well refer to his Incarnation, "according to that of David, Pſal. 139. 15. My Subſtance was not hid from thee, when I was made in ſecret, and curiouſly wrought in the lower parts of the Earth, or to his Burial, according to that of the Prophet, they that ſeek my Soul to deſtroy it, ſhall go into the lower parts of the Earth, κατώτερα γῆς μέρη τὸν γῆν τὸν θάνατον ἐκάλεσεν, he calls his Death his Deſcent into the lower parts of the Earth, ſay Chryſoſtom, and Theodoret on the Place.

(19) V. 29. Let no corrupt Communication proceed out of your Mouth, but that which is good for Edification.] Severe here are the words of St. Jerome; Quotiens loquimur aut non in tempore, aut opportuno loco, aut non ut convenit audientibus, totiens Sermo malus procedit de ore noſtro ad deſtructionem eorum, qui audiunt; Conſideremus itaq; quid loquimur, quia pro omni verbo otioſo reddituri ſumus rationem in die judicii, & etiamſi non lædamus, non tamen Edificemus, mali verbi nobis luenda ſit pœna. To qualifie the rigid Severity of theſe words, ſee the Note on Matth. 12. 36. ſee the reading of this, and the 32d Verſe vindicated, Examen Millii, ibid.

CHAP. V.

V. 12. After Rome, and Italy, add,] Ἀκόλυθα γὰρ τῇ Διονυσιακῷ τότῳ τὰ ἀφροδύσια, Luſt being a Conſequent on the Bacchanalia, ſays the (b) Scholiaſt on Ariſtophanes. Hence is that of (c) Ariſtippus, ἐν Βαχχεύμασιν ἔσ' ἡ σώφρων ἢ διαφθερήσεται, a chaſt Woman will not be corrupted at the Bacchanalia. And thoſe Precepts, that a married Woman ſhould obtain, (d) τοῖς ὠφελιασμοῖς, καὶ μαλθακισμοῖς, from the Feaſts of Bacchus, and the Mother of the Gods, becauſe they tended to Drunkenneſs, and the corrupting of chaſt Women. (20)

V. 14. Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ariſe from the Dead, καὶ ἐπιφαύσει σοι ὁ Χριστός, and Chriſt ſhall enlighten thee, or ſhine upon thee;] And yet our Tranſlation, that Chriſt ſhall give thee Life, is very juſtifiable, as giving the true ſenſe of the Metaphor; ſo Pſal. 13. 14. Lighten my Eyes, that I ſleep not in Death, i. e. preſerve my Life, Prov. 29. 13. The Poor and Rich meet together, the Lord enlighteneth both their Eyes. See Job 3. 20. 33. 30. (e) Mr. Dodwell citing theſe words ſaith, "Chriſt ſhall give thee "Light, is the ſame with the immortal "Light; and this is an Addreſs to the Dead, "who are frequently ſaid to ſleep in the "Prophetick Stile of the New Teſtament; "and the Light ſeems to allude to the Bap- "tiſmal Illumination of the Spirit, upon "owning of the true Faith. But as in this he is ſingular, and hath not one Authority Ancient, or Modern, agreeing with him in this Interpretation, or to the Application of it to Chriſt preaching to the Dead in Hades, and baptizing them. St. Chryſoſtome, Theodoret, Photius, and Theophylact among the Greek Interpreters; Ambroſe, or Hilary the Deacon, and St. Jerome among the Latins; all ſaying poſitively, that the words are to be underſtood metaphorically of a Sleep, and Death in Treſpaſſes and Sins; ſo is it alſo evident, that the words cannot bear this Senſe. For, (21)

1*ſt*, If they that ſleep here ſignifies literally thoſe, whoſe Bodies ſleep in the Grave, the Addreſs to them to riſe from the Dead, muſt be an Addreſs to their Bodies, to riſe from the Grave, and ſo they muſt be firſt raiſed from the Dead before Chriſt gives them Light.

2*dly*, To ſleep, when it is uſed to ſignifie Death in the New Teſtament, always relates to the Body ſleeping in the Grave, or in the Duſt; as John 5. 28, 29. 1 Cor. 11. 30. 15. 20. 51. 1 Theſſ. 4. 14. 5. 10. and never to the Soul in Hades, or to the Spirits in Priſon there. For as St. Jerome notes on the Place; ſpiritûs mortem nunquam legimus; we never read in Scripture of the Death of the Spirit in the literal Senſe. And,

3*dly*, The preceding Verſes plainly ſhew, that the Apoſtle introduceth theſe words, as a Call to the Gentiles ſitting in Darkneſs, to awake out of their Sleep in Sin, their Death in Treſpaſſes and Sins, Chap. 2. 1. 5. that they might enjoy the Light of Chriſt's Goſpel. For, ſaith he, v. 8. Ye were once Darkneſs, but now are ye Light in the Lord, walk as Children of the Light, and have no Fellowſhip with the unfruitful Works of Darkneſs, but rather reprove them, v. 11. which you who are Children of the Light, and on whom God hath ſhined to give the Light of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt, 2 Cor. 4. 6. may do for all that maketh manifeſt is Light, v. 13. wherefore, λέγει, the Scripture ſaith to thoſe Gentiles, who are yet in Darkneſs, awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ariſe from the Dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee Light; ſo again, 1 Theſſ. 5. 5. 6. Ye are the Children of the Light, and of the Day, not of the Night, or of Darkneſs; therefore let us not ſleep as others do. See the Note on Rom. 13. 12. So (a) Clemens Alexandrinus, in his Exhortation to the Gentiles, ſaith, ἀφυπνίζει γέ τοι, καὶ τῶν σκότους αὐτῶν τοὺς παλαιπαμβώτας ἀνίστησιν, He, by his Exhortation, raiſes out of Sleep thoſe that erred in, and thro' Darkneſs. See alſo the Reading of the Text confirm'd Examen Millii in locum.

(22) V. 16. Ἐξαγοραζόμενοι τὸν καιρὸν, after the words wiſe as Serpents, add,] And tho' it may not be ſo pertinent to this Text, yet will it be very profitable to the Men of this Age to conſider the Practice of the Heathens in this Caſe. For (b) Ælian informs us of the Lacedæmonians, that they were much concerned, that Men ſhould ſpend their time well, ταμιεύμενοι παντὸς ἐπὶ παντὸς ἐπειγόμενα, imploying it ſtill upon urgent Buſineſs, and ſuffering no Man either to be idle, or to employ himſelf about Trifles, ὡς ἂν μὴ πρὸς τὰ ἔξω τῆς ἀρετῆς ἀναλισκόμενον, ſo that he might employ his whole Time in virtuous Actions. And (c) Stobæus ſaith, that the Lucani, a People of Italy, and the Athenians puniſhed thoſe that were idle, as well as thoſe that were guilty, ἄλλου τινὸς ἀδικήματος, of any other Crime. And ſeeing Time is a Talent given us by that God, in whoſe Hand our Lives are, it muſt be given us for ſome good End, and muſt be miſpent, when 'tis not employed to ſuch ends.

V. 19. Speaking to your ſelves in Hymns and Pſalms, after 1 Cor. 14. 15. add.] St. Jerome here ſaith, Canere igitur, & pſallere magis animo, quam voce debemus, hoc eſt, quippe quod dicitur cantantes, & pſallentes in cordibus veſtris Domino. Audiant hæc Adoleſcentuli, audiant hi, quibus pſallendi in Eccleſiâ officium eſt, Deo non voce ſed corde cantandum, nec Tragædorum ad modum guttur & fauces dulci medicamine colliniendas, ut in Eccleſiâ theatrales moduli audiantur, & cantica, ſed in timore, in opere, in ſcientiâ Scripturarum; which ſhews that Choriſters, or Quire Men had then obtain'd an Office in the Church, tho' he ſeems not much to approve them. V. 26. Ἐν ῥήματι, by the Word,] That is, ſaith Chryſoſtome, by the words uſed in the Form of Baptiſm, to wit, I baptiſe thee in the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt. (24)

V. 31. Καὶ προσκολληθήσεται πρὸς τὴν γυναῖκα αὐτοῦ,] Jerome being an Enemy to Wedlock, inſinuates that theſe words are an Addition to the Text, but the contrary is evident they being found in all Verſions, all the Greek Scholiaſts in the Cod. Alex. and Hilary D.

V. 32. After theſe words, and of his Bones, v. 30. add.] For the fuller explication of theſe words, Note from the (d) Biſhop of Ely, " That the profoundeſt of " the Hebrew Divines, whom they now " call Cabbaliſts having ſuch a Notion as this " among them, that ſenſible things are but " an Imitation of things above, conceived " from thence; that there was an Original " Pattern of Love and Union, which is be- " tween a Man and his Wife in this World; " this being expreſſed by the Kindneſs of " Tipheret, and Malcuth, which are the " Names they give to the inviſible Bride- " groom, and Bride, in the upper World; " and this Tipheret, or the great Adam, " in Oppoſition to the terreſtrial and little " Adam here below; as Malcuth (i. e. the " Kingdom) they call alſo by the Name of " Cheneſeth Iſrael, the Congregation of " Iſrael, who is united, ſay they, to the " Celeſtial Adam; as Eve was to the Ter- " reſtrial. " when he tells us, that Marriage is a great " Myſtery, but he ſpeaks concerning Chriſt, " and his Church. For the Marriage of " Tipheret and Malcuth, or Cheneſeth Iſ- " rael, is the Marriage of Chriſt the Lord " from Heav'n, with his Spouſe the Church, " which is the Conjunction of Adam and " Eve, and of all other Men and Wo- " men deſcended from them. (a) Origen ſeems to have had ſome Notice of the Relation this Paſſage had to Adam and Eve, when he ſpeaks thus. If any Man deride us for uſing the Example of Adam and Eve; in theſe words, and Adam knew his Wife, when we treat of the Knowledge of God, let him conſider theſe words, this is a great Myſtery. Tertullian frequently alludes to the ſame thing, ſaying this is a great Sacrament, carnalitèr in Adam, ſpiritualitèr in Chriſto propter ſpirituales nuptias Chriſti & Eccleſiæ; carnally in Adam, ſpiritually in Chriſt, by reaſon of the ſpiritual Marriage betwixt him and his Church. Exhort. ad Caſtitat. l. 5. p. 521. (26) V. 4. Provoke not your Children to anger.] By diſ-inheriting them, by laying heavy Burdens upon them, and uſing them rather as Slaves than Sons, but bring them up in the Nurture and Admonition of the Lord. For it is not, ſaith Ariſtides, a thing of a ſmall Conſideration, what Principles are put into them in their Youth; but it is, τὸ πᾶν, the Foundation of all they do hereafter. And if Lovers of Horſes, Birds, and Dogs, are careful of their Education; is it not juſt, ſaith St. Chryſoſtome, that Chriſtians ſhould be more careful of the Education of their Children; eſpecially if they conſider, that upon this Education depends much their eternal State; and that they will contract the Guilt of their eternal Ruin, who neglect this Duty.

V. 8. The ſame ſhall he receive of the (27) Lord.] So that tho' he be not rewarded for the Good he doth by his earthly, and unbelieving Maſter, he will, moſt certainly, be recompenced by his Lord Chriſt.

V. 24. After theſe words, to wax cold, add,] (28) Or as Mr. L. without the Mixture of thoſe legal Obſervations, by which the Enemy, ſaith St. Paul, φθαρῇ, corrupts the Minds of Chriſtians from the ſimplicity of the Goſpel, 2 Cor. 11. 3. See the Note on Chap. 1. v. 2.

(1) Ver. 1. AFTER theſe words, all Macedonia, add,] Thus Chryſoſtome on theſe words, Chap. 4. 16. when I was in Theſſalonica, ye miniſtred to my Neceſſity, &c. obſerves, this was a great Encomium of the Philippians, that ἐν μητροπόλει καθήμενος τῆς μικρᾶς ἐτέθρεπτο πόλεως, being in the Metropolis, he was nouriſhed by a little City.

(2) V. 10. Ἵνα ἦτε εἰλικρινεῖς, καὶ ἀπρόσκοποι.] Εἰλικρινεῖς πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, ἀπρόσκοποι καὶ ἀνθρώπων, ſincere in their Deportment towards God, inoffenſive in their Behaviour towards Men.

(3) V. 22. Οὐ γνωρίζω, I know not,] Ἀπαξ λεγόμενον ἐν τούτῳ τῷ σημαινομένῳ. This, γνωρίζω, ſaith F. Gregory is but once uſed in this ſenſe; which is true, if he confines this to the New Teſtament. But Phavorinus mentions another Gregory, who uſed it in this ſenſe, and Conſtantine ſays, it occurs thus in Iſocrates, and Lucian.

V. 27. After 1 Chron. 12. 38. add.] So (4) in Irenæus, l. 1. c. 3. to act, συμφώνως, with one accord, and conſent, is to act as having, μίαν ψυχὴν, καὶ αὐτὴν καρδίαν, καὶ ἓν σῶμα, one Soul, Heart and Mouth.

V. 29. To you it is given not only to be- (5) lieve in him, but alſo to ſuffer for his Name,] Where note, (1*ſt*,) That to ſuffer for Chriſt's ſake is, χάρις, Grace, and Favour, v. 7. It is a Gift which is Matter of great Joy, Matth. 5. 12. Rom. 5. 13. Jam. 1. 2. (2*dly*,) That they who from theſe words, to you it is given to believe, infer, that Faith is ſo the Gift of God, as that Men are purely paſſive in it, have as much reaſon to infer, that we ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt, without the Concurrence of our own Wills, both being ſaid to be equally given.

add,] And therefore all the Greek Interpreters obſerve, that the Apoſtle ſaith, it is God that worketh in us both to will and to do, ἐκ ὧν ἀφαιρῶν τὸ αὐτεξούσιον, not as denying our free Will, or, τὸν ἄκοντας βιαζόμενον, conſtraining the Unwilling, (a) ἀλλ' ὅτι προθυμίαν εὑρίσκων, αὔξει ταύτην διὰ τὴν χάριν; but, becauſe finding a readineſs of Mind, he encreaſeth it by his Grace; and becauſe he works together with thoſe, who work out their Salvation with fear and trembling, τοῖς γὰρ τοιούτοις συνεργεῖ, for with ſuch he co-operates, ſaith Oecumenius.

(7) V. 14. Do all things without Murmurings, καὶ διαλογισμῶν, and Diſputings;] That is, ſay the Greek Commentators, without murmuring under your Sufferings for the ſake of Chriſt, Chap. 1. 20. or Doubtings, or Reaſonings, whether you ſhould continue ſtedfaſt in the Faith, or not.

(8) V. 25. After the words, this is the Import of the word Apoſtle, add,] This being the Note of the ſame Theodoret, that formerly, τοὺς νῦν καλουμένους ἐπισκόπους, Ἀποστόλους ὠνόμαζεν, they who are now call'd Biſhops, were ſtiled Apoſtles; and Hilary the Deacon ſaying here, Erat enim eorum Apoſtolus, ab Apoſtolo factus, he was conſtituted their Apoſtle, i. e. Biſhop by St. Paul, who therefore commands them to receive him in the Lord, v. 29. i. e. for the ſake of the Lord Chriſt, whoſe Miniſter he was.

CHAP. III.

(9) V. 8. Διὰ τὸ ὑπερέχον τῆς γνώσεως Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ, for the excellency of the Knowledge of Chriſt Jeſus,] There hath been a ſharp Contention about the Import of theſe plain words; ſome contending, that the Apoſtle here intends the Knowledge of the Perſon of our Lord, and of his Offices, and of the Benefits which he hath purchaſed for us in his Perſon, and doth convey to us by his Offices. And others pleading, that it is the Knowledge of the Goſpel of Chriſt, which is here intended, and the Excellency of it, which is here commended; whereas I think there is no real Difference betwixt theſe two Opinions. For we know nothing of the Perſon, and of the Offices of Chriſt, or of the Benefits which he hath purchaſed for us, and conveys to us by them, but by the Revelation of the Goſpel, and ſo the Excellency of his Perſon, and Offices; and of that Goſpel, which reveals them to us, muſt be in effect the ſame; nor would the Knowledge of the Goſpel be ſo excellent, were it not for the Revelation of the Dignity of his Perſon and of his Offices, and of the Benefits we receive from them.

CHAP. IV.

(10) V. 3. After theſe words, the Targum of Jonathan, add,] The (b) Apoſtolical Conſtitutions ſay, we come to be written in this Book, τῇ ἡμετέρᾳ διανοίᾳ, καὶ σπουδῇ, by our good Affection, and Induſtry. (c) St. Baſil, that as Men are written in this Book, when they are converted from Vice to Virtue; ſo may they be blotted out of it, when they backſlide from Vertue to Vice, according to the ſaying of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 69. 28. Let them be blotted out of the Book of the Living, and not written with the Righteous; that is, ſaith Ainſworth, let them be cut off from being any longer thy People, or regiſtred in the writing of the Houſe of Iſrael; and ſaith, (d) St. Jerome they were written in the Book of God, who in the Days of Antiochus Epiphanes, legem fortiſſimè defenderant, firmly continued in the Law, and they were blotted out of it, qui legis prævaricatores extiterant, who were Deſerters of it.

(11) V. 5. Let your Moderation, τὸ ἐπιεικὲς ὑμῶν, be known to all Men,] After the words, τὸ ἐπιεικὲς, add; and yet that, τὸ ἐπιεικὲς, is well rendred Moderation, is certain; for, ἐπείκεια is rendred by Phavorinus, μετριότης, Moderation, ἐπεικῶς by Suidas, and Phavorinus, μετρίως ἤτοι συμμέτρως, moderately, or in Meaſure, ἐπείκης, and ἐπεικὸς by Heſychius, and Suidas, μετριὸς, that is moderate; and in the ſame Suidas, ἐπεικῶς ζῆσθαι, is to live moderately, that is temperately; and ἐπεικῶς γεγράφθαι, is to be written moderately, without Bitterneſs, or Paſſion.

Now becauſe this Moderation is much talk'd of; but neither rightly underſtood, nor duly practiſed, I ſhall endeavour to ſhew, what is the proper Import of the Word, and what are the proper Objects of it. And,

1*ſt*, Moderation is not derived from the Word Medium, but from Modus; and that is from the Hebrew Madad, he meaſured; or Middah, a Rule, or Meaſure; and in the Greek is ſtiled, μετριότης, from μέτρον, a Meaſure; whence it is evident, that Moderation, properly ſo called; and in the moral Senſe of the Word, belongs only to things, in which we are ſubject to a vicious Exceſs; or to act beyond that Rule, or Meaſure, which Scripture, or Religion, doth preſcribe, for the due Regulation of our Actions, and Paſſions, and its Reſpects. (1*ſt*,) And principally, the Government of our Paſſions, whence the due Government of them, is by Philoſophers ſtiled, μετριοπαθεία, θεία, the Moderations of our Paſſions. Now they are either our concupiſcible Paſſions, that is, Paſſions of Deſire, and then the Moderation required of us, muſt conſiſt in ſuch a Government, or Reſtraint of our Affections and Deſires; that in our Love, Deſire of, or our Delight in any thing, we never do exceed the Worth, or Excellency of the Object, or of the End we do perſue; Or,

2*dly*, Our angry Paſſions, which render us averſe from Things, or Perſons, or diſpleaſed with them, and then we moderate theſe Paſſions, when,

1*ſt*, We have no Averſation from, or Hatred to, or Diſpleaſure againſt thoſe things, which have no real Evil in them, and ſo can be no proper Objects of our Averſation, or Diſpleaſure: Or, (2*dly*,) When we are not more diſpleaſed at, or grieved for any thing than Reaſon, or the Laws of Chriſtianity permits us ſo to be; for then we can never exceed the Meaſure of that Averſation, and Diſpleaſure, which Reaſon and Chriſtianity allows, and ſo we never ſhould offend in the Exertion of our angry Paſſions. And with reſpect to this, the wiſe Man ſaith, He that is ſlow to Anger, is better than the Mighty; and he that ruleth his Spirit, than he that taketh a City. (3*dly*,) This Moderation muſt be extended to the Effects of theſe Paſſions; (1*ſt*,) in the Tongue, by evil Speeches, whence the good Man is ſaid to moderate his words with Diſcretion, Pſal. 112. 5. (2*dly*,) In his Actions proceeding from thoſe Appetites, as in our Purſuit of temporal good things; and in our Strife, and Contentions, about them. And, (3*dly*,) In the Effects of our angry Paſſions, that is in our Deportment to, and our Puniſhment of Offenders. Now hence it follows,

1*ſt*, That Moderation can have only Place in things which are not always evil in themſelves, but become ſo by exceeding that Rule, and Meaſure, which is preſcrib'd for the due Management of them. This word muſt therefore be abuſed, and falſly uſed, when 'tis applied to things which are always evil in themſelves, in what degree ſoever they are done. They therefore abuſe this Word, who talk of whoreing moderately, or being moderately wicked; for what we neither ought to be, or do at all, can never be done moderately, or without exceeding the Rule we ought to walk by.

2*dly*, Hence it is demonſtratively evident, that Moderation is always a Virtue; it being always virtuous to reſtrain the Exceſſes of our Paſſions, and Appetites, and the Exorbitances of our angry Paſſions, and to regulate our words, and Actions, according to the Rule, and Meaſure, by which we ought to act.

3*dly*, Hence obſerve, that they who render the Word, ἐπιείκεια, here uſed, Meekneſs, and Patience, Mildneſs, or Gentleneſs, mean the ſame thing as they, who render it Moderation; for Meekneſs, Gentleneſs, Mildneſs, is only the due Moderation of our angry Paſſions, in reſpect to thoſe Injuries, and Provocations, which we meet with in this World. And Patience is that Virtue, which teacheth us to ſuffer any worldly Evil without Murmuring, Diſcontent, or diſcompoſing our Spirits, and reſult evidently from a due Moderation of our Affections to theſe things; and this ſeems clearly to be the Import of the Word in this Text; for, ſaith the Apoſtle, v. 4. tho' you are Sufferers with me for the ſake of Chriſt; yet rejoyce always; and v. 6. μὴ μεριμνᾶτε, be not anxious about any temporal Concerns, or Events; let not either your Care for them, or Fear of loſing them, diſtract your Spirits, but let your Moderation, as to theſe things, be known unto all Men, v. 5. for the Lord is at hand, to protect, preſerve, ſupport you, and to reward your Patience, and Reſignation as to theſe Affairs.

4*thly*, And whereas, by a late Author, this Moderation of the Paſſions, and of our Concerns about things ſuitably to their Nature, is commended highly; but, ſaith he, the Moderation pleaded for, by many, hath no Affinity with this Virtue; in this he is exceedingly miſtaken, for all the Moderation that hath, or can be pleaded for by Men of Senſe and Reaſon, is only this, that Men would be concern'd for things ſuitably to their Natures; that as for things indifferent, and mutable, they would be indifferent in their concerns about them; neither quarreling with the Church Eſtabliſhed, nor refuſing Communion with her, becauſe ſhe doth enjoyn them; nor being ſo ſtiff in the retaining of them, as not to ſuffer mutable things to be changed by the ſame Power, by which they were at firſt appointed, when the Wiſdom of our Governours ſhall think this fit for the good of the Church, which is the Moderation of the (a) Church of England; and that Men would ſet ſuch a true Value upon Peace, Union, and Charity, which are great Chriſtian Virtues, and very beneficial to the Church, as to let indifferent and circumſtantial Rites, give place to thoſe more neceſſary things, when theſe Governours, the proper Judges in that Caſe, think there is ground of Hope, that they may be promoted by a little yielding in thoſe things, which do not commend us to God, or by a Change of ſome doubtful, and even innocent Expreſſions, into Expreſſions which remove the Doubt, and miniſter no occaſion of Offence to the Weak.

This I conceive is the true Import of the Word Moderation, when it refers to Actions, Actions, and Passions, Words and Censures, subject to a vicious Excess.

Sometimes the Adjective moderate, or Adverb moderately, hath respect to Measures either of things dry, or liquid; and then 'tis not a Measure of things moral, or as they are capable of being good, or evil; but as they are more or less, great or small, high or low, long or short, or of a middle Nature betwixt both; and in this sense, a Man is said to be moderately learned, wise, or rich; and hence you may perceive the Falacy they put upon us, who say Moderation is not always a Virtue, because it is no virtue to be moderately learned, or wise; this being that which Logicians call μεταβησις εἰς ἄλλο γένος, or a Transition from one meaning of the Word to another, which always makes the Syllogism to consist of four Terms, and therefore the Conclusion false; for whensoever Moderation is required, or commendable, there the Excess is always vicious, and blame-worthy; whereas 'tis rather commendable, and an Ornament of the Mind, to be more than moderately wise and learned, and no Disparagement to be more than moderately Rich.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 3. Ευχαριστοῦμεν, we give Thanks.] From this, and the 9th v. note, that the good Shepherd should not only feed his Flock, but pray continually for them, and give Thanks for the spiritual Blessings conferred on them.

(2) V. 10. Περιπατῆσαι ὑμᾶς ἀξιως τοῦ Κυρίου, that you may walk worthy of the Lord, to all well pleasing.] Note here the end of all our Christian Knowledge, viz. a Conversation fruitful in good Works, and a Life acceptable, and well-pleasing to God.

(3) V. 14. Τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν διὰ τοῦ αἵματος αὐτοῦ, that these words do indeed belong to the Text is evident, not only from Theodoret, Oecumenius, Iren. l. 5. c. 2. p. 395. and the Arab. but from St. Paul himself, Eph. 1. 7.

(4) V. 18. Πρωτότοκος ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν, the first born from the Dead.] Εἰς γὰρ ἀθάνατον τε καὶ ἄφθαρτον ζωὴν ἅπαξ γέγονε τινὸς, ἡ ἀνάστασις ὡληθῶς τοῦ Σωτῆρος Ἰησοῦ Κυρίου, for none besides our Saviour, ever yet rose to an immortal, and incorruptible Life. Author, quest. resp. ad Orthod. qu. 85.

CHAP. II.

(5) V. 18. Καταβραβεύειν;] This Word signifies to give the Prize to one, when the Victory was obtained by the other; so Chrysostome, Theodoret, Theophylact; and accordingly (a) Suidas saith, this is the thing which the Apostle means by the Word, and because by this unjust Sentence, the Person, to whom it is due, is deprived of his Reward; hence it comes to bear that Sense; and so the whole is by Stephanus rendred, nemo vos debito bravio fraudet, which as it justifies our Translation, so it shews the Damage Christians will sustain, by thus worshipping Angels, even the Loss of that Crown of Glory, which Christ hath purchased for his faithful Servants.

CHAP. III.

V. 5. Ἐπιθυμία κακὴ, evil Concupiscence.] (6) If hence it follows, that all Concupiscence is Evil, then from διαλογισμοὶ κακοὶ, mention'd, Mark 3. 21. it follows, that all Thoughts, and Reasonings, are evil; and from ὁμιλίαι κακαὶ, mention'd 1 Cor. 15. 33. it also follows, that all our Conversation with one another must be evil; so certain is it, that this place doth not prove, that all Concupiscence is Evil. And to be sure the very first Motions of Concupiscence, which arise naturally in the sensual Appetite, and prevent our Reason and Deliberation, cannot be here intended, because the Apostle reckons this Concupiscence among those Members of the Body, which must be mortified, which the first Motions of the Appetite can never be.

2*dly*, Because he adds, That because of these things cometh the Wrath of God upon the Children of Disobedience: Now these first Motions, if suppress'd, and not consented to, when they arise, can never render us Children of Disobedience, and much less subject to the Wrath of God. And if Satan hath the Power to inject such Motions, or raise such Ideas in the Brain, if they be our Sins, tho' not consented to, it must be in his Power to make us sin, whether we will or no. From all which Considerations, it it seems necessary to understand this of deliberate fleshly Lustings indulged to and not restrained by us.

(7) V. 17. Do all ἐν ὀνόματι κυρίου in the Name of the Lord] It is well worth the Observation, that all the Ancient Commentators on this Epistle do frequently inform us, that 'twas written to prevent the Worship of Angels, and to fix Christians to the Worship of Jesus Christ only. Hilary's Preface to this Epistle saith it is an Exhortation to the Colossians, nè alicui præter Christum aliquam esse spem putarent, to place no hope in any other but in Christ, St. Chrysostom notes on the 1*st* Verse of the 1*st* Chap. that the Disease of the Colossians being this, that διὰ Ἀγγέλων προσάγεσθαι ὤοντο τῷ Θεῷ, they thought they were to come to God by Angels; the Apostle endeavours to correct this Distemper, by telling them, that what he said in this Epistle to them, was according to the Will of God, and Oecumenius brings in the Apostle speaking thus, know therefore, that it is according to the Will of God, διὰ τοῦ υἱοῦ ὑμᾶς προσάγεσθαι, that you should come to him by his Son, and then, πῶς διὰ Ἀγγέλων προσαγωγὴν εἰσυπειλήφατε; how is it that you think you should come to him by Angels. And again, this is the Will of the Father, διὰ υἱοῦ προσάγεσθαι αὐτὸν τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, καὶ μὴ διὰ Ἀγγέλων, that Men should have Access to him by the Son and not by Angels. The same Words he repeats on v. 16. and on chap. 2, 2, 3. Chrysostom notes, that by saying, that all the Treasures of Wisdom, and Knowledge are hid in him, he teaches, πάντα διὰ αὐτοῦ αἰτεῖν to ask all things by Christ. Oecumenius, that the Mystery of the Father, and the Son, is this, τὸ τὴν προσαγωγὴν, τὴν πρὸς τὸν πατέρα διὰ τοῦ υἱοῦ γίνεσθαι, καὶ οὐ διὰ τῶν ἁγίων Ἀγγέλων, that the Introduction to, the Father should be by the Son, and not by the Holy Angels. Theodoret upon this verse, saith thus, ἐπειδὴ γὰρ ἐκεῖνοι τοὺς Ἀγγέλους σέβειν ἐκέλευον αὐτὸς τὸ ἐναντίον παρεγγυᾷ ὥστε καὶ τοὺς λόγους καὶ τὰ ἔργα κοσμῆσαι τῇ μνήμῃ τοῦ Δεσπότου Χριστοῦ, καὶ τῷ Θεῷ δι' αὐτοῦ, καὶ περὶ τῆς εὐχαριστίαν δι' αὐτοῦ ἀναπέμπειν, because they (who perverted the Colossians) persuaded them to worship Angels, he enjoins the contrary, that they should adorn their Words and Deeds, with the Commemoration of the Lord Christ, and send up Thanksgiving to God the Father by him, μὴ διὰ Ἀγγέλων, and not by Angels: St. Chrysostom here having said, that he commands us to do all things according to God, μὴ τοὺς Ἀγγέλους ἐπεισαγαγεῖν, and not to introduce the Angels, adds, that the Devil envying our Honour, τὰ τοῦ Ἀγγέλων εἰσηγαγε, hath introduced the Worship of Angels, and concludes thus, be he an Angel, an Archangel, or a Cherubim, endure it not ἐπεὶ οὐδὲ αὐτοὺς οἱ δαίμονες καταδέχονται, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἀποσείονται, for neither will they receive, but reject it when they see their Lord dishonoured, ἐγώ σε ἐτίμησα, καὶ εἶπον, ἐμὲ κάλει καὶ σὺ ἀτιμάζεις αὐτὸν, I have honoured thee, and said, call upon me, and thou dishonourest me.

CHAP. IV.

V. 11. These only are my fellow-workers in the (promotion of the) Kingdom of God, which have been a comfort to me] Hence it is evident, that either St. Peter was not at Rome, when St. Paul was, or that he was no Comfort to him, no Promoter of the Kingdom of God with him; which sure is no Compliment to St. Peter. (8)

V. 22. Καὶ πάντα, & κατὰ σάρκα, cap. 4. 2. ἐν εὐχαρίστᾳ, v. 3. τοῦ λόγου, v. 10. ὁ συναιχμάλωτός μου, are all defended from the censure of Dr. Mills, that they are Additions to the Text. See Examen Millii. (9)

(3) V. 11. 12. G.* there is an Ellipſis of the verb ἐποίει, Rom. 8. 3. of ἐλπίζετε, Eph. 1. 13. See 1 Cor. 4. 15. Gal. 2. 7. 2 Theſ. 2. 7. 1 Joh. 2. 19. Matth. 20. 23. V. 16. Καὶ ἐν σάλπιγγι Θεοῦ, and in the Trump of God] Pious here and fit to be regarded is the Note of Theodoret, that if the loud ſound of the Trumpet, when the Law was given from Mount Sinah was ſo dreadful to the Jews, that they ſaid to Moſes let not the Lord ſpeak to us, leaſt we die, how terrible muſt be the Sound of this Trumpet, which calls all Men to the final Judgement. DISCOURSE

By way of

ENQUIRY,

Whether the Apoſtles, in their Writings, ſpake as conceiving the Day of Judgement might be in their Days, and accordingly ſuited their Phraſes and Exhortations.

I Have ſhew'd in the Note upon 1 Theſſ. 4. 15. and in an additional Note on 2 Cor. 5. 1. 9. that the Apoſtles of our Lord neither did, nor could uſe any Expreſſions importing that the day of Judgment might happen in their Days, or in that Age in which they lived: But Mr. Whiſton in his excellent Eſſay on the Revelation of St. John hath very largely endeavoured to prove the contrary; I ſhall therefore impartially conſider what he hath offer'd for the Support of his two Corollaries, and ſhall endeavour to ſhew the Weakneſs of his Arguments, and the pernicious conſequences of his Aſſertion, and then ſhall leave the Reader to judge of this important Point, and where the fatal Miſtake lies. Now his firſt Aſſertion is, that our Saviour himſelf, as Man, whilſt he was on earth at leaſt, did not know the Duration of the days of the Meſſiah, nor the time of the riſe, and duration of Antichriſt, which was included in it. Now in this Propoſition I have no concern, and ſo ſhall not be long either in anſwering what he alledges for, or in the Confutation of it. I therefore grant that our Saviour, whilſt he acted as a Prophet, or a Revealer of his Father's Will, whilſt he was here on Earth, did not by the Revelation of the Spirit know the Day or Hour of the Day of Judgment, but I deny, that hence it follows, that he did not know the Age, in which it was to happen, or what great Occurrences, or previous Mutations were to happen before that Day, 2*dly*, I grant, that he that was the Lamb ſlain was therefore worthy to open the ſealed Book; but I deny, that hence it follows, that he was not able to know the Contents of it before. 3*dly*, I grant, that to the Queſtion of his Diſciples, wilt thou, at this time, reſtore the Kingdom unto Iſrael; our Saviour anſwers, it is not for you to know the Times and the Seaſons, which the Father hath put in his own Power, Acts 1. 6, 7. but I deny, that hence it follows, that he, in whom were hid all the Treaſures of Wiſdom and Knowledge, Col. 2. 3. did not know them. When Mr. Wh. proves all, or any of theſe Conſequences, he will have ſomething to ſupport his Corollary; but till this be done, it muſt paſs for an Aſſertion, which hath no Foundation in the Holy Scripture. Let us now ſee, what juſt ground he had to own, that this is a ſtrange Aſſertion. And ſurely it muſt be exceeding ſtrange to any conſidering Perſon, that he, in whom dwelt the Fulneſs of the Godhead, and in whom were hid all the Treaſures of Wiſdom, ſhould be thought ignorant, whether his own Kingdom, to which he was advanced, ſhould continue only for a few, or for ſome thouſand Years, that he ſhould be ignorant of the Reign of his own Saints a thouſand Years, and of the time when all the Propheſies of the Old Teſtament, concerning the glorious Converſion of the Jews ſhould happen. That Daniel ſhould ſo plainly ſay, That in the Time of the IVth Monarchy, the God of Heaven ſhould ſet up a Kingdom which ſhould never be deſtroyed, but ſhould conſume all other Kingdoms, and ſhould laſt for ever, Chap. 2. 44. an everlaſting Kingdom that ſhould not paſs away; and yet our Great Prophet, who was the Wiſdom of the Father, and the very King, who was to rule over this Kingdom for ever, ſhould be ſo ignorant of the Import of theſe Prophecies, relating to his own Kingdom, as not to know it was to laſt one Quarter of the Duration of ſome of the other Kingdoms, but might be, for any thing he knew to the contrary, res unius ætatis, only the Buſineſs of one Age. Laſtly, Is it not very ſtrange, that theſe Maſters of Revelations, ſhould be able ſo punctually to declare to us the very Year of the Fall of the Roman Empire, the Time of the Riſe of the little Horn, and the Period of his Duration, and the true Import of the Words of that Prophet, a time, and times, and half a time; and yet our Bleſſed Lord ſhould be ſo much an Ignoramus, as to the true Import, and Extent of that whole Prophecy, as to imagine, that it might be fulfilled in the very firſt Century; and that what they knew imports 1260 Years, he ſhould imagine might only ſignifie, three Years and an half. And ſo much for the Firſt Corollary.

2*dly*, He poſitively aſſerts, Chriſt's (a) Apoſtles ſeem to have really imagined, that the great Day of Judgment might not be very long deferr'd beyond the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, which was to be in that Age, (A. D. 70.) and accordingly to have ſuited their Phraſes, and Exhortations.

Now againſt this Corollary I argue as before, that either theſe inſpired Apoſtles knew, and underſtood the Import, and Meaning of the Prophecy of Daniel, concerning the Kingdom to be given to the Saints, the Fall of the Roman Empire, the riſe of Antichriſt; or, the little Horn, the time, times, and half a time of his Duration, and the Millennium that was to follow; and alſo of the Prophecies of the Old Teſtament, concerning the Blindneſs of the Jews, and the Time of their general Converſion, or they did not, but were ignorant of all theſe things. If they did know theſe things, it is certain, that either they muſt think, that theſe things were to happen after the Day of Judgment; or that they could not think that the Day of Judgment might happen in that Age, or while they lived. If they knew not theſe things which were ſpoken for their Inſtruction, by their own Prophets, how came theſe Men to be ſo poſitive, and certain of all theſe things, of which inſpired Apoſtles, led by the Spirit into all Truth, ſhould know little, or nothing? That the Apoſtles ſhould be ignorant of that exact time of the Day of Judgment, which divine Wiſdom ſtill conceals from all Men, and never made the matter either of Revelation, or Prediction, I very heartily believe; but that they ſhould be ſo ignorant of all the famous Epochas, foretold by their own Prophets, concerning the State of Chriſt's Church, and their own Nation; that they ſhould not know whether the Roman Empire was to fall in their own Days, or in the 5*th* Century, whether Antichriſt was to come in their Days or only was to ariſe after that Fall; whether being come he was to continue only three Years and an half, or to laſt 1260 Years; or whether Daniel's time, times, and half a time, did ſignifie the one, or the other Period; whether the Myſtery of the glorious Converſion of the Jews, when Deliverance ſhould come to them out of Sion, and ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved; and the new Heavens, and new Earth they expected according to God's Promiſe, was to be expected in their Days, or about 1700 Years after their deceaſe; whether the Kingdom, which was to be given to the People of the Saints of the moſt High; and the Millennium promiſed, was to begin and end in their Days, or to commence and end ſo long after, according to the Time aſſigned for theſe Epochas by theſe more knowing Men; theſe, I confeſs, are things I cannot eaſily believe.

In particular who can imagine, that St. Paul ſhould ſay to the firſt Perſons to whom he wrote any Epiſtle, (a) That the Day of Judgment ſhould not come till that which letted, i. e. The Roman Empire was taken away, and that then the Man of Sin was to be revealed, and was only to be conſumed by the coming of our Lord to Judgment; that he ſhould endeavour to remove their Scruple, touching the nearneſs of his Coming by remembring them; that when he was with them, he told them of theſe things; and yet ſhould tell them the very next Year, that this Day might happen whilſt he was alive: For if indeed he told them truly, when theſe things were to happen, it was impoſſible that he ſhould tell them the Day of Judgment might happen in his Days, or Age; but if he told them, that they might expect, that all theſe things ſhould happen in his Days, or Age; that being, as Experience ſhews, manifeſtly falſe, why doth he, by the Direction of the Holy Ghoſt, conclude that Diſcourſe thus: Wherefore Brethren ſtand faſt, and hold the Traditions, which ye have received, whether by our Word, or our Epiſtle? v. 15. Again, who can think that the ſame Apoſtle ſhould tell the Chriſtians of his Time, that the Spirit had ſaid expreſly, that in the latter times ſome ſhould depart from the Faith, giving heed to Deceivers, and to Doctrines of Devils, ſpeaking Lies in Hypocriſy, forbidding to Marry, and commanding to abſtain from Meats, 1 Tim. 4. &c. i. e. that he ſhould, as Mr. Mead ſaith, uſe theſe words, [the latter times] as a Mark to inform them, to whom he wrote, when theſe things ſhould come to paſs; and as he adds, that the Holy Ghoſt had marked out theſe times in Daniel, by the time of the Fall of the Roman Empire, and the Riſe, and Duration of the little Horn; and yet that St. Paul himſelf, in expreſs Contradiction to this Declaration of the Holy Ghoſt, ſhould teach that the Day of Judgment might happen in his time. Could St. Peter arm the believing Jews againſt the Scoffers at the Promiſe, or Prediction of the Day of Judgment, by bidding them remember the words of the Holy Prophet, (b) (Iſaias, and Daniel, ſay Mr. Mead) who propheſied of things not yet come to paſs, and yet tell the ſame Perſons, that God was then ready to judge the Quick and the Dead (c)? Could he ſay, dogmatically, in Mr. Wh. Senſe, the end of all things is at hand; (d) and yet ſoon after tell the ſame Perſon, as (e) Mr. Wh. ſaith he did, that the Day of Judgment might, thro' the long-ſuffering of God, be prolonged for a Thouſand Years, without any Impeachment of his Veracity?

And whereas He abſolutely denies, that the Apoſtles, who thus conceived of the Day of Judgment, and accordingly ſuited their Phraſes, and Exhortations, were herein properly deceived, or that they ever preached, or declared, as from God, that the Day of Judgment was to be in that Age; or that they were deceived in any part of their Doctrine, or that they preached falſe Doctrine. I, on the contrary, undertake to prove, that if the Places, produced by Mr. Wh. bear the Senſe which he hath put upon them, all theſe things muſt follow with the cleareſt Evidence. And, 1ſt, I ſay, That on this Suppoſition, they muſt have preached falſe Doctrine; for if, when St. Paul ſaith to the believing Jews, Chriſt hath appeared in the Conſummation of Ages, Heb. 9. 26. this ſignifies his poſitive Aſſertion, that he appeared but a little time before the Day of Judgment, as Mr. Wh. doth interpret his words. If again, when he ſays dogmatically, Yet a little while, and he that ſhall come will come, and will not tarry, (f) he ſaid this of the Day of Judgment, muſt he not preach falſe Doctrine, in ſaying ſo dogmatically, he would come in a little time, and would not tarry; when in Truth he was to tarry nigh Two Thouſand Years, and St. Paul knew nothing to the contrary, but he might do ſo?

Moreover, St. James, Peter and John, according to this Hypotheſis, muſt have all taught falſe Doctrine. For doth not James ſay dogmatically, the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, and the Judge ſtandeth at the Door; (g) and if he ſaid theſe things of the Day of Judgment, muſt he not ſpeak what Experience ſhews to be notoriouſly falſe? When he adds, v. 5. that God was ready to judge the Quick and the Dead; if he meant, as Mr. Wh. ſaith he did, that he was then ready to begin the final Judgment, muſt he not ſpeak the plaineſt Falſhood? When St. John ſaith as dogmatically, little Children, this is the laſt Hour; and that by the Coming of the many Antichriſts, who are now upon the Stage, you may know this is the laſt Hour; (h) he meant this is the time of the laſt Judgment, did he not manifeſtly teach falſe Doctrine?

2dly, They muſt delude their Hearers, and all thoſe Chriſtians, to whom they wrote; and all thoſe Chriſtians who were obliged to believe their Writings, with falſe Hopes, falſe Motives, and Encouragements to the Performance of their Duty. For Inſtance; when St. Paul exhorts the Romans to awake out of ſleep, εἰδότες τ καιρὸν, knowing the Seaſon that now is their Salvation nearer than when they beleived (a) when he adviſes them to put off the Works of Darkneſs, and to put on the Armour of Light, becauſe the Night was far ſpent and the Day was at hand. Here are not only two Aſſertions notoriouſly falſe, if, according to Mr. Wh. theſe Paſſages relate to the nearneſs of the Day of Judgment, but alſo two Motives to Chriſtian Duties, both grounded on theſe falſe Aſſertions, when he exhorts his Philippians to moderation becauſe the Lord is at hand; (b) if he meant this of the Day of Judgment, there is another Motive to a Chriſtian Duty grounded upon a falſe Aſſertion. When he exhorts the believing Jews to patient Suffering, becauſe after a little while Chriſt would come, and would not tarry, he again, according to this Suppoſition, endeavours to ſupport them under their Afflictions by falſe Hopes. When St. James ſaith to the ſame Jews, be patient, ſtabliſh your Hearts for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, ch. 5. 8, 9. ſpeak not evil one of another, Brethren, that ye be not condemned; behold the Judge ſtandeth at the Door; and when St. Peter ſaith, the end of all things is at hand, be ye therefore ſober, and watch unto Prayer, if all theſe Paſſages ſpake of the Day of Judgment as near at hand, and even at the Door, muſt not all theſe Motives to Patience, to forbear evil ſpeaking, to Sobriety, to Vigilance in Prayer, be built upon falſe grounds? When St. John exhorts them not to love the World, becauſe the World paſſeth away, and they knew it was the laſt hour (c) if theſe Words relate to the Day of Judgment, he muſt build his Exhortation upon a manifeſt Falſhood, it being impoſſible that either he, or they ſhould know what was not true.

Moreover they ſpeak of theſe things as both known to themſelves, and viſible to thoſe to whom they write, by certain tokens, as when St. John ſaith, now are there many Antichriſts by which we know this is the laſt Hour when St. Paul ſaith to the Romans, that now is the Hour to awake out of ſleep, and to the Jews, exhort one another, and this ſo much the more, ὅσω βλέπετε ἐγγίζουσ τ ἡμέραν, as you ſee the Day approaching, Hebr. 10. 25. Since it is certain they could not know that to be true which by experience we know to be falſe, or ſee that Day was then near, or approaching which is not yet come, how impoſſible is it that theſe things ſhould relate to their Knowledge of the Day of Judgment.

Laſtly the Apoſtle Paul diſcourſing of the Deſire that the Chriſtians had to be cloathed upon with their celeſtial Bodies, ſaith expreſly, 2 Cor. 5. 5. he that hath wrought in us this very thing is God, who alſo hath given us the earneſt of his holy Spirit, and 1 Theſſ. 4. 15. He ſpeaks thus, this I ſay unto you by the Word of the Lord, that we who are alive ſhall not prevent them that are aſleep. Now if theſe things relate, as Mr. Wh. thinks they do, to the coming of the Day of Judgment, whilſt the Apoſtles were alive, muſt not the Apoſtle deliver that as a Truth taught by the Word of Chriſt, and a Deſire erected in them by God himſelf, which experience ſhews to have been a great Miſtake, and manifeſtly falſe, and ſure theſe things muſt be ſufficient to impair the Credit of theſe Apoſtles in other matters. I therefore heartily wiſh, that learned, good, and ingenious Men would be more careful to avoid thoſe things, which do ſo plainly ſhock the very Foundations of Chriſtianity, and ſtrengthen the Hands of thoſe, who queſtion the Authority of theſe ſacred Books.

And having thus vindicated my Notes upon theſe two places, I have done alſo that which ſhews my Arguments, to prove that the Pope and Church of Rome could not be the primary Subject of St. Paul's Diſcourſe in 2 Theſſ. 2. were not grounded, as Mr. W. thinks, on a Miſtake, but on thoſe ſolid grounds, which I believe he never will be able to evert and therefore wiſely waved.

But tho' he was not pleaſed to conſider my Arguments, I can aſſure him, that in the very place I had conſidered, and even anſwer'd his before he produced them, for indeed the excellently good Man is ſo intent upon what he conceiveth to be right, that, as it plainly appears from this, and the Diſcourſe on Matth. 24. he is not at leiſure to conſider what is ſaid againſt him.

He begins with a bare Citation of the Apoſtles Words, and then adds, (d) this Deſcription is ſo lively and clear, that I look upon it ſo far from needing any large Paraphraſe it ſelf, that it ſerves well for a Paraphraſe to all the other Prophecies hereto relating, viz. the little Horn, and the ſecond Beaſt; where he manifeſtly begs the Queſtion, ſuppoſing that it manifeſtly relates to thoſe other Prophecies, one of which was not then in being, and neither of them rightly underſtood, ſaith Mr. Wh. by the Apoſtle; he thinking that the Day of Judgment might happen in his time, that the Fall of the Empire might be then, and that the time, times, and half a time might only ſignifie three Years and an half, whereas I verily believe lieve that St. Paul's Diſcourſe hath no Relation at all to them, unleſs it be by way of Accomodation, and deſire him to be ſo merciful to ſuch blind Creatures as I am, as to let us ſee by any good Proof, that there is any Affinity betwixt them, ſave in this one thing, that the Man of Sin is to be deſtroyed with the Spirit, and the beaſt with the Sword of Chriſt's Mouth, but with this difference that the Man of Sin, ſaith Mr. Wh. is only to be deſtroyed by his coming at the Day of Judgment, and the Beaſt above a thouſand Years before, the Millennium of the Saints, the Converſion of the Jews, the Fullneſs of the Gentiles, and the War with the Saints being all to precede the Day of Judgment.

I know, that our Revelation Men call the Apocalyptical Beaſt Antichriſt, but that the Scripture doth, or ever intended ſo to do, I find no Reaſon to believe, but rather Reaſon to believe the contrary: For,

1*ſt*, An Antichriſt, or a falſe Chriſt in the Scripture Senſe, is one, who ſets up himſelf for a true Chriſt, ſaying to others, lo here is Chriſt; he is another, who ſhall come in his own Name, and be received by the Jews, Joh. 5. 43. The Antichriſts of St. John were ſuch as denied that Jeſus was the Chriſt, 1 John. 2. 22. or that Chriſt was come in the Fleſh, 1 John 4. 3. 2 Joh. 5. 7. and that the Church of Rome either was St. John's Antichriſt, or concern'd in St. John's Deſcription of him, no ancient Commentator ever ſaid.

2*dly*, The falſe Chriſts, and Antichriſts, belonged only to the firſt Age of Chriſtianity; the falſe Chriſts mentioned by our Lord, Matth. 24. 24. and who ſhould come in his Name ſaying, ἐγώ εἰμι, I am Chriſt, Mark 13. 6. Luke 21. 8. were to come before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and as St. John ſaith, they had heard that he was to come in the laſt Hour, ſo ſaith he, from his being now in the World, you may know that it is the laſt Hour, 1 Joh. 2. 18. 4. 3. Let then that be granted which no Authority affirms, and therefore none of us can know, that this Epiſtle was written after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, why may not the Words of St. John refer to the then preſent Age, and the falſe Chriſts among the Jews and the Samaritans, ſince he doth not ſay, that the laſt hour is near, or is yet to come, but that it was already come, and repreſents this as a thing known to them by the Antichriſts, that were then in the World? That he cannot be interpreted of the Day of Judgment hath been fully manifeſted, and of any Antichriſts, that were yet to come, of which theſe come already were the Forerunners, he ſaith not one Word; and ſo there is no reaſon to imagine, that any ſuch thing was intended by him.

3*dly*, The Church Hiſtory aſſures us that Simon M. Doſitheus, Barchochebas and others among the Jews were ſuch as anſwer'd theſe Deſcriptions, but of any Antichriſt that was to be amongſt the Chriſtians of the Church of Rome, neither the Scripture, nor Antiquity for many Ages give us any Intimation.

He adds, that (a) I allow the Agreement of this Deſcription to the great Antichriſt mention'd in the Revelations: whereas indeed I do not allow, that any Antichriſt at all is mentioned in the Revelations, but only ſay, that in a ſecondary Senſe this may be attributed (i. e. accomodated) to him, who is commonly called the Papal Antichriſt, and may be ſignally fulfilled in him, in the Deſtruction of him by the Spirit of Chriſt's Mouth; and this I ſay not from any Conviction of the thing, but only that I may not wholly differ from my Brethren in this matter; giving in my Annotations firſt what I think is the true Senſe and Intendment of the Apoſtles Words, and then the Senſe which Proteſtants do put upon the Words, and introducing it thus, Others who refer this to the Church of Rome. I proceed to ſhew that the Arguments brought againſt my Expoſition were anſwered in the Expoſition.

Argum. 1. " What need of all this Solli-" citude of St. Paul to free himſelf from " the Scandal of having affirm'd that the " Deſtruction of Jeruſalem was at Hand, " when the greateſt Part, within which our " Saviour expreſly had aſſerted that Deſtru" ction was to come, was already paſt.

Anſw. " St. Paul expreſly ſays, his Solli-" citude was to prevent the Trouble of the " Theſſalonians on the Imagination that the " Day of the Lord, ἐνέστηκε was, or had been " inſtant, for which Sollicitude he had good
" Reaſon; for, ſaith the Note there, to con" ceive that ſignal Day of the Deſtruction of " their Enemies the Jews, and the Delive" rance of the Chriſtians mentioned, Joel 2.
" 31, 32. Mal. 4. 1, 2. come, and find them" ſelves deceived in that Conception, might " cauſe great troubles to them, and even " ſhake the ſtedfaſtneſs of their Faith. To which add,

2*dly*, That the Judaizing Chriſtians, who could hardly think of Wrath coming to the uttermoſt, on this once beloved People, might perſuade the Theſſalonians, that the Slaughter threatned to them was already executed, by the great Deſolation made of them in Ægypt by Flaccus in the time of Caius, of which (b) Philo ſpeaks, and the great Slaughter made of them at the ſame time in in Meſopotamia, Babylon, Syria, & Seleucia, which ſaith, (a) Joſephus was φόνῳ πολλῷ καὶ ὁπόσῳ ἐκ ἰσορήμῳ πεῴτερον, a greater Deſtruction than ever was before recorded of them.

Argum. 2. " How abſurd is it to inter" pret the παρουσία, or ſolemn coming of " Chriſt in the former Epiſtle, nay in this " Epiſtle, and in the firſt Verſe of this very " Chapter of his coming to Judgment at the " laſt day, and yet in the 8th Verſe to inter" pret it of his coming to deſtroy the Jews
" only, eſpecially when no example can be " ſhewed, that ever St. Paul uſes that word
" in that Acceptation.

Anſw. To this Imputation of Abſurdity the Anſwer is returned, note on v. 1. in theſe Words. " The coming of Chriſt is by " the Reverend Dr. Hammond refer'd to " Chriſt's coming to deſtroy the unbelieving " Jews, this is the παρουσία, coming of the " Son of Man, ſo often mentioned in our " Lord's Prediction of the Deſtruction of " Jeruſalem, and of the Temple, Matth. 24.
" 3. 27. Luk. 17. 24. This is moſt certainly the Import of this Phraſe in St. James twice, when he exhorts the Brethren to be patient, ἕως τῆς παρουσίας τοῦ κυρίου, till the coming of the Lord, adding that this παρουσία, coming was at hand, chap. 5. 7, 8. And to his ſaying that, I interpret the firſt Verſe of the coming of our Lord to Judgment, and therefore do abſurdly interpret the 8th Verſe of his coming to deſtroy the wicked Jews, I have anſwered in the Note on the 8th, by ſhewing that the Words there are taken from Iſaiah 11. 4. and that they neceſſarily refer to the ſmiting of the Land of Judæa and therefore cannot be refer'd to Chriſt's coming to judge all Men at the laſt Day, to which I do not find that any good Interpreter refers theſe Words.

Argum. 3. " How comes the Apoſtle to in" form the Theſſalonians, who were almoſt
" all Gentiles, of the Deſtruction of Jeruſa-
" lem in Judæa at a thouſand Miles diſtance, " which was of little more conſequence to " them, than the Deſtruction of any other " Church, or City in a remote Country?

Anſw. To the Ignorance and Miſtake on which this Argument is wholly founded, he hath had one Anſwer in the Note on v. 1. in which Words, let it be noted, " That the " Church of the Theſſalonians were partly " Converts of the Jews, and Proſelytes;
" for the Converts made by St. Paul preach" ing to them were of the Jews and the " devout Greeks, Acts 17. 4. who in Ex" pectation of our Lord's Prediction, and " their Redemption by it drawing nigh, Luke
" 2. 28. might long for the Execution of it.
2*dly*, Had he mentioned the Deſtruction of the wicked Jews, by the Spirit of Chriſt's Mouth, as the Apoſtles doth, there would have been no Appearance of any ſtrength in that Argument, to which a farther Anſwer is given, Note on v. 5. in theſe Words: " Of the Jews, and their oppoſing them-
" ſelves to the Doctrine of Chriſtianity and
" the Profeſſors of it, the Apoſtle had told " them in his firſt Epiſtle chap. 2. 15, 10.
" and when he was with them, the Perſecu-
" tions that both he, and they ſuffered for " them, Acts 17. 15, 16. Gave him a juſt
" Occaſion to ſpeak both of their Oppo" ſition to the Goſpel, and of the De" liverance they ſhortly might expect from " ſuch enraged Perſecutors, who not only " fell ſeverely on the converted Jews thro'- " out all their Diſperſions, but as (b) Ju-
" ſtin M. aſſures us ſtirred up the Heathen

Nor was the Slaughter of them in thoſe Days of Vengeance, confin'd to Judæa but, as (c) I have fully proved, from Joſephus, they ſuffer'd the like Calamities in the remoteſt places from it. Tho' therefore the Theſſalonians might be leſs concerned for the Deſtruction of the City or Temple of Jeruſalem, they might be very much concerned that theſe Men ſhould be diſabled from executing any more their rage upon them, or againſt the Church of Chriſt.

Argum. 4. " Laſtly how comes the Church

Anſw. How came you to fall into this Imagination! Their trouble ſaith the Text, being only this, that they conceived the Apoſtle had ſpoken of the Deſtruction of the wicked and perſecuting Jews as inſtant, whereas by ſad Experience they found, that they lay ſtill as much as ever, under ſuch rage, and cruel Perſecution of theſe Men, 1 Theſſ. 2. 15. 10. that the Apoſtle was afraid leaſt theſe Temptations ſhould have rendred his Labour vain among them, ch. 3. 5.

their Trouble. And this ſhould be more conſiderable to him, who earneſtly contends, that the Apoſtles ſpake in all their Epiſtles, as Men who believed the Day of Judgment might happen ſoon after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

In the following words he attempts to anſwer an Objecton thus: " If it be ſtill wondred at, that St. Paul ſhould here ſay, " that the Myſtery of Iniquity doth already " work: I ſay, it is not ſtrange, that he " that knew that the great Man of Sin " was to corrupt and ſpoil the Purity of the " Chriſtian Religion, and turn the Myſtery " of Godlineſs into a Myſtery of Iniquity, " and who found already the beginnings of " ſuch Miſchiefs creeping into the Church, " and that in ſome of the ſame Points, which " Antichriſt was to corrupt, looks upon " ſuch beginning of Antichriſtianiſm as Pre- " ludes, and Fore-runners of that Grand " Corruption to come afterwards.

But this Evaſion is fully confuted, in the Note on v. 7. by this Argument. It is highly reaſonable to conceive, that " the " Myſtery of Iniquity already working, ſhould " be that very Myſtery, which after was to " be compleated by the more full appear- " ance of the Man of Sin, as will be evi- " dent from the Connexion of the words, " Remember ye not, that when I was with " you, I told you theſe things, (viz. who " was the Man of Sin to be revealed, what " were the Characters of him, and what it " was that did at preſent hinder him from " a full Revelation of himſelf, v. 3, 4.) for " the Myſtery of Iniquity is already working " (i. e. He is doing that covertly, which " when he is revealed, he will do more " openly) only he that hinders (his full " Appearance) will do ſo till he be taken " away, and then ſhall this wicked one be re- " vealed, whom the Lord ſhall deſtroy with " the Spirit of his Mouth; whence it ſeems " clear, that the Man of Sin, then covertly " working his Myſtery, and only hindred " from appearing openly by ſomething that " then letted, muſt be that Man of Sin, " who after was to be revealed, and then " deſtroyed by the Spirit of Chriſt's Mouth; " all theſe Interpretations therefore muſt be " falſe, which make the Myſtery of Iniquity " to be one Perſon, or one kind of Perſons, " and the Man of Sin, or Antichriſt ano- " ther, as they muſt do who make the My- " ſtery of Iniquity to belong to Simon M. " or the falſe Prophets, or Hereticks in be- " ing, when this Epiſtle was endited, and " the Man of Sin to be the Pope and his " Clergy. In a Word, doloſus verſatur in Generalibus, till Mr. Wh. can name ſome falſe Prophets, or falſe Apoſtles, or Corrupters of the Goſpel, by turning it into a Myſtery of Iniquity in being, when this Epiſtle was indicted, who were not of Jewiſh Extract, or appear'd not then amongſt them; and in what particulars of that pernicious Influence they conſpir'd with the preſent Church of Rome (which neither yet hath been, nor I think can be done to Satisfaction) 'tis evident he hath ſaid nothing which hath the leaſt appearance of an Anſwer to the Objection he himſelf hath ſtarted.

Betwixt the Jewiſh and the Papal Antichriſt, in their Apoſtacy from, and Corruption of, the Doctrine delivered to them.

HAVING given my Conjecture, that the Jewiſh Church, with their Rulers, were the Antichriſt mentioned by St. Paul; I proceed to ſhew, how their Apoſtaſy, when they were thus deſerted by God, reſembled, and ran Parallel to the Apoſtaſy of the Roman Church, when ſhe began in like manner to apoſtatize from, and to corrupt the Chriſtian Faith.

And here it cannot be expected, that I ſhould draw the Parallel betwixt them, in thoſe Doctrines which never were, nor could be owned by the unbelieving Jews, viz. in the Doctrines of Tranſubſtantiation, the Adoration of the Hoſt, the Sacrifice of the Maſs, Communion in one kind, and the Number of the Chriſtian Sacraments; but yet in moſt of their other Doctrines, 'tis very eaſie to diſcern it. 1*ſt*, In

1*ſt*, In the Doctrine of Infallibility, the Mother of incorrigible Errors;

For, (1*ſt*,) As Roman Catholicks aſſert the Infallibility of Councils, which they are pleaſed to call General Councils, and plead for a Living, and infallible Judge of Controverſies; ſo the Jews look'd upon the Judgment of their great Sanhedrim, and the concurring Suffrage of their Rulers, and Phariſees, as free from Error, and not to be gainſaid by any of the People. Their way of arguing, John 7. 38. ſeems plainly to inſinuate, that they thought themſelves the only fit and proper Judges of the true Senſe and Meaning of the Law; that the People were wholly to be guided by them; and that they who would not ſubmit to their Judgment, were deceived, and would be accurſed for their Obſtinacy in things in which they neither had, nor could have, any certain Knowledge without their Guidance and Aſſiſtance; for thus they ſpeak to thoſe Officers, whom they had ſent to apprehend our Saviour: Are ye alſo deceived? Have any of the Rulers, or of the Phariſees, believed on him? But this People which knoweth not the Law, (and yet will take upon them to diſſent from their Judgment) are accurſed; which is the very Language of the Church of Rome in her Anathemas. They were the ſupream Judges, and Keepers of Oral Traditions, and the Fear that when the Sanhedrim was diſſolved, theſe Traditions might be loſt, produced the Miſnah, or the ſecond Law commonly called by them Thorah Schebeal Pe, the Oral Law, or the Law given to Moſes by Word of Mouth, as they gather from Exod. 34. 27. They alſo took upon them to be authentick Interpreters of the written Law; and that by virtue of theſe Traditions given, ſay ſome of them, to this end. Now this, as the excellent (a) Mr. Chillingworth obſerves, is indeed to make Men Apoſtates from God, and to dethrone him from his Dominion over Mens Conſciences, and to ſet up themſelves; and why elſe doth our Saviour charge theſe Men with making void the Commandments of God, not in one only, but in many Caſes by their Traditions; (b) and in Oppoſition to theſe Teachers of Traditions, as received from their Fore-fathers require them to call no Man Father upon Earth, becauſe one only was their Father in that Senſe, in which the Jewiſh Doctors claimed that Title, even their Father which was in Heaven. And that he had great Reaſon to ſpeak thus, we learn from the Jewiſh Canon, cited by (c) Dr. Pocock, vota cadere in res mandati, that Vows reach even to things commanded, or take place as well in things commanded by the Law, as in things indifferent; and that a Man may be ſo bound by them, as that he cannot, without great Sin, do what God had by his Law required to be done; ſo that if he made a Vow, which laid upon him a Neceſſity to violate God's Law, that he might obſerve it, the Vow muſt ſtand, and the Law be abrogated.

2*dly*, The like Infallibility they aſcribe to the words of their Rabbins, Wiſemen, and Scribes. Thus (d) R. Iſaac Abuhaf ſaith, that to all things which their Rabbins have taught in their Homilies, the ſame Faith is to be given, as to the Law of Moſes. In the (e) Talmud they ſay, that all their Words are the Words of the Living God; and that (f) the Righteous Nation that keepeth the Truth, mentioned Iſa. 26. 2. are they who receive all their Wiſemen have ſaid for undoubted Truth, and ſay Amen to it. (g) And that when two of them differ in their Opinions, neither of them is to be condemned, Ki Ellou Veellou Dibre Elohim Chajim, for the words of them both, are the words of the Living God. That they are (h) to attend more to the words of the Scribes, than to the words of the Law; and that they were more amiable than the words of the Prophets; the Prophets being obliged to work a Miracle, that they might be credited, whereas they were to be believed, without a Miracle it being ſaid, Deut. 17. 10. Thou ſhalt obſerve to do according to all that they ſhall teach thee: See of this more in Buxtorf's recenſio operis Talmudici, from p. 221. to 228. (i) Maimonides ſaith, if a thouſand Prophets, who were equal to Elias, and Eliſha, bring one Interpretation; and a Thouſand and One Wiſemen bring a contrary to it, they muſt encline to the moſt; and be obliged rather to act according to the Sentence of theſe Wiſemen, than that of the Thouſand Prophets. In his Explication of the Thirteenth Treatiſe of the Sanhedrim, he diſtributes Men who interpreted the Sayings of their Wiſemen into three Ranks. Firſt, Thoſe who thought their Sayings were figurative, and Tropological. Secondly, Thoſe who ſaid their words, were to be interpreted according to the Letter, as thinking ſapientes in omnibus indubitatæ veritatis in dictis ſuis, (k) the Wiſemen were of undoubted Truth in all their Sayings. Thirdly, Thoſe who illude the words of the Wiſe, judging themſelves more wiſe, and ſaying, that (l) they were deceived, theſe he pronounces Fools, and accurſed, for ſaying theſe things of thoſe thoſe great Men of whoſe Wiſdom they were well aſſured. (a) Joſephus ſays, that they who were of the Sect of the Phariſees ἕπονται τῇ ἡγεμωνίᾳ, followed their Guidance, and thought it neceſſary to obſerve, and contend for every thing their Guide commanded. The Sadducees, ſaith he, held it a Virtue to contend, πρὸς τὰς διδασκάλας σοφίας againſt the Teachers of Wiſdom, but they yielded ſuch Honour, τοῖς ἡλικίας προήκουσι, to their Anceſtors, that they durſt not be ſo bold as to gainſay any thing, that they had introduced as fit to be obſerved. Here we have in expreſs Words, The Teachers, Guides, and Fathers mentioned by our Lord, Matth. 23. 8, 9. and all of them repreſented as Perſons whoſe Doctrines none ought to doubt of, and whoſe Sayings none ſhould gainſay. This then was the Authority the Jews of thoſe times lodg'd in their Fathers, Teachers, Rabbies, their Scribes, and Phariſees, who ſat in Moſes Chair, and gloried in the Name of Rabbi, Rabbi, Math. 23. 7. And this uſurp'd Authority is the very thing our Saviour forbids as prejudicial to his Office in theſe Words, Math. 28. 8. Be not ye called Rabbi, for one is, ὑμῶν ὁ διδάσκαλος, your Teacher, even Chriſt; and v. 10. Be not ye called, καθηγηταὶ Guides, for one is your Guide, even Chriſt. And therefore 'tis obſervable, that tho' the Apoſtles had an expreſs Commiſſion from Chriſt to teach all Nations all that he had commanded, and a Promiſe, that in the execution of this Office the Holy Spirit ſhould bring theſe things to their Remembrance, and ſo were infallible Revealers of the Mind, and the Commandments of Chriſt, which the Church of Rome neither doth, nor can pretend to, without falling under St. Paul's Anathema for preaching another Goſpel; yet none of them pretended, or ever attempted to be Interpreters of the Words of Chriſt, or Infallible Judges of the true Senſe of what he had already taught, or commanded, which is the thing the Romaniſts now challenge to themſelves, and which the Jewiſh Doctors did pretend to be with reſpect to the Mind of God, revealed in the Scriptures of the old Teſtament. And indeed this claim of the Church of Rome to be the Infallible Judges, Interpreters of the Laws, Doctrines, and Commands of Chriſt, muſt give them Power without Controul, to alter any of the Laws of Chriſt, and under pretence of interpreting, to overthrow them, and ſo to dethrone Chriſt from his Dominion over Mens Conſciences, and inſtead of Chriſt, ſet up themſelves; for he that requires, that all the Interpretations of the Laws of Chriſt, ſhould be obeyed as the true Mind of Chriſt, ſeem they to the Underſtandings of many Myriads never ſo diſſonant or diſcordant from it, requires indeed that his Interpretations ſhould be received as Chriſt's Laws, and that all Men ſhould obey rather what they think he, than Chriſt hath taught them, and whoſoever is firmly prepared in his Mind to believe and obey all ſuch Interpretations without judging them, tho' to his own Judgment they ſeem moſt unreaſonable, whatſoever he may pretend, he makes both the Law and the Law-maker Stales, and obeys only the Interpreter; for ſeeing the true Senſe of the Law, is indeed the Law, he muſt be to me the only Giver of the Law, who alone gives me the true Senſe of it. Thus if any Perſon ſhould pretend he would ſubmit to the Laws of the King of England, but ſhould reſolve to obey them only in that Senſe, whatſoever it were which the French King ſhould put upon them, I preſume every underſtanding Man would ſay, that he obey'd only the French King not the King of England.

§. 2. 2*dly*, Whereas the Trent Council in her 4th Seſſion determines that beſides the written Word contained in the Canon of the new Teſtament, there were alſo oral Traditions concerning both Faith and Manners received by the Apoſtles from the Mouth of Chriſt, or dictated to them by the Holy Spirit, and preſerved in the Church Catholick by a continual Succeſſion, which therefore they received pari pietatis affectu with the ſame pious affection as the Holy Scriptures of the new Teſtament; in all this they plainly copied from the Apoſtatizing Jewiſh Church. For,

1*ſt*, As the Romaniſts plead, that their Traditions are of a divine Original, as being derived partly from the Mouth of Chriſt, partly from his inſpired Apoſtles, ſo do the Jews expreſly teach that their (b) oral Law from the Mouth of God, and (c) that God delivered it to Moſes on Mount Sinah with the written Law, and that he received it by Divine Revelation.

2*dly*, As the Romaniſts ſay, that their unwritten Traditions were preſerved by and handed down to this preſent Age, by the Catholick Church in a continual Succeſſion, ſo the Jews ſay, their Traditions were depoſited with the whole Congregation, the great Sanhedrim, and the High Prieſt, and give us the very Names of the eminent Perſons, thro' whoſe Hands their Traditions came down to their Days; Voyſin. proem. pug. fid. a p. 10. ad p. 16.

make their Traditions neceſſary to the expounding of the Scriptures: So alſo do the Jews ſay, that the (a) oral Law is the Foundation of the written Law, and that they cannot come to the Knowledge of the Scriptures, unleſs they inſiſt al dibre חצל on the Words of their wiſe Men of bleſſed Memory, that the written Law cannot be expounded without the Oral, that they cannot be eſtabliſhed upon the written Law without the Oral, which is the Explication of it, that it is rather the Oral than the written Law, which is the Foundation of all their Religion, there being no Demonſtration to be taken from the written Law, שהמושנה becauſe Tradition explains the ſecret of it. Cod. Jur. chagiga T. 10. 1.

4*thly*, As the Trent Council declares concerning the unwritten Traditions, that they are to be received, and reverenced with the ſame pious Affection as the Holy Scriptures; So muſt the Jews do in conſequence of that Opinion, which makes them both to proceed immediately from the ſame Divine Authority, and both derived to them by the ſame means; for ſay they, as we have received the written Word, ſo have we received the oral Law, min Haaboth, from the Fathers: Hence like good Roman Catholicks they are more exceedingly zealous for the Traditions of their Fathers, than for the Law it ſelf, Gal. 1. 14. They accuſe all that walk not according to the Cuſtoms of their Fathers, as Perſons who forſook the Law of Moſes, Acts 21. 21. and 'twas eſteemed a great Crime to do any thing againſt the Cuſtom of their Fathers, or the Traditions of the Elders, Matth. 15. 2. Act. 28. 17.

5*thly*, As the Jews call them Karaim Scripturiſts, and Minim Hereticks, who reject their Oral Traditions, ſo do the Romaniſts ſtile us Hereticks and Scriptuarii for rejecting their ſuppoſed Apoſtolical, and Eccleſiaſtical Traditions. Prateolus Elencho l. 17. c. 16. and as the Karaim were, ſaith (b) Menaſſeh Ben Iſrael excluſi communione Iſraelitarum, excluded from the Communion of Iſrael, ſo do the Romaniſts exclude us from their Communion upon the ſame Account.

§. 3. 3*dly*, As the Church of (c) Rome hath received many Apochryphal Books as Canonical Scripture, pronouncing an Anathema on all who deny them ſo to be, ſo did her Apoſtatiſing Siſter alſo receive many ſuch Books as of equal Strength and Authothority with the Scriptures. As,

1*ſt*, The Targums of Onkelos, and Jonathan, for their Talmudical Doctors declare, that Jonathan received his Targum, or Expoſition of the Prophets from the Mouth of Haggai, Zachary, and Malachy three Prophets and Keepers of the Oral Traditions belonging to the conſiſtory of Ezra, and ſo they make them equal to the Writings of theſe three Prophets. Moreover they ſay that if any other Perſon interpreting any Verſe of Scripture in the Chaldaic Tongue add any thing to it, he blaſphemes, becauſe he may do this contrary to the Mind of the Author; But then they add, that Onkelos and Jonathan did not offend in any of their Additions, becauſe they did this always according to the Mind of the Author. So Buxtorf in voce Targum. Hence (d) Raymundus ſaith, that this Tranſlation of Onkelos tantam inter Judæos authoritatem obtinet, is of ſo great Authority among the Jews, that none of them dares preſume to contradict it. And (e) Paulus Burgenſis ſaith, that the Chaldaick Tranſlation among them, tantæ authoritatis eſt ſicut textus, is of equal Authority with the Text. See N. Lyranus in Iſa. cap. 8. Such,

2*dly*, Is their Miſnah, or fardle of Traditions collected by R. Jehudah Hakkadoh the holy, or R. J. Hanniſi the Prince, Anno Chriſti 150. which ſaith (f) Buxtorf is publickly received by all the Jews both in the Holy Land, and in Babylon as an authentick Body of their Law: Hence, as we have ſhewed before they call it a Secundary law received from the Mouth of God, and prefer it much before the written Law, (g) comparing the Text only to Water, but theſe Traditions to Wine. And the School of Elias uſed to ſay, that whoſoever learned the Traditions of the Miſnah might be aſſured he ſhould have eternal Life.

3*dly*, The Talmud, which contains the Explications of their Doctors upon the Miſnah is of ſuch Veneration among them, that they place the Talmud, or Gemara, which by way of Eminence they call the Talmud, among the Books given by Tradition from the Mouth of God. See Cartwright's Mellif. l. 4. c. 5. p. 30, 70. ſaying that, Nothing is ſuperiour to the moſt holy Talmud, and that by reading in the Scriptures they can get little Profit, more by reading in the Miſnah, but by reading in the Talmud moſt of all. With many other things of a like nature collected by Buxtorf, Synag. §. 4. 4*thly*, As the Church of Rome pretends to be the Catholick Church, out of whoſe Communion there is no Salvation, requiring all Men to own her Faith, and to receive her Mark, Rev. 13. 16. belonged to them alone, and therefore forbad the Apoſtles to preach to the Gentiles, that they might be ſaved, 1 Theſ. 2. 16. They alſo earneſtly contended, that unleſs they who believed in Jeſus would be circumciſed and keep the Law, and ſo receive the Mark of, and become Proſelytes to, their Religion, they could not be ſaved, Acts 15. 1. 24. Even thoſe Chriſtians who were diſperſed into other parts by the Perſecution of their fellow Jews, preached the Word only to the Jews of their own Language, Acts 11. 19. and to the Helleniſtick Jews, v. 20. And the reſt of them thought it a great Sin in Peter to go in to the uncircumciſed, and converſe with them, tho' this was only done to convert them to the Chriſtian Faith, Acts 11. 3. and it was matter of great Admiration to them, that God ſhould grant Repentance to Salvation to the Gentiles, v. 18. So deeply was this Jewiſh Principle then rooted even in the firſt Converts of that Nation to the Chriſtian Faith.

§. 5. 5thly, As the Church of Rome hath introduced the religious Worſhip of Saints and Angels, ſo alſo did the Apoſtatizing Church of the Jews. For they had imbibed the Philoſophy of the Platoniſts, who taught, (a) that Dæmons were of a middle Nature betwixt Gods, and Mortals, that they brought our Prayers and Offerings to the Gods, and their Commands to us, and that it was very fit: εὐχαῖς τιμᾶν, to honour them with our Prayers upon theſe Accounts. And that God had no immediate commerce with Men, but all his Converſe with them, was by the Mediation of theſe Dæmons. And ſuitably to this Philoſophy we find the Angel ſaying, Tobit 12. 12, 15. that he was one of the Seven Angels, οἱ προσφέρουσι τὰς προσευχὰς τῶν ἁγίων, who offered up the Prayers of the Saints, and that when Tobit, and Sarah prayed, he brought the Memorial of their Prayers before the Holy One. And Philo in ſeveral places declares that as the Philoſophers ſaid of their Dæmons, and Heroes, ſo Moſes introduces the Angels as Meſſengers of good things from God to his Subjects, andcarrying back their Needs, not that God needs their Miniſtry, but that it is very needful, and Beneficial for us frail Men to have ſuch Mediators. See the full Proof of this in the Note on Coloſſ. 2. 18. Accordingly Theodoret, on that Place, ſaith, they who were zealous for the Law perſuaded Men, τοὺς Ἀγγέλους σέβειν, to worſhip Angels, becauſe the Law, ſay they, was given by them. And this they perſuaded Men to do out of Humility, ſaying that the God of all things was inviſible, and inacceſſible and incomprehenſible, and that twas fit we ſhould procure the Divine Favour by the means of the Angels. Hence (b) Clemens Alexandrinus brings in Peter forbidding Chriſtians to worſhip God as the Jews did, becauſe pretending that they only knew God, they indeed did not know him, as worſhipping Angels, and Archangels.

In their Office for the Dead, ſaith (c) Voyſin, they pray thus, Ye Fathers of the World, who ſleep in Hebron, open to him the Gates of the Garden of Eden, and ſay, let him come in peace. And again, Ye Angels of Peace come forth to meet him, and unlock for him the Gates of the Garden of Eden, and ſay let him come in peace. Theolog. Judaic. l. 1. c. 1. p. 80, 81.

§. 6. 6thly, As the Church of Rome gives an inferiour kind of Veneration to Images, and by ſome nice Diſtinctions eludes the Prohibition of the ſecond Commandment, So do the Apoſtate Jews by the ſame Arts, declaring that he who worſhips an Idol, taking it for God is guilty, but if not, he is free, and the Gloſs there adds, that if he adore God in it, it is no crime, for his Heart is toward God. And again, if a Jew ſee a Statue, ſuch as uſeth to be ſet up for a King, if he adore it not under the Notion of an Idol, but in Honour to the King is nothing. And this corrupt Notion prevailed upon the Corinthians to eat freely in the Idol's Temple of their Sacrifices, as thinking they did not offend becauſe they did not own the Idol to be God, See for this Dr. Lightfoot on 1 Cor. 8. 10.

§. 7. 7thly, The Apoſtatiſing Jews do ſo plainly ſymbolize with the Romaniſts in the Doctrine of Purgatory and Prayers for the Dead, that Bellarmine confirms thoſe Doctrines from the Practice of the Jews recorded in the Book of Maccabees l. 2. ch. 12. v. 39. 46. from Tobit 4. 18. and from their other Writings, Bellarm. de Purgatorio l. 2. c. 3. §. Hinc etiam, §. Secundus & Cap. 11. §. Tertia ratio.

And indeed the Parallel is very clear, for as the Papiſts pray for the Souls of the Dead, that they may be deliver'd from the Pains of Purgatory, and go thence to Heaven, ſo do the Jews in their Liturgy pray for the Souls of their Friends, and Kindred, Grand-fathers, and Grand mothers, that they may be admitted to the reſt of the Righteous in the Garden of Eden, See Dr. Lightfoot, Vol. 1. p. 1017, 1018. As the Papiſts ſay, thoſe Souls they pray for go to Purgatory in order to their Purgation from ſome defilements they have contracted in this World and afterwards to Heaven, So the Jews ſay that, Anima Gehennæ igne Purgatur, ut pura evadat & candida, the Soul is purged with Hell-fire, that it may be made pure and white white, and then put into the Hands of the Angel Michael, who offers up the Souls of the juſt, Voyſin Theolog. Jud. l. 1. c. 1. p. 78. As the Papiſts give ſo much Mony to have ſo many Maſſes ſay'd for the deliverance of Souls out of Purgatory; ſo the Jews vow to give Alms, that they may be conveyed into the Garden of Eden; and the Prieſt pronounces a Bleſſing upon him, who hath vowed ſo many Alms for the Souls of the Dead: See theſe Prayers and Benedictions in Lightf. ibid. And in relation to this Opinion, the Son of Syrack ſeems to ſay, Chap. 7. 33. A Gift hath Grace in the ſight of every Man living, and for the dead detain it not.

§. 8. 8*thly*, As the Papiſts hope to be helped, both living and dead, by the Merits of the Saints, and eſpecially of the Martyrs: So the Jews pray that God would ſhew Kindneſs to them, for the ſake of thoſe who are ſlain, and maſſacred for his ſake, and went thro' Fire and Water, for the hallowing of his Name. Lightf. ibid. They thought, in the time of the Maccabees, that the Death of their good Men, or Martyrs, might be an Expiation for their Sin. This being among them a receiv'd Rule, that (a) σπεδαῖος τῶ φαύλῳ λύτρον, the good Man is the Redemption of the Wicked; and hence (b) Joſephus brings in Eleaſar, praying thus to God; Be thou gracious to thy Nation, being ſatisfied with the Puniſhment I ſuffer for them, make my Blood an Expiation for them, καὶ ἀντὶ ψυχῶν αὐτῶν λάβε τὴν ἐμὴν ψυχήν, and accept my Life inſtead of theirs. Hence have we frequent mention of the merita patrum, Merits of the Fathers, in their Books, and of the Merits of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob; from which they did expect great things, even Deliverance from Hell, ſaying that Hell Fire hath no power over the Sinners of Iſrael; becauſe Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, deſcend thither to fetch them thence. Pocock Miſcellan, p. 172. 227.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 8. Ἐὰν τις αὐτῷ νομίμως χρῆται, if a Man uſe it lawfully,] That is, ſaith Theodoret, ἐὰν τις ἀκολούθη αὐτῷ τῷ σκόπῳ; if he complieth with the Scope of it, which is to bring him to Chriſt.

(2) V. 14. Μετὰ πίστεως, with Faith,] Or, per fidem, thro' Faith, or by Faith; ſo Paul and Barnabas declared, what things God had done, μεθ' αὐτῶν, by them; Acts 14. 27. 15. 4. which is v. 12. σὺν αὐτοῖς.

(3) V. 17. Μόνῳ σοφῷ Θεῷ.] Dr. Mills ſeems very averſe from the Word σοφῷ, admitting it neither here nor Jude 25. but ſee it defended in both places, Examen Millii in locum.

CHAP. II.

(4) V. 1. Ἐνθύξεις, after the words, ſo paſſionately exhort them, add;] Nor is the word capable of this Senſe, when the Apoſtle ſaith, Chap. 4. 5. the Creature is ſanctify'd to us, διὰ ἐνθύξεως, by Prayer.

(5) V. 8. Καὶ διαλογισμῶ, after evil Imaginations, add.] The Scripture it ſelf ſeems to direct us to the prime Senſe of this Word; for what is, διαλογισμοὶ, Luke 9. 47. is, ἐνθυμήσεις, inward Thoughts, and Reaſonings, Matth. 9. 4. and this Senſe the Word will bear in all places, where we render it either doubting, or diſputing: So Philip. 2. 14. Do all things without Murmuring, καὶ διαλογισμῶν, and inward Reaſonings, whether you ſhould continue in the Faith, or not; or why ſuch Commands ſhould be laid upon you; and here, without inward Thoughts, or Reſentments of the Injuries done to you, Theodoret here interprets it agreeably to the Matter in Hand, ἀμφιβολίας χωρὶς, without Hæſitation, firmly believing thou ſhalt receive what thou askeſt: And of this, ſaith Theophylact, thou mayeſt be aſſured, if thou ſtill askeſt according to his Will; if thou askeſt, μηδὲν ἀνάξιον τῆ βασιλεως, nothing unworthy of God, but all things ſpiritual, and askeſt theſe things without Wrath, and Hæſitation, or a Mind wavering betwixt Hope and Fear.

V. 2. After ſee Note on Chap. 5. 9. add,] (6) (c) Origen ſeems plainly to inſinuate, that this Law, in the ſtrict Senſe, ſeems harſh, and unreaſonable, ſince he that hath a Wife might loſe her in his Youth, and ſo have need of a Second; and this Law allowed the Biſhop to enjoy his firſt Wife even to Old Age, ἐπ' ὅτε μηδὲ γυμνασόμενον εἰς ἀγνείαν, καὶ σωφροσύνην, tho' he never exerciſed him- himſelf to Chaſtity and Contenance; and therefore he thinks fit to interpret theſe words by Analogy to the Bill of Divorce; plainly declaring againſt the Church of Rome, that neither Biſhop, Prieſt, nor Deacon, of whom there he ſpeaks, were either by Scripture; or the Laws of the Church reſtrained from cohabiting with their Wives, after their Promotion to thoſe Orders. (7) V. 3. Μὴ αἰσχρογκερδῆ. Theſe words, ſaith Dr. Mills, crept into the Text, from Tit. 1. 7. whereas they are found in Chryſoſtom, and Oecumenius, Cod. Alex. and St. Baſil, To. 2. p. 416. 477. and are fully confirmed from the words following, διακόνους ὡσαύτως μὴ αἰσχρογκερδεῖς; and from Tit. 1. 7. where St. Paul treats of the ſame Subject.

CHAP. IV.

(8) V. 13. Give diligence to reading, after thoſe words, and inſtruct you in, add,] For, ſaith Theodoret, it becomes us to bring our Labour, καὶ οὕτω λαμβάνειν τὴν χάριν τοῦ πνεύματος, and ſo to receive the Grace of the Spirit.

(10) V. 3. Note alſo, that the Reading of Biſhop Uſher is confirmed from the like words, ἡ παρθένος, καὶ ἡ χήρα, found in the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions, l. 3. cap. 6.

V. 8. After theſe words deſpiſe them, add,] (11) Some here are guilty of a great Miſtake, ſcraping together great Fortunes, and hoarding them up for their Children, with a ſcandalous Neglect of that Charity to their Chriſtian Brethren, which alone can ſanctify thoſe Enjoyments to them, and enable them to lay up a good Foundation againſt the time to come; pleading theſe words, to juſtifie, or to excuſe, their ſordid Parſimony, and want of Charity; that he, that provideth not for his own Houſhold, hath denied the Faith, and is worſe than an Infidel; whereas theſe words plainly reſpect the Proviſion which Children ſhould make for their Parents, and not thoſe which Parents ſhould make for their Children.

V. 21. And our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the (12) elect Angels.] He joyns the Angels with Jeſus Chriſt, ſaith Theodoret, οὐκ ὡς ὁμοτίμους, ἀλλ' ὡς δούλους, not as equal in Honour, but as Servants to him, and thoſe who are to attend him at the Great Day of Judgment.

(1) Ver. 18. Δώη αὐτῷ ὁ Κύριος εὑρεῖν ἔλεος παρὰ Κυρίου. The Lord grant he may find Mercy from the Lord.] Here is a plain Example of the known Rule of the Grammarians, that the Noun is frequently repeated for the Pronoun; ſo Gen. 19. 14. Jehovah rained Fire and Brimſtone, Meet Jehovah, Κύριος παρὰ Κυρίου, from Jehovah. So Exod. 24. 1, 2, 3. And 1 Sam. 3. 21. Jehovah appeared to Samuel in Shiloh, bidevar Jehovah, by the word of the Lord. So Chryſoſtom, Oecumenius, and Theophylact ſay here, τρόπος παρ' ἑωλῆς; and that it is the Cuſtom of the Scriptures, ſo to ſpeak they prove from Gen. 19. 24. not fearing the Anathema, which the great Council of Sirmium, thro' Ignorance of the Hebrew Tongue pronounced againſt them, who did ſo interpret it.

CHAP. II.

V. 8. Remember that Jeſus Chriſt of the (2) Seed of David, was raiſed from the Dead.] Theodoret here obſerves, that (a) Simon Magus began to broach his Hereſies about this time; and he, and all his Followers, denied that Chriſt had taken Fleſh upon him, ſaying, that his Incarnation, or Anthropiſm, was only in Appearance, or ἐν φαντασίᾳ; and in Oppoſition to this Hereſy, he is here ſtiled Jeſus Chriſt of the Seed of David; and becauſe from that Hereſy it muſt follow, that he could not truly die, or ſuffer in the Fleſh, and ſo could not be truly raiſed from the Dead; therefore the Apoſtle bids Timothy remember, that he was was raiſed from the Dead, who was of the Seed of Abraham according to the Promiſe.

(3) V. 26. Ἐζωγρωμένοι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ εἰς τὸ ἐκείνου θέλημα, Who are taken Captive by him at his Will.] Some refer this to the Devil, as being the neareſt Subſtantive to the Relative ἐκεῖνος. But (1*ſt*) This ſeems not agreeable to the Uſe of the two Relatives, which, when they come together, ſeldom relate to the ſame Perſon. (2*dly*) Satan is the neareſt Subſtantive rather in Place, than in Senſe, the Words being capable of this Conſtruction; If peradventure God will give them Repentance to do his Will, that they, who are taken Captive by the Devil, may awake out of his Snare. This is the Senſe, which beſt accordeth with the Work of Converſion, and Repentance, which is a recovering Men from the Service of Satan, to the Service of God, Acts 26. 18. a freeing them from Sin, that they may be Servants of God, Rom. 6. 17. a delivering Men from the Power of Darkneſs, and tranſlating them into the Kingdom of his Son, Coloſſ. 1. 13.

(4) V. 15. From a Child thou haſt learned the Scriptures.] Note here, The Care of the Jews to teach their Children the Scriptures even from their Childhood: From five Years Old ſays the Talmudiſts, we put our Children to read the Bible. (a) Joſephus informs us, that their Children learning their Laws, ἀπὸ τῆς πρώτης εὐθὺς αἰσθήσεως, from the firſt Dawnings of Senſe, and Reaſon in them, had them engraven in their Souls: Which as it condemns the Practice of the Church of Rome in withholding thoſe ſacred Oracles from Old and Young, ſo alſo does it reprehend the Generality of Chriſtians who are more concerned to teach their Children things unneceſſary, or at the beſt Things only needful for this preſent Life, than to inſtruct them in that Word of God, which is able to make them Wiſe to Salvation.

CHAP. IV.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 1. After the Words, This Truth is therefore neceſſary to be believed, ſo far as, that belief is neceſſary to an Holy Life, add,] To confirm this Inference, let theſe following Arguments be conſidered.

1*ſt*, That, which hath the Promiſe of this Life, and that which is to come, muſt be ſufficient to ſecure us of the Enjoyment of the Life to come; but Godlineſs ſaith the Apoſtle, hath the Promiſe of this Life, and that which is to come, 1 Tim. 4. 18. Ergo. Again, that which hath Contentment is great Gain, muſt ſure avail us to Salvation, ſeeing without Salvation we can gain nothing: Which is truly Good, but Godlineſs with Contentment is great Gain, 1 Tim. 6. 6. Ergo.

2*dly*, If this be the great End, for which ἡ χάρις τοῦ Θεοῦ ἡ σωτήριος the ſaving Grace of God hath appear'd to us, viz. to teach us that denying all Ungodlineſs, and worldly Luſts, we ſhould live Soberly, Righteouſly, and Godly in this preſent World, and if by doing ſo, we may expect the bleſſed Hope, and glorious Appearance of our Lord with Comfort, then muſt this Holineſs Adminiſter to us, an Aſſurance of our future Happineſs; Now all this is the expreſs ſaying of St. Paul, Tit. 2. 11, 12, 14. Ergo.

3*dly*, By what, we do entirely attain the End for which our Saviour dyed, or ſuffer'd on the Croſs, by that we muſt attain Aſſurance of the Benefits of his Death, and Paſſion, viz. Remiſſion of Sins, Juſtification, and Salvation, but this we do by dying to Sin, and living unto Righteouſneſs, that is by being Holy in our Lives and Converſations: For Chriſt bore our Sins in his own Body on the Tree, that we being dead to Sin,

Sin, might live to Righteouſneſs, 1 Pet. 2. 24. and to as many as are thus conformed to his Death, by dying unto Sin, he hath promiſed that they ſhall be conformed to him in Likeneſs of his Reſurrection, Rom. 8. 11. Faith therefore can be no farther neceſſary, than it is requiſite to engage us to dye unto Sin, and to live to Righteouſneſs.

4*thly*, This will be farther evident even from the Nature of true Holineſs, for ſeeing that conſiſteth in a Participation of the Divine Nature, 2 Pet. 1. 4. In putting on the New Man, which is created after God in Righteouſneſs and true Holineſs, Eph. 4. 24. in being Holy in all Manner of Converſation, as he that has called us is Holy, 1 Pet. 6. 11. it plainly follows, either that they who live to God, who are like him in Holineſs, who have the Image of God inſtamped upon them, and who are made partakers of the Divine Nature, may notwithſtanding periſh Everlaſtingly, or that true Holineſs muſt render us ſecure of Happineſs.

5*thly*, It ſeems evident, that a good, and and a wiſe God cannot reveal Things only to ſtuff our Heads with Notions, when they have no Influence upon our Hearts to make us better, ſince then to disbelieve them would be pernicious, and yet the believing them, would do us no good: And a wiſe God muſt require this Faith to no End, his Deſign in requiring us to believe in Jeſus Chriſt, being this, that believing we may have Life thro' his Name, Joh. 20. 31. and the very End of our Faith, is the Salvation of our Souls, 1 Pet. 1. 9 He therefore can require us to believe nothing but what hath a real Tendency to the Obtainment of that Life, and that Salvation, which is the End of our whole Faith.

(2) Ver. 3. After Eſdras 2. 23, 26. add,] If it refer to the Promiſe, or Declaration made to Adam, that the Seed of the Woman ſhould bruiſe the Serpents Head, that muſt be a Declaration that the Meſſiah ſhould exempt us from that Mortality the Serpent had brought upon the Seed of Adam, and conſequently a Promiſe that he ſhould procure for us an happy Reſurrection to Eternal Life: If we refer it to the Promiſe made to Abraham, in thee ſhall all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed; we by that bleſſing being made the adopted Sons of God, and Heirs according to the Promiſe, Gal. 3. 29. Muſt have a Title by it to the Redemption of our Bodies, and muſt become Sons of the Reſurrection to Eternal Life, and by it receiving the Promiſe of that Spirit, which is the Earneſt of that Inheritance, Gal. 3. 14. muſt thereby be aſſured of it.

(3) Ver. 6. After Oecumenius, add,] To ſhew the Antiquity of that Interpretation of thoſe Words, the Husband of one Wife, which I encline to, St. Jerom ſaith, that Quidam de hoc loco ita ſentiunt, Judaicæ, inquiunt conſuetudinis fuit vel binas uxores habere, vel plures, quod etiam in veteri lege de Abraham, & Jacob, legimus, & hoc nunc volunt eſſe præceptum, ne is qui Epiſcopus eſt eligendus, uno tempore duas pariter habeat uxores. He alſo ſeems to ſhew his diſlike of the other Opinion in theſe Words, Multi Superſtitioſiùs magis quàm veriùs etiam eos, qui cùm Gentiles fuerint, & unam uxorem habuerint quâ amiſſâ poſt baptiſmum Chriſti alteram duxerint, putant in Sacerdotio non eligendos.

Ver. 7. A Biſhop muſt be blameleſs.] St. Jerom underſtanding this of Presbyters, ſpeaks to the Biſhops thus, audiant Epiſcopi, qui habent conſtituendi Presbyteros per urbes ſingulas poteſtatem ſub quali lege Eccleſiaſticæ conſtitutionis ordo teneatur, and then proceeds thus, at nunc cernimus plurimos hanc rem beneficium facere, ut non quærant eos, qui poſſunt Eccleſiæ plus prodeſſe & in Eccleſiâ erigere columnas, ſed quos vel ipſi amant, vel quorum obſequiis ſunt deliniti, vel pro quibus majorum quiſquam rogaverit, & ut deteriora taceam, qui ut clerici fierent muneribus impetrarunt. (4)

Ver. 15. To the Clean all things are Clean.] Here ſaith Jerom; Conſiderandum ne iſta tractantes, occaſionem illi Hæreſi demus, quæ juxta Apocalypſin, & ipſum quoque Apoſtolum Paulum ſcribentem ad Corinthios, putant de Idolothytis eſſe veſcendum, quia omnia munda ſunt mundis. (5)

CHAP. II.

Ver. 4. Ἵνα σωφρονίζωσι τὰς νέας, that they may teach, or admoniſh the Young Women.] Stephanus renders the Words thus, that they may teach them by Chaſtiſement, but Women, who had Husbands, and Children, as theſe in the next Verſe are ſuppoſed to have, were not to be chaſtiſed by others. Obſerve then, that Young Men, and Women become Wiſe by hearkening to the Admonitions, and Inſtructions of Perſons Aged, and experienced in the Practice of it, and they who were ſet over the Youth, and the Young Women for this End were called by the Greeks Σωφρονίσηρες, that is, directors of their Manners, becauſe they admoniſhed them how to behave themſelves in their Stations, hence Σωφρονιστὴς is by Heſychius rendred νουθέτης, an Admoniſher, and in Julius Pollux, Σωφρονίζειν, is νουθετεῖν, to admoniſh, and Σωφρονισμὸς, is the ſame with νουθεσία Admonition. l. 3. c. 17. p. 153. l. 41. &c. (6)

Ver. 5. That the Word of God be not blaſphemed.] For ſay Theodoret and Theophylact, when Wives leave their Husbands, or Servants their Maſters, προφάσει τῆ ἐυσεβείας, from a Pretence of Religion, they cauſe Men to ſpeak Evil of the Goſpel. (7)

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 2. After the Words, Sacred Trinity, add] that the Word Heir doth alſo ſignify Lord of all things, ſee the Note on Coloſſ. 1. 15.

(2) V. 6. After theſe Words, Lord and Maker, add] Dr. Owen ſaith, this cannot be applied to the Reſurrection, becauſe Chriſt did not leave the World, or go out of it at his Death; but to this it may be anſwered that going hence, Pſalm. 29. 13. and going out of the World, 1 Cor. 5. 10. are common Expreſſions to ſignify Death. And 2*dly*, God being ſaid to beget Chriſt, when he raiſed him from the dead, Pſal. 2. 7. Act. 13. 33. Hebr. 5. 5. And gave him power over all things in Heaven and Earth, i. e. over all the World, this may be fitly called a ſecond Introduction of him into the World. 3*dly*, Whereas he ſaith that theſe Words προσκυνήσατω αὐτῷ, &c. cannot be taken from Deut. 32. 42. Becauſe there are no ſuch Words in the Original, and it is abſurd to think the Apoſtle ſhould cite that from the Scripture as the Word, and Teſtimony of God, which indeed is not in it, nor was ever ſpoken by God, for this, and for Two other Reaſons offered by the Reverend Dr. Hammond note on Pſal. 97. 7. I think it more reaſonable to conceive theſe Words were taken from the Pſalms.

CHAP. II.

(3) V. 2. After the Words conjunct with the Angel, add] Dr. Leight. in his Note on Acts. 7. 53. and in his Sermon on the Text, ſolves this Objection by ſaying that by Angels there, and here, and Gal. 3. 19. we are not to underſtand Angels properly ſo called, but God's Meſſengers, i. e. the Prophets and Teachers, who are ſtiled Angels, Mal. 2. 7. 3. 1. But this ſeems a very forced Expoſition of theſe Words. For (1.) After St. Stephen had ſaid Acts 7. 53. that the Jews had ſlain thoſe Prophets, which had told them of the coming of that Juſt One, he adds this farther Aggravation of their Guilt, v. 53. that they had received the Law by the Diſpoſition of Angels, and had not kept it, plainly diſtinguiſhing theſe Angels from the Prophets: St. Paul alſo ſaith the Law was given by Angels in, or thro' or, by the Hand of a Mediator, that is of their great Prophet Moſes; plainly again diſtinguiſhing thoſe Angels from that Prophet, when therefore the ſame St. Paul ſaith, the Law was ſpoken not by an Angel, to wit, Moſes, but by Angels, in the Plural Number, it is moſt reaſonable to interpret his Words to the ſame Senſe, eſpecially conſidering his Inference from theſe Words, v. 5. for God hath not ſubjected to Angels the World to come of which we now ſpeak.

V. 5. After theſe Words, an Archangel, add] certain it is from the Scripture, that the Law, which was the Foundation of the Judaical Church State was given by the Diſpoſition of Angels, Acts. 7. 53. Gal. 3. 19. whence the Apoſtle here ſtiles it the Law ſpoken by Angels, v. 2. They being therefore ſo far intereſted in the Promulgation of the Law, as that it was given to the Jews by their Miniſtry (tho' they did this in the Name, and by the Authority of God) the Moſaical Church-State was ſo far put in Subjection to them. (4)

V. 7. καὶ κατέστησας αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὰ ἔργα τῶν χειρῶν σου.] Theſe Words are wanting in Oecumenius, Theophylact, and ſome MSS. but they are in Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, and all the ancient Verſions. (5)

V. 9. He χάριτι Θεοῦ by the Grace of God taſted Death] (a) Origen in his Commentary upon the Goſpel of St. John twice ſaith that ſome Copies read χωρὶς Θεοῦ without God, ſo read the Syriac, and Ambroſe l. 2. de fide ad Gratianum c. 4. & Vigilius Tapſenſis l. 2. p. 17. and 20. And this Reading either confutes the Patripaſſians, or confirms the Doctrine of Irenæus, that Chriſt ſuffered ἡσυχάζοντος τοῦ λόγου the Divine Nature being quieſcent, and not exerting its Energy to ſtrengthen him againſt, or deliver him from theſe Sufferings; it making its Impreſſions upon the Humane Nature, ſaith Grotius, not always, but pro temporum ratione. Note alſo, that to taſt Death is a Jewiſh Phraſe ſignifying to dye, as when they ſay the firſt Adam was worthy not to taſt of Death. (6)

(7) V. 13. After 1 Pet. 2. 7. add] Dr. Owen here contends that the Words ἐγὼ ἔσομαι πεποιθὼς ἐν αὐτῷ are not taken from Iſaiah, 8. 17. where they are almoſt expreſly found, but from Pſal. 18. 3. Eheſah bo ἐλπιῶ ἐπ' αὐτὸν where they are not found; becauſe, ſaith he, were both theſe Citations taken from the ſame place the Apoſtle would not have ſaid, καὶ πάλιν, and again, this being an Evidence that he cites another place. To which the anſwer is that he doth ſo, citing the firſt words from v. 17. and the ſecond from verſe 18.

(8) V. 16. After theſe Words, ſee Kircher in the Words Taphaſh, Chaſak, Achas, add] But then, that he thus laid hold of fallen Man, and of the Seed of Abraham, by taking of the Humane Nature from one derived from the Stock of Abraham, that in that Nature he might ſuffer Death for the Propitiation of thoſe Sins, which rendred them ſo obnoxious to Death, is extreamly evident both from the Words preceding, and from the Words following; for verſe 14. we read thus, becauſe therefore the Children were Partakers of Fleſh and Blood, he alſo did partake of the ſame Fleſh and Blood, or Mortal Nature, that thro' (his) Death he might deſtroy him, that had the Power of Death, for, ſaith he, he took hold of the Seed of Abraham, i. e. by partaking of the ſame Nature with them, v. 14. And again, he took hold on the Seed of Abraham, to reſcue them from that Death they feared by his own Death, v. 17. ὅθεν ὤφειλε, where he ought in all things (belonging to their Nature) to be made like to his Brethren, that as their High Prieſt he might make an Atonement for the Sins of the People, by his Sacrifice made on the Croſs ἐν ᾧ γὰρ πέπονθεν for in that he ſuffer'd, &c. v. 18.

Seeing therefore it remains that ſome muſt enter in (to the reſt of God ſpoken of in theſe Words) and they to whom it was firſt preached (οἱ πρότερον εὐαγγελισθέντες they who had the Goſpel firſt preached to them concerning this reſt of God) entred not in (to it) becauſe of unbelief.

(14) V. 8. Ἔμαθεν ὑπακοήν, he learned Obedience by the things that he ſuffered] the Note here omitted is this. Theſe Words I have expounded thus: He learned (the Difficulty of) Obedience (to the Death) by the things, that he ſuffered. But I conceive they may be alſo rendred, and expounded thus, v. 7. He was heard, and deliver'd from his Fears, to wit, from thoſe Fears, which threw him into an Agony in the Garden, and againſt which an Angel was ſent from Heaven to comfort him, v. 8. καίπερ ὢν υἱὸς, tho' being a Son (even the proper Son of God) he taught us Obedience by the things that he ſuffered, or by the Death he ſuffered in Obedience to the Will, and Commandment of his Father. Joh. 10. 18. for as the Hebrew Lamad ſignifies both to learn, and to teach, and is by the Septuagint above Twenty times rendred διδάσκειν to teach, and as the Word learn in our Language ſignifies alſo to teach, as in theſe Words of the Old Tranſlation, Pſalm 119. 66. Oh learn me Underſtanding, and Knowledge; ſo alſo ſaith (c) Euſtathius the Word μανθάνω is μέση λέξις a Word that ſignifies both to teach, and to be taught, and is ſo uſed by the Authors that lived after Homer's time, and by the Sophiſters.

(15) Ver. 13. He ſwears, δι' ἑαυτοῦ, by himſelf.] It may perhaps be not unworthy of our Obſervation, that where God ſaith in the Old Teſtament, I ſwear by my ſelf, the Jeruſalem Targum renders this frequently bemimri by my Word, as Exod. 17. 16. Deut. 1. 1, 32. 22. 26.

CHAP. VII.

(16) Ver. 11. Καὶ ὲ κ τάξιν, Ααρὼν λέγεσθ.] The Words are in all the Gr. Scholia. Vulg. Syr. Arab. and yet are by Dr. Mills rejected as a Marginal Note, upon the ſole Authority of the Æthiopick, See Examen Millii. So Chap. 8. 4. τ ἱερέων, is rejected upon the Authority of the Vulgar, and three MSS. tho' it be in all the Gr. Scholiaſts, the Syr. and Arab. So Chap. 9. 22. χέσθον is wanting only in the Syr. and Æthiop. and yet rejected by the Dr. So ὁ Θεὸς, Cap. 10. 9. is rejected upon the ſole Authority of the Æthiopick, againſt the Authority of the Greek Commentators, and all the other Verſions. And Cap. 13. 21. he rejects ἔγω upon the ſole Authority of the Vulgar, See Examen Millii.

CHAP. VIII.

(17) Ver. 13. Ἐγγὺς ἀφανισμ, is ready to vaniſh away.] Tho' the Judaical Sacrifices which ſignified the Death of Chriſt, after his Death ceaſed to be obliging, and their Diſcrimination from all other Nations, on the Account of Circumciſion, and the Diſtinction of Meats ceaſed, as St. Paul often teſtifies; yet theſe Words ſeem to intimate, that the Church State and Polity of the Jews was not to come to its full Period, till the Deſtruction of the Temple, and City of Jeruſalem.

CHAP. IX.

(18) Ver. 8. After made manifeſt, add,] And this the Ancients ſay was ſignified by the rending of the Veil, at our Lord's Death, viz. τὰ ἅβατα ἤδη λοιπὸν βατὰ, τ οὐρανὸν ἀνοιγήσεσθ, that Heaven, before inacceſſible, was now opened, and a Way was made into the true Holy of Holies; Chryſoſtom, Hom. 88. in Matth. p. 541. and the Hope of Chriſtians being now to enter within the Veil, becauſe our Forerunner is gone before, Heb. 6. 19. 20. Seems to intimate the ſame Thing.

Ἥτις παραβολὴ εἰς τ καιρὸν τ ἐνεστηκότα καθ' ὃν, &c.] Here the Vulgar, and Oecumenius read καθ' ἣν, which, ſaith Dr. Mills is the true reading, adding, that κ συνειδήσιν acceſſit aliunde, has been added to the Text. The Second oppoſes the Æthiopic, which is a Verſion of no Credit, to the Syriac, Arabic, Vulgar, or the Greek Scholiaſts, and Cyril. Alex. who all own the reading of the Text, which Liberty, if it be allow'd, the Scripture muſt be a very uncertain, and precarious Rule. In the Firſt, the reading of the Text is approved by Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, Theophylact, Ciril. of Alex. de Ador. Sp. p. 347. and by all the Eaſtern Verſions. The other reading indeed gives a very good Senſe thus, which Tabernacle was a Figure for the preſent Time, according to which Figure, Gifts, and Sacrifices were offered, but ſince the reading of the Text, which runs thus, (which Figure continues to this preſent Time, in which (by the Jews) are ſtill offered Gifts, and Sacrifices) bears the ſame Senſe, and is ſupported by better Authority, what Reaſon can be given why it ſhould be changed.

(19) Ver. 9. Which could not perfect according to the Conſcience.] To clear up what hath been ſaid upon this Verſe, let it be noted, that God declares the Tenour of the New Covenant ſhould run thus: I will be merciful to their Iniquities, and remember their Sins no more. Whence obſerve,

1*ſt*, That there was no ſuch Promiſe, or Condition made under the Old Covenant, that requiring, for every new Sin of Ignorance, a new Oblation, whereas Sins of Ignorance and Infirmity being not contrary to the Sincerity of our Obedience, they do not violate the New Covenant, and ſo are pardoned by Vertue of the Blood of the New Covenant ſhed, ἐφάπαξ, once for all for the Remiſſion of Sins, for if we thus Sin ſaith the Apoſtle John, we have an Advocate with the Father Jeſus Chriſt the Righteous, and he is the Propitiation for our Sins, 1 John 2. 2. And if we walk in the Light as he is in the Light, the Blood of Chriſt cleanſed us from all Sin, 1 John 1. 7.

2*dly*, Obſerve that the Legal Sacrifices ſerv'd only for the Purification of the Fleſh, from Ceremonial Defilements, and reſtored to them only a Right to the Benefits of the Moſaical Covenants, viz. Life, and Proſperity in the Land of Canaan, but did not ſo far purify the Conſcience, as to procure them an admittance into the heavenly Canaan, which if they had entirely cleanſed them from the Guilt, and the Defilement of Sin, they would have done; and hence the Apoſtle ſays, The Way into the Holy of Holies was not opened, whilſt the firſt Tabernacle was ſtanding, verſe 8. See the Note there.

(20) V. 14. Διὰ Πνεύματος αἰωνίου.] The Vulgar, Chryſoſtom, and Cyril Alex. de R. Fide p. 73. read ἁγίου, but Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact, Athanaſ. Ep. ad Serap. p. 180. Ambroſ. de Sp. S. c. 8. Cod. Alex. Syr. Arab. read as the Text.

(21) V. 34. Γινώσκοντες ἔχειν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς κρείττονα ὕπαρξιν ἐν οὐρανοῖς, καὶ μένουσαν.] Note that Origen in his Book de Martyrio, omits the Words ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, that (a) Clemens of Alexandria reads ἑαυτὸς, that ſome read inſtead of it ὑμᾶς, and that all the Ancient Verſions follow this reading; Note alſo, That all the Greek Fathers read ἐν οὐρανοῖς, which two various readings make the Greek run clear, and ſmooth. See Examen Millii in locum.

CHAP. XI.

(22) V. 12. Καὶ ταῦτα.] Some Manuſcripts read τοῦτο, but all the Greek Scholiaſts read καὶ ταῦτα, which being according to the Cuſtom of the Greek Language uſed by Way of Amplification, and ſignifying idque is well rendred by our Tranſlation, And that.

(23) V. 26. Photius here ſaith, the Reproach of Moſes may be called the Reproach of Chriſt, as being ſuch as Chriſt ſuffer'd ὃν ὁ Χριστὸς ἔπαθε, in which Senſe we are bid to go forth to him without the Camp bearing his Reproach, Chap. 13. 13. Betwixt this, and the following Verſe ſome Latin Copies inſert theſe Words, ſide magnus factus Moſes occidit Ægyptium conſiderans dolorem ſuorum, which Dr. Mills thinks genuine, tho' they are neither own'd by any of the Verſions nor any of the Greek Commentators.

CHAP. XII.

(24) V. 7. God dealeth with us as with his Sons.] Here the Note of Chryſoſtom is this, that from thoſe things, whence Men uſually conclude they are deſerted by God, the Apoſtle ſhews, that God demonſtrates his fatherly Affection to them.

(25) V. 18. Ψηλαφωμένῳ ὄρει, to the Mountain, that might be touched.] And therefore was corporeal, and terrene, and by being touched after the Prohibition, Ex. 19. 12. would procure preſent Death: But you are come to the ſpiritual and heavenly Zion, which will certainly give Life to all that belong to it.

(26) V. 23. After the Word, ſanctified, v. 14. add,] Accordingly the Targum upon 1 Chro. 21. 15. ſaith God ſaw the Houſe of his Sanctuary, which is above the Heavens, where the Souls of the Juſt are, and hence it is evident, that the Souls of juſt Men, are not reduc'd by Death to a State of Inſenſibility, for can a Soul that Reaſons, and perceives good Things, be made perfect by perceiving nothing at all? Can a Spirit, which here enjoyed the Pleaſures of a good Conſcience, of a Life of Faith, and of Communion with God, and the Comforts of the Holy Ghoſt, be advanced to Perfection by a total Deprivation of all thoſe Satisfactions, and Enjoyments.

(27) V. 24. After Chap. 10. 19. 20. add,] Whereas the Blood ſprinkled ſeven Times, for their Purification under the Old Teſtament was ſprinkled before the Veil, becauſe the Prieſts could not enter with it within the Veil.

CHAP. XIII.

(28) V. 13. Τοίνυν ἐξαιρχώμεθα, ſome quarrel, with the Apoſtle, for beginning a Sentence with τοίνυν, which it is confeſſed that the beſt Græcians rarely do, but this ſaith Stephanus is not without Example, and Vigerius Notes, τοίνυν initio quidem periodi ponitur, ſed tamen vocem ſequi, that is, it is ſometimes firſt in Poſition, but is not ſo in Conſtruction.

(29) V. 18. After theſe Words, the Rules of Righteouſneſs, add,] The want of this, ſome of the Jews might ſuſpect in the Apoſtle, as not being concerned for the Obſervation of the Law.

(30) V. 21. Ποιῶν ἐν ὑμῖν τὸ εὐάρεστον ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ, working in you that, which is well pleaſing in his Sight.] That God doth ſomeway Work in us every good Work, and whatſoever is well pleaſing in his Sight, can be denied by none, who underſtand the Scriptures, and one would think it ſhould be as little the Subject of Diſpute, whether God works theſe things as a Vomit or a Purge works in us by Phyſical, and irreſiſtible Operations, or whether he works reaſonable Creatures by offering Reaſons to perſuade them, and upon Men endowed with a Will, to make them willing, as all Men do by propounding Motives, and Encouragements of a prevailing Nature, to engage them to chooſe the Good, and refuſe the Evil, of which I have ſaid ſo much in the Treatiſe of Grace, annexed to 2 Cor. 6. 1. that I ſhall ſay nothing more at preſent, but that it is unaccountable how Actions ſhould be good, unleſs we conſent to them, or how they ſhould be ours, unleſs we chooſe, and do them. This Text is therefore vainly urged to prove that we are purely Paſſive in the Work of our Converſion, and that we neither do nor can do any thing towards it.

1*ſt*, Becauſe God evidently ſpeaks this to them, who were already true Believers, and Converts to the Chriſtian Faith, and wanted only to be made perfect in every good Work; 2*dly*, Becauſe he exhorts all Chriſtians to work out their Salvation with Fear and Trembling, upon this very Account, that it is God that worketh in them both to will and to do, Philip. 2. 13. For if God ſo worketh in us, that we do not co-operate with him, why are we commanded to work out our Salvation? For can we act, where we are purely Passive? Or can that be a Reason, why we our selves should act, that another will effectually do this very thing without our Co-operation? Is it not rather a Reason, why we should not work at all; since this Work will be certainly performed without us? See more to this effect in the Note on, 2 Philip. 13. Note also that the Word καταρτίσαι, which begins this Verse, signifies fully to instruct, as in those Words, Luke 6. 40. The Disciple is not above his Master, κατηρτισμένος δὲ πᾶς, but he that is fully instructed is as his Master, 1 Cor. 1. 10. ἦτε δὲ κατηρτισμένοι, be ye perfectly instructed in the same Mind, and Judgment, Eph. 4. 12. God hath appointed Apostles, Prophets, and Evangelists, Pastors, and Teachers, πρὸς τὸν καταρτισμὸν τῶν ἁγίων, for the full Instruction of the Saints, till we all come to the Unity of the Faith, and Knowledge of the Son of God, v. 13. So the Glossa Græco-latina καταρτίζω, struo, instruo, καταρτισμένος, constructus, instructus, and in this Sense this may be reasonably deemed a Prayer that God would fully instruct the believing Jews in every good Work requisite to be done in Obedience to his Will, and so would work in them that, which was well pleasing in his Sight, we being thus transformed by the renewing of our Mind εἰς τὸ δοκιμάζειν, that we may approve (and so be enclined to do) the Good, εὐάρεστον, well pleasing, and perfect Will of God, Rom. 12. 2.

(1) Ver. 21. TO the Note there, add,] Against this Sense it is objected, that the Word thus planted in us is not properly λόγος ἔμφυτος, but ἔμφυτευθείς, but since Νόμος ἔμφυτος, is the Law planted in the Heart by God, I think not this Criticism sufficient to destroy the Sense of the Words here given, especially if we consider, that all Filthiness, and Superfluity of Naughtiness, must be first laid aside, that we may be fitted to receive with Meekness this λόγος ἔμφυτος, engrafted Word, which shews it cannot import any thing, which is by Nature always in us.

CHAP. IV.

(2) V. 4. Φιλία τοῦ κόσμου ἔχθρα τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐστίν, The Friendship of this World is enmity to God.] This One mention'd here by Oecumenius explains thus; κόσμον ὀνομάζεσθαι πᾶσαν τὴν ὑλικὴν ζωὴν ἀποκαλεῖ, he here stiles the whole sensual Life, the World, ὡς μητέρα τῆς φθορᾶς ἣν ὁ μεταλαχὼν σπουδῶν ὀλιγώρως ἔχει τοῦ Θείου, καὶ ἀσωτικῶς, as being the Mother of Corruption, which he that is hasty to enjoy, overlooks, and despiseth Divine Things: See the Text defended here Examen Millii.

V. 11. Κρίνει τὸν νόμον, judgeth,] That is (3) saith Oecumenius, καταγινώσκει καταφρονεῖ, he condemns, and despiseth the Law forbidding him to condemn, and to speak evil of his Brother, and so will not be a doer of it. πῶς γὰρ τις καταφρονεῖ, φησὶν, ἀνέξεται ὑπ' αὐτοῦ εἶναι ζήν, for how will a Man be induced to live by that Law which he despiseth.

V. 16. Νῦν δὲ καυχᾶσθε ἐν ταῖς ἀλαζονείαις ὑμῶν πᾶσα καύχησις, &c.] These Words (4) I would render thus, but now you vaunt your selves in your Boastings, all such vaunting is evil, i. e. You boast how much you will gain, and then what brave Men you will be.

CHAP. I.

(1) Ver. 2. After these Words the Elect, Math. 24. 22. add,] So also Oecumenius interprets these Words, to the Elect, that is, τοῖς ἀφωρισμένοις ἐκ τῶν ἄλλων ἐθνῶν εἰς λαὸν ἅγιον, to them, that are separated from other Nations, to be his Holy, and peculiar People.

(2) V. 4. To the Note here, add,] Oecumenius hence observes, 1*st*, That this therefore was not such a Hope as that, which was contained in the Law of Moses, ἥτις θνητὴ, θνητοῖς ἐπαγγέλλεται θνητά, a dying Hope, which promised dying things to mortal Men, 2*dly*, That if this Inheritance be in Heaven μυθώδης ἡ χιλιοέτης ἀποκάλασις, the Opinion of the Millenaries must be Fabulous.

(3) V. 5. After Heb. 3. 14. add,] This Place therefore only proves, 1*st*, That all who are preserved to Salvation are preserved by God, but not that all true Believers will be certainly so kept. 2*dly*, This Place proves only, that they who are thus preserved, are kept thro' Faith, i. e. if they hold the beginning of their Confidence firm to the End, Heb. 5. 14. for this Faith thus continued in them will render them victorious over the World, 1 John 5. 4. It will enable them to resist the Devil so effectually, that he shall fly from them, 1 Pet. 5. 9. and to quench all the fiery Darts of Satan, Eph. 6. 16. And even to suffer Death not accepting a Deliverance, that they may obtain a better Resurrection; but this Place does not prove that all, who are once true Believers shall certainly continue in the Faith, and never make Shipwrack of the Faith, as did Hymenæus, and Alexander, 1 Tim. 1. 19. never have their Faith overturn'd as some had, 2 Tim. 2. 10. never draw back to perdition, as the Apostle supposeth some might do, Heb. 10, 38, 39.

CHAP. III.

V. 3. After these Words, like Whores, (6) add,] And in his third Book, and fourth Chapter, he saith, αἱ χρυσοφορεῖσαι γυναῖκες, the Women that wear Gold, plait their Hair, paint their Faces, have not the Image of God in the inward Man, but in Lieu of it, a fornicating, and adulterous Soul. The (a) Apostolical Constitutions also forbid Women to wear τῷ ἐπιθυμένῳ ἐσθῆτα εἰς ἀπάτην, exquisite Garments, or Garments fitted to deceive, or Gold Rings upon their Fingers, ὅτι ταῦτα πάντα ἑταιρισμοῦ τεκμήρια ὑπάρχει, because all these things are signs of Whoredom.

V. 19. By which he preached to the Spirits (7) in Prison.] Hence Mr. Dodwell concludes, that our Saviour after his Death, did, in the Interval betwixt that and his Resurrection, preach to the separated Souls in Hades; but to this the Reverend Bishop Pearson answers.

First, That those Words cannot prove this Assertion, unless it were certain, that by the Word Spirit, we were to understand the Soul of Christ, whereas indeed the Spirit by which he is said to Preach, was not the Soul of Christ, but that Spirit by which he was quickened; as is evident from the Connexion of the Words thus, He was quickened by that Spirit, ἐν ᾧ, by which he went and Preached to the Spirits in Prison, that is, by the eternal Spirit of God, who is the Author of the Resurrection.

Secondly, He adds, that the Persons to whom he Preached by the Spirit, were only such as were Disobedient in the days of Noah, while the Ark was preparing, v. 20. i. e. those who were disobedient before the Flood, as were the Antidiluvians, all that time that the long sufferance of God waited on them, and consequently so long as God gave them time for Repentance, which was 120 years, striving then with them for that End by his Spirit in the Prophets Enoch and Noah, but adding that this Spirit could not always strive with them; In vain then, saith he, are we taught to understand St. Peter of the Promulgation of the Gospel to the Jews or Gentiles then in Hades, since the Words so evidently relate to the long suffering of God to Men, then living in the days of Noah.

Becauſe the Apoſtle ſaith this whilſt Saint Paul, Saint John, and himſelf were living, and ſpeaks of it as a thing already paſt ſaying εὐαγγελίσθη, the Goſpel hath been Preached to them, not that it ſhall be Preached to them when dead.

He that is of the World knows not God, Chap. 3. 1. Nor he that committeth Sin, as here.

V. 12. Ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ of that wicked One.] (5) The Jews ſay that Cain was begot of the Seed of the Devil, this the Apoſtle myſtically expoundeth, ſaying of Cain as our Saviour doth of the Jews in general, Joh. 8, 44. that they were of their Father the Devil, who was a Murderer from the Beginning, becauſe they did his Works, being maliciouſly bent upon the Murder of our Lord.

V. 20. Ὅτι ἐὰν, for if our Hearts condemn us, ὅτι μείζων.] (6) Some are enclined to read ἔτι μείζων, God is yet greater than our Hearts, and others to make it an Expletive, or to approve of thoſe few Copies where it is wanting, but ſeeing it is retained in moſt Copies, and is tranſlated by the Arabick profectò, this I believe to be the true import of it here, and to confirm this import, let it be noted, that the Hebrew Chi, which in its primary import ſignifieth for, and is by the Septuagint rendred ὅτι, doth alſo ſignifie certè, and is by our Tranſlation often rendred ſurely, or certainly. So Gen. 43. 10. for if we had not lingred, Chi LXX. ἦδη ἄν, ſurely we had return'd twice, Ex. 3. 12. Chi, LXX. ὅτι, ſurely I will be with thee, Ch. 4. 25. Chi, LXX. ſurely a bloody Husband art thou, Num. 22. 23. Chi, LXX ἄν, ſurely I had ſlain thee, Judg. 6. 16. כי, ſurely I will be with thee, Ruth. 1. 10. ſurely we will return with thee, 1 King. 1. 13. Chi, LXX ὅτι, ſurely Solomon ſhall reign after me, Joſh. 2. 24. Chi, LXX ὅτι, Truly the Lord hath delivered the Land into our Hands, Pſal. 77. 12. Chi LXX. ὅτι, ſurely I will remember thy works of old, 112. 6. Chi, ὅτι, ſurely he ſhall not be remov'd for ever, ſee Job. 28. 1. Iſa. 7. 9. See Examen Millii here v. 16. and chap. 5. 10. 12.

V. 21. Παῤῥησίαν ἔχομεν πρὸς τὸν Θεὸν, we (7) have Confidence with God.] When is it, ſaith (a) Philo, that a Servant may uſe, παῤῥησίαν πρὸς τὸν Δεσπότην, Confidence towards his Lord? Is it not then ὅταν μηδὲν ἡμαρτηκότι μὲν ἑαυτῷ μηδὲν συνειδῇ when he is not conſcious of doing any Evil againſt him?

CHAP. V.

V. 13. Ἵνα εἰδῆτε ὅτι ζωὴν ἔχετε αἰώνιον, καὶ (8) ἵνα πιστεύητε.] Here the Codex Alexandrinus, reads thus ὅτι ζωὴν ἔχετε αἰώνιον οἱ πιστεύοντες, ſo ſo alſo reads the Vulgar. and the Syriac, the Arabick thus, hæc ſcripſi vobis, O qui creditis in nomen Filii Dei, ut ſciatis quod vitam habetis æternam quamdiu creditis in nomen filii, Dei. Oecumenius, ἵνα πιςεύητε ἀδιαλείπτως, καὶ ἀμώμῳ πίσει.

Additions to the Second Epiſtle General of St. John.

(1) Ver. 1. ἐκλεκτῇ κυρίᾳ, after the Mother of all Churches, add.] But yet if this Epiſtle was written after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, this Interpretation cannot ſtand.

Additional Annotations on the Epiſtle of St. Jude.

(1) Ver. 5. εἰδότας ὑμᾶς ἅπαξ τοῦτο.] The Jews knowing the Deſtruction, which God brought upon the Unbelieving Jews in the Wilderneſs as well when St. Jude writ, as before, it ſeemeth not ſo proper to ſay to them, you know this once, as to ſay you knew it before, which ſeems to be the import of the Word ἅπαξ, v. 3. and in thoſe Words of Sampſon, Judg. 16. 21. ἐξελεύσομαι ὡς ἅπαξ, I will go forth as before, and Chap. 20. 31. The Benjamites began to ſmite them, ὡς ἅπαξ, καὶ ἅπαξ, ſaying they flee before us, ὡς τὸ πρῶτον, as before. Or 2*dly*, It may be rendred fully, plainly, or certainly, for τὸ ἅπαξ, ſaith Phavorinus, is put ἀντὶ τοῦ ὄντως, βεβαίως, for verily and firmly; and Suidas ſaith it is uſed ἀντὶ τοῦ ὁλοτελῶς for entirely and fully, and ſo it anſwers to the Hebrew Achatz, or Achad, which ſignifies truly, or certainly, and is rendred by the Septuagint ἅπαξ.

V. 7, 8. The Grammatical Expoſition of theſe Words ſeems to be thus. Even as, ὡς καὶ, and as Sodom and Gomorrha, and the other Cities who were like to them in Fornication, and unnatural Luſts were exemplarily puniſhed. Ὁμοίως μέντοι καὶ οἱ μὲντοι ἐνυπνιαζόμενοι, ſo likewiſe do theſe filthy Dreamers act, defiling the Fleſh as they did, and as the Men of Sodom contemned the good Angels, which came to Lot's Houſe, and ſpake evil of them; ſo do theſe Men contemn and blaſpheme the good Angels, who are ſtiled δόξαι, καὶ κυριότητες, Eph. 1. 21. Coloſſ. 1. 16. and therefore ſhall alſo periſh as they did, v. 11. (2)

V. 21. After Divine Favour, add] and alſo that Men once in this State, may neglect to keep themſelves in the love of God. (3)

TO THE

Right Reverend Father in GOD,

GILBERT,

Lord Biſhop of SALISBURY,

Chancellor of the moſt Noble ORDER of the GARTER,

AND

Præceptor to his Highneſs the Duke of GLOCESTER.

MY LORD,

THough ſince I had the Happineſs to be admitted to an Acquaintance with a Perſon of your Character and Merit, and have had a large ſhare of your Favour, I have had Obligations to make ſome publick Acknowledgment of it; yet had I never ſo fair an Opportunity to do it, as this Work, which now craves your Lordſhip's Acceptance, doth afford.

For, ſuch a particular Veneration and profound Affection for the ſacred Records as your Lordſhip, upon all occaſions, ſhews, may not only render this Attempt, to add ſome Light unto them, acceptable, but even cover the Imperfections that you muſt needs diſcover in it.

Since therefore it is cuſtomary to dedicate Works of this nature to Perſons of great Eminence in Station and more raiſed Worth, I thought my ſelf obliged to ſet forth theſe Labours, under your Lordſhip's Patronage, not only to expreſs my Gratitude, but alſo out of Juſtice to that Goodneſs which mov'd your Lordſhip not only to peruſe, but to approve this Work, and to ſuggeſt many things, which otherwiſe would have been wanting to it.

I am here carried to ſay ſomewhat of the Pattern you ſet us in an unwearied Diligence in the Diſcharge of your high Function; but I know you cannot bear it, and that you had much rather ſee your Clergy imitate you in this, than hear them commend you for it. I will therefore rather ſtudy from your Example, how to do my own Duty, than publiſh to the World how you do yours.

That God would ſtill continue your good Lordſhip as great a Bleſſing as you are an Honour to our Church, and give you a ſure but late enjoyment of Celeſtial Bleſſings to which your Soul, by its devout Affections, and indefatigable Labours ſtill aſpires, is the continual Prayer of,

My LORD,

Your Lordſhip's moſt obliged,

moſt humble, and obedient Servant,

DANIEL WHITBY.

THE PREFACE TO THE READER.

BY way of Preface to this Work, ſome things there be of which I think fit to adverti ſe the Reader, and ſome things in which I ſhall beg his Favour. And,

Firſt, Becauſe it may be uſeful to read the Epiſtles of St. Paul not in the Order in which they are placed in our Bibles, but rather in that Order of time in which they were written, I here think fit to place them according to that Order, following the Chronology of Biſhop Pearſon.

A. D. 52. The firſt Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians.

A. D. 53. The ſecond Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians.

A. D. 57.
- The firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians.
- The Epiſtle to the Galatians.
- The ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians.
- The Epiſtle to the Romans.

A. D. 62.
- The Epiſtle to the Epheſians.
- The Epiſtle to the Philippians.
- The Epiſtle to the Coloſſians.
- The Epiſtle to Philemon.

A. D. 63. The Epiſtle to the Hebrews.

A. D. 65.
- The firſt Epiſtle to Timothy.
- The Epiſtle to Titus.

A. D. 67. The ſecond Epiſtle to Timothy.

I have in the Prefaces to theſe Epiſtles, given the Reaſons why I place the writing of them about the time aſſigned, only of the time of writing the Epiſtle to the Galatians I have there ſaid nothing: I therefore here ſubjoin the Reaſon why it is placed in the ſame Year with the firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians, viz. becauſe St. Paul, in his firſt coming to Galatia, converts them to the Chriſtian Faith, Act. 16. 6. at his ſecond Advent, he ſtrengthens the Brethren there, Act. 18. 23. and in his Epiſtle to them, he marvels that they were ſo ſoon removed from him that called called them to another Goſpel, Chap. 1. 6. it therefore could not be written long after he had been with them to ſtrengthen them, which yet was before he had begun his three Years abode at Epheſus, Act. 19. 1. 31. at the very cloſe of which the firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians is ſuppoſed to have been written.

I deſire the Reader to take an Eſtimate of the true Date of theſe Epiſtles, not from what may have ſlipt from me by the by in a Note, and hath been overlook'd in the review of my Papers, but from what is here ſet down, and is confirmed in the Prefaces to theſe Epiſtles.

The Uſe that may be made of obſerving this Order I ſhall exemplifie in two Inſtances; of which the 1*ſt*, Is that of Demas, concerning whom Dr. Lightfoot, Harm. p. 137. Beza, Eſthius, and others, ſay, that though he left St. Paul for a ſeaſon, yet after he returned to him: Becauſe, ſay they, in two Epiſtles written after that to Timothy, in which he is ſaid to have forſaken him, having loved this preſent World, 2 Tim. 4. 10. he is reckoned among the Co-workers with St. Paul, viz. Col. 4. 14 Philem. 24. but I have deſtroyed the Foundation of this Argument, by eſtabliſhing the Opinion of the Ancients, that the 2*d* Epiſtle to Timothy was the laſt that St. Paul writ; and therefore the Opinion of Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, OEcumenius and Theophylact, that he did μετὰ ταῦτα ῥαθυμεῖν afterwards become ſlothful, and, ſaith OEcumenius, returned again εἰς ἑλληνισμὸν to Heatheniſm, is the more probable.

The 2*d* relates to that Opinion of Grotius, that St. Paul ſpake, for a time, as if he had believed that the Day of Judgment might happen in his time, and that this is proved from, 1 Cor. 15. 53. 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2, 3. Whereas in his ſecond Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, writ four Years before thoſe to the Corinthians, he ſaith what is ſufficient to ſhew he could not be of that Opinion, or have declared any thing of that nature, and therefore could not afterwards ſay any thing to that purpoſe. See the Note on 1 Theſſ. 4. 15.

Secondly, I did intend to have examined all the various Readings which have been ſo induſtriouſly collected by Dr. Mills, as far as they concerned theſe Epiſtles, reducing them under theſe two Heads.

1*ſt*, Such as, though they ſhould be granted to be various Readings, are yet of no concern as to any matter of our Faith or Practice, under which Head I think the greateſt part of them may be ſafely ranked.

2*dly*, Such as though ſome Manuſcript Copies may have varied in tranſcribing the ſacred Records, yet have we ſufficient Reaſon to believe the reading we retain is genuine, and ſutable to the Original Copies. Now this ſufficient Reaſon will ariſe from theſe Conſiderations;

1. When all the Ancient Scholiaſts or Commentators, St. Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, St. Jerom, OEcumenius, Theophylact, agree in the common Reading with us, no various Reading being obſerved either by them, or any of the Ancients who have writ before them; I think we have ſufficient Reaſon to retain the common Reading, whatever Manuſcripts may have varied from it. See an Inſtance of this Rule, 1 Tim. 3. 16.

2. When all the ancient Verſions, the Syriack, Arabick, and Vulgar, do accord with us in the common Reading, and no Ancients obſerve that there was any other Reading; I think we have ſufficient Reaſon to retain that Reading, whatever Manuſcripts do vary from it. Of this ſee an Inſtance, Romans 9. 5. And,

3. Where the various Reading ſpoils the Senſe of the Words, or is not well conſiſtent with the Context, there, I preſume, we have ſufficient Ground to reject it as the Errour of the Scribe, and not to look upon it as a Variation in the Original, or received Copies of the ſacred Text. See an Inſtance, Note on 1 Cor. 15. 51. Theſe Rules, I verily believe, will be ſufficient to reduce various Readings into a little compaſs.

And

And these Rules I would have exemplified at large, could I have procured a Copy of that learned Work, but being unable to obtain that Favour, I must be content to leave that Work undone till the time come, if ever it will come in my Days, that his Book may see the Light.

Thirdly, I advertise the Reader, that this Work hath been retarded by the Animadversions of Mr. Le Clerc upon the Reverend and Learned Dr. Hammond; which having perused, I found so many things said in favour of the Arians, and so many unworthy Reflections upon the Writings of St. Paul, that I chose rather to review and transcribe a considerable part of this Work, than suffer those things to pass without an Antidote. I acknowledge him to be a learned Person, and honour his Parts, and I hope he will not be offended with me for being concerned for what I judge to be the Truth, and for the Honour of St. Paul, who has been somewhat rudely handled by him.

Fourthly, That I have been so often forced to differ from the same Reverend Person he attacks sometimes so indecently, is to me matter of regret; but it hath truly been observed by others, that this Great Man had two darling Opinions, viz. that the Heresie of the Gnosticks, and the Destruction of Jerusalem, were the great things to which no little part of these Epistles had relation; in which I have offer'd my Reasons why I dissent from him, retaining still a just Veneration for his Parts and Piety: And if God enable me to perfect my Notes upon the Gospels, I shall in them accord more with him.

Fifthly, I advertise him, that tho' in this Second Edition of the Epistles I have put the whole Paraphrase of every Chapter before the Annotations belonging to that Chapter, that so they might the better agree with the Gospels contrived in that Method, yet the chief Additions to, or Alterations in the Annotations, are printed apart for the use of them who have the first Edition.

Lastly, I advertise him that I have, as exactly as I could, made Indexes (1st) of all the Greek Words and Particles, (2dly,) of all the Scripture Phrases explained, and (3dly,) of all the material Doctrines handled in these Annotations.

The things in which I beg the Readers favour, are:

1st, That where he finds, or thinks, that I have erred either in Point of Doctrine, or in the Interpretation of the Scriptures, as doubtless in the latter I have sometimes done, he would be so kind as to let me know my Errors, which, upon Conviction, I will not only own, but do it with all due Acknowledgments and Thankfulness to him, who shall do that kind Office to me.

2dly, That if in any thing I seem to him to differ from the received Doctrine of the Church of England, as some may haply conceive I do in the Annotations on the Fifth Chapter to the Romans, he would do me the Justice to believe, that as he thinks I do, so I conceive I do not, contradict her Doctrine; and also would consider that even the Church of Rome allows her Commentators to vary from the sense of any particular Scripture on which they build their Doctrines, provided they say nothing which doth expresly contradict them.

3dly, That if he should receive any advantage from this Work, especially if it should be so happy as to suggest to him any thing which may render him the better Man, he would give God the Glory of it, and pray for,

His Friend, and Servant,

DANIEL WHITBY.

THE General PREFACE, CONCERNING The Divine Authority OF THESE EPISTLES, AND THE Truth of Christian Faith.

CONTENTS.

1. THAT what is delivered in these Epistles as necessary to be believed or done, must be as necessary to be believed and done, as what is contained in the Gospels: That there are some things necessary to be believed and done, contained in these Epistles, which are not clearly delivered in the Holy Gospels, § 1. The Truth of the Christian Religion proved, (1.) From what our Saviour promised and undertook, and what the Apostles declared concerning the Gifts and Operations of the Holy Ghost, § 2. (2.) From plain Matter of Fact concerning this Effusion of the Holy Ghost, and his miraculous Gifts related in the Epistles, § 3. (3.) From the confident Appeals of the Apostles and Primitive Professors, to those Gifts, in their Contests and Debates with Friends and Adversaries, Believers and Rejecters of the Christian Faith, § 4. (4.) From the Prayers and Thanksgivings made for them, the Exhortations and Directions given in these Epistles concerning these miraculous Gifts, § 5. (5.) From what is required to be done, and suffered by all Christians, upon no other Inducements or Encouragements, than what depended on the Truth and Certainty of these Gifts, § 6. That these Epistles were indited whilst the Apostles lived, and are proved genuine by more Authentick Arguments than can be produced for any Book, Writing, Charter, Law, or Statute. The external Arguments to prove them genuine, § 7. The internal Arguments, § 8. The Truth of Christianity proved, (7.) From a particular Consideration of these Gifts: As, (1.) The Gift of Healing, § 9. (2.) Of Ejecting Devils out of Men, their Temples, and their Oracles, § 10. (3.) From the Gift of Tongues, § 11. (4.) Of Prophecy, § 12. (5.) Of discerning Spirits, § 13. That these extraordinary Gifts were conferred upon all other Churches not mentioned in these Epistles, § 14. That they continued in the two first Ages of the Church, § 15. What Engagements the Truth of Christianity lays upon us to live suitably to the Rules delivered in these Sacred Records, § 16.

THAT these Epistles were indited by Divine Assistance, and were received from the beginning, as Epistles written by the Conduct and Assistance of the Spirit of God, I have endeavoured to evince in the General Preface to the Gospels.

§ 1. Hence then it follows, that what the Apostles have delivered in these Epistles as necessary to be believed or done by Christians, must be as necessary to be believed and practiſed in order to Salvation, as what was perſonally taught by Chriſt himſelf, and is contained in the Goſpels; they being in the writing theſe Epiſtles the Servants, Apoſtles, Ambaſſadors, and Miniſters of Chriſt, and Stewards of the Myſteries of God, and the Doctrines and Precepts they delivered in them, being the Will, the Mind, the Truth, and the Commandments of God.

Now evident it will be to any one who judiciouſly reads theſe Epiſtles, that they contain ſome things to be believed and done, which were not clearly taught by Chriſt whilſt he was on Earth, nor are delivered clearly in the Goſpels; as we may learn,

1*ſt*, From the Doctrines contained in theſe Epiſtles: As V. Gr. That by the Deeds of the Law ſhall no Fleſh be juſtified, Rom. 3. 20. That both Jew, and Gentile, being under Condemnation, were only to be juſtified freely by God's Grace, thro' the Redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus, whom God had ſet forth to be a Propitiation thro' Faith in his Blood, ver. 25. That if Righteouſneſs came by the Law, then was Chriſt dead in vain, Gal. 2. 21. That as many as are of the Law, are under the Curſe, chap. 3. 16. That if we be circumciſed Chriſt ſhall profit us nothing, Chriſt is become of none effect to them that are under the Law, they are fallen from Grace, chap. 5. 2, 5. That the Law was to continue only till the time of Reformation, Heb. 9. 10. and was then to be diſannulled for the weakneſs, and unprofitableneſs of it, chap. 7. 18. That Chriſt is a Prieſt for ever after the Order of Melchiſedeck, chap. 5. 5, 6. That he hath an unchangeable Prieſthood, that he in Heaven is continually making Interceſſion for us, and therefore is able to ſave us to the uttermoſt, chap. 7. 24, 25. For all theſe Doctrines clearly delivered in theſe Epiſtles, are either not to be found at all, or not ſo clearly in the Goſpels.

2*ly*, In theſe Epiſtles only have we Inſtructions about many great and neceſſary Duties, as V. G. That all our Thankſgivings are to be offer'd up to God in the Name of Chriſt, Eph. 5. 8, 20. Theſſ. 5. 18. Heb. 13. 14, 15. The Duties which we owe to our Civil Governours are only hinted in thoſe words of Chriſt, Render to Cæſar the things that are Cæſar's, but are enlarged upon in the Epiſtles to the Romans, chap. 13. to Titus, chap. 3. 1. and in the firſt Epiſtle of St. Peter, 1 Pet. 2. 10, 17. So alſo are the Duties we owe to our Spiritual Superiours taught more expreſly in theſe Epiſtles, Gal. 6. 6. 1 Theſſ. 5. 12, 13. Heb. 13. 17, 18. In fine, all the particular Duties belonging to the Relations of Husband and Wife, Parents and Children, Maſters and Servants, are particularly handled in theſe Epiſtles, Eph. 5. 28, 33. 6. 1, 9. Col. 3. 18, 25. but are ſcarce ever mentioned in the Goſpels. But it may be objected, Obj. 1. That 'theſe Epiſtles were written to thoſe who were in the Faith already, and 'and ſo could not be deſigned to teach them the Fundamental Articles, and Points ne'ceſſary to Salvation, or to inſtruct them in what was neceſſary to make them Chri'ſtians.

Anſw. It follows not from their being Chriſtians already, that the Apoſtles deſigned not to write to them in theſe Epiſtles of any Fundamental Articles, or Points neceſſary to Salvation, for it is very plain, they do ſo: St. Paul in his Epiſtle to the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 15. 3. writes of the Reſurrection of the Dead, and of Chriſt's Death, and Reſurrection, as of Doctrines neceſſary to be believed; and in his Epiſtle to the Galatians, of ſeeking Juſtification by the Works of the Law, as a thing oppoſite to, and deſtructive of the Grace of Chriſt. And ſince there were among them falſe Apoſtles, and deceitful Workers, who corrupted the Word, and handled the Word of God deceitfully, 2 Cor. 2. 17.—4. 2. yea, corrupted their Minds from the ſimplicity of Chriſt, chap. 11. 3. turned them from him that called them to another Goſpel, Gal. 1. 6. ſought to deprive them of their Reward, Col. 2. 18, 19. and ſeparate them from their Head Chriſt Jeſus, who put away a good Conſcience, and ſo made ſhipwreck of the Faith, 1 Tim. 2. 19. whoſe Doctrine did ſpread as a Gangrene, and overthrew the Faith of ſome, 2 Tim. 2. 16. many Diſputers of corrupt Minds turning from the Truth, 1 Tim. 6. 5. many unruly and vain Talkers and Deceivers, who ſubverted whole Houſes, teaching things that they ought not, for filthy lucre's ſake, Tit. 1. 10, 11. Muſt not theſe things adminiſter occaſion to theſe ſacred Pen-men to endeavour to ſtabliſh, and confirm them in the Faith, by letting them, they wrote to, know the moment of thoſe Articles, the neceſſity of that Faith they had been taught, and the pernicious Conſequences of thoſe Practices to which they were ſeduced by theſe Deceivers?

Again, ſeeing theſe Writings were intended as a Rule, not to them only to whom they were ſent to, but to all future Ages of the Church, and the Spirit expreſly told them, That in the latter Days ſome ſhould depart from the Faith, giving heed to ſeducing Spirits, and Doctrines of Devils, 1 Tim. 4. 1, 2. That the time would come when they would not endure ſound Doctrine, but would turn their Ears from the Truth, 2 Tim. 4. 3, 4. When falſe Prophets ſhould ariſe among them, bringing in damnable Doctrines, whoſe pernicious ways many ſhould ſhould follow, 2 Pet. 2. 1, 2. Seeing they knew, that after their departure grievous Wolves would enter in, not ſparing the Flock, Acts 20. 29, 30 Muſt not all theſe Conſiderations give juſt occaſion to them to write of the great Articles of Chriſtian Faith, and of the neceſſary Points of Chriſtian Converſation, to preſerve them, and thoſe that came after them, from thoſe damnable Doctrines, and pernicious Ways?

Moreover, this Objection is therefore inſignificant, becauſe the Apoſtles do inform us, that they found it ſafe to write the ſame things to them they had heard, Philip. 3. 1. tho' they knew the truth, and were confirmed in it, 1 John 2. 21. that they might have theſe things always in remembrance, 2 Pet. 1. 12, 15. and that ſome who for the time of their Converſion might have been great Proficients in the Faith, had yet need to be taught again, the firſt Principles of the Oracles of God, Heb. 5. 12.

Obj. 2. It alſo may be ſaid, 'That theſe Epiſtles were writ upon particular Occaſions, 'and without thoſe Occaſions had not been written, and ſo cannot be thought neceſſary to 'Salvation.

Anſw. This Objection is neither exactly true of all the Epiſtles, nor of all that is contained in them; not of all the Epiſtles, for it appears not that five of the General Epiſtles, or that the Epiſtle to the Romans, to the Epheſians, and to the Hebrews, were writ upon particular Occaſions, unleſs the inſtructing Men in the Faith, and preſerving them from Hereſie, or Apoſtacy, be called particular Occaſions, and where this doth appear, it is very evident, that when the Apoſtles had writ what they thought proper upon thoſe Occaſions, they add many excellent Rules of Piety and Vertue.

Anſw. 2. 2*ly*, Were it exactly true that all the Epiſtles were writ upon particular Occaſions, it will not follow hence that they were not directed, in writing them, by the Holy Spirit; or that they contain nothing neceſſary to be believed or done, in order to Salvation. For the Book of Pſalms was not only writ upon particular Occaſions, but was alſo adapted to, and fitted for them. The Prophets were all ſent by God, to teſtifie againſt, and call the Jews to Repentance for Sins committed in their time, to reform their Manners, or comfort them in their Diſtreſſes, that is, upon particular Occaſions, but will it therefore follow, that they did not write by the aſſiſtance of the Spirit of God, or that there is nothing in the Pſalms, or in the Prophets, which was neceſſary to be believed or practiſed by the Jews? Moreover, the Goſpel of St. Luke was writ upon a particular Occaſion, viz. to inſtruct Theophilus in the Certainty of the things he had been taught, and yet Epiphanius informs us, that (a) the Holy Ghoſt compell'd, and ſtimulated him to the work. The Goſpel of St. Mark was writ, ſay the Ancients, at the requeſt of the Converts at Rome, and yet he writ it, ſaith (b) Epiphanius, πνεύματι ἁγίῳ ἐμπορευόμενος, by the Impulſe of the Holy Ghoſt. They alſo ſay, that St. John was importuned by all the Aſiaticks to write his Goſpel; and yet ſaith (c) Epiphanius, The Holy Spirit did inwardly impel him to the writing of it. The Goſpel of St. Matthew, ſay (d) they, was indited at the Requeſt of the Hebrews, that he might ſupply by writing the want of his Preſence with them: So that we ſee the Writings of the Apoſtles, and Evangeliſts, may be occaſionally penned, and yet be the Products of the Holy Ghoſt, and contain things neceſſary to be believed and done.

Anſw. 3. 3*ly*, The particular Occaſions of ſome of theſe Writings being the Errors, or Waverings of Chriſtians in Fundamental Points, as appears from the Epiſtles to the Corinthians, Galatians, &c. and in others the buſie Induſtry of falſe Apoſtles, and deceitful Workers, to pervert them from the Faith; that theſe Epiſtles were writ on ſuch Occaſions, is rather a preſumption that they were writ upon ſome Fundamental Points, than that they could not be indited upon theſe Occaſions.

Moreover, great Advantages ariſe from the Occaſional Writing theſe Epiſtles, and ſuch as might induce the Holy Spirit to excite them to that Work. For,

1. All the Occaſions which they took to write from the Diſorders, Errors, Hereſies, Miſtakes, which at firſt crept into the Church, render theſe Writings ſtanding Rules for the Deciſion of like Caſes thro' all future Ages.

2. The Deportment of the Apoſtles towards theſe erroneous Perſons, and diſorderly Walkers, the Care they uſed to recover or inform them better, the Zeal and Tenderneſs they ſhew'd, and the Rules they laid down in thoſe Caſes, are excellent Precedents, and Directions for all Church-Governours, in Caſes of like nature.

3. All the Occaſions which they had to write for the Direction of Church-Governours, how to behave themſelves in the Church of God, to give Rules for the Qualifications of thoſe who were to be admitted to thoſe Offices, and touching their Behaviour in them, for the Settlement of the Affairs of the Church, and the decent and regular performance of Divine Service, afford us ſtanding Rules of Government, and of admitting and ordaining a Succeſſion of thoſe divers Orders in the Church.

Laſtly, Theſe various Occaſions give us full aſſurance, that theſe Epiſtles muſt be written in thoſe very Times when theſe Diſorders hapned, and theſe Errors crept into the Church, and ſo take off all jealouſie, or ſuſpicion, that they were Writings contrived in the following Ages of the Church; whereas had their Writings been only Syſtems of Theological Doctrines, and Rules of Life, which equally concerned all the Ages of the Church, it might have been more plauſibly objected, that they were framed by ſome Chriſtian Biſhops aſſembled for that end.

Obj. 3. But if all, or moſt of the Truths declared in theſe Epiſtles, were to be received, and believed as Fundamental Articles, what then became of thoſe Chriſtians who were fallen aſleep before thoſe things in the Epiſtles were revealed to them?

Anſw. 1. This Queſtion equally concerns the Evangeliſts, and more eſpecially the Goſpel of St. John, which, ſay the Ancients, was either the (e) laſt Portion of Scripture which was written, or the laſt ſave his Epiſtles, it being written after his return from his Exile in Patmos, to Epheſus; and ſo if it contain any Fundamental Articles, or neceſſary Rules of Life, what became of thoſe Chriſtians who died before they were revealed in it?

Anſw. 2. We ſay not, that all, or moſt of the Truths, declared either in the Epiſtles or Goſpels, are to be accounted Fundamental, or Neceſſary Articles; but only that ſome of them ought to be ſo accounted, eſpecially thoſe which have this Character of a neceſſary Article, or Rule of Life, that the Denial, or Non-practice of them, is repreſented as that which will endanger our Salvation, or cut us off from the Communion of the Church.

Anſw. 3. 'Tis alſo a precarious Suppoſition, that they who died before theſe Epiſtles were writ to them, muſt die before the neceſſary things contained in them were revealed to them, ſeeing we know that the Apoſtles writ the ſame things which they had preached before; and St. Luke writ his Goſpel, that Theophilus might know the certainty of the things he had been taught: And in thoſe times of the Effuſion of the Spirit of Wiſdom and of Knowledge, they had an Unction which could teach them all things, 1 John 2. 27. and ſo ſupply the unavoidable Defects of outward Teachers.

Obj. 4. The Goſpel was to be preached to the Poor; now they are not capable of ſublime Notions, nor can they comprehend myſterious Reaſonings.

Anſw. 1. Whether this Objection be intended againſt the neceſſity of believing the Epiſtles of St. Paul only, or alſo of the Goſpel of St. John, is uncertain; the ſublime Notions, and myſterious Reaſonings being common to both.

Anſw. 2. There ſeemeth no neceſſity of troubling the poor common People with ſublime Notions, or myſterious Reaſonings, ſince both the Ancient Church, and our own Catechiſm declare, that all the Articles of Chriſtian Faith, common to all that bear that Name, are compriſed in the Apoſtles Creed. For when the Child ſaith, My Godfathers and my Godmothers promiſed I ſhould believe all the Articles of the Chriſtian Faith, ſince it is evident they only ſtipulated for the belief of the Apoſtles Creed in Baptiſm; and when he doth rehearſe thoſe Articles, he only doth rehearſe the Apoſtles Creed, 'tis certain, that, by our Catechiſm, muſt be ſuppoſed to contain all the Articles of Chriſtian Faith.

Moreover, it is very difficult, if not impoſſible, to make ſuch Perſons have a right Conception of the Spiritual Nature, and the Attributes of God, or to enable them, by Reaſon, to prove the Providence of God, or the Immortality of the Soul, but yet theſe things muſt be propoſed to them as Articles, or Foundations of their Faith. And as it is not very difficult for them to learn from Scripture the Truth of theſe things; ſo neither is it difficult from the ſame Scripture to learn the Truth of all the Articles of the Apoſtles Creed, even in that ſenſe in which all Chriſtian Ages did receive them.

In a word: Were theſe Mechanicks as much concerned for Spirituals, as they are for Temporals, as many of them have attained to great Proficiency in their reſpective Arts, ſo might they alſo, by a Chriſtian Diligence, attain a competent Proficiency in all the neceſſary Articles of Chriſtian Faith, and in the Rules of Chriſtian Piety, or of their Duty to God and Man. Now Chriſtianity being that Doctrine which is after Godlineſs, Tit. 1. 1. I believe nothing is propoſed in it as neceſſary to be believ'd to Salvation, which hath not ſome tendency to the promotion of true Piety.

§ II. Having thus eſtabliſhed the Divine Authority of theſe Epiſtles, I ſhall endeavour to confirm the Truth of Chriſtian Faith, from what is copiouſly delivered in them.

This is of abſolute neceſſity in this degenerate Age, in which all manner of Impiety exceedingly abounds, and Men are by their Lives diſpoſed, and even concerned to queſtion the Truth of that Religion, and of thoſe Writings which threaten the ſevereſt Puniſhments to their Enormities; and do induſtriouſly, and even impudently, purſue this Black Deſign both in their Diſcourſes, and Writings.

Now to prove againſt theſe Enemies of Revealed Religion, the Truth and Certainty of Chriſtian Faith, from what is copiouſly delivered in theſe Epiſtles, it will be only requiſite to ſhew, that they contain a Declaration of ſuch things as could not poſſibly be true, but they muſt alſo be a full and convincing Demonſtration of the Truth of Chriſtian Faith, and that we have great Reaſon to believe the Truth of what is thus related by them. And,

1. That they contain a Declaration of ſuch things as could not poſſibly be true, but they muſt alſo be a full and convincing Demonſtration of the Truth of Chriſtian Faith, the Declaration they afford will be ſufficient to evince; for it was this:

That the miraculous Gifts, and powerful Operations of the Holy Ghoſt, were plentifully afforded to them who preached the Goſpel to the World, and alſo to thoſe Chriſtian Churches which received that Goſpel, and embraced the Faith they taught.

By way of Preface to what I ſhall collect from theſe Epiſtles concerning theſe miraculous Gifts and Operations of the Holy Ghoſt, it may deſerve to be conſidered, that as the bleſſed Jeſus ſpake as never Man ſpake, that is, delivered ſuch juſt, holy, beneficial Commands, as never were before made known to the World; and did for Confirmation of his Doctrine, the Works that no other Man did; ſo was he pleaſed to lay the Truth of his Prophetick Office upon ſuch future, and miraculous Events, as no Impoſtor, that had any Wit, would undertake, or could be able to perform.

For the Prophecies which he had undertaken to fulfil, and his own frequent Declarations, made it neceſſary, 1. That he ſhould die a peculiar Death, i. e. by being lifted up upon the Croſs. 2. That in three Days he ſhould riſe again. 3. That after his Reſurrection his Goſpel ſhould in the ſpace of forty Years, or before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, be propagated throughout the World, or the whole Roman Empire. 4. That in order to the propagating of it, the Holy Ghoſt ſhould plentifully be vouchſafed to his Apoſtles, and ſhould endue them with Power from on high, and even enable them to do greater Works than he himſelf had done, John 14. 12.

At the great Day of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, when all the Jews aſſembled at Jeruſalem were joyful in their Beth-Haſchoavah, or Houſe of drawing Water, and were, ſay their Traditions, in expectation that the Holy Ghoſt would fall upon them, Jeſus ſtood and cried, ſaying, If any Man thirſt, let him come unto me, and drink; he that believeth in me, out of his Belly ſhall flow Rivers of living Waters: This ſpake he of the Spirit which they that believed on him ſhould receive, John 7. 37, 38. And at the Cloſe of his Life on Earth, he comforts his Diſciples with the Promiſe of this Holy Ghoſt, who ſhould continue with them, not only to teach them all things, and bring all things to their remembrance, but alſo to convince the World of Sin, becauſe they believed not in him, and of his Righteouſneſs, who was ſo glorioufly exalted to the Right Hand of God his Father, and of a future Judgment; becauſe the Prince of this World, being caſt out from thoſe he had poſſeſſed, was judged, John 16. 7, 11. And after his Reſurrection he ſpeaks thus to them; Behold, I ſend the Promiſe of my Father upon you, for ye ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, not many Days hence, Luke 24. 49. And ye ſhall receive power, after the Holy Ghoſt is come upon you, and ye ſhall be Witneſſes to me both in Jeruſalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and to the uttermoſt parts of the Earth, Acts 1. 8. And Laſtly, To encourage others to believe the Doctrine which they taught, he ſaith, Theſe Signs ſhall follow them that believe; in my Name ſhall they caſt out Devils, they ſhall ſpeak with new Tongues, they ſhall take up Serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing it ſhall not hurt them, they ſhall lay Hands on the Sick, and they ſhall recover. Now I deſire to know whether any thing of this nature was ever undertaken, or laid as the Foundation of their Credit, by any other Author of any Doctrine, Religion, Sect, or Hereſie? Whether they ever made their own violent Death, and Reſurrection, the Foundation of their Veracity? Or promiſed the like Powers, and Aſſiſtances, when they were riſen, to thoſe who ſhould promote, or ſhould embrace their Doctrine? Or whether that which no Man elſe durſt undertake, was not performed by the Holy Jeſus ſo effectually, as that his Doctrine preſently prevailed, and was received throughout the World in ſpight of all the oppoſition Men and Devils made againſt it, and wrought in Chriſtians ſuch a laſting Faith, as Time, and Vice, tho' moſt concerned to do it, was never able to deface.

But tho' we have no Inſtances of any other Perſons that made the like Attempts, yet do our Lord's Diſciples tread exactly in their Maſter's Steps: For the firſt thing which they declared to the World was this, that the Fore-runner of their Lord, John the Baptiſt, when Jeruſalem, and all Judea, and all the Regions about Jordan, and in particular the Phariſees and Sadducees, the Publicans and Soldiers, repaired to his Baptiſm, declared in the Audience of them all, There was one ſhortly to come after him, one that ſtood then among them, who would baptize them with the Holy Ghoſt and Fire, Mat. 3. 11. They alſo add, that their Lord, both before, and after his Reſurrection, made a like Promiſe to them, that he would ſuddenly ſend down upon them the Spirit promiſed by the Father, that they ſhould receive Power from on high, and be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, and ſo ſhould be enabled to be the Witneſſes of his Reſurrection, and of his Doctrine.

When theſe Apoſtles had themſelves received the Holy Ghoſt, they declare, they only had received what God had promiſed by his Prophet Joel, ſaying, Chap. 2. 28. It ſhall come to paſs in the laſt Days, I will pour my Spirit upon all Fleſh, and your Sons, and your Daughters ſhall propheſie, and your young Men ſhall ſee Viſions, and your old Men ſhall dream Dreams, Acts 2. 16. where note, That 'tis a received Rule among the Jews, that the laſt Days, when uſed by the Prophets, do ſignifie the Times of the Meſſiah. See the Note on 1 Tim. 4. 1. Note alſo, that God of old revealed his Will to his People by Viſions, Dreams, and by Prophetick Revelations; ſo that this is a Promiſe, that in the Days of the Meſſiah God would miraculouſly pour his Spirit upon Men, and by that Spirit would enable them to propheſie, and to reveal his Will to others. Yea, they ſay boldly to all that ſtood amazed at it, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the Name of Jeſus Chriſt for the Remiſſion of Sins, and ye ſhall receive the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt; for the Promiſe is to you, and to your Children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God ſhall call. Here then we ſee how fully they both claim a Promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt made by their Maſter to them, and alſo promiſe the like Gift to them who ſhould believe, and be baptized in his Name.

Now theſe Promiſes were actually performed, and made good before they were indited, and put into the Records of the Chriſtian Faith, the Writings of the Apoſtles and Evangeliſts, or they were not; if all theſe Promiſes were fulfilled before the Records which contain them were indited, then had Chriſt ſent the Holy Ghoſt upon the Apoſtles, and given them the Promiſe of the Father, then the believing Jews and Gentiles were actually baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, and were enabled to ſpeak with Tongues, and Propheſie, and ſo Chriſt muſt have given certain Demonſtration both of his Reſurrection, and his Promiſes: But if theſe Promiſes were not made good before theſe Records were indited, then the whole Story of St. John, and of the Acts of the Apoſtles, might eaſily have been convinced of Falſhood by many thouſand living Witneſſes, both in Jeruſalem, and in all other places where they lay the Scene of this great Diſpenſation, becauſe they had heard nothing of theſe things, but from their Hiſtories: Then by the Suffrage of our own Evangeliſts, our Lord's Fore-runner muſt be a Deceiver, when he declared the Meſſiah ſhould baptize them with the Holy Ghoſt and Fire, whom he had then baptized with Water; yea, in thoſe very Hiſtories deſigned to convince others that Jeſus was the Chriſt, they muſt leave on Record a Promiſe, made not to them only, but to all Believers, which never was fulfilled; the Apoſtles alſo muſt be falſly introduced, ſaying, This was that which was ſpoken by the Prophet Joel, and with the greateſt Impudence promiſing that Holy Ghoſt to others, which they themſelves had not received; and ſurely then thoſe Jews, which after all Chriſt's Miracles required a Sign, would have enquired of the Apoſtles, Where is that great Effuſion of the Spirit promiſed by the Prophet Joel, which may aſſure us, that the Times of the Meſſiah are now come? Where is that fiery Baptiſm? Where are thoſe Rivers of Spiritual Water, which your pretended Chriſt, and his Fore runner, promiſed? Let us ſee them, that we may believe him. With what Face could St. Peter promiſe that Holy Ghoſt to others, upon Faith in Chriſt, which they themſelves had not received? Or with what Face could Luke declare he did this before ſuch an Audience, of which the greateſt part muſt be then living, and ſo as with that Promiſe to convert Three thouſand Souls, had neither theſe Converts, nor this Audience, found any Experience of that Affair? In fine, if theſe Apoſtles were not aſſiſted with theſe miraculous Powers of the Holy Ghoſt, they muſt be well aſſured that he who had ſo oft engaged whilſt he lived, to ſend this Comforter to them, and at his Reſurrection promiſed, that in few Days they ſhould all be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, was a Deceiver, and falſe Prophet, and then what Motive could they have, or how could they conceive it a thing poſſible to be his Witneſſes ſucceſsfully to the uttermoſt parts of the Earth? If by the coming of the Holy Ghoſt upon them they were indeed enabled to ſpeak all Languages, this Gift was a ſufficient Confirmation of the Reſurrection and Aſcenſion of that Jeſus who thus made good his Promiſe to them. If they had no ſuch Gift, how was it poſſible that ſuch unlearned Perſons, who only underſtood their Mother-Tongue, ſhould diſcourſe in their ſeveral Languages to the Romans, Grecians, Egyptians, Perſians, Armenians, Scythians, Indians, and all the barbarous Nations of the World? And to what purpoſe was it for them to travel to thoſe Nations, to ſtand mute among them, or elſe to tell a Story to them of which they could not underſtand one word? If, as the Sacred Story doth inform us, they preached the Word with Demonſtration of the Spirit, and Power; if they went forth preaching everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the Word with Signs following, God alſo bearing Witneſs to them by Signs and Miracles, and by divers Powers and Diſtributions of the Holy Ghoſt; then might they boldly ſay, We are his Witneſſes of theſe things, and ſo is the Holy Ghoſt, which God hath given to thoſe that obey him, Acts 5. 32. But if no ſuch Aſſiſtance was vouchſafed to them, what Evidence could they give to the World, that he had ſent them on this Errand? Or how could they expect to reverſe all the Ancient Laws, and Religions of the World, and to perſwade all Nations to own, and worſhip, as the Great Saviour of the World, one who was lately hanged on a Tree? Their Compliance therefore with this Miſſion, and their Continuance in this Teſtimony under thoſe dreadful Miſeries they ſuffer'd for it, as well as their incredible Succeſs in Propagation of the Chriſtian Faith to every Nation, will not ſuffer us to doubt that they were well aſſured of the Completion of this Promiſe to them, and ſo of Chriſt's miraculous Aſſiſtance of them.

§ III. Moreover, theſe Epiſtles do almoſt ſeverally contain ſufficient Proofs of the Effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon Believers, and of his miraculous Aſſiſtance of the firſt Preachers of the Chriſtian Faith, and jointly do concur to make this Evidence triumphant over Infidelity. For,

1ſt, St. Paul writes to the Romans thus; I long to ſee you, that I may impart to you ſome ſpiritual Gift, to the end you may be eſtabliſhed, Rom. 1. 11. See the Note there. For I know, ſaith he, that when I come to ſee you, I ſhall come in the fulneſs, τ ευλογίας, of the Bleſſing of the Goſpel of Chriſt, Chap. 15. 29. i. e. that fulneſs of ſpiritual Gifts with which all Chriſtians were bleſſed in Chriſt Jeſus, according to that Promiſe of the Prophet Iſaiah, Chap. 44. 2, 3. Fear not, Jacob my ſervant, and Iſrael whom I have choſen, for I will put my Spirit on thy Seed, ϗ τὴς ευλογίας μυ, and my Bleſſings on thy Children. Now that the Apoſtle came to Rome, both Scripture, and the whole Current of Antiquity atteſts; either then he came to them with the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel of Chriſt, and did impart unto them thoſe ſpiritual Gifts which tended to confirm them in the Chriſtian Faith, or he did not: If he did impart them, he gave them an aſſured Demonſtration of the Certainty of Chriſtian Faith; if he did not, he himſelf miniſtred to them a full Objection againſt his own Apoſtleſhip: For, this muſt render him a vain Boaſter of things he was not able to perform, and a Deceiver of the Church of Rome. And why then doth he ſpeak thus to them? I have whereof I may glory through Jeſus Chriſt in thoſe things which pertain to God; for I will not dare to ſpeak of any thing which Chriſt hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient in word and deed, in the power of ſigns and wonders, and in the power of the ſpirit of God; Rom. 15. 18, 19. Theſe Powers, ſaith he, have accompanied my Preaching from Jeruſalem, round about unto Illyricum; and this Grace, ſaith he, was given to me of God, that I ſhould be the Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles, miniſtering the Goſpel of God to them, that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt. Where he compares himſelf, preaching the Goſpel, to the Prieſt, converſant about his Sacrifice, to prepare and fit it to be offer'd; the Gentiles dedicated by him to the Service of God, are his Sacrifice, or Oblation; the Holy Spirit conferr'd upon them is the Libamen by which they are ſanctified, and render'd acceptable to God. Moreover, the Epiſtle to the Romans muſt be falſe, or elſe it muſt be ſent by the Apoſtle before he had ſeen Rome, for it containeth an intimation that he had not then ſeen them, a Deſire to ſee them, and a Promiſe to come to them; for, ſaith he, I make it my Requeſt to God, if by any means, now at length, I might have a proſperous Journey by the will of God, to come to you, for I long to ſee you, Rom. 1. 10, 11, 13. And, I often purpoſed to come to you, but was let hitherto. And again, I have been much hinder'd from coming to you, having therefore a great deſire theſe many years to come to you, whenſoever I take my Journey into Spain, I will come to you, Chap. 15. 22, 23, 24. 'Tis alſo certain that he afterwards did did see them; for after his Appeal to Cæsar, he was sent to Rome, and lived there at least two Years: He therefore must have sent this Epistle to them, and they must have receiv'd it, before that time. In a word, from those words in the Close of this Epistle, Chap. 15. 25,26. But now I go to Jerusalem to minister to the Saints; for it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain Contribution for the poor Saints that are at Jerusalem, it is evident he writ this Epistle before that Collection was carried by him to Jerusalem in the third Year of Nero, and sent it from Corinth, as the Postscript saith. Note also, that this Epistle is often cited by St. Clemens and Polycarp.

In his Epistle to the Church of Corinth, he declares, They were enriched in all Utterance, and Knowledge, or in Tongues and Prophecy, 1 Cor. 1. 5. (See the Note there,) That they abounded in every thing, in Faith, in Utterance, and Knowledge, 2 Cor. 8. 7. so that they came behind the other Churches in no Gift. His Twelfth Chapter begins thus: Now concerning Spiritual Gifts, I would not have you ignorant, that no Man speaking by the Spirit of God, calleth Jesus accursed; and that no Man can say, that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost. Now there are diversities of Gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are differences of Administrations, (or Offices in the Church, to which these Gifts belong,) but (all proceeding from) the same Lord; and there are diversities of Operations, performed by these Gifted Men, but it is the same God who worketh all these Operations in them all, ver. 4, 5, 6. Then he proceeds to the Enumeration of the Gifts conferr'd upon the Officers and Members of the Church, viz. The Gifts of Knowledge, Wisdom, Prophecy, and the discerning of Spirits; the Gift of Miracles, of Faith, of Healing, of divers Kinds of Tongues, and the Interpretation of them, saying, That God had placed in the Church, First, Apostles: Secondly, Prophets: Thirdly, Teachers: After that Miracles, then Gifts of Healing; Helps, Governments, diversities of Tongues; concluding with this Question, Are all Apostles? are all Prophets? are all Teachers? are all Workers of Miracles? have all the Gifts of Healing? do all speak with Tongues? do all Interpret? but covet earnestly the best Gifts, and yet shew I to you a more excellent Way. even that of Charity. For, tho' I have the Gift of Prophesie, and understand all Mysteries, and all Knowledge; and tho' I have all Faith, so that I could remove Mountains, and have no Charity, I am nothing, Chap. 13. 1,2. For Prophecies shall fail, and Tongues shall cease, and Knowledge shall be done away, but Charity never faileth, ver. 8.

Now this Epistle must be indited and sent to them whilst their Schisms, Contentions, and Disorders remained, because it was designed to correct them, and whilst St. Paul was in a Capacity to come to them, and so before his Bonds, because he saith, The rest will I set in order when I come, Chap. 11. 34. Hence, after Notice given of their Schisms, Contentions and Divisions, he adds, These things have I in a Figure transferr'd to my self and Apollo for your sakes, that you might learn in us, not to think of Men above that which is written, That no one of you be puffed up, for one against another, Chap. 4. 6. saying, I have also sent Timotheus to you, and I my self will come unto you shortly; and then he puts the Question to them thus, What will you that I come unto you with a Rod, or in Love, and in the Spirit of Meekness? ver. 16,17, 18, 19. Chap. 5. He commands them to put away from them, and to deliver up to Satan, the incestuous Person; and that accordingly they did so, his Second Epistle shews, in which he writes to them to forgive, and comfort him, 2 Cor. 2. 7.

Moreover, He writes part of this Epistle in Answer to some Questions they had sent to him, which required a speedy Answer, as being Cases of Conscience which concern'd their Conversation, their Freedom from Idolatry, and the Preservation of weak Christians. The rest of his Epistle is spent in endeavouring to correct their great Disorders about the Sacrament, their Church Assemblies, and the use of their Spiritual Gifts, chap. 11. and 14. and their great Error touching the Resurrection, Chap. 15. and to give Directions touching their Charity, Chap. 16. All which things required speedy Instructions; and that this Epistle was sent accordingly, these Words do manifest, When I come, whomsoever you shall approve by your Letters, them will I send to bring your Liberality to Jerusalem, and if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me, Chap. 16. 3,4. Now I will come to you when I pass thro' Macedonia, and it may be that I will abide, yea, and winter with you, ver. 5,6. I say, hence it is evident, that they soon received this Epistle; for they accordingly made their Collections, with which he went up to Jerusalem; and in his Second Epistle, he Apologizes for not coming to them, according to those Words, chap. 1. 16,17. Moreover, the Second Epistle is a strong Confirmation of the First, in which he had pointed out unto them, those Disorders which he would have remedied, those things he would have done before his coming; for in this he tells them their Obedience to his former Letter, had filled him with Joy and Comfort, that his Instructions concerning the incestuous Person, had found so good effect, that they approved themselves to be clear in this Matter, and caused him to rejoice, That he could have such confidence in them in all things, Chap. 7. Whence it is evident, they had had not only then received, but in ſome meaſure had complied with the Inſtructions given them in that Epiſtle.

Add to this, That Clemens Romanus, with the whole Church of Rome, in an Epiſtle ſent to the Corinthians, not many Years after this of St. Paul's was written, declare, [§ 2.] That there was πλήρης ἁγία ἔγχυσις ἐπὶ πάντας, a full Effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon them all; and that St. Paul had written to them an Epiſtle touching their Diviſions about himſelf, [§ 47.] and Cephas, and Apollo; which is a great Confirmation, both of the early Knowledge, and Uſe of this Epiſtle in the Church, as alſo of the truth of what St. Paul relateth in it, touching the Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt conferr'd upon them.

In his Epiſtle to the Galatians, he compares himſelf with the Chief of the Apoſtles, and the Pillars of the Church, declaring, That he that wrought effectually in Peter to the Apoſtleſhip of the Circumciſion, was as efficacious in him towards the Gentiles; that theſe Pillars ſaw, and perceived by the Grace given to him, That the Goſpel of the Uncircumciſion was committed to him, as the Goſpel of the Circumciſion was to Peter, and therefore gave to him the right hand of Fellowſhip, that he with Barnabas ſhould go to the Gentiles, and they to the Circumciſion, Chap. 2. 7, 8, 9. adding for Conſolation to the Gentiles, That Chriſt had redeem'd them from the Curſe of the Law, that the Bleſſing of Abraham might come upon the Gentiles, that they might receive the Promiſe of the Spirit, thro' Faith, Chap. 3. 13. adding, That thro' the Spirit they did wait for the Hope of Righteouſneſs by Faith, Chap. 5. 5.

Now in this Epiſtle, he mentions the Life that he now lived in the Fleſh, Chap. 2. 20. his fear of them, his deſire to ſee them, and the deſire of the falſe Brethren to exclude him from any ſhare in their Affections, and the Perſecutions he yet ſuffer'd in the Fleſh, Chap. 3. 2. Chap. 4. 11, 15, 17, 20. Chap. 5. 11. And he concludes it thus: You ſee how large a Letter I have written to you with my own Hand; and from henceforth let no Man trouble me, for I bear in my Body the Marks of the Lord Jeſus, Chap. 6. 11. 17. Which Words demonſtrate, That this Epiſtle muſt be written, and ſent to them whilſt he lived, and after he had ſuffered greatly for the Name of Chriſt. Moreover, the occaſion of it ſhews, it muſt be written by St. Paul himſelf; for it was writ upon occaſion of ſome Judaizers, who preach'd up the neceſſity of Circumciſing the Gentiles, and requiring them to obſerve the Law of Moſes, and who endeavoured to diſparage this Apoſtle who had taught the contrary, as inferiour to other Apoſtles, and his Doctrine as contrary to what they taught: Now theſe Diſtempers requiring a ſpeedy Remedy, we cannot doubt, but the Apoſtle ſent this Epiſtle to them, as ſoon as he had heard how they had been perverted from the Sincerity of the Faith. 'Tis alſo cited by Polycarp ad Philip. § 5.

In his Epiſtle to the Epheſians, he tells them, He was made a Miniſter of the Goſpel according to the Gift of the Grace of God given to him, by the effectual working of his Power, Chap. 3. 7. And, that to every one of us is given Grace according to the meaſure of the Gift of Chriſt. For, He aſcending up on High, gave Gifts unto Men. And, He gave ſome Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, ſome Evangeliſts, ſome Paſtors and Teachers; and that all theſe had their Spiritual Gifts. See the Note on Chap. 4. 7, 8, 11. and adds, That after they believ'd, they were ſealed with the Spirit of Promiſe, which is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, till the Redemption of the purchaſed Poſſeſſion, Chap. 1. 13, 14.

Now in this Epiſtle he makes mention of his Bonds, and of his being then an Ambaſſador in Bonds, Chap. 6. 20. ſaying, I Paul the Priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt, for you Gentiles; I Paul the Priſoner of the Lord beſeech you, Chap. 3. 1. Chap. 4. 1. This Epiſtle therefore, muſt be ſent unto them, whilſt he was in Bonds at Rome; and ſo it muſt be ſent unto them Anno Chriſti 62. ſince Paul was ſet at liberty the next Year. He alſo adds, That it was ſent by Tychicus, whom he ſent to them on purpoſe to make known his Affairs whilſt he abode at Rome, and begs their Prayers for Courage in making known the Myſtery of the Goſpel, whilſt he was thus in Bonds, Chap. 6. 19, 20, 21, 22.

Moreover, this Epiſtle is cited by St. Clemens, [Ep. ad Cor. § 46.] about ſix Years after the writing of it. It is twice cited by Polycarp [§ 1. 12.] in his Epiſtle to the Philippians. Ignatius [§ 12.] in his Epiſtle to the Epheſians, ſaith, That St. Paul in his whole Epiſtle, made mention of them in Chriſt Jeſus. So early was this Epiſtle known to, and read by the Chriſtians.

In his Epiſtle to the Coloſſians, he declares, That he had laboured in preaching the Goſpel to them, according to the Energy of him that wrought with him, ἐν δυνάμει, by a mighty Power, Chap. 1. 29. and ſaith, Let the Word of God dwell in you richly in all Wiſdom, teaching and admoniſhing one another, in Pſalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, Chap. 3. 16. Now in this Epiſtle, he ſaith, That he then rejoiced in the Afflictions which he ſuffered for them, Chap. 1. 24. He alſo ſpeaks of his Solicitude for them, and thoſe of Laodicea, and for as many as had not ſeen his Face in Chriſt, of his Salutation with his own hand, Chap. 4. 18. and of his Bonds, and of his ſending Tychicus and Oneſimus, to give them an Account of his Affairs, and of the Salutations of many Brethren. He therefore, and they alſo, muſt be all alive when this Epiſtle was ſent to them.

In his Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, he teſtifies, his Goſpel came unto them not in Word only, but in Power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, and in much Aſſurance, and that they received the Word with much Affliction, but yet with Joy of the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Theſſ. 1. 5, 6. and for this he appeals to their own Experience, adding theſe Words, Ye know what manner of Perſons we were amongſt you for your ſakes; whence he infers, That he that deſpiſed his Admonitions, deſpiſed not Man, but God who alſo had given them his Holy Spirit, Chap. 4. 8.

Now in this Epiſtle, he ſpeaks of his Abſence from them, and of his great deſire to ſee them, 1 Theſſ. 2. 17. of his Solicitude for their ſtedfaſtneſs under their Sufferings, Chap. 3. 5, 6. his ſending Timothy to give him an account of it, his Comfort when he heard that they ſtood firm; and maketh Sylvanus and Timotheus his Aſſociates in ſending it. This Epiſtle therefore muſt be written whilſt both they, and he were living, and it is cited by Polycarp in his Epiſtle to the Philippians, § 11.

In his Epiſtle to Titus, he ſpeaks thus, Chap. 3. 5, 6. According to his Mercy, he ſaved us by the waſhing of Regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghoſt which he ſhed on us abundantly, thro' Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Now, of Epiſtles thus written to particular Perſons, I think it needleſs to prove, That they were written whilſt both St. Paul and they were living, and were not ſent unto them from, or in another World. Tho' that is here ſufficiently proved from theſe words, chap. 3. 12. When I ſhall ſend Artemas to thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come to me to Nicopolis.

Arg. 2. § IV. 2*dly*, That God vouchſafed to the Profeſſors, and firſt Propagators of the Chriſtian Faith, theſe admirable Powers, and various Diſtributions of the Holy Ghoſt, is farther evident from this Conſideration, That the Apoſtles in all their Conteſts and Debates with Friends and Adverſaries, Believers and Rejectors of the Chriſtian Faith, falſe Apoſtles, Antichriſts, Corrupters of it, and Apoſtates from it, appeal with greateſt Confidence to theſe miraculous Operations and Diſtributions of the Holy Ghoſt.

In their firſt Controverſie, touching the Reſurrection of our Lord, gain-ſaid by the Rulers of the Jews, St. Peter ſpeaks thus to them: The God of our Fathers hath raiſed up Jeſus whom ye ſlew, and hanged on a Tree. Him hath God exalted to his right hand, to be a Prince, and a Saviour, to give Repentance to Iſrael, and Remiſſion of Sins; And we are his Witneſſes of theſe things, and ſo is alſo that Holy Ghoſt whom God hath given to them that obey him, Acts 5. 30, 31, 32. And again, This Jeſus hath God raiſed up, whereof we all are Witneſſes; Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the Promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, he hath ſhed forth this which ye now ſee and hear, Acts 2. 32, 33. Now evident it is, this Plea could not be offer'd to convince theſe Rulers, by an Appeal to their own Senſes, without the higheſt Impudence, and plain Confuſion of their Cauſe, had there been no Effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt imparted to the Apoſtles who atteſted, and the Believers which embrac'd this Faith; nor could it have been publiſh'd in that Generation, and recorded by St. Luke, as made by the Apoſtles before ſo great an Auditory, if it had been falſe, ſo many Witneſſes being then living to confute his Story.

2*dly*, The next Diſpute aroſe betwixt St. Peter and the Converts of the Circumciſion, accuſing him as a Tranſgreſſor, for eating and converſing with Cornelius, and other uncircumciſed Perſons; in which caſe his Apology runs thus: As I began to ſpeak, the Holy Ghoſt fell on them, as upon us at the beginning. Then remembred I the Word of the Lord, how that he ſaid, John indeed baptized with Water, but ye ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt: Foraſmuch then as God gave them the like Gift as he did to us, who believed on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, what was I that I could withſtand God? Acts 11. 15, 16, 17. And thus he puts to Silence the Zealots for the Circumciſion, Men too tenacious of their Rites, too zealous for the Law to be ſatisfied with any thing that did not carry with it a convincing Evidence.

3*dly*, A third Conteſt aroſe at Antioch, where ſome believing Jews contended, That it was neceſſary to Circumciſe the Gentile Converts, and to command them to obſerve the Law of Moſes: This vain Pretenſion St. Peter baffles by this Argument, That God who knows the Hearts bare them witneſs, that whilſt Uncircumciſed, they were accepted with him, by giving them the Holy Ghoſt even as he did to us, and putting no difference betwixt them and us, purifying their Hearts by Faith; and thence concluding, That by endeavouring ing to put this Yoke on the believing Gentiles, they would tempt, that is, would disbelieve, and even oppose themselves to that God who had vouchsafed so clear a Demonstration of his Acceptance of them not being circumcised, Acts 15. 8, 9. Hence also, the whole College of the Apostles write unto them thus: It seemed good to the Holy Ghost, to lay upon you no such burthen, ver. 28.

4*thly*, When the same Zealots had infected the Church of the Galatians with the pernicious Doctrine of the necessity of Circumcision, and of the Observation of the Law of Moses, St. Paul writes thus to them: Oh foolish Galatians! who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the Truth? This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit (in his miraculous Gifts and Operations) by (Obedience to) the Works of the Law, or by the Hearing of Faith? Gal. 3. 1, 2. If by the latter, as ye know ye did, this is a Demonstration that your Justification and Acceptance with God, is the Fruit of Faith in Christ, not of Obedience to the Law of Moses; this the Apostle re-assumes, saying, He that ministreth the Spirit to you, and worketh Miracles among you, doth he it by (Virtue of your Obedience to) the Works of the Law, or by the Hearing of Faith? We see then, this was the chief Argument which carried the Cause in the Council at Jerusalem, and which is urged by St. Paul to confirm the Galatians in the Truth, and Silence those who laboured to prevail upon them to admit of Circumcision, and the Observance of the Law of Moses: This Confirmation therefore of the Truth of Christian Faith, was such, as none concern'd to do it then, were able to gainsay, much less can any now find reason to doubt of it.

In the Epistle to the Church of Corinth, he is even forc'd to prove the Truth of his Apostleship, against those false Apostles, and deceitful Workers, who had set up against him, and for the satisfaction of those Corinthians who sought a Proof of Jesus Christ speaking in him, 2 Cor. 13. 3. He therefore justifies and confirms it by declaring, that the signs of an Apostle had been wrought among them by him, in all patience, in signs and wonders, and in mighty deeds, 2 Cor. 12. 12. that he was not a whit behind the very chief of the Apostles in these Gifts, chap. 11. 5, 6. that both he, and his Fellow-labourers among them, approved themselves as the Ministers of Christ by the Holy Ghost, by the Word of Truth, and by the Power of God, chap. 6. 6, 7. that they to whom he writ were manifestly declared to be his Letters commendatory, as being the Epistle of Christ ministred by him, written not with Ink, but by the Spirit of the living God, chap. 3. and that they came behind the other Churches in no gift, chap. 12. 13. To the Galatians infected with the like Distemper, he declares that he who wrought effectually in Peter to the Apostleship of the Circumcision, was as efficacious in him towards the Gentiles; and that this was so manifest even to the chief of the Apostles, that they were by the Grace vouchsafed to him convinc'd that the Gospel of the Uncircumcision was by Christ committed to his charge.

Some there seem to have been among the Members of the Church of Corinth, who had not the knowledge of the Truth, and who even question'd whether Christ were among them or not: To them he testifieth, that the Church of Corinth came behind the other Churches in no Gift, and that by this the Testimony of Christ was confirmed among them, 1 Cor. 1. 5, 6, 7. See the Note there; that the Word he preached was not delivered in the enticing words of humane Wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit, and of Power, that their Faith might not seem to consist in the Wisdom of Man, but in the Power of the Holy Ghost, chap. 2. 4, 5. that God had established them in Christ by giving the earnest of his Spirit in their Hearts, 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. Now for the truth of what he thus delivers, he makes a Solemn and Religious Appeal to their own Hearts and Consciences, saying, We are made manifest to God, and we trust also we are made manifest in our own Consciences, 2 Cor. 5. 11. for we are not as many who corrupt the Word, but as of Sincerity, as of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ, chap. 2. 17. We do by manifestation of the truth commend our selves to every Man's Conscience in the sight of God, chap. 4. 2. Yea he appeals to all the Prophets and Spiritual Men among them, not only for the Truth, but also for the Divine Authority of his Epistles, saying, If any Man be a Prophet, or Spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things I write unto you are the Commandments of God, 1 Cor. 7. 3, 7. Now evident it is, that Arguments of this nature neither could be urged by this Apostle without confusion to his Cause, and the impairing of his Credit; nor, being offer'd, could prevail upon the Churches of Achaia, and other Churches, to own him as a true Apostle, and his Epistles as the Commandments of the Lord, had not the Matter of Fact, on which they did entirely depend, been incontestible. For, had these things been false, or questionable, they whom he stileth false Apostles and deceitful Workers must have been able to reply, That he himself, in his Appeal to the miraculous Operation of the Holy Ghost for Confirmation of his Doctrine and Apostleship, must have been guilty of that very Crime he laid to their charge; and all the Churches to which he had directed these Epistles must rather be confirm'd in the Suspicions they had entertain'd against him, than wrought off from them by these vain Pretences, and false Surmises of those Distributions of the Holy Spirit of which they had found no Experience, and had received no convincing Evidence.

The believing Jews lay under two dangerous Distempers: The first was that which St. James takes notice of in his Epistle, viz. That Faith alone would be sufficient to save them without Works; and upon this the Hereticks mention'd by (a) Irenæus, and others, grounded their licentious Doctrines, that they might live as they listed, they being not to be saved by Good Works, but by Faith only. The second was a proneness to Apostacy, or falling back from the Faith to Judaism, to avoid Persecution: And this the Hereticks also so far improved, as to declare it lawful, in times of Persecution, (b) to commit Idolatry, and to deny Christ with the Mouth. Now in opposition to the first Assertion, St. Paul, in his Second Chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, shews the necessity of taking more abundant heed unto the Precepts of Christianity, as being all confirm'd by Signs and Miracles, and Gifts of the Holy Ghost; and therefore puts the Question to them thus, If the word spoken by Angels was firm, and every Transgression and Disobedience received a just Recompence of Reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great Salvation, which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirm'd to us by them that heard it: God also bearing them witness both with signs and wonders, and divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will. In opposition to their proneness to Apostacy, he declares it a most dreadful thing to fall from the Profession of the Christian Faith, after they had received such strong Convictions of it by those Gifts of the Holy Ghost they had received with it: For, saith he, it is impossible for them who were once enlightned, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and have been made partakers of the Holy Ghost, and yet fall away, to be renewed to Repentance, seeing they crucifie again the Son of God, and put him to an open shame, chap. 6. 4, 5, 6. See the Note there. Again, to such there remains no more sacrifice for sin, but a fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, seeing they trample under foot the Son of God, and count the blood of the covenant, by which they were sanctified, an unholy thing, and reproach the spirit of grace, chap. 10. 26, 29. See the Note there. Now visible it is, that the Foundation of both these Arguments depends upon the Certainty of this matter, that God confirmed the Truth of the Doctrine delivered by Christ and his Apostles, by divers Miracles and Gifts of the Holy Ghost, and that Christians then were made Partakers of those Gifts.

Lastly, Against the Seductions of the Antichrists, and the Deceivers, which were then crept into the Church, St. John fortifies the Believers with these words; These things have I written concerning them that deceive you. But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any one teach you, but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie; and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him, 1 John 2. 26, 27. And again, Beloved, believe not every Spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God, for many false Prophets are gone out into the World. By this ye shall know the spirit of God; every spirit that confesseth Jesus Christ coming in the Flesh, is of God; and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God, chap. 4. 1, 2, 3. See the strength of the Argument in the Note there. And it is the Spirit that witnesses that Jesus is the Son of God, because the spirit is truth, chap. 5. 6. He that believeth in the Son of God hath the witness in himself, ver. 10. Now when Men thus lay claim in their Epistles to their Converts, to the Power of God co-operating with them in the promotion of the Faith, declaring that he testified to the Truth of what they preach'd by divers Miracles and Gifts of the Holy Ghost; when they confidently speak of an Unction of the Spirit of Truth abiding in them, of which they to whom they write were made Partakers, and by this very Argument endeavour to convince them what a dreadful thing it would be for them to despise the Admonitions they had given, or to neglect the great Salvation they had tendred to them; there can remain no cause of doubting of the Truth of these Assertions, especially when they to whom they write not only do continue stedfast in the Faith, but also do admit those Writings which assert these things, as Divine Records, and the Word of God.

And this Argument will be much strengthned from this Consideration, that the Primitive Professors, in all their Conflicts with Jews, Gentiles, Magicians, False Prophets, Hereticks, and false Pretenders to be the Successors of the Apostles, used still this Argument from the miraculous Operations the Christians then performed, and the Gifts of the Holy Ghost they still receiv'd and exercised, as an effectual Confirmation of the Christian Faith, and a sufficient Confutation of the Pretences of their Adversaries, v. g.

1*st*, From this they prove to the Jews, That God had deserted them, and was now graciously present with the Christian Assemblies; that the Shechinah and (c) Prophetick Gifts which were long since departed from them, were still extant among Christians, and exercised both by Men and Women.

2*dly*, Hence they triumph over the (d) Heathen Deities, that by the Name of Jesus such Cures were wrought on the Dispaired, as none of their supposed Deities could perform; and that they by this Name expell'd those Devils which their Conjurers could not expel, and forc'd them to confess they were evil Spirits.

3*dly*, They triumph over the (e) Simonians and Gnosticks, the Magicians and Hereticks of their times, by the same Argument, that they could neither cure all Diseases, nor expel all kinds of Devils, as the Christians did.

4*thly*, By this they, after the Example of St. Paul, 1 Cor. 12. 3. and of St. John, 1 John 4. 1, 2, 3. taught Christians to distinguish (f) betwixt true and false Prophets; and by this they confuted the Montanists, because they left no Succession of Prophets, which yet continued in the true Church of Christ. Some Hereticks finding themselves unable even to pretend to such a Gift of Prophecy as the Gospel of St. John had promised, and the Epistles of St. Paul mentioned, rejected both that Gospel, and those Epistles. Now these, saith (g) Irenæus, are unhappy Men, Qui Gratiam Prophetiæ repellunt ab Ecclesia, Who go about to exclude the Grace of Prophecy from the Church, and thereby make themselves false Prophets, i.e. Assertors of things in God's Name which they have not received from him.

Lastly, As for the true Successors of the Apostles, (h) Irenæus informs us, that, Cum successione Apostolatus charisma veritatis certum secundum beneplacitum patris acceperunt, with their Succession they receiv'd the Gift of Truth; and hence infers, that (i) Ubi igitur charismata Domini posita sunt, ibi discere oportet veritatem, where therefore these Gifts of the Lord are placed, there the Truth is to be learned.

Arg. 3. § V. The Prayers and the Thanksgivings made for these Divine Assistances, the Charges the Apostles give concerning them, the Exhortations and Directions which they send to Christian Governours, and Churches, touching these Gifts and Operations of the Holy Ghost, are a convincing Demonstration that they were frequent, and notoriously exercised in the Church of God. For instance; I thank my God, saith the Apostle to the Church of Corinth, for the Grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ, that in every thing ye are enriched by him in all utterance and all knowledge, (or in Tongues and Prophecy) so that ye come behind the other Churches in no Gift, 1 Cor. 1. 5, 6, 7. See the Note there. He begins his Epistle to the Church of Ephesus thus; Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly things in Christ, Eph. 1. 3. See the Note there. Praying that the same God would give to them the Spirit of Wisdom, and revelation in the knowledge of him, ver. 17. He prays for the Romans, that they may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghost, chap. 15. 13. And for his Colossians, that they may be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding, chap. 1. 9.

Having convened the Aſiatick Biſhops, he requires them to take heed to the Flock over which the Holy Ghoſt had made them Overſeers, Acts 20. 28. To the Church of Rome he ſpeaks thus: Having therefore χαρίσματα διάφορα, different Gifts, whether Prophecy, let us do it according to the proportion of faith; or miniſtering, let us wait on our miniſtering; or he that teacheth, on teaching, Rom. 12. 6, 7, 8. See the Note there. He exhorts the Epheſians and Coloſſians to be filled with the Spirit, ſpeaking to themſelves in Pſalms, and Hymns, and ſpiritual Songs, Eph. 5. 18, 19. Coloſſ. 3. 16. Two of his Admonitions to his Theſſalonians are conceived in theſe words, Quench not the holy Spirit, deſpiſe not Prophecy, 1 Theſſ. 5. 19, 20. To his Son Timothy he ſpeaks thus: Neglect not the Gift that is in thee, which was given thee by Prophecy, 1 Tim. 4. 14. And in his Second Epiſtle, Stir up the Gift that is in thee by the putting on of my hands, chap. 1. 6. For, ſaith he, God hath not given us the ſpirit of Fear, but of Power, Love, and Wiſdom, ver. 7. He exhorts him alſo, to keep the good thing committed to him by the Holy Ghoſt that dwelleth in him, ver. 14. Now in theſe Epiſtles he ſpeaks of himſelf as a Priſoner, and a Sufferer for the Cauſe of Chriſt, ſaying, Be not thou aſhamed of the teſtimony of the Lord, nor of me his Priſoner; he tells him he was ready to be offered, and the time of his departure was at hand; informs him that Demas had forſaken him, and deſires him when he came to him, to bring Mark with him. 2 Tim. 1. 8. 2. 8, 10. 4. 6, 10, 11, 12. He ſpeaks of Hymenæus and Alexander, whom he had delivered up to Satan, and ſaith, Theſe things I write unto thee, hoping to come to thee ſhortly, 1 Tim. 1. 20. 3. 14. All which are evident Proofs that theſe Epiſtles muſt be ſent to Timothy, whilſt St. Paul was living, and was a Priſoner at Rome. St. Peter advertiſeth the converted Jews, that the Goſpel was preached to them by the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from Heaven; and he gives theſe Inſtructions to them for the uſe of their extraordinary Gifts: As every man hath received the gift, ſo let him miniſter, as good ſtewards of the manifold Grace of God; if any man ſpeak, let him ſpeak as the Oracles of God; if any man miniſter, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth, that God in all things may be glorified through Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11. Now the Meſſenger by which he ſent this Epiſtle, and the Salutations in the Cloſe of it, ſhew that it was written whilſt St. Mark and Sylvanus were living.

But the great Scene of theſe Directions and Admonitions lies in the firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians; where he exhorts them to covet earneſtly ſpiritual Gifts, but chiefly that of Prophecy, 1 Cor. 14. 1. to covet to prophecy, and forbid not to ſpeak with tongues, ver. 39. Moreover, he directs them in the due exerciſe of theſe ſpiritual Gifts, after this manner: Foraſmuch as ye are zealous of ſpiritual Gifts, ſeek that ye may excel to the edifying of the Church, ver. 12. Wherefore let him that ſpeaketh in an unknown Tongue, pray that he may interpret, ver. 13. And again, If any man ſpeak in an unknown Tongue, let it be by two, or at the moſt by three, and let one interpret; but if there be no Interpreter, let him keep ſilence in the Church, ver. 27, 28. Let the Prophets ſpeak two or three, and let the others judge, ver. 29. If any thing be reveal'd to another that ſitteth by, let the firſt hold his peace, for ye may all propheſie one by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted, ver. 30, 31. In the ſame Chapter he chides them for uſing theſe ſpiritual Gifts without profit to the Hearer, and ſo as to breed confuſion in the Church. How is it, ſaith he, Brethren, that when you come togeteer, every one of you hath a Pſalm, hath a Doctrine, hath a Tongue, hath a Revelation, hath an Interpretation? let all things be done to edifying, ver. 26. declaring that by uſing Tongues not underſtood in the Aſſembly, they would give to the Infidel and Unbeliever occaſion to ſay they were mad, ver. 23. But if all propheſie, ſaith he, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all, and thus are the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt, and ſo falling down on his face, he will worſhip God, and report that God is in you of a truth, ver. 24, 25. So notorious are theſe Gifts ſuppoſed to be, not only to the Saint, but to the Infidel, and ſo powerful for his Converſion. Now had theſe great Apoſtles given thanks for Gifts conferr'd upon theſe Churches which they never had enjoy'd; had they exhorted them to deſire, and earneſtly to covet, to ſtir up, and excel in Gifts they never had, and which were not imparted to any Members of the Church; had they given theſe grave Directions, and ſolemn Charges touching thoſe Gifts of Prophecy and Revelation, of Tongues and the Interpretation of them, which never had been exerciſed in that of Corinth, or any other Chriſtian Church; had they ſeverely chid them for abuſing thoſe Gifts they never had, and ſhewed themſelves ſo much concerned to correct an Abuſe of which they were incapable, as having not the uſe of what they are ſuppoſed to abuſe; had they condemned the Murmurings of them who had them in a leſs, the Boaſtings of them who had them in a higher meaſure, by ſuch Enquiries as theſe, What haſt thou which thou haſt not received? And if thou haſt receiv'd (them,) wherefore doſt thou boaſt, as if thou hadſt not received (them?) 1 Cor. 4. 7. See the Note there; and ſhewing the neceſſity that there ſhould be ſuch a diverſity of Gifts, and Operations in the Body, 1 Cor. 12. 14.

—27. and done, and ſaid, all this without a juſt foundation; this muſt have render'd thoſe Epiſtles in which theſe Paſſages are contain'd, the matter of their deriſion and diſdain, rather than worthy to be owned as the Oracles of God: And thoſe Apoſtles which indited them muſt rather have been eſteemed by them Brain-ſick Enthuſiaſts, than Men inſpired by the Spirit of God.

Since then theſe Writings generally were received as Divine Records by all Chriſtians, and by thoſe very Churches to which they were indited, it muſt be certain, that in all theſe Aſſertions they contained matter of unqueſtionable Truth, and only ſpake of thoſe ſpiritual Gifts of which theſe Churches had a full experience; there being, ſaith Clemens Romanus, in his Epiſtle writ ſoon after to them, a full Effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt upon them all.

Arg. 4. § VI. This will ſtill be more evident, if we conſider what Chriſtianity, the Author, and the Propagators of it, required of all that would embrace the Chriſtian Faith, and what were the Encouragements they tendered as the chief Inducements ſo to hope, believe, and act, or ſuffer, as Chriſtianity required. And, 1ſt, They call upon all Chriſtians to take up the Croſs of Chriſt daily, and for his ſake to forſake Father and Mother, Wife and Children, Goods and Relations, and even Life it ſelf, declaring that without this they cannot be Chriſt's Diſciples, Luke 14.26,27. informing them that all that will live godly muſt ſuffer perſecution, 2 Tim. 3. 12. that thro' many tribulations they muſt enter into the kingdom of God, Acts 4. 22. that they were called to ſuffer, and were appointed to this very thing, 1 Theſ. 3. 3, 4. 1 Pet. 2. 21. Accordingly we find that the Corinthians were partakers with them of their ſufferings, 2 Cor. 1. 7. that the Galatians had ſuffered many things, Gal. 3. 4. that to the Philippians it was given, not only to believe in Chriſt, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake, Philip. 1. 29. that St. Paul commends the Coloſſians for their ſtedfaſtneſs in the Faith under all their perſecutions, chap. 1. 11. and prays they may be ſtrengthned with all might, according to his glorious Goſpel to all patience, and long ſuffering, with joyfulneſs, chap. 2. 5. He ſaith the Theſſalonians ſuffered the ſame from their Country-men, as did the believing Jews from theirs, 1 Theſſ. 2. 14. that he ſent Timothy to ſtabliſh and to comfort them concerning their Faith, and to exhort them not to be moved at thoſe afflictions to which they were appointed, chap. 3. 34. adding, that he gloried in them in the Churches of God for their patience and faith in all their perſecutions, 2 Theſſ. 1. 4. In his Epiſtle to the Hebrews he ſaith, They ſuffered a great fight of afflictions, partly while they were made a gazing-ſtock both by reproaches and afflictions, and partly whilſt they became companions of them who were ſo uſed, and that they took joyfully the ſpoiling of their Goods; and he exhorts them not to caſt away their confidence, becauſe they had need of patience, Hebr. 10. 32,36. and after the Example of that Cloud of Witneſſes which he had ſet before them, to run their Chriſtian Race with patience, chap. 12. 1. St. Peter tells the ſame believing Jews they were in heavineſs for a ſeaſon through manifold temptations, 1 Pet. 1. 6. deſiring them not to think it ſtrange concerning the fiery trial which was come to try them, chap. 4. 12. Theſe Tribulations they exhort them to endure with Faith and Courage, Patience and Perſeverance, Joy and Triumph; and yet the only thing they offer them to raiſe this Joy and Comfort, engage them to this Perſeverance, and to ſupport them under theſe fiery Trials, is the Promiſe or the actual Vouchſafement of the Holy Ghoſt helping their Infirmities, that as they were Partakers of the Sufferings of the Apoſtles, ſo ſhould they be alſo of their Conſolations, 2 Cor. 1. 7. that if they ſuffered for the Name of Chriſt, happy were they, for the Spirit of Glory and of God ſhould reſt upon them, 1 Pet. 4. 14. This, ſay they, ye have found, for you became Followers of the Lord, and of us, having received the Word with much affliction, and with joy of the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Theſſ. 1. 6. and may well ſuffer hardſhip as good Soldiers of Jeſus Chriſt, for God hath not given us the Spirit of Fear, but ὁ δυνάμεως, of Courage to endure, of that Love which caſts out Fear, and of that Prudence which will inſtruct us how to bear, or to eſcape them, 2 Tim. 1. 7. Now if this Promiſe was ſenſibly made good to them under theſe Afflictions, they by it did receive an Earneſt of the Truth of Chriſtian Faith, and an Aſſurance of God's concern to comfort and reward their Chriſtian Patience in his Cauſe. But if under theſe fiery Trials they found no ſenſible Experience of the Holy Ghoſt thus helping their Infirmities, no inward Joys, Supports, and Conſolations of the promiſed Comforter, what reaſon had they to continue to take joyfully the ſpoiling their Goods, the loſs of Credit, Life, and all their worldly Comforts, for the Profeſſion of that Faith which had ſo palpably deceived them, in the chief Motive which it offer'd to engage them to ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt, or for the Truth and Divine Authority of thoſe Epiſtles, which contained theſe apparent Falſhoods?

This Argument may be enforced from the conſideration of the multitude of Chriſtian Martyrs in the three firſt Ages of the Church, all which could have no other Motive thus to ſuffer, but this promiſed Aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt at preſent, and the Aſſurance which this Earneſt of the Spirit gave them of an Eternal State of Happineſs hereafter; and ſo if they had no experience of this Aſſiſtance under Sufferings, and no Aſſurance of ſuch an earneſt of the Spirit in their hearts, muſt ſuffer all theſe dreadful things without juſt Ground, or Motive, which even an Heathen (k) Cicero doth repreſent as a thing impoſſible to be performed, the Hardneſs of ſome Jewiſh Zealots, and ſome deluded Chriſtian Sects, in ſuffering, being no inſtance to the contrary; For though they miſtake in Application of this future Happineſs, in proſpect of which they thus endure, to themſelves, the Principle upon which they ſuffer is indiſputably true, and owned even by Epicurus himſelf, Ut voluptates omittantur majorum voluptatum adipiſcendarum causâ, aut dolores ſuſcipiantur majorum dolorum effugiendorum gratia, that we ſhould part with our temporal enjoyments for a ſeaſon here, for a better and more enduring ſubſtance, and ſuffer theſe light afflictions which are for a moment, that we may eſcape more laſting and intolerable torments, this being only, ſaith (l) Torquatus, the choice which the Wiſe Man of Epicurus ought to make. In a word, the manner of their Sufferings doth give us full Aſſurance that the Aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt, which Chriſt and his Apoſtles promiſed to the true Believers, was accordingly vouchſafed to the Chriſtian Martyrs, and Confeſſors, they being enabled to bear the greateſt Sufferings, not only with undaunted Courage, putting off the Body, ſaith (m) Origen, more cheerfully than a Philoſopher would put off his Coat, deſpiſing Death, ſaith (n) Lucian, and willingly ſubmitting to it; but with great Joy and Exultation, being ſtrengthned to all long ſuffering with joyfulneſs, Coloſ. 2. 5. (o) rejoicing in tribulations, counting it all joy when they fell into divers temptations, and happy when they did endure them, James 1, 3, 12. and rejoicing when they were in Heavineſs through manifold Afflictions; 1 Peter 1. 6. yea, ſometimes with (p) miraculous Experience of Conſolations under all their Sufferings, cauſing this Joy and Gladneſs in them; yea, ſometimes with a perfect freedom from all ſenſe of Pain under the moſt afflicting Torments; as in the caſe of the (q) Evangeliſt St. John, and of (r) Blandina, theſe Sufferings not being able to extort from them one Complaint or (s) Groan. Now this being done as well by (t) Children and the weakeſt Sex, by the Ideot as well as by the wiſeſt Sages, gives a full Demonſtration of the Truth of that Aſſertion of (u) Euſebius, That the Love of Chriſt, the Hopes of Immortality, and the Spirit of the Father, inſpired them with this Courage; for what elſe could create ſuch Joys and Exultations, or ſuggeſt ſuch Comforts, and Supports under the ſharpeſt Trials? What could procure to them a freedom from the ſenſe of Pain under the greateſt Torments, and moſt intolerable Burthens to Fleſh and Blood?

2*dly*, Again, they engage all Chriſtians in the moſt difficult Acts of Self-denial, and Mortification of all carnal Luſts, in the cutting off their right hands, and the plucking out their eyes, in Patience under, and the Forgiveneſs of the greateſt Injuries, in Love and

Charity

Charity to the worſt of Enemies, in Temperance as to the Pleaſures and Honours of this preſent Life, in a deadneſs to the World, and the Enjoyments of it, in Piety and Purity, and Heavenly mindedneſs, becauſe they cannot otherwiſe be Chriſt's Diſciples, cannot be worthy of him, Matth. 10. 37, 38. they cannot enter into his Kingdom, Matth. 19. 23, 24. but ſhall hereafter be denied and rejected by him, Matth. 10. 32, 33. Now what could ſuch Threats ſignifie to them who were not by his Miracles, and by experience of the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from Heaven, convinced that he was indeed the Chriſt, the Saviour of the World? The Encouragement they give them to be thus ſtedfaſt, immoveable, always abounding in the Fear of the Lord, was only the Promiſe of a future and unſeen Reward, chiefly to be enjoy'd after the Reſurrection of the Body, which to the Sadducees among the Jews, and the whole Race of Heathen Sages, ſeem'd a thing incredible. 'Tis therefore not to be imagined, that ſo many Myriads of Chriſtian Converts ſhould renounce all the Pleaſures of the Fleſh, all the Gratifications of this preſent World, all their old Rites, Religions, Cuſtoms, evil Habits, ſubmit to all this Self denial and Mortification, only to be Partakers of theſe unſeen Bleſſings after the Reſurrection, without a full Aſſurance that they hereafter ſhould enjoy them. Now the only Aſſurance which the Apoſtles and Holy Scriptures did afford them of this Bleſſed Reſurrection, and Eternal Happineſs, was the Miracles by which their Doctrine was confirmed, the Powers, Gifts, and Diſtributions of the Holy Ghoſt vouchſafed to them. After the Diſſolution of this Body we expect, ſay they, an Houſe not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens: we groan, deſiring to be clothed with this houſe from Heaven, that Mortality may be ſwallowed up of Life. Now he that hath wrought this Hope within us, is that God who hath given us the earneſt of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 5. 1—5. And again, The Promiſes of God are all yea and Amen, or ſure and certain in Jeſus Chriſt, and He who hath eſtabliſhed us with you, in Expectation of them, is that God who hath anointed us, and ſealed us, and given the earneſt of his ſpirit in our hearts, 2 Cor. 1. 20, 21. enabling us by the ſpirit to wait for the Adoption, even the Redemption of the Body, Rom. 8. 23. adding, that by the Spirit of Adoption they were enabled to cry Abba, Father, ver. 15, 16. that he bore witneſs with their ſpirits that they were the Sons of God, the Love of God being ſhed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghoſt, which God had given them, Gal. 4. 6. Hence they continually declare, that after they believed, they were ſealed with the Spirit of Promiſe, which was the earneſt of their Inheritance till the Redemption of the purchaſed Poſſeſſion, Eph. 1. 13, 14. that by him they were ſealed up to the day of Redemption, Chap. 4. 30. that he was the earneſt of their future Inheritance, that they were not aſhamed of their Hope, they thro' the Spirit waiting for the hope of Righteouſneſs, Gal. 5. 5. and abounding in hope through the power of the Holy Ghoſt, Rom. 15. 13. Hence is he ſtiled by St. John, the witneſs of God within them, 1 John 5. 10. and by this, ſaith he, do we Chriſtians know, that God abideth in us, and we in him, even by the Spirit that he hath given us, Chap. 4. 13. By all which Sayings it appears, that if theſe things were true, they to whom this Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit was vouchſafed, muſt be very ſenſible of his dwelling, and his acting in them, that they could plainly know they had this Unction from the holy one, and could be hence aſſured of the Divine Affection to them, and of their future Hopes and Expectations, ſince otherwiſe he could be no ſuch Seal, Pledge, and Earneſt to them, and no ſuch Witneſs of God within them, and no ſuch Confirmation of their Faith, or Token of the Love of God: And if theſe things were falſe, and they had no ſuch ſenſible Experience of the good Spirit acting and abiding in them, if they found no ſuch Confirmation of their Hopes from any inward Teſtimony or outward Operations of the Holy Ghoſt, they muſt not only have no certain Ground or Motive to aſſure them of that future Recompence, which was the only reaſon which could induce them to embrace, and to continue ſtedfaſt in the Chriſtian Faith, but muſt have a convincing Demonſtration that the whole Doctrine of Chriſtianity depended on a falſe Suggeſtion of ſuch a ſenſible and certain Teſtimony of theſe future Hopes, of which they neither had, nor could have any Knowledge or Experience, and that the Apoſtles and firſt Aſſertors of this Faith had laid the whole Foundation of their Hopes upon a falſe and a precarious Appeal to their own Conſciences concerning that of which they had no Knowledge or Experience. And being once aſſured of this, that the great Fundamentals of the Chriſtian Faith were bottom'd on a confident Appeal to their Perception of thoſe things, of which they who embrac'd this Faith had not yet found the leaſt Experience, it is incredible to believe they ſhould continue ſtedfaſt in, and endure ſuch continual Perſecutions for that Faith, and ſhould receive thoſe very Records as the Word of God, which made theſe falſe Appeals unto their Conſcience and Experience.

§ VII. I think I have ſufficiently made it appear, that theſe Epiſtles, which contain theſe things, muſt be indited whilſt the Apoſtles lived, and ſo they muſt be ſent to thoſe Churches and Persons to whom they are directed, at a time when all the Members of those Churches must be able to discern the Truth or Falshood of what is thus asserted in them: Yet because the pretence that it might be otherwise containeth the whole Strength of Scepticism, let it be farther noted;

1*st*, That these Epistles from which these things are cited, one alone excepted, bear the Names of the Apostles, by whom they are supposed to be written: Now had they not been really indited by them, this could not have been done by any, but he must put a cheat upon all Christians, and substitute his own Inventions for the Word of God.

2*dly*, That all of them, excepting one, which is yet proved to be genuine in the Preface to the Epistle to the Hebrews, have been delivered down unto us by the perpetual and uncontroll'd Tradition of the whole Church of Christ, as the undoubted Works of these Apostles, and as the Word of God. Moreover, it is apparent from the Writings of St. Clement R. Ignatius, Polycarp, Justin M. Ireneus, that even from the Apostles Days they have been cited, read, and generally received as such. Now this is a Tradition more general, and of a firmer Credit than any other Book, Writing, Charter, Law, or Statute whatsoever, can pretend to. Consider,

3*dly*, That the Tradition which concerns these Books was a Tradition concerning things of the highest moment, and which it was the Interest of all Christians to be well assured of, these Writings being at present the chief ground of their Support under their sharpest Trials, and of their future Hopes; they therefore must be Writings which they were concerned to get and keep, to hear and read, they were Books written to whole Churches and Nations, yea to all that called on the Name of Christ Jesus in every place; who could not easily have receiv'd, and yielded such a firm Assent unto them, as we know they did, had the Apostles, by whom they were converted, given no Intimations of them. They were also Books of the greatest Opposition to the vain Tradition of the Jews, and to the Superstition of the Heathens, to the false Apostles and deceitful Workers, and which denounc'd upon them the greatest Plagues, and Judgments, which must oblige them narrowly to search into the Flaws that could be spied in them, and as much as possible, to labour to discover the Falshood or Imposture of them; and yet these Works were not denied by them to be the Books of those Apostles whose Names they bear, though the Apostles themselves, especially St. Paul, was persecuted by them with a restless Malice, as an Apostate from the Law; and upon this account, all his Epistles were rejected by those Jewish Christians, who maintained the necessity of the Observance of the Law of Moses; most of them also are writ about that very Controversie, and against those very Men who pleaded the necessity of Circumcision, and of observing the whole Law of Moses; which yet could be no Controversie after the Ruine of Jerusalem, and the Destruction of the Temple, seeing that render'd the Observation of the Precepts of that Law, for the most part impossible. They were Books which could not be spread abroad in the Apostles Days, and in their Names, unless the Apostles had indited, and sent them to these Churches, or be esteemed as the great Charters of the Christians Faith, if the Apostles were so forgetful of them as not to let those Persons for whose sake they were written, know it. They were Books which pretended to a Commission from the Holy Jesus to leave a Rule of Life and Doctrine to Mankind, which was intrusted only in the Hands of the Apostles, all others still pretending to deliver only what they received from them. They also were indited partly to confirm the Christian Faith, and to engage Men to believe it; partly to put an end to the Contentions, and rectifie the Errours which had crept into the Church in the Apostles Days, and needed speedy Reformation; partly to justifie themselves against false Brethren, and to assert the Truth of their Apostleship; and partly to preserve their Proselytes from such as did pervert the Faith, and to instruct them how to bear up in fiery Trials, and to support the Souls of Christians under the Miseries they suffer'd from a persecuting World: And therefore they were written on such Grounds as did require a quick dispatch upon these Errands to the Churches for which they were intended; and so the Apostles must be supposed to give early notice of them, and to divulge them to the Christian World whilst they to whom they were committed, were able to disprove them if they had been false.

Let us consider all the Writings which pass for true Authentick Records in the World, and we shall find there is not any reason to conceive them such, which is not with advantage applicable to these Books.

The Arguments which can be offered to prove a Book or Writing genuine, are only of two kinds, external from the Testimony of Persons who lived near to the times of the Author; and internal from the things contained in, and asserted by those Writings; and the firm Faith they obtained among them to whom they were directed and committed.

The

The external Teſtimonies have their force partly from the number and the eminence of the Teſtators, their nearneſs to the times when ſuch a Book is ſaid to be written, or ſuch a Writing publiſhed by the Original Copies, preſerved by thoſe to whom they were at firſt committed, and from the general Reception and Citation of them as ſuch Writings and Records.

Now as for theſe external Evidences, no Writings can compare with thoſe Epiſtles I have mentioned, they having all the Circumſtances by which any Writing can be proved genuine, and many others of great weight which are peculiar to them, and which no other Writing can pretend to. I ſay, they have all the Circumſtances to prove them genuine which any other Writing can pretend to. For,

1*ſt*, Their Originals were preſerved in their reſpective Churches till Tertullian's time; who ſpeaks thus to the Hereticks of his Age, or of the third Century: (a) Go to the Apoſtolical Churches, where their Authentick Epiſtles are ſtill recited, repreſenting the Voice and Face of each of them.

2*dly*, They were not doubted of, but as (b) St. Clement and Origen ſay, all that I have cited, excepting only the Epiſtle to the Hebrews mention'd by S. Peter, were generally receiv'd by all Orthodox Chriſtians throughout the World.

3*dly*, The Writers by whom they were cited, lived either in thoſe times when they were written, as St. Clemens Rom. or in the very next Age, as Ignatius, Polycarp, Juſtin Mart. Irenæus, and were therefore ſtiled Apoſtolical Men.

4*thly*, They were very eminent both for their Learning, and for their Sufferings for the Faith contained in them, or for their Oppoſition to it, as Celſus was: Now ſure we have unqueſtionable Certainty of ſuch Books as have been handed down to us by the Tradition of all Ages of the Church, inſerted into all her Catalogues, cited by all her Writers as Books of a Divine Authority, and by her very Adverſaries, preſerved ſo long in their Originals, and of which never any doubt was made by any genuine Member of the Church of Chriſt. I add,

2*dly*, That there are many Circumſtances of great weight to confirm theſe Teſtimonies, which are peculiar to theſe Writings: As,

1*ſt*, A general Diſperſion of them through thoſe places which were converted to that Faith which the Apoſtles preach'd: For the Apoſtles, ſaith Irenæus, firſt preached the Goſpel, and after, by the Will of God, in Scripturis nobis tradiderunt, delivered it to us in the Scriptures, to be hereafter the Pillar and Foundation of our Faith, lib. 3. cap. 1. Euſebius ſaith, that the firſt Succeſſors of the Apoſtles, leaving their Countries, preach'd to them who had not yet heard of the Chriſtian Faith, and then delivered to them, as the foundation of their Faith, τὸ τῶν θείων εὐαγγελίων γράφω, the Writings of the Holy Evangeliſts. Hiſt. Eccl. l. 3. c. 37.

2*dly*, The Tranſlation of them into other Languages, that of the Syriack being ſo Ancient that it leaves out the ſecond Epiſtle of St. Peter and the ſecond and third Epiſtle of St. John, and the Revelations, as being for a time controverted in ſome of the Eaſtern Churches. That of the Latin, ſtiled in Jerom's time the old Tranſlation, and very probably made from the beginning of a ſettled Church among them; For the Latin Church could not be well without a Latin Verſion, it being the Cuſtom of all Churches to read theſe Scriptures on the Lord's Day; which ſure they would not do in a Language not underſtood by thoſe that heard it.

3*dly*, The conſtant reading of them in publick, and in private, in their Aſſemblies, and in their Cloſets and Families. On Sunday (c) ſaith Juſtin M. all the Chriſtians in the City or Country meet together, and then we have read unto us the Writings of the Prophets and τὰ ὑπομνημονεύματα τῶν Ἀποστόλων, the Monuments of the Apoſtles; and having read them, they did publickly (d) τὰς θείας ἐμοὶ γραφὰς, expound them to the People. That they were alſo read by the moſt eminent and pious Chriſtians every day, that (e) diſcat unuſquiſque ex Scripturis ſanctis officium ſuum, every one might learn his Duty from the holy Scriptures, we learn from the Queſtion in the (f) Conſtitutions of St. Clement, Whether a Man ought the Day after he had done the Duties of Wedlock, or been ſubject to any involuntary Defilement, βιβλίου ἅψασθαι, touch the Book; and the Declaration of (g) St. Clement, that the Matrimonial Duties ſhould not be done, ὁπηνίκα δεῖται καὶ ἀναγνώσεως ὁ καιρὸς, when was the time of Prayer, or reading of the Scriptures; and that (h) the Sacrifices of the true Gnoſtick were, εὐχαί τε καὶ ὕμνοι, καὶ αἱ πρὸ τῆς ὀδόντων ἐντεύξεις τῶν γραφῶν, Prayers and Praiſes, and the reading of the holy Scriptures before Meals. And ſeeing (i) Irenæus ſaith, That he who had a care of his Salvation might read the form of his Faith in the Epiſtle of Polycarp to the Philippians; ſince that (k) Epiſtle, and the (l) Epiſtle of St. Clement to the Church of Corinth, which were their genuine Works; yea, the Epiſtle (m) of St. Barnabas, and the Book of (n) Hermas, which two were reckon'd as Apocryphal, were read publickly in many Churches, doubtleſs they muſt be more concern'd to read the undoubted Writings of the Apoſtles, which they eſteem'd the Rule of Faith, which they ſtiled, (o) Libri deifici, Books which transform'd them into a Divine Nature, which they look'd upon as the Records of their eternal Intereſts, as Books by which they muſt be judged at the laſt Day, and according to which they ſhould be puniſh'd, or rewarded everlaſtingly.

4*thly*, The early peruſal of them both by Jews and Heathens, who writ againſt them, and did endeavour to deſtroy them, that ſo they might cauſe the Chriſtian Faith to periſh, but never did deny them to be indeed the Works of the Apoſtles whoſe Names they bore: By Jews; for (p) Trypho ſpeaks thus at leaſt of the Goſpels; The Precepts contained in your Goſpels are ſo great, that I ſuſpect no Man can keep them, ἐμοὶ γὰρ ἐμέλησεν ἐντυχεῖν αὐτοῖς, for I took care to read them. The (q) Ebionites, who alſo were Jews, rejected all the Epiſtles of St. Paul, as gathering from them, that he was an Apoſtate from the Law of Moſes. The Heathens; for (r) Celſus not only boaſts that he knew all things belonging to the Chriſtians, but often carps at the Writings of the Evangeliſts, and of St. Paul. And indeed the Chriſtians freely offer'd them to be peruſed by them: For that we may not ſeem to impoſe upon you, ſaith Juſtin Martyr to the Roman Emperor, we offer to you ſome of the Doctrines of Chriſt; and you, being (s) Emperours, may ἐξετάσαι, ſearch whether we truly have been taught, and teach theſe Doctrines. And again, The Prince of evil Spirits is by us called a Serpent, Satan, and the Devil, (t) ὡς καὶ ἐκ τῶν ἡμετέρων συγγραμμάτων ἐρευνήσαντες μαθεῖν δύνασθε, as you may learn by ſearching into our Writings. Thou who thinkeſt we are not concerned for the ſafety of Cæſar, ſaith (u) Tertullian, look into the Words of God, Quas neque ipſi ſupprimimus, & plerique caſus ad extraneos transferunt, which we do not ſuppreſs, and which many Accidents bring into the Hands of Heathens. From their Endeavours to deſtroy the Chriſtian Faith by burning theſe Books, came the Edicts of (x) Dioclesian, τὰς γραφὰς ἀφανεῖς πυρὶ γενέσθαι προστάττοντα, commanding that the Scriptures ſhould be committed to the Flames, and the (y) actual burning of them where they could be found, and the tormenting of the Chriſtians to deliver up the Scriptures.

5*thly*, The direful Torments which the Chriſtians choſe to ſuffer rather than they would deſert the Faith contained in theſe Books, or deliver them up to their Tormentors, and the Infamy of thoſe that did ſo, they being branded with the odious Name of Traditors. Now what Writings in the World have been ſo generally diſperſed, and ſo much peruſed by all ſorts of Perſons, Friends, Foes, Aſſertors of, and Enemies to the Faith of Chriſtians? What Laws, or Writings whatſoever have been ſo early tranſlated into other Languages? Who were ſo much concerned to peruſe them as were all Chriſtians to peruſe the Laws of Chriſt? Who ſuffered ſo much for them as the Chriſtians did? Since then this early reading of them in publick, and in private by the Chriſtian, this general diſperſion of them through all Chriſtian Churches, this quick tranſlation of them into other Languages, this conſtant ſuffering for them, are all corroborating Circumſtances of the unqueſtionable Evidence all Chriſtians had obtained that they were Genuine Works, and truly what they did pretend to be; 'Tis alſo clear theſe Writings are more worthy to be received as genuine, and Writings of unqueſtionable Truth, than any profane Writings in the World.

§ VIII. The internal Arguments which uſually are, or can be offered to prove other Writings genuine, are only taken from the things contained in them, that they were propet to the Times in which the Author was ſuppos'd to write, and from the freedom of them from any thing which is not well conſiſtent with thoſe Times, which are all mean, and trifling things, compar'd to thoſe internal Arguments which theſe Epiſtles do afford, that they are the Authentick Records of thoſe Apoſtles whoſe Names they bear, and that thoſe things which they aſſert touching the Gifts and powerful Operations of the Holy Ghoſt, both exerciſed by them, and conferr'd on other Churches, were unqueſtionably true. For,

1ſt, It is not once nor twice, it is not by the by, but it is frequently, profeſſedly, and upon all occaſions they refer to theſe miraculous Powers, and ſpiritual Gifts, as yielding a full Proof and Confirmation of the Teſtimony they gave of Chriſt, and that Chriſt was among them, and as a Demonſtration of the Truth of their Apoſtleſhip againſt all Oppoſers, and of the preference of that Faith which was attended with them, above the Law which ſome deſired to obſerve, ſpending whole Chapters in diſcourſing of theſe Spiritual Gifts, diſtinguiſhing them ſomewhat nicely into Gifts, Adminiſtrations, and Operations, ranking them under nine ſeveral Heads, and ſpecifying the very Names of thoſe who did by Office exerciſe them, and ſhewing the neceſſity there was of this variety of Gifts and Operations in the Body, appealing to the Senſes, the Conſciences, and the Experience of thoſe to whom they wrote, touching the Truth and Certainty of what they had aſſerted touching thoſe Spiritual Gifts, by ſuch Enquiries as theſe: What? know ye not that Chriſt is among you? 2 Cor. 13. 5. am I not an Apoſtle? Surely I am ſo to you, for the Seal of my Apoſtleſhip are ye in the Lord, 1 Cor. 9. 1, 2. 'Tis manifeſt you are the Epiſtle of Chriſt miniſtred by us, written not with ink, but with the ſpirit of the living God, 2 Cor. 3. 3. Surely the ſigns of an Apoſtle have been wrought among you in all patience, in ſigns, and wonders, and mighty deeds, 2 Cor. 12. 12. Have you received from the falſe Apoſtles another Spirit which ye have not received from us? chap. 11. 14. This only would I learn of you, he that miniſtred to you the Spirit, and wrought miracles among you, did he it by the works of the Law, or by the hearing of faith? Are ye ſo fooliſh? having begun in the ſpirit, are ye (deſirous to be) made perfect in the fleſh? Gal. 3. 3, 4, 5. our Goſpel came not to you in word only, but in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, and in much aſſurance, as ye know what manner of Perſons we were among you, 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. Which words are either plain Enquiries upbraiding their Doubtfulneſs, and Hefitation in ſo plain a Caſe, or elſe appeals unto their certain knowledge of theſe things; nor is it to be wondred that they ſhould make theſe confident Enquiries, and Appeals, ſeeing the external Miracles, and the internal Gifts and Diſtributions of the Holy Ghoſt mentioned in thoſe Epiſtles, were either ſuch of which even Infidels might from the nature of them be convinced, or ſuch as from ſome outward and ſenſible Appearances and Effects, or by their inward Operations, made themſelves known to them who heard and ſaw them. For inſtance, the working of Miracles, the caſting out of Devils by the Name of Jeſus, and the healing the Sick through Faith in his Name, the Gift of Prophecy, or foretelling things future, the diſcerning of Spirits, the Gift of Tongues, and the Interpretation of them, if truly done, were things ſelf evident, and could not well be exerciſed without a ſenſible Demonſtration to all that ſaw, perceived, heard, or felt them, that they were performed; and therefore God by aſſiſting the Apoſtles, and by enabling others to perform them, muſt give full Teſtimony to the Word of his Grace: And the Apoſtles by this conſtant Appeal to them as to things which their own Eyes had ſeen, and their Conſciences bore witneſs to, and they in Perſon had performed, muſt appeal to the Senſes, and Experience of thoſe to whom they writ in Matters ſubject daily to their Experience, and to the Senſes of the Members of thoſe reſpective Churches, touch-touching the Truth of their Apoſtleſhip, and of the Confirmation they pretended to have given of it. Now as it ſeemeth highly incredible that Perſons able to write the deepeſt Myſteries, and the exacteſt Precepts of Morality, ſhould be ſo fooliſh as to confirm them only by an Appeal to the Senſes, and Experience of thoſe very Men of whom they were aſſured that they had never ſeen or done, or found the leaſt Experience of any of the things they mentioned; ſo is it ſtill far more incredible, that an Appeal of ſuch apparent Falſhood, made to the Conſciences of Men who never ſaw theſe Miracles, or found theſe Comforts of the Holy Ghoſt, and never had theſe Gifts of Tongues, Interpretation, Healing, Prophecy, which the Epiſtles tells us were their daily Exerciſe, ſhould embrace theſe very Epiſtles as Divine, theſe Records as the Word of God. And yet we know both they, and other Churches, did thus actually eſteem them, and receive them as ſuch, and therefore muſt be well aſſured that what they thus aſſerted of the Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt were things confirmed to them by their own Senſes and Experience.

2*dly*, Add to this, that theſe Men, in theſe very Writings, confidently ſay, that this was their rejoycing, even the Teſtimony of their Conſcience, that in Simplicity, and Godly Sincerity, they had their Converſation in the World, and more abundantly towards them, 2 Cor. 1. 13. and that they writ no other things than what they did acknowledge, and they truſted would acknowledge to the end, Chap. 5. 11. We are, ſay they, made manifeſt to God, and we truſt alſo we are made manifeſt in your Conſciences, Chap. 5. 11. They repreſent it as a great Abſurdity, that they ſhould be found falſe Witneſſes of God, 1 Cor. 15. 15. They diſtinguiſh themſelves from others they call falſe Apoſtles, and deceitful Workers, by this very Character of their Sincerity. For we, ſay they, are not as many who corrupt the Word of God, but as of Sincerity, as of God, in the Sight of God ſpeak we in Chriſt, 2 Cor. 2. 17. we have renounced the hidden things of Diſhoneſty, not walking in Craftineſs, not handling the Word of God deceitfully, but by Manifeſtation of the Truth, commending our ſelves to every Man's Conſcience in the ſight of God, Chap. 4. 2. Yea, for this they appeal to the Searcher of all Hearts, and to the Conſciences of thoſe to whom they write, ſaying, Our Exhortation was not of Deceit or Guile, for neither at any time uſed we flattering words, as ye know; nor of Men ſought we Glory, neither of you, nor yet of others; ye are Witneſſes, and God alſo, how holily, and juſtly, and unblamcably, we behav'd our ſelves among you that believe, 1 Theſſ. 2. 3, 5, 6, 10. Now with what Face could theſe things be aſſerted by Men, who knew that they, in theſe Epiſtles, had told ſuch things as even the Senſes and Experience of thoſe to whom they writ muſt know to be the greateſt Falſhoods? Or how could they to whom they writ give Credit to ſuch impudent Untruths as theſe muſt be, if the Relations which they made of theſe miraculous Operations of the Holy Ghoſt had been fictitious things? This therefore is a farther Evidence of their Sincerity and Truth in theſe Relations.

3*dly*, Let us conſider how the Apoſtle treats thoſe Churches of Corinth and Galatia, in which he ſpeaks moſt copiouſly of theſe Operations of the Holy Ghoſt, and how they ſtood affected to the Apoſtle Paul. The Corinthians, in his 1ſt Chapter, are repreſented as Schiſmatical; in his 3d, as Carnal; in the 5th, as glorying in an Inceſtuous Perſon; in the 6th, as Contentious, to their own Shame, and to the Scandal of Chriſtianity; in the 8th, as Murtherers of them for whom Chriſt died; in the 10th, as Murmurers, Tempters of Chriſt, Fornicators, Idolaters, Partakers of the Table of Devils; in the 11th, as coming to the Lord's Supper not for the better, but the worſe, offending in it both againſt the Rules of Charity, and Temperance, and Faith, in not diſcerning the Lord's Body; in the 12th and 14th, as guilty of Emulations, Schiſms, and Contentions touching ſpiritual Perſons, and of Vain-glory, Scandal, and Confuſion in the Exerciſe of their ſpiritual Gifts; and in the 15th, as Deniers of that Reſurrection which was the great Foundation of all the future Hopes of Chriſtians. In his 2d Epiſtle he declares his Fears that he might find among them Debates, Envyings, Wrath, Strifes, Backbitings, Whiſperings, Swellings; and that he ſhould find among them many who had not yet repented of the Uncleanneſs, Fornication, and Laſciviouſneſs which they had committed, 2 Cor. 12. 20, 21. And for theſe things, if not reform'd, he threatens he would uſe Sharpneſs, and come to them with a Rod, 2 Cor. 10. 6. 13. 2. He charges the Galatians with Apoſtacy, admiring that they were ſo ſoon removed from him that called them to another Goſpel, Chap. 1. 6. and repreſents them as fooliſh and bewitch'd for falling from that Goſpel by which they had receiv'd theſe ſpiritual Gifts, to the beggarly Elements of the Law, Chap. 3. 1—5. Now how could the Corinthians be guilty of ſuch Emulations about ſpiritual Perſons, or ſuch Diſorders in the Exerciſe of their ſpiritual Gifts, provided there were among them no ſuch Perſons, and they had no ſuch Gifts? How could they fear the Laſhes of his Rod, on the account of Crimes of which they neither were nor could be guilty? Why should they not be rather for Cephas or Apollo, than for Paul, if Paul imposed upon them with false Stories, and sensible Untruths? Or why should not the Galatians even quit that Gospel in which he endeavour'd to confirm them only by an Appeal to that which they must know to be a Lye?

Moreover, the Affections of the Members of these Churches were not so firm to him, their Esteem of him was not so great as that he might securely lessen it by venturing on these Arts of Falshood, for he found some of his Corinthians puffed up against him, and preferring others much before him, 1 Cor. 4. 18. charging him with Lightness and Inconstancy, 2 Cor. 1. 17. and walking according to the Flesh, chap. 10. 2. looking upon him as a Man too much transported, and almost besides himself, 2 Cor. 5. 13. as base in Person, and in Speech contemptible, chap. 10. 10. He complains, that they were straightned in their Bowels of Affection towards him, and that the more he loved them, the less he was beloved by them, 2 Cor. 12. 15. that they question'd his Apostleship, and even sought a proof of Christ speaking in him, chap. 13. 3. He represents the Galatians as Men who questioned his Apostleship and Doctrine, or at least thought him much inferiour in both to others, chap. 1. and the second, supposing he dissembled with them, and elsewhere preached himself that Circumcision he condemn'd in them, chap. 5. 11. yea, who looked upon him as their Enemy, and were even ready to exclude him, chap. 4. 16, 17. Now under these Circumstances could he hope to repair his Credit with them, and to establish the Apostleship they question'd, by an Appeal to, and a Relation of such things as both their Senses and Experience knew to be manifest Untruths? But,

4*thly*, Could it be supposed that these Churches were so stupid, and insensible, that they did not, or so partially affected to the Apostles, that they would not take notice of these things? These Epistles inform us of other subtile and industrious Adversaries, Men zealous to oppose, and to adulterate the Gospel which he preached, and desirous to find Occasions to depress and lessen the Promoters of it, and to advance themselves above them, 2 Cor. 10. 12—15. 11, 12. St. Paul complains, that the Corinthians had among them false Apostles, and deceitful Workers, who transform'd themselves into the Apostles of Christ, when in truth they were Ministers of Satan, 2 Cor. 11. 13, 15. Men who corrupted the Word of God, chap. 2. 17. and sought to corrupt them from the simplicity that is in Christ, chap. 11. 3. That among the Galatians there were evil Agents who troubled them, and would pervert the Gospel of Christ, chap. 1. 7. False Brethren, who came in privily to spy out their liberty, chap. 2. 4. Men that desired to exclude the Apostles that they might be affected by them, chap. 4. 17. Men who constrained them to be circumcised, and observe the Law, and yet kept it not themselves, but only did this lest they should suffer persecution for the Cross of Christ, chap. 6. 12, 13. wishing they were cut off who did thus trouble them, chap. 5. 12. The like he saith, Philip. 1. 15, 16. chap. 3. 18. Col. 2. 4, 8, 19, 20. 1 Tim. 1. 5, 6. chap. 6. 3, 4, 5. 2 Tim. 2. 17, 18, 19. chap. 3. 5. 8. Tit. 1. 10, 11. Now if he himself were a vain Talker, and deceitful Worker, one who endeavour'd to impose upon them with false Tales, with what face could he object those things to others, of which he was himself so guilty? Or how could they whom he so confidently doth accuse as guilty of these things, neglect this obvious Reply to such an Accusation, that he himself, in his Appeal to the miraculous Operations of the Holy Ghost, for Confirmation of his Doctrine and Apostleship, had done the very thing he laid to their Charge? We have no reason to suspect that all, or any of these Adversaries neglected any Pains or Diligence to search into the Truth of what St. Paul thus offer'd to confirm his Doctrine, and magnifie his Office, and to vindicate himself from the Aspersions which they cast upon him. Since then we never find the Truth of these Relations question'd by any of those Jews who so insatiably thirsted for his Blood, or by those Judaizing Christians, those of the Circumcision, who so vehemently inveigh'd against his Doctrine, his Person, and his Office; and since we are assur'd by the Event, that if they ever made any such Attempts, they all proved ineffectual, and insufficient to impair the Credit of those Writings in the Christian World; it may be certainly concluded, that these Epistles could not be convinced of Falshood, but contain'd matter of unquestionable Truth in these Assertions touching the powerful Operations of the Holy Ghost.

Lastly,

Lastly, Let us consider what the Apostles suffer'd for this Testimony, and what it cost them to propagate this Faith throughout the Christian World, and in what tragical Expressions they are set forth in Scripture; God, saith S. Paul, hath set forth us the Apostles last, as it were appointed to death, for we are made a Spectacle to the World, to Angels, and to Men. Even to this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, are naked, and buffeted, and have no certain dwelling place. And labour working with our hands. Being reviled, we bless; being persecuted we suffer it. Being defamed, we entreat; we are made as the filth of the World, and the off-scouring of all things to this very Day, 1 Cor. 4. 9.—13. that they died daily; or stood in Jeopardy of it every hour, 1 Cor. 15. 31. that they approved themselves as Ministers of Christ in much Patience, in Afflictions, in Necessities, in Distresses, in Stripes, in Imprisonments, in Tumults, in Labours, in Watchings, in Fastings, 2 Cor. 6. 4, 5. We were, saith he, pressed above measure, beyond strength, insomuch that we despair'd of Life, 2 Cor. 1. 8. And in the eleventh Chapter he gives such a dreadful Account of his own Afflictions as can scarcely be read without trembling. Now by what Motive could they be acted in the Publication of that Faith, for which they suffered all that Wit and Malice could inflict upon them, but the Conviction of the Truth of what they published; seeing they actually lost all in this, and could expect no Blessings in another World for calling God to Witness to a Lye? The Moralists assure us, that 'tis impossible for Men to act without Appearance of some good to be pursued by that Action; that Love of Life, and a Desire of self Preservation, is common to us with the Brutes, and 'tis as natural both for them, and us, to avoid Misery and Torments: If then the Apostles did actually abandon all the Enjoyments and Expectations both of this and of a better Life, and wilfully subject themselves unto the worst of Misery and Torments, in Propagation of a Testimony from which they could expect no Profit, or Advantage, they must be even bereft of common Sense, renounce the natural Instincts of Mankind, and be in love with Misery and Ruine. I confess, 'tis possible for Men to lay down their Lives for false Opinions, provided they believe them true, but if the Apostles were guilty of any Cheat at all in this matter, they must be guilty of a known Imposture, and so must sacrifice their Lives for Falshood, i. e. for that from which they could expect no Good at all, which seems so inconsistent with the common Principles of Reason and Self-Love, that nothing can be more incredible.

And this, I hope, may be sufficient to convince any reasonable Person that these Epistles must be written whilst the Apostles lived, and be their genuine Writings, and then the Truth of what they do so copiously assert concerning the miraculous Gifts and Operations of the Holy Ghost, vouchsafed to the Believers of those times, cannot be reasonably contested.

1*st*, From a particular Consideration of the Gifts they mention,

2*dly*, From the Reason we have to believe that these extraordinary Gifts were equally confer'd upon all other Christian Churches, as upon those which the Apostles mention in their Epistles, and also were of a lasting Continuance among them.

1*st*, From a particular Consideration of the miraculous Operations, and the Gifts they mention. Now they were of two sorts;

The healing of the sick, and the curing of the lame, blind, and maimed, the raising of the dead, the ejecting Devils out of Men, and from their Oracles, and Temples; which being performed by the Apostles and Primitive Professors of Christianity upon others, I stile outward Operations.

Or else those inward Gifts by which the Understanding was enlightned, and was enabled to discern that which their natural Powers could not reach, as the Gift of speaking with unknown Tongues, of Prophesie, of discerning Spirits. I begin with

The Gift of healing the sick, and the diseased. Of which let it be noted,

1*st*, That this Gift was not confin'd to the Apostles, but was confer'd on the Inferior Clergy, and other Members of the Church indifferently: For amongst the Gifts confer'd upon the Church, the Apostle mentions χαρίσματα ἰαμάτων, those of healing, 1 Cor. 12. 19. and verse 29. they who exercised those Gifts are reckoned after Apostles, Prophets, Teachers, as being both distinct from them, and inferior to them; and verse 30. the Question is thus put, have all the Gifts of healing? St. James directs the ſick, and the diſeaſed to the Rulers of the Church, with promiſe that the Prayer of Faith, joined with the holy Oyl, ſhould heal the ſick, Jam. 5. 14, 15. And this is by our Saviour promiſed as one of the Signs that ſhould follow them that believed in his Name, They ſhall lay hands on the ſick, and they ſhall recover, Mark 16. 18. This being therefore made as well the matter of a Promiſe, as of their frequent Prayers; had not theſe Prayers been anſwered, and this Promiſe verified, Chriſtianity would have, in Probability, been blaſted by it.

2*dly*, This Gift continued frequent and notorious in the three firſt Ages of the Church, and the ſalutary Influences of it were diſperſed throughout the World. Soon after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, the Chriſtians, ſaith (a) Epiphanius, return'd from Pella σημεῖα μεγάλα ἰρμηζόμενοι ἰάσεων, working great miracles of healing. Amongſt the Operations of the Holy Ghoſt confer'd at Baptiſm upon the Converts of his time, (b) Juſtin M. enumerates, τὸ δὲ ἰάσεων, the Gift of healing. (c) Irenæus proves the Certainty of our Lord's Reſurrection from thoſe Miracles which his Diſciples perform'd ſtill in his Name, For ſome of them, ſaith he, caſt out Devils, others heal thoſe that are diſeaſed, and even now the dead have been raiſed, and continued with us many Years. The Spirit of many dead Men have returned again, and the Man hath oft been given to the Prayers of the Saints, the whole Church of that Place requeſting it with Prayer and Faſting. Even to this day, ſaith (d) Origen, there remain Footſteps of that holy Spirit who appeared in the ſhape of a Dove among the Chriſtians, for ἐξορκίζουσι δαίμονας, καὶ πολλὰς ἰάσεις ἐπιτελοῦσι, they caſt out Devils, and perform many Cures. And again, (e) Even now the Name of Chriſt exempts Men from Ecſtaſies, ſcares away δαίμονας ἤδη καὶ νόσους Devils and Diſeaſes. Some footſteps and remainders of the Miracles which Chriſt performed (f) ἐν ταῖς ἐκκλησίαις καὶ μέχρι νῦν γίνεται are to this day done in the Churches by the Name of Jeſus. And laſtly, to that Enquiry of Celſus, What magnificent Work hath your Jeſus done? he anſwers, (g) This is one magnificent Work, that μέχρι σήμερον even to this Day his Name doth heal Diſeaſes. Now of the Truth of what they thus deliver, they pretend,

1*ſt*, To be themſelves Eye-witneſſes. We can produce, ſaith (h) Origen, a vaſt number of Greeks and Barbarians who believe in Chriſt; ſome of whom, as a token of the Power of that Faith they have embraced, heal Diſeaſes by Invocation of the Name of God and Chriſt: καὶ ἡμεῖς ἑωράκαμεν and we our ſelves have ſeen many delivered by theſe things from dangerous Symptoms, Ecſtaſies, and Madneſs, and ten thouſand other Evils which neither Men nor Devils could exempt them from.

2*dly*, They call the God of Heaven to witneſs to the Truth of what they ſay: We have ſeen many ſuch things, ſaith (i) Origen, being preſent, and beholding them with our eyes, which ſhould we write, the Heathens would laugh at them as things feigned, Ἀλλὰ ὁ θεὸς μάρτυς τῇ ἡμετέρᾳ συνειδότι, but God is witneſs to my Conſcience, that I do not endeavour by falſe Teſtimonies to commend the Doctrine of Chriſt.

3*dly*, They appeal to the Teſtimonies of their very Enemies. For thus (k) Tertullian ſpeaks to Scapula, a Judge in Carthage: All theſe things may be ſuggeſted to thee from thy Office, and the Advocates of it, who have received theſe Advantages from Chriſtians; for the Notary of one, the Child and Kinſman of another, have been freed by us from Devils. Et quanti honeſti viri (de vulgaribus enim non dicimus) aut à Dæmoniis, aut valetudinibus remediati ſunt. And how many honourable Men (for we ſpeak not of the vulgar) have been delivered from Devils or Diſeaſes by the Chriſtans. 'Twas Proculus, ſaith he, the Chriſtian, that heal'd with Oyl Evodus, which ſo ingratiated him to Severus, that he kept him in his Palace to his Death. And,

Laſtly, By this very Argument they triumph over the like Attempts of Heretieks and Heathens, who pretended to do theſe things by Magick, or that their Gods performed the ſame, 1. Over thoſe Hereticks, who knowing theſe miraculous Cures were frequently performed by the Orthodox, were forced to pretend the like. Thus Irenæus comparing the Miracles of Chriſtians with the Magical Operations of Simon M., Carpocrates, and others of that Gang. (l) This, ſaith he, is ſufficient to confute them that they can neither give ſight to the blind, nor hearing to the deaf, nor cure the weak, the lame, the paralytick, nor thoſe that are diſeaſed in any other part of the Body; which yet, ſaith he, was often done by Chriſtians to the benefit of the Heathens. 2. Over the like Pretences of the Heathens, who boaſted that (m) πολλοὶ σωμάτων πηρώσεις ἰάσαντο, that their Gods did many Cures, that they gave (n) morbis medelam, ſpem afflictis, opem miſeris, Medicine to the diſeaſed, Hope to the afflicted, Help to the miſerable; and that their Gods had often cured (o) multorum hominum morbos valetudineſq; the Diſeaſes of many. For to this they do not only anſwer, by ſaying they had no Aſſurance that their Dæmons, however courted by them, could heal the Infirmities of humane Bodies, as (p) Origen replies to Celſus; and that if they did any thing of this kind, 'twas only by applying Medicines, and directing them to ſuch Meats, ſuch Potions, and ſuch Juices of Herbs, that is, ſaith Arnobius, by ſhewing the Skill of a Phyſician rather than the Power of a God. But that they could do nothing of this nature worthy to be named with that which Chriſt and his Apoſtles did; he, ſay they, with a word commanded the Blind to ſee, the Lame to walk, and cured all diſeaſes with a touch of his hand. Now can you ſhew us any among all your Magicians, (q) conſimile aliquid Chriſto milleſima ex parte qui fecerit, who have done any thing in the leaſt reſembling Chriſt? yea (r) quid ſimile dii omnes quibus opem dicitis ægris, & periclitantibus latam? What like to this have any of your Gods, to whom you do aſcribe the cure of the ſick, performed? That whereas their Gods could not tranſmit their ſuppoſed Power to others, our Jeſus derived this Power to the meaneſt, to Ruſticks, Fiſhermen, Day-Labourers, (s) and did himſelf nothing which he gave not them alſo power to do. And that the Name of Jeſus reſtored them to perfect Health, who were incurable by all the Powers of humane Art, the Aſſiſtance of the Dæmons, or of Heathen Deities. Seeing you have the Confidence, ſay they, to bring the Cures of Heathen Deities into conteſt with thoſe of Chriſt, how many thouſands ſhall we inſtance in who have in vain repaired with Supplications to all the Temples of the Gods; in vain have tired the ears of your admired Æſculapius? (t) Quid ergo prodeſt oſtendere unum aut alterum fortaſſe curatos, cum tot millibus ſubvenerit nemo? and what availeth it, to tell us of the good ſucceſs of two or three, when the Complaints of thouſands receiving no help from them ſhew their want of power to aſſiſt the needy?

Let it be then conſidered, that the Chriſtians, for three whole Centuries together, heal'd many Miriads throughout the World, who laboured under thoſe Diſeaſes, which were incurable by all the Arts of Men and Devils, that they made frequently the Lame to walk, the Deaf to hear, the Blind to ſee, and ſometimes rais'd the Dead by Invocation of the Name of Jeſus; and we ſhall find juſt reaſon to conclude this was the Lord's doings, and it is marvellous in our Eyes.

§ X. 2*dly*, Our Lord promiſed, that they who believed in him ſhould caſt out Devils, which Promiſe he perform'd with ſuch a conſtant Scene of glorious Inſtances, and ſuch amazing Circumſtances, if in this matter we may credit the Primitive Profeſſors of, and Martyrs for Chriſtianity, that 'tis not poſſible for any Man to doubt the Truth and Certainty of Chriſtian Faith, who does not look upon them as impudent Untruths, and Lying Legends. For,

1*ſt*, Let us conſider to whom this Power was committed over this ſtrong man armed over theſe Principalities, and Rulers of the darkneſs of this World. Our bleſſed Saviour having ſaid, behold I give you Authority over all the power of the Enemy, great Multitudes of Chriſtians gave a continual Demonſtration of the Truth of this Prediction. For, that our Lord was ſent for the deſtruction of theſe evil Spirits, ἐξ ὧν ἐν τῶν νῦν ὁρωμένων μανθάνειν δύνασθε, you may now learn, ſaith (u) Juſtin M. from what is done before your Eyes, for many Christians, throughout all the World, and in the very City of your Empire, have healed many that were possessed of the Devil, and still do they eject them by Invocation of the Name of Jesus, whom none of your Inchanters, Conjurers, or Sorcerers were able to expel. Those Christians are not few, saith (x) Origen, who eject Devils from them that are possessed with them, and this they do without all curious Arts, or any Sorcery or Magick, only by Prayers, and simple Adjuration of them, ὡς ἔστιν ὅτε καὶ ἰδιώτης τὸ τοιοῦτον περαίνει, for mostly this is done even by the meanest Christians, the Grace assistant to the Word of Christ demonstrating by this the Devil's Weakness, that to expel them from the Soul or Body of a Man there is no need of Men of Wisdom, or powerful in Demonstration of the Faith. (y) Now, saith he, were not Christ of a Divine Composition, the Devils would not thus quit the Bodies they possess at the bare Invocation of his Name, Fidelis quisque Dæmonibus imperat, every Christian hath command over the Devils, saith (z) Clemens, yea such is the Efficacy of the Name of Jesus, saith (a) Origen, ὡς ἔστι καὶ τὸ τῷ ὑπὸ φαύλων ὀνομαζόμενον ὠφέλιμον, that it sometimes profits when it is used by wicked Men, according to our Lord's Prediction, that at the dreadful Audit, many should be rejected who could make this Plea, in thy Name we have cast out Devils, Matth. 7. 22. It was sometimes efficacious even when used by them who were no Followers of the Holy Jesus; as in the Instance mentioned by St. John, Master, we saw one casting out Devils in thy Name, and we forbad him, because he followed not us, Mark 9. 38. And this gave Courage to the Jewish Exorcists, the Sons of Sceva, to adjure evil Spirits by the Name of Jesus, Act. 19. 14. And not the (b) Jews only, but other Inchanters also, saith (c) St. Austin, mixed the Name of Jesus with their Incantations.

2*dly*, This Name was efficacious, against all evil Spirits whatsoever, none of them being able to resist the Power of it. Even now, saith (d) Justin M. we who believe in Jesus, τὰ δαιμόνια πάντα, καὶ πνεύματα πονηρὰ ἐξορκίζοντες, θεραπευόμενα ἡμῖν ἕξομεν, adjuring the whole Herd of Devils and Malignant Spirits, have them all subject to our Power. And again, By the Name of the Son of God, πᾶν δαιμόνιον ὁρκιζόμενον νικᾶται, καὶ ὑποτάσσεται all kind of Devils, being adjured, are overcome, and brought into Subjection. 'Tis evidently seen, saith (e) Origen, that by the Name of Jesus ten thousand Devils have been expell'd from the Souls and Bodies, of those who were possessed by them. On this account they triumphed over the Heathens Exorcists, that by the Name of Jesus they expell'd those Devils which none of their Inchanters, Sorcerers, Magicians, saith (f) Justin M. could expel; and over all the Heathen Deities: bring one possessed, mad, and raging, saith (g) Lactantius, to your Jupiter, or because he is not skilful in those matters, bring him to Æsculapius, or Apollo, let both their Priests adjure him, in the Name of their supposed Deities, to quit his Station, they in vain attempt it; but let the same Devils be adjured in the Name of the true God, and instantly they fly. Quæ ratio est ut timeant Christum, Jovem non timeant, were this Jove any better than themselves, why do they fear our Christ, and not their Jupiter? And on the same account they triumphed over those Hereticks which then appeared to corrupt the Truth: For we by this, saith (h) Irenæus confound the Heresies of Simon M. Carpocrates, and the whole Tribe of those deceitful Workers, that they cannot, omnes dæmonas effugare, expel all kinds of Devils, but only such as are confederate with them, if they indeed do that. Consider,

3*dly*, That they expell'd them not only out of Men, but also from their Temples, Oracles and Altars. We are so far, saith (i) Origen, from worshipping of Dæmons, that we expel them ἀπὸ τόπων ἐν οἷς αὐτοὺς ἱδρύκασιν from the places where they are seated. Go no more, saith (k) Clemens of Alexandria in his Exhortation to the *Greeks, to your Castalian, or other Fountains, all these prophetick Streams are now dried up, and they are pass'd away with their own Fables. garded, but now they are as generally neglected and contemned, the Oracle at Delphos and at Hammon being wholly silent. Not above one or two remains, saith (m) Plutarch, the rest are wholly silent, or entirely desolate. The Spirit of the Gods, saith the (n) Apostate Julian, comes now σπανιάκις μόλ' ἢ ἐν ὀλίγοις but rarely, and to very few. Thus are the very Heathens forced, with (o) Porphyry, to confess the Triumphs of our Jesus over their supposed Deities. Nor did they only silence their Oracles, and stop the Mouths both of their Priests and of those Demons that inspired them, but they did open them, at the same time, to force them to confess, even before their Priests and Votaries, that they were evil Spirits. This most Men, saith (p) Minutius, know, and some of you, that all your Dæmons, when they are forced out of Bodies by our Words and Prayers, do with Grief confess what they are, not belying their own Filthiness, even in your presence, ipsis testibus esse eos Dæmonas de se verum confitentibus credite, believe their Testimony when truly they confess themselves to be but Devils. All the Dominion we have over them saith (q) Tertullian, proceedeth from the Name of Christ, and the Commemoration of those things they are to suffer from him as their Judge; this causeth them, at our Command, to come forth of the Bodies they possess with great Reluctance, and Grief and Shame, when you are present, you who have credited their Lyes, believe them when they speak the Truth of themselves, for none will lye to their Disgrace, but for their Honour; they are more to be believ'd who confess against themselves, than who deny for themselves. These Devils, saith (r) St. Cyprian, being adjured by the true God, do instantly confess, and are compell'd to come out of the Bodies they possess, you may see them by our Voice, and by the Power of the invisible Majesty as it were whip'd and scorch'd, and as their torment doth increase, you may hear them howling, groaning, deprecating, confessing even in the Audience of their Votaries, whence they come, and when they will depart. In his Epistle to (s) Donatus, this is made one Property of a Christian, to force impure Spirits to confess what they are, and to urge them by their powerful strokes to depart. Consider,

4*thly*, That this was done not in Rome and Carthage only, and other Cities of the chiefest note, but, as it is observed by (t) Justin Martyr, κατὰ πάντα τὸν κόσμον throughout all the World, not only for some Weeks or Months together, but, as these Records testifie, from the first rise of Christians to the Days of Constantine; for even about that time (u) Lactantius speaks thus: As Christ himself, whilst he convers'd with Men, did with a word expel all kind of Devils, ita nunc sectatores ejus, so now his Followers expel these filthy Spirits by their Master's Name, and by the sign of his Passion. (x) Eusebius adds, that εἰσὶν ἢ νῦν, even now he shews the Vertue of his Divine Power, by expelling wicked and hurtful Devils from the Bodies and the Souls of Men, only by mention of his Name, ὡς αὐτῇ πείρᾳ καλειλήφαμεν, as from experience we have found. This they did,

Lastly, say these Authors, without the Use of Medicines, or Magical Incantations, only by Invocation of the Name of Jesus, or by reciting the sacred Books, saith (a) Origen, without Deceit, or without Gain, saith (b) Irenæus, sine premio, sine mercede, without Advantage, or Reward, saith (c) Tertullian, it being then conceived criminal to gain by such spiritual Gifts, and contrary to that Injunction of their Lord, Matth. 10. 8. freely ye have received, freely give. And truly to conceive these things were done by any Medicines, or Magical Inchantments, is the greatest Folly; for how should Multitudes of mean and simple Christians arrive at such a Skill in any of those Arts, which neither Jew or Gentile, who had long exercised them, could attain unto, and which none of those numerous Apostates or Hereticks which fell off from them in the times of Persecution, could discover, or instruct others to perform, or themselves exercise? And much less is it to be thought that Satan should assist them to build Christianity upon the Ruins of his own Kingdom, and to promote an Interest as contrary both to his Nature and Designs, as is Light to Darkness. Moreover that none might doubt the truth of these Particulars,

1*st*, They frequently appeal even to the Senses of the very Infidels. If you are willing saith (d) Justin M. ἐξ ὧν ἐκ τῶν ἔργων ὁρᾶν γνωρίζων ῥᾴον ὑμῖν πεισθῆναι, it is easie for you even now to be assured of these things with your own Eyes. Dictis non stetis si oculi vestri & aures permiserint vobis, disbelieve these things, saith (e) Tertullian, if your Eyes and Ears will suffer you to do so. Admirable are those words of (f) Cyprian to Demetrianus, a Persecutor of the Christians, Veni & cognosce vera esse quæ dicimus ; Come and experiment the truth of what we say ; and since thou sayest thou worshippest the Gods, believe the Gods thou worshippest ; or if thou wilt, believe thy self ; for he that now dwells in thy Breast, and holds thy Soul in Ignorance, shall in thy Audience speak of thee, thou shalt see them entreating us whom thou entreatest, them whom thou fearest fearing us, thou shalt see them bound, and trembling under our Hand, whom thou adorest as Gods ; sure this must be sufficient to confound thee in thy Errors, when thou seest and heares thy Gods, at our Command, instantly confessing what they are, and not daring to conceal their Cheats in thy presence.

2*dly*, They appeal also to their Consciences ; we expel Devils out of Men, saith (g) Tertullian, sicut plurimis notum est, as very many know. Most Men are very well acquainted with these things, saith (h) Minucius, pars vestrûm, and so some of you Heathens are. They appeal,

3*dly*, To the Confessions of the very Devils, as hath been proved already from the Testimonies of Tertullian, Minucius, Cyprian ; and by this very Argument (i) Theophilus proves them to be evil Spirits, that μάχεται τῷ θεῷ, even at this Day, being exorcised by the Name of the true God, they confess themselves to be deceitful Spirits. And,

4*thly*, They appeal to the Effects produced upon the Persons thus dispossess'd, even their Conversion by this means to the Christian Faith. Some Christians, saith (k) Irenæus, have the Gift of casting out Devils so firmly, and so certainly, ὥστε πολλάκις πεσθέντων αὐτοὺς ἐκείνους καθαιρεθέντας ἀπὸ τῶν πονηρῶν πνευμάτων, that many times they who are heal'd, and delivered from these evil Spirits, believe, and do continue in the Church. Hæc denique Testimonia Deorum vestrorum Christianos facere consueverunt, these Testimonies of your Gods do oft make Christians, saith (l) Tertullian ; believing them, we believe in Christ ; they advance the Credit of our Writings, and build up our Hope ; for you worship them even with the Blood of Christians, they therefore would not lose such profitable Votaries, lest turning Christians, you should, with us, expel them, si illis, sub Christiano volente vobis veritatem probare, mentiri liceret, if they durst lie to a Christian attempting to confirm you in the Truth. (m) Lactantius accounting for the Multitude of Christians, saith this is no small reason of it, that the Devils being cast out by Christians, omnes qui resanati fuerint, adhæreant Religioni cujus potentiam senserunt, they who are healed, embrace that Faith whose Benefit and Power they have felt.

5*thly*, They encourage others to embrace the Christian Faith, by promising to them this Power of ejecting Devils, when they should cordially embrace it. Be you baptized, saith (n) Clemens, in the Name of the most holy Trinity, and then, if you believe with an entire Faith, and with true Purity of Mind, etiam ex aliis vos malignos Spiritus effugetis, & Dæmones, you shall expel impure Spirits and Devils out of others, and free Men from Diseases ; for the Devils know and own those who have given up themselves to God, and sometimes at their very presence are cast out ; we exhort you therefore to be of our Religion, and we assure you that when you do advance to the same Faith and Innocence of Life with us, erit par vobis atque eadem etiam contra Dæmonas potestas, you shall obtain like Power over the evil Spirits.

Lastly,

Lastly, They offer upon pain of Death, and all that could be dear to them, to make this Experiment before the Eyes of Heathens, i. e. not only to eject those very Demons they invoked, but even to force them to confess they were Cheats, and own themselves to be but Devils. I come now, saith (o) Tertullian, to the Demonstration of the Point, Edatur hic aliquis coram tribunalibus vestris, let any one be placed before your Tribunals, who manifestly is possessed by the Devil, being commanded by any Christian to speak what he is, he shall as certainly truly confess himself to be a Devil, as elsewhere he doth falsly profess to be a God; produce any other of them who profess to be inspired by any of your Gods, Nisi se Dæmones confessi fuerint, Christiano mentiri non audentes, ibidem illius Christiani procacissimi sanguinem fundite, if they do not confess themselves to be Devils, not daring to lye to a Christian, let the Blood of that Malepert Christian be shed before you in that very place. What is more manifest than this Experiment, more faithful than this Proof? Here is plain Evidence laid before you, whose Virtue will assist it self, here can be no Suspicion; even say that Magick, or some such Fallacy, is imposed upon you, if your Eyes and Ears will permit you.

All this we have delivered upon certain Knowledge, and confirm'd to us with the highest Attestations, by Men of greatest Wisdom, to distinguish betwixt Truth and Falshood, and so discern Matters of real Fact, from vain Impostures; by Men of that Sincerity, and undisguis'd Piety, as renders their Veracity, in Matters subject to their Senses, and their Experience incontestable; by Men who suffer'd all that is terrible to Human Nature, for the Profession of a Faith whose Truth depended on the Certainty of these Events, and which in this World, call'd for continual Acts of Self-denial, and Austerity, and the renouncing all that tends to gratifie the sensual Appetite, only for the Enjoyment of inward and spiritual Pleasures here, and of Celestial Joys hereafter. Again, all this is said in their Discourses directed to Heathen Emperors, and Judges, or to the Heathen World, partly to mitigate their Hatred of them, and their Severities against them, and partly to engage them to embrace the Christian Faith, which sure no Person of Sincerity would, no Men of Wisdom could attempt by such Untruths as might be easily detected by them: For could they boast of their continual Triumphs over Satan's Kingdom throughout all the World, and send the Heathens to Rome and Carthage, and other famous Cities, to be convinced of the Truth of what they said? Would they talk of the multitude of Converts they had made to the Christian Faith by dispossessing Men of Devils, or forcing evil Spirits in their presence to confess they were but Devils? Would they encourage others to embrace the Christian Faith, by promise of like Power when they did cordially believe, and practise suitably to it? Would they appeal to the Senses, to the Ears and Eyes, to the Conscience and Experience of their most subtile Adversaries? Would they provoke them to make the Experiment of the Truth of what they said with the hazard of their Lives, and even to encourage them to shed their Blood, if, upon Trial, they should fail of the Performance? Or could they by such means as these, prevail upon the World, and daily gain new Proselytes, had not the Evidence of Truth confirmed their Sayings? And if in these Assertions they spake the Words of Truth and Soberness, they gave the clearest Evidence of the Power of that Jesus whose Name so mightily prevailed over the Host of these infernal Legions. For is it reasonable to conceive these Devils, without Constraint from a Superiour Power, should not only quit the Power they so long had exercised over the Bodies and the Souls of them who worshipped them as Gods, but also should confess so oft even in the presence of their Votaries, at the Command of them who sought the Ruine of their Kingdom, and used their Confessions to that purpose, that they were evil Spirits? Or could the Name of Jesus, without the Power to which he pretended, have been so great a Terror and a Torment to them, or be thus efficacious even in the Mouths of wicked Men, and those who followed not him, had not this also tended to the Confirmation of his Power? Did ever any of the Heathen Jugglers, with all their Arts of Magick, extort such plain Confessions from them? Did they thus force them to desert the Bodies and the Temples they possess'd, and to exert their Power to the ruine of themselves, and the amendment of those Souls they had ensnared? This therefore being only done by our Jesus, or others in his Name, demonstrates his Divine Commission.

Obj. Against this signal Demonstration of the Truth of Christian Faith, the only Cavil which the Infidels and Scepticks raise, is this, That we find no mention of Persons thus possessed with the Devil among Jews or Gentiles, before our Saviour's Advent; nor have we now Experience of any ſuch thing, either among Chriſtians, or in the Heathen World, and therefore cannot eaſily believe it was ſo then, but rather, that the Perſons repreſented as Demoniacks were only Perſons afflicted with ſome ſtrange Diſeaſes, Fits of the Mother, Convulſions, Falling-ſickneſs, Madneſs, and the like.

Anſw. 1. To this I anſwer, That were this granted, yet muſt this be a Demonſtration of the Power of Chriſt, and of the Truth of Chriſtian Faith, that it enabled its Profeſſors every-where, by Virtue of the Name and Invocation of the Holy Jeſus, thus to heal all manner of Diſtempers, which no Phyſicians could cure by their Art, much leſs by ſpeaking of a Word.

2*dly*, Moreover, I have ſufficiently confuted this Cavil, by ſhewing, That the Chriſtians of thoſe Times ejected Devils, not only out of Men, but alſo from their Temples, Oracles, and Altars, and that ſo ſignally, that even the beſt Hiſtorians of thoſe Ages, tho' by Religion Heathens, and ſome of them profeſſed Enemies of Chriſtianity,, are forced to confeſs their Oracles were ſilent, and that Chriſtianity had thus triumphed over their ſuppoſed Deities, and alſo by ſhewing, that they forc'd theſe evil Spirits to confeſs they were but Devils. Beſides, we find both in the Sacred Records, and in the Writings of thoſe Fathers, a conſtant and a plain Diſtinction betwixt theſe two things, the curing Diſeaſes, and the caſting out of Devils; ſo Mark 1. 34. He healed many that were ſick of divers Diſeaſes, and caſt out many Devils, and ſuffered not the Devils to ſpeak, becauſe they knew him, Matth. 10. 1. He gave to the Apoſtles Power againſt unclean Spirits, to caſt them out, and to heal all manner of Sickneſs and Diſeaſes. The Chriſtians, ſaith (a) Irenæus, truly caſt out Devils, and heal the Sick by Impoſition of Hands. Ἐξελαύνουσι δαίμονας, καὶ πολλὰς ἴασεις ποιοῦνται, they caſt out Devils, and heal many Diſeaſes, ſaith (b) Origen. How many honeſt Men have by us been healed, or freed from Devils? is the Enquiry of (c) Tertullian.

3*dly*, The Falſhood of the Suggeſtion, that Men poſſeſs'd with evil Spirits were not known among the Jews in former Ages, appears from the plain Teſtimonies of (d) Joſephus, who ſaith, That God taught Solomon this Wiſdom, for the benefit of Men; and that he left behind him thoſe ways of exorciſing Demons, which ſo effectually expell'd them, that they never entred into them more; and from that time to this, hath that way of curing thoſe who were poſſeſs'd, been very powerful. He alſo talks of a ſtrange Herb, or Shrub, which being artificially pull'd up, (e) τὸ κωλύμενον δαιμόνια παχέως ἐξελαύνει, preſently expels Devils. We alſo read in the Acts of Seven Sons of one Sceva a Jew, who were Exorciſts, Acts 19. 13. and of their Children caſting out of Devils, Matth. 12. 25. And both (f) Juſtin Martyr, and (g) Irenæus inform us, That they did this before the time of our Saviour, by Invocation of the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob.

That among the Heathens, there were Perſons thus poſſeſs'd, appears ſufficiently by this, that otherwiſe the Chriſtians could not have pretended to caſt them out; and from the Exorciſts and Magicians in every Nation, of whom (h) Plutarch ſaith, That they adviſed thoſe who were poſſeſs'd, to repeat the Epheſian Letters: And (i) Lucian mentions it as a thing known to all, That they had thoſe who did diſpoſſeſs Demons. (k) Juſtin Martyr ſaith, The Jews exorciſed them, τῇ τέχνῃ ὥσπερ καὶ τὰ ἔθνη χρώμενοι, uſing that Art as the Heathens did. The Names of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, are us'd, ſaith (l) Origen, not only by the Jewiſh Exorciſts, Ἀλλὰ καὶ σχεδὸν καὶ πάντας τοὺς τὰ τῶν ἀποῤῥήτων καὶ μαγικῶν φαρμακευομένους, but almoſt by all that practiſe the Art of Magick or Enchantment. So that 'tis certain, that the Hiſtory of Chriſt and his Apoſtles, caſting out Devils in Judea, and of Chriſtians caſting them throughout the World, was therefore never queſtion'd by Jew or Gentile, becauſe they had among themſelves in every place, Pretenders to it.

And

And if after the Triumphs of the Gospel, there now continue among Christians no footsteps of this Power of Satan, this is a Testimony of the Truth of what our Lord foretold, Now is the Prince of the World cast out, Joh. 12. 31.

§ XI. Of those internal Gifts, which shew the Power of the Holy Ghost engaged to promote the Christian Faith.

First, That of Tongues is most illustrious. This was a Gift exceeding requisite, to the speedy Propagation of the Gospel, which in the space of forty Years was by our Lord's Prediction, Matth. 24. 14. to spread it self throughout the World. And therefore, it was daily exercised among the Heathens to convert them, and by themselves, when they embraced the Christian Faith; for the Family, the Friends, and Kindred of Cornelius, receiv'd the Holy Ghost; and, to the Amazement of the Jewish Converts, spake with Tongues, and magnified God, Acts 10. 46. Upon the twelve Disciples of the Baptist, the Apostle lays his hands, and they receive the Holy Ghost, and speak with Tongues, Acts 19. 6. St. Paul in his Epistle to the Church of Corinth, saith, They were enriched with, and they abounded ἐν παντὶ λόγῳ, in all Tongues, Cor. 1. 5. See the Note there. Among the Gifts imparted to them, he reckons divers kinds of Tongues, and the Interpretation of them, 1 Cor. 12. 9. and puts the Question to them thus, ver. 30. Do all speak with Tongues? This he objecteth as their Crime, That when they came together, every one had his Tongue, 1 Cor. 14. 26. and adds, That if they thus continued to use this Gift, 'twould breed Confusion in their Churches, and cause their Auditors to say, That they were mad, ver. 23. Whence he adviseth them who used these Tongues, to pray they might interpret, ver. 13. permitting only two or three to speak with Tongues in one Assembly, and that by course, and with Interpretation, ver. 26, 27, 28. imposing Silence on them, when no Interpreter was present; and Order, saith he, being thus observed, Let no Man forbid to speak with Tongues, ver. 39. And if this Gift was so abundantly conferr'd upon that Church, in which the Apostle found so great Miscarriages, and of which he only saith, They came behind the other Churches in no Gifts; we reasonably may suppose others, and better Churches, had an equal Share in this Gift. Accordingly we have heard, saith Irenæus, (l. 5. c. 6.) many Brethren who have received the Spirit of God, ᾧ πάντα τὰ κατὰ τὰς χώρας λαλοῦσι διὰ τοῦ πνεύματος γλώσσας, and by that Spirit spake all Languages.

And now, what can the Unbeliever offer to invalidate the Strength of this convincing Demonstration? Will he ascribe this Gift to the Assistance of the Devil? Let him produce one Instance of like nature from any Heathen Writer, to shew, that ever this was done by any besides Christians: Or tell us, why that subtile Spirit should thus concern himself to propagate, and to confirm that Faith, which bears the clearest Opposition both to his Nature and Designs? Will they ascribe it to some Fit of Melancholy, or some Distemper of the Brain? What can be more absurd, than to assert, That at the Preaching of a Sermon, the rushing of a mighty Wind, the laying on of an Apostle's hands, or the baptizing of a Person in the Name of Jesus, such unaccountable Diseases should seize on many Thousands, and should enable them to speak a Language they had never learn'd? Or, is it reasonable to think, this Distemper should be so peculiar to Christian Constitutions, as that no other Persons should pretend to it? And that it should wholly cease from them, when once the Christian Faith had spread it self over all Nations, Christians themselves never pretending, that it lasted beyond the second Century.

§ XII. The second internal Gift of which the Scripture maketh frequent mention, is that of Prophesie; of which let it be noted,

That seeing the Jews from the Foundation of their Church to the Completion of the Canon of the Old Testament, had a continual Succession of Prophets to instruct them in the Mind of God, it seemeth highly requisite, that the like Gift should for some season be conferr'd upon the Church of Christ, which was not only to succeed, but highly to excel the Jewish Oeconomy. Especially, if we consider, that their own Prophet Joel had foretold, touching the Times of the Messiah promised to the Jews, God would then pour his Spirit upon all Flesh, and their Sons and Daughters should prophesie, Joel 2. 18. and also that our Lord had promised to send the Spirit of Truth to his Disciples, to lead them into all Truth, and to declare unto them things to come, Joh. 16. 13. and to send to the Jewish Nation Prophets and wise Men, Matth. 23. 34. and of these must he be supposed to speak, when he engageth, That he that receiveth a Prophet in the Name of a Prophet, shall receive a Prophet's Reward, Matth. 10. 41. So that you see, the Christians had just reason to expect the Spirit of Prophesie should be again revived in their Days, and plentifully conferr'd upon them; and that both Jew and Gentile must have had sufficient Cause to question queſtion the whole Truth of Chriſtian Faith, had not this Spirit of Propheſie been found among them: And therefore of the Completion of this Promiſe, we are aſſured, Firſt, from the Catalogue of Chriſtian Prophets, mention'd in the New Teſtament and Ancient Writers of the Church. For Acts 11. 27, 28. mention is made of Chriſtian Prophets coming from Jeruſalem; and of Agabus, who foretold the Famine that hapned in the Days of Claudius Cæſar, as (m) Joſephus, (n) Suetonius and (o) Dion teſtifie. In the 13th Chapter, we are told of five Prophets in the Church of Antioch, who whilſt they were employed in the Publick Miniſtry, received a Divine Afflatus, commanding them to ſeperate Barnabas and Saul, to ſome ſpecial Work to which the Holy Spirit had deſigned them, ver. 3. And Chap. 15. 32. we read of Judas and Silas, who being Prophets, exhorted the Brethren with many Words. And Chap. 19. 6. of Twelve Diſciples, who when St. Paul had laid his Hands upon them, ſpake with Tongues, and propheſied. In the Revelations of St. John, mention is made of Chriſt's Servants the Prophets, Chap. 16. 6. and of the Blood of the Prophets ſlain by the Beaſt, Chap. 18. 20, 24. and of the Prophets his Brethren, Chap. 19. 10. (p) Euſebius cites an Ancient Author, who ſpeaks of Quadratus and others, as πνευματοφορηθέντες προφηται, Inſpired Prophets, and who declared, That the Prophetick Gift continued ſtill in the Church. Moreover, as Joel had foretold, that in thoſe days their Daughters and their Hand maids ſhould propheſie; ſo we read in the Hiſtory of the Acts, of four Daughters of Philip the Evangeliſt, who did propheſie, Acts 21. 9. In the Epiſtle to the Corinthians, of Women propheſying, 1 Cor. 11. 5. and in the Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, of (q) Ammia of Philadelphia, a Propheteſs.

In a word, there was not any Church in which this Gift of Propheſie was not frequent. We read of Prophets at Jeruſalem, the Mother of all Churches, Acts 11. 27. in the Church of Antioch, Acts 13. 1. of the Gift of Propheſie in the Church of Rome, Rom. 12. 6. in that of Corinth and of Theſſalonica, 1 Theſſ. 5. 20. and of Spiritual Perſons in the Church of Galatia, Chap. 6. 1. They are ſaid to be placed in the Church in General; for God, ſaith the Apoſtle, hath ſet ſome in the Church, Firſt, Apoſtles; 2dly, Prophets; 3dly, Teachers; as therefore the Apoſtles and the Teachers, ſo did the Prophets exerciſe their Functions in all Churches. They were given to the Church for ends which equally concern'd all their Aſſemblies, Chriſt having given ſome Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, ſome Evangeliſts, ſome Paſtors and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the Work of the Miniſtry, for the edifying the Body of Chriſt, Eph. 4. 11, 12. Now theſe are Ends in which all Churches muſt be equally concerned, and therefore we have reaſon to believe, that as Apoſtles, Evangeliſts and Paſtors, ſo Prophets alſo were vouchſafed to them all.

Moreover, it ſeems evident, That at the firſt Foundation of a Chriſtian Church among the Gentiles, there were no ſettled Paſtors to perform the Publick Offices in their Aſſemblies, but they were generally performed by Prophets, or by Spiritual Men, who had the Gift of Propheſie, or were in the Aſſembly excited to that Work by an Afflatus of the Holy Spirit. To clear up this, let it be noted:

Firſt, That as ſoon as any Perſon then embraced the Chriſtian Faith, they received with it the Gift of Propheſie, or of the Holy Ghoſt; ſo when Peter and John laid Hands on the Samaritan Converts, they received the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 8. 15. When Peter preached to Cornelius and his Friends, the Holy Ghoſt fell on all them that heard the Word, and they ſpake with Tongues, and magnified God, Acts 10. 44, 46. So alſo the Twelve Diſciples of the Baptiſt, when St. Paul laid his hands upon them, ſpake with Tongues and propheſied, Acts 19. 6. ſo that this Gift of Propheſie was ſtill contemporary with a Chriſtian Church or Family of Chriſtian Converts.

Note, Secondly, That the Apoſtles did not preſently upon the Converſion of any number of Perſons to the Chriſtian Faith, ordain them Elders in every Church, but left them for a Seaſon to the Conduct of thoſe Prophets and Spiritual Men, the Holy Ghoſt had fitted for that Work. The Church of Antioch was converted, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot in the Fortieth Year of our Lord, and a great number of them turned to the Lord, Act. 11. 21. and yet no Elders were ordained among them, till the Fiftieth Year, Acts 14. 23. But in this interval, there were Prophets among them who miniſtred in their Aſſemblies to the Lord, Chap. 13. 2. The Inhabitants of the Iſle of Crete were converted for ſome conſiderable time before St. Paul ſent Titus to them, to ſet in order the things which were lacking, and ordain Elders in every City, Chap. 1. 5. How were they then in the mean time ſupply'd with Teachers, and Men that miniſtred in their Aſſemblies, unleſs by Men aſſiſted by that Spirit which was ſhed on them abundantly at their Converſion? Chap. 3. 5, 6. And if we may take an Eſtimate of other Churches, by what was certainly performed in the Aſſemblies of the Church of Corinth, we cannot reaſonably doubt the Truth of this Aſſertion. For, where all the Publick Offices performed then in the Church were Prayer and Pſalmody, expounding or preaching of the Word, and Euchariſtical Oblations; all theſe are in the Fourteenth Chapter of the firſt Epiſtle aſcribed to the Prophets in that Church, or to the Men endowed with Spiritual Gifts among them: For when they came together, ſome of them prayed, others compoſed Sacred Hymns by their Spiritual Gifts among them: For when they came together, ſome of them prayed, others compoſed Sacred Hymns by their Spiritual Gift, ver. 15. their Prophets did then teach for Edification, Exhortation and Comfort, ver. 3. and 31. they alſo did then εὐλογεῖν, Bleſs, which is the Word uſed for Conſecration of the Euchariſt, Chap. 10. 16. and εὐχαριστεῖν, Give Thanks, which is the Word uſed in our Lord's Inſtitution of this Sacrament, 1 Cor. 11. 21. and at this Thankſgiving the People anſwered, Amen, (1) as they were wont to do at the Celebration of the Sacrament, ver. 16, 17. That all, or any of theſe things were done by ſtated Paſtors, we never read in the Epiſtles to that Church. And this ſeems yet more probable, touching the Church of Corinth, becauſe there ſeems no Order obſerved among them in their Propheſying, and no Subjection of the Prophets in their Aſſemblies, to any Ruler in that Church. When the inceſtuous Perſon was to be delivered up to Satan, this was done by the Authority of St. Paul, with the Concurrence of the whole Aſſembly; When you are met together, ſaith he, deliver ſuch a one to Satan, 1 Cor. 5. 4. put away from your ſelves that wicked Perſon, ver. 13. And when he ſpeaketh of this Act of Diſcipline, he calls it ἐπιτιμία ὑπὸ τῶν πλείονων, the Puniſhment inflicted by many, 2 Cor. 2. 6. See the Note there. And when the ſame Perſon was to be abſolved, there is no Direction ſent to any Rulers of the Church to give him Abſolution, but all ſeems immediately to be done by the Authority of St. Paul, and by the whole Aſſembly. And laſtly, in the Epiſtle ſent from Corinth to the Church of Rome, we find not any Salutation ſent to Rome, from any Biſhop or Elder of the Church of Corinth, but only from the Kindred of St. Paul, from Gaius the Hoſt of that Church, Eraſtus the Chamberlain of the City, and Quartus a Brother, Chap. 16. 21, 22, 23. All which things put together, render it more than probable, that there were then no ſettled Paſtors in the Church of Corinth, which makes it neceſſary, that the Affairs of their Church Aſſemblies ſhould be wholly managed by their Prophets, and Spiritual Perſons.

It ſeemeth alſo highly probable, this was the caſe of other Churches, ſince the Apoſtle directing his Epiſtles to many of them, maketh no mention of any Church Governours amongſt them, either in the beginning of them, as he doth in his Epiſtle to the Philippians, or the Salutations at the cloſe of them, as he doth in the Hebrews, ſaying, Salute all them who have the Rule over you, Chap. 13. 24. For inſtance, there is no Direction of the Epiſtle writ to the Galatians to any Church Governours among them, no Salutation of them in the cloſe of it, no charge againſt them for ſuffering thoſe great Diſorders which had obtained in that Church, no Exhortation to them to take heed to their Miniſtry, or to oppoſe themſelves to the Deceivers then crept in among them; but there are plain Directions given to the Spiritual Men, or to the Prophets then among them, in theſe Words, Brethren, if any Man be overtaken with a Fault, ye that are Spiritual, i. e. who are endow'd with thoſe Spiritual Gifts which enable you for Publick Miniſtrations in the Church, reſtore ſuch a one in the Spirit of Meekneſs, Chap. 6. 1. (See the Note there.) which makes it highly probable, that Church was managed not by ſtated Paſtors, but by Prophets, and Spiritual Teachers of the Word.

Thus alſo ſeems it, to have been in the Church of Theſſalonica. For (Firſt,) we find no notice taken of them in the front of the Epiſtles to them, no Salutation of them in the cloſe; the Words of Salutation being only theſe, Salute all the Brethren with an holy Kiſs. (2dly,) We find no Directions given to them in particular, but only to the Brethren in general, touching ſuch Matters as muſt have related to their Office only, or chiefly, had they been ſettled Rulers in that Church. The Charge, 1 Theſſ. 5. 14. runs thus: We exhort you Brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble-minded, ſupport the weak. And, 2 Theſſ. 2. 6. thus, We command you Brethren, in the Name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ye withdraw your ſelves from every Brother that walks diſorderly, and not according to the Tradition which ye have received from us. And, ver. 13, 14. And ye Brethren, — if any Man obey not the Word by this Epiſtle, note that Man, and have no Company with him, that he may be aſhamed; yet count him not as an Enemy, but admoniſh him as a Brother. And laſtly, to theſe Brethren the Adjuration mention'd, Chap. 5. 27, is directed, charging them by the Lord, that this Epiſtle be read to all the holy Brethren.

The ſame may be obſerved of the Epiſtle directed by the ſame Apoſtle to the Church of Rome; for 'tis directed in the General, To all that are in Rome, beloved of God, and Saints called; and among the numerous Salutations in the Cloſe, we find not one directed to any ſtated Paſtors of that Church; but this we find, that having finiſhed his great Diſpute concerning Juſtification, and the Rejection of the Jews, he exhorts them to be wiſe to Sobriety, as God had diſtributed to every one the meaſure of Faith, Chap. 12. 3. and adds, Having therefore Gifts differing according to the Grace given to us, whether it be Propheſie, let us propheſie according to the Proportion of Faith, ver. 6. or Miniſtry, let us wait on our Miniſtry, or he that teacheth on Teaching. Now evident it is, that both the Prophets and Teachers in thoſe Times, are reckoned as Men who exerciſed thoſe Offices by a Spiritual Afflatus, and were enabled to perform them by the miraculous Gifts of the Holy Spirit then vouchſafed to them; whence they are ſtyled in the Words now cited χαρίσματα, Spiritual Gifts. Hence therefore it is highly probable, theſe were the Men who then preſided in their Aſſemblies, and exerciſed Sacred Offices in the Church of Rome. Now if theſe things were ſo, all Chriſtian Churches at their firſt Converſion to Chriſtianity, muſt have a ſenſible and conſtant Demonſtration of the Exerciſe of theſe Spiritual Gifts in their Aſſemblies, and ſo a certain Evidence of the Divine Preſence with them, and of the Truth of the Profeſſion they embraced.

This will be farther evident, if we conſider what is aſcribed to theſe Prophets, what Demonſtrations they afforded, that they were truly acted by a Divine Afflatus.

In Proſecution of this Head, I do acknowledge that Propheſie doth 1 Cor. 14. ſignifie, expounding the Scriptures, for Exhortation, Edification and Comfort, but then it ſignifies the doing this by a Divine Afflatus; and when this Gift was exerciſed by Singing, or by praiſing God, this was ſtill done, as Holy Scripture doth inform us, ᾠδαῖς πνευματικαῖς, in Pſalms, and Hymns, and Odes, compoſed by the immediate Impulſe and Aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt; for upon that account alone, could this be ſtyled Praying, and Singing in the Holy Ghoſt, and mentioned as an inſtance of their Spiritual Gifts; and ſuch a Manifeſtation of the Spirit did attend them in this Exerciſe, as made it eaſie for others to diſcern that they were Prophets; for either with the Gift of Propheſie they had the Gift of Tongues, as in the firſt Effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt, when they ſpake with other Tongues the wonderful things of God, Acts 2. 11. and thereby ſhew'd the Spirit of Propheſie which God had promiſed by his Servant Joel, was fulfilled upon them, and on Cornelius and his Kinſmen, the firſt Gentile Converts; for by this were the Jews convinced, that God had ſhed on them alſo the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, that they heard them ſpeak with Tongues, and magnifie God, Act. 10. 44, 45. Or, 2*dly*, They foretold things future and contingent, according to our Saviour's Promiſe, That the Spirit he would ſend, ſhould ſhew them things to come, Joh. 16. 13. Thus we find mention in the Sacred Story, of the Prophet Agabus, who foretold the Year before, that Dearth which hapned in the Reign of Claudius, Acts 11. 27. that other Chriſtians might be moved by this Prediction, to ſend their Charity to their Brethren where the Famine pinched them moſt, as it did in Judea, ſaith Joſephus; and of Timothy, choſen to be an Evangeliſt, according to the foregoing Propheſies concerning him; whence by the Ancients this Gift was ſtyled, ὁ ἐκ προγνώσεως, the Gift of Foreknowledge.

Moreover, in the Epiſtles of St. Paul we find not only mention of Prophets ſettled in the Church, and of Propheſie reckoned among the Gifts of the good Spirit, but we find him comparing it with other Gifts; particularly, (Firſt,) with that of Tongues, and preferring it before that Gift, as being ſuch a Gift as tended more to the Edification of the Church; For greater is he that propheſieth, than he that ſpeaketh with Tongues, ſaith the Apoſtle; for he that ſpeaketh with Tongues edifieth himſelf only, but he that propheſieth edifies the Church, 1 Cor. 14. 2, 5. Hence he declareth his Deſire, that they ſhould rather propheſie, than ſpeak with Tongues. (2*dly*,) He compares it with that of Charity, declaring in that caſe, that Charity excels it, becauſe, tho' we have the Gift of Propheſie, and underſtand all Myſteries, and all Knowledge, yet if we have not Charity we are nothing, 1 Cor. 13. 2. and becauſe Propheſies ſhall ceaſe, but Charity never ceaſeth, ver. 8. Moreover, he gives Directions to Prophets, to propheſie, according to the proportion of Faith, Rom. 12. 6. to propheſie ſucceſſively, or one by one, and let the other Prophets judge, 1 Cor. 14. 29. and to hold their Peace when any thing is revealed to another Prophet, ver. 10. He alſo blames them for propheſying all together, in a confuſed manner, and without Obſervation of due Order, and for ſuffering their Women to propheſie in the Church, ver. 39.

And yet after all these Directions, he exhorts them to covet Prophesie, and saith, Quench not the Holy Spirit, despise not Prophesies, 1 Thess. 5. 19, 20. Now these things give us an unquestionable Evidence, that this Gift was then plentifully conferr'd upon the Church of Christ; for could the Apostle talk with so great Confidence in his Epistles directed to Christian Churches, of Prophets, and a Gift of Prophesie vouchsafed to them, and setled in the Church by God? Could he speak so much of the Edification, which the Church received by those who had the Gift of Prophesie, and of the Revelations which they made by Virtue of it, and of the Effect it had on Unbelievers, to force them to acknowledge, that God was present with the Church? Could he compare it with other Gifts then extant in the Church, and give it the Pre-eminence above them, and with the Grace of Charity, exalting that even above Tongues and Prophesie? Could he give Directions to the Prophets then among them, how to exercise this Gift, and chide them for abusing it? Could he say to them, Covet and despise not Prophesies, and could he close those Sayings with these Words, If any Man be a Prophet, or Spiritual, let him acknowledge, that the things I write to you are the Commandments of God? 1 Cor. 14. 37. I say, could he have written all these things in such Epistles as were embraced, as the Word of God, had it not been beyond exception, that there was such a Gift of Prophesie vouchsafed to, and exercised in the Church of God.

Lastly, Of the Continuance of this Gift of Prophesie, not only in the Age of the Apostles, but also in the Age succeeding, we have sufficient Evidence from the best Writers of the Christian Church. For,

First, Hermas, Contemporary with St. Paul, speaks of this Gift as still remaining, and usually practised in the Church of Christ: For he professedly gives Rules, by which all Christians might distinguish betwixt true and false Prophets, those who were acted by an evil Spirit, and those who were acted by the Holy Ghost, saying, That he who had the earthly Spirit, came not into the Congregation of just Men; or if he came thither, (l. 2. c. 11.) Obmutescit, nec quidquam potest loqui, He was presently struck dumb, and had no power to speak before them. But (s) when a Man comes, saith he, who hath the Spirit of God, into the Congregation of the Just, and prays to God, he is then filled with a Divine Afflatus, and speaketh as God will. Whence two things are evident:

(First,) That he supposeth there were then Men in the Church inspired with the Spirit of Prophesie. (2*dly*,) That this Prophetical Afflatus came upon them, and was exerted by them in the Assemblies of the Church.

Of the Continuance of this Gift in the Second Century, we have a signal Testimony of the Church of Smyrna, declaring, That Polycarp their Bishop, was διδάσκαλος ἀποστολικὸς, καὶ προφητικὸς, an Apostolical and Prophetical Teacher; for, say they, (t) every Word he spake, hath been already fulfilled, and will be fulfilled.

Eusebius makes mention of (u) Quadratus as an Apostolical Man, and one of the first Order of their Successors, who was, saith he, προφητικῷ χαρίσματι διαφέρας, celebrated for his Prophetical Gift.

Justin Martyr speaks of himself, as a Disciple of the Apostles; and Methodius saith, He was not far from the Apostles; now he expressly saith to (w) Trypho, παρ' ἡμῖν καὶ μέχρι νῦν προφητικὰ χαρίσματα ἐστιν, we have still Prophetical Gifts among us.

Irenæus was also near to the Apostles Times, saith Basil and St. Austin; and he not only declares, That some Christians had then (x) προγνωσιν τῶν μελλόντων, καὶ ὀπτασίας, καὶ ῥήσεις προφητικὰς, the Knowledge of Things future, and Visions, and Prophetical Predictions, but confirms this from what he and others had then heard; for, saith he, St. Paul calls them perfect, who had received the Spirit, and by him spake with all Tongues; καθὼς καὶ ἀκούομεν πολλῶν ἀδελφῶν ἐν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ προφητικὰ χαρίσματα ἐχόντων, (y) as also we have heard many Brethren in the Church, who had Prophetical Gifts, and by the Spirit ſpake with all Tongues, and diſcovered the Secrets of Men, and expounded the Myſteries of God. Moreover, three things are in this Matter very remarkable.

Firſt, That by this very Argument, the Chriſtians of the Second and third Century, endeavoured to convince the Jews, that their Religion was to give place to Chriſtianity, that God had left their Synagogues, and was now efficaciouſly preſent with thoſe Churches who had embraced the Chriſtian Faith, becauſe that Gift of Propheſie which formerly had been peculiar to the Jewiſh Church, had now entirely left them, and was tranſlated to the Aſſemblies of Chriſtians, among whom they remained, μέχρι νῦν, to that preſent time, as hath been proved already by the Teſtimonies of Juſtin Martyr, in his Dialogue with (z) Trypho. Thus to Celſus, pleading in the Perſon of a Jew for that Religion againſt Chriſtianity, Origen declares, That the Divinity of Chriſt had transferr'd his Providence from the Jews, to the converted Gentiles; for, ſaith he, we may ſee them after the coming of our Lord, entirely deſerted, and having nothing venerable that remains among them, they having now no Prophets, and no Miracles, (a) ὧν κἂν ἴχνη ἐπὶ πόσον παρὰ Χριστιανοῖς εὑρίσκεται, καὶ πνὰ γε μείζονα, of which ſome conſiderable Footſteps have ſo long remained among Chriſtians.

2*dly*, The Caſe of Montanus, and his Followers, pretending to this Gift of Propheſie, hath in it many Circumſtances, which plainly ſhew, this Gift did ſtill continue in ſome meaſure in the Church. For, (Firſt,) Euſebius informs us, That when Montanus, Alcibiades, and Theodotus in Phrygia, pretended to the Gift of Propheſie, (b) many believed they might be Prophets, becauſe many extraordinary Operations of the Divine Gift, were ſtill performed in divers Churches.

(2*dly*,) They confute the Montaniſts pretence to this Gift, by the Falſhoods which they utter'd; Maximilla, one of his Propheteſſes, having declared, That after her, there ſhould be no Prophets, but the conſummation of all things; and becauſe they left no Prophets to ſucceed them, whereas, ſay they, (c) the Prophetick Gift is to continue in all Churches; which ſhews, it did continue then; for otherwiſe, this Objection muſt have been as ſtrong againſt the Church of Chriſt, as againſt the Sect of the Montaniſts. And, Laſtly, They confute them from their way of Propheſying, they ſpeaking ſtill in Ecſtaſies and ſtrange Emotions of their Minds; Whereas, ſay they, (d) the Prophets under the Old Teſtament, and ours under the New, Agabus, Judas, Silas, Quadratus, and many others, were never ſubject to ſuch Ecſtaſies; whence they concluded, μὴ δεῖν Προφήτην ἐν ἐκστάσει λαλεῖν, that Prophets muſt not ſpeak in Ecſtaſies.

Laſtly, It farther is obſervable, that ſome Hereticks denied the Goſpel of St. John, becauſe he had ſo fully ſpoken of the Promiſe which our Lord had made to his Diſciples, That he would ſend the Comforter to teach them all things, and ſhew them things to come. They rejected alſo the Epiſtles of St. Paul, becauſe in his Epiſtle to the Corinthians, he had ſo fully ſpoken, de propheticis chariſmatibus, of the Prophetical Gifts. Now theſe, ſaith (y) Irenæus, are unhappy Men who chuſe themſelves to be falſe Prophets, i. e. to ſpeak in God's Name, when they confeſs they are not taught of God, and who endeavour to repel the Grace of Prophecy from the Church; which Words ſuppoſe it was extant in the Church of God.

§ XIII. There is one other Divine Gift which beareth ſome affinity to that of Prophecy, which therefore I ſhall briefly handle, viz. that of diſcerning Spirits. Now this imports not only the Skill of diſcerning betwixt true and falſe Prophets, which he that had ſeems by (z) St. Clemens to be ſtiled, ὁ σοφὸς ἐν διακρίσει τῶν λόγων, a wiſe Man in diſcerning words.

or in distinguishing betwixt the lying Wonders, and Magical Operations of evil Spirits, and the Powers of the Holy Ghost, which must be in some measure common to all Christians, they being all enjoyned to try the Spirits whether they be of God, 1 Thess. 5. 20. 1 John 4. 1. But chiefly it signifies the Power of discerning the inward Operations of the Soul, and of discovering the Secrets of Mens Hearts. Thus of the Prophets of the Church of Corinth; every one, saith St. Paul, hath his Revelation: And again, if ye all prophesie, and there come into your assembly, one who is an unbeliever, or unlearned, he is convinced of all, ἀνακρίνεται ὑπὸ πάντων, his Actions are discerned by all the Prophets, and thus are the secrets of his heart laid open, and so falling down upon his face, he will worship God, and declare that God is in you of a truth, 1 Cor. 14. 14. 26, 30. So Peter discerned the Heart of Ananias and Saphira, saying to Ananias, Why hath Satan filled thy Heart to lye to the Holy Ghost? And to Saphira, Why have you agreed to tempt the Holy Ghost? Act. 5. 3, 9. i.e. having joyn'd your selves to the Assembly of Christians, where you have had so great Experience of the Assistance of the Holy Spirit, to declare the Secrets of Men, why, after such Experience, have you dared to lye in the Assemblies of those Men in which the Holy Spirit thus resides, and thereby shew you doubt his Power to reveal what you have fraudulently conceal'd? He also knew the Heart of Simon Magus, for to him he speaks thus, Acts 8. 22, 23. I perceive thy heart is not right before God, but thou art in the gall of bitterness, and in the bond of iniquity. 'Twas by this Gift that St. Paul at Lystra looking upon a blind Man, saw that he had faith to be heal'd, Act. 14. 9. (a) Ignatius also speaks of the Spirit in him that did τὰ κρύπτα ἐλέγχειν, reprove things secret, and (b) Irenæus, that the Brethren which had the spiritual Gift, did τὰ κρύφια τῶν ἀνθρώπων εἰς φανερὸν ἄγειν, discover the hidden things of Men.

It was discovered in discerning Mens Fitness or Qualifications for any Office in the Church; and accordingly in setting them apart for that Office. Thus the Holy Ghost, in the Prophets, said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them. Thus is the Holy Ghost said to have made the Bishops and Presbyters in Asia the Overseers of the Churches there, Acts 20. 28. Because, as (c) Clemens Romanus saith, the Apostles constituted Bishops and Deacons, δοκιμάζοντες τῷ πνεύματι, approving of them by the Spirit. And (d) Clemens of Alexandria, that St. John ordained to be of the Clergy, τοὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ πνεύματος ἀμὰ σημαινομένους, them who were signified to him by the Spirit. And (e) Ignatius saith of the Bishops of his time, that they were constituted not by Men, but Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ γνώμῃ, by the Council of Christ Jesus.

§ XIV. I proceed, Lastly, To shew the reason we have to believe that these extraordinary Gifts were equally conferr'd upon other Churches, as upon those which the Apostles mention in their Epistles. This we may gather,

1*st*, From these Expressions of St. Paul to the Church of Corinth, in which they were so plentifully exercised; for his Enquiry to them runs thus: What is it wherein you were inferiour to other Churches? 2 Cor. 12. 13. and his Assertion thus, In every thing you are enriched by him in all utterance, and in all knowledge, so that ye came behind the other Churches in no gift, 1 Cor. 1. 5, 7. which words plainly insinuate, that all other Churches were plentifully endowed with these Gifts.

2*dly*, This also may be gathered from the Reason of the thing: For the Operations of the Holy Ghost are said to be designed for these ends; 1. The Confirmation of the Testimony, and the Faith of Christ, 1 Cor. 1. 6, and their establishment in Christ, 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. 2. The edification of the Body of Christ, 1 Cor. 12. 7. Eph. 4. 11, 12. 3. To be a pledge and earnest of their adoption, and their future happiness, Rom. 8. 23. 2 Cor. 1. 22. Gal. 4. 6, 7. Eph. 1. 13. 4. To be their comfort under persecutions, Rom. 5. 3, 5. 2 Cor. 1. 7. 1 Pet. 4. 14. Now these are ends as necessary for all, as for any Christian Churches, who must all equally need the Confirmation of their Faith, the Work of the Ministry, the Perfecting the Saints, and the Edification of the Body of Christ, the Support and Comfort of the Spirit under Persecutions, the Pledge and Earnest of their future Hopes.

3*dly*, This also may be gathered from that Account which the Apostle giveth of Spiritual Gifts, and Spiritual Persons in the Church. The Gifts given for the Edification of the Church in general are these, the Word of Wisdom, and of Knowledge, the Gifts of Healing, the working of Miracles, Prophecy, discerning of Spirits, kinds of Tongues, and the Inter- pretation of them, 1 Cor. 12. 8, 9, 10. The Persons exercising them are mentioned thus; God hath set some in the Church, first Apostles, secondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers, after that Miracles, then the Gifts of Healing, &c. v. 28. And in the Epistle to the Ephesians thus, He gave some Apostles, some Prophets, some Evangelists, some Pastors and Teachers, for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the Ministry, for the edifying the Body of Christ, Eph. 4. 11, 12. Which places evidently shew that these were Gifts designed for the benefit of all the Churches of Christ in general, and exercised by these Persons as they went about to plant, or to confirm the Churches, the Power of Miracles, and the Gift of Healing, being also exercised by them in Confirmation of that Faith they preached according to our Saviour's Promise. So that some Gifts seem for some time constantly exercised by the Members of each Church in their Assemblies, and others by those Persons who preached the Gospel first among them, or travel'd to confirm the Churches, and so all had Experience, more, or less, of these Spiritual Operations done among them.

Lastly, From the Consideration of that Baptism which they all generally received; for as the Promise ran to the Jews in general, that they should be baptized with the Holy Ghost. Matth. 3. 11. to every one that would believe, and be baptized, that they should receive the Holy Ghost, Acts 2. 38. and that because the Promise was to them, and to their Children, καὶ πᾶσι τοῖς εἰς μακρὰν, and to all that were afar off, even as many as the Lord should call; so was this Promise signally fulfilled to the Believers of the Jewish Nation, who being enlightned, φωτισθέντες, that is, baptized, they also tasted of the Spiritual Gift, and were made Partakers of the Holy Ghost, and of the Powers of the World to come, Hebr. 6. 4, 5. See the Note there: And great Grace was upon them all, Act. 4. 33. To the Believers in Samaria, for when the Apostles, Peter, and John, laid their hands upon them, they received the Holy Ghost, Acts 8. 17. To the Converts of the Gentiles; for by one Spirit they were all baptized into one Body, 1 Cor. 12. 13. and after they believed, they were all sealed with the Spirit of Promise, Eph. 1. 13. they being saved, by the washing of Regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Ghost, which was shed on them abundantly through Jesus Christ, Tit. 2. 5, 6. All Christians therefore being made Members of Christ's Body by Baptism, all Christian Churches, and Bodies must have these powerful Gifts conferr'd upon, and exercised by some of the Members of those Churches, to the edification of the rest.

Accordingly it is declared by Justin M. of them who were converted to the Christian Faith, that being (a) baptized in the Name of Christ they received, some the Spirit of Knowledge, some of Counsel, some of Fortitude, some of Healing, some of Fore-knowledge, some of Doctrine.

§ XV. To conclude, the Primitive Professors, and Martyrs for the Christian Faith afford us a full Testimony of the Continuance of these Gifts and Operations of the Holy Ghost in the next Ages of the Church. (b) Clemens Romanus, in his Epistle to the Church, of Corinth, saith, There was πλήρης πνεύματος ἁγίου ἔγχυσις ἐπὶ πάντας, a full Effusion of the Holy Spirit upon them all. (c) Ignatius saith of the Church of Smyrna, that she was ἐκλεκτὴ ἐν παντὶ χαρίσματι, favoured with all Gifts, and was deficient in none. (d) Justin saith, That even their Men and Women had the Gifts of the Holy Ghost. Eusebius, having mention'd the first Order of the Successors of the Apostles, he saith, that (e) even then they performed many wondrous Works by the Holy Ghost. 'Tis needless, saith (f) Irenæus, to insist upon Particulars, for the miraculous Gifts which the Church throughout the World enjoys, and the beneficial Miracles she worketh for the good of Heathens, are innumerable. This he saith after he had enumerated among the Gifts then given to Believers the casting out of Devils, Prophecy, the Knowledge of things future, the healing the sick, and the raising the dead. And when Montanus appeared, there was not only in the Church the Gift of Prophecy, but in divers Churches (g) many other strange Works perform'd by the Divine Gift.

Here then we find, by all these early Testimonies, That in the two first Centuries many Gifts of the Holy Ghost were still continued in all Churches, that every one at their Baptism received some or other of them. These also are Relations not of things past, or of things done in a corner, but of things commonly performed in the face of the Assemblies, and so confirmed by the joint Testimonies of all Christian Churches; they were Miracles which their own Eyes had seen, Tongues and Prophetick Gifts which their own Ears had heard; Gifts which they used against the Jews and Hereticks for their Conviction; and beneficial Miracles so truly wrought upon the Heathen, that they were efficacious to engage them to espouse and persevere to the end, in the Profession of the Christian Faith. This therefore is, saith (h) Origen, αὐτὴ ἀπόδειξις τῦ λόγυ, the proper Demonstration of our Jesus, no other Pretender to the Power of doing Signs or Wonders, having ever derived that Power from himself to others, or engaged that Believers should so generally receive it, none ever pretending to enable their Followers to speak with Tongues, discover the Secrets of Mens Hearts, or confer all, or any of these Gifts upon their Proselytes. It also must be owned as a most convincing Demonstration of the Truth, and the Divine Original of that Faith which ministred these Gifts so plentifully to its Professors.

§ XVI. And oh that all who by this Demonstration of the Spirit are convinced of the Truth of Christian Faith, would seriously consider how much it doth concern them, in point of Interest and Wisdom, to yield to Obedience to all the Precepts of that Faith! For, if the Gentiles were given up to vile Affections, and a reprobate mind, Rom. 1. 24, 26. only for Sins committed against the dim and the imperfect Light of Nature; if the Jews received a just recompence for every Transgression of the Law delivered by Moses to them; how shall we escape if we neglect this great Salvation, which at the first was spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed by them that heard, God bearing witness to it by divers Signs and Wonders, and Distributions of the Holy Ghost? Hebr. 2. 3, 4. And to this end, consider,

1*st*, That by our Disobedience to the Christian Precepts we contradict the great Design of all these Demonstrations of the Holy Spirit, they being all intended, saith St. Paul, to make the Gentiles obedient in word and deed, Rom. 15. 18.

2*dly*, That all our Certainty of Christian Faith doth highly aggravate the Guilt of our Transgression of the Christian Precepts: For the stronger is the Motive to believe, the greater is the Guilt of Disobedience, because such Motives may be easily discerned, and so our Ignorance of them must be less excusable; and we cannot resist their Evidence, but we must offer Violence to the Convictions of our Consciences, and so we have no cloak for our Sin.

3*dly*, That though we own the Christian Faith, and our Lord Jesus; yet whilst we live in Disobedience to his Precepts, God looks upon us as mere Infidels, such as in words profess to know him, but in works deny him, being disobedient, Titus 1. 16. Our Faith at least must be irrational and absurd, for why call ye me Lord, Lord, saith Christ, and do not the things that I say? Luke 6. 46. And 'twill be as unprofitable, as it is irrational; for though we know these things, we only can be happy if we do them, John 13. 17.

To conclude all, Our Convictions of the Truth of Christian Faith, add Strength to those Engagements and Encouragements which that Religion offers towards a Virtuous and Holy Life; for if all that is delivered in these Sacred Records be the revealed Will of God, then all the Promises and comfortable Passages contained in them, will be assuredly made good to all obedient Christians, and the Assurance of such inestimable Blessings as the Gospel promiseth, must lay upon us strong Engagements to be stedfast and unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, as knowing that our Labour shall not be in vain in the Lord.

Epiſtle to the ROMANS.

IT is the general Note of the Ancient Commentators, that though this Epiſtle be in place the firſt of all St. Paul's Epiſtles, yet was it not firſt written by him, but was * the laſt of all he wrote from Aſia, Macedonia, and Achaia, before he went to Rome: The Epiſtles to the Theſſalonians, to the Corinthians, and the Epiſtle to the Galatians, being writ before it. They therefore think that it was placed firſt, either as being written † to the Imperial City, as ſome thought, or for the Excellency of the Doctrine contained in it, as others do conjecture. So ſaith Theodoret in his Preface.

It was written from Corinth, as the ſame Ancients note, for he calleth Eraſtus the Chamberlain of the City from whence he writ it, Chap. 16. 23. and he had his abode at Corinth, 2 Tim. 4. He calleth Gaius his Hoſt, i. e. the Man with whom he lodged, Chap. 16. 23. now he was a Corinthian, 1 Cor. 1. 14. He commendeth to them Phœbe, a Servant of the Church at Chencræa, Chap. 16. 1. now Chencræa was a Port of Corinth. Moreover it was written thence, not when St. Paul travelled through Greece, Acts 20. 2. for that then he came to Corinth is not ſaid; nay, it is gainſaid by St. Paul himſelf, who in his Second Epiſtle to the Corinthians, writ the ſame Year with this, excuſes himſelf for not coming to them, Chap. 1. and declares, that the third time he was ready to come to them, Chap. 13. 1. Add to this that when he writ this Epiſtle to the Romans, he knew the Contributions of the Church of Corinth were actually made, and even depoſited in his hands, he being then going up with them to Jeruſalem, Rom. 15. 25–28. Whereas when he travelled Greece, and came to Macedonia, Acts 20. 1, 3. they either indeed were not ſo, or at the leaſt he knew not that they were ſo, and therefore ſent firſt Titus, and then his Second Epiſtle to them, that they might be ſo, Chapters 8, 9.

It was written to the Romans when he had not ſeen them, Chap. 1. 11. and before he was gone up to Jeruſalem, for he was but then going thither, Rom. 15. 15. and purpoſed from thence to go by Rome to Spain, v. 28. And ſo it muſt be written A. D. 57. for we find him at Jeruſalem, Acts 21. 6. and a Priſoner under Felix in the fourth Year of Nero. See Dr. Pearſon, Annal. Paulin, p. 15, 16.

That the Church of Rome conſiſted partly of the Jews then dwelling there, we learn both from the 14*th Chapter, where the* Gentiles are exhorted to bear with their weakneſs. And from the 15*th Chapter, where he ſpeaks thus,* I have written unto you more boldly, ἀπὸ μέρους, as to the Gentile part. See the Note there, v. 15, 16. And from the Salutations ſent to them at Rome, they being chiefly ſent to them of the Jewiſh Nation.

The two Great Doctrines laid down in this Epiſtle, are (1.) That of Juſtification by Faith alone, without the Works of the Law. Of which ſee the Preface to the Epiſtle to the Galatians. And (2.) The Myſtery of the Calling of the Gentiles, the Rejection at preſent of the Jews, and the recalling of them when the fulneſs of the Gentiles was to come in.

Laſtly, It is obſervable, that among all his Salutations to thoſe of Rome, he hath not one directed to St. Peter, nor doth he give us any hint that St. Peter then had ever been at Rome, or planted any Church there, which, as it makes it highly probable he had not then been there at all, ſo doth it make it certain that St. Paul knew not of his being there when this Epiſtle was endited.

A PARAPHRASE WITH ANNOTATIONS ON THE Epiſtle to the ROMANS.

CHAP I.

a Verſe 1. PAul, a Servant of Jeſus Chriſt, called to be an Apoſtle, a ſeparated to the Goſpel of God.

2. Which [Goſpel] he had promiſed afore by his Prophets in the holy Scriptures [ſpeaking in them,]

3. Concerning his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, who was made of the Seed of David according to the fleſh, [Acts 2.30. 2 *Tim.*2.8. and]

b 4. b Declared to be the Son of God [inveſted] with Power, according to the Spirit of Holineſs [reſiding in him without meaſure, John 3. 34. and] by the Reſurrection from the dead.

5. By whom [thus raiſed and inveſted with all power, and acting now not as a Prophet, but as Lord of all, by the whole fulneſs of c the Godhead] we have received c Grace, and Apoſtleſhip [i. e. the office of an Apoſtle, and the Grace belonging to it] for obedience to the Faith among [Gr. in] all Nations.

6. Among whom are ye alſo the called of Jeſus Chriſt.

7. [I Paul write] to all that be in Rome beloved of God, called to be Saints, [Gr. Saints called. See Note on 1 Cor. 1. 1. wiſhing] Grace [may] be [given] to you from God our Father, and [from] the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

8. [And] firſt, I thank my God through Jeſus Chriſt [the Fountain of all our Bleſſings, Eph. 1. 3.] for [the Converſion wrought in] you all [ſo viſibly] that your Faith is ſpoken of throughout the world.

9. [This happy ſucceſs of the Goſpel being very grateful to me,] for God is my witneſs, whom I ſerve with my ſpirit in the Goſpel of his Son, that without ceaſing [Gr. how unceſſantly] I make mention of you.

10. Making requeſt [Gr. requeſting] always in my prayers to come to you, if by any means, now at length, I might have a proſperous journey by the will of God;

11. For I long to ſee you, d that I may d impart to you ſome ſpiritual gift, to the end that you may be eſtabliſhed.

12. That is, that I may be e comforted e together with you, by the mutual Faith, both of you [through faith receiving] and me [by faith imparting theſe gifts.]

13. Now I would not have you ignorant, Brethren, that oftentimes I purpoſed to come to you, that I might have ſome fruit among you alſo, even as among other Gentiles, [though through many hindrances I have not been able to accompliſh my purpoſe, Ch. 15. 22.]

14. For [as] I am a debtor both to the Greeks, and the Barbarians; both to the wiſe, and to the unwiſe, [as having by God the diſpenſation of the Goſpel committed to me for their ſakes, 1 Cor. 9. 6.]

15. So, as much as is in me, I am ready to f preach the Goſpel to you that are at f Rome alſo.

16. For I am not aſhamed of the Goſpel of Chriſt, for it is [attended with] the power of God to ſalvation, to every one that believeth, to the Jew firſt, [to whom it was by God's appointment to be firſt preached, Acts 3. 26. and 13. 46.] and alſo to the Gentile.

17. For therein is g the Righteouſneſs of g i beget in men faith] as it is written, i but the juſt ſhall live by faith.

18. [And this way of Juſtification, or obtaining Remiſſion of Sins, is neceſſary to exempt all men, whether Jew, or Gentile, from the wrath of God;] for [to begin firſt with k the Gentiles;] k the wrath of God is reveal-l ed from heaven l againſt all ungodlineſs, and unrighteouſneſs of [thoſe] men who hold the truth, [they know by the light of nature,] in unrighteouſneſs.

19. Becauſe that which may be known of God [by the light of Nature] is manifeſt in, [or, to] them, for God hath ſhewed it to them.

m 20. For the inviſible things of him m from the Creation of the World are clearly ſeen, [or, are clearly ſeen (even) from the creation of the World,] being underſtood by the things that are made, [i.e. by his works,] even his eternal Power and Godhead; ſo that they are without excuſe; [viz. who do not worſhip him alone as God, who is the Creator of all things, but rather give the worſhip due unto him, to the works of his hands.]

21. Becauſe when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, [by giving him the honour due to the Deity,] neither were thankful [to him, who giveth to all men, life, breath, and all things, Acts 17.28. and 14.17.] but became vain in their Imaginations [of him,] and their fooliſh heart was darkned.

22. Profeſſing themſelves to be wiſe, [and uſurping that name, v. 14. 1 Cor. 1. 20, 21.] they became, [in their actions,] fools.

n 23. And changed n the glory of the incorruptible God into an Image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beaſts, and creeping things.

24. Wherefore God alſo gave them up to uncleanneſs, through the luſts of their own hearts, to diſhonour their bodies among themſelves, [as did the Sodomites and Canaanites of old, ἀπελθοῦσαι ὀπίσω σαρκὸς ἑτέρας, Jude 7.]

25. [As being alſo men] who changed the truth of God into a lie, [worſhipping as God's them who by nature were no Gods, Gal. 4. 8. or only Demons, 1 Cor. 10. 20.] and [they] ſerved the o Creature more than the Crea- o tor, who is bleſſed for ever. Amen.

26. For this cauſe God gave them [farther] up to vile affections, for even their women did change the natural uſe [of their bodies,] into that which is againſt nature. [See Lucian. Διάλ. ἑταιρ. Κλωνάριον καὶ Λέαινα.]

27. And alſo the men, leaving the natural uſe of the women, burned in their luſts one towards another, men with men working that which was unſeemly, [Gr. filthineſs,] and receiving in themſelves that recompence of their error which was meet; (i.e. being given up thus to diſhonour their own Bodies, (See Lucian's ἔρωτες) for the diſhonour they did to God by their Idolatry.]

28. And as they liked not to retain God in their knowledge, [ſo] p God gave them p up q to a reprobate mind, to do thoſe things q which were not convenient: [They]

29. Being filled with all unrighteouſneſs, fornication, wickedneſs, covetouſneſs, maliciouſneſs, full of envy, murther, debate, deceit, malignity, whiſperers,

30. Backbiters, haters of God, deſpiteful, proud, boaſters, inventers of evil things, diſobedient to parents;

31. Without underſtanding, covenant breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful;

32. Who knowing the judgment of God, [viz.] that they who do ſuch things are r worthy of death, not only do the ſame, r but s have pleaſure in them that do them. s

Annotations on Chap. I.

a Verſe 1. ἀφωρισμένος, ſeparated.] He in this word ſeems to allude to his former Separation when he lived a Phariſee, i. e. one ſeparated from all Ceremonial Defilement, and from the People of the Earth, i. e. the Common People, who obſerved not the exact Rules of Legal Purity; ſaying, That he was ſeparated now, not to a nicer obſervation of the Jewiſh Rites and Cuſtoms, but to the Preaching of the Goſpel of God; and the affinity betwixt this, and the Epiſtle to the Galatians, both as to Matter and Style, inclines me not to interpret the Apoſtle of the Separation mention'd Acts 13. 2. where the Holy Ghoſt ſaith, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work of the Miniſtry, to which I have appointed them; but of God's ſeparating him from his mother's womb, and calling him to that work, Gal. 1. 15.

V. 4. ὁρισθέντος, declared to be the Son of God.] b Chriſt, while he was on Earth, declared that he was the Son of God, whom the Father had ſanctified, and ſet apart to his Prophetick Office: Accordingly the Spirit of God deſcended on him at his Baptiſm, and a voice from heaven ſaid, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleaſed; this he proved from the powerful Works wrought by him, that he was the Son of God, ſanctified and conſecrated to his Office by the Spirit of God abiding in him, and ſo was in the Father, and the Father in him, declaring that he did his Miracles by the Power of the Holy Ghoſt, and by the Spirit of God did caſt out Devils, Matth. 12. 28. And thus St. Peter repreſents this Prophet to Cornelius, ſaying, God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghoſt, and with power, who [therefore] went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the Devil, for God was with him, Acts 10. 38. And thus it ſeemeth neceſſary he ſhould act in his Prophetical Office, a Prophet being a Perſon ſent from God, and ſpeaking in his Name, and acted by his Spirit in the delivery and confirmation of his Meſſage; That our Great Prophet Jeſus was, as in a more ſublime, ſo in this ſenſe, the Son of God, endowed with power of working Miracles by the Holy Ghoſt for confirmation of his Doctrine, God hath demonſtrated, ſaith the Apoſtle here, by raiſing him from the dead.

c Ver. 5. Χάριν καὶ Ἀποστολὴν, Grace and Apoſtleſhip.] That is, ſaith Oecumenius, χάριν εἰς ἀποστολὴν, Grace for the Office of Apoſtles; the favour to be Apoſtles, ſay ſome, becauſe the Apoſtle calls this Office, Grace, Rom. 15. 15. Gal. 2. 9. Eph. 3. 2—7. but where he doth ſo, there is always ſomething added of the Gifts and Powers by which they were enabled to exerciſe it: v. g. To me is this grace given, that I may be the Miniſter of Chriſt to the Gentiles, Rom. 15. 15, 16. In the power of Signs, and Miracles, and Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, v. 19. James, Cephas, and John knew the grace given to me, Gal. 2. 9. becauſe God had wrought mightily with me towards the Gentiles, V. 8. And Eph. 3. 2. there is mention of the Grace of God given to St. Paul; but then 'tis added, that he is made a Miniſter, according to the gift of the Grace of God, given to him by the effectual working of his power, V. 7. I therefore think fit to joyn both together, and give the ſenſe of the words thus: By whom we have received the Office of Apoſtles, and Grace through his Name to call all Nations to the obedience of Faith in him; or to yield Obedience to the Faith preached in his name.

d V. 11. Ἵνα τι μεταδῶ χάρισμα ὑμῖν πνευματικὸν, that I might impart to you ſome ſpiritual Gift.] This is by moſt interpreted of the Spirit of Wiſdom and Knowledge, by which St. Paul would inſtruct them: I rather chuſe to refer it to ſome Spiritual Gift he at his coming would beſtow upon them, by the Impoſition of his Hands upon ſome of them, as the Apoſtles uſed to do, Acts 8. 17. and 19. 6. 2 Tim. 1. 6. For (firſt) that is moſt agreeable to the phraſe μεταδῶναι χάρισμα πνευματικὸν, to give the Spirit, or a Spiritual Gift. And (ſecondly) to his words in the cloſe of this Epiſtle, that he ſhall come to them in the fulneſs τῆς εὐλογίας of the bleſſing of the Goſpel of Chriſt, that Phraſe being applied to the giving of the Spirit, and his Gifts, Gal. 3. 14. Eph. 1. 3. And (thirdly) to the end here aſſigned of the imparting this Gift, viz. the Eſtabliſhment of the Romans in the Faith: For the vouchſafement of the Spirit, and his Gifts unto the Churches, is ſtill called βεβαίωσις the Confirmation of them in the Faith, 1 Cor. 1. 5, 6. 2 Cor. 1. 21, 22. and 5. 5. Gal. 5. 5. 1 Theſſ. 1. 5.

Ver. 12. Συμπαρακληθῆναι, to be comforted together with you.] It being both a comfort and eſtabliſhment of Faith in them, to receive theſe Gifts of the Spirit, and in him, to be able to impart them to them, and to find God ſo effectually working by him. e

V. 15. Τοῖς ἐν Ῥώμῃ εὐαγγελίσασθαι, to preach the Goſpel to you at Rome.] St. Paul here ſeems plainly to challenge Rome as part of his Province, as being the Apoſtle of the Gentiles. So again, Chap. 11. 13. I ſpeak to you, Gentiles, in as much as I am the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, I magnifie my Office. And Chap. 15. 15. I have written the more boldly to you in part, i. e. as to the Gentile part among you, as putting you in remembrance of the grace given to me of God, v. 16. that I ſhould be the Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles; and ſo on to v. 30. And here, I purpoſed to come to you Gentiles, for I am a debtor, &c. When therefore the Ancients tell us, that St. Peter was Biſhop of Rome, as well as St. Paul, this can be only true of Peter as to the Jewiſh Converts there, whilſt St. Paul was the Apoſtle and Biſhop of the Gentiles at Rome, according to the Agreement made between them, that Paul and Barnabas ſhould go unto the Gentiles, St. Peter and John to the Circumciſion, Gal. 2. 9. And ſo the Biſhop of Rome, if he will be St. Peter's Succeſſor, muſt only preach to the Jews, or be the Biſhop of the Circumciſion. Moreover, it ſeems highly probable that St. Peter was not yet come to Rome, much leſs had ſettled his See there; for if ſo, why ſhould St. Paul be ſo deſirous, ſo often purpoſing to come to them, that he might impart ſome ſpiritual Gift to them, to the end they might be eſtabliſhed, unleſs St. Peter were either unſufficient for, or very negligent in that work? See the Preface to this Epiſtle. f

Ver. 17. Δικαιοσύνη Θεοῦ, the Righteouſneſs of God.]. This Phraſe in St. Paul's ſtile, doth always ſignifie the Righteouſneſs of Faith in Jeſus Chriſt dying, or ſhedding his blood for us. So Chap. 3. 20, 21. The Righteouſneſs of God without the Law is manifeſt, to wit, the Righteouſneſs of God through Faith in Jeſus Chriſt. The ſame Apoſtle having declared, that the Gentiles, who followed not after righteouſneſs, had obtained unto Righteouſneſs, even the Righteouſneſs of Faith; but Iſrael not believing had not attained to the Law of Righteouſneſs, Rom. 9. 30, 31. He proves the ſecond Aſſertion thus: For they being ignorant of the Righteouſneſs of God, and ſeeking to eſtabliſh their own Righteouſneſs (which is of the Law,) have not ſubmitted τῇ δικαιοσύνῃ τοῦ Θεοῦ to the Righteouſneſs of God; i. e. to the Righteouſneſs of Faith in Chriſt, to which the Gentiles had ſubmitted, Chap. 10. 3. For Chriſt is the end of the Law for Righteouſneſs; i. e. for Juſti- g fication through Faith in Chriſt, v. 10. See the Note on 2 Cor. 5. 21. The Righteouſneſs of God is therefore manifeſtly taken for Goſpel Righteouſneſs, as Mr. Cl. notes on Rom. 3. p. 263. But when he adds, that is, for ſanctity of life conſequent upon Repentance, he is miſerably out; for this Righteouſneſs conſiſts not in our Sanctification, but in our Juſtification, or Abſolution from our Sins paſt, through Faith in the Blood of Chriſt, ſhed for the Remiſſion of Sins.

h Ib. Ἐκ πίστεως εἰς πίστιν, from, i.e. by faith to faith.] Ἐκ being here put for διὰ, as in this very Verſe, the juſt ſhall live ἐκ πίστεως by his faith. So Chap. 3. 20. It is one God who will juſtifie the Circumciſion ἐκ πίστεως through faith, and the uncircumciſion διὰ πίστεως by the ſame faith. So ἡ ἐκ πίστεως δικαιοσύνη is the Righteouſneſs that is by faith. Chap. 9. 30. & 10. 6. δικαιοσύνη δὲ τὴ πίστει, and διὰ πίστεως τῦ Χριστῦ, the Righteouſneſs by faith in Chriſt. Vain therefore is the Deſcant of Mr. LeClerk upon theſe words, That from the Faith whereby the Jews believed the Prophets, and the Gentiles their Anceſtors, they might proceed to another faith: For if he means they ſhould proceed from the one Faith to the other, this is true of the Jews, who were to add to their Faith in God, and in his Prophets, Faith in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, John 14. 1. But it is falſe as to the Gentiles, who were to renounce, and turn from the Faith of their Anceſtors, that they might believe in Chriſt. If he means by proceeding from Faith to Faith, renouncing the one to embrace the other, this is true of the Gentiles, but falſe when applied to the Jews, who were not to renounce their Faith in the Prophets, but by virtue of it to embrace this Righteouſneſs of God, teſtified by the Law and the Prophets. The ſenſe of theſe words ſeem plainly to be this; The Righteouſneſs of God, which is by faith, is revealed in the Goſpel to beget faith in men.

i Ibid. Ὁ δίκαιος ἐκ πίστεως ζήσεται, the juſt ſhall live by his faith,] In God's Promiſes; whence it appears that Faith doth not include Obedience, but only a firm belief of God's Promiſes obliging to Obedience. Hence the Apoſtle argues from this very place, Gal. 3. 10, 11. that the Law is not of faith, becauſe it ſaith, The man that doth theſe things ſhall live in them, making Obedience the Condition of Juſtification by the Law.

k Ver. 18. Ὀργὴ Θεῦ, the wrath of God.] This was before more expreſly revealed againſt the unrighteouſneſs of the Jews, God in the mean time ſo far winking at the unrighteouſneſs of the Gentiles, as to make no expreſs denunciation of his Wrath againſt them; but now he calls all men every where to repent of their unrighteouſneſs, becauſe he hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteouſneſs, Acts 17. 30, 31.

l Ibid. Ἐπὶ πᾶσαν ἀσέβειαν καὶ ἀδικίαν ἀνθρώπων, againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men.] The ungodlineſs of men ſignifies their impiety in robbing God of his honour, and giving it to graven Images, or to them which by nature were no Gods, and ſo being ungrateful to him, who was the Author of all their Bleſſings, v. 21. to 26. Their unrighteouſneſs is their injuſtice to one another, from v. 26. to the 30*th.* And they are ſaid to retain the truth in righteouſneſs, by acting contrary to the Notions of it, they had, or might have learned from the Law of Nature, and by ſuppreſſing or corrupting the Dictates of their Natural Conſcience. So of the Builders of the Tower of Babel, (a) Philo ſaith, That it ſufficeth them not πρὸς τὰς ὁμοφύλους συγχεῖν δίκαια, to confound the Laws of Juſtice among men, but alſo they invaded Heaven, ἀδικίαν μὲν σπείροντες, ἀσέβειαν δὲ θερίζοντες, ſowing unrighteouſneſs, and reaping ungodlineſs.

m Ver. 20. Ἀπὸ κτίσεως κόσμου, from the Creation of the World.] This Phraſe ſeems not to ſignifie the means by which they came to the Knowledge of God, for that is afterwards expreſſed in theſe words, τοῖς ποιήμασι νοούμενα, being made known by his works; but rather to import, that from the beginning of the World the Heathens had this means of knowing the true God from the Works of the Creation; ſo ἀπ' ἀρχῆς κόσμου is from the beginning of the world, Matth. 24. 21. ἀπὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου, from the foundation of the world, Matth. 13. 35. Luke 11. 50. Heb. 4. 3. and 9. 26. Strange is the Conceit of a Learned Perſon, who interprets theſe, and all the following words of this Chapter of the Gnoſticks; for whoever heard that the Gnoſticks changed the glory of the incorruptible God into an Image made like to birds, and fourfooted beaſts, and creeping things? Who of the Ancients ever ſaid, Their women changed the natural uſe of the body for that which is againſt Nature? or, How is it poſſible that the Apoſtle ſhould here accuſe them of all this Idolatry and Image-worſhip, and yet in the next Chapter ſay of the ſame Gnoſticks, according to the Interpretation of the ſame Perſon, Thou that abhorreſt Idols, doſt thou commit Sacriledge? v. 22. Doubtleſs the Apoſtle ſpeaks here of that Knowledge of God which by the Light of Nature was in the heart of the Gentiles, and ſo was manifeſt in, and to them, even from the time of the Creation of the world, by his works, becauſe the Heavens declare the glory of God, and the Firmament ſheweth his handy work, Pſal. 19. 1. and therefore doth not here ſay, that his Mercy, and Grace, and Love to Mankind, but that his Eternal Power and Godhead was ſhewed by theſe Works, which yet in reaſon he ſhould have mentioned here, as he doth elſewhere, had he ſpoken of the Diſcoveries God made of himſelf by the Goſpel-Revelation.

n Ver. 23. Τῳ δόξαν τῆς ἀφθάρτε Θεῦ, the glory of the incorruptible God.] The Deſcription of God in the New Teſtament is this, That he dwelleth in Light inacceſſible, 1 Tim. 1. 16. That he is Light, 1 John 1. 5, 6. And thus he always exhibited himſelf to Men in a mighty Splendor of Flame and Light, as a viſible Token of his Special and Majeſtick Preſence. Thus he appeared to the Antediluvians, to Adam, ſaith the Learned Biſhop of Ely on Gen. 2. 15. and 3. 8. and to Cain and Abel, when they brought their Offerings to the Lord, i. e. to the place where his Schechinah or Glorious Preſence uſed to appear; for God had reſpect to Abel and his offering, i. e. ſaith Theodotion's Tranſlation, ἐνεπίμπρων, he ſet it on fire by a ſtream of light, or flame from the Schechinah, which then uſually appeared at the place of Worſhip: Why elſe doth Cain complain thus, From thy face ſhall I be hid? Or why is he ſaid to go out from the Preſence of the Lord? Gen. 4. 4, 14. So after the Flood, we may preſume he appeared to Noah offering Burnt-offerings to him; for God accepting his Oblation, as he did that of Abel's, 'tis reaſonable to conceive that he gave the like token of that Acceptance. So he appeared to Abraham, when he ſaid unto him, Get thee out of thine own Country, in a lamp of fire conſuming his Sacrifices, Gen. 15. 17. Whence St. Stephen ſaith, ὁ Θεὸς δόξης, the God of Glory appeared to our Father Abraham, Acts 7. 2. In this viſible Majeſty God appeared to him again, Chap. 17. 1. For in the Concluſion of that Chapter it is ſaid, God went up from Abraham, i. e. the glory of the Lord aſcended, ſaith the Chaldee Paraphraſe, and B. Uziel. So he appeared to Moſes in the Buſh, Exod. 3. 2. ſo to the People on Mount Sinai, Exod. 24. 16, 17. where τὸ εἶδος τῆς δόξης τῆς Κυρίε ὡσεὶ πῦρ, the ſight of the Glory of the Lord was like fire. This viſible Appearance of God in Light is above thirty times in the Old Teſtament ſtiled the Glory of the Lord; See Note on Phil. 2. 8. and on Heb. 1. 3. And this Schechinah was not only given to the Jews after the Law, but to the Gentiles before the Law, as a Preſervative from Idolatry, or to inſtruct them to make no other Reſemblance of him, or Symbol of his Preſence, beſides that which he from the beginning had choſen to appear in; but this, ſaith the Apoſtle, they changed into the ſimilitude of Men and Birds, &c. And of the Jews making the golden Calf, God ſays, they changed δόξαν αὐτῶν their glory into the ſimilitude of a Calf, Pſal. 106. 20. and of the ſame Jews departing from God to Idols, it is ſaid, My people ἠλλάξατο τὴν δόξαν αὐτῶν hath changed its glory for that which cannot profit them, Jer. 2. 11.

up to a reprobate mind.] V. 24. God gave them up in the luſtings of their hearts to uncleanneſs. V. 26. God gave them up to diſhonourable affections.] Here the Fathers carefully inform us, that theſe Phraſes cannot be ſo underſtood, as to lay upon them, of whom St. Paul ſpeaks, a neceſſity of being thus unclean and unnatural in their Affections, or thus perverſe in their Minds. For then (b), ſay they, this would not be their fault, nor would it be blame-worthy in them to do all theſe things.

2ly, They poſitively tell us that the Apoſtle here puts the Phraſe, (c) He gave them up, for, he permitted them to be given up.

3ly, That this was done, (1.) (d) by leaving them naked and deſtitute of his former Providence and Care of them; not giving them any warning of his Diſpleaſure againſt them for theſe things by his Prophets, as he did to the old World, and Nineveh, or by his Judgments, in order to their Reformation. (2ly,) By giving them up to (e) Satan, that unclean Spirit, who will not fail, when he hath permiſſion, to provoke them to ſuch uncleanneſs, and who is that God of the world who blinds mens eyes, that they ſhould not ſee the Truth, 2 Cor. 4. 4. So the Lord moved David to ſay, Go, number Iſrael and Judah, 2 Sam. 24. 1. i. e. Satan provoked him to do it, 1 Chron. 21. 1. And thus, ſay they, a Phyſician gives up his Patient to do what he will, when he finds he will not follow his Preſcriptions. Laſtly, They obſerve, that they were thus deſerted, and given up by God, as the juſt puniſhment of their Iniquities committed againſt the Law of Nature, which they had received, becauſe they held the truth revealed in unrighteouſneſs, v. 18. becauſe when they knew God, they did not glorifie him as God, nor were they thankful, v. 21. and becauſe, knowing that they who did theſe things were worthy of death, they not only did the ſame, but had pleaſure in them that did them; and ſo indeed (f) they were delivered up to do theſe things by their own wickedneſs. Thus on the contrary we ſay, Such a Man's Money deſtroyed him, when it was not the Money, but his intemperate and evil uſe of it that did ſo. And ſuch a Man's Flatterers corrupted him, when it was his hearkning to them, and being perſwaded by them which did it; whereas he had it in his power not to hearken to them. And in this permiſſive ſenſe the word παρέδωκεν, he gave them up, is uſed almoſt an hundred times in the Old Teſtament; when God is ſaid to give men up into the hands of their Enemies, to give them up to the Sword. Thus the three Children, παρέδωκαν, gave up their bodies to be burned, Dan. 3. 20. Thus David prays he may not be given up into the hands of his Oppreſſors, i. e. that God would not leave him to their power, Pſal. 119. 121. And the Son of Syrach, That God would not give him up to a proud look, Ecclus. 23. 4. And ſo God gave his People up to their own hearts luſts, i. e. he let them follow their own inventions, Pſal. 81. 12. And this is farther evident from v. 32. where they are ſaid to have done all theſe things againſt their knowledge of the Judgment of God upon ſuch evil Doers.

He that would ſee a larger Comment upon v. 29, 30, 31. let him conſult the Learned Grotius; I only ſhall obſerve from the Greek Commentators, 1. That from theſe words, being filled with all unrighteouſneſs, it ſeemeth reaſonable to interpret almoſt all that follows as ſome Species of Unrighteouſneſs or Injuſtice. 2. That πονηρία ſignifies that wickedneſs which cauſes men to do Miſchief againſt their Neighbour by Treachery; κακία, to do it out of Malice; κακοήθεια, to accuſtom themſelves to do ſo. 3. That ψιθυρισταὶ, are they that whiſper things to the damage of others when they are preſent; καταλάλοι, they that openly defame them being abſent. 4. Ὑπερηφανία, is that Pride which puffs us up on the account of the things we do enjoy; ἀλαζονεία, that boaſting we make of things which we have not.

Ver. 32. Ἄξιοι θανάτου, worthy of death.] r That Murther, Adultery, and unnatural Luſts deſerved death, they knew not only by the Light of Nature and of Conſcience, but by their own Laws condemning them who did them, to death. That all theſe Sins being Species of Injuſtice, condemned by the Law of Nature, rendred them obnoxious to the Diſpleaſure of that God who is the Governour of the World, and the Avenger of all Unrighteouſneſs; and ſo obnoxious to Death for violating the Laws he had given them to govern themſelves by, they might know by the Light of Nature.

Ibid. Συνευδοκοῦσι τοῖς πράσσουσι, have pleaſure in them that do them.] s This, ſay the Greek Commentators, is much worſe than the bare doing of them; for a Man may do them through the power of Temptation, and by conſideration may after become ſenſible of his folly, and repent of it; but when he is arrived at that height of wickedneſs, that he not only approves, but delights in ſeeing the like things done by others, he demonſtrates ſuch a ſtrong affection to them as is incurable.

Verſe 1. THerefore, [ſince God hath ſhewed his diſpleaſure thus againſt the Gentiles for ſinning againſt the Law of a Nature,] thou art inexcuſable, a O man, whoever thou art that judgeſt [ſo ſeverely of them,] for wherein thou judgeſt another, b thou condemneſt thy ſelf, for b thou that judgeſt doeſt the ſame things, [offending as much againſt the Law of Moſes, as they have done againſt the Law of Nature.]

2. But we are ſure that the judgment of God is according to truth, againſt them which commit ſuch things, [it being equitable that he ſhould, and certain that he will deal with men according to his word].

3. And [then] thinkeſt thou this, O man, who judgeſt them who do ſuch things [againſt the Law of Nature,] and doeſt the ſame [againſt the Law of Moſes] that thou ſhalt eſcape the judgment of God, [which they have ſo ſeverely felt?]

4. Or deſpiſeſt thou the riches of his goodneſs [to thee above them, in giving the Law, Covenant, and Promiſes to thee, Chap. 9. 4.], and [his] forbearance and long-ſuffering [exerciſed hitherto to thee, who haſt long deſerved his wrath, Chap. 9.22.] not knowing [or diſcerning] that the goodneſs of God [naturally] leadeth thee to repentance, [and is a powerful motive to engage thee to it, 2 Pet. 3. 9, 15.]

5. But after the hardneſs and impenitency of thy heart, [which will not ſuffer thee to repent, and believe the Goſpel,] treaſureſt [yet] up [more] wrath againſt the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God; [Rom. 9. 22. 1 Theſſ. 2. 16. 5. 9.]

6. Who will render to every man [Jew, and Gentile] according to his deeds.

c 7. To them, who c by patient continuance in well-doing, ſeek for glory, and honour, and immortality; eternal life:

d 8. But to them who are contentious [againſt] and d obey not the truth [of the Goſpel, as generally you Jews do not] but obey unrighteouſneſs [or falſhood;] indignation and wrath.

9. Tribulation and anguiſh [I ſay] ſhall be upon every ſoul that worketh evil, upon the Jew firſt, [as being under greater light, and as having the Goſpel firſt preached to them, Acts 13 46. and to whom Chriſt was firſt and in perſon ſent, Acts 3. 26.] and alſo upon the Gentile, [for though God winked at the times of their former ignorance, Acts 17. 30. yet now he hath revealed his wrath from heaven againſt all unrighteouſneſs, Chap. 1. 17. they muſt expect his juſt diſpleaſure who turn not from it to the way of truth, as the Goſpel is called, 2 Pet. 2. 2.]

10. But glory, honour, and peace ſhall be to every man that worketh good, to the Jew firſt, [as being the Church of God, to whom the promiſes of the Meſſiah chiefly did belong, Rom. 9.4.] and alſo to the [believing] Gentile, [they being by faith Abraham's ſeed, and heirs according to the promiſe, Gal. 3. 29.]

11. [I ſay to the Gentile alſo] for there
e is e no reſpect of perſons with God. e

12. [Tribulation and anguiſh, I ſay, ſhall be on every ſoul that worketh evil, whether Jew or Gentile,] for as many as have ſinned without the [written] law, [which is the caſe of the Gentiles,] ſhall alſo periſh without [that] law, [being condemned by the Law written in their hearts,] and as many as have ſinned in [or under] the law, [which is the caſe of the Jews,] ſhall be judged [and condemned for their evil deeds] by the law.

13. For [know this, oh thou Jew, that] f f not the hearers [only] of the law, are [upon that account] juſt before God, but the doers of it [only] ſhall be juſtified, [i. e. accepted of God, as acting ſuitably to their Profeſſion.]

14. [And ſay not, that the Gentiles therefore cannot be juſtified, or accepted with God, becauſe they having not the Law, cannot be doers of it,] for g when the Gentiles who g have not the law [of Moſes,] do by nature the things contained in the [Moral] law, they having not the [written] law, are a law [a rule of living] to themſelves.

15. [Doing thoſe things] which ſhew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conſciences alſo bearing witneſs [to it,] and their thoughts meanwhile [or their reaſonings within themſelves] accuſing, or elſe excuſing one another, [and ſo the Uncircumciſion keeping the Righteouſneſs of the Law, and fulfilling the Law, ſhall be by God accounted for Circumciſion, and be as acceptable to him as the Circumciſion, v. 26, 27.]

16. [And theſe Rewards and Puniſhments will be diſtributed to Jew and Gentile] in the day when God ſhall judge the ſecrets of men [s hearts] by Jeſus Chriſt, according to my Goſpel, [or as my Goſpel teſtifies he will; for the Heathens are not to be judged according to the Tenor of the Goſpel, but according to the Light of Nature, v. 12.]

17. Behold [thou who glorieſt in this, that] k thou art called a Jew, [one of that Nati- k on which God hath known above all the Families of the Earth, Amos 3. 2. to whom pertaineth the Adoption and the Covenants, Ch. 9. 4.] and reſteſt in [the outward performances of] the law, and makeſt thy boaſt of God, [as the Author and Patron of thy Religion, and thy God in Covenant].

18. And [that thou] knoweſt his will, and approveſt the things that are moſt excellent, being being inſtructed out of the Law [concerning them.]

19. And art confident that thou thy ſelf
l art [able to be] a guide l to the blind [Gentile,] a light of them [that ſit] in darkneſs.
m 20. An inſtructer of m the fooliſh, a teacher of babes, which haſt the form of knowledge and of truth in the law; [i. e. a Scheme, or Draught of the Affirmative Precepts of the Law, which inſtruct thee what to do, and of the Negative Precepts, which teach thee what to leave undone.] n 21. Thou therefore n which teacheſt another, [i. e. who undertakeſt to be a Guide unto, and Teacher of the Gentile,] teacheſt thou not thy ſelf? [to practiſe thine own Leſſons:] thou that preacheſt [or proclaimeſt] a man ſhould not ſteal, doeſt thou ſteal? [and ſo condemneſt thy ſelf out of thine own mouth?]
o 22. Thou that ſayeſt a man o ſhould not commit adultery, doſt thou commit adultery? Thou that abhorreſt idols, doeſt thou commit ſacrilege? [robbing God of his honour another way.]

23. Thou that makeſt thy boaſt of [thy skill in] the law, through breaking the law, [in thoſe inſtances which the Conſcience of the very Heathen doth condemn,] diſhonoureſt thou [the Name of] God [among the Gentiles?]
p 24. For p the name of God is blaſphemed among the Gentiles, through you [Jews, pretending to be ſo dear to God, and ſo great Favourites of Heaven, and yet living ſo licentiouſly as you do, and ſo it hath happned to you accordingly] as it is written [of you, Iſa. 52. 5. Ezek. 36. 23.]

25. For circumciſion verily profiteth if thou keep the law, [as Circumciſion obligeth thee to do, Gal. 5. 2.] but if thou art [ſtill] a breaker of the law, thy circumciſion is made [of no more advantage to free thee from God's condemnation, than] uncircumciſion q.
26. Therefore [on the other ſide] if the uncircumciſion [i. e. the Gentile, though uncircumciſed,] r keep the righteouſneſs of the r law, ſhall not his uncircumciſion be accounted for circumciſion; [i. e. ſhall he not be as acceptable to God, as if he had been circumciſed?]

27. And ſhall not [the] s uncircumciſion
s which is by nature, [i. e. the Gentile, who continues uncircumciſed as he was by nature] if it fulfil the law, judge [and condemn] thee, who by the letter [i. e. having the letter of the Law] doeſt tranſgreſs the Law?

28. For he is not [in God's account] a Jew, [i. e. one beloved of him] who is one [only] outwardly, [by Profeſſion,] neither is that [valued by him as true] circumciſion which is outward in the fleſh [only].

29. But he is a Jew [in God's eſteem] who is one inwardly, [by the purification of his heart from inward filth, and evil diſpoſitions and affections] and [the] circumciſion [valued by him] is that of the heart in the ſpirit, [wrought in us by the Spirit,] and not in [or by] the letter, whoſe praiſe is not of men, [who are not able to diſcern it,] but of God, [who is the ſearcher of the heart.]

a THE Apoſtle had in the former Chapter laid down this as the Foundation of his Diſcourſe, That the Goſpel of Chriſt was the Power of God to the Salvation both of Jew and Gentile, v. 16. and that there only was revealed that Righteouſneſs of God through Faith, by which alone Life and Salvation was to be obtained. He had alſo ſhewed the Neceſſity of this Faith, becauſe the wrath of God was revealed from Heaven againſt all unrighteouſneſs of men, who held the truth in unrighteouſneſs; and that this the Gentiles had done by acting againſt the Light of Nature, and that God had been angry with, and puniſhed them for it, he had ſhewed from v. 19. to the end of that Chapter.

Theſe Gentiles were by the Jews repured as unclean, great Sinners, and ſo uncapable of Salvation; and their great quarrel againſt the Goſpel was this, that it admitted ſuch Men to the Favour of God without Circumciſion, and Obedience to the Law of Moſes. To thoſe Jews the Apoſtle in this Chapter directeth his Diſcourſe, proving here, That they who lived under the Law wanted this Juſtification, as much as others, being alſo great Sinners: and in the following Chapters, that neither they, nor the Gentiles, could obtain this Juſtification by the Law. See v. 13 & 17.

Ver. 1. Τὰ γὰρ αὐτὰ πράσσεις, for thou doeſt the ſame things.] If to any one it ſeem ſtrange that the Apoſtle ſhould pronounce the Jews guilty of the ſame ſins of which he had accuſed the Gentiles, Chap. 1. let him conſider what their own (a) Joſephus hath recorded of them, and he will ceaſe to won- b

der. For first, he assures us, there was not a Nation under Heaven more wicked than they were. What, saith he, have you done of all the good things required by our Law-giver? What have ye not done of all those things which he pronounced accursed? So that (b) had the Romans delayed to come against these execrable Persons, I believe, saith he, either the Earth would have swallowed up, or a Deluge would have swept away their City; or Fire from Heaven would have consumed it, as it did Sodom, for it brought forth a generation of Men far more wicked than they who suffered such things. There is not a Sin mentioned Chap. 1. of which he doth not in that History accuse them, not excepting that of unnatural Lusts: For of their Zealots he saith, (c) It was sport to them to force Women; they freely gave up themselves to the Passions of Women, exercising, and requiring unnatural Lusts, and filling the whole City with Impurities. And again, They committed all kinds of wickedness, omitting none which ever came to the memory of Man, esteeming the worst of Evils to be good, and finding that reward of their Iniquity which was meet, and a Judgment worthy of God.

e Ver. 7. Καθ' ὑπομονὴν ἔργου ἀγαθοῦ, by patient continuance in well doing.] This good Work being put in the singular number, seems to intimate some Work eminently so. Now when the Jews asked our Saviour, What shall we do that we may work the works of God? His answer was, This is the work of God, that ye believe in him whom he hath sent, John 6. 28, 29. The preaching of this Faith is stiled emphatically, the Work, Acts 5. 38. & 13. 2. & 14. 26. & 15. 38. and sometimes the Work of Christ, Philip. 2. 30. the Work of the Lord, 1 Cor. 16. 10. The Faith wrought by it is ἔργον πίστεως, the Work of Faith, 2 Thess. 1. 2. And he that begets it in us, is said to begin us ἔργον ἀγαθὸν, the good Work, Philip. 1. 6. And in this sense it accords well with the Scope of the Apostle, whether it be joyned with the word Patience, or with the following words; for the Apostle had said in the former Chapter, That the Gospel of Christ was the power of God through faith to salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile, Rom. 1. 16. This he here prosecutes, saying, That to them who by patience in the faith of Christ, seek the glory, honour and immortality promised in the Gospel, God will give eternal life.

Ver. 8. Καὶ ἀπειθοῦσι μὲν τῇ ἀληθείᾳ, and obey not the Truth.] The Gospel being stiled the Truth of God, Rom. 3. 7. & 15. 8. The Word of Truth, Eph. 1. 3. Colos. 1. 5. 2 Tim. 2. 15. James 1. 18. The Knowledge of it being ἐπίγνωσις ἀληθείας, the knowledge of the Truth, 1 Tim. 2. 4. & 4. 3. 2 Tim. 2. 25. Titus 1. 1. Heb. 10. 26. The belief of it being πίστις ἀληθείας, the belief of the Truth, 2 Thess. 2. 13. Obedience to it being Obedience to the Truth, Gal. 1. 3. & 5. 7. Walking according to it, being walking according to the Truth, 1 John 2. 4. John 3. 3. the Gospel it self being emphatically stiled the Truth, Eph. 4. 21. 2 Joh. v. 2 & 3. 3 John v. 12. to know it, being to know the Truth, 1 John 2. 21. To profess it, to be of the Truth, 1 John 3. 19. To reject it, not to believe the Truth, 2 Thess. 2. 12. To err from it, to err from the Truth, Titus 1. 14. James 5. 19. I say, this being so, οἱ ἐξ ἐριθείας, they that are contentious here, and obey not the truth, may be, first, the unbelieving Jews, or false Apostles coming from them, who preached Christ, ἐξ ἐριθείας, out of contention against Paul, Phil. 1. 16. And secondly, the Gentiles, which spake against the Truth, and rejected it; and both these obeyed, and gave up themselves to Falshood: The Gentiles, by changing the truth of God into a lie, Chap. 1. 25. The Jews, by adhering to their vain Traditions, which made void the Commands of God, and owning them as derived from Moses, when they were only the Doctrines of Men.

Ver. 11. Οὐ προσωπολημψία, no respect of persons.] i. e. He is not one who will connive at Men doing wickedly, because they are Jews, whilst he punisheth the like wickedness in the Gentiles, or afford Justification and Salvation to the Jew believing, and working that which is good, and not to the believing and obedient Gentile, Rom. 3. 29, 30.

of the Seed of Abraham. And hence the Baptist speaks thus to them, Bring forth fruits meet for repentance, and (think it not sufficient to) say within your selves, we have Abraham for our father, Matth. 3. 8, 9. The Chaldee Paraphrasts do often mention their Expectation of being preserved for the Merits, or good Works of their Forefathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob; and their Writers add, That (d) Hell-fire hath no power over the sinners of Israel, because Abraham and Isaac descend thither to fetch them thence. (2.) They held that Circumcision was of sufficient virtue to render them accepted of God, and to preserve them from Eternal Ruine; for they teach, (e) That no circumcised person goes to Hell, God having promised them to deliver them from it, for the merit of Circumcision, and having told Abraham, that when his Children fell into transgression, and did wicked works, he would remember the odor of their foreskins, and would be satisfied with their Piety. And (3.) they taught that (f) all Israelites had a Portion in the World to come, and that notwithstanding their sins, yea, though they were condemned here for their wickedness; This is the first Sentence in the Capitula Patrum: Whereas of all the Gentiles, without Exception, they pronounce that (g) they are fuel for Hell-fire. (4.) They teach, that to be employed in hearing and studying the Law, was a thing sufficient to make them acceptable with God. To this St. James seems to refer in these words, And be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own souls, James 1. 22. Now most of these vain Opinions the Apostle in this Chapter, and throughout this Epistle, labours to confute: The first here v. 9. the second v. 25. the third from v. 2. to the 9th, and the fourth in this verse.

g Ver. 14. Ὅταν γὰρ ἔθνη, for when the Gentiles.] Most Interpreters understand this of the believing Gentile, the righteousness of the Law being fulfilled in them only, who walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit, Rom. 8. 4. And he being only the inward Jew, who hath the circumcision of the heart in the spirit, v. 29. But all the Ancient Commentators interpret these last six Verses, not indeed of the Idolatrous Gentiles, but of such Gentiles as lived before the Law, as Melchisedec, and Job, or were worshippers of the true God, as Cornelius; or repented, as the Ninevites. These Examples, saith Chrysostom, he sets before the Jews, as being such as they could not contradict. And in his Comment on the 15th Verse, he makes this Inference from the words, (h) By these things he shews that God made Man sufficient of himself to chuse Vertue, and avoid Vice; adding, that this was necessary to be said to stop the Mouths of them who enquired τί ἡμῖν οὖν περισσὸν ἦν ἢ τοσαύτης προνοίας ὑπῆρχον ὑποβολαί, where were the footsteps of such a Providence in former times? This the Apostle seems plainly to insinuate, by arguing that God did, and will accept the Gentile, living according to the Law written in his heart, and therefore owning him as the true God, and honouring or glorifying him as God, who made the Heaven and the Earth, because he is no respecter of persons. This seems the obvious meaning of those words of St. Peter, in the case of Cornelius and all his Friends, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, (i. e. he affects them not barely because they are circumcised, or of such a Nation,) but in every Nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to him, Acts 10. 34, 35. supposing that there might be such in every Nation. And the Argument of Origen seems here considerable; That (i) if God condemned the Gentiles because they held the Truth in unrighteousness, and when they knew God, did not glorifie him as God, neither were thankful; it seems reasonable to conceive, that had they done what they culpably neglected, and might have done, i. e. had they glorified him as God, and been thankful, they would have done what had been acceptable to God, and fit to be rewarded by his Goodness; i. e. had they held the Truth in Righteousness, and abstained from those Actions for which their Conscience did accuse them, and for which they knew they were worthy of death, as they who were inexcusable for doing of them, might have done, they would have escaped the wrath of God revealed from Heaven against all unrighteousness. But then these things may here be offered to Consideration,

1. That this Acceptance may not reach so far as to put them under the same Privileges and Favours with his Church and People; but if they live in such Times and Places where an exacter Knowledge of his Will might be obtained, it may induce his Providence to find out means of imparting that alſo to them, as in the Caſe of Cornelius, and his Friends, who was told things by which he, and his houſe ſhould be ſaved, Acts 11. 14.

2ly, That though God may, and will reward ſuch honeſt Heathens, becauſe otherwiſe they could have no encouragement to own, or ſerve him as their God, ſince he that cometh to God, ſaith the Apoſtle, muſt believe that he is a rewarder of them that diligently ſeek him, Heb. 11. 6. Yet he is not obliged to give them the glorious Reward which he hath promiſed to the Chriſtian; for this not being due to their Works, they could not from the Light of Nature be aſſured of it; and it being ſo peculiarly aſſigned to Faith in Chriſt, both affirmatively and negatively, when the Apoſtle ſaith, God hath given us eternal life, and that life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son, hath not life. This is life eternal, that they know thee the only true God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom thou haſt ſent. This is the true God and eternal life. 1 Joh. 5. 11, 12, 13, 20. Joh. 17. 3. See Joh. 1. 4. & 13. 16, 36. & 5. 24. & 6. 27. It cannot well be ſaid to belong to any other, and therefore (k) Origen freely grants this, and yet thinks ſuch Perſons may not be utterly deprived of a Reward; eſpecially it ſeems not equitable that they ſhould be deprived of all Reward, purely for want of an impoſſible Condition; i. e. becauſe they believed not in him, of whom they had not, and very often could not have heard. It may be added 3dly, That if any of them did arrive at ſuch a ſtate, as made them indeed to fear God, and work righteouſneſs, they did this not meerly by the ſtrength of Natural Light; for though ſome of them ſeem to ſay, that (l) Nature, or Philoſophy, was a ſufficient Guide to Vertue, yet that they meant not this excluſively of the Divine Aſſiſtance, which they ſaw neceſſary to preſerve them againſt the Infirmities of Humane Nature, (m) their own words do fully teſtifie. And if God owned any of them as truly righteous, it was by virtue of their Faith in God; i. e. that Faith by which they believed he was a rewarder of them that diligently ſeek him; which being, as to kind, the ſame with that which the Apoſtle ſo highly commends, Heb. 11. even the expectation of things hoped for, the evidence of things not ſeen, when it produced in them a ſincere endeavour to ſerve, and pleaſe him according to the Light of Nature, and cleave to their Duty, though they might ſuffer for it in this World, might be imputed unto them for Righteouſneſs. I conclude theſe Conjectures with Origen on the ſame place, Sed tamen in arbitrio legentis eſt probare quæ dicta ſunt, vel non.

Ver. 17. Σὺ Ἰουδαῖος ἐπονομάζῃ, thou art called a Jew.] The Apoſtle doth not here begin to ſpeak to the Jew, but to prove farther, and illuſtrate what he ſaid before, as is evident from the words ἴδε σὺ, behold thou (to whom I ſpeak) art called a Jew; he therefore may be ſuppoſed to ſpeak this farther to convince him that he, doing the ſame things, ſhall not eſcape the Judgment of God; and that the hearing of the Law he doth not practice, will be ſo far from juſtifying him before God, that 'twill add to his Condemnation. k

Ver. 21. Ὁ τὸν διδάσκων ἕτερον, thou that teacheſt another.] This Verſe may be illuſtrated out of the Jewiſh Writings: For they ſay, that (l) he who teacheth others what he doth not himſelf, is like a blind Man who hath a Candle in his hand to give light to others, whilſt he himſelf doth walk in darkneſs. So appoſite is the firſt queſtion to convince thoſe Jews who pretended to be Guides and Lights to the blind Gentiles, that they themſelves were blind. And again, How can a wiſe Man ſay in the Congregation, thou ſhalt not ſteal, when he ſteals? Whence it appears that in their own account this was ſufficient to cut off their pretence to Wiſdom. n not touch with their own fingers, Matth. 23. 3, 4. That they made his Father's Houſe a Den of Thieves, Matth. 21. 13. John 2. 16. That they were guilty of Adultery by own unjuſt Divorces, Matth. 19. 9. And their Polygamy was ſo ſhameful, that they would proclaim in any place where they came, Quænam erit mihi Uxor in diem, (m) who will be my wife for this day, or while I ſtay in this place? And ſurely ſuch a Wife was little better than a Whore. Hence (n) Juſtin Martyr tells the Jews, that whereever they travelled, or came, they did, with the permiſſion of their Rabbins, ὀνίμασι γάμε γυναῖκας ἀγέδεν, take women, and uſe them as their Wives, under pretence of marriage. And the Theft and Merchandize of which they are accuſed, Matth. 21. and John 2. being about holy things, may be well alſo ſtiled Sacrilege; though of this they being accuſed in the times of the Prophet Malachi, doubtleſs they were more guilty of it in theſe worſt of times. Accordingly (o) Joſephus doth pronounce them guilty, not only of Theft, Treachery, Adultery, Sacriledge, but of Rapines and Murthers, and new ways of wickedneſs invented by them, of all which the Temple was made the Receptacle. Add to this that the ſame Joſephus informs us, that not long after the writing of this Epiſtle, the Servants of the High-Prieſts, τὰς τῶν ἱερέων δεκάτας ἐλάμβανον βιαζόμενοι, took away by violence the Tythes of the Prieſts, ſo that many of them periſhed for want of food, Antiq. l. 20. c. 8. p. 698. E.

Note alſo from theſe words, Thou that abhorreſt Idols, the miſtake of thoſe who think the Gnoſticks are here referred to, they being ſo far from abhorring Idols, that (p) Irenæus informs us, they had their Images, they worſhipped Idols without fear, and went firſt to the Feaſts celebrated in the Idol-Temple. (q) Origen alſo aſſures us, that he, viz. Simon Magus, taught his Diſciples, to count Idolatry as a thing indifferent.

p Ver. 24. Βλασφημεῖται ἐν τοῖς ἔθνεσιν, is blaſphemed among the Gentiles.] Of this (r) Joſephus doth frequently accuſe them, ſaying, What wickedneſs do you conceal, or hide, which is not known to your Enemies? You triumph in your wickedneſs, ſtrive daily who ſhall be moſt vile, making a ſhew of your wickedneſs, as if it were vertue. And thinkeſt thou this, O man, that thou ſhalt eſcape the Judgment of God, who puniſheth the Gentiles, when thou art as guilty as they of acting againſt thy Conſcience, and doing that for which thine own Mouth condemns thee, or which is as bad as that which thou condemneſt in them, and which doth alſo cauſe them to blaſpheme that holy name by which thou art called? Surely, after theſe things ſo ſcandalouſly done, 'twill be of no advantage to thee that thou art called a Jew, or haſt received the Sign of Circumciſion.

q Ver. 25. Having thus proved that the Sins of the Jews muſt render them obnoxious to the Divine Wrath, as well as thoſe of the Gentiles, he proceeds to prove what he ſaid v. 7. and the 10th, that the Righteouſneſs of the circumciſed Gentile muſt alſo render him acceptable to God, and rewardable by him, as well as the Righteouſneſs of the Jew.

r Ver. 26. Τὰ δικαιώματα τῦ νόμε, the righteouſneſſes, or ordinances, of the law.] The word δικαιώματα is uſed ſometimes for the Divine Judgments, which being always done in equity, and according to the deſerts of Men, are fitly called δικαιώματα, or righteous Judgments, Rom. 1. 32. Rev. 15. 4. And ſometimes it relates to the Ceremonial Inſtitutions which God thought fit for a ſeaſon to preſcribe to the Jews, and then it ſeems beſt to be rendred Ordinances, as Heb. 9. 1, 10. And ſometimes to the Moral Precepts of the Law; as when the Apoſtle ſaith, τὸ δικαίωμα τῦ νόμε, the Righteouſneſs of the Law is fulfilled in us, who walk not after the fleſh, but after the ſpirit; which ſeems to be the ſenſe of the Phraſe here.

then, such as the Centurion in the Gospel were, because the Condemnation of the Jew seems to arise from this, That he who had the Letter of the Law, did not that which they who were without did.

CHAP. III.

Verse 1. [BUT you will say, if the uncircumcised person, keeping the righteousness of the Law, is to be reckoned as circumcised, Chap. 2. 26. and if the inward circumcision be that alone which is acceptable to God, v. 28, 29.] what advantage then hath the Jew [above the Gentile?] or, what profit is there of [the] circumcision [above uncircumcision?]

2. [I answer] much every way; [Chap. 9. 4. but] chiefly because that unto them were committed the Oracles of God, [in which the Covenants and Promises made to them, and chiefly that of the Messiah, and of Justification by Faith in him, were contained.]

3. [Which Oracles must be made good, notwithstanding their infidelity,] for what if some of them [to whom these Oracles, and the promise of a Messiah, or a Seed in whom the Nations of the Earth should be blessed, were committed,] did not believe [in the promised Seed,] shall their unbelief make the Faith [or Fidelity] of God [in making this promise to Abraham] of none effect?

4. God forbid [that such a thought should enter into our hearts,] yea, [Gr. but, on the contrary] let God be [acknowledged] true, [and faithful to his word,] but every man a liar; [i. e. though all men should prove liars] as it is written, [Psal. 51. 4.] a That thou mayest be justified in thy sayings, [or mayest appear just and faithful in performing them,] and clear when b thou art judged, [i. e. when thou judgest, and contendest with Man.]

5. But if our unrighteousness commends, [illustrates, and establishes,] c the righteousness of God, [that way of justification by faith which he alone approves of,] d what shall we say? is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance [on Jew and Gentile, for these sins which thus commend his righteousness, and shew the wisdom and grace of God in administring this way of our justification?] e I speak as a man, [i. e. as an Heathen, or Unbeliever would be apt to conclude from our Doctrine of Justification by Faith:]

6. [For] God forbid [that I should have a thought that God can be unrighteous;] for how then shall God judge the world [for their unrighteousness?]

7. [I speak, I say, their sense,] for, [say they,] if the truth of God hath more abounded to his glory f through my lie, [if the truth of his promise to justifie the Gentile through faith in Christ, hath appeared more illustriously to the glory of his grace, through my Idolatry, and changing his truth into a lie,] why am I also judged as a sinner, [as well as the Jew?]

8. And [why will it] not rather [follow οὐκ ὅτι according to] that we should do evil that good may come, [or that God may be glorified?] as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm, that [in effect] we say, [by asserting the Doctrine of Justification by faith, which yet we are so far from saying, that we declare them who do so, men] g whose damnation is just.

9. What then, [or wherefore] are we better than they? [Do we Jews excel the Gentiles,] h no in no wise, [ὐ πάντως, not altogether, as to the benefit mentioned v. 2. but not as to justification,] for we have before proved [touching] both Jews [Chap. 2.] and Gentiles, [Chap. 1.] that they are all under sin, [and so all stand in need of justification by faith.]

10. [The Jews, I say, as well as the Gentiles,] i as it is written [of them,] there is none righteous, no, not one.

11. There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God;

12. They are all gone out of the way, they are altogether become unprofitable, there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

13. Their throat is an open sepulchre, with their tongues they have used deceit, the poison of Asps is under their lips; [they are Men]

14. Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness;

15. Their feet are swift to shed blood;

16. Destruction and misery are in their way,

17. And the way of peace have they not known.

18. There is no fear of God before their eyes.

19. [Which words of the Psalmist may justly be applied to them;] for we know that what things soever the Law saith, [not applying the words to any others,] it saith to them that are under the Law, that [not only the mouths of the Gentiles, but] every mouth may be stopped, and all the world may become guilty before God.

20. Therefore by the deeds of the Law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight; for by the Law is k the knowledge of [that] sin [which rendreth us obnoxious to condemnation.]

21. But

21. But now [in the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel,] the righteouſneſs of God without [performing the works of] the Law is manifeſted [to the World,] being witneſſed, [i. e. atteſted to,] by the Law, [giving us the knowledge of ſin, v. 20.] and by the Prophets, [declaring that the juſt ſhall live by faith.]

22. Even the righhteouſneſs of God which is by faith in Jeſus Chriſt to all, and upon all that believe, for [as to the way of juſtification,] there is no difference [betwixt Jew and Gentile.]

l 23. For all have ſinned, and [ſo] come ſhort of [attaining] l the glory of God, [without a free act of juſtification by grace.]

m 24. Being juſtified, [i.e. abſolved from the guilt and condemnation due to us for our paſt ſins,] freely by his grace, m through the redemption that is in Jeſus Chriſt.

n 25. Whom God hath ſet forth [or propoſed] to be n a propitiation, [a Propitiatory, or Mercy-ſeat,] through faith in his blood, to declare his righteouſneſs, [i.e. the way of juſtification by faith, which God alone

o admits of] o for the remiſſion of ſins that are paſt, through the forbearance of God, [not imputing their Treſpaſſes to them who believe in him, 2 Cor. 5. 19.]

26. [I ſay, God hath now propoſed him as

p our Propitiatory,] p to declare at this time his righteouſneſs, [or the way of juſtification he allows of,] that he, [by juſtifying us only through the Redemption that is in Chriſt Je-

q ſus,] might [appear to] be q juſt, [in requiring this ſatisfaction for our ſins,] and yet the juſtifier of them that believe in Jeſus.

27. [And if this be the only way of juſtification, or being righteous before God,] Where is [there any ground of] boaſting then? It is excluded. By what Law? [that] of works? Nay, [for he that is juſtified by works hath whereof to boaſt, ἔχει καύχημα, Chap. 4. 2.] but by the law of faith [only.]

28. Therefore we conclude, that a man is juſtified by r faith [alone,] without [reſpect to] the deeds of the Law [given to the Jews, for] r

29. Is he the God of the Jews only? Is he not alſo of the Gentiles? [which have not the Law; hath he vouchſafed to them no means of juſtification or acceptance with him?] Yes [doubtleſs he is the God] of the Gentiles alſo;

30. Seeing it is one God who will juſtifie the s the circumciſion by faith, and [the] s uncircumciſion through [the ſame] faith.

31. Do we then make void the Law through [this] faith? [Do we contradict it, or ſay it is an uſeleſs thing, or againſt the Promiſes? Gal. 3. 19, 21.] God forbid [that this ſhould be affirmed by us;] Nay, we eſtabliſh the Law, [by declaring that it gives the knowledge of ſin, v. 20. gives witneſs to this way of juſtification, v. 21. and ſo ſhews the neceſſity of faith, and ſo is our Schoolmaſter to bring us to Chriſt, who is the end of the Law, Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 3. 24.]

a Verſe 4. Ὅπως ἂν δικαιωθῇς, that thou mayeſt be juſtified.] Theſe words are a Confeſſion of King David, that how ſeverely ſoever God ſhould deal with him for his ſin, he could not accuſe him of too much Rigour, but muſt juſtifie him in his Proceedings, and clear him from all Imputations of Injuſtice; and ſo they cannot be here brought to prove, as Eſthius imagines, that notwithſtanding our ſins, God will be faithful to his Promiſes, but to ſhew that, tho' God ſhould reject the Jews for their Infidelity, they would have no reaſon to complain of his Severity, or charge him with Injuſtice or Unfaithfulneſs on that account, they having forfeited their Right to be the Seed of Abraham, the Father of the Faithful, by their Infidelity, and the Gentiles, by imitating his Faith, being now become his Children. Note alſo that the Hebrew זכה which we render pure or clean, Pſal. 51. 4. is well rendred by the Septuagint νικήσῃς, might overcome, it bearing oft that ſenſe in the Syriac, and among the Rabbins, as Buxtorf proves in his Lexicon p. 668.

Ibid. Ἐν τῷ κρίνεσθαί σε, Hebr. בשפטך when thou judgeſt,] or contendeſt with any Man, or entreſt into judgment with him, or inditeſt, or accuſeſt him of ſin; ſo the word is very often uſed in the Old and New Teſtament. So Job 13. 19. τίς γάρ ὁ κρινόμενός μοι, who is he that will contend with me? Eccleſ. 6. 10. ὃ δυνήσεται κριθῆναι, he cannot contend with one who is ſtronger than himſelf, Eſa. 43. 26. Put me in remembrance, let us plead together, Eſa. 66. 16. ἐν πυρὶ κρινεῖ ὁ κύριος, by fire will the Lord plead with all fleſh, Matth. 5. 40. τῷ θέλοντί σοι κριθῆναι, to him that will contend with thee, 1 Cor. 6. 1. τολμᾷ τις κρίνεσθαι, dares any one contend before the unjuſt? See Note on 1 Pet. 4. 6. b

Ver. 5. Δικαιοσύνη Θεοῦ, the righteouſneſs of God.] That this Phraſe in the Epiſtles doth ſignifie always the Righteouſneſs of Faith, or our Juſtification through Faith in Chriſt, hath been ſhewed, Note on Rom. 1. 17. and on 2 Cor. 5. 21. and this ſeems to eſtabliſh the Expoſition given in the Paraphraſe. c who taketh vengeance?] The Apoſtle had laid down the Propoſition, which is the foundation of this Diſcourſe, and of the whole Epiſtle, in theſe words; The Goſpel is the power of God to the ſalvation of every one that believes, Jew or Gentile; for therein is revealed the righteouſneſs of God by faith, to beget faith in both. The Neceſſity of this Faith he ſhews, (1.) with reſpect to the Gentile, becauſe they being unrighteous, could not otherwiſe be juſtified before God, or eſcape his wrath, revealed againſt all unrighteouſneſs, by any other way than that of Faith; and this Proof he concludes Chapter the firſt. In the ſecond Chapter he ſhews the ſame touching the Jews, by reaſon of their unrighteouſneſs, and therefore ſaith here v 9. We have before proved both Jews and Gentiles to be under ſin. Now this moſt plainly ſerves to commend, and eſtabliſh this way of Righteouſneſs by Faith in Chriſt, from the Neceſſity of it to the Juſtification both of Jew and Gentile. This then muſt be the import of the Objection, if the Unrighteouſneſs both of Jew and Gentile tends ſo viſibly to illuſtrate and recommend the Wiſdom of God, and the Grace or Favour of God, in appointing this way of Juſtification by Faith in Chriſt, is it righteous in God to puniſh both Jew and Gentile, as you ſay he did, Chap. 1. 24, 26, 32. and will do, Chap. 1. 18. Chap. 2. 2, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9. for that unrighteouſneſs that tends ſo highly to the glory of the Goſpel-Grace?

e Ibid. Κατ' ἄνθρωπον λέγω, I ſpeak as a man] i. e. As a meer natural Man, not acquainted with the revealed Will of God, or not acted by his Spirit; ſo Chryſoſtom and Oecumenius. I ſpeak κατ' ἀνθρώπινον λογισμὸν according to humane Reaſon, ὁ γὰρ ἐγὼ ταῦτα λέγω, ἀλλὰ τῶν ἄλλων τέθεικα λογισμούς, For it is not I that ſay theſe things, but I propoſe the Reaſonings of others. That this is the conſtant import of the Phraſe, ſee Note on 1 Cor. 9. 8, 15, 32.

f Ver. 7. Ἐν τῷ ἐμῷ ψεύσματι, by my lie.] The Idols of the Heathens are called Lying Vanities, Pſal. 31. 7. Jonah 2. 8. numina falſa, the Makers of them are ſaid to frame שקר a lie, Jer. 10. 14. and to have, and frame a lie with their right hand, Eſa. 44. 20. They who worſhip them are ſaid, to turn aſide to lies, Pſal. 40. 5. and to hearken to a Teacher of lies, Hab. 2. 18. and to turn the truth of God into a lie, Rom. 1. 25. Hence are the Heathens introduced making this Confeſſion, Surely our Fathers did inherit lies, ὡς ψεῦδη ἐκλήσαντο οἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν εἴδωλα Jer. 16. 19. Now this Argument being that by which the Apoſtle in the firſt Chapter proves the Gentiles to be ſinners, worthy of condemnation, and ſo uncapable of Juſtification by any other way than that of Faith, this may reaſonably be ſuppoſed to be the thing referred to in this Verſe.

Ver. 8. Ὧν τὸ κρίμα ἔνδικόν ἐστι, whoſe damnation is juſt.] They by thus objecting againſt that Diſpenſation of Divine Grace and Wiſdom, which they ſhould thankfully embrace, and accept, and without which they cannot be juſtified; and ſo rejecting it as abſurd in their Imaginations, rendring it juſt that they ſhould ſtill lye under the guilt of Sin, and under the wrath of God for it. g

Ver. 9. Οὐ πάντως, no, in no wiſe.] That theſe words may be rendred, not altogether, as well as ὁ πᾶς is rendred not all, 2 Theſſ. 3. 2. Heb. 3. 16. we lear from Oecumenius, who Paraphraſes them thus, οὐκ ἐπὶ παντὸς τρόπου, not in every kind, and then the Context will plainly force this rendring, as being that which anſwers to the following Reaſon, the words bearing this ſenſe; We do indeed excel them, in having the Promiſe of a Meſſiah, and the Salvation tendred by him, firſt made to us, Chap. 2. 10. In having the knowledge of the Law, v. 17. and the Oracles of God committed to us, Chap. 3. 2. But we do not wholly, or in all things excel them, becauſe not in the Matter of Juſtification by Faith, which Jew and Gentile equally ſtand in need of. h

Ver. 10. Καθὼς γέγραπται, as it is written.] Theſe words are cited from the 14th Pſalm, according to the Edition of the Septuagint; but I do not conceive it neceſſary to make good the Apoſtle's Words, or Argument, that they ſhould be ſpoken of the Jews of that Age in general, eſpecially ſeeing they are there ſaid to have devoured God's People, and to have ſham'd the counſel of the Poor. It is enough, 1. That they ſhould generally agree to the Jews of the Age in which the Apoſtle writ, as both the Scriptures of the New Teſtament, and the Writings of Joſephus fully prove they do. And, 2. That the Law condemning any for theſe Crimes, doth more eſpecially condemn thoſe under the Law, who at any time are guilty of Crimes thus noted, and condemned by the Law. And with this Concluſion of the Apoſtle, the Jews themſelves accord, ſaying, (a) There is not a man who is not obnoxious to God, (or might not juſtly be condemned by him) were it not for his Mercy and Clemency. Moreover, it is farther to be noted, that in the cloſe of this Pſalm there ſeems to be a Prayer for the Redemption of the Jews by the Meſſiah, in thoſe words, O that the ſalvation of Iſrael were come out of Zion, v. 7. The Deliverer that was to come out of Zion, being the Meſſiah, as we learn from Iſaiah, Chap. 59. 20. and from this Apoſtle, Chap. 11. 26. i Note 2dly, That according to the Doctrine of the Jews, their Messiah was to come in those times when the Jewish Nation was most corrupt, and so most resembled the Description here alledged. See the Note on Philip. 3. 1.

k Ver. 20. Ἐπίγνωσις ἁμαρτίας, the knowledge of sin.] This knowledge of Sin being chiefly by the Moral Law, Chap. 7. 7. shews that the Apostle excludes as well that, as the Ceremonial, from Justification; and evident it is, that the Antithesis runs all along, not between Moral, and Ceremonial Works, but between Works in general, and Faith, v. 20, 22. m Ver. 24. Διὰ τῆς ἀπολυτρώσεως, through the Redemption,] Purchased by the Death and Blood of Christ shed for us; we having Redemption through his blood, the remission of sins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14.

n Ver. 25. Τῶν προγεγονότων ἁμαρτημάτων, of sins that are past.] For in this only consists our first Justification, which is by Faith alone: The Remission of our future Sins committed against the New Covenant, established in the Blood of Jesus, being to be obtained, if they be wilful sins, which only violate the Covenant of Grace, by a sincere and particular Repentance for them, which brings us again under that Covenant, and so under the Promise of Forgiveness through the Blood of Jesus: The ἱλαστήριον, or Mercy-seat, was so called, because God there shewed himself propitious by reason of the Blood of the Sacrifice sprinkled before it. The Apostle therefore, in allusion to it, saith, that God hath set forth Christ to be his Mercy-seat, i. e. the Person through whom he will be propitious to us through Faith in his Blood, stiled the blood of sprinkling, Heb. 12. 24. and presented before him in the Heavens.

o Ibid. Ἱλαστήριον, to be a Propitiation.] In the Old Testament we find the Mercy-seat still stiled ἱλαστήριον, because it was the place where God promised to be Propitious to them, and where the High-Priest made an Atonement for himself, and all the Congregation, by sprinkling the Blood of the Sin-offering before the Mercy-seat: when therefore the Apostle saith, that God hath set forth Jesus Christ to be a Mercy-seat to us through faith in his Blood, we have reason to believe the Blood of Christ, as our Sin-offering, doth make Atonement for, and render God propitious to us. And as under the Old Testament, they who desired to have God propitious to them, were to come with the Blood of their Sin-offering to the Mercy-seat; so under the Gospel-Dispensation they must expect to find God propitious to them, through the Blood of Christ their Mercy-seat, by whom they coming to God, as the Jews did by appearing before his Mercy-seat, should find him gracious in pardoning their Iniquities through the Redemption that is in Jesus: Whence I argue against the Socinians, for our Lord's Satisfaction, thus: What is it we do obtain by this Redemption? It is, saith the Apostle, Remission of Sins. What is it that procures this Remission? It is the Blood of Christ, for we have redemption through his blood, even the remission of sins, Eph. 1. 7. Col. 1. 14. It is the Death of Christ, Heb. 9. 15. Since then, by the confession of Schlichtingius upon the place, our Lord is mentioned here as a piacular Victim, and seeing it is certain those Victims still suffered in the Sinners stead, and that whensoever in the Old Testament mention is made of the Remission of Sins, the Blood of these Sacrifices was the thing that made Atonement for them, Remission of Sins was the thing purchased by that Blood. Have we not Reason from what is here said of Christ, our Piacular Victim, to conceive he suffered in our stead, and that his Blood; shed for us procured the Remission of our Sins, as it aton'd an offended God for our Transgressions?

Ibid. Εἰς τὸ εἶναι αὐτὸν δίκαιον, that he might be just.] The Reverend Dr. Hammond saith, the word δίκαιος is here to be rendred clement, and merciful, and that 'tis commonly taken in that Notion, and seldom in that of Vindictive Justice: But, in opposition to this, I assert, that the word δίκαιος is used about eighty times in the New Testament, and not once in that sense of Clemency, and Mercy, in which he saith 'tis commonly taken; he himself produces but one place, viz. Matth. 1. 19. Joseph being a just man, and not willing to make Mary a publick example, was minded to put her away privily; Where, saith Dr. Lightfoot, Men torment the word δίκαιος to make it signifie Clement, and Merciful, when it bears clearly the ordinary sense, thus; Joseph being a just man, would not cohabit with an Adultress, and yet being not willing to make her a publick Example, and no necessity, as he there shews, lying upon him so to do, he was minded to put her away privily. (2.) It is in the New Testament distinguished from the good, and merciful Man; as when Joseph of Arimathea is stiled ἀγαθὸς καὶ δίκαιος, a good man and just, Luke 23. 50. when the Law is called δίκαιος καὶ ἀγαθὸς, just and good, Rom. 7. 12. And when 'tis said, Chap. 5. 7. that scarcely ὑπὲρ δικαίου for a righteous man will one die, though ὑπὲρ ἀγαθοῦ for a good man one would even dare to die. And (3.) when it relates to God, as here, it al-

CHAPTER IV.

Verſe 1. WHat ſhall we ſay then? [Gr. what therefore do we ſay, as a ſome of our Nation,] that Abraham our Father, a as pertaining to the fleſh hath found? [Gr. hath found juſtification, and acceptance with God, by virtue of his Circumciſion in the fleſh?]

2. [Surely no;] for if Abraham were juſtified by [his own] works, [i. e. his obedience to God's command to circumciſe himſelf, and his whole Family,] he hath whereof to glory, [Gr. ground of boaſting in thoſe works by which he was thus juſtified;] but [manifeſt it is he had] not [whereof to boaſt, or glory] before God;

3. For what ſaith the Scripture? [even b this,] b Abraham believed God, and it [viz. that faith] was counted to him for righteouſneſs.

4. Now [or whereas] to him that worketh, [and by him that obtaineth righteouſneſs,] is the reward reckoned not of grace, but of debt, [he having performed all that was required in order to his being righteous before God.]

5. But to him that worketh not, [i. e. who hath not any thing on account of which he can be deemed righteous by virtue of his c works,] but believeth c on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, [on the account of his faith,] his faith is accounted for righteouſneſs.

6. [And this account of juſtification is] even [ſuch] as David alſo [the other great perſon to whom God had promiſed a Bleſſing to all Nations through his Seed, Eſa. 11. 10. Acts 2. 30. & 13. 23.] deſcribeth [ſpeaking of] the bleſſedneſs of the man to whom God imputeth righteouſneſs without works:

7. Saying, Bleſſed are they whoſe iniquities are forgiven, and whoſe ſins are covered.

8. Bleſſed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute [the] ſin [he hath committed.]

9. Cometh this bleſſedneſs then [of righteouſneſs, by not imputing ſin] upon the circumciſion only, or upon the uncircumciſion alſo? [This queſtion may be decided by the example of our Father Abraham,] for we ſay, that d faith was reckoned to Abraham for d righteouſneſs.

10. How was it then reckoned [to him for righteouſneſs? was it] when he was in circumciſion or in uncircumciſion? not [when he was in circumciſion, but in uncircumciſion; [he believing unto righteouſneſs before he was circumciſed, [Gen. 15. 6.]

11. And he received [afterwards] the ſign of circumciſion [as] a e ſeal of the righte- e ouſneſs of the faith, which he had, yet being uncircumciſed, [and ſo of his acceptance with that God, who thus entred into Covenant with him, and owned himſelf his God, Gen. 17. 1.] that he might be the f Father of all them f that believe, though they be not circumciſed, that righteouſneſs might be imputed to them alſo, [which it could not be, were Circumciſion the Condition of Juſtification and Acceptance with God.]

12. And [that he might be] the father of [the] circumciſion alſo, [i. e. a Father] to them who are not of the circumciſion only, but alſo walk in the ſteps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumciſed.

13. [I ſay, that he might be the father of the uncircumciſed through Faith, and of the Circumciſion through the like Faith, Chap. 3. 30.] For the promiſe [made to Abraham, Gen. 12. 3. or to his Seed, Gen. 22. 18.] that g he ſhould be the heir of the world, [i. e. g of thoſe Bleſſings which ſhould be derived from him to all the Families and Nations of the Earth,] was not [made] to Abraham, or to his Seed, through [or by vertue of, their obedience to] the Law, but through, [and by vertue of,] the righteouſneſs of faith.

[And] therefore is [the Inheritance, Gal. 3. 18.] of faith, that it might be by grace [which both Jew and Gentile wanted as to Juſtification, Chap. 3. 23, 24.] to the end the promiſe [of it] might be ſure to all the ſeed [of Abraham,] not to that only which is of the law, but to that alſo which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all, [i. e. that it might be made good to the Gentile alſo, believing as their Father Abraham did].

17. [I ſay, the Father of us all,] as it is written, [Gen. 17. 5.] I have made thee a i i father of many Nations; [which words, though ſpoken then when Abraham had no Seed, yet were they certain] before, [or in reſpect of,] him whom he believed, even k [that] God k who quickneth the dead, [and ſo was able to quicken his body now dead, and l the deadneſs of Sarah's womb,] and l calleth thoſe things which be not, [i. e. the Gentiles which were not then a People,] as if they were.

m 18. Who, I ſay, againſt [all Natural grounds of] hope, believed in hope that he might [Gr. ſhould] become the father of many Nations, according to that which was ſpoken [to him, Gen. 15. 5. as the Stars of Heaven] ſo ſhall thy ſeed be.

19. And being not weak in faith he conſi- n dered not his own body n now dead, [or grown already dead, he being about one hundred years old,] neither yet the deadneſs of Sarah's womb, [with whom it had ceaſed to be after the manner of Women, Gen. 18. 11.]

20. He o ſtaggered not at [Gr. he doubted o not of] the promiſe of God through unbelief, but was ſtrong in faith, giving glory to God, [by acknowledging his power to make it good;]

21. And being fully perſwaded that what he had promiſed, he was able alſo to perform.

22. And therefore it (viz. this ſtrong faith,) was imputed to him for righteouſneſs.

Who was delivered [to the death] for our offences, [to offer up himſelf a Piacular Victim for them,] and was raiſed again for our juſtification; [i. e. to appear before God with the blood of this Victim, to make Atonement before God for us, and thereby to procure our Juſtification, or our Abſolution, from the guilt of ſin.]

a Verſe 1. Κατὰ σάρκα, according to the fleſh,] i. e. By virtue of his Obedience to God's command in circumciſing the Fleſh of his Foreskin. So Iſrael κατὰ σάρκα, according to the fleſh, 1 Cor. 10. 18. is, Iſrael according to the Circumciſion of the Fleſh. To know Chriſt according to the fleſh, 2 Cor. 5. 16. is to know him according to his Circumciſion, or being of the Stock of Abraham. To glory κατὰ σάρκα, according to the fleſh, is, to glory in being Circumciſed, 2 Cor. 11. 18. In this the Jews had the greateſt confidence of being acceptable to God, and therefore are repreſented by St. Paul as πεποιθότες ἐν σαρκὶ, having confidence in the fleſh, Philip. 3. 3, 4. declaring that no circumciſed Jew goes to Hell, God having promiſed to deliver them for the Merit of Circumciſion. See the Note on Chap. 2. 13. Moreover, that vain Opinion had obtained among the Jews, That Abraham was not pure or accepted with God, till after his Circumciſion. This is hinted in the Targum of B. Uziel, who renders Gen. 17. 1. thus; Walk before me, והוי שלים בשרך i. e. and be thou perfect in thy fleſh. But it is in expreſs words aſſerted, Pirk Eliezer, cap. 29. p. 64. This Opinion the Apoſtle here confutes, and then v. 11. ſhews what his Circumciſion ſignified. Mr. C. interprets this Phraſe thus, According to the fleſh; (i. e.) in the judgment of man, or according to carnal judgment. But there can be nothing more alien from the mind of Paul than this Interpretation: For the Apoſtle had been before aſſerting, That the Circumciſion, acceptable to God, was not that made in the fleſh, Chap. 2. 28. In the beginning of the next Chapter he anſwers the Enquiry of the Jews, if it doth not render us more acceptable to God, what then is the benefit of Circumciſion? It hath many other Advantages, ſaith he, but not that of Juſtification before God, that being the Reſult of Faith; for it is one (and the ſame)

God, who will juſtifie the Circumciſion through Faith, and the Uncircumciſion by Faith. What then, ſaith he, do we ſay in this Affair? Do we ſay, as the Jews, That Abraham, the Father of the faithful, found Juſtification (the thing I now diſcourſe of) κατὰ σάρκα, by that laborious Work of Circumciſion performed upon himſelf, when he was Ninety nine years old, and upon all his Family? On which account, ſay the Jews (a), God ſmelt the ſweet odour of their Foreskins, and ſaid, when they tranſgreſſed, he would remember this odour, and they ſhould be repleniſhed with his Mercies. Here is a Rational Account of the Connexion, and Pertinence of the Apoſtle's Argument. But how comes in, the Judgment of Men, with a τί ἐρῦμεν, what then do we ſay? When nothing at all had been ſaid of their Judgment, nor was the Apoſtle diſcourſing of the Juſtification according to Man's Carnal Judgment. Is not the Apoſtle's queſtion a ſtrong Negative, importing that Abraham had not found Juſtification according to the Fleſh? Why then doth Mr. Cl. turn it into an Affirmative? He goes on and ſays, If Abraham was accounted juſt for his Works in the judgment of Men, he hath whereof to glory; he hath καύχημα boaſting, ſaith he, before Men; but is that the καύχημα, or boaſting, which, the Apoſtle ſaid, was excluded, not by the Law of Works, but by the Law of Faith? Chap. 3. 27. No ſure; but boaſting before God: this therefore muſt be here repeated, if Abraham were juſtified by Works; (i.e.) the Works of Circumciſion performed upon himſelf, and his whole Family, he hath whereof to boaſt before God, but he cannot have whereof to boaſt before God of any Juſtification of this kind, for what ſaith the Scripture, &c. In fine, κατὰ σάρκα never ſignifies in Scripture, the judgment of Man, but the fleſhly Luſtings, Deſires, and Motions of Men, John 8.15. To judge according to the fleſh, is to judge ex carnali affectu, from Carnal Affection; and 2 Cor. 1. 17. to purpoſe according to the fleſh, is to do it according to Carnal Principles and Advantages, as to walk after the fleſh, is, to be govern'd and acted by Carnal Principles, Rom. 8. 1,4,5,12,13. 2 Cor. 10.2.

b Ver. 3. Ἐπίστευσε δὲ Ἀβραὰμ τῷ Θεῷ, Abraham believed God.] We learn from the Author to the Hebrews, that Abraham had Faith before this was ſaid unto him, for by faith Abraham being called, obeyed and went forth, &c. and that by a yet ſtronger faith, he offered up his ſon Iſaac, believing that God was able to raiſe him up from the dead, Heb. 11.8, 17. But neither of theſe Inſtances are pitch'd upon by the Apoſtle, as fit for his purpoſe, becauſe, in both, Obedience was joyned with Faith; whereas here was a pure act of Faith without Works; and of this Act of Faith is ſaid, what is not ſaid of either of the other, it was imputed to him for righteouſneſs: See v. 22. (2.) God for this Act of Faith, and not upon the former, dealt with him as a righteous Perſon, by entring into Covenant with him, which was a ſign that he accepted him, and pardoned all his Sins paſt, for it is ſaid, In that very day God entred into Covenant with Abraham, Gen. 15.18. which he had not done before. Moreover, this was ſpoken to Abraham before his Circumciſion, and ſo is very proper to convince the Jews of the no neceſſity of Circumciſion to Juſtification: But Abraham offered Iſaac after his Circumciſion, and ſo the Apoſtle could not alledge that inſtance of his Faith here, v. 10, 11. he therefore was accounted Righteous by virtue of that Faith which excludes boaſting, Chap. 2. 27. and only juſtifies by Grace.

Ver. 5. Ἐπὶ τὸν δικαιοῦντα τὸν ἀσεβῆ, on him that juſtifies the ungodly.] Juſtification being only the Non-Imputation, or the Pardon of their paſt Sins on the account of that Faith, which laid the higheſt Obligations upon all Believers to die unto Sin for the future, there is no abſurdity in ſaying, that God thus juſtifies the ungodly, repenting of, and engaging to ceaſe from their ungodlineſs. c

Ver. 9. Ἐλογίσθη τῷ Ἀβραὰμ ἡ πίστις, Faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteouſneſs.] The Gloſs of R. Salomon on Gen. 15. 6. is this: The bleſſed God reputed this to Abraham for Righteouſneſs and Merit, for the Faith by which he believed in him. And the Book (b) Ikkarim ſaith thus: Our Father Abraham was praiſed for his Faith, as ſaith the Scripture, Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteouſneſs. d

Ver. 11. Σφραγῖδα τὴν δικαιοσύνης τῆς πίστεως τῆς ἐν τῇ ἀκροβυσίᾳ, the ſeal of the righteouſneſs of faith, &c.] The Apoſtle in this Epiſtle inſiſts much upon the Juſtification of the uncircumciſed Gentiles, called therefore by the Jews ἡ ἀκροβυσία, the Uncircumciſion, Eph. 2.11. Rom. 2. 25,26,27. declaring that God is not the God of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles, ſeeing he will juſtifie both the Circumciſion, and the Uncircumciſion through Faith, Chap. 3. 29, 30. That the Bleſſing of Juſtification came not only on the Circumciſion, but on the Uncircumciſion alſo, v. 9. Faith being accounted to Abraham for Righteouſneſs, when he was in Uncircumciſion, v. 10. So that theſe words may be rendred thus, And he received the Sign of Circumciſion, a Seal of the Righteouſneſs of that Faith, which was in the Uncircumciſion, i. e. of God's Acceptance of the e f Ibid. Πατέρα, the Father;] i. e. that he might be the Father of all Nations, whether Jew, or Gentile, and they might all be bleſſed in him, according to the Promiſe, In thee ſhall all the Nations of the Earth be bleſſed, Gen. 12. 3. Or as it is Gen. 22. 18. In thy ſeed.

g Ver. 13. Τὸν κληρονόμον αὐτὸν εἶναι τοῦ κόσμου, that he ſhould be the heir of the world.] The whole difficulty of this Verſe reſts upon the true Interpretation of this Phraſe, That he ſhould be the heir of the world. Some think that to be the heir of the world here, is to be heir of the Land of Canaan, and the Parts adjacent to it, Idumæa, &c. But this is not only impertinent to the purpoſe of the Apoſtle, who is here proving, not that Temporal Poſſeſſions, but that Juſtification is not by the Law, but by Faith; but ſeemeth flatly contrary to the Apoſtle; for the Promiſe of the Land of Canaan was made to Abraham upon his Circumciſion, and to his Seed, Gen. 17. 7, 8. And the poſſeſſion of, and their continuance in it, is ſtill promiſed to the Jews, upon condition of their Obedience to the Law of Moſes. Others think that to be heir of the world, is to be heir of the Spiritual and Heavenly Canaan; but then, as it is hard to find where any ſuch Promiſe was made to Abraham, and his Seed, ſo it is as difficult to ſhew how this accords with the main ſcope of the Apoſtle, which is to eſtabliſh our Juſtification by Faith. The ancient Greek Scholiaſts interpret the words thus; That he ſhould be Heir of the World, τοῦτέστιν ἐν αὐτῷ εὐλογεῖσθαι πάντα τὰ τῆ κόσμῳ ἔθνη, (i. e. that all the Nations of the World ſhould be bleſſed in him. So Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, Theophylact, Quod enim dicit, benedicentur in te omnes tribus terræ, hoc eſt, hæredem factum eſſe totius mundi; So Origen. And this is confirmed from the parallel place, Gal. 3.8. for the Promiſe mention'd here, muſt be the ſame with the Promiſe mentioned there, becauſe the Argument is the ſame. Now, (1.) the Promiſe there is, In thy Seed, that is, Chriſt, ſhall all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed, v. 12. And (2.) he there ſpeaks of a Promiſe made Four hundred and thirty years before the Law, which term only agrees to the Promiſe made Gen. 12. 3. (3.) This is the Bleſſing of Abraham that was to come upon the Gentiles, Gal. 3. 14. For, ſaith the Apoſtle, The Scriptures foreſeeing that God would juſtifie the Gentiles through Faith (in the promiſed Seed,) preached the Goſpel before to Abraham, ſaying, In thee ſhall all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed. So then, they that are of faith, are bleſſed with faithful Abraham. He firſt, as being the Father of the Faithful, and ſo the Heir of the believing World; and they after him, as being his Sons, and Seed, by walking in the ſteps of his Faith, and ſo becoming Heirs with him of the ſame Promiſe; for if you be Chriſt's, if by Faith you be intereſted in him, ſaith the Apoſtle, then are you Abraham's Seed, and Heirs according to the Promiſe, Gal. 3.29. So Heb. 11.7. Noah is ſaid by his Faith to condemn the unbelieving World, and to be ὁ κατὰ πίστιν δικαιοσύνης κληρονόμος, the Heir of the Righteouſneſs which is by Faith, (i.e.) the Father of all that believed unto Juſtification or Righteouſneſs after him.

Ver. 14. Κεκένωται ἡ πίστις, Faith is made void.] h
Then Faith is made void to them that are not of the Law, and it is alſo made void to them that are of the Law.

Ver. 17. A Father of many Nations.] The i Jews hence prove that a Proſelyte, converted to the Jewiſh Faith, might be Legatus Synagogæ, quia ſcriptum extat, Conſtitui te Patrem univerſitatis Gentium, becauſe it is written, Gen. 17.5. I have made thee a Father of all Nations; before this time ſay they, he was only a Father of the Syrians; but from this time, he was the Father of all Nations. the dead.] This being an Inſtance of the Faith of Abraham, it ſeems moſt reaſonable to refer it to the Object of his Faith, (viz.) That he ſhould have a numerous Seed, yea, that he ſhould have the promiſed Seed from Sarah, though her Womb was dead; and it ceaſed to be with her after the manner of women: And ſo Hilary the Deacon doth interpret this Phraſe.

things that be not, as if they were.] He that is far from God, ſaith Origen, as we Gentiles were before we came to the knowledge of the Truth, is ſaid not to be; and therefore God deſigning to render them the Seed of Abraham by Faith, is ſaid to call thoſe things that be not, as if they were; for τὰ μὴ ὄντα, things which are not, both in the language of the Old Teſtament, and of the Jews, and of the Primitive Chriſtians, ſignifies the Gentiles, by converting whom, ſaith (c) Clemens R. ἐκάλεσεν ἡμᾶς ἐκ οὐκ ὄντας, καὶ ἠθέλησεν ἐκ τοῦ μὴ ὄντος εἶναι ἡμᾶς, God called us that were not, and would that of nothing we ſhould have a being; as I have ſhewed, Note on 1 Cor. 1.8.

objected, That Abraham's Body could not be thus dead, ſince after the death of Sarah, even Forty years after, he had ſix Sons by Keturah, Gen. 25. 1. But they who here tell us, that Abraham's Body was not ſimply dead, but only as to Sarah's Womb, and that by a young Woman he was able to have Seed then, ſpeak expreſly againſt the Text, which ſaith, his body was grown dead, and againſt the Opinion of Abraham himſelf, Gen. 17. 17. and of Sarah concerning him, Gen. 18. 12. They who add that this need not ſeem ſtrange, that Abraham ſhould have Children by Keturah, conſidering the Age to which he then lived, ſince in our time Men have had Children after they have been Seventy, or Eighty years old, they will not ſuffer that to be ſtrange to us, which ſeemed ſtrange to Abraham himſelf, witneſs his Anſwer to the Promiſe of Almighty God, Shall a Child be born to him that is an hundred years old? Gen. 17. 17. Oh that Iſhmael might live before thee. And to Sarah, Gen. 18. 12. they deny the Miracle effected by the great power of God, which therefore the Angel doth encourage Sarah to believe, becauſe nothing can be too hard for God, Gen. 18. 13. They leſſen the Faith of Abraham which is ſo highly magnified here, as being hope againſt hope, v. 18. believing in him that quickneth the dead, v. 17. not ſtaggering at the Promiſe, but being ſtrong in faith, v. 20. That therefore muſt be here acknowledged, which the Jewiſh Doctors, and all the Chriſtian Fathers ſay, that God gave a new Bleſſing to their Bodies, and by that rendred them capable of getting and bearing Children, when by Nature they were not ſo. This of Sarah the Targum of B. Uziel hints, by paraphraſing the words thus, Gen. 17. 16. As for Sarah, I will bleſs her בגויה in her body. And the Apoſtle more plainly in theſe words, Through faith alſo Sarah her ſelf received ſtrength to conceive Seed, Heb. 11. 11.

c Ver. 20. Οὐ διεκρίθη τῇ ἀπιστίᾳ, he doubted not through unbelief.] It ſeems, his Faith was not without ſome doubting, from that Anſwer he returns to God, Shall a Child be born to Abraham, that is an hundred years old? And ſhall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear? In which words he ſeems to conſider both his own dead Body, and Sarah's dead Womb, which the Apoſtle here denies, v. 19. and v. 18. he ſays to God, Oh that Iſhmael might live before thee; as if he expected no other Offſpring. To the firſt Objection it is anſwered, That thoſe words, Shall a Child be born to Abraham! are to be conſidered as words of Admiration, not of Doubting; for he rejoiced at it, ſaith the Chaldee, and the Hebrew word, which we render laughed, hath this import, Chap. 21. 6. Nor is Abraham reprehended for it, as Sarah is, Chap. 18. 13. John 8. 56. To the ſecond it is anſwered, That he only deſires God to bleſs him alſo, as well as the Seed promiſed, which appears probable from God's Anſwer, v. 20. As for Iſhmael, I have heard thee, behold, I have bleſſed him, and will make him fruitful.

Ver. 23, 24, 25. Note, That from theſe p three laſt Verſes many things may be obſerved, which tend to the Illuſtration of the Doctrine of Faith, and of Juſtification by Faith. And,

1. From v. 3, 22, 23, 24. it is extreamly evident, that it is the very Act of Faith, and not the Object of it, viz. Chriſt's Righteouſneſs, which was imputed to Abraham, and is imputed to us for Righteouſneſs. As then the Faith of Abraham which is here ſaid to be imputed to him for Righteouſneſs, was not the obeying God in his Commands of walking before him, and being perfect, but as is here expreſly ſaid, his believing God's Power, and his relyance on it without any doubting, was the thing that was imputed to him for Righteouſneſs, as well as that other Act of Faith, that in his Seed ſhould all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed. So the Faith that ſhall be imputed to us for Juſtification, is not, ſaith the Apoſtle, that which includeth the performance of Sincere Obedience, nor only Faith in the Blood of Chriſt ſhed for the Remiſſion of our Sins, but Faith in him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, that he will raiſe us alſo from the dead, and glorifie us with him. See the Note on Rom. 10. 9. So alſo is the Faith of Abraham and Sarah repreſented, Heb. 11. 11.

2. Hence alſo we learn, that our Juſtification depends not only on the Death of Chriſt, but on his Reſurrection: So the Apoſtle doth again teach us, ſaying, Who is he that condemneth us, it is Chriſt that died, (as a piacular Victim for our ſins,) yea rather that is riſen again, who is even at the right hand of God, (preſenting the Blood of this Victim in his Preſence for us,) who (by it) alſo maketh interceſſion for us. For the clearing up of this matter, let it be noted, Firſt, That as the Victim offered under the Old Teſtament was brought to the Altar, and there ſlain, ſo Chriſt offering himſelf for us, was alſo brought to the Altar of the Croſs on which he ſuffered as a Piacular Victim for us, bearing our Sins in his own Body on the Tree.

Secondly, As the Blood of the Beaſt thus ſlain was to be brought before the Mercy-Seat, or into the Holy of Holies, and there preſented before God to make Atonement with; ſo was the Blood of Chriſt, thus ſlain alſo, to be carried into the Heavenly Sanctuary, and there preſented before God to make Atonement for our Sins.

Thirdly, As the Beaſt, when dead, could not offer up its own Blood; ſo Chriſt, being dead, dead, could not, before his Reſurrection, make an Offering of his own Blood, in the Heavens for this end; whence the Apoſtle tells us, that ſuch an High-Prieſt became us, who is higher than the Heavens, Heb. 7. 26. And were the Opinion of ſome true, that Chriſt appeared not with his Blood in the Heavens, he muſt be only a Metaphorical High Prieſt, the offering, or preſenting of the Blood before God, being only the proper Office of the Prieſthood; and the Parallel the Apoſtle makes betwixt him, and the Aaronical Prieſts, muſt be wholly overthrown: For with what Congruity could the Apoſtle inſiſt ſo much on the Compariſon betwixt the Blood of Chriſt brought into the Heavenly Tabernacle, and the Blood of the Legal Sacrifices brought into the Earthly Tabernacle, if indeed the Blood of Chriſt was not carried into the True Tabernacle, and there preſented to God? When the Apoſtle ſaith ſo oft, The Jewiſh High-Prieſt entred into the Holy Place with the Blood of Bulls and Goats, doth he not mean, that he carried their Blood in thither? When then the ſame Apoſtle ſaith, Chriſt, not by the Blood of Bulls and Goats, but διὰ τοῦ ἰδίου αἵματος, by his own proper Blood, entred into the Holy Place, muſt he not alſo mean, that Chriſt carried his own Blood into the Heavenly Sanctuary?

8. But e God commendeth his love towards us, in that whilſt we were yet ſinners Chriſt died for us.

9. [And if God through Chriſt Jeſus ſhewed ſuch kindneſs to us, being ſinners,] much more then being juſtified by his blood, [and ſo made righteous in his ſight, and having peace with God, v. 1.] we ſhall be ſaved from [the] wrath [of God] through him.

10. For if when we were enemies [to him] we were f reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled, we ſhall be ſaved g by his life.

o of grace, and [by it] of the o gift of righteouſneſs [or juſtification,] ſhall reign in life, by [the Reconciliation purchaſed for them by the death of] one Jeſus Chriſt.

18. Therefore as by the offence of one [Gr. by one offence] the judgment [Gr. Sentence] came upon all men to [the] condemnation [of death,] even ſo by the righteouſneſs of one, [by one righteous Act, the Obedience of Chriſt to the death for us,] the free gift came upon all men [believing in him] to juſtification of life.

19. For as by one man's diſobedience many were p made ſinners, [being made ſubject to the death, which was inflicted upon Adam for ſin, as much as if they themſelves had violated the Law which rendred him obnoxious to it;] ſo by the obedience of one [ſuffering death, the puniſhment of ſin, for them,] ſhall many be made righteous, [i.e. be as truly juſtified, and exempted from that death, which is the puniſhment of ſin, as if they had perſonally ſuffered, and alſo accepted and treated by God, as if indeed they had been righteous Perſons.] p

20. [I ſay, before the Law we became obnoxious to death by one man's diſobedience,] q but the law entred that the offence might abound [unto death, and men might be found obnoxious to it alſo on the account of their Tranſgreſſions againſt the Law; but where ſin [thus] abounded [unto death,] Grace did much more abound [unto life.]

21. That as ſin hath reigned unto death, [ſeizing on all men for it,] even ſo grace might reign through righteouſneſs, [Gr. Juſtification,] to eternal life, by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

Annotations on Chap. V.

a Verſe 5. Ἡ Ἀγάπη τοῦ Θεοῦ, the love of God,] to us thus believing. So Ch. 8. 35, 39. 2 Cor. 5. 14. & 13. 13. 1 John 3. 9, 10.

b Ibid. Ἐκκέχυται, is ſhed abroad.] This is the word ſtill uſed in the New Teſtament, when ſpeaking of the effuſion of the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 2. 17, 18, 33. Titus 3. 6. and it is taken from Joel 2. 28, 29. and ſo this may refer to the χαρίσματα of the Holy Ghoſt ſo liberally imparted to them.

c Ver. 6. Ὄντων ἡμῶν ἀσθενῶν, when we were weak.] It may here be noted, that the words ἀσθενὴς, ἀσθένεια, ἀσθένεια in the Seventy, anſwer to the Hebrew חלה and ſignifie to fall, and ſtumble to our Ruine. So Pſal. 9. 3. They ſhall fall and periſh, ἀσθενήσουσι καὶ ἀπολοῦνται, at thy preſence. Pſal. 26. 4. They ſtumbled and fell, ἠσθένησαν καὶ ἔπεσον. Pſal. 106. 12. ἠσθένησαν, they fell down, and there was none to help them. Prov. 24. 16. The wicked ſhall fall into miſchief, ἀσθενήσουσιν ἐν κακοῖς. And this import of the word ſuits well with the Text, and ſo is proper to repreſent our fall by ſin, and the words following, v. 8. ἁμαρτωλῶν ὄντων ἡμῶν, even whilſt we were ſinners Chriſt died for us, do render it ſo probable, that I thought fit to mention it in the Paraphraſe.

Ver. 8. Συνίστησι δὲ ὁ Θεὸς, but God commends e his love to us.] The death of Chriſt is uſually in Scripture repreſented as an inſtance of the great love of God the Father to us, becauſe his Wiſdom did contrive this way of Redemption for us, Eph. 1. 4, 5. He ſent his Son into the world to be the Propitiation for our ſins, that we might live through him, 1 John 4. 9, 10. ciled to God.] Here are many Arguments to eſtabliſh the Doctrine of our Lord's Satisfaction by ſuffering in our ſtead, to reconcile an offended God to us. For

1. When it is here ſaid, that Chriſt died for the ungodly, 1 Pet. 3.18. That when we were yet ſinners Chriſt died for us, 1 Cor. 5. 15. And elſewhere, that he ſuffered for our ſins, the juſt for the unjuſt, Heb. 1.9. 1 Pet. 4. 1. In theſe, and ſuch like places, one of theſe two things is intimated, That our Lord ſuffered in our ſtead, or that he bore the Puniſhment of our ſin: This being the plain import of the like Expreſſions when they are uſed in the Old or New Teſtament. For when we read in the Old Teſtament, The Fathers ſhall not be put to death for the Children, nor the Children for the Fathers; every Man ſhall be put to death for his own ſin, Deut.24.17. Of Amaziah, that he ſlew thoſe Servants that had murther'd the King his Father, but the Children of thoſe murtherers he ſlew not, according to thoſe words of Moſes, The Fathers ſhall not be put to death, οὐκ ἀποθανοῦνται, they ſhall not die for the Children, &c. 2 King 14.6. 2 Chron.25.4. And in the Prophet Ezekiel, The ſoul that ſinneth, it ſhall die; the Son ſhall not bear the iniquity of the Father, nor ſhall the Father bear the iniquity of the Son, Ezek. 18. In all theſe places it is plain no Subſtitution is intended, becauſe no Exemption of the Father, becauſe the Son, or of the Son, becauſe the Father ſuffers; but then 'tis plainly intimated, that the one in this caſe would bear the puniſhment of the others ſin. But when David ſaith concerning Abſalom, Would God I had died for thee, O Abſolom, τίς δώη τὸν θάνατόν μου ἀντὶ σου, 2 Sam. 18.33. O that my death might have gone inſtead of thine. When here the Apoſtle ſaith, That ſcarcely for a righteous perſon one would die, but for a good man ſome would even dare to die; there evidently a ſubſtitution is intended of the one to free the other from death by the death he ſuffers. When therefore the Apoſtle before, and after theſe words, ſaith Chriſt died for the ungodly, and the ſinner, muſt he not alſo ſignifie that our Lord died in their ſtead, to deliver them from death? 'Tis evident beyond Exception, that in all piacular Sacrifices, both Jew and Gentile always took this for granted, that the Victim ſuffered in their ſtead, and for their ſins. Since then the Socinians own that our Lord ſuffered as Victima piacularis, or an Expiatory Sacrifice, ſurely both Jew and Gentile muſt conceive that all theſe Phraſes did import, that our Lord ſuffered in our ſtead, and for our ſins.

2. A ſecond Argument is taken from the Reconciliation mention'd as the effect of our Lord's ſuffering for us; for ſeeing it is alone the guilt of ſin, or ſin unpardoned, that maketh God diſpleaſed with us, the Death which is here ſaid to procure our Peace and Reconciliation to God, muſt make Atonement for the guilt of our Iniquities.

Crellius replies, That by Reconciliation here the Apoſtle intends not God's Reconciliation to us, but ours to God, by that Converſion to him, which maketh us at friendſhip with him. But this may be Refuted, Firſt, From the import of the words καταλλάττειν and καταλλαγή, for they do naturally import the Reconciliation of one that is angry, or diſpleaſed with us, both in prophane and Jewiſh Writers; thus ἐν τίνι διαλλαγήσεται, in what ſhall David reconcile himſelf to his Lord? 1 Sam.29.4. When Apame, the famous Concubine was angry with King Darius, he flattered her ὅπως διαλλαγῇ αὐτῷ, that ſhe might be reconciled to him, 1 Eſd. 4. 21. After the reviling, or falling out of Friends, ἔστι διαλλαγή, there is, or may be Reconciliation, ſaith the Son of Syrach, Ecclus. 22. 22. The Jews in Egypt, pray for thoſe in Judea, that the Lord would hear their Prayer, καὶ καταλλαγείη, and be reconciled to them, 2 Maccab. 1. 5. Adding, that as Jeruſalem was forſaken through the Wrath of the Almighty, ſo ἐν τῇ τοῦ μεγάλου Δεσπότου καταλλαγῇ, when the great God was reconciled, it was ſet up with glory, Chap.5.20. And again, Though the Lord, ſay they, be angry with us a little while for our Chaſtiſement, and Correction, πάλιν καταλλαγήσεται, he will again be reconciled to his Servants, Chap.7.33. And they beſeech the Lord εἰς τέλος καταλλαγῆναι, to be reconciled to his Servants for ever, Chap. 8.29. Whence we learn, that Reconciliation always reſpecteth ſome preceding Anger or Diſpleaſure; and that the reconciling of God, was the appeaſing of his Anger: When therefore we here read in the ſame words of Enemies reconciled to God, and ſo ſaved from his Wrath, what can we imagine, but that a God once angry, and offended with them, is now appeaſed? And when we farther read, that this Reconciliation was effected by the Death and Blood of Chriſt, is it not obvious to conceive his Wrath and Anger was averted by the ſhedding this Blood for us?

Secondly, 'Tis evident that, when we were ſinners Chriſt died for us, v. 8. and when we were Enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, v. 10. are words of the ſame import; for ſeeing theſe words, Chriſt died for us, and Chriſt ſhed his blood for us, ſignifie the ſame thing; and by his Blood ſhed we are reconciled, 'tis evident that Chriſt dying for us, and Chriſt reconciling us by his death, or blood ſhed for us, muſt be the ſame; now we are juſtified by his blood, as it procures our Peace with God, v. 1. as it ſaves us from his wrath, v. 9. Therefore we are reconciled to God by it on the ſame account.

Thirdly, We being here conſidered as ſin-

ners, ungodly, enemies to God, as Perſons who have, upon that account, fallen ſhort of the glory, that is, ſaith Crellius, of the approbation of God, Rom. 3 23. Is there no need of reconciling God unto ſuch Perſons? And when under theſe Circumſtances we are ſaid to be juſtified through the redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus, Rom. 3. 25, 26. and being juſtified, to have peace with God through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, can we conceive that nothing was done by this Jeſus to procure God's Reconciliation to the ſinner, or to purchaſe his Peace with an offended God? Eſpecially if we conſider that the Death of Chriſt here mentioned, as that by which we are reconciled to God, is the Death of him, who ſuffered as a Sin offering for us, the Blood by which we are juſtified, is the Blood of Atonement, or Propitiation, or the blood ſhed to make reconciliation for the ſins of the people, Hebr. 2. 17.

h Ver. 11. Τὴν καταλλαγὴν ἐλάβομεν, we have received the atonement.] Crellius excepts againſt this Interpretation, alledging that to recive or obtain Reconciliation, is a Phraſe unknown to Jew and Gentile, and would have the words rendred thus, By whom we have obtained this Converſion to God; but to obtain Reconciliation, when it is the effect of Blood ſhed for the Remiſſion of Sins, is very proper; for it was the conſtant practice under the Law to procure Reconciliation by ſhedding the Blood of the Sin-offering; and all Nations by this means endeavoured to reconcile God to them, and what Reconciliation the Prieſt, by offering this blood, procured, the ſinner received, and obtained; and therefore to receive Atonement, or obtain Reconciliation, by an Expiatory Sacrifice, muſt be a thing very well known to Jew and Gentile; but to receive Converſion by it, is indeed a Phraſe unknown to them, and the whole Church of Chriſt. Moreover, this Note of Crellius ſhews his little skill in the Greek; for as θάρσος λαμβάνειν is to be courageous, Acts 28. 15. ἀρχὴν λαμβάνειν is to begin, λήθην λαμβάνειν is to forget, Heb. 2. 3 ὑπόμνησιν λαμβάνειν to remember, 2 Tim. 1. 5. πεῖραν λαμβάνειν to experiment, Heb. 11. 36. οἰκοδομὴν λαμβάνειν to be edified, 1 Cor. 14. 5. ſo καταλλαγὴν λαμβάνειν is to be reconciled, as noxam capere is to be hurt.

i Ver. 12. Ἐφ' ᾧ, in whom.] The Criticks have been very induſtrious to find ſome other ſenſe of theſe words than that which our Tranſlation gives, ſome rendring this laſt Clauſe, for that, ſome, becauſe all have ſinned. But our Expoſition is confirmed beyond all Contradiction from the following words, which declare, That by the ſin of one man, many die, and that by the ſin of one death reigned by one, and that by one offence the ſentence of death came upon all, v. 15, 16, 17, 18. All which are parallel to the Expreſſion here, that Death came upon all men through Adam, in whom, ſaith the ſame Apoſtle, all men die, 1 Cor. 15. 22. And the words following, That by the diſobedience of one many were made ſinners, are plainly parallel to theſe, in whom all have ſinned.

2. None of the other ſenſes are true, or ſuitable to the Scope and Argument of the Apoſtle, v. g. It is not true that Death came upon all men, for that, or becauſe all have ſinned. For the Apoſtle directly here aſſerts the contrary, viz. that the Death, and Condemnation to it, which befel all men, was for the ſin of Adam only; for here it is expreſly ſaid, That by the ſin of one man many died; that the Sentence was, from one, and by one man ſinning to condemnation; and, that by the ſin of one death reigned by one: Therefore the Apoſtle doth expreſly teach us, that this Death, this Condemnation to it, came not upon us for the ſin of all, but only for the ſin of one, (i. e.) of that one Adam, in whom all men die, 1 Cor. 15. 22.

He alſo farther teacheth, that this Death and Condemnation came upon all for one ſin of that one man, for it came δι' ἑνὸς παραπτώματος by one offence upon all men; it came not therefore upon all men for the ſin of all: And this the Compariſon plainly requires, which ſaith, the oppoſite Juſtification, and free Gift came upon all men by one man, Jeſus Chriſt; by the obedience of one, and δι' ἑνὸς δικαιώματος, by one righteouſneſs, v. 16, 17, 18, 19. i.e. by the obedience to the Death of that one man. Yea, the Apoſtle doth,

3. Not only thus plainly and frequently aſſert, that Death came upon all men for the ſin of Adam, but he proves it by this Argument; that Death reigned from Adam to Moſes over them that had not ſinned after the ſimilitude of Adam's Tranſgreſſion; i. e. againſt a Law threatning Death to them for Sin; they therefore, ſaith he, could not die for their own ſins; for though indeed they were then ſinners, yet being under no ſuch Law as Adam was, their ſin was not imputed to Death, and ſo they could not die on that account; Death therefore came upon them, as I aſſerted, through the ſin of Adam

Ver. 13. I add, Generally.] Becauſe tho' k all men died after Adam, all were not puniſhed with Death for their own Natural Sin, but only the Antediluvians, and the Sodomites.

Ibid. Ἁμαρτία δὲ οὐκ ἐλλογεῖται, ſin was not imputed.] The Apoſtle doth not mean that God did not account them ſinners who tranſgreſſed againſt the Law of Nature, or that he was not diſpleaſed with them for their offences, but only that he did not ſo impute them, as to condemn them to death for them. To make this out, and to give you the true import of the word Imputation, let it be obſerved,

Firſt,

Firſt, That wherever this Phraſe occurs affirmatively, that ſuch a thing was imputed to any one, it is ſome Perſonal thing, or Action of our own, and not any thing of anothers, which is thus ſaid to be imputed. As when 'tis ſaid, *Rom.*2.26. That if the uncircumciſion keep the righteouſneſs of the Law, his uncircumciſion on that account εἰς περιτομὴν λογισθήσεται ſhall be accounted for circumciſion, i. e. he ſhall be accepted as well as if he were circumciſed. So *Rom.*4.3. Abraham believed God, and it (that is, his Faith) was imputed to him for righteouſneſs; for ſo it is explained v. 5. To him that worketh not, but believeth, his faith is imputed to him for righteouſneſs: And v. 9. We ſay, that faith was imputed to Abraham for righteouſneſs. See *Gal.*3.6. James 2.23. And of our faith in him that raiſed Chriſt from the dead, it is ſaid, *Rom.*4.24. that it ſhall be imputed to us for righteouſneſs.

Secondly, When the Phraſe is uſed with a Negative, or when Sin is ſaid to be imputed, or not to be imputed, it is only a Man's own Perſonal Sin that is intended; but the Non-imputation of it, is the not inflicting ſome condign Puniſhment upon him for it. So *Rom.*4.8. Bleſſed is the man to whom the Lord imputeth no ſin; which being ſpoken on the account of God's heavy hand on David for his ſin, Pſal 32.2,3,4 ſhews that the import of it muſt be this; Bleſſed is the man whom God doth not puniſh for his iniquity. So 2 *Tim.*4.16. In my firſt Anſwer no Man ſtood by me, μὴ αὐτοῖς λογισθείη, may it not be imputed to them, i. e. let them not ſuffer for it. So 2 *Sam.*19.19. Shimei ſpeaks to David thus, μὴ λογισάσθω ὁ κύριός μου ἀνομίαν, let not my Lord impute to me mine iniquity; i. e. let him not remember it to puniſh it. When therefore it is ſaid, 2 *Cor.*5.19. That God was in Chriſt reconciling the world to himſelf, μὴ λογιζόμενος, not imputing to them their iniquities; the meaning is, that for Chriſt's ſake he was pleaſed to exempt them from the puniſhment of their Tranſgreſſions: So in like manner here, Sin is ſaid not to be imputed, whilſt there is no Law; not that God did not look upon Men then as ſinners, but that he did not puniſh them with death for it.

Hence note, That in the Scripture there is no mention of the Imputation, either of one Man's ſin, or of his righteouſneſs, unto another, but only of the imputation of his good Deeds for Righteouſneſs, or of his evil Deeds, for Puniſhment. (2ly,) That the Puniſhment of Adam's Sin devolved upon his whole Poſterity, is fully proved from this Chapter: but it is not here ſaid, that they were truly and formally made ſinners by his ſin. So likewiſe that for the Obedience of one unto the Death many were made Righteous, and were delivered from that Death to which they were obnoxious, we are aſſured from this, and other Scriptures; but that they were made formally Righteous by our Saviour's Righteouſneſs imputed to them, the Scripture doth no where aſſert.

Ver. 15. Οἱ πολλοὶ ἀπέθανον, many were dead.] m When God ſaid to Adam, In the day that thou eateſt thereof thou ſhalt die, he did not mean that he ſhould then give up the Ghoſt, but that he ſhould be ſubject to Mortality, and at the laſt return to the Duſt from whence he came; as Experience ſhewed, and as the Fathers interpret it. Now in this ſenſe, that of the Apoſtle is moſt true, that in Adam all die, (i. e.) became obnoxious to Mortality: But it is not true that all Men die only on the account of Adam's ſin. The Old World was drowned on the account of their own ſins, and the Jews ſuffered both by the hand of God, and Man, for ſins committed againſt the Law; and this perhaps might be the reaſon why the Apoſtle ſaith, not by the Offence of one, all but many died. The advantage therefore here mention'd may conſiſt in this, that all that die, die not purely for the ſin of Adam, but many times bring death upon themſelves for their own ſin; but all that are juſtified, and ſo freed from death, are thus exempted from it only by virtue of the Death of Chriſt; this is the old Doctrine, both of the Jews, and of the Church of Chriſt: Not that all formally ſinned in Adam, but that all Men became obnoxious to death for Adam's ſin. God, ſaith the Author of the Book of Wiſdom, created Man to be immortal; but thro' the envy of the Devil, death entred into the world, Wiſd. 2.23,24. By the woman was the beginning of ſin, and by her we all die, ſaith the Son of Syrach, Ecclus. 25. 24. By the counſel which the Serpent gave to Eve, all the inhabitants of the earth, become obnoxious to death, ſaith the Targum on Ruth 4. v. ult. And the ſame Chaldee Paraphraſe upon Eccleſ. 7. the laſt verſe, ſaith, God made man pure and upright, but the Serpent and Eve ſeduced him to eat of the fruit of the Tree, and ſo they made death to ruſh upon him, and upon all the inhabitants of the earth.

Ver. 16. Ἐκ πολλῶν παραπτωμάτων, from many offences.] n This is the ſecond advantageous Difference, viz. that whereas we became obnoxious to death for one ſin of Adam, we by Faith in Chriſt are juſtified, and thereby freed not only from the Condemnation which came upon us for that ſin, but alſo from the Condemnation due unto us for all our Offences againſt God.

Note alſo, that the word κρίμα, eſpecially when it is joyned with Death, doth uſually ſignifie a Sentence condemning any perſon; κρίμα θανάτου is the Sentence of Death, Deut. 21.22. So Luke 24. 20. The High Prieſts and Rulers delivered up Jeſus εἰς κρίμα θανάτου to the Sentence of Death. See Chap. 23. 40. And Eccles. 41. 2. O death, how acceptable is τὸ κείμα σου thy Sentence to the needy? And v. 3. Fear not κείμα θανάτου the Sentence of death. Remember them that have been before thee, and that come after thee, τοῦτο τὸ κρίμα παρὰ κυρίου πάσῃ σαρκί, for this is the Sentence of the Lord over all flesh.

o Ver. 17. v. 15. Ἡ δωρεὰ ἐν χάριτι· v. 17. Ἡ δωρεὰ δικαιοσύνης, the gift of righteousness.] I have interpreted these Phrases of the gift of Justification, as others do; but it is very probable that they may import the Holy Spirit given in Baptism, and upon Faith, to the Believers of those times, who being made Sons by Faith in Christ, received the Spirit of Adoption, Rom. 8. 14, 15 16. Gal. 4. 6. and believing, were sealed with the spirit of promise, Eph. 1. 13. for he is stiled emphatically ἡ δωρεὰ ἐπουράνιος, the heavenly gift, Heb. 6. 4. ἡ δωρεὰ, the gift, Acts 11. 17. ἡ δωρεὰ τοῦ, the gift of God, Acts 8. 20. The gift of the grace of God, Eph. 3. 7. ἡ δωρεὰ τοῦ Χριστοῦ, the gift of Christ, Eph. 4. 7. the gift of the Holy Ghost, Acts 2. 38. & 10. 45. So the Holy Ghost, given to the Prophets, and holy Men of old, is by the Primitive Christians usually stiled ἡ ἄνωθεν ὑπὸ τοὺς ἁγίους ἀνδρὰς ἐπιθοῦσα δωρεὰ, *the gift coming from above upon holy men. p Ver. 19. Ἁμαρτωλοὶ κατεστάθησαν οἱ πολλοὶ, many were made sinners.] In the Exposition of this, and of the Phrase in the 12th Verse, in whom all have sinned, I follow the Greek Expositors, Chrysostom, Theodoret, Occumenius, and Theophylact, upon the place: And to make good the Interpretation, I shall shew first the Inconsistency of any other Sense, ascribed to them, with the Text, with Scripture, and with Reason. And,

First, It cannot truly be affirmed that we all actually, and formally sinned in Adam, and upon that account were made sinners; for then it was not by the Disobedience of one, but of many, that many were made sinners. (2.) Then Death, the Punishment of Sin, came upon all, not for the sin of one, or for one sin of that one man, but for the sin of all, both which things I have plainly proved to be contrary to the express words of the Apostle. Then (3.) all Men must have sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression; for if we all sinned in, or with him, we must sin by the same Act, the same Will, and in the same Person, against the same Law; and surely, they that thus sin, must sin after the similitude of Adam's transgression: For what dissimilitude can there be in sins committed by the same Act, and the same Will, of one and the same Person, against the same Law? But of the Posterity of Adam, the Apostle here expressly saith, they sinned not after the similitude of Adam's Transgression, therefore they were not sinners by the same Act, and Will, of the same Person, against the same Law. Moreover, if all the Posterity of Adam sinned in Adam, they sinned against some Law given to them, for sin is the transgression of a Law, and where there is no Law, there is no transgression; now they could sin in Adam, so as to deserve death for their sin, only by sinning against the Law requiring Adam not to eat of the forbidden fruit; for Adam himself became guilty of death only by transgressing that Law, but all the Posterity of Adam cannot be said to have sinned against that Law, for when did they sin against it? If when Adam did so, then all his Posterity must be actually sinners from the beginning of the World, i. e. some thousands of years before the greatest part of them had a being: Now seeing Action must be the Action of some Being, does it not seem absurd, at first sight to say, that so many Myriads were actually sinners, when they were not in being? If when they came into the world; they could not sin in Adam, or in his Action, for he did not then eat of the forbidden Fruit in the midst of Paradise. Again, we cannot sin against a Law which is not in being; since therefore there is now no Paradise, and no forbidden fruit in being, we cannot be obliged by any Law of God now, not to eat of the Fruit in the midst of Paradise, and so cannot be sinners by transgressing against such a Law.

Secondly, It cannot truly be affirmed that we all sinned in Adam, and by his disobedience were made sinners, because his Sin and Disobedience was imputed to us: For I have shewed already, that the Scripture no where maketh the least mention of any thing of anothers imputed to a Man for reward or guilt, but only of some Personal Thing, or Action of our own: See Note on v. 14. Moreover, this Imputation either makes the sin of Adam truly ours, or it doth not; if it doth not, how can we be made sinners by it? If it doth, then Death came upon us for our sin; and so not for the sin of one, but for the sin of all, which is the thing disproved already, Note on v. 12. (3.) I ask, whether this Imputation made the Posterity of Adam sinners, or whether it found them so before? If it found them so before, it was plainly needless, for they might have been condemned to Death without it: If it made them so, then this Imputation is the Act of God, and not of Man, and so it plainly follows that God must be the Author of that sin, which flows immediately from him, without the intervention of any Action on the part of any of those Men to whom it is imputed. Moreover, then the Imputation must be false, as charging them with sin whom he did not find sinners, but only by his his Arbitrary Imputation made them ſo. Now far be it from any Chriſtian to affirm, that God ſhould falſly impute ſin to any Man. In a word, λογίζεσθαι and imputare, is to reckon, to account a thing to any Man, to charge him with it, to lay the Charge of it to him. This Action therefore on God's part muſt ſuppoſe in the very Nature of it, ſome Action done by the Poſterity of Adam which is blameworthy, and may be juſtly charged upon them, before there can be any ground for Imputation of it; and this ſhews that it is impoſſible that the Imputation ſhould be the very thing that renders them blame worthy, or Perſons worthy to be charged with guilt. And yet if the ſin of Adam becomes ours only by Imputation, it muſt be ours only becauſe it is by God imputed to us, and not imputed, becauſe it is ours; that is, God by this Imputation muſt make us ſinners, and not find us ſuch; for this Imputation is the Action of the Judge, not of the ſuppoſed Criminal; remove or take away this Action, and no Crime can be charged upon him. In fine, if the ſin of Adam becomes ours only by Imputation, it deſerves Condemnation only by the ſame Imputation, i. e. by the Action of God; that therefore we deſerve Condemnation for it, is to be aſcribed directly to the Action of God, and only by accident to that of Adam: Whence therefore is our Deſtruction, according to this Opinion, but of God, who makes us worthy of Condemnation, by imputing to us that ſin, which by his Imputation only we ſtand guilty of?

Theſe Interpretations being ſo inconſiſtent with the Apoſtle's words, and with the plaineſt evidence of Reaſon, I am forced to prefer before them that of the Greek Fathers, viz. that we all ſinned in Adam, i. e. by becoming obnoxious to that Death which was the Puniſhment of his ſin, and by one man's diſobedience many were made ſinners, by being ſubject to the Death, and Temporal Calamities and Miſeries, which came upon all Mankind for Adam's ſin; ſo that we become ſinners in him, or by his Diſobedience, by a Metonymy of the effect, by ſuffering the Puniſhment which God had threatned to him for it, as the Experience of all Men and Women ſhew we do in all the Parts of the Threat; and this is a common ſenſe of the word chattah, which ſignifies both Sin, and the Puniſhment of it. So Gen. 4. 7. If thou doeſt evil, chattaath, ſin lieth at the door; that is, the Puniſhment of ſin, v. 13. So Gen. 19. 15. Make haſte, ſaith the Angel to Lot, and eſcape, leſt thou be conſumed בעון in the ſin of the City, i. e. in the Puniſhment of the City, In plaga deſcendente propter culpam incolarum Urbis. Arab. And Gen. 31. 39. Jacob ſpeaks to Laban thus, That which was torn of Beaſts אנכי אחטנה ἐγὼ ἀποτίννυον, Pœnas dabam, I ſuffered for it; The ſin was upon me, ſaith Aben Ezra, Gen. 43. 9. Judah ſpeaks thus to Jacob concerning Benjamin, if I bring him not again, יהטאתי לך ἡμαρτικὼς ἔσομαι εἰς σε, (i. e.) I will ſuffer Puniſhment. See Chap. 42. 37. i.e. Let me bear the blame: So alſo Chap. 44. 32. So Bathſheba ſaith to David, I and thy ſon Solomon ſhall be דמאם ἁμαρτολοὶ, ſinners, 1 Kings 1. 21. that is, we ſhall be puniſhed as ſinners, and be in danger of our life. So לא ירשיענו impium non faciet, he will not condemn him, Pſal 37. 33. ודם נקי ירשיעו & ſanguinem innocentem condemnabunt, Pſal. 94. 21. So alſo Job 9. 20. So the Lepers ſay one to another, We do not well if we tarry till the morning light, then we ſhall be found ſinners, 2 Kings 7. 9. i. e. we ſhall be puniſhed by the King. And Zech. 14. 19. This ſhall be חטאת מצרים Ἁμαρτία Αἰγύπτου, the puniſhment of Egypt, and the puniſhment of all Nations that come not up to keep the Feaſt of Tabernacles. This Phraſe of bearing ſin is conſtantly uſed in this ſenſe; as when 'tis ſaid, עינו ישא they ſhall bear their iniquity, they ſhall die, Lev. 20. 20. and ἁμαρτίαν κομιοῦνται, ἀπόισονται; Lev. 20. 17, 19. Numb. 14. 34. λήψεσθε ἁμαρτίας ὑμῶν, Lam. 5. 7. ὑπέχομεν τὰ ἀνομήματα αὐτῶν, we have born their iniquity. If therefore ἁμαρτία in the Old Teſtament ſo often ſignifies the Puniſhment of Sin, which in this caſe was Death, what Exception can be made againſt theſe words of (a) Chryſoſtom? What is the meaning of theſe words, In whom all have ſinned? 'tis this, he ſaying, even they who did not eat of the Tree, were by him made mortal, even as if they themſelves had fallen, ſaith (b) Theophylact, when he did. For ſaith Theodoret, He being obnoxious to the Decree of Death, in that ſtate he begat Cain and Abel, and others, ἅπαντες ἦν ὡς ἐκ τοιούτου φωτὸς θνητὸν ἔχον τὴν φύσιν, all therefore became mortal, as being begotten of one that was mortal. And ſeeing it is ſaid ἁμαρτωλοὶ, or ἡμαρτικότες ἔσονται, they ſhall be ſinners, who are to ſuffer puniſhment; why may not theſe words, by the diſobedience of one many were made ſinners, admit the ſenſe which Chryſoſtom, Oecumenius, and Theophylact give them? Τεθέσπιν ὑποδύθωσι κολάσει, καὶ καλάδικοι θανάτῳ, they ſhall for his Diſobedience be ſubject unto Death and Puniſhment, the effects of ſin; For, ſaith S. Chryſoſtom, 'tis no abſurdity to ſay, that he ſinning, and ſo being mortal, they who proceed from him ſhould be mortal alſo; but how can it juſtly follow, that by his Diſobedience another ſhould be made a ſinner, for ſuch an one will be found to deſerve no puniſhment, as not being perſonally a ſinner? Τὸ μὲν ἐκ τῆς θεοπνεύστου γραφῆς τοιαῦτα ἀκολουθίαν ῥοπὴν ; εὑρεθήσεται, οὐδ' ὅπου μηδὲν δίκαιον ὀφείλων ὁ τοιοῦτος εἰς μὴ οἰκοθεν γέγονεν, ἁμαρτωλός. 'Tis true, we meet not with the words ἡμαρτὸν and ἁμαρτωλοὶ καθεσταθησαν in this ſenſe elſewhere in the New Teſtament; but then this may be, becauſe the Compariſon is not elſewhere made, betwixt the firſt Adam, and the effects of his Diſobedience, and the ſecond Adam, and the effects of his Obedience to the Death; and becauſe the oppoſite Phraſe, δίκαιοι καθεσταθησαν, required that the words oppoſed ſhould be uſed in the Metonymical ſenſe; for when the Apoſtle ſaith, by the obedience of one man many were made righteous, it is evident he ſpake not of Chriſt's Active Obedience, but of his Paſſive Obedience, or ſuffering Death for us. For (1.) the whole Chapter is employed in ſetting forth the Benefits accruing to us by his Death, v. 6, 8, 9, 10, 11. (2.) The effect of this Obedience is our Juſtification, now that, through the whole Scripture, and in this very Chapter, is conſtantly aſcribed to the Death of Chriſt, and his Blood ſhed for us, *v.*9,10,16,17,18. (3.) The Diſobedience by which many were made ſinners, is plainly declared by the Apoſtle, to be one ſingle Act of Diſobedience in Adam, and therefore the Obedience oppoſed to it cannot in reaſon be the Active Obedience of Chriſt's whole life, but that Obedience to the Death which the Apoſtle mentions, *Philip.*2.6,8. Now by this Paſſive Obedience we cannot be made formally Righteous, but only Metonymically, by being made Partakers of that Freedom from the Condemnation and Guilt of Sin, and that Reconciliation which Chriſt purchaſed by his Meritorious Death and Paſſion. Diſſolvens enim eam quæ ab initio in ligno facta fuerat inobedientiam, obediens factus eſt uſque ad mortem, mortem autem crucis, eam quæ in ligno facta fuerat inobediantiam, per eam quæ in ligno fuerat obedientiam ſanans. Iren.l.5.c.56.

Ver. 20. Ἵνα πλεονάσῃ τὸ παράπτωμα, the Law entred that ſin might abound unto death.] Hence it is ſtiled the letter that killeth, the Miniſtry of Death, and of Condemnation, 2 Cor.3. 6,7,9. and ſaid to ſubject all that are under it, to a Curſe, *Gal.*3.10. q

CHAPTER VI.

Verſe 1. WHat ſhall we ſay then? a ſhall we continue in ſin [Gr. what do we ſay then? (do we ſay this) let us (who have received this grace) continue ſtill in ſin] that grace may abound [towards us? that is, do we by declaring that we are juſtified freely by grace, through the Redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus, Chap. 3.24. and that as ſin abounded, grace did more abound, Chap.5.20. give occaſion to this Inference?

2. God forbid [we ſhould make any ſuch inference from, or any uſe of this Doctrine, ſo contrary to that very Baptiſm by which we enter into the Chriſtian Covenant, and put on Chriſt, for] how ſhall we who are dead, [Gr. have died] to ſin [by our Baptiſm, or entrance into the Chriſtian Covenant,] live any longer therein?

3. [For] know ye not that as many [of us] as were baptized into, [and by that Baptiſm profeſſed our ſelves Diſciples of] Jeſus Chriſt, were baptized into [the likeneſs of] his death, [and ſo engaged to die unto ſin, as he died for ſin, 1 Pet. 4. 1, 2. and to live to him that died for us, and roſe again? 2 Cor. 5. 15.

4. [For] therefore we are b buried with him by baptiſm, [plunging us under the water] into [a conformity to his] death, [which put his body under the Earth,] that like as Chriſt was raiſed up from the dead by the glory [our power] of the Father, even ſo we alſo, [thus dead in Baptiſm,] ſhould [riſe with him, and] walk in newneſs of life.

5. For if we have been planted together in the likeneſs of his death, [by dying unto ſin,] we ſhall be alſo in the likeneſs of his Reſurrection, [by being ſo riſen from our death unto ſin, as never to let ſin have any more dominion over us, but dying unto ſin once for all, and henceforth living unto God, v.9,10.]

6. [And thus we ſtand engaged to die to ſin] knowing this, that our old man is [was] crucified with him, that the body of ſin, [i.e. the appetites of the body, which ſubject us to ſin,] might be deſtroyed, that henceforth we might not ſerve ſin, [for he bore our ſins in his own body on the Croſs, that we being dead to ſin, might live unto righteouſneſs, 1 Pet. 2.24.]

7. [Which we ſhall not do if we be truly dead unto it;] for he that is dead is freed from ſin, [1 Pet.4.4. He ſins no more.]

8. Now if we be [thus] dead with Chriſt, we believe that c we ſhall alſo live with him, [not a ſpiritual only, but an happy, and immortal life;]

9. [And thus conformed to his death we ſhould be, and therefore] knowing that Chriſt being raiſed from the dead, [now] dieth no more, death hath no more dominion over him.

10. For in that he died, he died d once to ſin, ſin, [or for ſin, i. e. in that he died to the putting away of ſin, Heb. 9. 26, 28. he died thus once for all,] but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God; [i. e. the life he liveth is an eternal life, wholly dedicated to the glory of God.]

e 11. e Likewiſe reckon ye alſo your ſelves to be indeed dead unto ſin, but living to God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

12. Let not ſin therefore reign in your f mortal body, f that you ſhould obey it in the luſts thereof.

13. Neither yield ye your members [any longer] as inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs to ſin] but yield [up] your ſelves [intirely] to [the ſervice of] God, as thoſe that are [with Chriſt] alive from the dead, and [yield] your members as inſtruments of righteouſneſs to God.

14. [And ſay not this is beyond your ſtrength, ſeeing the Law in your Members leads you
g captive to ſin;] g for ſin ſhall not have dominion over you; for you are not under the [Pædagogy of the] Law, [which gives the knowledge of ſin, but not ſufficient ſtrength to mortifie it,] but under [that Oeconomy of] grace, [which affords that ſpirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus, which frees us from the law of Sin, and Death.]

15. What then? ſhall we [go on in] ſin, becauſe we are not under the law, [which condemns us for every tranſgreſſion,] but under [that Covenant of] grace, [which allows the Pardon, and promiſes the forgiveneſs of it? Heb. 8. 12.] God forbid, [That we ſhould continue in the ſins forbidden by the Law, becauſe we are not under the Law].

16. Know ye not [this,] that to whom ye yield your ſelves ſervants to obey, his ſervants ye are to whom ye obey, [and from him you muſt expect your wages,] whether [you be the ſervants] of ſin to [receive the wages of ſin, which is] death, or [the ſervants of God] by obedience to [the obtaining the fruits of] righteouſneſs.

17. But h God be thanked that, [and, God h be thanked that though formerly, v. 19.] ye were the ſervants of ſin, but [yet ſince your Converſion] you have obeyed from the heart that form of [Chriſtian] Doctrine, which was delivered to you.

18. Being then [for being] made free from [the Law of] ſin, [by the grace, and aſſiſtance of that Spirit of Life, the Goſpel Miniſters, Rom. 8. 2.] ye became ſervants unto righteouſneſs.

19. I ſpeak i after the manner of men, i becauſe of the infirmity of your fleſh, for as you have yielded your members ſervants to uncleanneſs and to iniquity to [commit] iniquity, even ſo now yield your members ſervants to righteouſneſs unto holineſs.

20. [Now, I ſay, for before you could not do it,] for when you were the ſervants of ſin, ye were free from righteouſneſs, [doing then no ſervice at all to it.]

21. [And that you may not be ſtill enamoured with your former ſervice unto ſin, I aſk,] what fruit had you then in [from] thoſe things of which you are now aſhamed? [ſurely none worthy to be compared with the fruits of righteouſneſs,] for the end of thoſe things is death.

22. But now being made free from ſin, and become ſervants to God, you have [at preſent] your fruit unto holineſs, and the end thereof [will be] everlaſting life.

23. For k the wages of ſin [to its ſervants] k is death, but the gift of God [to his] is eternal life through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

Annotations on Chap. VI.

a Verſe 1. NOte here, that if the Faith, to which St. Paul in this Epiſtle doth aſcribe Juſtification, did not only oblige us to, but even comprehend, Evangelical and conſtant Obedience, there could be no colour for this Objection, that therefore muſt be a miſtake.

b Ver. 4. Συνετάφημεν οὖν αὐτῷ διὰ τοῦ βαπτίσματος, we are buried with him in baptiſm.] It being ſo expreſly declared here, and Coloſſ. 2. 12. that we are buried with Chriſt in Baptiſm, by being buried under Water: And the Argument to oblige us to a Conformity to his Death, by dying to ſin, being taken hence, and this Immerſion being religiouſly obſerved by all Chriſtians for Thirteen Centuries, and approved by our Church, and the Change of it unto Sprinkling, even without any allowance from the Author of this Inſtitution, or any Licenſe from any Council of the Church, being that which the Romaniſt ſtill urgeth to juſtifie his refuſal of the Cup to the Laity, it were to be wiſh'd that this Cuſtom might be again of General uſe, and aſperſion only permitted, as of old, in Caſe of the Clinici, or in preſent danger of Death.

Ver. 8. Συζήσομεν αὐτῷ, we ſhall live with c him;] As being delivered by his Death, from that Death which is the Puniſhment of Sin, and having that Spirit which is the Giver of Life, and the Pledge and Earneſt of it, imparted to us: It is this Life which is the Object of our Faith, and of this the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 2 Tim. 2. 11. ſaying, If we have been dead with him, we ſhall alſo live with him; if we ſuffer, we ſhall alſo reign together with him.

therefore his living to God ſeems to import his Reſurrection to Eternal Life; And ſo the Phraſe is uſed by St. Luke, where, of the Children of the Reſurrection, which can die no more, he ſaith, they live unto God, Luke 20,26,28. And ſo the Phraſe is uſed in (a) Joſephus, who ſaith, That they who die for God, ζῶσι τῷ Θεῷ, live to God, as Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and all the Patriarchs do; (b) they love that Piety which brings them to Eternal Life.

e Ver. 11. Οὕτω καὶ ὑμεῖς, ſo alſo reckon ye your ſelves dead unto ſin.] Once for all, ſo as never to have any need of dying to it again, but as ſtill engaged to live to God's Glory: For, ſay the Ancietns, we can have but one Baptiſm, and this ſuppoſes we ſhould ſo die to ſin once, as never to have occaſion to perform that work again. Hence therefore it appears how far they are from Conformity to the Death of Chriſt, who ſtill ſuffer ſin to revive in him, after that by pious Reſolutions and Repentance they have begun to mortifie it, and ſo are ſtill beginning again to die to it. And oh! that Chriſtians would more carefully attend to this Conformity to the Death of Chriſt.

f Ver. 12. Εἰς τὸ ὑπακούειν, to obey it.] For this Obedience to it in the Luſtings of it, is a certain ſign of the Dominion of Sin in us, and of our being none of Chriſt's Servants; for they that are Chriſt's, have crucified the fleſh, with the affections and luſts, Gal. 5. 24.

g Ver. 14. Ἁμαρτία γὰρ οὐ κυριεύσει, for ſin ſhall not have dominion.] This is a pious ſenſe, but ſeems to ſome to give no place for the following Objection. Others therefore Paraphraſe the words thus; For then ſin ſhall not have dominion over you, ſo as to condemn you for each tranſgreſſion, for you are not under the Law (which pronounceth a Curſe on them that do not perfectly obey it) but under (that Covenant of) Grace, (which affords Pardon, and Forgiveneſs of it,) 1 John 1. 7.

h Ver. 17. Χάρις δὲ τῷ Θεῷ, but God be thanked.] He doth not here thank God that they had been the Servants of Sin, but that they who had been Servants to it, were become Obedient to the Precepts of Chriſtianity, as our Lord thanks his heavenly Father, that he had hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and revealed them to babes, Matth. 11.25. i. e. That having hid them from the one, he notwithſtanding had revealed them to the other.

The Particle δὲ is ſometimes rendred, and, as Luke 9.6. & 11. 18. Acts 3. 5 & 4. 36. & 8.30. & 9.17. & 11. 12. & 13. 15. & 15. 6. & 21.14. & 23.9,13.

Sometimes, yea, 1 Cor. 9.16. & 13.21. Rom. 11.30. & 16.19. 1 Cor. 2.9.

And, yet, Matth. 6.9.

Sometimes, for, Luke 12. 2, 48. & 23.14. Acts 7.25. 1 Theſſ. 2.16.

Moreover, 2 Peter 1. 15.

And ſo accordingly the words may be here rendred, And God be thanked, or, God be thanked then, that though ye were the Servants of Sin, yet, and in the Verſe following, ἐλευθερωθέντες δὲ, for being delivered.

Ver. 19. Ἀνθρώπινον λέγω, I ſpeak after the manner of men.] The Apoſtle doth not here ſpeak, as ſome unhappily imagine, by way of excuſe, for not uſing the beſt Argument he could uſe in this affair, but ſuch as was beſt fitted to the Capacities, and Notions of thoſe he writes to; for what inducements to yield their Members Inſtruments of Righteouſneſs to that Holineſs which will conclude in Life Eternal, could he uſe more rational and proper than this, that they had formerly yielded them Servants to commit that Sin, whoſe wages is Death; but he ſpeaks this by way of Illuſtration of his Argument, or Exhortation. The ſenſe which the Ancients put upon theſe words, is this, τῇ φύσει μετρῶ τὴν παραίνεσιν, I frame my Exhortation with a due Conſideration of the Infirmity of our Fleſh, requiring that only which even to Humane Reaſon ſeems highly equitable, viz. that you ſhould do that ſervice now to God, which you have formerly done to Sin. I rather think the Apoſtle diſcourſeth to this effect: In this Diſcourſe of your being Servants formerly to Sin, and your Obligation now to be Servants of Righteouſneſs, I ſpeak that which all Natural Men muſt have had Experience of, by reaſon of the Infirmity of the Fleſh, and of which they may thence take a juſt Idea, requiring only, that as they have yielded their Members Inſtruments of Sin, ſo they would yield them Inſtruments of Righteouſneſs.

And that this is the genuine import of the words ἀνθρώπινον λέγω, I ſpeak after the manner of men, may appear from the like uſe of it, 1 Cor. 10, 10. No temptation hath hapned to you, but that which is ἀνθρώπινος common to humane nature, and ſupportable by Men of Reaſon; and from the conſtant uſe of the Phraſe κατ' ἄνθρωπον λέγω, I ſpeak after the manner of men, of which ſee Note on 1 Cor. 9.8.

Ver. 23. Τὰ γὰρ ὀψώνια τῆς ἁμαρτίας θάνατος, for the wages of ſin is death.] Hence Divines uſually conclude, that even Infants muſt have ſinned, becauſe they are ſubject to Death: Now though this be ſo far true, that Death came upon all Men, and ſo upon Infants, by that ſin of Adam, which rendred him, and by him all his Off ſpring, ſubject to Mortality; yet this will no more follow from theſe words, than it will follow, that becauſe the Wages of Rebellion is Death, all that die muſt be guilty of Rebellion. Moreover, the intention of the Apoſtle is not here to teach us that that Death is the Puniſhment due to every Sin, but that Death, which is in Scripture ſtiled the ſecond Death, and ſtands oppoſed to Eternal Life, will be the certain Iſſue of a Life ſpent in the Service of Sin. For the Apoſtle throughout this Chapter ſpeaks of that Sin in which we continue, v. 1. and which we ſerve, v. 6. 20. and which ſo reigneth in our mortal bodies, that we obey it in the luſts thereof, v. 12. By which we yield our members inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs to ſin, v. 13, 19. In which we ſo ſerve Sin as to obey its Commands, v. 16, 17. and live free from Righteouſneſs, or in neglect of it, v. 20. The wages, ſaith he, of ſin thus reigning in, and ſerved by us, is Eternal Death: 'Tis therefore manifeſt the Apoſtle ſpeaks not here of ſin imputed, but only of perſonal ſin, nor of each ſingle act, but of an habitual practice, or a courſe of ſin.

CHAPTER VII.

Verſe 1. [AND of the truth of what I told you, Chap. 6. 14. that you are not under the Law, but under Grace, you cannot well be ignorant, for] Know ye not, Brethren, for I ſpeak to them that know the Law, [i. e. to the converted Proſelytes, or Jews,] how that the Law hath dominion over a man [under the Law] as long as he liveth.

2. For the woman which hath an husband [ὕπανδρος ſubvirilis] is bound by the Law to [cleave to, and be ſubject to] her husband ſo long as he liveth; but if the husband be dead, ſhe is [then] looſed from the law of ſubjection to] her husband:

3. So then, if while her husband liveth a ſhe be married to another man, [a] ſhe ſhall be [truly] called an adultereſs; for if her huſband be dead, ſhe is free from that Law, [which bound her to be in ſubjection to, and yield conjugal affection to him only,] ſo that ſhe is no adultereſs, though ſhe be married to another man.

4. Wherefore, my brethren, [as this woman is become free from the Law of her huſband by his death, even ſo]
b ye alſo [b] are become dead to, [and therefore free from ſubjection to] the Law by [the Crucifixion of] the body of Chriſt, that ye ſhould [or may] be married to another, even to him who is raiſed from the dead, that [by vertue of this Union to him] we ſhould bring forth fruit unto God.

5. [We are, I ſay, become thus dead to the Law, this being neceſſary, that we might bring forth fruit unto God.] For when we were in the fleſh, [i. e. when we lived under the carnal Ordinances of the Law,] the motions of ſin which were [occaſioned] by the Law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death; [rendring us obnoxious to death, the puniſhment threatned by the Law to the tranſgreſſors of it.]

6. But now we are delivered from the Law, [and from the motions of ſin cauſed by it,] [c] that being dead wherein we were held, c [or being dead to that Law wherein we were held,] [d] that we ſhould ſerve [God] in newneſs d of [that] ſpirit [of life in Chriſt Jeſus, which makes us free from the Law of Sin, and death;] and not [as before] in the oldneſs of the letter, [which killeth, or ſubjecteth us to death, 2 Cor. 3. 6, 9.]

7. What ſhall we ſay then? Is the Law [from which we muſt be delivered, and to which we muſt be dead, that we may not obey the Luſts of the Fleſh,] ſin? [Is it the cauſe of that ſin which worketh in our Members, whilſt we are under the Law?] God forbid, [that we ſhould ſo affirm,] nay, I had not known ſin but by the law; [ſo far otherwiſe is it, that the Law inſtructs us what is to be avoided as ſin, and under what penalty,] for I had not known luſt, [i. e. the luſtings, or covetous deſires of the heart to be things worthy of death,] except the Law had ſaid, Thou ſhalt not covet, [and ſo made him that coveteth obnoxious to death, as being a tranſgreſſor of the Law.]

8. But [nevertheleſs] ſin taking occaſion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiſcence, [which became mortal to me by virtue of the Prohibition of the Law.] For [whilſt I was] without the Law ſin was dead, [i. e. unable to have this effect upon me, for where there is no Law, there is no tranſgreſſion, imputed to death, Chap. 5. 13.]

9. For e I [the Seed of Abraham] was alive e
[or indeed lived] without the Law once, [before the Law was given, I being not obnoxious to death for that to which the Law had not threatned death,] but when the commandment came [forbidding it under that Penalty,] ſin revived, and I died, [i. e. it got ſtrength to condemn me to death.]

10. And the commandment which was f f ordained to life, was found to me [transgreſſing it, to be] unto death.

g 11. For g ſin taking occaſion by the commandment deceived me, [or enticed me to the commiſſion of it,] and by it ſlew me.

12. Wherefore the Law [forbidding ſin] is holy, and the commandment [to abſtain from it] holy, juſt, and good, [as requiring only what is equitable in it ſelf, and good for me to do.]

13. Was then that which is good, made death to me? [Gr. hath that therefore which is good become death to me? (i.e.) is that the ſole and proper cauſe of bringing death to me?] God forbid [we ſhould ſo ſay,] but [this charge is to be laid upon] ſin, [which] that it might appear ſin, [i.e. pernicious, and deſtructive,] working death in [or to] me, by that which is good, [i.e. the Law, made me obnoxious to death;] that ſin by the com-h mandment [forbidding it] h might become exceeding ſinful, [i.e. abounding to death, Chap. 5 21.]

14. [And that ſin ſhould thus prevail over us in this ſtate of lapſed Nature to tranſgreſs the Law, and to become obnoxious to death by it, will not ſeem ſtrange, if every Natural Man conſiders the contrariety there is betwixt him, and the Law;] for we know that the Law is ſpiritual, [and requires ſpiritual things,] but [every Natural Man hath cauſe
i to ſay of himſelf,] I am carnal, i ſold under ſin, [i.e. enſlaved by my corrupt affections.]

15. [As may be eaſily diſcerned from the workings of our Conſcience againſt the evil that we do;] for that which I do I allow not [in my own mind,] for what I would do, [in compliance with the Law] that [thro' the prevalence of my corrupt Nature] do I not; but what [through the Conviction of my k Conſcience] k I hate [to do,] that do I.

16. If then [it be ſo with me that] I do that which I would not, [by this unwillingneſs to act in contradiction to it,] I conſent unto the Law that it is good, [and commands what is good for me to do.]

17. Now then [this being done by thoſe corrupt affections which over-power me againſt the approbation of my mind, and the inclination of my will,] it is no more I [according to the better part from which I am denomina-
l ted] that do it, but l ſin that dwelleth in me, [i.e. in my fleſh, v. 23. and captivates me to the obedience of it.]

18. [And upon this I have juſt ground to charge it;] for I know that in me, that is, in my fleſh, dwelleth no good thing; for to will [that which is good] is preſent with me, [or to me,] but to perform that which is good, I find not [ſtrength.]

19. For [in event, I find, that] the good that I would [do,] I do not; but the evil which [the Law prohibits, and] I would not [do,] that [being over-power'd by the fleſh,] I do.

20. Now if I [thus] do that I would not, it is no more I, [chuſing and approving the action in my mind,] that do this, but ſin that dwelleth in me, [i.e. in my fleſh, that hurries me to the commiſſion of it againſt the Law, and inclination of my mind:]

21. [For ſo it is that] I find then [Gr. ἄρα, indeed] a Law [in my Members ſo thwarting the Inclinations, and Convictions of my mind,] that when I would do [the] good [to which the Law directs me,] evil is preſent with me [to oppoſe, and hinder me from doing it.]

22. [I ſay, when I would do good,] for I dem light in the Law of God m after the inward man, [my mind approving for ſome time, and being pleaſed with its good, and holy Precepts.]

23. But I ſee [or perceive] another Law [of the fleſh] in my members warring againſt the Law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the Law of ſin, which is in my members; [for of what a Man is overcome, of that he is brought into bondage, 2 Pet. 2. 19. John 8. 34. Rom. 6. 16.]

24. [And being thus enſlaved to that ſin which renders me obnoxious to death, the wages of it, I am even forced to cry out,] O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the body of [ſin, which worketh] this death?

25. [And ſo] I [have great reaſon to] n thank God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, n [whom he hath ſent to redeem me from this death, to which I am obnoxious by ſin.] So then, [to ſhut up this diſcourſe, thus is it with me, whilſt under the Law only, with the mind
o I my ſelf, [or I, the ſame Man,] ſerve the o Law of God, but with the fleſh, the Law of ſin.

Annotations on Chap VII.

a Verse 3. Μοιχαλὶς χρηματίσει, she shall be called an adultereſs.] The Apoſtle, ſaith Theodoret, conſiders not here the permiſſion given to the Woman divorced by the Law of Moſes, to be married to another, as being taught by Chriſt not to approve of ſuch Divorces: But the Apoſtle ſeems only to intimate that ſhe hath no power to diſſolve this Bond, by putting away her Husband; or perhaps he ſpeaks not of the Law of Moſes, but of that given in Paradiſe, Gen. 2. Now this, ſaith the Apoſtle, is the Caſe of thoſe who are under the Law, their entring into that Legal Covenant was the Day of their Eſpouſals, Jer. 2. 2. and they were married to it, or to him that put them in ſubjection under it, and were his Spouſe, Jer. 3. 14. and ſo obliged to ſerve God in the oldneſs of the letter; but now this Law being dead, and you being eſpouſed to another Husband, even Chriſt, 2 Cor. 11. 2. are henceforth bound to ſerve God according to that new Spiritual Law which he hath given you, and not according to the letter of the Old Law.

b Ver. 4. Ἐθανατώθητε τῷ νόμῳ.] This Phraſe, Ye are dead to the Law, is, ſay Interpreters, the Law is put to death to you; for to that, ſay they, the drift of the Diſcourſe directs: But (1.) this Interpretation puts a plain force upon the words, without any Inſtance that they are elſewhere uſed in this ſenſe. (2.) The parallel words, Gal. 2. 19, 20. run thus; I through the Law am dead to the Law, that I might live to God: I am crucified together with Chriſt. Now thoſe words ſeem to fix the proper ſenſe of theſe, ſhewing it to be alſo this; Ye are dead to the Law, that is, you are free from ſubjection to the Precepts of the Law, and from the Motions of Sin which are by the Law, as if you were dead. To ſtrengthen this Interpretation, let the Hebrew Phraſe be noted; (a) When a Man dies he is made free from the Commands, the Law μὴ κυριεύει hath no dominion over him, no power to ſubject him to the Motions of Sin, which are by the Law, for he that is dead is free from ſin, Chap. 6. 6, 7. So that he doth no longer δουλεύειν ſerve the Motions of it, and hence the Apoſtle makes this Inference; That if we be dead with Chriſt, and buried with him, or crucified together with him, Sin ὐ κυριεύσει ſhall not have dominion over us, as it had whilſt we were under the Jewiſh Diſpenſation; for we are not under the Law, but under Grace. And again, Walk in the ſpirit, and ye ſhall not fulfil the luſts of the fleſh, Gal. 5. 16. & v. 18. For if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the Law. Wherefore the ſenſe of theſe four laſt Verſes ſeems to be this; The Law hath dominion over a Man as long as he lives [under it,] for the caſe of a Man's Subjection to the Law is in this, like to the Woman's Subjection to her Husband, it continues whilſt he lives, but when he is once dead, ſhe is free from any further ſubjection to him, ſeeing he being dead, can have no further power over her, and ſo ſhe muſt be free to be married to another: In like manner you being dead to the Law to which you were eſpouſed, it can have no further power over you, and the Law it ſelf being alſo dead to you, through the Death of Chriſt aboliſhing it, and freeing Chriſtians from the power and obligation of it, you are free to marry another Husband, even Chriſt.

c Ver. 6. Ἀποθανόντες.] The Syriack and Arabick Verſions, Origen, Theodoret, Oecumenius and Theophylact read ἀποθανόντες, we being dead to that in which we were held, which, ſaith Origen, is undoubtedly the beſt reading: And this reading confirms the ſenſe of the fourth Verſe as to theſe words, Ye are dead to the Law, which I have offer'd in the Paraphraſe; i. e. we being freed from the Obligation and Commands of it, and ſo from the Luſtings and Motions it wrought in us.

d Ibid. Ὥστε δουλεύειν ἡμᾶς ἐν καινότητι πνεύματος, that we might ſerve God in the newneſs of the ſpirit.] The Law, and the Goſpel are by the Apoſtle in this diſtinguiſhed; that the firſt is only the miniſtration of the Letter, the other of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 6, 7, 8. 9. The Miniſtration of the Spirit is alſo declared to be the Fruit, not of the Law, but of the hearing of Faith, Gal. 3. 3. Hence the Apoſtle here infers, That we muſt be dead unto, or free from ſubjection to the Law, that we may be enabled to ſerve God in newneſs of Spirit. Whence it is evident, that to ſerve God in the Spirit, is not to enjoy the Spiritual ſenſe of the Law, as Mr. le Clerk thinks.

e Ver. 9. Ἐγὼ δὲ ἔζων χωρὶς νόμου, I was alive without the Law.] Πρὸ τοῦ Μωυσέως, before the Law of Moſes came. So Chryſoſtom, Oecumenius, Theophylact.

f Ver. 10. Ordained.] This word is not in the Original, you may therefore Paraphraſe the words thus; [The Commandment which was given for life, i. e. with this Promiſe, Do this and live, was found to me unto death.

(a) Nidda. f. 76.

g Ver. 8, 9, 10, 11. For the Explication of theſe four laſt Verſes, let it be noted, Firſt, That it is the Opinion of Judicious Commentators, that when the Apoſtle ſaith, Sin taking occaſion by the commandment, wrought in him all manner of concupiſcence, v. 8. and deceived him, v. 11. he means that it did this by ſaying only, Thou ſhalt not covet, but aſſigning no Puniſhment to him that coveted. But this Interpretation cannot ſtand, for theſe two Reaſons: For, firſt, it plainly contradicts the words of the Law, which pronounceth a Curſe upon every one who continues not in all the things written in the Law to do them; and much more doth it contradict the Drift of the Apoſtle's Diſcourſe in this, and the Epiſtle to the Galatians, viz. that the Law required Perfect Obedience to its Precepts, comdemning him to Death, or rendring him obnoxious to Condemnation, who in any thing tranſgreſſed it, and ſo could be no means of Juſtification, as many as were under the Law, being under the Curſe, becauſe Tranſgreſſors of it.

Secondly, This agrees not with the following Reaſon, or the Nature of the thing; for if the Law given encouraged them to covet, becauſe it had no preſent Penalty annexed to it, they muſt be more free to covet, or follow their Natural or Carnal Inclinations, when there was no Law at all forbidding them to covet; and therefore Sin could take no more occaſion by a Law without Penalty, than by none at all, to work in us all manner of Concupiſcence, nor could Concupiſcence be dead without the Law, more than with it.

The old and common Interpretation is this, That the Prohibition of what we deſire makes us to think the Enjoyment of it more ſweet and valuable, or at leaſt provokes the Carnal Mind, which is not ſubject to the Law of God, to a more fervent luſting after it; Dum prohibita non refugit quam ardentius expetit; and this agrees very well with this Expreſſion. Or,

Thirdly, Sin is in Scripture repreſented as an Enemy that ſeeks our Ruine and Deſtruction, and takes all Occaſions to effect it; it is here ſaid to war againſt the Mind, v. 23. elſewhere to war againſt the Soul, 1 Pet. 2. 11. to ſurround, and beſet us, Heb. 12. 1. to bring us into Bondage, and ſubjection, and get the dominion over us, Rom. 6. 12. to entice us, and ſo to work our Death, James 1. 15, 16. and to do all that Satan, the Grand Enemy of Mankind, doth, by tempting, and ſolliciting us to the Commiſſion of it; when therefore it finds a Law which threatneth Death to the Violation of it, it takes occaſion thence more earneſtly to tempt, and allure us to the Violation of it, that ſo it may more effectually ſubject us to Death and Condemnation upon that account, for the ſting of death is ſin, and the ſtrength of ſin is the law, condemning us to Death upon the Violation of it: Thus when God had forbidden, under the pain of Death, the eating of the forbidden Fruit, Satan thence took occaſion to tempt our firſt Parents to the breach of it, and ſo ſlew them, or made them ſubject to Death: ἀπάτησε, he deceived them, Gen. 3. 13. 1 Tim. 2. 14. which is the word here uſed, v. 11.

Secondly, Obſerve the Import of the Phraſe, Without the Law ſin was (or is) dead, which ſeems not to be this, That the Inclinations of Men to ſin were in their Nature leſs, when they were unreſtrained by a Law; but rather this, that ſin was then comparatively dead, as to its power of Condemning us to Death: And this, firſt, the Antitheſis doth plainly hint, for thus it runs, Without the law ἁμαρτία νεκρὰ· ἐγὼ δὲ ἔζων, ſin was dead, but I was living, but when the commandment came, ſin revived, and I died. How were Men living before the Law, but becauſe then no Law condemned them? Sin therefore muſt be then dead as to its power of Condemning. How did they die when the Law came, but by the Law condemning them to death? Sin therefore then revived as to its Condemning Power, which it received firſt from the Sin of Adam, which brought Death into the World, and next from the Law of Moſes, which entred that the offence might abound, and reign more unto death, Rom. 5. 20, 21. For though Sin was in the World from Adam unto Moſes, or until the Law given, yet was it not imputed unto Death, when there was no Law given, that did threaten death unto it; ſo that death reign'd, in that Interval, by virtue of Adam's ſin alone, even over them who had not ſinned after the ſimilitude of Adam's Tranſgreſſion, i. e. againſt a Poſitive Law forbidding it under the Penalty of Death, which Law being delivered by Moſes, Sin revived, (i. e.) it had again its force to condemn Men as before to Death, by virtue of a Law which threatned death to them: And in this ſenſe doth the Apoſtle ſeem to ſay, that the Law was added becauſe of Tranſgreſſions, Gal. 3. 19. to convince us of the Wrath and Puniſhment due to them; and that the Law therefore worketh wrath, becauſe where no Law is, there is no Tranſgreſſion, Rom. 4. 15. ſubjecting us to Wrath, or no ſuch ſenſe of the Divine Wrath, as where a plain Divine Law threatning Death and Condemnation is violated; upon the ſenſe thus given of theſe two Phraſes, doth our Expoſition ſtand.

Ver. 13. Καθ' ὑπερβολὴν ἁμαρτωλὸς, exceeding ſinful.] That it might appear εἰς θάνατον ὑπερβάλλουσα, Chap 5. 20, 21. abounding unto death, and ſo exceeding vile, and hateful to us, the end, and wages of it being death, and condemnation, Chap. 6. 21, 23.

i Ver. 14. Πεπραμένος ὑπὸ τὴν ἁμαρτίαν, ſold under ſin.] i. e. In peccati poteſtatem libidinis & concupiſcentiæ pretio redactus, Origen. So enſlaved to it, ſaith Theophylact, ὥστε μὴ δύνασθαι ἀναβλέψαι, that he could not look up; a willing Slave, who had ſold himſelf to it, ſaith Theodoret. And this is continually the import of the Phraſe in the Old Teſtament, as when it is ſaid of Ahab, 1 Kings 21. 20. πέπρασαι ποιῆσαι τὸ πονηρὸν, thou haſt ſold thy ſelf to do wickedly; and v. 25. ἐπράθη ποιῆσαι τὸ πονηρὸν, he ſold himſelf to do wickedly. Of the Jews, Iſa. 50. 1. ταῖς ἁμαρτίαις ὑμῶν ἐπράθητε, you have ſold your ſelves to your iniquities. And of the Jews, who under Antiochus Epiphanes revolted from their Religion to Heatheniſm, it is ſaid that ἐπράθησαν τοῦ ποιῆσαι τὸ πονηρὸν, they ſold themſelves to do evil, 1 Maccab. 1. 15.

k Ver. 15. Ὃ μισῶ, that which I hate.] Ὑπὸ τῆς ἡδονῆς καλαθελκόμενοι ποιοῦμεν ἅπερ ὡς βδελυττόμεθα, being allured with pleaſure, we, ſay Theodoret and Oecumenius, oft do thoſe things which are abominable, as being oppoſite to the Law; for whilſt the Law repreſents Sin as pernicious, and deſtructive both to Soul and Body, it is as natural for all Men to hate it, as to love themſelves; but then, as Photius ſaith, when τὸ ἡδὺ τοῦ πράγματος προσάλλεται, the ſweetneſs, or pleaſure of the action is propoſed to the mind, the hatred goes off, and the Soul is wrought up to an affection to it; and thus it is with every enlightned Man, that ſins againſt his Conſcience, and doth the evil which he would not do. Theſe words, ſaith Origen, ſhew that the carnal man, of whom he ſpeaks, reſiſtere aliquantulum vitiis conatur, endeavours a little to reſiſt his vices, legis ſc. naturalis inſtinctu, by the inſtinct of the Law of Nature, but that at laſt he is overcome by them, and oppreſſed with them.

l Ver. 17. Ἡ οἰκοῦσα ἐν ἐμοὶ ἁμαρτία, ſin that dwelleth in me.] This he ſpeaks, ſaith Theodoret, calling τὴν νῦν δουλείαν, καὶ τῶν παθῶν τὴν δυναστείαν, the ſlavery of the Mind, and the dominion, or as Theophylact, the tyranny of the Paſſions, Sin. It is, ſaith Origen, Lex, & Voluntas Carnis, quæ captivos nos ducit in lege peccati, the Law, and Will of the Fleſh, which leads us captive to the Law of Sin. Hence this Sin dwelling in us, is ſo often ſtiled the Law of ſin in our members, v. 20, 21, 22, 25. Chap. 8. 2. Here the Apoſtle ſeems to ſpeak according to the Philoſophy of the Heathens, with which the Jews began to be acquainted, that Man was not to be denominated from his Body, or his Senſual, and Carnal Part, but from his Mind, his νοῦς, or λογικὴ διάνοια, which in (b) Philo's Phraſe is ὁ ἐν ἑκάστῳ ἡμῶν ἄνθρωπος, the Man within us; (c) ὁ τῆς ἀληθείας ἄνθρωπος, the true Man, the Man properly ſo called. Who ſaith moreover, λέγει ὁ ταῦτα ὁ ἀληθινὸς ἄνθρωπος ὁ ἐπὶ ψυχῆς ἔλεγχος, this ſaith the true Man, the reprover in the Soul. And of himſelf he ſpeaks thus; Men may have power over my Body, but that is nothing to me, ἐγὼ γὰρ ἀπὸ τοῦ χείρονος καὶ ἐν ἐμαυτῷ διάνοιας χρηματίζω, for I am denominated from my mind, the better part, according to which I deſign to live.

Ver. 22. Κατὰ τὸν ἔσω ἄνθρωπον, according to m the inward man.] It is plain the Inward Man here cannot ſignifie the New Man (which is created after God in righteouſneſs and holineſs, Eph. 4. 24. and which is not put on, till all old things are paſt away, 2 Cor. 5. 17. and all things are become new, and till we have put off the old Man with his deeds, Coloſſ. 3. 9, 10.] For ſure this cannot be ſaid of him, who is ſtill carnal, ſold under ſin, and captivated to the law of ſin which is in his Members; but only the Mind of Man, the νοῦς, as the Apoſtle doth interpret himſelf, v. 25. So Origen informs us, That the Soul uſing the Body as its Inſtrument, is called ὁ ἔσω ἄνθρωπος, the inward man, Contra Celſ. l. 7. p. 357. Ἔσω ἄνθρωπον τὸν νῦν λέγει. So Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact. So the very next Verſe ſhews, the words running thus; I delight in the Law of God in the inward man, but I ſee another law in my members warring againſt the law of my mind, (i. e.) of my inward Man. And ſo the Apoſtle uſeth the Phraſe when he ſaith, 2 Cor. 4. 16. that though ὁ ἔξω ἄνθρωπος the outward Man (i. e. the Body was corrupted, yet ὁ ἔσω ἀνακαινοῦται the inward man was renewed day by day. And that this Delight is no Evidence of a Regenerate Man, is evident from the Example of the ſtony ground, which heard the word μετὰ χαρᾶς with joy, Matth. 13. 20. Of Herod, who heard John Baptiſt ἡδέως with delight, Mark 6. 20. Of the Jews, who rejoyced in his light, John 5. 35. and heard our Saviour gladly, Mark 12. 37.

Ver. 25. Εὐχαριστῶ τῷ Θεῷ, I thank God.] n
The Latin Verſion, and one Greek Copy, read χάρις τοῦ Θεοῦ, the grace of God; but the Syriack, Arabick, and all the Greek Commentators agree with our Tranſlation, which therefore is to be preferr'd before that Lection.

powerful Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit; which is as great an Inſtance of the Force of Prejudice, and the Heat of Oppoſition to pervert the Plaineſt Truths, as can be haply produced; for, I think, nothing can be more evident, and unqueſtionably true than this, That the Apoſtle doth not here ſpeak of himſelf in his own Perſon, or in the ſtate he was then in, but as the ancient Commentators do interpret him, δι' ἑαυτοῦ ὁ Ἀποστολος τὸν κοινὸν ἄνθρωπον δηλοῖ, by himſelf he repreſents Man in common, and ſaith not, as he might have done, You that are under the Law are carnal, but τὰ ἐκείνων ἐφ' ἑαυτοῦ χαμαλίζων, καὶ τὸ τραχὺ, καὶ σφοδρὸν ἐκλύων, καὶ λεαίνων τῇ ἰδίᾳ ἑαυτοῦ χαμαιλογίᾳ, repreſenting what belonged to them in his own Perſon, and ſo taking off the harſhneſs, and mollifying the invidiouſneſs of the Sentence, by ſpeaking of it in his own Perſon, he ſaith, I am carnal, ſold under ſin. So Photius, and Oecumenius. Theodoret alſo doth inform us that the Apoſtle here, introduceth v. 14. τὸν σὺν τῇ χάριτι ἄνθρωπον πολεμούμενον ὑπὸ τῶν παθῶν, A Man before Grace overcome by his Paſſions; for he calls him Carnal who had not yet obtained the Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit. And again v. 23. he adds, That the Apoſtle having diſcourſed all theſe things, ὥστε δεῖξαι πῶς μὲν σὺν τῇ χάριτι ἦμεν, 'to ſhew what we were before 'Grace, and what we were made after Grace, 'and as it were taking upon himſelf the 'Perſon of thoſe who before Grace were 'vanquiſhed by ſin, he groans, and laments, 'as a Man ſet in the midſt of his Enemies, 'enſlav'd and conſtrain'd to ſerve, and ſee-'ing no help, and thus he ſhews the Law 'unable to help us. And ſo Origen alſo frequently in his Commentary on the place; and St. Auſtin ſaith expreſly, and frequently, Deſcribitur homo ſub lege poſitus ante gratiam, Liber expoſ. quat. propoſ. ex Epiſt. ad Rom. Quo loco videtur mihi Apoſtolus transfiguraſſe in ſe hominem ſub lege poſitum, ad Simplic. Mediol. l. 1. Et in hæc verba, non ego operor illud, &c. loquitur adhuc ex perſonâ hominis ſub lege conſtituti nondum ſub gratiâ. Though he was pleaſed afterwards to change his Opinion, and ſo gave occaſion to the perverting the plain ſenſe of the Apoſtle. For confutation of this dangerous Opinion, I need not ſay much after the Labours of Arminius, the Reverend Dr. Hammond, Mr. Bull and Mr. Kettlewell, who have made it manifeſt.

Firſt, That it is uſual with the Apoſtle to make this Metaſchematiſm, or to ſpeak eſpecially of things, that might be otherwiſe offenſive, or ungrateful in his own Name, when indeed they belong not to him, but to other Men; as in theſe words, Rom. 3. 7. If the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie, why am I alſo judged as a ſinner? i.e. not I Paul, but I who make this Objection. So Gal. 2. 16, 17. 1 Cor. 4. 6. Theſe things μετεσχημάτισα I have in a figure transferr'd to my ſelf, and Apollos for your ſakes. So 1 Cor. 6. 12. 1 Cor. 13. 2. 1 Cor. 10. 22, 30. Eph. 2. 3. 1 Theſſ. 4. 17.

Secondly, That ſuch things are in this Chapter ſaid of the Perſon ſpoken of, as can by no means agree to St. Paul, or to any Regenerate Perſon: To which may be added,

1. That had St. Paul ſpoken here of himſelf, conſidered in the ſtate in which he was at the Enditing of this Epiſtle, he muſt have contradicted what he had ſaid of himſelf in the Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, and to the Corinthians, which were writ before this Epiſtle. For (1.) in his Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians he ſaith, You are witneſſes, and God alſo, how holily, and righteouſly, and unblameably we behaved our ſelves among you that believed, 1 Theſſ. 2. 10. In his ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians he ſpeaks thus; This is our rejoycing, even the teſtimony of our conſcience, that in ſimplicity, and godly ſincerity, not in fleſhly wiſdom, but by the grace of God we have converſed in this world, 2 Cor. 1. 12. That he knew nothing by himſelf, for which to condemn himſelf, 1 Cor. 4. 4. That he kept under his body, and brought it into ſubjection, 1 Cor. 9. 27. Now, can the Man who is carnal, and ſold under ſin, who hath no power in him to do any good, who finds a law in his members warring againſt the law of his mind, and bringing him into captivity to the law of ſin, which is in his members, call God, and the Church to witneſs to his holy, and unblameable Life? Can he boaſt of keeping under his fleſhly Body, and bringing that into ſubjection, which by his own confeſſion, bringeth him into Captivity? Can he, who does not what he would in his Mind and Conſcience do, but what he hates; not the good which he would, but the evil which he would not, do; can he, I ſay, rejoyce in the Teſtimony of his Conſcience? Can he honeſtly declare he knows nothing by himſelf, for which his Conſcience can condemn him?

2. How oft doth the Apoſtle propoſe himſelf a Pattern to the Churches unto whom he writes, requiring them to be followers of him as he was alſo of Chriſt, 1 Cor. 11. 1. And again, What things you have learned, and received, and heard, and ſeen in me, theſe do, and the God of love and peace ſhall be with you, Philip. 4. 8. i. e. be you carnal, ſold under ſin, living in the Commiſſion of the things you hate, and your Mind condemns, and doing what you judge to be evil, and yielding your ſelves captive to the Law of Sin, which is in your Members, and then the God of love and peace ſhall be with you. This ſure is an abſurd, if not blaſphemous Exhortation, and yet, according to this Expoſi-tion, it muſt be ſuitable to the mind of the Apoſtle.

3. With what indignation doth he reject the Accuſations of them, who look'd upon him as walking after the fleſh, and how ſeverely doth he threaten them, how peremptorily doth he reject their ſcandalous imputation? declaring, that though he walked in the fleſh, yet did he not walk according to the fleſh, 2 Cor. 10. 2, 3. and yet if he were carnal, ſold under ſin; if with the fleſh he ſerved the Law of Sin; if the Law of the fleſhly Members warred againſt the Law of his Mind, and brought him into Captivity to the Law of Sin; he doth here in effect confeſs what there he peremptorily denies, and with ſuch indignation doth reject.

4. This Expoſition of the Seventh Chapter makes it entirely to confute the Chapter which immediately goes before, and follows after, and it gives an invincible ſtrength to the Objections he endeavours to Anſwer in the Sixth Chapter. The firſt Objection there begins by way of Enquiry, What do we ſay then, ſhall we ſtill continue in ſin that grace may abound? His ſecond by way of like Enquiry, Shall we ſin becauſe we are not under the Law, but under Grace? v. 15. God forbid, ſaith he, that it ſhould be thus with any Chriſtian; and yet, according to this Expoſition, it was thus with himſelf, one of the beſt of Chriſtians; for ſure he muſt continue in ſin, who was ſtill ſold under ſin, ſtill ſerving the Law of Sin with his fleſh; ſtill doing that Evil he allowed not, the Evil which he hated, and he would not do; and who was ſtill brought into Captivity to the Law of Sin which was in his Members.

Again, In his Anſwer to theſe Enquiries, he ſhews the Chriſtian could not continue in, or live any longer in it, becauſe he was dead to ſin, his old Man was crucified with Chriſt, that the body of ſin might be deſtroyed, that henceforth he might not ſerve ſin, v. 2, 6. And becauſe being dead too, he was freed from ſin, v. 7. he was made free from ſin, and become the ſervant of righteouſneſs. But can he that is ſold under ſin, and is brought into captivity to the Law of ſin which is in his Members, be at the ſame time dead to ſin, and free from ſin? Can he who with his fleſh ſerves the Law of Sin, be ſaid to ceaſe from ſin, and not henceforth to ſerve ſin? Not to obey it in the luſts thereof, v. 12. not to yield his Members inſtruments of ſin unto unrighteouſneſs, v. 13. Surely there is as clear an Oppoſition betwixt the Chriſtian repreſented in the Sixth Chapter, as free from ſin, and in the Seventh, as miſerably enſlaved to the Law of Sin and Death which was in his Members, as betwixt Light and Darkneſs.

Again, He ſaith expreſly, Chap. 8. 2. The Law of the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus hath made me free from the Law of Sin and Death. Whereas the Perſon mentioned in the Seventh is ſold under ſin, is brought into captivity to the Law of ſin, and crieth out under his Bondage, O miſerable man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the body of this Death? He therefore cannot be the Perſon freed by the Spirit from the Law of Sin, and Death.

In fine, This Expoſition of the Cloſe of this Chapter, contradicts the beginning of it; for there the Apoſtle ſaith of himſelf, and all his Chriſtian Brethren, that this was only their ſtate under the Law, from which they are delivered, that they might bring forth fruit unto God, and ſerve him in newneſs of ſpirit. For what elſe can be the meaning of theſe words, v. 5, 6. For when we were in the fleſh, the Motions of ſin which were by the Law, did work in our Members to bring forth fruit unto death, but now we are delivered from the Law, that being dead wherein we are held, that we ſhould ſerve God in newneſs of ſpirit, and not in the oldneſs of the letter. So that they who make the Apoſtle ſay of himſelf, that he was brought into captivity to the Law of Sin, which was in his Members, and to cry out, O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death? i. e. this body of ſin which worketh death; make him alſo to confeſs that the Motions of ſin did ſtill work in his Members, to bring forth fruit unto death, and therefore that he was ſtill in the fleſh. I therefore conclude this Diſcourſe in the words of Grotius on verſe 19. Deo laus ſit, quod optimi, i. e. trium priorum ſeculorum Chriſtiani, hunc locum, ſicut oportet, intellexerint, dictante illo ſpiritu per quem vita illorum regebatur.

CHAPTER VIII.

Verſe 1. [BEing then married to this other Husband, Chriſt, and ſo freed from the Motions of Sin, which are by the Law, that we may ſerve God in newneſs of ſpirit, Chap. 7. 4, 5, 6.] There is therefore [ἄρα, verily] now no condemnation to them a which are in [a] Chriſt Jeſus [by Faith, they being ſuch] who walk not after the fleſh, [as whilſt they were under the Law they did,] but after the ſpirit [conferr'd upon them by faith in Chriſt.]

b 2. For [b] the law of the ſpirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus, hath made me [believing in him] free from the law of ſin and death.

3. For what the law could not do, [i.e. that life, and that deliverance from death it could not give,] in that it was [made] weak through the fleſh, [rendring us ſubject to the tranſgreſſion of it, and ſo to death,] God ſending his own Son in the likeneſs of ſinful
c fleſh [did] and [c] for ſin (Gr. καὶ περὶ ἁμαρτίας, [and by a Sacrifice for ſin] condemned ſin in the fleſh, [i.e. took away its power to condemn us, the condemnation due unto us for it, being inflicted on him.]

d 4. That the [d] righteouſneſs of the law, [i.e. the inward purity and righteouſneſs the Law required,] might be [performed and] fulfilled in [and by] us, who walk not after [the luſts of] the fleſh, but after the [motions of the] ſpirit. Or,

'That the Juſtification which the Law 'promiſed, by ſaying, Do this, and thou ſhalt 'live, Luke 10. 28. Deut. 4. 1. & 30. 15, 19. 'Ezek. 20. 11. And that this ſhall be thy 'righteouſneſs, Deut. 6. 25. might be com- 'pleated in us, who walk according to the 'Spirit, and ſo are abſolved not only from 'Condemnation for our paſt ſins, by Faith, 'but from Condemnation by the New Cove- 'nant, by walking according to the Spirit; 'for to be ſpiritually minded is life, v. 6.

Ver. 5. [Not after the fleſh, I ſay,] for they that are of the fleſh, do mind the things of the fleſh, [i.e. affect, and deſerve, and purſue carnal things,] but they that are after the ſpirit, [affect, deſire, and purſue] the things of the ſpirit, [and ſo the one purſues the things which tend to death, and the other thoſe things which tend to life.]

6. For to be carnally minded is [the way which tends to] death, but to be ſpiritually minded is [the way that leads to] life and peace, [v. 7. which life and peace cannot be obtained by them that are carnally minded;]

7. Becauſe the carnal mind is [that which ſets us at] enmity againſt God; for it is not ſubject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be [ſubject to it, whilſt it continues ſuch.]

8. So then they that are in the fleſh cannot pleaſe God.

9. But ['tis not ſo with you Chriſtians, for] ye are not in the fleſh, but in the ſpirit, if ſo be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any Man have not the Spirit of Chriſt [dwelling in him] he is none of his.

10. But if Chriſt be in you [by his Spirit,]
e the body is dead, [it is indeed mortal] be- e cauſe of ſin, [which will never ceaſe to be in us till we die,] but the Spirit is life [i.e. will give life to it again] becauſe of righteouſneſs, [or of that Juſtification which is unto life, Rom. 5 17, 18.]

11. But [for] if the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead dwell in you, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, [by the Spirit dwelling in him,] ſhall alſo quicken your mortal bodies by his [ſame] [f] Spi- f rit that dwelleth in you.

22. Therefore brethren, we are debtors not to the fleſh, to live after the fleſh [any longer, but rather to live after the Spirit.]

13. For if ye live after the fleſh, ye ſhall die, [i.e. be ſubject to death, as the puniſhment of ſin, or to the ſecond death.] but if ye through the ſpirit do mortifie the deeds of the fleſh, ye ſhall live, [and your bodies ſhall be raiſed to eternal life.]

14. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the [g] ſons of God. g

15. For ye have not received [h] the ſpirit h of bondage again to [the] fear [of death, as they who were under the Law did, that threatning death to every one that continued not in all things written in the Law to do them, Deut. 27. 26.] but ye have received the ſpirit of adoption [given to us becauſe we are Sons, Gal. 4. 6.) whereby we cry, Abba, Father, [i.e. we are aſſured that God is our Father, and ſo that we are Heirs of God, and Sons of the Reſurrection.]

16. [For] the Spirit it ſelf, [Gr. the ſame Spirit] beareth witneſs with our ſpirit, that we are the Children of God, [and this gives us a full aſſurance of that bleſſed life, enabling us to conclude thus.]

17. And if [we be] children, then [are we i alſo] heirs, [i] heirs of God, and joynt-heirs with Chriſt, [the Son of God, now reigning glorioufly in Heaven,] if ſo be we ſuffer with him, [and ſo be conformed to his image, v. 29.] that we may be alſo glorified together.

18. [Which Sufferings we have reaſon to endure for the ſecuring this glorious eſtate;] for I reckon that the ſufferings of this preſent time [we live in this World] are not worthy to be compared with the glory which ſhall be revealed [k] in us, [or to the k
Glory afterwards to be revealed to us.]

19. For [ſo deſireable is it, that] [l] the ear- l neſt expectation of the Creature [ſubject now to vanity] waiteth for the manifeſtation

of the Sons of God, [i. e. the whole Race of Mankind earneſtly expects it;]

20. For the Creature was made ſubject to vanity, not willingly, but by reaſon of him who hath ſubjected the ſame, [i.e. the ἡ κτίσις whole race of men, ἡ κτίσις ἀνθρώπων, 1 Pet. 2.13. were made ſubject to corruption, not of their own accord, but by reaſon of Adam, who by his ſin ſubjected his Poſterity to death, and corruption, and the Earth to a Curſe, Gen. 3.17. and this Creature waiteth.]

m 31. m In hope, becauſe [Gr. ὅτι that] the Creature it ſelf alſo ſhall be [then] delivered from the bondage of Corruption, into the glorious liberty of the Sons of God.

n 22. For we know that the n whole Creation groaneth, and travelleth in pain together [under this bondage to Corruption] until now.

23. And not only they, but our ſelves alſo, who have the firſt fruits of the Spirit, even we our ſelves groan within our ſelves, waiting for the o adoption, [viz. the glorious Reſurrection, and thereby] the Redemption of our body.

24. [Waiting, I ſay, for it, though we do p not ſee it,] for [as yet] we are p ſaved [only] by hope, but hope [of a thing] that is ſeen, is not hope [truly ſo called] for what a man ſeeth, why doth he yet hope for?

25. But if we hope for that we ſee not, then do we with patience wait for it.

26. [And as Patience, ſo] likewiſe the q q Spirit alſo helpeth [to relieve us in] our infirmities, for [when we are burthen'd with them] we know not what to pray for as we ought, [whether for increaſe of Patience under, or deliverance from them; or if ſo, whether by abſence from the body, or being cloathed upon,] but the Spirit it ſelf, [or the ſame Spirit, which teſtifies that we are the Sons of God, v.16.] intercedeth for us with groanings that cannot be uttered, [Gr. with ſilent groanings after this Redemption, v.23. 2 Cor. 5.2,4,5.]

27. And he that ſearcheth the hearts [of the Saints] knoweth what is the mind [or the deſire] of the Spirit, for he maketh interceſſion for the Saints, according to the will [or purpoſe] of God, [to give them this Redemption of the Body.]

28. And [though we know not in our diſtreſſes what to pray for in particular, or when we ſhall obtain this Redemption of the Bo- r dy, οἴδαμεν δέ, yet] we know, that r all things ſhall work together for good, [for ſecuring this happineſs] to them that love God, to them that are called [to the Adoption of Sons] according to his purpoſe [of bringing many Sons to glory by him, Heb. 2.10. he having predeſtinated us to the Adoption of Sons through Jeſus Chriſt, according to the good pleaſure of his will, Eph. 1.5. according to his purpoſe in Chriſt Jeſus, 2 Tim. 1.9.]

29. For whom he did [thus] s foreknow, he s alſo did t predeſtinate [or appoint] to be con- t form'd to the Image of his Son, [by having their vile Bodies changed into the likeneſs of his glorious Body, Phil. 3.21.] that he might be the firſt-born [or chief] among many brethren, [who are to be co-heirs and glorified together with him, v.17.]

30. And [the method he uſed to bring thoſe whom he had deſign'd to be thus conform'd to the image of his Son, was this, viz.] whom he thus predeſtinated, them he alſo called, [firſt to the Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Faith,] and whom he called, [upon their cordial embracing of that Faith,] them he alſo juſtified, [and ſo freed from condemation to death;] and whom he juſtified, them he alſo u glori- u fied.

31. What ſhall we ſay then? [Gr. what ſay we then] to theſe things? [i. e. what further ground of aſſurance, and ſo of patient waiting for theſe things can we want?] for if God be for us, who can [ſucceſsfully] be againſt us? [ſo as to fruſtrate, or deprive us of this glorious ſtate.]

32. He that [in purſuance of this deſign] ſpared not his own Son, but delivered him up for [the Redemption of] us all, how ſhall he not alſo with him, freely give us all things, [belonging to that glory and happineſs he hath purchaſed for us?]

33. Who ſhall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? [i. e. to them who are called by him to Chriſtianity, to hinder their Redemption, by charging them with that Guilt which rendreth them obnoxious to Death;] it is God that juſtifieth, [and who will therefore glorifie them.]

34. Who is he that condemneth [them to abide ſtill under the power of Death?] It is Chriſt that died [to redeem them from it;] yea rather that is riſen again [for their Juſtification, Rom. 4.24. And if when we were Enemies, we were reconciled to God by the Death of his Son, much more being reconciled, we ſhall be ſaved by his life, Rom. 5.10.] who is even at the right hand of God, [inveſted with all manner of power, that he ſhould give eternal life unto them, John 17.2.] who alſo maketh interceſſion for us, [and ſo is able to ſave us to the uttermoſt, εἰς τὸ παντελὲς. Heb. 7.25.]

35. Who ſhall ſeperate us from the love of Chriſt? [that love which he hath ſhewed in procuring this Redemption for us, ver. 37.] ſhall tribulation, or diſtreſs, or perſecution, or famine, or nakedneſs, or peril, or ſword?

36. [Befalling us] as it is written [Pſal. 44.22.] for thy ſake we are killed all the day long, we are accounted as ſheep [appointed] for the ſlaughter.

37. Nay, [as there it is ſaid, all this is come upon us, yet have we not forgotten thee, neither have we dealt falſly in thy Covenant, v.17,18. so may all this happen to us, ἀλλ' but] x nay in all these things we are [already] x more than Conquerors through [the grace, and spirit of] him that loved us.

38. [And I trust after this happy Experience it will be so still,] for I am perswaded that neither [fear of] death, nor [hope of] life, nor [evil] Angels, nor Principalities, nor Powers [persecuting us for Christ's sake,] nor [the] things [we endure at] present, nor things to come;

39. Nor height [of honour,] nor depth [of ignominy,] nor any other Creature [or thing,] shall be able to separate us from the Love of God, which is [vouchsafed to us] in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Annotations on Chap. VIII.

a Verse 1. Ἐν Χριστῷ, in Christ.] The Phrase τῷ ἐν Χριστῷ, to be in Christ, saith Mr. le Cl. is often used by St. Paul, for being a Christian, which Note he borrowed from Castalio, who renders it Christiani facti; but if either of them mean only Christians by Profession, or by being only Members of the Christian Church, this will by no means agree with this place, or any other of like Nature; since freedom from Condemnation, and other Benefits conferred upon us through Jesus Christ, will not follow our being Christians in this sense, but upon a lively Faith in Christ, our Union to him by the Spirit, and our being so in him, as to become new Creatures, according to those words, v. 9. If any man have not the Spirit of Christ dwelling in him, he is none of his, 2 Cor. 5. 17. They that are Christ's have crucified the flesh, with its affections and lusts. See 1 Cor. 1. 30. 2 Cor. 10. 7. & 13. 5. Gal. 3. 28, 29. & 5. 6. 1 Thess. 4. 16. 1 John 5. 20.

b Ver. 2. Ὁ γὰρ νόμος τοῦ πνεύματος, for the Law of the Spirit of Life.] i. e. The Spirit of Christ giving me a new Life, is now another Law, or Rule of my Actions, freeing me from the Motions, and Power of Sin, to which I was subject whilst under the Law, and from the Death to which that subjected me; or the Gospel, attended with the Spirit, hath wrought this freedom in me, as Methodius interprets the words, ὁ γὰρ νόμος τοῦ πνεύματος, ὁ ἐν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ, Method. apud. Phot. p. 918.

c Ver. 3. Καὶ περὶ ἁμαρτίας, and for sin.] This Phrase in the Old Testament is the usual Phrase for a Sin-offering: So a Bullock for a Sin-offering is μόσχος περὶ ἁμαρτίας, Lev. 4. 3, 18. & 8. 2, 14. & 9. 2, 8. & 16. 3, 6, 27. & v. 9, 11. The Lamb for a Sin-offering is πρόβατον περὶ τ ἁμαρτίας, Lev. 4. 32. or ἀμνὸς περὶ ἁμαρτίας, Lev. 5, 6, 7. Numb. 6. 16. And in like manner the Goat for a Sin-offering is χίμαρος περὶ ἁμαρτίας, Lev. 5. 6. or χίμαρον, Lev. 9. 3, 15. & 10. 6. & 16. 5. 15, 27. & 23. 19, &c. the Dove for a Sin-offering is ὁ τρυγὼν περὶ ἁμαρτίας, Lev. 5. 7. & 12. 6. 8. & 14. 22, 31. & 15. 15, &c. The Sin-offering is τὸ περὶ ἁμαρτίας, Lev. 5. 8, 9, 11. & 6. 30 & 7. 7, 37, &c. and so in many other places. This therefore is sufficient to establish the sense of these words given in the Paraphrase. Now the constant effect of this Sin-offering was this, To make an atonement for the Sin committed, that it might be forgiven, and the guilt of it might be done away. It therefore seems most reasonable to interpret the effect of this Sacrifice delivered in these words, And for sin condemned sin in the flesh, agreeably to the constant design of all Sacrifices for Sin, and then these words must signifie, not that he gave us power to kill sin, or by this Example of his Wrath against it, engag'd us to forsake our sinful Courses, but that he took away its Condemning Power; he condemned that which before condemned us, enabling us to say τίς ὁ κατακρινῶν, who is he that condemns us? It is Christ that died, Rom. 8. 34. He killed Sin, or made it dead by that Death which caused it not to be imputed to us to Death, 2 Cor. 15. 19. And this is the thing which the Law could not do, it could not give Life to a Person condemned to Death, Gal. 3. 21. it could not justifie, or free us from Condemnation.

d Ver. 4. Τὸ δικαίωμα τοῦ νόμου, the Righteousness of the Law;] Is a Phrase which occurs only here, and Rom. 2. 26. where it plainly signifies the Righteousness contained in the Moral Law, or those Internal Principles of Holiness, Justice and Goodness, which are comprised in it, these being the weightier Matters of the Law, Matth. 23. 23. and the only things in which the Uncircumcision, or the Gentiles could keep, τὰ δικαιώματα τοῦ νόμου, the Righteousness of the Law; Here therefore I conceive the Phrase bears the same sense, and confutes the vain Imaginations of the Antinomians.

That which hath made most Commentators interpret the third Verse otherwise than I have done, seems to be this, That they seem not sufficiently to have considered the double effect of our Lord's Death and Passion, and the Order, in which they are placed in Scripture, viz. (1.) Freedom from Condemnation, Justification, and Reconciliation to God: And (2.) the Vouchsafement of his Spirit, as the Consequent of that Faith which rendreth us the Sons of God; God being first reconciled to us by Faith in his Son's Blood, and then giving us this token of his Love, viz. his Spirit to dwell in our hearts; by the first of which we are Justified, and by the second we are sanctified; by the first freed from the Law of Death, by the second from the Law of Sin, 1 Cor. 6. 11. The first is the Grace of God, we being Juſtified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus, Rom.3.24. The ſecond is, the gift through grace: The firſt Juſtification, the ſecond ἡ δωρεὰ δικαιοσύνης, the gift following upon our juſtification, being juſtified freely by his grace, we have peace with God, Rom. 5.1. And then, the love of God is ſhed abroad in our hearts, by the ſpirit that he hath given us, v.5. Ye are all Sons of God by faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and becauſe ye are ſons, God hath ſent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, Gal.4.6. Whence he is here ſtiled the Spirit of Adoption, v. 16. Chriſt hath redeemed us from the Curſe of the Law, that the Bleſſing of Abraham [i. e. Juſtification by Faith] might come upon the Gentiles, that they might receive the promiſe of the Spirit, Gal.3.14. For believing in him, we are ſealed with the holy Spirit of Promiſe, Eph.1.14. Now theſe two being always connected, the Apoſtle goes frequently from the one to the other; firſt mentioning our freedom from Condemnation, then our walking in the Spirit, v.1,2. Our freedom from the Guilt of Sin by the Death of Chriſt, v. 3. and then our fulfilling the Righteouſneſs of the Law by the Spirit of Chriſt, v. 4. And becauſe the Law could not juſtifie, or free us from the condemning Power of Sin, therefore concluding that it could not give the Spirit of Chriſt to ſanctifie us, and that we therefore muſt be freed from the Law, that we might ſerve God in the newneſs of the Spirit, Rom.6.7. Gal.3.3.

e Ver. 10. Τὸ μὲν σῶμα νεκρὸν δι' ἁμαρτίαν, the body is dead becauſe of ſin.] That the Apoſtle ſpeaks not here of a Moral, but of the Natural Death of the Body, appears from this Conſideration; that in the Verſe following he ſpeaks of this Mortal Body, and of the raiſing it from the dead; and that by the Spirit he doth not underſtand the Spirit of a Man, but the Holy Ghoſt, is alſo evident, becauſe this Spirit, in the foregoing Verſe, is the Spirit of Chriſt; in the following Verſe, the Spirit that raiſed Chriſt from the dead, and will raiſe us, in whom he doth inhabit, from it.

Now the reaſon why after our freedom from Condemnation by the Death of Chriſt, our Bodies are ſtill ſubject to Death, is thus aſſigned by the (a) Fathers; Becauſe ſhould we have lived for ever in this imperfect ſtate, we ſhould have ſinned for ever, and therefore God permits good men ſtill to die, that ſin might not live for ever in them, doing this not out of his diſpleaſure to puniſh them for ſin; but out of Mercy to free them from it.

Ver. 11. Διὰ τὸ ἐνοικοῦν αὐτοῦ πνεῦμα ἐν ὑμῖν, f by the ſpirit that dwelleth in you.] This is ſpoken according to the Opinion of the Jews, that the Reſurrection ſhall be effected by virtue of the Holy Spirit; which they conclude from thoſe words of the Prophet Ezekiel, *Chap.*37.9,10. Come, O Spirit, from the four winds, and blow upon theſe dead, that they may live. Thus was our Lord raiſed from the dead, 1 Pet. 3. 18. Thus ſhall we be raiſed, who are the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt, ſaith this Verſe. And with this agrees the Doctrine of the Ancient Fathers: Our Bodies riſing by the Spirit, ſaith (b) Irenæus, ſhall be made ſpiritual, and by the Spirit ſhall have life. (c) They who are dead and buried with Chriſt, may know that by the Spirit, which raiſed him up, they ſhall be raiſed. So Origen.

Ver. 14. Υἱοὶ Θεοῦ, Sons of God.] The ſtrength of this Argument will be exceeding g clear from theſe Conſiderations, That the adopted Sons of God, are Heirs of God, Joint-heirs with Chriſt, and ſo muſt reign with him, *v.*17. which till they live again, and be raiſed from the dead, they cannot do; and that their Adoption is the Redemption of their Bodies from Corruption, v. 23. (2ly,) That we are then compleatly the Sons of God, when we are Sons of the Reſurrection, Luke 20.37. when we have overcome, according to thoſe words, Rev. 21. 7. He that overcometh ſhall inherit all things, and I will be to him a God, and he ſhall be to me a Son. And ſomething like this is that of the Jews on theſe words, Pſal. 72.17. יהי שמו filiabitur Nomen ejus; for, ſay they, * his Name is called Finnon, quia ipſe filiaturus eſt omnes dormientes in Pulvere, becauſe he will raiſe, and ſo make Sons, all that ſleep in the Duſt.

h Ver. 15. Πνεῦμα δουλείας, the ſpirit of bondage.] That the Law was to the Jews a Yoke of Bondage the Apoſtle doth inform us, *Gal.*5.1. And that they who were under it were in bondage to the Elements of the World, Gal.4.3,8. that it gendred to Bondage, and ſubjected its Children to Bondage, v. 24, 25,31. that they were all their life time ſubject to bondage, thro' the fear of death, he informs us, Heb 2.15. And they had reaſon ſo to be, ſince, as the Apoſtle teacheth, the Law given by Moſes did not exempt them from the Death which Adam's ſin had brought upon them, but rather made that Death abound, and them obnoxious to it on many freſh Accounts; for the Law entred that the offence might abound [unto death,] Rom. 5.1. And the Law coming, Sin revived, and I died; and the Commandment was found to be unto death, the Motions of Sin which were by the Law working in their Members to bring forth fruit unto death, Chap. 7. 4, 10. This therefore gives a clear account of the Paraphraſe of the firſt part of the Verſe, but we, ſaith he, ſhall live a Life immortal, and enjoy an happy Reſurrection, as being the Sons of God, and in token of this we have received the Spirit of Adoption, enabling us to call God Father, and aſſuring us we are his Children, and ſo he being our God, muſt have prepared for us a City, Heb.11.16.

i Ver. 17. Κληρονόμοι μὲν Θεοῦ, Heirs of God, joint-heirs with Chriſt.] All having our ſhare in this glorious Inheritance, though he, as the eldeſt Brother, hath the double Portion.

k Ver. 18. Εἰς ἡμᾶς often ſignifies, to, or towards us;] and is ſo rendred in this Epiſtle, Chap.5.8. Or, for us, as Chap. 16. 6. See for the firſt ſenſe, 1 Cor. 14.36. 2 Cor. 1. 11. & 9.5,8. & 10.1. & 13.3. *Eph.*1.8,9. *Coloſſ.*1.6. 1 Theſſ. 4.8. Heb. 2. 3. And for the ſecond, 1 *Cor.*15.10. 2 *Cor.*2.4. Eph. 3.2. Coloſſ. 1. 25. 1 *Theſſ.*5.18.

l Ver. 19. Ἀποκαραδοκία τῆς κτίσεως, the earneſt expectation of the Creature.] Here it is to be noted, That in the Sacred Dialect, deſire and expectation, is aſcribed to Creatures in reference to things they want, and which tend to their Advantage, though they explicitly know nothing of them. Thus the Meſſiah is called ἀποκαραδοκία πάντων ἐθνῶν, the Expectation of the Gentiles, Gen. 49.10. חמדת the Deſire of all Nations, Hag.2.4.

m Ver. 21. Ἐπ' ἐλπίδι, in hope.] So the Syriack and many Greek Commentators do begin this Verſe.

Ἀπὸ τῆς δουλείας τῆς φθορᾶς, from the bondage of Corruption.] That is, from the Mortality which all their lives long made them ſubject to Bondage, *Heb.*2.15.

Ver. 22. Πᾶσα ἡ κτίσις, the whole Creation.] n All the World under that ſenſe of Mortality, which ſtill ſubjects them to Bondage; for as Cicero confeſſes, (d) Death muſt be terrible to thoſe, who with their life loſe the Enjoyment of all good things, and if it be an evil, muſt be an eternal evil, becauſe it doth for ever deprive them of all good. That (e) Mortis metu omnis quietæ vitæ ſtatus perturbatur, the fear of it diſturbs all the tranquility of life. And that this renders our whole Life miſerable, (f) Quæ enim poteſt in vitâ eſſe jucunditas, cum dies & noctes cogitandum ſit jam jamque eſſe Moriendum? For what pleaſure can there be in that Life which is perpetually perplexed with the thoughts of Death?

Ver. 23. Υἱοθεσίαν, the Adoption.] I know o there is another Expoſition of theſe words to this effect: That by the Creature, we are to underſtand the Gentile World, in oppoſition to the Chriſtian, the word ברוא among the Rabbins ſignifying the Gentiles, in oppoſition to the Jews, the People of God; that their waiting for the Manifeſtation of the Sons of God, is their waiting to ſee what the Jews will do, who of them will be true Sons of God, who not; who of them will embrace the Faith of Chriſt, who not; their happineſs depending punctually upon the Iſſue of this: Their being made ſubject to Vanity, is their being ſubject to the Vanity of their Minds, Ignorance, and Idolatry, Rom. r. 21. Epheſ.3.20. Eph. 1. 17. That to this Idolatry they were made ſubject, not willingly, but by the Devil's impoſing it upon them, as an Act of Religion, ſaith the Reverend Dr. Hammond. In pœnam incœpti Babylonici, in puniſhment of their attempt to build the Tower of Babel, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot. That their hopes of being delivered from this Bondage of Corruption, is their hopes of being reſcued from this Idolatry, thoſe filthy Courſes they were engaged in, and the Bondage they were in to Satan; and to be made Chriſt's Freemen, to have a Right to God's Favour, and the future Bleſſings conſequent upon it, the word φθορὰ having that ſenſe, *Deut.*4.16. *Wiſd.*14.12. 2 *Pet.*1.4. 2 *Pet.*2.12. 1 *Cor.*15.33. 2 Cor. 11.3. But againſt every part of this Interpretation their lyes this Objection, That it is not only wholly new, but wholly contrary to all Antiquity, and alſo to the Text, and it is liable to many juſt Exceptions, as V. Gr. Firſt, κτίσις, ſaith this Interpretation, is the Gentile World, whereas πᾶσα κτίσις hath no ſuch ſenſe in Scripture. The Phraſe πᾶσα κτίσις is uſed but three, or four times more in the New Testament; twice in the Epistle to the Colossians, where Christ is stiled the First-born πάσης κτίσεως of the whole Creation, not only of the Gentile World: And the Gospel is said to be preached ἐν πάσῃ τῇ κτίσει, Col. 1. 23. (i. e.) to Jew and Gentile, to the whole World, or to all Mankind, v. 6. Once in St. Peter, where subjection is required πάσῃ ἀνθρωπίνῃ κτίσει to all Magistrates among Men, 1 Pet. 2. 13. not only Heathen sure, but also Christian, when the Government should be put into their hands. And once in St. Mark, where the Apostles are commanded to preach the Gospel πάσῃ τῇ κτίσει to every Creature, Mark 16. 15. Now because the same Disciples are commanded to preach εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη to all Nations, Matth. 28. 18. hence it is argued that πᾶσα κτίσις signifies the Heathen World, in opposition to the Jews; whereas it plainly signifies all Nations, both Jew, and Gentile, as is evident from these words of Christ to them, That they should preach in his Name Repentance, and Remission of Sins εἰς πάντα τὰ ἔθνη to all Nations, beginning at Jerusalem, Luke 24. 47. And so the whole of this Interpretation is destroyed, for in these places πᾶσα κτίσις is equivalent to all Mankind.

To wait for the Manifestation of the Sons of God, is not to wait to see what the Jews would do, who had not received the Adoption, and were not the Sons of God, as wanting that Faith by which Men become Sons, Gal. 3. 26. but to expect τὴν ἡμετέραν τελείωσιν our Perfection, τὴν ἐπίδοσιν our advancement to a state of Incorruption; τὴν μέλλουσαν ἡμῶν δόξαν, our future glory; So Chrysostom, Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact: For it must (by reason of the Connective Particle γὰρ) be the same with the glory that is to be revealed, v. 18. and with the glorious liberty of the Sons of God, v. 21. They expect, saith Origen, that time when these things shall be revealed, which are prepared for them that are the Sons of God.

To be made subject to Vanity, is not to be made subject to Idolatry, but to be made subject to Corruption, τῇ φθορᾷ; so Chrysostom, Oecumenius, Theophylact; for τὴν ματαιότητα καλεῖ καὶ φθοράν, he calls that mutability and vanity, to which all things in the World are subject, Corruption, saith Theodoret, when the Apostle saith the Creature was made subject to vanity, and in Bondage to Corruption, (g) Mihi videtur quod de hoc materiali, & corruptibilis corporis substantiâ, ista dicuntur, neque enim corruptio alicui cuiquam dominatur nisi corpori; This, saith Origen, seems to be spoken of the Body, for that only is subject to Corruption. As is apparent also from the thing they groan for, viz. the Redemption of the Body from Corruption, that this mortal might put on immortality, or be cloathed with its House from Heaven, that Mortality might be swallowed up of Life, 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. Secondly, It cannot truly be said that the Heathen were not willingly subject to Idolatry; for the Apostle saith, they subjected themselves to it against the Light of Nature, and so became without excuse, and that when they knew God, they did not glorifie him as God, Rom. 1. 20, 21, 22, 23. And this sense of the word Vanity is very frequent in the Psalms, and in Ecclesiastes. Thus David contemplating the Frailty of Man, and how soon he Vanisheth away, cries out, Every Man therefore is but vanity, πᾶς οὖν μάλιστα πᾶς ἄνθρωπος ζῶν, Psal. 39. 5, 11. And again, ἄνθρωπος μάλιστα ὁμοιώθη, Man is like to vanity, his days pass away like a shadow, Psal. 144. 4. And because all things here below are so frail, so subject to change, and to vanish, and Man hath so short a time to possess them; therefore, saith the Preacher, Vanity of Vanities are they, all is Vanity, Eccles. 1. 2. And when Adam became Mortal he called his Son Abel, Vanity, Gen. 4. 2.

The Vanity to which the whole Creation is subject, doth not therefore signifie the vain Employments, and Distractions of this present Life, but that state of Mortality, from which the Psalmist infers, every Man therefore is but Vanity; for it is thus subject to Vanity in hope of deliverance from that Bondage of Corruption, which Mr. Cl. owns to be the Corruption to which our Body is naturally liable, and from which we Christians wait to be delivered by the Redemption of the Body from Corruption: See Note on v. 23. And therefore he who subjected us to this state, is not God, who brought not Death into the World, but Adam, by whom Sin entred into the World, and Death by Sin. To be delivered from this bondage of Corruption, is not to be delivered from Idolatry, nor doth κτίσις τῆς φθορᾶς ever bear this sense, but the sense is ἐπὶ τὸ μὴ εἶναι φθαρτὴν, the Creature shall not then be corruptible, ἔσται γὰρ ἡ κτίσις ἀφθαρσίᾳ, ὡσαύτως καὶ ἡμεῖς γέγονε φθαρτὴ, for as the Creature was made corruptible by us, so shall it be made incorruptible with us; so Oecumenius, Theodoret, Theophylact. For that which it groans for is its Redemption from Corruption, v. 23. Having thus offered my Reasons against this Interpretation, it will be very easie to confirm the ancient and true Explication of the words from the Scope and Argument of the Apostle here. For I have shewed from v. 11. that the Apostle is here treating of the Resurrection of the Body to Eternal Life, that

v. 13. he declares this Life belongs to them alone, who through the Spirit do mortifie the deeds of the fleſh; that v. 14. he proves they ſhall enjoy this Life, and Reſurrection, becauſe they are the Sons of God: And v. 17. that being Sons, they muſt be heirs of God, joint-heirs with Chriſt; firſt ſuffering, and then reigning in Glory with him; that v. 18. to encourage Chriſtians thus to ſuffer he ſhews the greatneſs of that Glory they ſhall then enjoy, ſtiling it δόξαν μέλλουσαν ἀποκαλυφθῆναι, the Glory to be revealed hereafter, i. e. after the Sufferings of this preſent Life, to which it is oppoſed, are ended; for, as Chryſoſtom, and Theophylact well note, he ſaith not πρὸς ἣν μέλλουσαν ἔνεσιν, theſe Sufferings are not worthy to be compared to our future eaſe from them in this Life; but πρὸς ἣν μέλλουσαν δόξαν, to our future Glory in the next; when they that have communicated with Chriſt in his Sufferings, ſhall rejoyce in τῇ ἀποκαλύψει τῆς δόξης αὐτοῦ the Revelation of his Glory, ſaith St. Peter, 1 Pet. 4. 13. συνδοξάσητε, ſhall be glorified with him; here v. 17. this Glory he ſtiles ἀποκάλυψις τῶν υἱῶν τοῦ Θεοῦ, the Revelation of the Sons of God, i. e. ſay the Fathers, the time when they ſhall ἣν ἀφθαρσίαν ἀπολαμβάνειν become incorruptible, this corruptible putting on incorruption, when they ſhall appear to be the Sons of God, ἣν ἀναστάσεως υἱοὶ ὄντες, being Sons of the Reſurrection, v. 14. comforting them in the expectation of it, and their groaning after it with this Conſideration, that it is the Expectation of all the World, and they groan together with them for it, deſiring with them to be delivered from this Bondage to Corruption into the glorious Liberty of the Sons of God, and adding that not only they, but even Chriſtians alſo, who had the firſt fruits of that Spirit, who is the earneſt of our Inheritance, εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν τῆς περιποιήσεως till the Redemption of the purchaſed Poſſeſſion, Eph. 1. 14. and by whom we are ſealed up εἰς ἡμέραν ἀπολυτρώσεως to the day of Redemption, Eph. 4. 30. did groan, waiting for the Adoption, viz. ἣν ἀπολύτρωσιν τοῦ σώματος ἡμῶν, the Redemption of our Bodies from Corruption, v. 23. For that this was the thing for which they groaned, the ſame Apoſtle informs us in theſe words, We that are in this Tabernacle groan being burthen'd, that we might be cloathed upon with our Houſe from Heaven, that Mortality might be ſwallowed up of Life, 2 Cor. 5. 2, 4. And as here, they, who have the firſt fruits of the Spirit, do thus groan, ſo there it is ſaid, v. 5. He who hath wrought this Expectation in us is God, who hath alſo given to us the earneſt of his Spirit. That this was the Ancient and almoſt Primitive Expoſition of theſe words, we learn from (h) Irenæus, in theſe words, Oportet ergo & ipſam conditionem redintegratam ad priſtinum, ſine prohibitione ſervire juſtis, & hoc Apoſtolus fecit manifeſtum in eâ quæ eſt ad Romanos, ſic dicens, nam expectatio Creaturæ revelationem filiorum Dei expectat. And from theſe of (i) Tertullian, Tunc erit mali finis, cum præſes ejus Diabolus abierit in ignem, cum revelatio filiorum Dei redemerit conditionem à malo utique vanitati ſubjectam. I differ only from the Fathers in this Interpretation, as to this ſingle Circumſtance, that I do not extend this deſire of the Redemption of the Body from Corruption to brute Beaſts, and inſenſate Creatures, but only to Mankind in General, ſubject by Adam's Fall to Mortality.

And by this Apoſtle declaring to the Hebrews, The juſt ſhall live by his Faith, but if he draws back, my ſoul, ſaith God, ſhall have no pleaſure in him, Heb. 10.37,38. (2ly,) The teſt of Love to God being keeping his Commandments, this Interpretation makes the ſenſe of theſe words runs thus: To them that keep his Commandments, even all their Diſobedience to them, ſhall work together for good. (3ly,) If the word all things comprehend all the Sins that are, or can be committed by them that love God, they may as well rejoice in all their Wickedneſs, as in all their Sufferings for the ſake of Chriſt, ſeeing they may rejoice in that which by God's deſignation tendeth to their good; and ſo all the Motives urged, Chap. 6. to engage them to die to ſin, and live no longer in it, muſt not only be enervated, but even eſteemed Motives deſigned to hinder them from that which is for their good, or according to the Deſcants of St. Auſtin and St. Bernard, to hinder their Proficience in Caution, and Humility.

s Ver.29. Ὅτι οὓς προέγνω, for whom he did foreknow.] This Particle ὅτι is connective, and this Verſe giving the Reaſon, or Confirmation of what was ſpoken in the former, it ſeems neceſſary to interpret it thus, Whom he foreknew to be perſons called according to his Purpoſe, and therefore qualified for this Adoption. It therefore is to be obſerved, that the words know, and foreknow, in the Scripture Language import an affectionate Knowledge joined with Approbation, and Affection. So Matth. 7. 23. John 10.14. 1 Cor. 8. 3. If any man love God οὗτος ἔγνωσται, he is known of God, Gal.4. 8. But now that ye know God, or rather are known of God, 2 Tim.2.19. ἔγνω κύριος, the Lord knoweth who are his. So is the word προέγνω uſed in this Epiſtle, Chap.11.2. when the Apoſtle ſaith, The Lord hath not caſt off his People ὃν προέγνω whom he foreknew to be (k) faithful, as were thoſe Seven thouſand Perſons who had not bowed the knee to *Baal. 5. Whoſe are the Fathers [they being the Off-ſpring of thoſe Patriarchs to whom the Promiſes were firſt made, Heb. 11. 9,13,17.] and of whom, as concerning the fleſh, Chriſt [the promiſed Meſſiah] came, [he being born of one of their Nation, and ſo according to the fleſh their Off-ſpring, even he] who [ac- c cording to his Divine Nature] is c over all God bleſſed for ever. Amen.

6. [But we muſt] not [exaggerate this blindneſs, and rejection of the Jews, whoſe were the Covenants, and the Promiſes, in prejudice of the Veracity of God,] as though the Word of God had taken none effect, [i. e. the Promiſes of God concerning the Seed of Iſrael, and the Bleſſings to be conferr'd upon them [illegible] had failed, this doth by no means follow;] for they are not all Iſrael, who are of Iſrael, [i. e. all that are deſcended from the Loyns of Iſrael by Carnal Generation, are not the Children of the Promiſe made to Jacob, Gen. 28.14. which yet are only to be accounted for the Seed, v. 8.]

7. Neither becauſe they are the Seed of Abraham, [according to the fleſh] are they all Children [of the Promiſe made to Abraham,] but [only they who are the Seed of Iſaac, for thus the Promiſe runs,] In Iſaac ſhall thy Seed be called.

8. That is, they which are the Children of the fleſh [of Abraham, and have the ſign of the Covenant in their Fleſh] theſe are not [on that account alone] the Children of God, [of whom it is ſaid, I will be a God unto thee, and thy Seed after thee, Gen. 17. 7.] but [they only who are] the Children of the Promiſe [as Iſaac was] are [to be] d counted for the d Seed.

9. For this is the word of Promiſe, [Gen. 18.10.] at this time will I come, and Sarah ſhall have a Son; [which words confine the Children of the Promiſe to the Seed of Sarah, excluding that of Hagar from it.]

10. And not only this [inſtance is proper to demonſtrate the diſtinction of the Seed of Abraham according to the Promiſe,] but [that] alſo [of] Rebecca, who conceived by one, even by our Father Iſaac, [two Children, born of the ſame Father, and of the ſame Mother, and lying in the ſame Womb.]

ing not yet born, neither having done any good nor evil, [which might move God to diſlike the one more than the other, as may be alledged in the Caſe of Iſhmael] that the purpoſe of God according to Election might ſtand, not of [Gr. from] works, but of him that calleth [i. e. that the purpoſe of God in preferring one of theſe Seeds and Nations before the other, to be the promiſed Seed, and ſo his Church, and People, might appear to be, not on conſideration of their works, but his free choice.]

12. It was [then] ſaid unto her, the Elder [in his Poſterity] ſhall ſerve the younger, [i. e. ſhall be inferiour to him who had the right of Primogeniture according to the fleſh.]

13. [According to which preference it happened to their Poſterity,] as it is written, [Mal. 1.2,3.] Jacob have I loved, but Eſau have I hated.

14. What ſhall we ſay then [after theſe inſtances?] is there [any cauſe to ſay there is] unrighteouſneſs with God [in taking then, for the Seed of Abraham, or for his Sons, and People, g is not of him that willeth, [for Abraham willed that Iſhmael might live to be partaker of the Bleſſings promiſed to his Seed, when he ſaid, O that Iſhmael might live before thee, Gen. 17. 18. And when he was grieved at the ſaying of Sarah, the Son of the Bondwoman ſhall not be Heir with my Son Iſaac, Gen. 21. 11.] nor of him that runneth; [for when Eſau ran to fetch Veniſon for his Father that he might receive the Bleſſing, Gen. 27. 5. God's wiſdom ſaw it fit to have it otherwiſe,] but of God that ſheweth mercy [that any one is choſen to be the Seed to which the Promiſe made to Abraham belongs, and ſo to be his Church and People].

'To proceed now to the other part of the 'Objection, the ſeeming Injuſtice, or Seve-'rity of Rejecting, and Reſerving them to 'Wrath, and of giving them up to an Ob-'durate Heart, who will not accept of the 'way God hath appointed for their Juſtifica-'tion, viz. that of Faith in Chriſt, but ra-'ther will continue in their Infidelity; this 'will be cleared by another Inſtance, that of 'Pharaoh, who had ſo often hardned his heart, 'refuſing to let Iſrael go.

17. For the Scripture ſaith [upon that account] to Pharaoh, even for this cauſe

[How therefore is it in our power to avoid being hardned, if it be his will we ſhould be ſo?]

22. What [therefore] if God [being] l will- l ling to ſhew his wrath, and to make his power [more illuſtriouſly] known, endured with much long ſuffering [you refractory Jews, which were ſo long ago] the veſſels of wrath fitted for deſtruction [or for breaking? Pſal. 31. 13.]

23. And [what if God] that he might make known the riches of his glory [ſhewed mercy] on the veſſels of his mercy, m whom he m had before [by working faith in them] prepared unto glory?

24. Even us whom he hath called, [us, I ſay] not of the Jews only [the natural Seed of Abraham] but alſo of the Gentiles.

25. [For firſt, as for the called Gentiles, is not this the very thing foretold by their own Prophet Hoſea, when he introduceth God thus ſpeaking] as he ſaith alſo in Oſee, I will call them my people which were not my people; and her beloved, which [then] was not beloved.

26. And it ſhall come to paſs that in the place [and Nation] where [formerly] it was ſaid unto them, Ye are not my people, n there n ſhall they be called, [i. e. there ſhall ariſe a People which ſhall be called] the Children of the living God.

27. [And whereas but a ſmall remnant of Iſrael have believed, and ſo but few of them are fitted to be Veſſels of his Mercy: Is not this alſo the very thing foretold by their own Prophet] Eſaias alſo, [when he] crieth concerning Iſrael, [Chap. 10. 22, 23.] though the number of the Children of Iſrael be as the ſand of the Sea, [yet] a remnant [only of them] ſhall be ſaved, [i. e. ſhall be converted to good, ſay the Jews, and ſo continue to enjoy the Name and Title of his People.]

33. As it is written, Behold I lay in Zion a s ſtumbling ſtone, and a rock of offence, and whoſoever believeth on him, ſhall not be aſhamed.

Annotations on Chap. IX.

a Verſe 1. Συμμαρτυρούσης μοι τ συνειδήσεως ἐν πνεύματι ἁγίῳ, My Conſcience bearing me witneſs in (or with) the Holy Ghoſt.] This Verſe not only ſhews, that in Caſes of great moment, which cannot otherwiſe be ſufficiently confirmed, a Chriſtian may eſtabliſh his ſaying by an Oath, but alſo that he may ſwear by Chriſt, and by the Holy Ghoſt, and call them to be Witneſſes of the Sincerity of his own Conſcience in what he doth aſſert. So (a) Philo, τὸν μάρτυρα καλῶ τῆς συνειδότος, I call God to witneſs with my Conſcience. Now an Oath being an Act of Religious Worſhip, in which God is called upon as a Witneſs to the Truth, or an Avenger of the Falſhood of what we Teſtifie, or Promiſe, by Swearing by our Lord Chriſt, and the Holy Ghoſt, the Apoſtle muſt perform an Act of Religious Worſhip to them, and by that agniſe their Divinity, according to thoſe words of Moſes, Thou ſhalt fear the Lord thy God, and ſerve him, and ſhalt ſwear by his Name, Deut. 6. 13. And by calling upon them to bear witneſs to the Secrets of his Heart, and Conſcience, he muſt aſcribe to them the Knowledge of the Secrets of the Hearts of Men, which is the Property of God alone, 1 *Sam.*16.7. 1 Kings 1.39. 1 *Chron.*28.9. *Pſal.*7.9. *Jer.*11.20.& 17. 10. & 20.12.

b Ver. 3. Ηυχόμην γὰ ἀνάθεμα εἶ, for I could wiſh my ſelf accurſed.] The word Anathema being ſtill uſed in St. Paul's Epiſtles in the ſevereſt ſenſe, 1 *Cor.*16.22. *Gal.*1.8,9. And the words ἀνάθεμα εἶ ἀπὸ τῦ Χριστῦ, to be Anathema from Chriſt, importing in their literal ſenſe, a Separation from Chriſt himſelf, and not only from the External Communion of his Church, and being in the deſcants of the (b) Greek Fathers the ſame as χωρισθῆναι τῆς ἀγάπης, ἐκπεσεῖν τ δόξης, ἀλλότριον εἶ τῦ Χριστῦ, à ſalute ſeparari, to be ſeparated from the love of Chriſt, to be alienated from him, to fall from the Glory and the Salvation purchaſed by him; I think it reaſonable to interpret the Apoſtle's words in this ſenſe: Nor is it a ſufficient Objection againſt this Interpretation, that this can be no truly Chriſtian wiſh, for the Apoſtle doth not ſay, I wiſh, but as the Ancients do well interpret him, εἰ ἐπιχώρει, εἰ ἐνδέχετο, if it were proper to make ſuch a wiſh; if it would avail to make ſo great a Multitude happy, ηυχόμην optarim equidem, I could even wiſh ſo great a Bleſſing to my Brethren, though with the Loſs of my own Happineſs.

Ver. 5. Ὁ ὢν ἐπὶ πάντων Θεὸς εὐλογητὸς εἰς αἰῶνας, c who is God over all, bleſſed for ever.] This place galls the Arians: The Note of Le Cl. upon it is this, That Dr. Hammond ſhould rather have examined the Animadverſions of Grotius upon it, than copied out Jewiſh Fables, which make little to the purpoſe; Eraſmus having written enough to overthrow all that can be inferred from them; for if what Grotius and Eraſmus have obſerved ſtand good, Dr. Hammond's reaſoning cannot be thought of any force. Now here I might refer him to the ſolid Confutation of what Eraſmus had ſaid, by Joſue Placæus, *Part.*3.*Diſp.*25. Or to himſelf, Art. Critic. Part. 3. *p.*102,106. But to give him all poſſible Satisfaction in this Matter.

Firſt, I aſſert that the Reading we follow is certainly the true Reading.

1. Becauſe it is the Reading with which all the Verſions agree, the Latin, the Arabick, the Æthiopick, and the Syriack; for it is a miſtake in Grotius, when he inſinuates the Contrary of the Syriack Verſion, which in Tremellius runs thus; Qui eſt Deus, qui eſt ſuper omnia.

2. Becauſe it hath the General Conſent, omnium fermè Patrum, of almoſt all the Fathers, who have thus cited it from the Second to the Sixth Century; viz. the Teſtimony of Irenæus l. 3. c. 18. of Origen in locum, of Tertullian, Contra Praxeam, c. 13, 15. Novatian de Trin. cap. 13, 20. Cyprian l. 2. *de Teſtim. contra Jud. Secondly, I aſſert, That the words will not admit of that interpunction, and interpretation of Eraſmus, which will do any Service to the Arians, or Socinians, viz. that a Colon muſt be put after the words κατὰ σάρκα, after the fleſh; and the words following muſt be an Ecphonema, and grateful Exclamation for the Bleſſings conferred upon the Jews thus, God, who is over all, be bleſſed for ever. For this Expoſition is ſo harſh, and without any like Example in the whole New Teſtament, that as none of the Orthodox ever thought upon it, ſo I find not that it ever came into the head of any Arian; Socinus himſelf rejects it for this very good reaſon, that Θεὸς εὐλογητὸς, God be bleſſed, is an unuſual, and unnatural Conſtruction; for whereever elſe theſe words ſignifie bleſſed be God, εὐλογητὸς is put before God, as Luke 1. 68. 2 Cor. 1. 3. Eph. 1. 3. 1 Pet. 1. 3. and Θεὸς hath an Article prefixed to it, nor are they ever immediately joined together otherwiſe. The Phraſe occurs Twenty times in the Old Teſtament, but in every place εὐλογητὸς goes before, and the Article is annexed to the word God, which is a Demonſtration that this is a Perverſion of the Senſe of the Apoſtle's words. (2.) The Apoſtle having ſaid in the immediate preceding words, that Chriſt came from the Father's κατὰ σάρκα according to the fleſh, or as to his Humane Nature, is it not reaſonable to conceive he ſhould proceed to ſay what he was according to his Divine Nature, eſpecially when he was diſcourſing of, and to thoſe Jews, who as (d) Trypho ſaith, and (e) Origen and (f) Jerom teſtifie, held their Meſſiah was only to be a Man, and denied his Divinity? Is it not unreaſonable to think he ſhould then ſay nothing of the τὸ κατὰ πνεῦμα, or the Superiour Nature of Chriſt? Eſpecially if we conſider that the Limitation τὸ κατὰ σάρκα according to the fleſh, plainly inſinuated there was another Nature in him, according to which he came not from the Father's. In a word, all the Ancient Verſions render the words as we do, taking no notice of this Interpunction. All the Greek Scholiaſts, and the Ancient Commentators among the Latins, excepting St. Chryſoſtom, here triumph over Arius, one of them indeed hinting, (g) That there might be Men who would be enclined to ſay, theſe things were not ſpoken of Chriſt; but none ever ſaying that any did then actually aſcribe them to any other Perſon. Hence from the beginning, theſe words have been uſed by the Fathers, as an Argument of Chriſt's Divinity. For, ſaith (h) Irenæus, becauſe he is Emanuel, leſt we ſhould think him a Man only, the Apoſtle ſaith, of whom, as concerning the fleſh, Chriſt came; Qui eſt Deus ſuper omnes benedictus in ſecula. And in a like expreſſion to this of the Apoſtle, he ſaith, Secundum id quod Verbum Dei homo erat ex Radice Jeſſæ, filius Abrahæ; (i) According to that Nature in which the Word of God was Man, of the Root of Jeſſe, and the Son of Abraham, the Spirit of God reſted upon him, ſecundum autem quod Deus erat, but as to that Nature by which he was God, he judged not after the ſight of his Eyes, for he knew what was in Man. And if theſe words are ſpoken by the Spirit of God concerning Chriſt, the Arguments hence to prove him truly, and properly God, are invincible: For firſt, ὁ Θεὸς ἐπὶ πάντων, God over all, is the Periphraſis by which all the Heathen Philoſophers did uſually repreſent the Supream God; And ſo is God the Father deſcribed both in the Old and the New Teſtament, as ὁ ἐπὶ πάντων, he that is over all, Eph. 4. 6. Secondly, This is the conſtant Epithet, and Periphraſis of the Great God in the Old Teſtament, that he is εὐλογητὸς εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, God bleſſed for evermore, 1 Chron. 16. 36. Pſal. 41. 13. & 89. 52. And alſo in the New, where he is ſtiled the God ὃς ἐστιν εὐλογητὸς εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας who is bleſſed for evermore. This was ſo evident to Enjedinus the Socinian, that he ſaith, This Epithite is ſo peculiar to God the Father, that it is never attributed in the New Teſtament to any other, but whereſoever we find this Phraſe, God bleſſed for ever, it is always aſcribed to the Father. Of the Cuſtom of adding to the Name of God, Bleſſed for evermore, uſed by the Jews, the Reverend Doctor hath ſaid ſufficient; and why all that he here ſaith, ſhould paſs with Mr. Cl. for Jewiſh Fables, what Reaſon can be given, if not his averſeneſs to the Doctrine the Doctor here endeavours to eſtabliſh, eſpecially when we find this very Phraſe, εὐλογητὸς Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς ἀπὸ τοῦ αἰῶνος, ἕως εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, or εὐλογητὸς Κύριος εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, Bleſſed be the Lord God from everlaſting, Pſal. 40. 13. & 88. 51. & 105. 48. and find St. Paul following his example, and Clemens Romanus in his Epiſtle ſo often uſing the ſame Epithite when he makes mention of the God of Heaven; Edit. Jun. p 29, 42, 50, 57, 59, 66.

d Ver. 8. Λογίζεται εἰς σπέρμα, are accounted for the Seed.] That is, Of this Diſtinction of Seeds, to which the Promiſe belongs, you have a manifeſt Inſtance in the Seed of Abraham; for before Abraham had any Seed at all, the Promiſe of inheriting the Land of Canaan was made unto him thus; Unto thy Seed will I give this Land, Gen. 12. 7. All the Land which thou ſeeſt, to thee will I give it, and to thy Seed for ever, Gen. 13. 13. Unto thy Seed have I given this Land, Gen. 15. 18. But though Iſhmael was his firſt born, and had that Circumciſion, which was the Seal of the Covenant made with Abraham, yet he, and his Poſterity, thoſe Twelve Princes, and great Nations which iſſued from him, were all excluded from the Covenant; and Iſaac, not yet circumciſed, or born, and his Poſterity are declared to be the Seed of Abraham, to whom the Promiſe ſhould be made good, and with whom the Covenant ſhould be eſtabliſhed. For when Abraham ſaid to God, O that Iſhmael might live before thee! God returns him this Anſwer; As for Iſhmael, I have heard thee; behold I have bleſſed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly, twelve Princes ſhall he beget, and I will make him a great Nation; but my Covenant will I eſtabliſh with Iſaac, whom Sarah ſhall bear unto thee, Gen. 17. 18, 20, 21. Again, when Sarah had ſaid of Iſhmael, Caſt out this bondwoman and her ſon; for the ſon of this bondwoman ſhall not inherit with my ſon, even with Iſaac, Gen. 21. 10. And Abraham thereupon was grieved becauſe of his Son, v. 11. God ſpeaks thus to him; Let it not be grievous in thine eyes, becauſe of the Lad, in all that Sarah hath ſaid, hearken to her, for in Iſaac ſhall thy Seed be called, v. 12. Which inſtance ſhews, it was not being of the Seed of Abraham according to the Fleſh, or having the Sign of the Covenant in the Fleſh, that rendred Men the Sons of God, or Children of the Promiſe then: For Iſhmael was Abraham's firſt-born, and circumciſed, and yet by God excluded from the Promiſe: Iſaac not circumciſed, not yet born, not having the Right of Primogeniture, and yet to him, and his Seed alone belong the Adoption, and the Promiſes. Two things may here be added for Illuſtration of this Inſtance.

Firſt, That the Jews can make no juſt Exceptions againſt this Argument of the Apoſtle, it being ſuitable to their own Theology; for it is a Rule among them, That (k) whoſo Vows concerning Abraham's Seed, is free from Iſhmael and Eſau's Sons, and is not bound but touching Iſraelites, for in Iſaac ſhall Seed be called to thee; and ſo Iſaac ſaid of Jacob, And God give thee the Bleſſing of Abraham.

Secondly, That there is a great Emphaſis in theſe words, The Children of the Promiſe; for upon this account it was ſaid of Iſaac, that he was not born according to the fleſh, but according to the promiſe, Gal.4.23. Thus Iſhmael was Abraham's Son according to the fleſh, but Iſaac according to the ſpirit; to be therefore Children of the Promiſe, ſeems to be Abraham's Spiritual Seed: Whence the Apoſtle ſaith of thoſe who believe in this Seed, that they are the Sons of God by faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and ſo are Abraham's Seed, and Heirs according to the Promiſe, Gal.3.29. that they, according to Iſaac's, are Children of the Promiſe, Gal.4.28. That they are Children, not of the bondwoman, but of the free, v.31. Accordingly the (l) Jews ſay, A Proſelyte is the Son of Abraham, who is the Father of the whole World, as it is ſaid, A Father of many Nations have I made thee. And becauſe the Jews might quarrel againſt the Pertinence of this Inſtance, alledging this might be becauſe Iſhmael was only the Son of Abraham's Bondmaid, whereas Iſaac was the Seed of his own Wife; or that Iſhmael had forfeited his Right by Idolatry, or denying the World to come, of which they accuſe him; here follows the Inſtance of chuſing Jacob and his Seed, excluding Eſau and his Seed, againſt which no ſuch Cavil could take place.

Ver. 11. Μήπω γὰρ γεννηθέντων, for the Children being yet unborn.] The Argument of the Apoſtle is to this effect, That though both Jacob and Eſau, had the ſame Father and the ſame Mother, yet of theſe two, when they were yet unborn, and ſo were neither circumciſed, nor had done any thing at all to oblige, or diſoblige God, or to give any ground for any Difference to be made betwixt them, and their Offspring, God ſpeaks thus of them to Rebecca, Two manner of people ſhall be ſeparated from thy bowels, and the one people ſhall be ſtronger than the other people, and the elder ſhall ſerve the younger, Gen.25.23. i.e. Not he to whom by Birthright it belonged, but he whom God was freely pleaſed to chuſe, ſhould inherit the Land of Canaan, promiſed to the Seed of Abraham, and the other Privileges of his Seed. Which Inſtance ſeems plainly to inform us, that the Choice which God makes of Men to the Enjoyment of the Favour of being his People, and beloved by him above others, as to ſuch things, is not according to their External Privileges or Works, but according to his free Choice. And this Prediction was fully verified in After-ages; for Jacob and his Poſterity were planted in the Land of Canaan, which flowed with milk and honey, and was the glory of all Lands, whereas the Edomites were planted in a barren deſart Land; and this gave ground for thoſe words of the Prophet Malachi, I have loved you, ſaith the Lord to Iſrael, yet ye ſay, wherein haſt thou loved us? Was not Eſau Jacob's brother, ſaith the Lord? Yet I loved Jacob, and hated Eſau, and laid his mountains, and his heritage waſte, for the dragons of the wilderneſs. Now for further Explication of theſe words, let it be obſerved,

1. That this Inſtance of Eſau's being rejected, and not owned by God as belonging to the promiſed Seed, is ſuitable to the Sentiments of the Jews, not only becauſe he being an Idolater, and a denier of the Reſurrection, and of the Bleſſings of the World to come, was not according to their forementioned Canon, to be accounted for the Seed; and their received Rule, (m) That he who ſwears concerning the Seed of Abraham, is free from Iſhmael, and Eſau's Sons, and is not bound but touching Iſraelites, but alſo from their obſervation of theſe words of Jacob, (n) The God of my father Abraham, and of my father Iſaac, viz. that he ſaith not ſo of Eſau, that Abraham and Iſaac were his Father, becauſe he choſe not to walk in their ways, and do their works.

2. Hence it is evident that the Apoſtle ſpeaks not here of the Perſons, but of the Nations and Poſterity of Jacob, and Eſau, or, not of them Perſonally, but Nationally conſidered, according to the Note of Irenæus, Partum Rebeccæ Prophetiam fuiſſe duorum Populorum, l.4.c.38. This is plain,

(1.) From the words of God to Rebecca, Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people ſhall be ſeparated from thy bowels, and the one people ſhall be ſtronger than the other. (2.) From this obſervation, that as to the Perſons of Eſau and Jacob, it was never true that the Elder did ſerve the Younger, but only as to their Poſterity, when the Edomites became Tributaries to David, 2 Sam.8.14. And (3.) Becauſe what is here offered as a Proof, or Confirmation of this, is cited from the Prophet Malachi, who propheſied long after Jacob and Eſau were perſonally dead, and ſo could only ſpeak of their Poſterity the Iſraelites and Edomites, as he expreſly doth. And,

3. Hence it clearly follows, That the Apoſtle cannot here diſcourſe of any Perſonal Election of them to Eternal Life, or any abſolute love, or hatred of them with reſpect to their Eternal Intereſts; for if ſo, ſeeing he manifeſtly ſpeaks of the whole Nation of Iſrael, they muſt, according to that Opinion, be all Elected to Salvation; whereas the Apoſtle informs us, that God had no pleaſure in many of them, 1 Cor.10 5. and the whole Jewiſh Hiſtory ſhews the contrary. Again,

Then muſt the whole Poſterity of Eſau be the Objects of God's hatred, and his Reprobation, which is ſo far from being true, that Job, and all his Friends appear to have been of the Poſterity of Eſau. And (21y,) then it muſt follow, as Eſtius contends, that not only Election, but even Reprobation alſo muſt be without any Reſpect to Works, and ſo God muſt adjudge Men to Eternal Perdition without reſpect to any Evil done, or to be done by them; for the Children having done neither good nor evil, ſaith the Apoſtle, it hapned to them as it is written, Jacob have I loved, and Eſau have I hated. 'Tis certain then that the Apoſtle ſpeaks here only of the Election of one Seed and Nation before another, to be accounted, and treated by him as the Seed of Abraham; this only doth his Argument require, and his Inſtances prove, and this is ſufficient to juſtifie God's dealing with the unbelieving Jews, ſo as to reject them from being accounted for, and treated as the Seed of Abraham; and his raiſing up Children to Abraham out of thoſe believing Gentiles, who imitating the Faith of Abraham, became his Spiritual Seed, and Heirs according to the Promiſe, that he would be a God to his Seed, and that he ſhould be the Father of many Nations, and in him ſhould all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed, and his Calling them to the Faith, though Sinners of the Gentiles; that depending not on Works, but his free Pleaſure.

Note alſo, That thoſe words, The Children being not yet born, nor having done good or evil, being uſed as an Argument to prove the Election, or Preference of the one above the other, could not be of Works, is a ſtrong Argument againſt the Præ-exiſtence of Souls, and their being ſent into Bodies by way of Puniſhment for their former Sins; for upon that Suppoſition it could not be true, that the Children had done neither good nor evil, before they were born; nor could the Argument be firm, That one could not be preferred before the other on the account of any Works done by them, ſeeing the one might have ſinned more than the other in their ſtate of Præ-exiſtence.

Ver. 15. Ἐλεήσω ὃν ἂν ἐλεῶ, I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy.] It is here to be noted, that God made this Declaration after Iſrael had committed Idolatry, in making the Golden Calf, and ſo had made themſelves naked, i. e. deveſted of the Divine Preſence, and Protection, or of a Covenant Relation to him, inſomuch that God ſent this dreadful Meſſage to them, I will come up into the midſt of thee in a moment, and conſume thee, Exod. 33. 5. and ſaid to Moſes, Let me alone, that I may deſtroy them in a moment. And though God ſuffered himſelf to be prevailed upon by Moſes to adopt them again for his People, yet he lets him know this was part of his Glory, to be gracious to whom he will be gracious, and alſo to ſhew mercy to whom he will ſhew mercy, Exod. 33. 19. If therefore upon the Infidelity of the Jews, he will call the Idolatrous Gentiles, and receive them to be his People, as he did the Jews again after their Idolatry, who can accuſe him of Injuſtice upon that account?

Ver. 16. Οὐ τοῦ θέλοντος, οὐδὲ τοῦ τρέχοντος, 'tis not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth.] i. e. You ſee this is not to be obtained by the moſt paſſionate Wiſhes of a faithful Abraham, nor by the fervent Deſires of an Eſau, Heb. 12. 17. nor by the greateſt Zeal we can employ in ſuch Courſes as ſeem beſt to our own Wiſdom, but we muſt own it to be a Bleſſing which depends meerly upon the Divine Goodneſs, and therefore muſt ſeek it according to his Pleaſure, in ſuch ways as he appoints, and not in thoſe which ſeem to us moſt proper to obtain it; though then you have a Zeal for God, and follow after the Law, that you may obtain Righteouſneſs, it is not to be wondred, you obtain not the Bleſſing of Juſtification promiſed to the Seed of Abraham, becauſe you ſeek it not by Faith in the Meſſiah, which is the only way in which God hath declared he will confer it. g

Some of the (o) Fathers interpret theſe words thus; It is not of him that wills, or runs only, but of God that ſheweth mercy, and crowns the work by his Aſſiſtance; for otherwiſe, ſay they, it cannot be our duty, either to will, or run, provided we can, neither by willing nor running, do any thing to encline God to ſhew mercy; and why then doth God blame us for not willing? Matth. 23. 17. John 5. 40. and require us ſo to run that we may obtain? 1 Cor. 9. 24. Heb. 12. 1. And whereas St. Auſtin objects, That according to this Interpretation it might be ſaid, it is not of God that ſheweth Mercy only, but of Man that wills and runs. (p) Origen, (q) Chryſoſtom, and (r) Theophylact anſwer; That this follows not, becauſe Man's willing and running would not avail without the Divine aid, to enable him to run, and his Grace and Mercy to accept his Running; and therefore according to the Cuſtom of the Scripture, the Effect is to be aſcribed to the Chief A-gene only; as except the Lord build the house, their labour is but vain that build it, &c. Psal. 127.1. so, Paul that plants, and Apollos that waters, is nothing, but God that giveth the encrease, 1 Cor. 3.6,7. I laboured, yet not I, but the grace of God, 1 Cor. 15.10.

h Ver. 17. Ἐξήγειρά σε, I have raised thee up.] Heb. העמדתוך I have made thee to stand, Exod. 9. 16. or have preserved thee ἕνεκεν τούτου διετηρήθης, for this cause hast thou been kept, so the Seventy; i. e. from falling by the Plague of Boils: So Junius and Tremellius; feci ut superstes maneres, I have kept thee alive, saith the Targum of B. Uziel. See the Chaldee, the Syriack, the Arabick Versions to the same sense; and the Connexion of this with the former Verse rightly rendred, makes this sense necessary; for the fifteenth Verse cannot be rendred in the Future Tense, as our Translation doth, Now I will stretch out my hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with the pestilence, and thou shalt be cut off from the earth; for Pharaoh and his People did not die by the Pestilence. It is therefore to be rendred, as the Jews, Fagius, Amama, Cartwright, and Ainsworth translate it: For now I had sent out my hand, and I had smitten thee and thy people with the pestilence, and thou hadst been cut off from the earth; but in very deed, for this cause I have made thee stand up (*). So the Targum of B. Uziel, Quum jàm miserim plagam fortitudinis meæ, æquum erat ut percuterem te, & populum tuum morte, ut perderem te à terrâ, verum profectò non ut benefaciam tibi, in vitâ conservavi te, sed ut videre faciam te robur meum, &c. Whence we may learn how alien from the Truth, and from the import of the words, is that Exposition which saith, For this cause have I created thee, or raised thee to be King of Egypt.

Observe further, That God hardned Pharaoh's heart, not by any positive influx upon it, which made it necessary for him to continue obstinate. This Origen observes from those words, If thou refuse to let my people go, I will do so and so; that Pharaoh's heart was not so hardned, as to take away τὸ αὐτεξούσιον all power from him to let the People go; for this he doth at last when God's hand was strong upon him, according to these words, Chap. 3. 19. I am sure that the King of Egypt will not let you go, ולא ביד חזקה nisi per manum fortem, Vulg. ἐὰν μὴ μετὰ χειρὸς κραταιᾶς, if not by a strong hand, Septuagint. nisi cum manu valida, Samarit. but by a strong hand, so the Bishop of Bath and Wells. This sense the words will bear, saith Ainsworth, Vau being rendred si, Exod. 4. 23. Numb. 12. 14. And this sense is plain and certain from the words following; And I will stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all wonders which I will do in the midst thereof, and after that he will let you go, Exod. 3.20. And again, Chap. 6. 1. Then said the Lord to Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh, for with a strong hand shall he let them go. Hence God is always said to have brought them out of Egypt ביד חזקה with a strong hand, Exod. 32.11. Deut. 5. 15. & 6. 21. & 7. 8. & 9. 26. Dan. 9. 15. Nor can they who think otherwise, shew any way how, or in what sense Pharaoh can be so often said to have hardned his own heart, if God himself had hardned his heart before; or why God doth so often command him to let his People go, Chap. 7. 16. & 8. 1,20. & 9. 1,13. i. e. to do what he had rendred him unable to do. Or why Moses should say, Let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more, in not letting the people go, Chap. 8. 29. Or why God did reprove him, because he had hitherto refused to let the People go, Chap. 7. 16. & 8. 29. & 9. 17. & 10. 3. Or why he threatens Judgments to him, if he refuse to let them go, Chap. 8.2,21. & 9.2,3,14,15. and Executes them on him upon that Refusal, since Nemo tenetur ad impossibilia, no Man is obliged to do what he cannot; much less what he cannot do by virtue of a Disability that God hath laid upon him; and no Man justly can be blamed, and much less punished for not doing what he is not obliged to do. Nor can God command any Man to do what he himself by his own influx restrains him from doing, even when he doth command it; for what he thus restrains him from, he is not willing he should do; whereas what he commands he is willing should be done; and when he punisheth any one for not obeying his Command, he punisheth him for not doing his will. Now it is impossible that God at the same time, and in reference to the same Action, should be both willing, and not willing it should be done. This will be farther evident from a Consideration of all the Places where the Heart of Pharaoh is said to be hardned. As, Chap. 7. 13. And he hardned Pharaoh's heart; Heb. ויחזק and the heart of Pharaoh was hardned. So the same words are rendred by us, *v.*22. and so here by Ainsworth, the Bishop of Bath and Wells, the Bp. of Ely, and all the Versions on this Verse; nor is there any Person mentioned in the Verse, besides Pharaoh, to whom this Action can be ascribed, his heart was therefore hardned at this time, not by God, but by the Arts of his Sorcerers, for the Magicians did so with their Inchantments, and Pharaoh's heart was hardned, v. 22.

Chap. 8. 15. We read thus, When Pharaoh ſaw there was reſpite, he hardned his heart. Whence the Fathers truly obſerve, that ὅτι μακροθυμία σκληροκαρδίας αἰτία, i. e. the heart of Pharaoh was hardned by God's Mercy, in taking off his hand from him: Thus upon removal of the Flies, Pharaoh hardned his heart, v. 31, 32. And when he ſaw that the Rain, and the Hail, and the Thunders were ceaſed, he ſinned yet more, and hardned his heart, he, and his ſervants: And then immediately follow theſe words; And the Lord ſaid to Moſes, Go in unto Pharaoh, for (or, although) I have hardned his heart, and the heart of his ſervants, Chap. 10. 1. ſo v. 20. The Lord then hardned Pharaoh's heart, only by taking away the Locuſts. And v. 27. The Lord hardned Pharaoh's heart only by taking away the Darkneſs, the three days aſſigned to it being ended, as Aben-Ezra obſerves on v. 24. None roſe from his place during thoſe three days, but poſt triduum, they being ended, Pharaoh called unto Moſes, and hence we read not as at other times, that Pharaoh asked for the Removal of this Plague; and therefore when it is ſaid, Chap. 9. 12. That the Lord hardned the heart of Pharaoh, and he harkned not unto them, i. e. not to Moſes, and Aaron, we have reaſon to conclude he did that alſo by removing the Plague of the Boils, for had the Boils continued upon the Egyptians, there was no reaſon for calling for the ſucceeding Plague of Hail, nor could the Servants of Pharaoh, with their Boils upon them, have gone into the Field to houſe their Cattle, v. 20—11. We read alſo, Chap. 14. v. 8, 17. that the Lord hardned Pharaoh's heart to follow the Iſraelites; and of this we may give the ſame account, that he did this by cauſing the Iſraelites to encamp ſo, as to give occaſion to Pharaoh to ſay, They are entangled in the Land, the Wilderneſs hath ſhut them in, v. 3. and by cauſing him to ſee the Iſraelites walk ſafely through the midſt of the Sea. But I am not concerned for theſe Places, the hardning of Pharaoh then, being not for Sin (God having not commanded Pharaoh not to purſue after them, or follow them into the Red-Sea,) but for Puniſhment: When therefore God ſaith, Chap. 4. 21. I will harden the heart of Pharaoh, that he ſhall not let the people go; his meaning may be only this, I will ſo order matters, by removing the Plagues inflicted on him and his People, to mollifie him, and engage him to permit them to go, that he ſhall be hardned, till I come with my ſtrong hand, and ſlay his Son, even his firſt-born, v. 23. after which he did let them go, Chap. 12. 31, 33. From theſe two Obſervations it it is eaſie to diſcern how appoſite this Example is to the Caſe of the Jewiſh Nation. For,

1. Did God harden Pharaoh by his Lenity, in Removing his Plagues and Judgments from him? The ſame God ſaith of the Jews in this Epiſtle, when he ſpeaks thus unto them, Chap. 2. 4, 5. Deſpiſeſt thou the riches of his goodneſs, and forbearance, and long-ſuffering, not knowing that the goodneſs of God leadeth thee to repentance; but after thy hardneſs, and impenitent heart treaſureſt up unto thy ſelf wrath againſt the day of wrath, and revelation of God's righteous Judgment?

2. If they object, That if God would have caſt them off from being his People, and have cut them off from any ſhare in the Promiſes made to the Seed of Abraham, why did he not this before, when they had ſo oft deſerved it for their Idolatries, from which they were now free? The Anſwer is from the Example of Pharaoh preſerved alive when he had long deſerved to be cut off, that he might fall at laſt, more to the Illuſtration of God's Power, Juſtice, and Glory; and this is the thing hinted, v. 22. as you will ſee in the Expoſition of it.

Ver. 18. Ὃν θέλει ἐλεεῖ, ὃν δὲ θέλει σκληρύνει, he hath mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardneth.] That is, hence it appears that God ſhews mercy according to his own wiſe Pleaſure, and not as we think fit; and he gives Men up to the hardneſs of their own hearts, and ſo reſerveth them to be Examples of his Illuſtrious Judgments according to the ſame good Pleaſure, and not according to the Time and Meaſures that they would preſcribe; ſhewing Mercy to you Jews, when you deſerved to be cut off for your Idolatry in making and worſhipping the Golden Calf, and reaſſuming you to be his People, and reſerving the Execution of his Wrath upon Pharaoh, who had before deſerved it for the hardneſs of his heart, till his deſtruction would miniſter to the greater illuſtration of his Power and Juſtice upon ſtubborn Sinners.

Execrable is the Note of Eſtius here, that God is here ſaid to harden whom he will; Quod induratio cujuſpiam in primâ ſuâ Origine, quæ eſt prima derelictio, ſeu peccati permiſſio, non aliam habet cauſam, quàm Dei voluntatem: Becauſe the firſt Riſe of any Man's Induration, which is God's dereliction of him, hath no other cauſe than the will of God. For as this is contrary to the known ſaying, even of St. Auſtin, Deus non deſerit niſi deſerentem, God deſerts no Man, who leaves not him firſt; ſo it makes God alone the Cauſe of all Men's hardning, ſince cauſa cauſæ eſt cauſa cauſati; for if this Dereliction be the cauſe of Induration, and that hath no other Cauſe but the Will of God, the Will of God muſt be the Cauſe of all Mens hardning. It alſo makes all God's Exhortations to Men not to harden their hearts, and his Reproofs and Puniſhments of them for so doing, Exhortations to what his Will is the like Cause of their not doing, and Reproofs and Punishments of that which his Will caused them to do.

k Ver. 21. Οὐκ ἔχει ἐξουσίαν ὁ κεραμεὺς τοῦ πηλοῦ, hath not the potter power over the clay?] That is, there is no more Cause from God's Dispensation in this Case, in taking away the Means of Grace from, and rejecting such an hardned People, and shewing his Favour unto others, who submit to his Terms of Mercy, to make this Objection, than for the Clay of Jeremy, when it was marred, and broken, Jer. 18. 4, 6. to complain against the Potter, that he took one part of it, and made it a Vessel of Dishonour, and another part of it, and made it a Vessel of Honour.

That this Example of the Clay in the hands of the Potter, relates to God's dealing with Sinners according to his Pleasure, is evident not only from the Application of it there to the Impenitent, v. 7, 8. but also from the like Passage in Ecclesiasticus, where we are taught from this very Instance, that the ways of God are κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν αὐτοῦ according to his Good Pleasure, because as the Clay is in the hands of the Potter, so is Man in the hands of him that made him, to render to them as liketh him best κατὰ τὴν κρίσιν αὐτοῦ according to his righteous Judgment, Eccl. 33. 13.

l Ver. 22. Εἰ δὲ θέλων ὁ θεὸς, what if God, &c.] i. e. What Injustice therefore is it in God to deal with you as he dealt with an hardned Pharaoh, you having as oft refused to hearken to his Voice as Pharaoh did? Or what if he long hath, and still at present bears with such Vessels of his Wrath fitted for Destruction, till in a more illustrious manner, and with more signal marks of his Displeasure, for thus rejecting the Gospel, and the promised Messiah, he swallow up their Nation, their People, their Temple, and their Holy City in one General Destruction? Is it not for the Glory of the Divine Power and Wisdom, to reserve the Rejectors of the Messiah, sent to bless them, and the Persecutors of the Christian Faith, to be at last cut off with such a Remarkable Destruction, as shall render it visible to the World that God's Indignation is incensed against them for this Sin, and so shall give to Jew and Gentile a farther Motive to believe in Jesus?

And again, What if God is pleased, upon their Impenitence and Obduration, to shew the Riches of his Glorious Goodness and Mercy upon those Jews and Gentiles, whom he hath called to the Faith of Christ, and so hath fitted and prepared to be the Vessels of his Mercy? Hath he not a just right to shew his Mercy to such Persons who have submitted to the Terms upon which he hath promised Favour, and Acceptance, and so to own them as the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, and so as his Peculiar People?

m Ver. 23. Ἃ προητοίμασεν εἰς δόξαν, whom he hath prepared for his glory.] Thus the Apostle discoursing of the Day of the Lord, which was coming to Execute his Dreadful Judgments on the Jews, saith thus, God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain Salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ, 1 Thess. 5. 9.

n Ver. 26. Ἐκεῖ κληθήσονται, there shall they be called the Children of the living God.] It must be acknowledged, that in these words the Prophet primarily speaketh of the Restoration of the Jews exiled, and cast off from being his People, but yet that these words may not only be accommodated, but even extended to the Gentiles; who were emphatically not his People, and yet by Faith became the Seed of Abraham; and the true Israelites, being the Sons of God by Faith in Jesus Christ, v. 6, 8. may be argued from the Phrase במקום in the place or Nation where it was said, Ye are not my people; and so the Jews themselves interpret these words in the Gloss upon the Talmud, saying, They who were not of my people shall adhere to the Lord, and be to me for a People, Gloss. Talmud. in Tract. de Paschate ad Cap. 8. according to that of the Prophet Zechariah; And many nations shall adhere to the Lord in that day, and shall be my people, Zech. 2. 11.

o Ver. 28. Λόγον συντετμημένον, a short work.] i. e. Such a Consumption and Decision is by God designed upon that Multitude of Evil doers in the Land of Israel, as shall cut them very short, and lop them off, so that they shall be left as a Tree, of which only the Stump remaineth; They shall be reduced, saith R. Solomon, to a small Remnant, and a Remnant of that Remnant shall be Converted.

p Ver. 30. Τί οὖν ἐροῦμεν, what do we then say?] From this Recapitulation of the whole Dispute of the Apostle in this Chapter, and his Declaration that this was the Design of it, to justifie God in this proceeding, and dealing with them both, it is exceeding evident that it was not at all designed to determine any thing touching God's absolute Decrees of dealing with Mankind in General thus, or thus, as to their Final and Eternal State, but only to justifie his Dealings, as in his Providence he had actually done with the unbelieving Jews, rejecting them upon their stubborn Infidelity, and the hardness of their Hearts; and with the believing Gentiles, admitting them to be his Church, and People, and the Spiritual Seed of Abraham upon their Faith, and Submission to the Terms he had proposed for their Justification and Acceptance with him.

So Neh. 7. 2. αὐτὸς ὡς ἀνὴρ ἀληθὴς, he was a true Man, and one who feared the Lord. See Naldius Concord. Partic. p. 376, 377. and is, as the Greek Commentators often note, ἰχ' ὁμοιώσεως, ἀλλὰ βεβαιώσεως ἢ ἀναμφισβήτου δηλωτικὸν, a Particle not of Similitude, but of Confirmation, and ſo may here be rendred, but verily, or, but indeed by the Works of the Law.

r Ibid. πεπτώκασι γὰρ, for they ſtumbled, &c.] They ſought not Juſtification by Faith in Chriſt, becauſe whereas God had pointed out to them this way of Salvation, by ſaying, Behold, I lay in Zion a corner-ſtone, elect and precious, and whoſoever believeth in him, ſhall not be aſhamed, Eſa. 28. 16. This Corner-ſtone became to them of Iſrael, according to the words of the ſame Prophet, Chap. 8. 14. a ſtone of ſtumbling, and a rock of offence, they being offended at him, becauſe of his Poverty, Humility, and Outward Meanneſs, and the Spirituality of his Kingdom; and ſo they ſtumbled, and fell off, from being God's People, and excluded themſelves from the Bleſſings procured for, and offered to them, by the Meſſias promiſed to their Forefathers. See 1 Pet. 2, 6, 7, 8.

Ver. 33. πεπτώκασι] ☞ λίθον, a ſtone of ſtumbling, &c.] The Jews ſay, the Son of David, i. e. the Meſſias cometh not till the two Houſes of the Fathers of Iſrael ſhall be taken away, to wit, the Head of the Captivity of Babylon, and the Prince who is in Iſrael, as it is ſaid, he ſhall be a ſtone of ſtumbling, and a rock of ruine to the two houſes of Iſrael, and many of them ſhall ſtumble and fall, and be broken. And the Chaldee Paraphraſt upon the Place ſaith thus, &c. ואם לא יקבלון and if they will not obey, or receive (him) my word ſhall be to them for ſcandal, and ruine to the Princes of the two houſes of Iſrael. s

CHAPTER X.

Verſe 1. BRethren, my hearts deſire and a prayer to God for Iſrael is, that they might be ſaved.

2. For I bear them record, that they have b a zeal of God, (being very deſirous to do what they conceive well pleaſing to him, and acceptable in his ſight,) but [this Zeal is] not according to knowledge, [i.e. not joined with the knowledge of thoſe things which would render them truly acceptable to him.]

3. For they being ignorant [through unbelief, 1 Tim. 1. 13.] of God's righteouſneſs, [i. e. of that way of Juſtification which alone renders us righteous, and acceptable in the ſight of God. See Note on Rom. 1. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 21.] and going about to eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſs, [which is of the Law, Philip. 3. 9. and ſo a Righteouſneſs peculiar to them who are Jews] have not ſubmitted themſelves to [that Righteouſneſs which is through Faith in Chriſt, and is] the righteouſneſs of God.

4. For Chriſt is the end of the law for righteouſneſs, [to be imputed] to every one that believeth [in him; [the Law being our School-maſter to bring us to Chriſt, that we might be juſtified by Faith, Gal. 3. 25.]

5. [Which Righteouſneſs by Faith can never be obtained by the Works of the Law;] For Moſes deſcribeth the righteouſneſs which is of the law [thus,] that the Man which doth thoſe things c ſhall live by them; [ſo that this Righteouſneſs is plainly, not of Faith, but Works.] c

6. But the righteouſneſs which is of faith, ſpeaketh [ſo as that we may accommodate the words of Moſes to it] on this wiſe, Say not in thy heart, Who ſhall aſcend into heaven? that is, to bring Chriſt down from above, [to be a Teacher of it to us?]

7. Or, who ſhall d deſcend into the deep? d that is, to bring up Chriſt again from the dead, [to give us the Salvation purchaſed by his Death.]

8. But what ſaith it? The word is e nigh e thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith which we preach.

9. That if thou ſhalt f confeſs with thy f mouth the Lord Jeſus, and ſhalt believe in thine heart, that God hath raiſed him from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved.

10. For with the heart man believeth unto righteouſneſs, [Gr. to Juſtification,] and g with the mouth confeſſion is made [of that Faith] unto ſalvation. g

11. For the Scripture ſaith, Whoſoever believeth on him, ſhall not be aſhamed [of his hope of ſalvation by him, Rom. 4. 5.]

12. [And it rightly ſaith, Whoſoever;] For there is no difference [as to the way of Juſtification, and Salvation,] between the Jew, and the Greek; for the ſame Lord over all, is rich unto all that call upon him [for Salvation.]

13. For [as the Prophet Joel ſaith, Chap. 2. 32.] h Whoſoever ſhall call upon the h name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved.

14. [Now this calling upon him ſuppoſes God's intention that the Gentiles, as well as Jews ſhould hear, in order to their believing; for did they not believe,] How then ſhall they call upon him, in whom they have not believed?

believed? [Did they not hear,] and how shall they believe in him, of whom they have not heard? And [this hearing supposeth some Preacher was to be sent unto the Gentiles, for] how shall they hear without a Preacher?

15. And [this Preacher must have a Commission from God, for] how shall they preach unless they be sent? [Now certainly we have been sent to you Jews, preaching peace to you by Jesus Christ, Acts 10. 36.] as it is written, [Isa. 52. 7, 8.] How i beautiful [upon the Mountains] are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of Peace, and bring glad tidings of good things? [that say unto Zion, thy God reigneth, or as the Chaldee, the Kingdom of thy God is revealed.]

16. But [if the Apostles were sent to the Jews, how is it that] they have not all obeyed the Gospel? [I answer, this Incredulity of the Jews is only that which was foretold by their own Prophets,] for [so] Isaiah saith [of them, Chap. 53. 1.] Lord, who hath believed our report? [ἡ ἀκοὴ ἡμῶν.]

17. So then [these Testimonies shew that] faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by [the preaching of] the word of God.

18. But [Gr. moreover] I say [of the Gentiles] have they not heard? yea verily, [that of the Psalmist being true of us the Preachers of the Gospel,] their k sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world, [Rom. 1. 8. Col. 1. 6, 23.]

19. l But [yea, or also,] I say, Did not Israel know [of the preaching of the Gospel to the Gentiles, and of their own Infidelity in rejecting it? this surely they might know from their own Scriptures; for] first, Moses saith, I will provoke you, [refusing to believe,] to jealousie by them that are [yet] m no people [of God,] and by a foolish nation I will anger you.

20. But Esaias is very bold [in his expression,] and saith, [of the Gentiles;] I was found of them that [formerly] sought me not; I was made manifest to them that asked not after me.

21. But to Israel [foretelling their Infidelity] he saith, n all day long have I stretched forth my hands unto a disobedient, and gainsaying people.

Annotations on Chap. X.

a Verse 1. Ἡ δέησις μου, my prayer.] That the Apostle speaks not in the preceding Chapter of the Absolute, and Peremptory Rejection, and Reprobation of Israel, is evident from this Prayer, and vehement Desire; for on Supposition of such a Decree of Reprobation, this must not only be a vain Prayer, but also an opposing of his Will, and εὐδοκία to the good pleasure of Almighty God revealed to him; for it is evident he prays here for all Israel, for them whose Zeal to God was not according to knowledge, and who were ignorant of God's Righteousness, v. 2, 3. Not for those only, as Esthius descants, whom God hath predestinated to be saved by the Prayers of the Saints.

b Ver. 2. Ζῆλον Θεοῦ, a zeal for God.] Hence were some of them called Zealots, taking that name ἀπὸ τῶν ἐπ' ἀγαθῷ ζηλωτῶν, from those who were zealous for that which was good, saith Josephus, de Bello Jud. l. 7. c. 30. p. 986.

c Ver. 5. Ζήσεται ἐν αὐτοῖς, shall live by them.] A prosperous and happy Life in the Land of Canaan, as (a) Origen interprets the words, Eternal Life being not the Promise of the Law, but of the Gospel; and if Eternal Life was obscurely hinted as the Reward of their Obedience to the Law of Moses, it related not to their Obedience to the Ceremonial, but to the Moral Law; of which our Saviour saith; If thou wilt enter into life (eternal, v. 16.) keep the Commandments, Matth. 19. 18. And this do, and thou shalt live, Luke 10. 28. Obedience to which includes faith in his word, and promises: And so faith in Christ, when once that is revealed as the Condition of our Justification, and the Obedience they yielded to it, availed to their Salvation only through the new Covenant of Grace which pardoned the Infirmities of that Obedience.)

d Ver. 7. Τὶς καταβήσεται εἰς τ' ἄβυσσον, who shall descend into the deep?] The words Deut. 30. 13. are these, Who shall go over the Sea? that is, say the Targum of Jerusalem and B. Uziel, the great Sea, or the deep Sea; and the Jerusalem Targum renders the words thus, Oh that there were one like Jonas the Prophet, who would descend לעימקי ימא into the depth of the great Sea. Now we know Jonas descending into the Deep was a Type of Christ, Matth. 12. 40. Descending into the Deep of the Earth, Psal. 71. 20. And being brought again, say the Seventy, ἐκ τῶν ἀβύσσων γῆς, from the Abysses of the Earth; and this might give occasion to to the Apostle to allude to their Traditional Interpretation, or Paraphrase of the words of Moses; like to which are those of Baruch, Chap. 3. 16. Who hath gone up into heaven, and taken wis- dom, and brought her down from the clouds, who hath gone over the ſea, and found her? and to this effect is that of Philo, What need is there ἢ μακρᾶς οἰκοπορείας ἢ τῦ διαπλεῦσαι, either to take long Journeys, or go to Sea in ſearch of Vertue, we having the Root of it within us; or as Moſes ſaith, in our Mouth, in our Heart, and in our Hand? Lib. quod omnis probus liber, p. 677. E. Note alſo that the Apoſtle ſays not, to bring Chriſt ab inferis, as Eſthius here doth, but only to bring him ἐκ νεκρῶν from the dead; this place therefore concerns not Chriſt's deſcent into Hell, in the ſenſe of Eſthius.

e Ver. 8. Ἐγγύς σου, nigh thee.] It is neither far from any Man's hearing, for we preach it every where; not far from his Underſtanding, for in preaching it we uſe great plainneſs of ſpeech, 2 Cor. 3. 12. It is in thy Mouth, to profeſs, and in thy Heart, to believe it, and thus we preach.

f Ver. 9. Ἐὰν ὁμολογήσῃς, if thou ſhalt confeſs, &c.] Hence obſerve, Firſt, That Juſtification is here expreſly aſcribed to Faith, and that not as including Works, but only as being that Principle which, when it is cordial and ſincere, will certainly produce them: I ſay, not as including all thoſe Works which by the Goſpel are required to Salvation; for then the Righteouſneſs of Faith muſt be deſcribed as is the Righteouſneſs of the Law, viz. That the Man who doth theſe things ſhall live in them, which is contrary to the words of the Apoſtle, v. 5, 6. See the Preface to the Epiſtle to the Galatians.

Secondly, Obſerve, That the Faith to which Juſtification and Salvation is aſcribed, is not here, as elſewhere ſaid to be Faith in his Blood, but a belief that God hath raiſed up Jeſus from the dead. So St. Paul having diſcourſed of the Faith of Abraham, which was imputed to him for Righteouſneſs, ſaith, This was not written for his ſake alone, that it was imputed to him, but for us alſo to whom it ſhall be imputed, if we believe in him that raiſed up Jeſus our Lord from the dead, Rom. 4. 23, 24. Thus are we ſaid to be riſen with Chriſt through the Faith of the operation of God, who hath raiſed him from the dead, Coloſſ. 2. 12. And in St. Peter, the Chriſtian is ſaid to believe through Chriſt in God, who raiſed him from the dead, that our Faith and Hope might be in God, 1 Pet. 1. 21. Now this belief in God, as raiſing our Lord Jeſus from the dead, is therefore repreſented as Faith unto Salvation, becauſe it miniſtreth to us a full aſſurance of Salvation by Chriſt, and of our Reſurrection alſo; for if we believe that Jeſus Chriſt died, and roſe again, even ſo them alſo that ſleep in Jeſus will God bring with him, 1 Theſſ. 4. 14. Knowing that he that raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall alſo raiſe up us by Jeſus, 2 Cor. 4. 13, 14. And this belief of an happy Reſurrection to Eternal Life, is a ſufficient Motive to be ſtedfaſt, immoveable, always abounding in the fear of the Lord, 1 Cor. 15. 58. And where it hath not theſe Effects upon us, we do not in the Scripture ſenſe duly believe, and attend to it. Note Thirdly, That when the Apoſtle ſaith, If thou doſt thus confeſs and believe, thou ſhalt be ſaved, we need not underſtand this of Actual and Compleat Salvation, to be imparted at the Day of Judgment; but that this Faith, and this Confeſſion, will put us into the way of Salvation, and give us a Right to it, whilſt we continue to act ſuitably to this Faith, which I have ſhewn to be the frequent import of the word, Salvation, and Saved, when Salvation is aſcribed to Faith, and Grace. See the Notes on Epheſ. 2. 8. Titus 3. 5.

Ver. 10. Στόματι ὁμολογεῖται, with the mouth confeſſion is made to ſalvation.] For in thoſe Times of Perſecution for the ſake of Chriſt, he that continued, under thoſe fiery Trials, to hold faſt his Profeſſion, could do it only through that lively Faith in Chriſt, and that ſincere Affection to him above all worldly Intereſts, which he hath promiſed to reward with Life Eternal. g

Ver. 13. Ἐπικαλέσηται τὸ ὄνομα Κυρίου, ſhall call upon the name of the Lord.] The word in the Original is Jehovah, whence it is certain that the Prophet ſpeaks theſe words of the true and only God; and yet it is as certain that the Apoſtle here aſcribes them to our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, both from the following words, How ſhall they call on him in whom they have not believed? (For the Apoſtle in this whole Chapter diſcourſeth of Faith in Chriſt;) and from the words foregoing, of which theſe are a Proof, and to which they are connected with the Particle γάρ; for thoſe words, whoſoever believeth in him, ſhall not be aſhamed, are ſpoken by the Prophet Iſaiah, of Jeſus Chriſt the Corner-ſtone, Iſa. 28. 16. and ſo are they interpreted by St. Peter, 1 Pet. 2. 6, 7. And in the Prophet Joel theſe words follow, εὐαγγελιζόμενοι ἐς Κύριον κεκλήσεται, and the Evangelized whom the Lord ſhall call, ſhall be ſaved. Here then we have two Arguments for the Divinity of Chriſt. (1.) That what is ſpoken of Jehovah is aſcribed to him. (2.) That he is made the Object of our Religious Invocation. See Note on 1 Cor. 1. 1, 2. h

Ver. 15. Ὡς ὡραῖοι, how beautiful, &c.] The Midraſh ſhir Haſſchirim upon thoſe words of Cant. 2. 12. The voice of the Turtle is heard in our Land, ſaith thus, This is the voice of the King Meſſiah, crying out, and ſaying, how beautiful, &c. i touching the Power, Wiſdom, and the Goodneſs of God; and the Pſalmiſt ſpeaking immediately after of God's teaching his People by the Law, as a more glorious diſcovery of his Will to the Jews, the Apoſtle very appoſitely accommodates theſe words to the Revelation of his Power, Wiſdom, Goodneſs, and Mercy in the Goſpel, to the Heathens.

CHAPTER XI.

Verſe 1. I Say then, [that the generality of the Jews are hardned and caſt off, but what then?] Hath God caſt away his people [utterly, and without exception?] God forbid [we ſhould ſo think;] for I alſo am an Iſraelite, of the ſeed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin, [and yet choſen to be an Apoſtle of Chriſt.]

2. God [therefore] hath not [thus] caſt away his people, a whom he foreknew, [Pſal. 95. 3. And to repreſent this in a like caſe well known to you,] wot you not what the Scripture ſaith of Elias, [ἐν Ἠλίᾳ, in the Hiſtory of Elias] how he [in it] maketh interceſſion to God b againſt [the King, and People of] Iſrael? ſaying,

3. Lord, they have killed thy Prophets, and digged down c thine Altars, and I am left alone [of all thy Prophets,] and they ſeek my life.

4. But what ſaith the anſwer of God to him [in that Hiſtory? it ſpeaks thus] I have reſerved to my ſelf ſeven thouſand men, who d have not bowed the knee d to the image of Baal.

5. Even ſo then [is it] at this preſent time alſo, [for even now] there is a remnant according to e the election of grace.

6. And if [they who are choſen in Chriſt, Eph. 1. 4. to be God's Church and People, are put into this ſtate] by grace, [being juſtified freely by his grace, Rom. 3. 24.] then it is no more of [the] works [of the Law that they are thus juſtified, and accepted by him,] otherwiſe grace is no more grace; [for what need is there of grace, where men have continued in all things written in the Law to do them? Moſes having ſaid, The Man that doth theſe things ſhall live by them, Rom. 10. 5.] but [on the other hand] if it be of works [that we are juſtified and accepted,] then is it no more [of] grace; otherwiſe work is no more work, [for grace comes in only to ſupply the defect of Works, that is, to procure pardon for the non-performance of them, according to the Tenor of the Law.]

7. What then [muſt be ſaid in this caſe, but this, viz. that the whole Nation of] Iſrael hath not obtained that [Righteouſneſs, or Juſtification, Rom. 9. 30, 31.] which he ſeeketh for, but the election [the choſen Generation of Believers, 1 Pet. 2. 9.] hath obtained it, and the reſt were blinded.

8. [And this blindneſs hath hapned to them] according as it is written, f God hath given f them the ſpirit of ſlumber: eyes that they ſhould not ſee, and ears that they ſhould not hear, unto this day.

9. And [as] David ſaith, Let their table be [or g their Table ſhall be] made a ſnare, g and a trap, and a ſtumbling-block, and a recompence unto them [of their evil deeds.]

10. Let their eyes be, [or their eyes ſhall be] darkned, that they may not ſee, and [thou ſhalt] h bow down their back al- h way.

11. I ſay then, [or, moreover, of thoſe of the Jewiſh Nation which are thus blinded] have they [ſo] ſtumbled, that they ſhould [irrecoverably] fall? God forbid [we ſhould ſo think of them;] but [ſo hath it hapned through the wiſe counſel of God, that] through their fall, ſalvation is come unto the Gentiles, [whom God hath now choſen to be his people,] for to provoke them to jealouſie, [or to an emulation of their Faith, that they alſo may be ſaved.]

12. Now [δὲ, and] if the fall of them [hapned thus to] be the riches of the [Gentile] world, and the diminiſhing of them the riches [and increaſe] of the Gentiles, how much more [ſhall] i their fulneſs [be i the increaſe of them?]

13. [Of you Gentiles, I ſay] for I ſpeak [this] to you Gentiles, in as much as I am the the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, [and by thus ſpeaking] I magnifie my office, [as declaring it to reach to the whole body of the Gentiles, and to have been thus efficacious among them, Rom. 15. 18, 19.]

14. [And I ſpeak of your being choſen thus k to be God's people;] k if by any means I may provoke to [an] emulation [of your Faith,] them which are my fleſh, and [ſo] might [be a means to] ſave ſome of them.

15. [And indeed their Salvation is deſirable, not only for their own, but for your ſakes,] for if the caſting away of them be [an occaſion of] the reconciling of the world, what ſhall the receiving of them [again unto favour] be [to the Gentiles,] but [even as] life [or a Reſurrection] from the dead?

16. [Nor are you to imagine this is an improbable, and even deſperate ſuppoſition:]
l For if the [Patriarchs, who were the] l firſt fruit [of them] be [were] holy, [called and ſeparated to the ſervice of God from all the people of the Earth,] the lump [of the whole Nation] is alſo [in God's deſignation] holy; and if the root [of them, viz. Abraham] be [was] holy [and beloved of God,] ſo are the branches [alſo beloved ſtill of God for the Father's ſake, and ſo will be once more, in his good time, admitted to his favour.]

17. And if [it hath ſo happned that] ſome of the branches [through Infidelity,] be broken off, and thou [Gentile] being a wild Olive-tree [or branch,] were graffed in among them; and with them [who believe] partakeſt [of the privileges] of the root, and the fatneſs of the Olive-tree [into which thou art graffed,

18. Boaſt not againſt the branches [now cut off, as if they were utterly rejected from God's care, and favour,] but if thou boaſt, [conſider] thou beareſt not the root, but the root thee, [the Promiſes being not made to thee, but to Abraham their Root; and if thou becomeſt partaker of them only by being the ſpiritual Seed of Abraham, by Imitation of his Faith, how much more ſhall they, who are by lineal deſcent, the Seed of Abraham, and ſo the primary and direct Heirs of the Promiſe, Acts 3. 25. & 12. 26. in due time be graffed into their own Root? v. 24.]

Ver. 19. Thou wilt ſay then, the [natural] branches were broken off, [for their Infidelity] that I might be graffed in, [i. e. received as God's People in their ſtead:]

20. Well, becauſe of unbelief they were broken off, [i.e. rejected from being his Church and People, v. 15.] and thou ſtandeſt [Gr. haſt ſtood] by Faith. Be not high-minded, [vaunt not thy ſelf over them, v. 18, 25.] but fear, [leſt this ſhould alſo be thy caſe.]

21. For if God ſpared not the natural branches, [thou haſt cauſe to fear,] leſt he alſo ſpare not thee.

22. Behold therefore [in this diſpenſation] the goodneſs and ſeverity of God; on them which fel, ſeverity, [in taking the Kingdom of God away from them, Matth. 21. 43.] but to thee, goodneſs, [in admitting thee to be his Church and People, which goodneſs will be ſtill ſhewed to thee,] if thou continue in [or c worthy of] his goodneſs; otherwiſe thou alſo ſhalt be cut off [for thy Infidelity, and Diſobedience.]

23. And [as thou ſtandeſt by Faith, ſo] they alſo, if they abide not ſtill in unbelief, ſhall be graffed in; m for God is able to m [work in them that Faith which will] graff them in again.

24. [And that he will thus graff them in, we have juſt cauſe to think;] for if n thou n wert cut out of [Gr. off from] the Olive-tree which is wild by nature, and wert graffed, contrary to nature, into a good Olive tree, how much more ſhall theſe, which be the natural branches, [though now cut off] be graffed [again] into their own Olive-tree?

25. [And this I now declare;] for I would not, Brethren, that you ſhould be ignorant of this o myſtery, [of the intended call- o ing of the now rejected Jews,] leſt you ſhould be wiſe in your own conceits, [boaſting over them, v. 18. as being your ſelves Men of greater Wiſdom, and more highly favoured of God;] that blindneſs in part is happned to Iſrael, [i. e. as to the greateſt part of them, a remnant only being now brought into the Faith, v. 5, 7. Chap. 9. 27.] till the [time of the] fulneſs [or more compleat Converſion] of the Gentiles be come in.

26. And ſo p all [the Nation of] Iſrael ſhall p be ſaved, [i.e. call'd and put into a ſtate of Salvation, 1 Tim. 1. 9.] as it is written [Iſa. 59. 20.] there ſhall come out of Zion the deliverer, and ſhall turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob.

31. Even ſo have theſe alſo now not believed, [Gr. not obeyed,] that [s] through your mercy, they alſo may obtain mercy.

32. For [t] God hath concluded all [both Jew, and Gentile] in unbelief, that [at laſt] he might have mercy upon all.

33. O the depth of the riches both of the wiſdom and knowledge of God! 34. For who hath [through his own Wiſdom, without Revelation,] known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counſellor [in thus ordering Matters relating to Jew, or Gentile?]

35. Or who hath firſt given to him, and it ſhall be [v] recompenſed to him again? [v] [i.e. who hath laid any Obligations on him to reward him? Surely no Man.]

36. For of him [as the Donor,] and through him [as the Director and Providential Orderer,] and to him [as the End,] are all things, to whom be Glory for ever. Amen.

Annotations on Chap. XI.

[a] Verſe 2. Ὃν προέγνω, whom he foreknew.] Concerning the People of Iſrael, Moſes ſpeaks thus; Thou art an holy people to the Lord thy God; the Lord thy God ἐξελέξατο hath choſen thee to be a ſpecial people to himſelf above [or before] all people that are upon the face of the earth, Deut. 7. 6. & 10. 15. Now to be choſen, and to be known of God, are the ſame thing in Scripture, and therefore the Phraſe is elſewhere varied thus; You only have I known before all the Families of the earth, Amos 3. 2. ὑμᾶς ἔγνων ἐκ πασῶν τῶν φυλῶν τῆς γῆς. Numb. 16. 5. To morrow יודיע and the Lord will know who are his, and who is holy, even him whom he hath choſen, which by the Seventy is thus tranſlated, καὶ ἔγνω ὁ Θεὸς τοὺς ὄντας αὐτοῦ, καὶ τοὺς ἁγίους —— οὓς ἐξελέξατο αὐτῷ, the Lord knoweth who are his, and the holy ones whom he hath choſen to himſelf; and v. 7. The Man whom the Lord doth chuſe, he ſhall be holy. And thoſe words of Hoſea, Judah yet ruleth with the Lord, and is faithful with his Saints, Chap. 11. 12. are by the Septuagint thus rendred, καὶ Ἰούδα νῦν ἔγνω αὐτοὺς ὁ Θεὸς, καὶ ὁ λαὸς ἅγιος κληθήσεται Θεοῦ, and as for Judah now God hath known them, and he ſhall be called the holy people of God: So that the People whom he foreknew, may be here only a Periphraſis of the Jewiſh Nation, which God had choſen before all other Nations of the World, and therefore would not utterly caſt off, becauſe his gifts, and callings are without repentance, v. 29. Or it may ſignifie thoſe of them who believed in Chriſt, and ſo were ſuch as he had purpoſed to ſave, or the Election according to Grace, v. 5, 7. which ſenſe this Phraſe bears, Rom. 8. 29. 1 Pet. 1. 1, 2.

[b] Ibid. Ἐντυγχάνει τῷ Θεῷ κατὰ τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, He maketh interceſſion to God againſt Iſrael.] Ἐντυγχάνειν ἐστὶν, is to intercede, or be an advocate for a perſon, and he that doth ſo is called συνήγορος, and this is the Office of our bleſſed Lord, who ever lives to make interceſſion for us; but ἐντυγχάνειν κατά τινος, is to accuſe, or charge a perſon with a Crime, and ſo to intercede againſt him. So 1 Maccab. 8. 32. If the Jews complain againſt thee ἐὰν ἐντύχωσί τινα σοὶ, we will do them juſtice. And when wicked Men came to King Alexander to complain againſt Jonathan, the King commanded a Proclamation to be made, τοῦ μὴ ἐντυγχάνειν κατ' αὐτοῦ περὶ μηδενὸς πράγματος, that no man ſhould complain againſt him about any Matter, 1 Maccab. 10. 61, 63. And again, Chap. 11. 25. ſome wicked men complained againſt him ἐνετύγχανον κατ' αὐτοῦ. So here ἐντυγχάνειν κατὰ τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, is to complain againſt Iſrael.

Ver. 3. Τὰ θυσιαστήριά σου, thy Altars.] Not [c] thoſe which God approved of after the building of the Temple, they being then obliged to offer all their Sacrifices at the place which God had choſen to put his Name there, Deut. 12. 5, 6. but thoſe which had before been uſed by the Patriarchs, and Prophets, for the Service of God, as that of Samuel in Ramah, and in Miſpah, 1 Sam. 7. 9. & 9. 13. in Gilgal, Chap. 11. 16. at Bethlehem, Chap. 16. 2, 4. and the Altar of the Lord at Carmel, 1 Kings 18. 30. on which the pious People of the Ten Tribes ſacrificed when they were not permitted to go up to Jeruſalem, that Law, ſaith Kimchi, then ceaſing as to them.

Ver. 4. Τῇ Βαάλ, to Baal.] That is, to the [d] Image of Baal; So Hoſ. 2. 8. I gave her the gold, and the ſilver which ſhe prepared for Baal, Gr. αὐτὴ δὲ ἀργύριον καὶ χρυσὸν ἑτοίμασε τῇ Βάαλ, But ſhe prepared this gold and ſilver for the image of Baal, ſhe made Idols of them, ſaith the Targum. So Tobit. 1. 5. ἔθυον τῇ Βαάλ τῇ δαμάλει they ſacrificed to the Heifer Baal, Jer. 2. 28. according to the number of their ſtreets in Jeruſalem, ἔθυον τῇ Βάαλ, have they ſacrificed to the image of Baal; for ſure they had not as many Baalims as they had Streets; and therefore where the Septuagint reads τῇ Βάαλ, there the Chaldee adds, Idols, or Images. I will blot out the Names of Baal, τὰ ὀνόματα τῆς Βάαλ; Reliquias Idolorum Baal, Targum. See Hoſea 13. 1. This I prefer before that Notion of the Learned Selden, that Baal was ἀρρενόθηλυς, Male, and Female.

f Ver. 8. Ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Θεὸς, God hath given them a ſpirit of ſlumber, &c.] The Hebrew נתן and the Greek δίδωμι is often uſed to ſignifie a permiſſion of that which we can hinder, as Gen. 31. 7. οὐκ ἔδωκεν αὐτῷ ὁ Θεὸς κακοποιῆσαι με, God, ſaith Jacob, permitted not Laban to hurt me, Deut. 18. 14. σὺ δὲ οὐκ οὕτως ἔδωκε Κύριός ὁ Θεός σε, the Lord thy God hath not ſuffered thee to do ſo. See alſo Judges 15. 1. Acts 2. 27. & 13. 35. So again 1 Kings 22. 22, 23. The Lord hath put ἔδωκεν ὁ Θεὸς a lying ſpirit in the mouth of all thy Prophets; i. e. he hath permitted him freely to go forth, and to deceive them, v. 22. Eſth. 9. 13. If it pleaſe the King, δοθήτω Ἰουδαίοις, let it be granted to the Jews to do ſo to morrow alſo. Of him that ſat upon the red Horſe it is ſaid, that ἐδόθη αὐτῷ it was given him to take peace from the Earth, Rev. 6. 4. and Chap. 9. 3, 5. of the Beaſt it is ſaid, ἐδόθη αὐτῷ there was given to him a mouth to ſpeak great things, and blaſphemies, and it was given him to make war with the Saints, and overcome them. See Hoſ. 13. 11. Joel 2. 17, 19. Rev. 6. 8. & 9. 14, 15. See the Note on Chap. 1. 24, 26. And in this ſenſe God is here ſaid to have given the Jews, a ſpirit of ſlumber, by permitting them to lye under thoſe Prejudices againſt the true Meſſiah, which their Traditions concerning him, and the Doctrine and Authority of the Scribes and Phariſees had wrought within them; as alſo by delivering the things belonging to Chriſt's Kingdom obſcurely to them, and in Parables, becauſe they would not receive them when more plainly taught, Matth. 13. 13. And by taking the Kingdom of God from them, and giving it to a Nation that would bring forth the fruits of it, becauſe they contradicted, and blaſphemed the Doctrine of that Kingdom, and ſo cauſed the Apoſtles to turn from them to the Gentiles, Matth. 23. 43. Acts 13. 45, 46. And by refuſing to walk in the light whilſt they enjoyed it, they made it juſt that darkneſs ſhould thus come upon them, or that they ſhould have eyes, and ſee not, ears, and hear not; which is a mode of ſpeaking uſed frequently in the Old Teſtament, and in Philo the Jew, and others, to repreſent Men who had contracted ſuch Prejudices againſt God's Word, and ſuch vicious habits as made them not to diſcern, or to give ear to the voice of God, or Reaſon, calling them to Reformation and Amendment. So God ſpeaks by his Prophet Iſaiah, Hear ye deaf, and look ye blind, ſeeing many things, but thou obſerveſt not, opening the ears, but he heareth not, Iſa. 42. 18, 19, 20. And by the Prophet Jeremiah, Hear now this, O fooliſh people, and without underſtanding; which have eyes, and ſee not, which have ears, and hear not, Jer. 5. 21. By the Prophet Ezekiel, ſaying, They have eyes to ſee, and ſee not, ears to hear, and hear not, for they are a rebellious houſe, Ezek. 12. 2. So Chriſt ſpeaks to his own Diſciples, Having eyes do you not ſee? Mark 8. 18. So Philo often ſaith of Men addicted to their Senſual Pleaſures, and purſuing them againſt the Dictates of their Minds, that (a) ὁρῶντες οὐκ ὁρῶσι, καὶ ἀκούοντες οὐκ ἀκούουσι, ſeeing they ſee not, and hearing they hear not; this he ſaith, περὶ τῶν ἡδονῆς κεκορημένων, of Perſons ſatiated with pleaſure, and drunk with the love of Wine. This, ſaith he, happens (b) ἐν τοῖς κώμοις ἐν ταῖς μέθαις, when we indulge to Gluttony, or Drunkenneſs; and (c) ἐν ταῖς καθ' ὕπνον φαντασίαις, in the Phantaſms of our Dreams. Thus of thoſe Heathens who worſhipped the works of their own hands (d) Juſtin Martyr ſaith, That ὀφθαλμοὺς ἔχοντες οὐκ ἐώρων, καὶ καρδίαν ἔχοντες σωφρόνουν, having eyes, they ſaw not, and having hearts they did not underſtand.

Ver. 9. Γενηθήτω, their table ſhall be, and their eyes ſhall be.] They who are skill'd in the Hebrew Tongue, know that theſe words are as capable of the Future, as the Imperative Mood and Tenſe: they are rendred in the Future by Arias Montanus: and the Seventy Interpreters ſometimes render them in the Imperative, as Pſal. 109. 6—15. and ſometimes in the Future, as v. 17. As he loved curſing, ſo let it come upon him, καὶ οὐκ ἠθέλησεν αὐτῷ, as he delighted not in bleſſing, ſo let it be far from him, καὶ μακρυνθήσεται ἀπ' αὐτοῦ; and v. 8. let them curſe, but bleſs thou, καταραάσονται αὐτοὶ καὶ σὺ εὐλογήσεις. g

Ver. 10. Τὸν νῶτον αὐτῶν, &c. ever bow down their backs.] That is, let them be in Slavery, and Bondage; the contrary, going upright, ſignifying their freedom from Egyptian Thraldom, by taking that yoke of Bondage from them, which made them ſtoop under it. So Levit. 26. 13. I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you to go upright. So the Midraſh Tillim upon theſe words of the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 146. 8. The Lord raiſeth them that are bowed down, ſaith, Theſe are the Iſraelites carried captive from their own land, for ſince they were baniſhed from Jeruſalem, they have not been able to ſtand upright, but have bowed down their backs be- h fore their Enemies, who go over them: And therefore in their ſecond Benediction, before their Reading of the Morning Schema, they pray thus, Bring us in peace from the four wings of the Earth, & duc nos ſtatura erecta in terram noſtram, and lead us ſtanding upright into our own Land. Having thus anſwered the firſt Queſtion, he proceeds to enquire whether they of them who thus ſtumbled, have fallen ſo as that they ſhall never be recovered.

i Ver. 12. Πλήρωμα αὐτῶν, their fulneſs.] As πλήρωμα τῦ χρόνυ ſignifies the whole Tract of Time appointed for ſuch an Event, Gal. 4.4. Eph. 1. 10. πλήρωμα τ γῆς, the whole Contents of the Earth, 1 Cor. 10. 26, 28. and πλήρωμα τ θεότητ is the full perfection of the Deity, Col. 2. 9. and πλήρωμα τῦ Χριστῦ, is the Perfection, or the fulneſs of Grace, and Wiſdom, with which he fills his Members, Eph. 4. 13. and that ἐκ τῦ πληρώματ αὐτῦ, from that fulneſs of the Spirit which is in him, Joh. 1. 16. and πλήρωμα Θεῦ, is the ſame fulneſs derived from God, Eph. 3. 19. So here πλήρωμα τῶν αὐτῶν is the Time when God would ſhew Mercy to them all, v. 25, 32. and πλήρωμα τῶν Ἰουδαίων, the fulneſs of the Jews, is the coming in of all Iſrael, v. 26. And ſo St. Paul himſelf all along interprets it, ſtiling it v. 15. ἀποδοχὴ, the receiving of them into Grace and Favour by God, the engraffing them who were broken off, as the unbelieving Jews were, into their own Olive v. 23, 24. the turning away iniquity from Jacob, v. 26.

k Ver. 14. Εἴ πως παραζηλώσω, if by any means I may provoke them, &c.] This ſeems to be ſaid in alluſion to thoſe words of God, Deut. 32. 21. They have moved me to jealouſie with that which is not God, κἀγὼ παραζηλώσω, and I will move them to jealouſie with thoſe that are not a people, verſe 12. that ſeeing them who before were not the People of God, now choſen to be his People, and inveſted with all the Privileges which formerly belonged to them, viz. being of his Church, among whom he dwells, and to whom he gives his Spirit, his New Law, his Prophets, Apoſtles and Evangeliſts, they might be induced to believe, and ſo might ſtill ſhare in all thoſe Bleſſings.

l Ver. 16. Εἰ δὲ ἡ ἀπαρχὴ, if the firſt fruits of them were holy.] It is generally known that the word Holy, when applied to Perſons, Families, Churches, and Nations, ſignifies their being Called, Conſecrated, and Separated from the World, unto God's Service; in which ſenſe in the Old Teſtament it is frequently applied to the Prieſts, Numb. 16. 5. Pſal. 106. 16. to the Levites, Numb. 3. 13. & 8. 14, 15, 16, 17. to the whole Jewiſh Nation, Exod. 22. 31. & 19. 6. Deut. 7. 6. & 14. 2, 21. & 28. 9. Iſa. 62. 12. Dan. 8. 24. & 12. 7. Hence then the Argument runs thus: If God ſo loved Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, as to engage his word that he would be their God, and the God of their ſeed for ever, Gen. 17. 7. and by thus entring into Covenant with them, hallowed to himſelf all their Poſterity, even as the firſt-fruits of their Dough, made an Offering, hallowed the whole Lump, Numb. 15. 20. then will he, in his good time, be ſo mindful of them, as to bring them again into his Covenant, ſo that they ſhall be his People, and he will be their God; for as touching that Election, they are ſtill beloved for the Father's ſake. If this Argument runs only upon the Suppoſition that they do believe, it ſaith that only which is as true of all Gentiles; it therefore ſeems to be an Argument that they will be received into Favour, and therefore will believe.

Ver. 23. Δυνατὸς γάρ ὁ Θεὸς, for God is able, m &c.] From which Power we may reaſonably conclude his Will to do ſo, for ſo the Apoſtle argues, Chap. 14. 4. He ſhall be holden up, for God is able to make him ſtand. 2 Cor. 6. 8. He that ſoweth liberally, ſhall reap liberally; for God is able to make all Grace abound toward you. See Note on Chap. 14. 4.

Ver. 24. Note, That there ſhould be a fulneſs of the fallen Jews, and a receiving n them again into Favour, whom God had now caſt off, the Apoſtle plainly doth ſuppoſe, v. 12, 15. and now he ſets himſelf to the Proof of it, by an Argument à minori ad majus, viz. If they, who had no ſuch Relation to Abraham, and the Bleſſings promiſed to him, as the Jews had, were yet Partakers of the Bleſſings promiſed to Abraham, the Root of that Nation, how much more ſhall this Favour, in God's due time, be granted to them who are Children of the Stock of Abraham?

Ver. 25. Τὸ μυστήριον τῦτο, this Myſtery, &c.] o See the Confirmation of this Expoſition in the following Diſcourſe.

Ver. 26. Hence the ſecond Argument for p a general Converſion of the Jews runs thus: If that part of the Jews to which blindneſs hath hapned, ſhall be delivered from that heavy Judgment, if there ſhall come to them out of Zion a Deliverer to turn away their iniquity, if God will accompliſh his Covenant hereafter with them, by taking away their ſins, then they who are thus blinded, ſhall be converted to the Chriſtian Faith. Where note,

1. That this Promiſe is made to that part of the Jews to which blindneſs had hapned, v. 15. and ſo the Promiſe of Salvation to this Iſrael, cannot be interpreted of all the true Children of Abraham; Jews and Gentiles both.

2. It ſaith, that God will take away their ſins, and turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob. Now if this ſignifies that God will ſend a Deliverer out of Zion to procure the Pardon of this Peoples sins, since Pardon only can be given to them through Faith in Christ, this Deliverer must be that Jesus, who saves his People from their sins; if it imports that God would take away the Punishment of their Iniquity, that being the blindness, and spiritual slumber which was then, and is still upon them, the Removal of it must signifie their Conversion, this blindness being only then to be taken away, when they shall turn to the Lord, 2 Cor. 3. 14, 15, 16.

q Ver. 28. Κατὰ μὲν τὴν ἐκλογὴν, as touching the Election.] Here is in this Chapter mention of a double Election, viz. the ἐκλογὴ χάριτος Election of Grace, v. 5. the Gospel Election of Persons, and Nations to be his Church, and People, which being purely on the account of that Faith, which is the Gift of God, without Consideration of any other worthiness that we had, or any works that we had done, is stiled the Election of Grace; and thus a Remnant only of the Jews were chosen, v. 7. for many of them were called, by the Preaching of the Gospel to the Faith, it being preached to them first, Acts 13. 45. but few of them were chosen to be Members of the Church of Christ, because few of them believed. And secondly, there is an Election διὰ τοὺς πατέρας, to be God's People for their Father's sake, in which sense the whole Nation of the Jews are stiled the Elect; as in these words, Because he loved thy Fathers, viz. Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Deut. 4. 37. καὶ ἐξελέξατο τὸ σπέρμα αὐτῶν μετ' αὐτὸν ὑμᾶς, therefore he chose you their Seed after them, and brought you out of Egypt by his mighty power; where it is evident that all that were brought out of Egypt, were the Elect, or the chosen Seed. So Deut. 7. 6, 7, 8. The Lord did not set his love upon you, nor chuse you, οὐ προσελέτο ὑμᾶς, he did not fore elect you; because you were more in number than any people, but because the Lord loved you, and because that he would keep the Oath which he had sworn to your Fathers, hath he brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the House of Bondage. Where again it is evident, (1.) That their being chosen to be God's peculiar People before other Nations, is their Election. And (2.) That all who were brought out of Egypt were thus beloved, and thus chosen. And again Chap. 10. 14, 15. The Lord had a delight to thy Fathers to love them, καὶ ἐξελέξατο τὸ σπέρμα αὐτῶν μετ' αὐτοὺς ὑμᾶς, therefore he elected you their Seed after them above all People; circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart, and be no more stiff necked. Where again evident it is, that the whole Seed of Abraham by Isaac, even the stiff-necked of them, were the beloved, and the Elect of God; it being therefore not upon account of their Righteousness, Deut. 9. 5. but for the love he had, and the promises he made, to their Fathers, that he first loved, and chose them for his People; and his Love to these Fore fathers being still the same, and his Promise to them being this, That he would be for ever a God to them, and their Seed after them, Gen. 17. 7. he must have that kind Affection and Regard to them, which will engage him to chuse them again for his peculiar People, notwithstanding their present blindness; and all Israel being thus Elected for the Father's sake, this Calling must belong to them all.

Ver. 29. Τὰ χαρίσματα, for the Gifts, &c.] r
The Particle for shews that these words relate to what was said in the former Verse, viz. they are beloved for their Father's sake, to whom God gave this διαθήκη αἰωνίου, everlasting Covenant, to be the God of their Seed after them, Gen. 17. 7. Now this Covenant made with the Fathers being absolute, and the Calling of their Seed to be his peculiar People being the Effect of it, God will not repent for ever of his Kindness to them; hence he engageth to save them with an everlasting salvation, Isa. 45. 17. with everlasting kindness to have mercy on them, Chap. 54. 8. & 56. 5. & 60. 19, 20. & 61. 7. and saith, I have loved thee with an everlasting love, Jer. 31. 3. If then God will not repent for ever of his Covenant made with their Forefathers, to be the God of their Seed after them for ever, or that, he chose Jacob for himself, and Israel for his heritage, Psal. 135. 4. then will he certainly restore them to that Privilege, and happy State; but God will not thus Repent; for the Gifts and Callings of God are without Repentance.

Ver. 31. Τῷ ὑμετέρῳ ἐλέει, to your mercy.] i. e. Which unbelief hath hapned not to your Rejection, as it did to them, but to your Mercy, that they also may obtain Mercy together with you, and you with them, the Fulness of the Gentiles coming in with their Coversion. s

This Argument for Calling the Jews runs thus: If God hath called the Gentiles to his Grace after a long Idolatry, and Infidelity, though they were not before ever admitted to those Privileges the Jews enjoyed, nor had God promised to be their God for ever, much more will he Recal his chosen People from their Infidelity.

Ver. 32. Esthius's Note upon these three Verses, is this, That the Apostle doth without Controversie in these words speak of Israel according to the Flesh, and therefore in the preceding words must be supposed to speak of the same Israel; so that hence the Tradition of the Church concerning the Calling of the Jews, towards the end of the world, is established. t

CHAPTER XII.

Verſe 1. I Beſeech you therefore, Brethren, by the mercies of [that] God [of whom, and through whom are all things, and to whoſe glory they are all deſigned, Chap. 11. 36.] that ye [a] preſent your bodies a living ſacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reaſonable ſervice.

2. And [b] be not conformed to [the evil Cuſtoms of] this [Heathen] world, but be ye transformed [into other Men] [c] by the renewing of your mind [and judgment of things,] that ye may prove [Gr. diſcern and approve, See note on 1 Cor. 11. 28. Gal. 6. 4.] what is [d] that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God; [i. e. that Will which under the Goſpel requires only what is ſubſtantially good, and therefore always acceptable to him, and perfectly inſtructs us in our whole Chriſtian Duty.]

3. [Which Will of God you will the better diſcern by your humility, and diligence in the Exerciſe of your Spiritual Gifts;] For I ſay, through the grace [of Apoſtleſhip, See note on Chap. 1. 5] given to me, to every man that is among you [thus gifted,] not to think of himſelf more highly than he ought to think, [on the account of thoſe Miniſterial Gifts conferred upon him, not for his own ſake, but for the benefit of others, 1 Cor. 4. 6, 7. & 12. 7. as did the Scribes, and Phariſees, and Doctors of the Law, on the account of their Wiſdom, and Knowledge of it, Rom. 8. 18—23.] but to think ſoberly [of himſelf,] according as God hath dealt to every man [e] the meaſure of faith.

4. For as we have many members in one body [natural,] and [Gr. but] all [the] members [of it] have not the ſame office, [but ſome are more feeble, ſome more vigorous, ſome imployed in more, ſome in leſs honourable Services, 1 Cor. 12. from v. 12. to the 27*th.*]

5. So we [Chriſtians] being many, are one body in Chriſt [our head,] and every one [of us are different] members one of another,

6. Having then gifts, differing according to the grace [or favour of God] that is given to us, whether [it be] prophecy, let us propheſie according to [f] the proportion of faith;

7. Or [if it be] [g] miniſtery, [that of an Evangeliſt;] let us wait on our miniſtery; or he that teacheth, on teaching;

8. Or he that exhorteth [by a ſpiritual afflatus, 1 Cor. 14. 3, 31.] on exhortation; he that [h] giveth [or diſtributes to the Churches ſtock,] let him do it with ſimplicity [or liberality; See the note on 2 Cor. 8. 2.] he that ruleth [or preſides over that Stock;] with diligence: he that ſheweth mercy [to the Sick, Impotent, Stangers, Orphans,] with chearfulneſs.

9. Let love be without diſſimulation [not in word only, but in deed and in truth, 1 John 3. 18.] abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good.

10. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, [not bearing only ſuch a kindneſs to one another as common humanity calls for, but ſuch as the Relation of Chriſtian Brethren, and the Bonds of Conſanguinity require;] in honour preferring one another, [through humility acting as if you conceived others more worthy of honour than your ſelves, See Note on Philip. 2. 3. and being well contented that they ſhould be placed in a more honourable Poſt.]

11. Not ſlothful in buſineſs, [in the concerns of God, and of one another;] fervent in ſpirit, [ardently, and zealouſly engaging in the ſervice of God, and of one another, as knowing you are then] [i] ſerving the Lord.

12. Rejoycing in hope [of the glory of God, Rom. 5. 2. or of eternal life, Tit. 1. 3.] patient in tribulation [for the cauſe of Chriſt,] continuing inſtant in prayer, [that you may ſtand firm in the faith, and have a ſeaſonable deliverance from your troubles.]

13. Diſtributing to the neceſſities of the [perſecuted] Saints; given to [or purſuing] hoſpitality [towards them when they come to you.]

14. Bleſs [i. e. wiſh well to, and pray for] them which perſecute you; bleſs, and curſe not; [whatever provocations you may have to do ſo.]

15. Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep; [as the Relation of Members of the ſame Body doth require, 1 Cor. 12. 26.]

16. Be of the ſame mind one towards another, [being concerned for the ſame good to them which you deſire for your ſelves;] mind not high things, but condeſcend to men of low eſtate, [to the meaneſt concerns of the meaneſt Chriſtians.] Be not wiſe in your own conceits, [ſo as to think you need not the aſſiſtance of Divine Wiſdom, or the Advice and Counſel of your Chriſtian Brethren, Prov. 3. 5, 7. Luke 12. 53. or ſo as to neglect the Concerns of your Chriſtian Brethren, Prov. 3. 5, 7. Luke 12. 53.]

a Verſe 1. Παραστῆσαι τὰ σώματα ὑμῶν θυσίαν ζῶσαν, to preſent your bodies a living ſacrifice.] By Sin reigning in our Mortal Bodies, and by obeying the motions of it in our inward Actions, we being ſaid to preſent τὰ μέλη ὑμῶν, the members of our bodies inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs to ſin, Chap. 6. 12, 13. the Apoſtle here doth poſitively exhort us παραστῆσαι to preſent the ſame Bodies now a living Sacrifice, in oppoſition to the Legal Sacrifices, which were firſt ſlain, and then offered up to God upon the Altar, viz. by being now dead unto Sin, but alive unto God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord: An holy Sacrifice, as being conſecrated to the Service of God, and having our fruit unto holineſs, as the Servants of God ſtill have, Rom. 6.22. And as the Sacrifices offered to God were to be free from any ſpot, and blemiſh, and ſo holy; ſo are our Bodies made an holy Sacrifice, when they are kept in ſanctification and honour, and free from all filthineſs of the fleſh, and ſo a Sacrifice acceptable, and well pleaſing to that God, who deſired not the Legal Sacrifices, nor delighted in Burnt-offerings, Pſal. 51. 16. Heb. 10. 8. And this, ſaith he, is not as the Sacrifices of the Law, ἐκ τῶν ἀλόγων, of dead and unreaſonable Beaſts, which was bodily Service, or that in which the Body chiefly was employed, but it is λογικὴ λατρεία a Sacrifice of our Reaſon, devoting our ſelves, who are rational Creatures, to his Service, and alſo is highly ſuitable to our Reaſon.

b Ver. 2. Καὶ μὴ συσχηματίζεσθε τῷ αἰῶνι τούτῳ, and be not conformed to this world.] It is the obſervation of Grotius on the former Verſe, that the Apoſtle having ſhewed before, that Juſtification could not be obtained by the Law, comes now to ſhew how the Goſpel perfected, and ſpiritualized the Law, as to the Ritual, and the Judicial parts of it, and engaged us more exactly to fulfil the Moral parts of it; beginning firſt with the Sacrifices, which by the Jews were eſteemed one great, and chief part of their Ritual Worſhip. And then he may here proceed to their Separations from Men of other Nations, or, as the Phariſees had improved it, even from the Vulgar ſort, thinking it unlawful to eat, or converſe with, or even touch the People of the Earth, as they ſtiled them, and making their Holineſs to conſiſt chiefly in ſuch Niceties and Separations, ſhewing that we do moſt effectually comply with all that God deſigned by any Precepts of this Nature, when we keep our ſelves unſpotted from the world, or free from any Conformity unto the ſinful Cuſtoms of it, as Chriſtianity eſpecially requires, Chriſt giving up himſelf for our ſins, that he might deliver us from this preſent evil world, Gal. 1. 4. Or, he inſtructs them how to change their former Heathen, into a Chriſtian Converſation, declaring that whereas formerly they walked κατὰ τὸν αἰῶνα τοῦ κόσμου τούτου, according to the courſe of this world, Eph. 2. 2. and according to the will of the Gentiles, 1 Pet. 4. 3. they ſhould no longer live the reſt of their time to the luſts of men, but to the will of God, v. 2.

Ibid. Τῇ ἀνακαινώσει τοῦ νοὸς ὑμῶν, by the renewal of your mind.] The whole new Creature doth conſiſt in the renewal of the Mind, the Will, the Affections, and Actions of Men, 1 Theſſ. 5. 23. But becauſe this Renewal doth begin with the Change of Mind, diſcerning, and approving what is acceptable to the Lord, and upon that follows the Choice of what is ſo by the Will, and the Inclination of the Affections to what the Mind doth thus approve of, and the Regulation of our outward Actions, is according to what we thus approve, chooſe, and affect, this Renewal of the Mind is put for the Renovation of the whole Man, and we are ſaid to be renewed in the ſpirit of our Mind, and to put on the New Man, Eph. 4. 23, 24. which is renewed εἰς ἐπίγνωσιν, in knowledge, according to the image of him that created him, Coloſſ. 3. 10. c

Ibid. Τὸ θέλημα τοῦ Θεοῦ τὸ ἀγαθὸν, καὶ εὐάρεστον, καὶ τέλειον, the good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.] The Ritual Precepts of the Law had no internal Goodneſs in them antecedent to the Command; and ſo God himſelf ſays of them, I gave them Statutes which were not good, Ezek. 20. 25. and in oppoſition to their coſtly Sacrifices, and Burnt-offerings, ſaith, He hath ſhewed thee, O man, what is good, and what the Lord requireth of thee, even to do juſtice, and love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God, Micah 6. 6, 8. They were not pleaſing to him in themſelves, Pſal. 51. 14. Heb. 10. 8. but he declareth his delight in juſtice, and mercy, Jer. 22. 16. And the deſign of the Apoſtle, in the whole Epiſtle to the Hebrews, is to prove the imperfection of theſe Sacrifices, and of the Old Covenant, and therefore the Neceſſity of a better Sacrifice, and a new, and better Covenant; and ſo in oppoſition to theſe Ritual Injunctions, he may here ſtile the Go- d e Ver. 3. Μέτρον πίστεως, the meaſure of Faith.] Here the Greek Scholiaſts agree in the Expoſition of theſe words, That by the Meaſure of Faith, we are to underſtand the Meaſure of Gifts proceeding from that Miraculous Faith which was required to the Exerciſe of them, τῶν γὰρ χαρισμάτων αἴτιον ἡ πίστις, for Faith is the cauſe of theſe Gifts, ſaith Chryſoſtom; and when they found this Faith raiſed in them, they exerciſed them; they being given, ſaith Theodoret, according to the Meaſure of their Faith. This Faith enabled them to remove Mountains, 1 Cor. 13. 2. to heal the ſick, James 5. 15. to caſt out Devils, Matth. 17. 20. And hence St. Peter exhorts them who had received theſe Gifts, to miniſter them ὡς ἐκ ἰσχύος ἧς χορηγεῖ ὁ Θεὸς, as from the ability or ſtrength of Faith which God giveth, 1 Pet. 4. 11. and this is elſewhere ſtiled the Meaſure of the Gift of Chriſt, Eph. 4. 7. This they did, ſaith (a) Origen, διὰ τῆς πίστεως ταύτης by this Faith; καθὼς ἑκάστῳ αὐτῶν ἡ δωρεὰ εἴληφε παρ' αὐτοῦ, as every one received the Gift from Chriſt, ſaith (b) Irenæus. The Phraſe occurs twice in (c) Maimonides, where he ſaith, God declared that he would try the Jews with falſe Prophets, to know menſuram fidei veſtræ in veritate legis, the Meaſure of their Faith in the Law; & ad menſuram fidei veſtræ in lucem producendum, num firmiter, & conſtanter perſiſtatis in eâ: Whence we learn that the ſtrength, and firmneſs of Faith is the meaſure of it.

f Ver. 6. Κατὰ τὴν ἀναλογίαν τῆς πίστεως, according to the proportion of faith.] That is, ſay ſome, according to thoſe Principles of Faith and Good Life, which are known among you; but ſurely, they who propheſied by a ſpiritual Gift, could not do otherwiſe; for no Man can by the Holy Spirit be excited to contradict the Doctrine, or Precepts of Chriſtianity. Others, Let him do it according to the Meaſure of the Miraculous Faith imparted to him, enabling him now to reveal Myſteries, now to foretel things, now to diſcloſe the Secrets of Men, according as God, upon his Faith, ſhall grant Ability to him to do it. And therefore (d) Chryſoſtom, Oecumenius, and Theophylact ſay, that though this was a Gift, yet it flowed in upon a Man according as by his Faith he made himſelf a Veſſel fit to receive the Gift of Prophecy. And this ſeemeth to be the better Expoſition, not only becauſe it hath the Suffrage of the Ancient Expoſitors, but becauſe it anſwers to the Meaſure of Faith mentioned v. 3. for ἀναλογία, ſaith Origen here, is not ratio, as the Latins render it, but menſura competens, a Competent Meaſure; and κατ' ἀναλογίαν, in Heſychius, is κατὰ τὸ μέτρον, according to the Meaſure; and it agrees beſt with the Phraſe of St. Peter, to exerciſe theſe Gifts according to the Ability that God hath given them, and to be content with that, though others may enjoy it in higher Meaſures.

Ver. 7. Διακονίαν, Miniſtry.] This Chariſma being reckoned here before that of Teaching, or Exhortation, I think it beſt to interpret it of the Office of the Evangeliſt rank'd before that of the Paſtor, and Teacher, Eph. 4. 11. and immediately after that of the Prophets, as here, rather then to interpret it of the Office of a Deacon; all theſe four Offices of Apoſtle, Prophet, Evangeliſt and Teacher, being deſigned, ſaith the Apoſtle there, v. 12. εἰς ἔργον διακονίας, for the work of the Miniſtry. Hence St. Paul writes thus to Timothy, Do the work of an Evangeliſt; fulfil τὴν διακονίαν σου thy Miniſtry; 2 Tim. 4. 5. And of Mark the Evangeliſt, he ſaith, Bring Mark with thee, for he is profitable to me εἰς διακονίαν to the Miniſtry; i. e. to be ſent to preach the Goſpel, or viſit the Churches where I cannot come, v. 11. And in this ſenſe ſaith St. Peter, εἴ τις διακονεῖ, if any man miniſters, let him do it as of the Ability that God giveth, not as of the Charity of others, which was the proper Office of the Deacon. Of the Teachers, See Note on 1 Cor. 12. 28. Eph. 4. 4. Acts 6. 4. & 13. 1. & 20. 24. 2 Cor. 6. 3. Coloſſ. 4. 17. g

Or, ὁ μεταδιδοὺς here may ſignifie him that is moved by an Afflatus to give to the Churche's Stock; for ſo the word is uſed in Job, ſaying, ὀρφανῷ μεταδίδωκα, I have given of my Meat to the Orphan, Chap. 31. 17. and Prov. 11. 26. A bleſſing ſhall be on the head τοῦ μεταδιδόντος of him that giveth. So Luke 3. 11. He that hath two Coats μεταδότω let him give to him that hath none. Eph. 4. 28. Let him work with his hands, that he may have μεταδιδόναι to give to him that needs, and then the προϊστὰς will be the Perſon ſet over this Stock to manage it aright; for as the Jews had in every City Viros notos, & fideles, Men of Note for their Fidelity, who were conſtituted to be Collectors and Diſtributers of their Alms to the Poor; ſo ſay the Apoſtles, Look you out ἄνδρας μαρτυρουμένους ſeven men of honeſt report, οὓς καταστήσωμεν, whom we h will appoint over this business, Acts 6.3. and these are stiled προϊσταται and ἡγούμενοι, and by Eustathius are said προϊστασθαι τῶν ξένων to preside over strangers. See Beza in Rom. 16. 2. So Origen on the place, qui tribuit, & præest indigentibus; and Theophylact προϊστασθαι δὲ ἐστι τὸ βοηθεῖν, καὶ διὰ ῥημάτων, καὶ διὰ τῶν σώματος, to preside, is to help both with words and deeds. See the Note on 1 Cor. 12. 28. This in after Ages was made the work of the Bishop, but in the first Ages of the Church was the work of the Deacon.

i Ver. 11. Τῷ Κυρίῳ δουλεύοντες, serving the Lord.] So the Syriack, Arabick, Æthiopick Versions, and all the Greek Scholiasts read. The other Reading τῷ καιρῷ δουλεύοντες, serving the time, mentioned by Ambrose, St. Jerom and Ruffinus, seems to have had its rise from the abbreviation of the word in MSS. they reading κῷ, though it hath a good sense thus, Tempori servite, rebus præsentibus vos accommodantes, & si quid inciderit incommodorum, vel declinantes si liceat commode, vel tolerantes. See Eph. 5. 26. Coloss. 4. 5.

k Ver. 17. Τὰ καλὰ, honourable.] That there be Actions, which according to the voice of Nature, and antecedently to any Positive Commands, are good and evil, honourable and praise worthy, or matter of dishonour, or dispraise, in the general Opinion of the World; or, such as are τὰ καλὰ, honourable before Men, as well as in the sight of God, 2 Cor. 8. 21. this Epistle doth abundantly demonstrate; for the Apostle in the first Chapter having mentioned all the unrighteousness, and impure Actions of the Heathen World, he adds, That the Heathens knew, from the Consideration of the Righteousness of God, that they who did such things were worthy of death, v. 32. in the second Chapter he informs us, That the Gentiles having not a written Law, and notwithstanding doing by Nature the things contained in the Moral Law, shew the work of the Law written in their hearts, their Conscience bearing witness to it, and their thoughts accusing, or else excusing one another, v. 14, 15. That the Exercise of Righteousness and Peace renders us not only acceptable to God, but also approved of Men, Chap. 14. 17. Accordingly the wise Man saith, that by observing Mercy and Truth, we shall προνοεῖν καλὰ provide things honourable in the sight of God and Men, Prov. 3. 3, 4.

l Ver. 19. Δότε τόπον τῇ ὀργῇ, give place unto wrath.] i. e. Refer it to the Punishment of God, συγχώρησον ἀυτῷ ἐπελθεῖν, τοῦτο γὰρ ἐστι δότε τόπον τῇ ὀργῇ, suffer him to come in with his wrath upon those who are your Enemies, and persecute you for his sake, for this is the import of these words, Give place unto wrath: So Chrysostom, Oecumenius, Theophylact. And this Exposition is confirmed by the ensuing Reason, For Vengeance is mine, I will repay it; and from the occasion of those words, Deut. 42. 35. they being spoken for the comfort of God's People, whose Cause he will plead, and for whose sakes he will repent of the Evil he brought upon them, v. 36.

Ver. 20. Ἀνθρακας πυρὸς σωρεύσεις ἐπὶ τὴν κεφαλὴν m ἀυτῦ, thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head.] I know that many good Interpreters conceive here is an Allusion to Artificers that melt Lead, or other Metals, by heaping coals of fire upon them, and so imagine that the import of these words is this, Thou shalt melt him down, or work him, by this obliging Kindness into good affection to thee: But I believe the sense is rather this, That if he persevere in his Enmity to, his Persecution of thee, and Perverseness towards thee after these kind Offices, the Event, though not sought by thee, will be this, Thou by thy Patience shalt engage the Wrath of God to fall upon him, and to maintain thy Cause against him; and so shalt be more certainly and happily delivered from his Malice, then by Avenging thy self thou wouldst be. For,

1. This suits best with the Connexion of this with the foregoing Verse by the Particle, Therefore, avenge not your selves, but rather give place to the wrath of God to fall upon your Enemies, or Persecutors, seeing he will repay Vengeance to them. Therefore let not their Enmity hinder you from being kind to them; for that Kindness, if it do not mollifie them, will cause the Wrath of God to wax hot against them.

2. Because the words are plainly taken from Prov. 25. 21. where they are exactly to be found; where, saith Grotius, apparet de pœnâ Divinâ agi, it is evident the wise Man speaks of the Divine Vengeance. And this is the continual import of the Phrase in the Old Testament, where only it occurs, and where it still signifies the Wrath, and Indignation of the Lord. So Psal. 140. 9, 10. As for the head of them that compass me about, let the mischief of their own lips cover them, let ἄνθρακες πυρὸς coals of fire fall upon them. So Isa. 47. 14. They shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame, ὅτι ἔχεις ἄνθρακας πυρὸς καθίσαι ἐπ' αὐτοῖς, for thou hast coals of fire to cause to sit upon them. So Ezek. 10. 2. God commands the Angel to fill his hand ἀνθράκων πυρὸς with coals of fire, and to scatter them over the City, to burn the City with them. And 4 Esdr. 16. 52, 53. Let not the sinner say he hath not sinned, for God shall heap coals of fire upon his head, who saith before the Lord God, and his Glory, he hath not sinned.

Ver. 21. Μὴ νικῶ ὑπὸ τοῦ κακοῦ, be not over- n come of evil.] Vincitur à malo qui vult peccare in alium, quia ille peccavit in ipsum. Aquinas.

CHAPTER XIII.

Verſe 1. LET every ſoul be ſubject to the higher Powers, [or Supream Authority placed over them,] for there a is no a power but of God, [the Fountain of it,] the Powers that be, are ordained of God.

b 2. Whoſoever therefore b reſiſteth the Power, reſiſteth the Ordinance of God; and they that reſiſt [the Ordinance of God,]
c ſhall c receive to themſelves damnation. [Gr. Judgment.]

3. For Rulers [if they act by the Authority of God, and according to Law,] are not a terrour to good works, [i. e. ſuch as the Light of Nature pronounceth good,] but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the Power, [that it will do thee any harm?] do [then] that which is good, and thou ſhalt [rather] have praiſe of the ſame.

4. For he is [by his Inſtitution] the Miniſter of God to thee for good, [if thou art a doer of what is good;] but if thou doeſt that which is evil, [thou haſt cauſe to] be afraid; for he beareth not the Sword [of Juſtice] in vain; for he is the Miniſter of God [a Revenger] to execute wrath [Gr. for wrath] on him that doth evil.

5. Wherefore ye muſt needs [Gr. ye ought to] be ſubject [to this Miniſter of God,] not only for wrath, but alſo for conſcience ſake.

d 6. For, d for this cauſe pay ye Tribute alſo to them,] for [that] they are God's Miniſters, attending continually on this very thing; [the executing Judgment between Man and Man, to preſerve every Man in his Right, and to puniſh the wrong doer.]

e 7. e Render therefore to all their dues, Tribute to whom Tribute is due, Cuſtom to whom Cuſtom, [i. e. all Legal Impoſitions,] Fear to whom fear, Honour to whom honour [is due.]

8. Owe no man any thing [which Juſtice obligeth you to render him,] but [be eſpecially concerned]
f to love one f another, [which love, if ye obſerve its Precepts, will preſerve you from doing any evil, or injuſtice to your Brother;] for he that [truly] loveth another, hath fulfilled the Law, [relating to him.]

9. For this [that which the Law forbiddeth in theſe words,] thou ſhalt not commit adultery, thou ſhalt not kill, thou ſhalt not ſteal, thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs, thou ſhalt not covet; and if there be any other Commandment [of the Law relating to thy Neighbour,] it is briefly comprehended in this ſaying, namely, Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf, [i. e. with the like love thou beareſt to thy ſelf, though not with love equal to it. See Note on Matth. 22. 39, 40.]

10. [He that is acted by] love, g worketh no ill to his neighbour, [which is the thing required in theſe Negative Precepts,] therefore h love is the fulfilling of the Law. g h

11. And that [Gr. this, i. e. Exhortation to obey Authority, and walk in fervent Charity towards all Men, I recommend to you now, is very ſeaſonable,] knowing the time, that now it is high time [for all] to i awake out of ſleep; for now is our k ſalvation, [or the ſalvation of the Gentiles,] nearer than when we [firſt] believed. i k

12. l The night [of Heathen Ignorance, Acts 17. 31.] is far ſpent, m the day [of Grace, and Salvation to them] is at hand; let us therefore caſt off the works of darkneſs, and let us put on the armour of light. l m

13. Let us walk n honeſtly as in the day, not in rioting and drunkenneſs, not in o chambering and wantonneſs, [1 Pet. 4. 3.] not in ſtrife and envying; [things inconſiſtent with that Chriſtian Charity which is the glory of our Profeſſion.] n o

14. But p put you on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and make not proviſion for the fleſh, to fulfil the luſts thereof. p a Verſe 1. Ὑπ᾽ ὃν γὰρ ἐξουσία εἰ μὴ ἀπὸ Θεοῦ, there is no power but of God.] That this may rightly be underſtood, let it be noted, (1.) That God doth not now, as in the Caſe of Saul, and David, by himſelf appoint, and nominate the Perſon who ſhall ſway the Scepter in any Nation of the World. The Roman Emperors, the Powers then in being when St. Paul writ this Epiſtle, had no ſuch appointment, but were elected by the Roman Armies, or choſen and confirmed by the Senate; whence it appears that an immediate appointment, or deſignation of the Perſon by God, cannot be neceſſary to render any Prince God's Ordinance.

(2.) By virtue of God's general Appointment or Ordinance, whether in the fifth Commandment, or by a Law of Nature, requiring that all Nations ſhould have ſome Government placed over them, no individual Perſon can claim a Right to be the Higher Power in any Nation, more than others, nor are the People by it tied to yield Obedience to this Man, rather than to that. This there-therefore cannot be ſufficient to make a Man the individual Perſon who is God's Ordinance, in reference to ſuch a Nation. It remains therefore

(3.) That this Authority be conveyed to this, or that individual Perſon, or Family, by Compact, Conſent, or Choice of the Perſons governed, that ſuch a Perſon or Family ſhall have the Supream Authority in ſuch a Nation. It therefore muſt be ſuch a Choice, Conſent, or Contract that renders any Perſon the Ordinance of God to ſuch a Nation: And this is what Men call a Legal Right, or Title to the Crown; that is a Title by the Laws, and Conſtitutions of the Land.

But then as mutual Conſent, and Contract make two Perſons Man and Wife, and yet Matrimony is God's Ordinance, and the Power of Man over the Wife, and of the Wife over the Body of the Husband, is from God; and as among us, one becomes a Maſter, another a Servant, by Conſent and Covenant, and yet the Maſter hath from God authority over his Servant; ſo here, the individual Perſon becomes the Higher Power, by the Conſent, the Choice, or Contract Original, or Actual of the Community; but yet the Power he Exerciſes in that Station is of God, the Fountain of all Power; and he acts in that Station, not as the Miniſter of Man, but of God.

b Ver. 2. Ὁ ἀντιτασσόμενος τῇ ἐξουσίᾳ, whoſoever reſiſteth the power.] (a) Origen having cited this, and the preceding Verſe in his Diſſertation againſt Celſus, confeſſes it is a place capable of much Diſquiſition, by reaſon of ſuch Princes as govern cruelly and tyrannically, or who by reaſon of their power, fall into Effeminacy, and Carnal Pleaſures; referring us to his Comment on that place for the farther Explication of the words. Now there he ſaith, (b) This is not to be underſtood of Perſecuting Powers, for in ſuch Caſes that of the Apoſtle takes place, We muſt obey God rather than Man, but of thoſe Powers which are not a terror to good works, but to the evil: And it is a Contradiction to the Holineſs, Juſtice, and Goodneſs of God, to ſay that he hath given Princes any power to oppreſs, rob, ſpoil, murther, or do any injury to their Subjects. They cannot purely upon this account, that they are the Ordinance of God, have any Power, or Authority to do evil to them; and ſo reſiſting, i. e. not being ſubject, or obedient to them in any ſuch thing, cannot be that Reſiſting of God's Ordinance to which the Penalty is here annexed. Now this is the Non-reſiſtance of which the Greek Commentators ſpeak, even the Non-performance of Subjection, and Obedience to their Commands; and ſo the Coherence ſeems to require, which ſaith, Let every ſoul be ſubject to the higher powers, for whoſoever doth reſiſt them [by not being ſubject] reſiſteth the Ordinance of God. Moreover, they only are the Ordinances of God, as they are the Miniſters of God, v. 3, 4. Now they are only the Miniſters of God for good, for the puniſhment of evil doers, and for the praiſe of them that do well, v. 4. And 3dly, the ſubjection here required, to which the Reſiſtance is oppoſed, is a Subjection due to them, not only for wrath, but for conſcience ſake; but we cannot be obliged from Conſcience towards God, to be ſubject to them in thoſe things which they have no Authority from God to require, and for refuſal of Obedience to which, we have God's Authority.

They who interpret this of Violent Reſiſtance by Force of Arms, ſpeak the truth, but not the whole Truth, that being not the only Reſiſtance here forbidden. For, as Dr. Falkner obſerves, ἀντιτάσσεσθαι, which we tranſlate, to reſiſt, includes all practiſing out of a Spirit of Averſneſs, Oppoſition, and Contradiction, and whatſoever is contrary to ὑποτάσσεσθαι, the being ſubject, v. 1. & 5. See Acts 13. 8. & 18. 6.

Ibid. Ἑαυτοῖς κρίμα λήψονται, ſhall receive c judgment to themſelves;] i. e. they ſhall be Sentenced, Puniſhed, and Condemned for it by the Magiſtrate, who is a terrour to all evil works. So the word κρίμα ſignifies in theſe words, feareſt not thou God, ſeeing thou art ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ κρίματι under the ſame ſentence of condemnation by the Magiſtrate? Luke 23. 40. See Note on Chap. 5. 16. And to this ſenſe the Connexion inclines, He ſhall receive Sentence or Puniſhment [from the Rulers,] for Rulers are a terror to evil works; if therefore thou doſt evil be afraid, for he beareth not the ſword in vain, but is an avenger of wrath. Or, if he eſcape the hand of the Magiſtrate, he ſhall be puniſhed by that God whoſe Miniſter and Ordinance the Power he reſiſteth is; this follows from the Obligation to be ſubject, not only out of wrath, but alſo from Conſcience towards God; but hence it does not follow that he muſt be damned, as that imports his being ſentenced by God to Eternal Torments; it follows not from the word κρίμα, ſeeing that in its literal import, ſignifies Judgment, and no more, and ſometimes is applied to Humane Judgments; not from the Obligation to be ſubject out of Conſcience, for then all Men muſt be damned who neglect what they, in Conſcience toward God, ſtand bound to do, or do what they in Conſcience are obliged not to do, and then wo be to them who through Weakneſs, or Prejudice, miſtake their Duty, or are ignorant of it, and therefore do neglect it, or tranſgreſs againſt it. Seeing then the Reſiſter of God's Ordinance here is not only the wilful Rebel, but he who alſo is not Subject and Obedient to the Commands of lawful Authority, if the Puniſhment of this Sin, without exception, be Eternal Torments, all muſt be ſentenced to them who out of ignorance and weakneſs, miſunderſtanding, or prejudice, refuſe in any lawful Matter to yield Obedience to the Commands of their Superiours, and ſo not only Sins of Wilfulneſs, but Sins of Ignorance and Weakneſs muſt be damnable.

Now according to this double Notion of Reſiſtance, let it be noted, Firſt, That the Reſiſtance which conſiſts in Non-ſubjection, or a Refuſal to yield Actual Obedience to the Law of the Superiour, can only be allowed when the Matter of the Law is ſinful, and ſo forbidden by the Higheſt Power, not when 'tis judged inexpedient, or unprofitable only, for of that Subjects are not to judge, but the Law-giver only, in that they lawfully may; and therefore, to avoid Scandal and Puniſhment, and from reſpect to him who is God's Vicegerent, ought to obey, even as Servants ought to obey their froward Maſters, 1 Pet. 2. 18. and Children their Parents in all lawful things, Col. 3. 20. not diſputing their Authority in ſuch Matters, and this from Conſcience towards God.

Secondly, That no Reſiſtance of the Higher Powers by Force of Arms, or Violence, can be allowed purely on the account of Religion; for if ſo, we could not be obliged to ſuffer wrong in ſuch Caſes from Conſcience towards God, as the Apoſtle ſaith, we are, 1 Pet. 2. 19. or from the Example of our Lord, v. 21—24. becauſe the Sufferings which God hath not obliged us to undergo, we cannot undergo, from Conſcience towards God.

Thirdly, That no violent Reſiſtance, or no Reſiſtance of the Higher Powers by force, can be allowed to any who have not the power of the Sword, and who are no Avengers of Wrath; for he that thus uſeth it, plainly takes the Sword without Authority from him to whom belongeth Vengeance, and the power of Life and Death originally, and ſo without Authority from him to whom this Power of the Sword originally belongs, and therefore by our Saviour's Aphoriſm, deſerves to periſh by it, Matth. 26. 52. Hence therefore it muſt follow,

1. That in Abſolute Governments, there is no power of lifting up the Sword againſt the Higher Powers, becauſe there is none can claim a ſhare in the Government, and ſo none can have any power of the Sword, or right to be an Avenger of Evil, but the Abſolute Power.

2. That in mixt Governments, if any Perſons, or States can claim the Power, it muſt be either (1.) Upon Compact, that ſuch Perſons ſhall have power to defend their Laws. Or, (2.) by virtue of that Rule of Grotius, That where a People hath conferred, not an Abſolute Power, but a Government according to Law, they muſt be ſuppoſed to have reſerved to themſelves a Power neceſſary to preſerve their Laws. Or elſe by ſome Act done by the Superiour which is a virtual Abdication, or a Renunciation of his Government; in all which Caſes we can have no direction from the words of the Apoſtle, who in general commands Subjection to the Higher Powers, but declares not how far any Man is ſo, or when he ceaſeth to be ſo.

Ver. 6. Διὰ τοῦτο γὰρ καὶ φόρους τελεῖτε, for this cauſe pay ye tribute alſo.] Hence it appears that paying Tribute to, is an Acknowledgment of the Right of Goverment in him to whom we pay it, it being payable only on this account, becauſe he is the Miniſter of God, &c. and rendred to Cæſar, becauſe it is Cæſar's; i. e. becauſe it doth belong to him as being Cæſar, or the Power God hath ſet over us. d

Ver. 7. Ἀπόδοτε οὖν πᾶσι τὰς ὀφειλάς, Render to all their dues.] It is obſervable, that all that is ſaid here, and Tit. 3. 1. and 1 Pet. 2. 11, 12. ſeems plainly to relate to thoſe falſe Doctrines, and Opinions which had obtained among the Jews, and were deſtructive to all Government, and which all Chriſtians therefore were concerned to ſhew their freedom from, and oppoſition to, that ſo they might ſtop the Mouths of thoſe Heathens, who looking upon Chriſtians as the Offspring of the Jews, were apt to charge them with the ſame Principles of Oppoſition to all Heathen Governments. Now their Principles are theſe: e

Firſt, That being the People of God, God alone was to be own'd as their Lord and Governour, in oppoſition to all Earthly Governours; at leaſt in oppoſition to all Governours which were not of their own Nation, and by him immediately choſen, and ruling by his Laws. See this fully proved, Note on 1 Pet. 2. 16.

Secondly, As a Conſequent of this, they refuſed to pay Tribute to Cæſar; crying out to Agrippa,(d) τὰ τέλη ἀναιρεῖν, to take away their Tributes, looking upon them as a ſign of ſubjection, which they ought not to ſubmit to.

f Ver. 8. Τὸν ἕτερον, another.] This being v. 10. ὁ πλήσιον, his Neighbour, ſhews that every Man is the Chriſtian's Neighbour.

g Ver. 10. Κακὸν οὐκ ἐργάζεται, worketh no evil.] Not that the Law is exactly fulfilled by doing no evil to our Neighbour, but becauſe in Chriſt's interpretation, the neglect of doing any good we are able, and have opportunity to do for him, is doing evil, Mark 3. 4. Here therefore is a Meioſis, for Charity is alſo kind, 1 Cor. 13. 4. and engageth us by love to ſerve one another, Gal. 5. 13, 14.

h Ibid. Πλήρωμα οὖν νόμου ἡ ἀγάπη, Love therefore is the fulfilling of the Law.] The Apoſtle plainly here diſcourſeth of the fulfilling of the Law, as it relateth to our Neighbour; but, as Eſthius here notes, Love is alſo the fulfilling of it, as it reſpects our Duty to God; for he that loves his Neighbour aright, loves him for God, and in obedience to him, and ſo muſt principally love God; he alſo loves his Neighbour as himſelf. Now no Man truly loves himſelf, who loves not him above all things who is his chief Good; and in loving whom thus, his happineſs conſiſts. See Matth. 22. 37.

i Ver. 11. Ἐξ ὕπνου ἐγερθῆναι, to awake out of ſleep,] Is a Phraſe importing two things; (1.) The Converſion of Heathens to Chriſtianity, as in that Call to them, mentioned Eph. 5. 14. wherefore he ſaith, Awake thou that ſleepeſt, ariſe from the dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee life, or ſhine upon thee. (2.) Our care to walk as becometh Converts with true Chriſtian vigilance; as when the Apoſtle ſaith to the Corinthians, Awake to righteouſneſs, and ſin not, 1 Cor. 15. 34. and to the Theſſalonians thus, let us not ſleep, as do others, 1 Theſſ. 5. 6, 7.

k Ibid. Νῦν γὰρ ἐγγύτερον ἡμῶν σωτηρία, for now is your ſalvation nearer.] i. e. Say ſome, the deliverance of you Chriſtians from the Perſecution of the Jews, ſtirring up the Heathens againſt you. And I believe this Paſſage hath a Relation to the Deſtruction of the Jewiſh Nation, and the Diſſolution of that Church, and of the Worſhip confined to the Temple, but chiefly upon this account, that then was the time when the Salvation of the Gentiles was to be more fully and gloriouſly accompliſhed, that being the time when God would ſhew forth all his wrath upon the unbelieving Jews, the Crucifiers of our Lord, and their Meſſiah, and upon that account the veſſels of his wrath, Rom. 9. 22. Hence the Apoſtle exhorteth the believing Jews to Conſtancy in the Faith, foraſmuch as they ſaw this day approaching, Heb. 10 25. and they being then, ſaving a little Remnant, entirely rejected, and cut off from being any more the Church of God; the Gentiles were to be more fully called and owned as his Church. The Apoſtle had before diſcourſed of this matter, telling the Romans, that by their rejection and fall, came σωτηρία ſalvation to the Gentiles, Chap. 11. 11. that their fall would be the riches of the world, and the diminiſhing of them, the riches of the Gentiles, v. 12. & v. 13, 15. I ſpeak, ſaith he, to you Gentiles, that their rejection will be the reconciling of the world. And of this Salvation of the Gentiles, he ſaith, it is now nearer, than when they firſt believed, the time of the utter Rejection of the Jews drawing nigh; and therefore he adviſed them, eſpecially now at this ſeaſon, to give no obſtruction to their Converſion, and lay no obſtacle in their way, by any Diſobedience againſt their Superiours, but by their Submiſſion to every Ordinance of Man for the Lord's ſake; to put to ſilence all the Objections of ignorant Men againſt them, as Diſturbers of Government; and that they would diligently avoid all Works of Darkneſs; that they who ſpoke of them as evil doers, might by their good works which they beheld, be induced to glorifie God in the day of their viſitation, 1 Pet. 2. 12, 14. and to avoid all ſtrife and envy, and to walk in love, as being that which rendred them ſo amiable in the eyes of the very Heathen.

Ver. 12. Ἡ νὺξ προέκοψεν, the night is far ſpent.] Νύκτα καλεῖ τὴν τῶν ἀγνοίας καιρὸν, he calls the Night the time of the Ignorance of the Gentiles, ſaith Theodoret; and ſo the Day muſt be the Appearance of the Goſpel Light to them: And this is very ſuitable to the Language of the Holy Scripture, which ſpeaketh of the Gentiles thus, Ye were ſometimes darkneſs, but now are ye light in the Lord, Eph. 5. 8. and as Men darkned, and blinded in their minds, Eph. 4. 18. and whoſe fooliſh hearts were darkned, Rom. 1. 20. In the Old Teſtament they are ſtill repreſented as Men who ſat in darkneſs, and in the ſhadow of death, Iſa. 9. 1. and when Chriſt was ſent to be a Light to the Gentiles, he is ſaid to be ſent to give light to them that ſat in darkneſs, Luke 1. 78, 79. And when St. Paul was ſent to convert them, he is ſaid to be ſent to turn them from darkneſs to light, Acts 26. 18. And when St. Peter mentions their l

CHAPTER XIV.

Verſe 1. [NOW to prevent theſe ſtrifes and envyings,] him that is weak in the faith, [and ſo not rightly grounded in it,] receive ye [into Chriſtian Communion,] but not to a doubtful diſputations, [not reſpecting the difference in their thoughts, and reaſonings from yours.]

2. For [ſuch difference of Conceptions there is among the Jewiſh, and the Gentile Chriſtians, that] one [i. e. the Gentile Chriſtian] believeth that he may eat all things; another who is b weak [Gr. but the weak, i. e. the Jewiſh Convert, who is miſtaken in, and doth not rightly underſtand his Chriſtian Liberty, abſtaineth from all Meats, as fearing they may pollute him, and ſo] eateth [only] c herbs.

3. Let not him that [ſutably to this belief] eateth [all kinds of meat,] deſpiſe him that [through weakneſs] eateth not [of any,] and let not him that eateth not, judge [and condemn] him that eateth [as unclean, for not obſerving theſe diſtinctions between meats clean, and unclean by the Law, or according to their Traditions, by being offered to Idols, or polluted by the unclean] for d God hath received him.

4. [Since therefore God hath received, and owned him as his Servant,] who art thou that e judgeſt another man's ſervant? to [God] his own maſter he ſtandeth or falleth, [and by him only he is to be judged; he is at preſent weak indeed,] yea, he f ſhall be holden up, [σταθήσεται δέ,] but he ſhall be eſtabliſhed] for God is g able to make him ſtand, [σῆσαι αὐτὸν, to eſtabliſh him.]

5. One man eſteemeth one [Jewiſh] day above another, [i. e. more fit to do God ſervice in, as being ſet apart by him for that end,] another eſteemeth every [ſuch] day [alike fit for that purpoſe.] Let every man be h fully perſwaded in his own mind, [or act with fulneſs of perſwaſion that he doth what is lawful.]

6. [And to engage you to maintain friendſhip and communion without cenſuring, and condemning one another for theſe matters, conſider that] he that regardeth a day, regardeth it i to the Lord, [or out of Conſcience towards him,] and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it, [i.e. becauſe his Lord hath freed him from any obligation ſo to do.] He that eateth [freely of all kind of meats,] eateth to the Lord, [or to his glory,] for he giveth God thanks [for his liberty thus to eat;] and he that eateth not [ſo,] to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks, [even for thoſe Herbs he eateth, or that he hath provided for him other food.]

Ver. 7. For none of us [who are Chriſtians] k liveth to himſelf, [but to him that died for him and roſe again, 2 Cor. 5. 16.] and no man [dying,] dieth to himſelf, [ſo as to be exempted from the power, and juriſdiction of the Lord, whoſe ſervants we are.]

8. For whether we live, we [Chriſtians, if we act ſuitably to our Duty, and our Obligations,] live unto the Lord, [under his Dominion, and under the Government of his Laws;] and whether we die, we die [and dying, we are ſtill ſubject] unto the Lord; whether we live therefore or die, we are the Lord's.

9. For to this end Chriſt both died, and roſe, and revived, that he l might be Lord both of the dead and living.

10. But why [why then] doſt thou judge thy brother? or why doſt thou ſet at naught thy brother? [as if he were thy Servant, and thou his Maſter, and his Judge, ſeeing] we ſhall all ſtand before the Judgment Seat of Chriſt, [and from him who is our Lord and Maſter, ſhall receive the Sentence according to our works.]

a Verſe 1. Μὴ εἰς διακρίσεις διαλογισμῶν, not to doubtful diſputations.] Not diſcriminating them by their inward thoughts, or reaſonings, or rejecting any from Communion upon that account, becauſe they are weak in Judgment; this ſenſe the Antitheſis ſeems to require; and this ſenſe will be confirmed from our Note on v. 23. and from a like Paſſage of St. James, If you ſay to the man in gay clothing, ſit thou here honourably, and to the poor, ſtand thou there, or ſit down at my foot ſtool, ὐ διακρίθητε ἐν ἑαυτοῖς, do you not put a difference, or a diſcrimination among your ſelves, and are become judges διαλογισμῶν πονηρῶν of evil reaſonings?

b Ver. 2. Ὁ δὲ ἀσθενῶν, but the weak.] I have obſerved Note on Chap. 5, 6. and on 1 Cor. 8. 13. that the weak Perſon is not the Man of a doubting Conſcience about a thing indifferent, but of an erroneous Conſcience about a thing unlawful; this is plain, 1 Cor. 8. 7. from theſe words, Some with conſcience of the Idol to this hour eat it as a thing offered to an Idol, and their Conſcience being weak is defiled. Now to eat with the conſcience of the Idol, muſt be to eat with an erroneous Conſcience; and the thing is as plain here from v. 14. which ſhews that the weak Perſon eſteemeth that unclean, which in it ſelf was not ſo, and therefore acted from an erroneous Conſcience. I have obſerved there alſo that ὁ ἀσθενὴς the weak, and ἀσθενεῖν to be weak, is to fall and ſtumble; and here it alſo ſignifieth one that ſtumbleth at ſome Doctrine of Chriſtianity, viz. at that of Chriſtian Liberty from Jewiſh Obſervances, and who is ſcandalized at it, or made to fall by the uſe of that Liberty by others, as is evident alſo from theſe words, v. 21. It is good not to eat fleſh nor to drink wine, nor to do any other thing whereby thy brother ſtumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak. And v. 13. Let us not therefore judge one another any more, but judge this rather that no man put a ſtumbling block, or an occaſion to fall [Gr. a ſcandal] in his brother's way.

Ibid. Λάχανα ἐσθίει, eateth herbs.] Why c Herbs only? St. Chryſoſtom thinks it was διὰ τὸ μὴ γίνεσθαι δῆλον, that it might not appear, whether they did it out of Obſervance of the Jewiſh Law, or only out of Temperance; but this this the Apoſtle contradicts, by ſaying not, that he did this being cautious, but he did it being weak; and v. 14. that he did it eſteeming that which he abſtained from as unclean; and this is ſuppoſed as a thing evident throughout this Chapter, that he abſtained out of Conſcience of eating that which he eſteemed unlawful. Others ſay, the word λάχανα Herbs, is taken Synecdochically for all ſorts of Meat allowed by the Law; but then they ought, in reaſon to ſhew us ſome Example, or Inſtance where the word λάχανα is uſed in this ſenſe. Let it be therefore noted, (1.) That the (a) Eſſens, among the Jews, abſtained from all fleſh, uſing as Victuals, with great delight green Herbs, and the fruits of Trees: And this they did, as judging fleſh μὴ κατὰ φύσιν not to be natural Food, as there it follows. (b) Philo ſaith they had τράπεζαν καθαρὰν τῶν ἐναίμων, a Table pure from any thing that had blood in it, as being an incentive to Concupiſcence, and did eat only Bread and Salt, and Hyſſop. See Note on Coloſſ. 2. 1. Here then is one Inſtance of them, who being weak, did eat Herbs. Moreover, Joſephus ſaith of ſome Prieſts of his Aquaintance, ſent bound to Rome from Judea, for ſome little Crime, That (c) they were good Men, who in their Afflictions forgat not their Piety to God, nouriſhing themſelves there with Figgs, and Nuts; yea, their Superſtition would not permit them to uſe the (d) Oyl of Heathens, as being not clean, and ſo ſuch as they, could not uſe the Meats of Gentiles, much leſs things offered to Idols, (as ſometimes all the Meat ſold in the Shambles was,) without tranſgreſſing their own Inſtitutions and Traditions. They therefore might eat Herbs, either that they might avoid eating things ſold in the Shambles, which had been offered to Idols, and which were therefore deemed κοιναὶ common, or unclean, by the whole (e) Jewiſh Nation; or to avoid the eating things which they eſteemed polluted by the Gentiles, as the Jewiſh Prieſts mentioned by Joſephus did. Moreover, the Perſon who believeth all things, here, is ſo like the Perſon, who ſaith all things are lawful for me, 1 Cor. 10. 23. where the Apoſtle is ſpeaking of things offered to Idols, and the Arguments, many of them, are ſo apparently in ſenſe the ſame here, and 1 Cor. 8. and Chap. 10. that I can ſee no reaſon wholly to exclude this ſenſe.

Ver. 8. ὁ Θεὸς γὰρ αὐτὸν προσελάβετο, for God hath received him.] This is St. Peter's Argument, Acts 15. 9. God put no difference betwixt us Jews and them, purifying their hearts by Faith, and ſo making them clean in his ſight, though they were not circumciſed, nor abſtain'd from thoſe Meats we count unclean, he therefore received them without requiring this of them, and therefore ſo ſhould we. Note here, that though God teſtified his Reception of them by a viſible, and miraculous Diſpenſation of the Gift of Tongues, and Prophecy, yet doth not the Apoſtle ſay, God hath thus teſtified his Reception of them, but only, he hath received them, i. e. into Communion with him, viz. by giving them that Spirit which is the medium of our Union to, and Communion with him. Note alſo, that theſe words prove againſt Eſthius, that the Apoſtle here ſpeaks not of the Jew, but of the Gentiles, whom the Jews always deem'd unclean, till they became Proſelytes to their Law, and ſo obliged to obſerve theſe differences between Meats. See Note on 1 Cor. 7. 14. and therefore thought God would not receive them, whilſt they did not obſerve this Law. Moreover, when the Apoſtle ſaith, v. 2. Another believeth he may eat all things: Is this other the Jew? Then the ſtrong Jew believed not only that he might eat Swines fleſh, but even things offered to Idols, which yet Eſthius denies, v. 1. the reaſon is, becauſe both theſe muſt be included in quibuſlibet cibis, all kinds of Meat. But if it be the Gentile, as is far more probable, then the Apoſtle ſpeaks here of the Gentiles. Again, when the ſame Apoſtle ſaith, another eſteemeth every day alike, does he mean the Jew? Did the Jew think the Obligation to obſerve the Sabbath was aboliſhed? And if he meant the Gentile, the Apoſtle muſt here ſpeak of them. But, ſaith Eſthius, this Doctrine could not extend to the Gentile, to whom it was not lawful to comply with the Legal Obſervances, no not for the ſake of the infirm Jews. To this I anſwer, (1.) That the Apoſtle ſays nothing in this whole Chapter which doth oblige him ſo to do, but only not to judge, not to exclude from Communion thoſe Jews that did ſo, and not to eat of thoſe Meats, when that would miniſter Scandal to the Jew; and doth he not preſcribe the ſame Rule to the Gentile in the Caſe of the Scandal, in theſe words;

But if any man ſay unto thee, this is offered to Idols, eat not for his ſake that ſheweth it, and for conſcience ſake, 1 Cor. 10. 28. (2.) St. Paul, who had the ſame Perſwaſion that the Law was not binding to him as any Gentile could have, yet to the Jew became as a Jew, that he might gain the Jew; why therefore might he not permit the ſtrong Gentile ſo to do, eſpecially when this was not done out of Reſpect to the Law of Moſes, but purely to the higher Law of Charity.

c Ver. 4. Σὺ τὶς εἶ ὁ κρίνων ἀλλότριον οἰκέτην, who art thou that judgeſt another man's ſervant?] Some interpret theſe words thus; We are not to judge another Man's Servant for doing, what his own Maſter alloweth, or permitteth: But this is adding to the Text; for the Apoſtle doth not ſay, Who art thou that judgeſt another Man's Servant wrongfully, or condemneſt in him what God allows? nay, he plainly ſuppoſeth him weak, and erroneous, and yet allows not any condemning and rejecting him, and excluding him, ſaith Dr. Hammond, out of the Church, becauſe God hath received him to be his Servant.

f Ibid. Σταθήσεται δὲ, he ſhall be eſtabliſhed?] The Apoſtle ſeems plainly here to ſpeak of the weak Jew, who through the Errour of his Judgment, might be apt to ſtumble at the Liberty which the ſtrong Chriſtian uſed, and which the Chriſtian Doctrine taught that Chriſt had purchaſed for him alſo, as thinking both himſelf and others obliged to obſerve the Law of Moſes; and of him he ſaith, he is now indeed weak, but he ſhall be eſtabliſhed, i.e. the time will come when by the Deſtruction of the Jewiſh Temple, to which their Service was annexed, and in which alone a great part of their Ceremonial Worſhip was to be performed, they ſhould be better ſatisfied of the Ceſſation of their Obligation to obey thoſe Precepts. Thus alſo he ſaith Philip. 3. 15. as many as are τέλειοι fully inſtructed in the Chriſtian Liberty, let them mind this thing, viz. that it is only the Circumciſion of the Spirit that God now regardeth, v. 3. and if any be otherwiſe minded, God ſhall reveal even this unto you, i. e. he will in his due time convince you of this Truth. See the Note there. Note alſo that the Effuſion of the Spirit on the Jews, though Circumciſed, and Zealous for the Obſervation of the Law, was an Argument that God alſo had received the unbelieving Jew to his Favour, notwithſtanding his weakneſs of Judgment in theſe Matters.

g Ibid. Δυνατὸς γὰρ ἔστιν ὁ Θεὸς στῆσαι αὐτὸν, for God is able to make him ſtand.] The Apoſtle elſewhere argues from God's Power to his Will; So Chap. 11. 23. If they abide not in unbelief they ſhall be graffed in, for God is able to graff them in again; Chap. 16. 25. To him that is able to confirm you. 2 Cor. 9. 6, 8. He that ſoweth liberally ſhall reap liberally; for God is able to make all grace abound toward you. Heb. 2. 18. He is able to ſuccour them that are tempted. And this Argument is always good, where we put no obſtruction to his Will, by rendring our ſelves unworthy of his Illuminations, and his Favours; he being otherwiſe always as ready as he is able to do what he ſees needful, and truly conducing to our Spiritual Good.

Ver. 5. Ἕκαστος ἐν τῷ ἰδίῳ νοὶ πληροφορείσθω, let every one be fully perſwaded in his own mind.] h The Greek and Latin Fathers give this ſenſe of theſe words; In Matters of this Nature touching the Obſervation of a Day, required by Moſes, to the Lord, or not, the abſtaining from Meats, or not, Let every man abound in his own ſenſe; i. e. let there be no condemning, no excluding any man on the account of ſuch different Sentiments: And this ſenſe is very agreeable to the Context, if the word πληροφορέω will bear it, of which ſure the Greek Interpreters muſt be ſufficient Judges, eſpecially when Phavorinus ſaith that πληροφόρησον is the ſame with πλήρωσον, fulfil, as in that of the Apoſtle, τὴν διακονίαν σὺ πληροφόρησον, fulfil the Miniſtry, 2 Tim. 4. 5. and when this ſenſe accords ſo well with the Hebrew Proverb, איש ימלא את לבי i. e. Let a man fulfil his heart, or do his pleaſure.

They who render the words thus, as we do, Let every man be fully perſwaded in his own mind, as the word πληροφορία doth import, Col. 2. 2. Heb. 6. 9. & 10. 22. 1 Theſſ. 1. 5. either refer it to the preceding words thus, Let every man content himſelf with this, that he is fully perſwaded he doth as he ought, and not ſearch into the Actions, or Judgments of other Men about theſe Matters to condemn them for them; and this alſo is a ſenſe againſt which I know no Exception, and is made probable from v. 14, 21, 22. or elſe give the ſenſe thus, Let a man have that perſwaſion of the lawfulneſs of what he doth, or abſtains from, as will preſerve him from ſinning againſt Conſcience in it.

Ver. 6. Κυρίῳ, to the Lord.] If the Lord i here ſignifies the Lord Chriſt, as we may gather from v. 7, 8, 9. 'tis evident from the reaſon following, for he giveth God thanks, that Chriſt is God: If it ſignifie God the Father, yet the following Verſes, which apply it to Chriſt, make it plain that the Argument is good from God the Father to our Lord Chriſt, and again from Chriſt v. 10. to God the Father, v. 11. and conſequently that they muſt equally be God.

Here we are told, That 'no Man can be 'ſaid to do any thing to the Lord, or out of 'Conſcience towards God in ſuch Caſes 'wherein God has not interpoſed his Au'thority, nor is any Man in Scripture ſaid

'to

'to do any thing to the Lord, who cannot 'produce a plain Law for what he does; 'but when both contending Parties can pro- 'duce a Divine Authority for doing, or not 'doing the ſame thing (i. e. a Law forbid- 'ding, and yet commanding the ſame thing) 'there is great Reaſon for them to receive 'one another, becauſe they both act out of 'Reverence to the Divine Authority. But this aſſertion may be evidently diſproved, Firſt, From the Example of St. Paul, who ſerved God from his Fore fathers with a pure Conſcience, 2 Tim. 1.3. and convers'd before God in all Good Conſcience, Acts 23. 1. and was zealous for God, even when he perſecuted Chriſtians to the Death, Acts 22.3,4. and thought himſelf bound in Conſcience to do many things againſt the Name of Jeſus, Acts 26. 9. He therefore, if he may be believed, did theſe things out of Conſcience towards God, wherein God had not interpoſed his Authority.

Secondly, This alſo is evident from the Inſtances related in this Verſe; for a Law cancelled, and diſanulled by God himſelf, hath no Divine Authority; and he who only produceth ſuch a Law, is ſo far from producing a plain Law for what he doth, that he produceth none at all, nor doth he Act out of Reverence to the Divine Authority, but only with reſpect to his own erroneous Conceptions of a Divine Authority, when there is no ſuch thing; nor can he produce any Divine Authority for what he doth. Oh! but God had once interpoſed his Authority in this Caſe, and the Jews could not be ſatisfied that this Authority was repealed. I anſwer; And ſo it is with all the unbelieving Jews unto this very day, who ſtill obſerve the Law of Moſes, as far as under their preſent Circumſtances they can, as believing it was given them for an Everlaſting Covenant; and ſo being unſatisfied that the Authority of it is repealed; ſo far is it from being true that this caſe hath no Parallel; 'tis therefore evident, that in this ſenſe it cannot be ſaid, he that regardeth a day, enjoined by the Law of Moſes, regardeth it to the Lord; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not; for the Apoſtle, in this very Chapter, declareth himſelf perſwaded by the Faith of the Lord Jeſus, that there was nothing now unclean of it ſelf, but only through the miſtaken eſtimation of the Jew, v. 14. and elſewhere, that the Jewiſh Feaſts, New Moons and Sabbaths were only Shadows of good things to come, and that Chriſt was the Body, or the Subſtance of them, Col. 2.17. and that there was made ἀθέτησις, a diſanulling of the former Command, by reaſon of the weakneſs, and unprofitableneſs of it, Hebr. 7. 18. It could be therefore nothing but Prejudice, and Errôr, which made the Jew conceive he obſerved thoſe days, and abſtained from thoſe Meats by a Divine Authority, or that he could produce ſuch an Authority for ſo doing; he therefore muſt be ſaid to do this to the Lord, and out of Conſcience towards God, becauſe he, through the Weakneſs, and Error of his Judgment, thought the Law of Moſes obliged him ſtill in Conſcience to the Obſervance of theſe things. Now this is ſo far from being an unparallel'd Caſe, that it is the very Caſe of the Romaniſts uſing ſtill, the Anointing of the Sick; of the Anabaptiſts dipping them who are baptized; of the Greek Church refuſing to eat things ſtrangled, and blood, out of Reverence to the Apoſtolical Injunction, of the Diſſenters uſing Prayer by the Spirit, or conceived Prayer, out of Reverence to the Command, to pray in the Holy Ghoſt, and abſtaining from Communion with that Church which obſerves no Church Diſcipline, out of reſpect to the Command, to purge the Evil from among us; for all this is done by them out of a miſtaken Reverence to a Divine Authority which they conceive obliging to them. But then the Greek Expoſitors here note, that this Indulgence to Men of an Erroneous Conſcience, is not to be extended [f] to Doctrines of Faith, and Matters of great moment, but only to Caſes of Meat, and Faſting, and the like; and that it is eſpecially to be granted to thoſe who are Infirm, and want Indulgence.

Ver. 7. Οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἡμῶν ἑαυτῷ ζῇ, for none of us liveth to himſelf.] This I conceive to be a Reaſon, not of that which is contained in the ſixth Verſe, but of what was delivered v. 4. viz. that Chriſt was our Maſter, and we his Servants; and therefore by judging one another for theſe things, they took upon them to judge another Man's Servant. For (1.) in the next Verſe the Apoſtle reaſſumes this Matter, enquiring, Who art thou that judgeſt thy Brother? And (2.) thoſe words are a plain proof of this; For we are his Servants to whom we live, and to whom we muſt give an account of our Actions, and who is Lord both of the dead and the living; but they ſeem not ſo applicable to what is delivered v. 6. or to give a clear Reaſon why he that abſtains from Swines-fleſh, or that Religiouſly obſerves a Jewiſh Feſtival, doth this unto the Lord Chriſt, who came to take away, not to enforce the Obligation of thoſe things.

Ver. 9. Ἵνα κυριεύσῃ, that he might be Lord.] He by his Resurrection being constituted Lord of all things, and having all Power both in Heaven and Earth conferred upon him, must have power over all, we being all his Servants, and so obliged not to live unto our selves, but unto him that died for us, and rose again, 2 Cor. 5. 16. He being also the Rewarder of all those that serve him faithfully, he must be the Lord over the dead, so as to be able to bring them to life again, that they may receive the promised Reward.

m Ver. 12. Περὶ ἑαυτοῦ λόγον δώσει τῷ Θεῷ, shall give an account of himself to God.] Here Oecumenius notes, that it is said of God the Father, That he judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment to his Son, John 5. 22. and therefore what the Apostle here saith, viz. Every man shall confess to God, and bow the knee to him, v. 11. and give an account of himself to God, v. 12. is manifestly spoken of Christ as Judge, ἄρα Θεὸς ὁ Χριστὸς, and therefore Christ is God. And this Argument was used before the Nicene Council by (g) Novatian and others. It is a wonder that Socinus should deny that the Apostle says, that every knee shall bow to Christ, when citing the same place, Philip. 2. 10, 11. the Apostle so expressly declares, that at the Name of Jesus every knee should bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Lord; and here from this place proves that Christ is Lord both of the dead, and of the living, before whose Tribunal they must all stand, and so must own his Power, and Authority over them, which is the thing expressed Metaphorically by bending of the knee, and the confession of the tongue. And if these words, which the Prophet certainly spake of Jehovah, the God of the Jews, be well applied by the Apostle to Christ, Christ must be also the Person intended by them; for how could the Apostle prove that every knee must bow to Christ, from the words of God, saying, to me every knee shall bow, if Christ were in his whole Nature, and Essence, as different from that God, who spake those words of himself; as is a Creature from his great Creator? (h) Crellius here saith St. Paul accommodates this Passage to Christ, not that he is God, but because what is contained in it, shall by Christ, as subordinate to God, be exhibited and performed to God himself. But this Subterfuge is confuted by the words of the Apostle, who saith expressly, Philip. 2. 10, 11. That to the Name of Jesus every knee should bow, and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Lord, and so declares, these words are fulfilled by the honour exhibited not to God the Father, but to our Lord Jesus Christ, and seeing he is Lord over the dead, by the Power by which he is able to subdue all things to himself, Philip. 3. 21. which doubtless is the Power of God; and seeing, having raised all Men, he will bring to light the hidden things which they have done, and manifest the counsels of their hearts, 1 Cor. 4. 5. and so must be Omniscient, and have the knowledge of the Secrets of the Heart; and 'tis the Property of God alone to raise the Dead by his Power, and be the Searcher of all Hearts: These Properties ascribed to Christ, here, and elsewhere, must shew, that he is truly God. See the Note on Philip. 2. 10.

Ver. 13. Μὴ τιθέναι πρόσκομμα, not to put a n stumbling block;] i. e. not to cause our Brother to stumble at the Christian Faith, and fall off from it, or to perish; for what is here, do not put a stumbling block (by thy Meat) in thy brother's way, is v. 15. destroy not him with thy meat for whom Christ died; and to eat, διὰ προσκόμματος, so as to put this stumbling block before him, is, for meat to destroy the work of God. And that in this sense the Phrase is still used in the Epistles, see Note on 1 Cor. 8. 9. only let it be noted, that where there is the same danger of destroying my Brother, or dissolving the Work of God, be it not by Infidelity, but Schism, or Idolatry or loose Living, there is the same Reason, and Obligation not to put a stumbling block, or an occasion to fall in our brother's way: For the Reason why the Apostle would not have us put this stumbling block, which makes our Brother fall from the Faith, in his way, is this, because he would not have us be instrumental to his Perishing, or to destroy him for whom Christ died. He therefore must equally forbid the doing any other thing which may be left undone without sin; and being done, hath a like tendance to cause my weak Brother to perish.

Ver. 14. Τῷ λογιζομένῳ τι κοινὸν, to him that o esteemeth any thing unclean, &c.] Here is a plain demonstration that the Person here mentioned as weak in Faith, was also weak in Understanding; i. e. one who understood not that Meat to be free from Uncleanness, which indeed was so; and that he was therefore weak in the Faith, because he was so in his Understanding; and so also is it plainly, 1 Cor. 8. 7, 10. 'Tis therefore without ground affirmed, That these two sorts of weak Persons must be used very differently; you must have a care of offending those who are weak in Faith; but you must instruct, and govern thoſe who are weak in Underſtanding.

Secondly, Here alſo is a plain Evidence that the weak Jew had no juſt Matter of Offence given him by the Gentiles eating, or that they did not take offence at the open Violation of any expreſs Law of God by the Gentiles eating, nor were they thus weak out of Reverence to an expreſs poſitive Law, which all Men agreed was given by God to them, at whoſe eating they were ſcandalized. To make this very clear, conſider that the weakneſs of the Jews conſiſted in two things;

1. That they were not convinced that the Law of Moſes was out of Date, and therefore durſt not do any thing which was forbidden by that Law, nor omit doing what the Law commanded; and as to this, it is true, they were weak, out of Reverence to an expreſs poſitive Law, which, through the weakneſs of their Underſtanding, they thought to be ſtill binding; but the Apoſtle here declares to be by Chriſt taken away.

2. That they could not endure to ſee others do what they themſelves durſt not do; i. e. they could not endure to ſee the Gentile Converts eat thoſe Meats which the Law of Moſes forbad the Jews to eat: Now here, I ſay, they were not weak out of Reverence to any expreſs poſitive Law; nor could they take offence at the open Violation of any Expreſs Law of God; for there was no ſuch Law given to the Gentiles, to abſtain from ſuch Meats as unclean, nor to the Gentile Converts to Chriſtianity to obſerve any ſuch Law; they therefore by eating of theſe Meats did violate no Law given by God to them, and ſo the Jews could take no offence at their Violation of any ſuch Law. And ſo much ſtronger is the Caſe of eating things offered to Idols, in which yet the Apoſtle doth require this Abſtinence, with regard to the Conſcience of the weak Jew, 1 Cor. 8. 7, 10. and Chap. 10. 28, 29. For the eating of things offered to Idols (unleſs it were done in the Idol Temple, the Place appointed for his Worſhip) was againſt no Law of God, but only againſt the Canons of the Jews; and ſo here the Jews could not be thus offended with that Action, out of Reverence to any Law which God had made againſt it, but only from the Jewiſh Canons, and Interpretations of the Law touching abſtaining from Idolatry; the Imagination of the Jew, that ſuch Meats bought in the Shambles, or ſet before Chriſtians at a Friendly Entertainment, were unlawful, was a vain Imagination, and ſo they had only an imaginary Law which occaſioned their offence. Nor doth the Apoſtolical Canon concern any other Meats offered to Idols, than thoſe which were eaten in the Idol Temple; for ſure the Apoſtle, who was a part of that Councel, would not here freely allow what the whole College of Apoſtles thought neceſſary, even for the Gentile Converts to abſtain from. This Scandal therefore of the weak Jews was plainly, Scandalum acceptum, non datum, received, but not given; for they had no reaſon at all to believe that the Law of Moſes was ever given to, or was in force among the Gentiles, and much leſs that their Jewiſh Canons could be ſo.

Ver. 15. Ἐὰν λυπεῖται, if thy brother be grieved.] The Greek imports ſuch Sorrow as puts a Man in danger of his Life, and therefore in the Metaphorical ſenſe ſuch Sorrow as endangered his Chriſtian Life. So Job 31.39. If I have cauſed the owners thereof to loſe their life: εἰ ψυχὴν ἐλύπησα, If I have grieved his ſoul ſay the Seventy. תפחתי If I have cauſed his life to expire, or break out. See Dr. Hammond on the place. p

Note alſo here, that the Apoſtle plainly doth ſuppoſe that he for whom Chriſt died, might periſh. See the Note on 1 Cor. 8. 11.

Ver. 16. Ἀγαθὸν, your good.] Τὴν πίστιν καλεῖ, he calleth our Faith our Good, ſay all the Greek Commentators, and that very appoſitely; for the Jews blaſphemed, and fell off from Chriſtianity upon this account. q

Ver. 17. Καὶ χαρὰ ἐν πνεύματι ἁγίῳ, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt.] This cannot here ſignifie delight to do good, or rejoycing in Unanimity, for the Phraſe hath no ſuch ſenſe in Scripture, but always ſignifies an inward Joy ariſing from the Conſolations of the Holy Ghoſt; as when the Apoſtle ſaith the Theſſalonians received the word with much affliction, and with joy in the Holy Ghoſt, Theſſal. 1. 6. And when St. Luke informs us the Churches had peace, and walking in the comfort of the Holy Ghoſt, were multiplied, Acts 9. 31. r

Ver. 21. Προσκόπτει, ἢ σκανδαλίζεται, ἢ ἀσθενεῖ, ſtumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.] I have ſhewed what it is to be made weak, Note on v. 1. what it is to ſtumble, note on v. 13. to offend, or ſcandalize a weak Brother, is alſo to be an occaſion of his Ruine, by cauſing him to fall off from the Faith, or to be prejudiced againſt it, as will appear from a brief view of the places where the Phraſe is uſed. So Matth. 5. 29, 30. if thy right eye, or hand σκανδαλίζει σε, offend thee, i. e. if it leads thee to Hell, and to Perdition, cut it off. So Chap. 11. 6. Bleſſed is he who is not offended with me; i. e. who is not by the meanneſs of my preſent Circumſtances, or by the Doctrine I am ſent to preach, diverted from believing in me. So Chap. 13. 21. When Perſecution comes, the ſtony ground εὐθὺς σκανδαλίζεται is preſently offended. So v. 57. and Chap. 15. 11. Mark 6. 3. Luke 7. 23. the Jews were ſcandalized at Chriſt, i. e. they were diverted from owning him as their Meſſiah, either by Reaſon of his words, s or the meanneſs of his Original, and his Appearance in the World. So were the Multitude, and ſome of his Diſciples ſcandalized at his Diſcourſe about eating his fleſh, John 6. 60, 61. So doth our Lord admoniſh his Diſciples not to be ſcandalized at the Perſecutions they ſhould ſuffer, John 16. 1. So he foretels that many who had once believed in him, would be ſcandalized, when Tribulations ſhould abound, Matth. 24. 10. So he tells his own Diſciples, that they would be ſcandalized at his Sufferings, Matth. 26. 31. And ſo both Peter and the reſt of them were offended, or ſcandalized, their Faith in him failing for a ſeaſon, Luke 24. 21. So are we to underſtand thoſe words, Wo to him that offends, or ſcandalizeth one of theſe little ones, as appears from the Reaſon following, v. 14. It is not the will of your heavenly Father, that one of theſe little ones ſhould periſh. So I have ſhewed the word is uſed, 1 Cor. 8. 13. And ſo it may be well interpreted, when the Apoſtle ſaith, 2 Cor. 11. 29. Who is offended, i. e. in danger to fall off from the Chriſtian Faith, and I burn not with a fervent Zeal for his Recovery?

t Ver. 22. Μακάριος ὁ μὴ κρίνων ἑαυτὸν, happy is he that condemneth not himſelf, &c.] i.e. He is comparatively a happy Man that hath this firm perſwaſion of the Lawfulneſs of Eating any thing that is ſet before him, without asking any queſtion about it for Conſcience ſake; for he createth no trouble, or condemnation to himſelf about theſe Matters, nor is he troubleſome to others by his Niceneſs, or Scrupuloſity; whereas he that puts a difference betwixt Meats, is not only troubleſome to others with whom he doth converſe, but condemns himſelf, as oft as he is tempted to eat of that which his Conſcience doth not allow of.

Ver. 23. Ὁ διακρινόμενος, he that doubteth.] u He that diſcerneth, and puts a difference between Meats lawful, and unlawful; this is the import of this word elſewhere. So Matth. 16. 3. You know how διακρίνειν to diſcern the face of the Heavens. Acts 10. 28. & 11. 12. Go with them, μηδὲν διακρινόμενος, making no difference betwixt the Gentiles, and the Jews, the Circumciſed, and the Uncircumciſed, not counting them unclean any longer, as St. Peter doth himſelf interpret it, v. 28. And again, Acts 15. 9. οὐδὲν διέκρινε, he put no difference betwixt them and us, purifying their hearts by faith, 1 Cor. 4. 7. Τίς σε διακρίνει, who put the difference betwixt thee, and others; Chap. 11. 29. μὴ διακρίνων, Not diſcerning the Lord's body, or not diſcriminating it from other Meats. So Jude 22. Of ſome have compaſſion, διακρινόμενοι, making a difference.

Ibid. Πᾶν δὲ ὃ οὐκ ἐκ πίστεως, whatever is not w of faith.] i. e. With a due Perſwaſion of the Lawfulneſs of the Action; for that is the Faith ſpoken of in the foregoing Verſe, when the Apoſtle ſaith, Haſt thou faith? have it to thy ſelf; and that is the Faith which ſtands oppoſed to doubting in this Verſe; and to this Faith alone agree the preceding words, He that makes a diſcrimination between Meats lawful, and unlawful, and yet eats of them without diſcrimination, is condemned by his own Conſcience, if he eats, becauſe he eateth not of Faith, or with Perſwaſion of the Lawfulneſs of Eating what he doth partake of.

CHAPTER XV.

Verſe 1. WE then that are ſtrong, [and rightly underſtand our Chriſtian liberty, and duty,] ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, [being careful to forbear the doing that which doth ſcandalize, and hurt the Souls of them who have not this knowledge,] and not to [do things becauſe they] pleaſe our ſelves, [when our weak Brother is thus injured by them.]

2. Let [therefore] every one [of us rather chuſe to] pleaſe his neighbour for his good, a to [the] [a] edification [of him in his Chriſtian Faith.]

3. For even Chriſt, [whoſe example we are called to imitate,) pleaſed not himſelf, [i. e. indulged not ſo to his own pleaſure, eaſe, and quiet, as to neglect the glory of God, or the good of others,] but [willingly bore with the infirmities, and ſuſtained the reproaches of b men;] [b] as it is written [of him, Pſal. 69. 9.] The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me; [i. e. he was afflicted for them, his zeal for the glory of God, and the good of Souls, cauſed him patiently to endure the contradiction of ſinners, Heb. 12. 2, 3. To bear the Croſs they laid, and deſpiſe the ſhame they caſt upon him; which ſure is much more than to abſtain from a little meat, on the account of others.]

4. lation, [who works this patience in us, and gives this conſolation to us,] grant you to be like-minded one towards another; [i. e. to have a like concern for others, as for your ſelves,] according to [the Example of] Chriſt Jeſus.

6. That ye [thus bearing with the Infirmities of the weak, and thus receiving one c another into Communion,] may c with one mind and one mouth [in your Aſſemblies]
d glorifie [and worſhip] God, even the d Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [or the God, and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.]

7. Wherefore receive ye one another, [Jew, and Gentile, into mutual love and fellowſhip, without contention, about the things in which your judgments differ,] as Chriſt alſo received us [both, reconciling both to God in one Body on the Croſs, and to one another, Coloſſ. 1. 20. Eph. 2. 14.] to the Glory of God, [which will be much promoted by this Union.]

8. [As he hath received us, λέγω δ'] Now I ſay, that Jeſus Chriſt was a Miniſter of the Circumciſion [or the Jews,] for [the eſtabliſhment of] the truth of God, to confirm the promiſes made to the Fathers [of that Nation, and ſo he ſhewed his love and mercy towards them.]

9. And [he was alſo the Saviour of the Gentiles,] that the Gentiles [alſo] might glorifie God for his mercy [to them,] as it is e written, [Pſal. 18. 49.] for this cauſe I e will confeſs to thee, [i. e. Praiſe, and celebrate thee] among the Gentiles, [or ἐν ἔθνεσι, with the Gentiles] and [will] ſing to thy name.

10. And again, he [the ſame David] ſaith [Pſal. 67. 4.] rejoice ye Gentiles with his People.

11. And again, [Pſal. 117. 1.] Praiſe the Lord all ye Gentiles, and laud him all ye People.

f 12. And again f Eſaias ſaith, [Chap. 11. 1, 10.] There ſhall be a root of Jeſſe, and he that ſhall riſe to reign over the Gentiles, in him ſhall the Gentiles truſt.

13. Now [may] the God of hope fill you with all joy, and peace, [the fruits of hope,] in believing [thoſe things,] that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghoſt, [witneſſing to your Spirits that ye are the Sons of God, Chap. 8. 16, 17. and ſhedding abroad the ſenſe of his love in your hearts, Chap. 5. 5. and ſo ſealing you up to the Day of Redemption, Eph. 4. 30.]

14. And [this I pray, not doubting the Aſſiſtance of this good Spirit with you, for] I my ſelf alſo am perſwaded of you, my Brethren, that ye are alſo full of goodneſs, filled [by the Spirit] with all knowledge, able alſo to admoniſh one another.

15. Nevertheleſs, I have written the more boldly to you in ſome ſort, [Gr. ἀπὸ μέρους, as to the Gentile part of you; See Note on 2 Cor. 2. 5.] as putting you in mind [of the favour of God to you Gentiles, and your duty to him,] becauſe of the grace that is given to me of God, [i. e. becauſe of the Apoſtolical Office by him committed to me. See Note on Rom. 1. 5.]

16. That I ſhould be the Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles, g miniſtring the g
Goſpel of God, [i. e. exerciſing my ſelf in in the Offices of the Goſpel, as the Prieſt in the Legal Services,] that the offering up of the Gentiles [by me] might be acceptable, being ſanctified [not with ſalt, or any other libamen, but] by [the effuſion of] the Holy Ghoſt [upon them.]

17. [And this I have ſo effectually performed by his grace, that] I have therefore whereof I may glory, through [the aſſiſtance of] Jeſus Chriſt, in thoſe things which pertain to [my Service of] God [in this Goſpel.]

18. [And here I ſhall only mention what I my ſelf, by the aſſiſtance of this grace, have done] For I will not dare to ſpeak of any of thoſe things which Chriſt hath not [but only of thoſe which he hath] wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient by word and deed.

19. [Viz. that he hath aſſiſted me in preaching the Goſpel] h through mighty h [Gr. ἐν δυνάμει, with the power of] ſigns and wonders, by the power of the Spirt of God; ſo that from Jeruſalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have fully preached the Goſpel of Chriſt.

20. Yea, ſo have I ſtrived to preach the Goſpel, [as to do it,] not where Chriſt was named, [i. e. preached by others before me,] leſt I ſhould build upon a another man's foundation.

21. But [my preaching hath been] as it is written, [Iſa. 52. 15.] to whom he was not ſpoken of, they ſhall ſee, and they that have not heard, ſhall underſtand.

22. For which cauſe alſo [wherefore by going from one Region to another to preach the Goſpel,] I have been much hindred from coming to you.

23. But now having no more place[s] in theſe parts [unacquainted with the Goſpel,] and having a great deſire theſe many years to come to you;

24. Whenſoever I take my [intended] journey into Spain, i I will [by God's aſſiſtance] come to you; for I truſt to ſee you i in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if firſt I be ſomewhat filled [i. e. ſatisfied] with your Company.

25. But now I go to Jeruſalem to miniſter to [the neceſſities of] the Saints [there.]

26. For it hath pleaſed them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain Contribution for the poor Saints which are at Jeruſalem;

27. It hath pleaſed them [I ſay,] and [with good reaſon, ſeeing] their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their ſpiritual things, [receiving the Goſpel from Judea,] their duty is alſo [in gratitude] to miniſter to them in carnal things.

28. When therefore I have performed this [charitable Office,] and have ſealed [and ſecured] to them this fruit [of the Gentiles Liberality,] I will come by you into Spain.]

29. And I am ſure, that when I come to you, I ſhall come in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel of Chriſt, [or with a full impartment of ſpiritual gifts to you; See Note on Chap. 1. 11.]

30. Now I beſeech you, brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, and for the love [which is the fruit] of the ſpirit, that you k ſtrive together with me, in your Prayers to God for me;

31. That I may be delivered from them that do not believe in Judea, and that my ſervice which I have for [my Brethren in] Jeruſalem, may be accepted of the Saints [there, though it come from the Churches of the Gentiles]

32. That I may come to you with [the greater] joy, by the will of God, and may with you be refreſhed.

33. Now the God of Peace be with you all. Amen.

And then the Body is edified, (1.) By the mutual Love of its Members; in which ſenſe, ſaith the Apoſtle, Charity edifieth, 1 Cor. 8. 1. and this is οἰκοδομὴ ἐν ἀγάπῃ, Edification in Love, Eph. 4. 16. (2.) And thus we are bid to follow after the things which make for peace, and τὰ τῆς οἰκοδομῆς τὰ εἰς ἀλλήλους, the Edification of one of us unto another, Chap. 14. 19. Now the Edification which conſiſts in Knowledge of our Chriſtian Duty, cannot be here underſtood, becauſe our Forbearance of that which ſcandalizes our Brother, tends not to the Information of his Underſtanding, but, as it is an Act of Charity, it tends to the Edification of the Body in Love, as it is the avoiding that which may ſcandalize the weak, and ſo induce him to ſtumble at, and fall off from Chriſtianity, it tends to his Edification in the Faith; and as it is receiving the weak into Fellowſhip and Communion, notwithſtanding his different Conceſſions from us, it tends to the Edifying the Body in Union, and Peace.

Ver. 3. g Ver. 16. Ἱερουργοῦντα τὸ εὐαγγέλιον, miniſtring the Goſpel.] Here is a plain Alluſion to the Jewiſh Sacrifices offered by the Prieſt, and ſanctified, or made acceptable, and ſavoury by the Libamen offered with it; for he compares himſelf in the Preaching of the Goſpel to the Prieſt, Sacris operanti, converſant about his Sacrifice, to prepare, and fit it to be offered. The Gentiles dedicated by him to the Service of God, are his Sacrifice, or Oblation, the Holy Spirit is the Libamen poured on this Sacrifice, by which they are ſanctified, and rendred εὐπρόσδεκτα acceptable to God. See Numb. 15. 3, 10.

i Ver. 24. Ἐλπίσομαι πορεύεσθαι πρὸς ὑμᾶς, I will come to you, &c.] Here is an Evidence that St. Paul in purpoſes of this Nature, was not aſſiſted by the Holy Ghoſt, they being purpoſes, which by the Providence of God he was hindred from fulfilling. 'Tis alſo evident from Chap. 1. 10, 11. and from this, and from the 28th Verſe, that St. Paul writ this Epiſtle while he was at liberty, and before Chriſt had told him he muſt teſtifie of him at Rome, Acts 23. 11. and before he was conſtrained to Appeal to Cæſar, Acts 25. 11. for in this Epiſtle he ſpeaks ſtill of his Journey to Rome, and from thence to Spain, as of a voluntary Undertaking, hoping then that the unbelieving Jews would not have given him that Diſturbance when he went up to Jeruſalem with his Alms gathered for his Nation, which afterwards he found they did.

Ver. 30. Ἐν ταῖς προσευχαῖς, in your prayers for me.] If Paul, ſaith Eſthius, might deſire the prayers of the Romans, why might not the Romans deſire the prayers of Paul? I anſwer, they might deſire his prayers, as he did theirs, by an Epiſtle directed to him to pray for them; he adds, If they might deſire his prayers whilſt living, why not when dead, and reigning with Chriſt? I anſwer, becauſe then they could direct no Epiſtle to him, or any other way acquaint him with their mind. Hence Elijah being to be taken up into Heaven, ſpeaks to Eliſha thus, Ask what I ſhall do for thee, before I am taken away from thee, 2 Kings 2. 9. Note alſo, That we ſay not that ſuch deſires of the prayers of Saints departed, are injurious to the Interceſſion of Chriſt, but that they are Idolatrous, implying that Creatures are Omniſcient, Omnipreſent, and have the Knowledge of the Heart. k i Ver. 11. Τὺς ὄντας ἐν Κυρίῳ, which are in the Lord.] From theſe two Verſes is confirmed our Obſervation, that when the whole Family was converted, the Apoſtle writes to the Church in ſuch a Houſe, when not, the Salutation is directed to as many as were in the Lord in that Family, according to the Deſcant of (c) Origen on the place.

k Ver. 13. Τὸν ἐκλεκτὸν ἐν Κυρίῳ, choſen in the Lord.] One of great Excellency in Chriſtianity, as we ſay, a choice Man; ſo the word ἐκλεκτὸς often ſignifies, Pſal. 78. 31. They ſmote down τὺς ἐκλεκτὺς the choſen men that were of Iſrael. So ἐκλεκτὰ μνημεῖα are choice Sepulchres, Gen. 23. 6. ἐκλεκτὰ τῶν δώρων, choice Gifts, Deut. 12. 11. and ἄνδρες ἐκλεκτοὶ, choice Men, Judges 20. 16. See Acts 15. 25, 26.

l Ver. 15. Πάντας τὺς ἁγίυς, all the Saints.] Note here that Saints and Chriſtian Brethren are all one.

m Ver. 16. Ἐν φιλήματι ἁγίῳ, with an holy kiſs.] Of the Kiſs of Charity, let it be obſerved, (1.) That it was uſed at the end of the Prayer before the Celebration of the Sacrament. So (d) Juſtin Martyr ſaith expreſly, ἀλλήλυς φιλήματι ἀσπαζόμεθα παυσαμένυς τῶν εὐχῶν, Prayers being ended, we ſalute one another with an holy kiſs, and then the Bread and Cup is brought to the Preſident. (2.) That this ſeems to have been done by the Men apart, and the Women apart, as their (e) ſeparate places in the Church, or Synagogue, ſeemed to require. So the (f) Apoſtolical Inſtitutions ſay, Theſe things being done, let the Men apart, and the Women apart, ſalute one another with a kiſs in the Lord. Though (g) Origen ſeems to make this Practice proper to the Men only.

n Ver. 17. Σκοπεῖν τὺς τὰς διχοστασίας, ϗ τὰ σκάνδαλα ποιῦντας, mark them that cauſe diviſions and ſcandals.] By Scandals the Greek Scholiaſts underſtand Hereſies, whereas, through the whole New Teſtament, this word ſeems rather to import ſuch Actions as give occaſion to others to ſtumble at, and fall off from the Chriſtian Faith. See Note on Matth. 18. 6. Rom. 14. 13. Eſthius here notes, (1.) That unwritten Traditions may be hence proved, becauſe the Apoſtle ſaith, Mark them that cauſe offences contrary, not to the Scriptures, but to the Doctrine they had received. But to make this Argument of any force, he muſt prove, that the Doctrine they had received was not contained in the Scriptures, either then, or after written. (2.) The Apoſtle plainly ſpeaks here of Doctrines received from the mouths of the Apoſtles by thoſe very Men to whom he writ; and when he hath once proved the unwritten Traditions of the Church of Rome to be ſuch, we ſhall be ready to receive them. (3.) He adds, That this place makes for a diligent inquiſition after Hereticks, as if St. Paul was ſetting up an Inquiſition here; whereas the word σκοπεῖν doth only ſignifie, to mark, or to look to them, as Luke 11. 35. 2 Cor. 4. 18. Gal. 6. 1. Philip. 2. 4. Nor doth he exhort the Romans to obſerve them in order to the apprehending or puniſhing, but, as he himſelf notes, in order to the declining of them. (3.) He obſerves truly, that the Apoſtle here inſinuates, that even the vulgar People may from ſome general Principles diſcern the true Doctrine, and that which was delivered by the Apoſtles, from that which was falſe, and was not ſo delivered; but this was only then to be done, by comparing that which was thus delivered from the mouth of the Apoſtles, who preached it by the aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt, and confirmed their Doctrine by Miracles, with that which was delivered beſides, or in oppoſition to it, and was not ſo confirmed; and this can only now be done by them, by comparing all Pre-

AN APPENDIX to Chap. XI.

CONTAINING

A DISCOURSE OF THE Calling of the JEWS TO THE CHRISTIAN FAITH.

TO strengthen the Arguments which I have offered from this Chapter for the Conversion of the Jewish Nation to the Christian Faith, let it be noted,

1. That this hath been the constant Doctrine of the Church of Christ, owned by the Greek and Latin Fathers, and by all Commentators I have met with on this Place. Among the Greek Fathers, by (e) St. Chrysostom, whose words are these; When the fulness of the Gentiles is come in, then all Israel shall be saved, at the time of Christ's second coming, and the Consummation of all things. After the Gentiles have receiv'd the Salutary Faith, they also shall receive the Faith, saith (f) Theodoret, when the great Elias shall come, and preach it to them. (g) Gennadius descants upon the words of the Apostle thus: They being blinded and excluded from Salvation, God translated this Salvation to you. And again, all you being called, and come in, Grace shall again receive them all, for this the Prophet Isaiah testifies. Before, saith (h) Photius, the Heathens being disobedient, the Jews were saved. Again, the Jews becoming disobedient, the Gentiles are saved; and the Gentiles being saved, the Jews, emulating them, shall be also saved. Because saith (i) Theophylact, the Jews being then blinded, have not obtain'd this Salvation, that which the Apostle speaks of, shall happen to them, afterwards. They of the People of Israel who believed not, and for their unbelief were deserted, that God's Mercy might be shewed to you, shall not be always left in unbelief, saith (k) Origen, but when the dispensation of the fulness of the Gentiles is compleated, they also shall find mercy. And therefore when Celsus had, as it were, prophesied, That the Jews should presently perish, this, saith Origen, he said, not knowing how present God was formerly with them, and how that by their sin, Salvation came to the Gentiles, and their fall brought Riches to the World, (l) till the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, that after this, all Israel, which Celsus understands not, may be saved. In his fifth Homily upon Jeremiah he exhorts the Christian to live so as that he may not receive a Bill of Divorce, (m) but may enter into the holy Inheritance. And Iſrael may then alſo enter; for if the fulneſs of the Gentiles be come in, then all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, and there ſhall be one Fold, and one Shepherd. In his Commentary on St. Matthew, he ſaith, ibid. p. 410. C. thoſe that whip'd Chriſt were whipped, and ſhall be whipped till the fulneſs of the Gentiles is come in: And p. 397. D. that they were worthy to be deſerted, either till the fulneſs of the Gentiles was come in, or till they had fulfil'd the puniſhment of their ſins. Nor is this denied by him in the Paſſage cited from his Book againſt Celſus; for he ſaith not there, They ſhould never be converted to the Chriſtian Faith, but that they ſhould never be reſtored to their own Worſhip, or Country, that they had been long ſince caſt ἐκ τιμίης ἀγιστείας καὶ λαμπρείας out from their venerable Service, and Ceremonies, or Purgations; (n) and we confidently affirm ὅτι οὐδ' ἀποκαταστήσονται that they ſhall never be reſtored again to Jeruſalem, or the Land of Promiſe, which before, ſaith he, they were, for then, being captivated, they returned to their own Land, and enjoy'd their Laws as before, which now they ſhall never be reſtored to. All the Latin Fathers who have left us any Commentaries, or Notes on this Epiſtle, are plainly of the ſame mind, as you may ſee by conſulting Hilary the Deacon, Primaſius, Sedulius, and Haymo upon the 25*th* Verſe of this Chapter. This alſo many of the Fathers do conclude,

1. From thoſe words of the Prophet Hoſea, The Children of Iſrael ſhall abide many days without a King, and without a Prince, and without a Sacrifice, and without an Altar, and without an Ephod, and without Teraphim. Afterward ſhall the Children of Iſrael return, and ſeek the Lord their God, and David their King, and ſhall fear the Lord, and his goadneſs in the latter days, Hoſ. 3. 4, 5. Which words (o) St. Auſtin having produced, to prove that the carnal Iſraelites, who now will not believe, ſhall hereafter do ſo, he ſaith, nothing is more manifeſt then that by David their King, the Prophet here meaneth Jeſus Chriſt, in whom they now believe not. This, ſaith (p) St. Jerom, is the blindneſs which hath hapned to Iſrael in part, that the fulneſs of the Gentiles might come in, and all Iſrael be ſaved, and after a long time might return and ſeek the Lord. Some, ſaith he, do interpret this of the Captivity of Babylon, but others, ſaith he, with us, refer it to a time yet future. St. Cyril ſaith, Here is a manifeſt Declaration of what ſhould hereafter happen to the Adulterous Synagogue, and that ſhe ſhould be received again, that (q) Iſrael ſhould not always be rejected, but being recall'd, and converted to the Faith, ſhould own Chriſt according to the fleſh to be the King of all, and that this glorious grace ſhould be afforded to her at the end of the World.

2*ly*, That in which they univerſally agree, excepting only St. Jerom, is that Elias is to come, before the end of the World, to convert the Jews to Chriſt; and this they gather from thoſe words of Malachi, Behold, I will ſend you Elijah the Prophet, before the great and terrible day of the Lord, and he ſhall turn the hearts of the Fathers to the Children, Mal. 4. 5, 6. And thoſe of Chriſt, Elias truly ſhall come firſt, and ſhall reſtore all things, Matth. 17. 11. We know, ſaith Juſtin Martyr, Dial. cum Tryph. p. 268. & p. 259. p. 306. that Elias ſhall come before our Lord's ſecond Advent, and that then the Jews ſhall know him whom they have diſhonoured. Origen (r) ſays, That by thoſe words of Malachi, it ſeemeth to appear that Elias ſhall come before Chriſt, and by his ſacred words, and the diſpoſitions they ſhall work in their ſouls, ſhall prepare them for the coming of Chriſt. Theodoret Paraphraſeth the words of Malachi thus, Leſt at my ſecond coming, finding you all in unbelief, I ſhould ſubject you to eternal puniſhments, (s) Elias ſhall come firſt, and teach you of my Advent, and ſhall prevail upon you, O Jews, without doubting, to joyn your ſelves to the Churches of the Gentiles, and to be made one. Yea even St. Jerom upon thoſe words of St. Matthew, Elias indeed ſhall come, and reſtore all things, deſcants thus, (t) He who is to come in the body at our Lord's ſecond Advent, came now by John in virtue, and the Spirit. And in his Comment on the third of Habakkuk, ver. 17. having cited thoſe words of Chriſt ſpoken of the barren

Fig-tree, Let no fruit grow on thee for ever, Matth. 21.19. He bids us (u) diligently conſider, that he ſaith not for ever and ever, but only in ſeculum for that Age; and when that Age is paſt, and the fulneſs of the Gentiles is come in, then ſhall this Fig-tree bring forth her fruits, and all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved. So generally did this Doctrine obtain among the Ancients.

Moreover, As this Doctrine hath the ſuffrage of all the Ancient Fathers, and Commentators do thus generally agree in Expoſition of this Chapter, ſo is it eaſie to confirm it by ſhewing the abſurdity of other Expoſitions, and the plain inconſiſtence of them both with truth, and with the words of the Apoſtle. For,

1*ſt*. The words of the Apoſtle cannot be expounded, as (x) Dr. Lightfoot, and others do interpret them, of the ſpiritual Iſrael, i. e. of all thoſe Perſons, whether Jews, or Gentile, which belong to God's Election. For, 1. The Text ſpeaks of that which was a Myſtery to the believing Gentiles, i. e. a Secret not obvious to their Underſtanding Now that God's Elect, whether Jew, or Gentile, ſhould be ſaved, could be no Myſtery, but the firſt Article of Chriſtian Faith; and ſo of this the Apoſtle could not ſay, I would not have you ignorant, leſt you ſhould be wiſe in your own conceit, eſpecially ſince the Apoſtle had before ſaid of the believing Jews, there is now an election of Grace, v. 5. and v. 7. the Election hath obtained.

2*ly*, The Jews, and Iſraelites here mentioned, are manifeſtly diſtinguiſhed from the Elect of Iſrael, by this Character, that they were the blinded Iſrael, v. 7. who lay under a ſpiritual ſlumber, v. 8 whoſe eyes were blinded that they ſaw not, v. 10. who had ſtumbled at the ſtumbling ſtone, v. 11. they are that Iſrael whoſe caſting away was the riches of the world, whoſe diminution was their fulneſs, v. 12. they are Iſrael according to the fleſh, v. 14. the branches broken off for unbelief, v. 17, 19, 20. they who believed not, v. 23, 30, 31, 32. and who were enemies to the Goſpel for the Gentiles ſake, v. 29. this is the Iſrael of whom the Apoſtle here aſſerts they ſhall be ſaved, of this blinded, this unbelieving, this Iſrael cut off, theſe branches broken from their own Olive-tree, theſe Enemies to the converted Gentiles, as there hath been, ſaith the Apoſtle, a diminution, ſo ſhall there be a fulneſs, as there hath been a caſting them off, ſo ſhall there be a reception of them, as there hath been a breaking them off from their own Olive-tree, ſo ſhall there be an inſerting of them into it again, v. 24. as there hath been a time of their unbelief, and ſo of ſeverity, v. 22. and of wrath to them, Rom. 9.22. 1 Theſſ. 2.16. ſo ſhall there be a time of mercy, v. 31, 32. Now ſince the unbelief, the diminution, the rejecting, the breaking the branches off, muſt neceſſarily be underſtood of Iſrael according to the fleſh, of the natural branches of the ſtock of Abraham, v. 22, 24. Beloved for the Father's ſake, v. 28. of the Seed of Jacob, whoſe ſins were not yet taken away, v. 26. If you underſtand the fulneſs, the reception, the ingraffing of them, the ſalvation here mentioned of the ſpiritual Iſrael, and of the elect oppoſed to Iſrael that was blinded, v. 7. the Antitheſis is wholly loſt, ſince then the diminution, and the fulneſs, the rejection and reception, the breaking off, and the inſertion, the ſeverity, and the mercy, will not relate to the ſame perſons. Again, blindneſs in part hath hapned to Iſrael, ſaith the Apoſtle, till the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall come in, and then all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, now certainly the blindneſs hapned to Iſrael according to the fleſh, and muſt not the Antitheſis require that the ſalvation ſhould belong to the ſame Iſrael? It hapned not to the Elect, for the Election, ſaith the Apoſtle, hath obtained, and the reſt were blinded, and therefore the Salvation cannot reſpect them only.

Moreover, to whom did this blindneſs happen? was it not to the National Church, and Body of the Jews? to them to whom our Saviour had ſaid, whilſt you have the light believe in the light, leaſt darkneſs come upon you, Joh. 12.35. Is it not of the Children of Iſrael that the Apoſtle ſaith, they could not ſee to the end of that which was to be aboliſhed, 2 Cor. 3.13, 14. but their minds are blinded, for until this day remaineth the ſame vail untaken away? was it not that very People who had eyes, and ſaw not, ears, and heard not; whoſe heart was waxed groſs, their ears dull, and their eyes cloſed, Iſa. 6.9. Acts 28. 26, 27. v. 8, 10. and from whoſe eyes were hid the things which belonged to their peace, becauſe they knew not the time of their viſitation? Luke 19.42, 44. To whom belonged this ἀποβολὴ rejection, or caſting off? doth it not reſpect the generality of that Church, and Nation? doth not our Saviour ſay of them, the children of the Kingdom ſhall be caſt out into outer darkneſs. Matth. 8.12. that their houſe ſhould be left unto them deſolate, Matth. 23.38. that the Kingdom of God ſhould be taken from them, and given to a Nation bringing forth the fruits thereof? Matth. 21.41. Who were the branches broken off, are they not all the unbelieving Jews? v. 20. i.e. the Bulk, and Body of that Church, and Nation? doth not our Saviour tell them, that their vineyard ſhould be let out to other Huſ- bandmen, Matth. 21. 41. are not they that barren Tree which was to be hewen down? Luke 13. 7, 9. and muſt not then the recovery of them from this blindneſs, the receiving of them again, the ingraffing them into their own Olive-tree, reſpect not ſome few ſtragling Converts of them only, but the chief Bulk, or Body of that Nation?

3*ly*, It is eaſie to obſerve two Queſtions in this Chapter; the firſt is this, λέγω οὖν μὴ ἀπώσατο, &c. I ſay then hath God caſt off his people, v. 1. to which the Anſwer is, God hath not caſt off his people whom he foreknew, or the remnant according to the election of grace, v. 5, 7. but only the obdurate Jew, v. 8, 9, 10. The ſecond is this, λέγω οὖν μὴ ἔπταισαν, ἵνα πέσωσι, I ſay then have theſe unbelieving Jews, who ſtumbled at the ſtumbling ſtone, Chap. 9. 32, 33. or ſtumbled, that they ſhould fall entirely, ſo as that they never riſe again? and to this the Apoſtle anſwers in the negative from v. 11. to the 25*th*, and proves it from v 25. to the 32*d*. 'Tis therefore evident, that his diſcourſe from v. 11. to the 32. reſpects not the ſpiritual Iſrael, i.e. the Gentile Converts, nor the Elect of Iſrael, but the obdurate, blinded Nation which God had then caſt off. And

4*ly*, Here is evidently a time prefix'd for this Converſion of the Jews, viz when the fulneſs of the Gentiles is come in; here is a blindneſs to continue on them till that time; whilſt blindneſs doth continue on them, their ſalvation is not to be expected, and when they ſhall be ſaved, that blindneſs, of neceſſity, muſt ceaſe; but to the ſpiritual Iſrael, or the Elect converted at all times, nothing of this can be applied, for their Converſion is not limited to the time of the coming in of the fulneſs of the Gentiles, but they are converted in every Age, and at all Times.

2*ly*, The Opinion of the Reverend Dr. Hammond is to this effect: 'I. (y) That it is not 'neceſſary that this ſhould ſtill belong to a-'ny yet future return of the Jews in a viſible 'and remarkable manner, the Circumſtances 'of the Context applying it to the firſt times 'wherein the Epiſtle was writ.

2. (z) 'That the fulneſs of the Jews men-'tioned v. 12. is their being added to the 'Church, their coming in, and being gathered, 'and laying holding of the Faith, being pro-'voked ſo to do by ſeeing the Gentiles be-'lieve, and ſo filling up the Vacuities, as it 'were, which were formerly in the Church 'by their ſtanding out impenitently; and the 'fulneſs of the Gentiles, is the Gentiles co-'ming into the Church, receiving the Faith, 'they then becoming one part of the viſible 'Church, as the Jews another.

3*ly*, 'That the (a) Myſtery there mention-'ed is this, that a great part of the Jews are 'now become blind, and that that is made 'uſe of by God, that by occaſion of that the 'Goſpel may (by departing a while from 'them) be preached to, and received by the 'generality of the Gentiles, and they com-'pacted into Chriſtian Churches, and this in 'very mercy to thoſe Jews, that they, by ſee-'ing the Gentiles believe, might at length 'be provoked to do ſo too, by way of E-'mulation, v. 11. & 31.

4*ly*, 'That ſo (b) all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, 'i.e. all the true Children of Abraham, Jews, 'and Heathens both, but particularly the 'remnant of the Jews ſhall come in, and 'repent, and believe in Chriſt.

5*ly*, 'That the addition of (c) Jewiſh Be-'lievers ſhall be matter of confirmation of 'the Faith to the Gentiles, and a means to 'bring them all to receive it, to convert the 'Gentiles over all the World.

6*ly*, 'As for the truth of that, that as yet 'many more Jews ſhould repent, and receive 'the Goſpel, that, ſaith he, has been demon-'ſtrated by the event; (1.) When the Jews 'ſaw Chriſt's Predictions, Matth. 24. mani-'feſtly fulfilled in the Roman Armies ſitting 'down before the City, for then many turned 'Chriſtians, and went out of the City, and 'were delivered from the following Evils. 'And

2*ly*, 'After that, when the Temple and City 'were deſtroyed, and they brought into ſub-'jection by the Romans, then many were hum-'bled, and turn'd Chriſtians. And

3*ly*, 'After that alſo, in Juſtin Martyr's 'days, every day there were ſome that came 'in to be Chriſt's Diſciples. Now to theſe things I

Anſwer, 1*ſt*, That whereas this Reverend Perſon ſaith the Circumſtances of the Context apply this Converſion of the Jews to the times in which this Epiſtle was writ, i.e. about the Year of Chriſt 56. it ſeems extreamly evident, both from the Circumſtances of the Context, and from many other Scriptures, that nothing could more unfitly be aſſigned as the time of the Converſion of the then hardened, and rejected Jews than this. For

1. In the 9*th* Chapter of this Epiſtle, the Apoſtle calls our Lord Chriſt, the Holy Ghoſt, and his own Conſcience to witneſs, that he had great heavineſs, and continual ſorrow in his heart, on the account of the Infidelity of his Jewiſh Brethren, the ſpiritual ſlumber, and blindneſs which then was upon them, and their rejection by God, v. 1, 2, 3. And ver. 22. he plainly repreſents them as Veſſels of wrath fitted for deſtruction, and only reſerved, as Pharaoh was of old, for a more illuſtrious ruine, in which God's vengeance on them, and the cauſes of it, ſhould be conſpicuouſly ſeen.

And *v.*27. he proceeds to ſhew, from the Predictions of the Prophets, that only a little Remnant of them ſhould be ſaved; a Remnant like to thoſe Seven thouſand Men reſerved in the ten Tribes of Iſrael, when the whole viſible Body of them had revolted to Baal: And v. 31. ſpeaking of them in general, he ſaith, Iſrael hath not attained to juſtification, becauſe they ſought it not of faith, but ſtumbled at the Meſſiah, even at that Jeſus who is the end of the Law for juſtification to every one that believeth, Chap. 10. 4. He being to them a Stone of ſtumbling, a Rock of offence.

In the 10 Chapter, he declares that they had not ſubmitted to the righteouſneſs which was of God through faith, v. 2, 3. and from ver. 16. to the end of that Chapter, he proves that the preaching of the Goſpel to the Gentiles, and the incredulity of the Jews, was a thing long ago foretold in the Prophetick Writings. In this Chapter, he begins with the Enquiry to which his former Diſcourſe, and the general Infidelity of that People had given occaſion, viz. Hath God entirely caſt off his people? and anſwers it by ſaying, That as in the time of Elias, in that general Revolt of the ten Tribes, God ſtill reſerved Seven thouſand who had not bowed the knee to Baal, οὕτως καὶ ἐν τῷ νῦν καιρῷ, ſo in this ſeaſon alſo he had reſerved a like Remnant according to the election of grace, v. 5. confeſſing notwithſtanding touching the Body of that Church, and People, that Iſrael had not attained to that righteouſneſs it ſought for, but was, excepting this Election only, wholly blinded, that God had given them up to a ſpirit of ſlumber, and blinded their eyes, had broken them off for their infidelity, and had ſhewed his ſeverity upon them. Wherefore the times when this Epiſtle was written, being the times of the Apoſtle's heavineſs, and his continual ſorrow for their rejection; the times when they are repreſented by him as veſſels of wrath fitted for deſtruction; when the Prophets had foretold their Incredulity; when Iſrael had not attained to juſtification, but had ſtumbled at the Meſſiah; when they were ignorant of the Righteouſneſs of God, and had not ſubmitted to it; when to that very day they were blinded, and given up to a ſpiritual ſlumber; Is it poſſible that theſe ſhould be the very times aſſigned by the Apoſtle for the ceaſing of their blindneſs, and that ſo generally, that it might be truly ſaid, all Iſrael were then ſaved, and God had mercy on them all?

The ſame Apoſtle, Anno Chriſti 49. ſpeaks to them of that Nation thus; It was neceſſary that the Word of God ſhould be firſt ſpoken to you, but ſince you thruſt it from you, and judge your ſelves unworthy of eternal life, lo we turn (from you) to the Gentiles, Acts 13. 46. In his firſt Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians written A. D. 51. he declares of the Jews, that they killed the Lord Jeſus, and their own Prophets, and they perſecuted the Apoſtles; that they pleaſed not God, and were contrary to all men, 1 Theſſ. 2. 14, 15, 16. Forbidding us to ſpeak to the Gentiles that they might be ſaved, to fill up their ſins always, for the wrath is come upon them to the uttermoſt. That is, ſaith Dr. Hammond, By this they do ſo fill up the meaſure of their ſins, that the wrath of God, to the utter deſtruction of them, is now come out upon them, already denounced, and, within a very little while, moſt certain to overtake them. In his ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians, written before that to the Romans, tho' perhaps in the ſame year, he ſaith, that even then their minds were blinded, and the veil ſtill remained upon them. And when he came to Rome, about three years after the writing this Epiſtle, and preached to ſome of the cheif of them reſiding in that City, he declares that theſe words of Iſaiah were fulfilled upon them, Act. 28. 23, 28. viz. Hearing you ſhall hear, and ſhall not underſtand, and ſeeing you ſhall ſee, and not perceive, for the heart of this people is waxed groſs, and their ears are dull of hearing; and they have cloſed their eyes, leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their hearts, and be converted, and I ſhould heal them. Concluding thus, Be it known therefore to you, that the Salvation of God is ſent to the Gentiles, and they will hear it. Now after they had thus put away the Goſpel from them, and judged themſelves unworthy of eternal life, and the Apoſtles had thus turn'd from them to the Gentiles, after the wrath of God was thus determined to come upon them, εἰς τέλος, to the end, that is, ſay all the Ancient Commentators, not as in the times of the Judges, for twenty or forty years, or, as in the time of their Captivity, for ſeventy years, but for many Generations, after their minds were thus blinded, their eyes thus ſhut, their hearts thus hardened, can we expect this blindneſs ſuddenly ſhould ceaſe, and this wrath preſently give place to Mercy and Salvation?

2 That many of the Jews turned Chriſtians when they ſaw Chriſt's prediction, Matth. 24. fulfill'd, in the Roman Army ſitting down before that City, and went out of the City with the Chriſtians, and ſo were delivered from the following evils, is alſo ſaid without all ground, or teſtimony of Writers of thoſe times. (d) Epiphanius who lived in Paleſtine, and (†) Euſebius who was born, and educated there, give us an accurate Relation of this matter, and carefully inform us, that οἱ Μαθηταὶ, the Diſciples of Chriſt, οἱ ἐν Χριστῷ πεπιστευκότες, they that believed in Chriſt, being admoniſhed by an Angel, or by an Oracle ſo to do, left Jeruſalem, and went to Pella, where they were preſerved, but of one Convert of the Jews then made, they ſay not a word. How unlikely then is it that the ſame Epiphanius, who ſo particularly relates the converſion of one ſingle Aquila from Judaiſm to Chriſtianity, when they returned to Jeruſalem after the ruine of it, and his revolt again to Judaiſm, ſhould never ſpeak one word of theſe ſuppoſed Converts before their departure?

Moreover, this was the time when there happened a great Apoſtacy of the Jewiſh Converts, according to our Lord's Prediction, that becauſe iniquity ſhould then abound, the love of many ſhould wax cold, Matth. 24. 12. And therefore the Epiſtle to the Hebrews written in the 9th, the Epiſtle of St. James writ alſo in the 9th, and the Epiſtle of St. Peter writ in the 10th year of Nero, all near this very time, are very full of Exhortations to them that they would not be double minded, wavering, or unſtable in the faith, James 1. 6, 7, 8. that they would not count that fiery trial which was come to try them, a ſtrange thing, 1 Pet 4. 12. that they would patiently, and with long ſuffering endure it, as knowing they were happy who did thus endure, James 1. 12. & 5. 8, 10, 11. 1 Pet. 3. 13. & 4. 13, 14. & 5. 9, 10. The Epiſtle to the Hebrews is full of Exhortations to them, to ſee to it that there be not in them an evil heart of unbelief in departing from the living God, Hebr. 3. 12. that they hold the beginning of their confidence firm to the end, v. 14. to fear leſt a promiſe being made of entring into reſt, they ſhould fall ſhort of it through unbelief, Chap. 4. 1, 11. there being no renewing them to repentance, who after ſuch miraculous evidences of the truth, apoſtatized, Chap. 6. 6 and no more ſacrifice for ſin for them, 10. 25. that they would not caſt away their confidence, God having ſaid, Chap. 12. 35, 38. If any man draw back, my ſoul ſhall have no pleaſure in him; and that they would diligently look to it, leſt any man fail'd of the Grace of God, Chap. 12. 15. Theſe, ſaith our Saviour, are the times of vengeance, and of wrath upon the people, Luke 21. v. 22, 23. the times when the things belonging to their peace being hid from their eyes, their houſe was to be left unto them deſolate, Luke 19. 42, 43, 44. And could the times of the Apoſtacy, even of the converted Jews, be the times of the Salvation of the unbelieving Jews; Was it to be expected they ſhould then, more than ever, ſee the things belonging to their peace, when they were hidden from their eyes? or could the times of wrath, and vengeance upon that people, when the Avenger came out of Zion to puniſh the iniquity of Zion with the ſoreſt Judgments, be the very times when the Deliverer came out of Zion to turn away iniquity from Jacob?

3*ly*, Whereas 'tis added, that after that, when the Temple and City was deſtroyed, and they brought into ſubjection by the Romans, then many were humbled, and turn'd Chriſtians; and that after that, even in Juſtin Martyr's days, every day there were ſome who came in to be Chriſt's Diſciples. I anſwer,

1. That as for their Converſion when the Temple and City was deſtroy'd, I cannot find one word in Church Hiſtory concerning it, but much to the contrary: For 1*ſt*, Epiphanius ſpeaks particularly of the Return of the Chriſtians to Jeruſalem after the ruine of it, and of the Miracles they then wrought, and yet he mentions only one Aquila a Jew converted to the Chriſtian Faith; adding, that he ſoon after renounced the Faith, and turned to his former Judaiſm. And (e) Juſtin Martyr obſerves, in expreſs contradiction to the Doctor, that after their Country was deſtroy'd, and their City laid waſt, they repented not, but proceeded ſtill in their execrations of Chriſt, and of all that believed in him. And (f) Tertullian adds, that ſeeing from the time of Tiberius to Veſpaſian they repented not, their Land was made deſolate, and their Cities burnt with fire. And indeed this was the very time when wrath came actually upon them to the uttermoſt, when this barren Tree was hew'd down, and caſt into the fire, Luke 13. 7, 9. when their houſe was left deſolate, becauſe they would not be gathered; when all the righteous blood ſhed by them from Noah to that time, came upon them, and they had filled up the meaſure of their ſins, Matth. 23. 35, 37, 38. when the Kingdom was wholly taken from them; when the Son of Man came to take vengeance on them; and when he ſent forth his Armies to deſtroy thoſe Murtherers, and to burn up their City, becauſe they refuſed to come unto the marriage Feaſt, Matth. 22. 7. And could this be the time of their Humiliation and Converſion? Was this a fit time to expect the completion of thoſe words of St. Paul, concerning the ſending the Deliverer out of Zion, to turn away iniquity from Jacob, and to take away their ſins, and to ſhew mercy to them in ſuch a ſignal manner, that all Iſrael ſhould be ſaved?

To proceed to the Hiſtory of them in the following times: Juſtin Martyr in his Apology writ in the Year of the Lord 140. ſaith of the Jews in all places, that they were (g) as great Enemies to the Chriſtians in all places, as the Heathens were, and as ready to torment and kill them, when they could do it; and that this was evident from the laſt Jewiſh War, in which their Captain, Barchochebas, commanded only the Chriſtians to be tormented, if they refuſed to deny, and to blaſpheme the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Now this carries down the hatred of the Jews againſt Chriſtians, and their impenitency, till after the times both of Trajan and Hadrian. Some years after this he writ his Dialogue with Trypho; and there he informs us, that the (h) Jews ſtill continued to curſe thoſe who believed in Jeſus, and to lay violent hands upon them when they could do it, that even then their hand was high to do wickedneſs; they ſtill hating and killing Chriſtians as oft as it was in their power.

But we are told that this very Juſtin Martyr ſaith, that every day there were ſome (of them) who came in to be Chriſt's Diſciples.

I Anſwer, That what Juſtin Martyr there ſaith, relates not at all to any Jewiſh Converts, but to the Gentiles coming in from the Way of Deceit, to the Faith of Chriſt; and as he had told the Emperours in his Apology, p. 45. B. that the Conſummation of the World was deferr'd, διὰ τὸ σπέρμα τῶν Χριστιανῶν, for the Seed of Chriſtians which was then ſpringing up; ſo he tells Trypho, p. 256. D. that the Day of Judgment, of which he had before ſpoken, and of which the Pſalm he there citeth treats, was (i) deferr'd by God, becauſe he knew that ſome would come daily in to be Chriſt's Diſciples, and would quit the Way of Deceit. Now that this cannot be ſpoken of the Jews is evident, becauſe wrath was come upon them to the uttermoſt, as Juſtin Martyr often intimates, not ſaying that God had not brought wrath and judgment upon them; but only, that he had not brought the General Judgment on the World for this Cauſe; he goes on, and ſays, That every one of thoſe who thus believed, received Gifts from Chriſt as they were worthy: And this he proves, becauſe it was propheſied, that (k) after our Lord's aſcent to Heaven, he ſhould lead us captive from our Error, and ſhould give us Gifts; where the word πλάνη, uſed ordinarily of the Gentiles, deceived by Satan, and eſpecially the word ἡμᾶς, us, ſhew that the Martyr ſpeaks not of the Jews, but Gentile Converts; and ſo it follows, Therefore we Gentiles, who have received theſe Gifts, ſhew you Jews to be Fools, &c. So that the good Doctor was utterly miſtaken in applying this Paſſage to the Jews, as others, led by his Authority have done.

From this time to the days of Conſtantine, the Period aſſigned by Mr. Calvert for the Converſion mentioned by St. Paul, the Fathers generally repreſent them, as a Nation whoſe (l) ears were ſhut, and their heart hardened, declaring that the (m) Scripture had clearly foretold they ſhould be diſinherited, and fall off from the Grace of God. Origen (n) teſtifies, that God had turn'd his Providence from the Jews to the Gentiles; that they were wholly deſerted, and retained nothing of what before was venerable among them, nor any footſteps of the Divine Preſence with them; that after the Crucifixion of our Lord they were perfectly deſerted, and not to be converted till the end of the World. Tertullian (o) ſaith, that from the time that they crucified their Lord, God had taken from them the Prophet, Wiſeman, and the Holy Spirit, and had left them deſtitute of his Grace; and that only at his ſecond coming, he ſhould be received by them who had thus rejected him. And this ſeems moſt agreeable to our Lord's Predictions, That the Kingdom of God should be taken from them, and given to another Nation that would bring forth the fruit of it; that he would miserably destroy those Husbandmen, and would let out his Vineyard to other Husbandmen, who should render him the fruits in their season, Matth. 21. 41, 43. that none of them who were bidden, and refused, should taste of his Supper, Luke 14. 24. that many should come from the East, and West, and should sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the Kingdom of Heaven, but the Children of the Kingdom should be cast out into outer darkness, Matth. 8. 11, 12. that they who were first, (i. e. the Jews) should be the last, and they who were the last, (i. e. the Gentiles) should be first; for that this is spoken of the Rejection of the Jews, and the Calling of the Gentiles, is evident from these words of St. Luke, chap. 13. v. 26, 27, 28, 29, 30. Then shall ye (Jews) begin to say, we have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our Streets. But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence you are, depart from me all ye workkers of iniquity. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdom of God, and you your selves thrust out. And they shall come from the East, and the West, and from the North, and from the South, and shall sit down in the Kingdom of God. And behold, there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last. Now if we do consider that wrath was come upon this Nation εἰς τέλος to the end, can we imagine either that this Kingdom taken from them, this Vineyard let out to other Husbandmen, these Children of the Kingdom cast out into outer darkness, should suddenly receive again this Kingdom, be restored to this Vineyard, or admitted to the Light of the Gospel? or that all Israel should be saved, or iniquity should be taken away from Jacob, whilst that Nation lay under these dreadful Judgments! or that when our Lord hath so solemnly foretold there should be wrath upon this people, and they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all Nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the Gentiles, until the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled, Luke 21. 23, 24. this wrath should not continue on them whilst they were Captives in all Nations, and Jerusalem was trodden down?

Here, I confess, the Reverend Doctor (on Luke 21. 23. hath a peculiar Notion, 'That 'the tredding down of Jerusalem by the Gen- 'tiles, is not particularly their Victory over 'it by Titus, but their consequent possessing 'of it, even till Adrian's rebuilding a part of 'it, and calling it by his own name Ælia, and 'inhabiting it by Gentiles=Upon the doing 'of this, saith he, it followed, that as all the '(unbelieving) Jews were utterly banished 'the City, so the believing Jews return'd thi- 'ther again from their Dispersions, and inha- 'bited it again, and joyn'd, and made one 'Congregation, one Church with the Gen- 'tiles, which had then, till that time, received 'the Faith also, and till then continued a di- 'stinct Church from the Jews. By which it 'appears how punctually this Prediction, in 'our Notion, was fulfilled, that Jerusalem 'should be inhabited by the Gentiles, all the 'Jews in a manner excluded, till the time 'that the Gospel had been freely preach'd to 'the Gentiles, and by them in some eminent 'manner been receiv'd, and then it should be 're inhabited by the Jews again, i. e. the Chri- 'stian Jews, who being wrought on by emula- 'lation of the Gentiles, were now, many of 'them brought to receive the Faith. In his Note on the two Witnesses Rev. 11. b. he makes them to be the 'two Bishops of the Church in 'Jerusalem, one of the Jewish, the other of 'the Gentile Converts; which state of that 'Church continued, saith he, till the time of 'Marcus, a Gentile Bishop of that Church, 'i. e. from after the destruction of Jerusalem 'by Titus, till that time. But here again are many things delivered, not only without all suffrage of History, but in perfect opposition to the Histories of those times. For

1. Eusebius and Sulpitius Severus do inform us, that till the time of (p) Hadrian all the Bishops and Priests of Jerusalem were only of the Circumcision. Here therefore is no room for his two Bishops, one of the Jewish, the other of the Gentile Converts, till the time of Marcus.

2*ly*. They also do inform us, that all the Christians then at Jerusalem were of the Circumcision, and so not of the Gentiles; for Sulpitius observes that the Edict of (q) Hadrian, for banishing all the Jews from Jerusalem, happened for the advantage of the Christian Faith, because till then they almost all joyn'd the observation of the Law to the Faith of Christ. The Lord so ordering it, that, by this means, the servitude of that Law might be removed from the Church. Eusebius also saith that the whole Church of Jeruſalem (r) conſiſted of the faithful Hebrews; who from the times of the Apoſtles, had continued there till the ſiege of Bitter in the eighteenth year of Hadrian: So that here is no room for his ſuppoſed Gentile Converts to be govern'd by a Biſhop of the Gentiles.

3*ly*, They alſo do expreſly ſay, not only that the unbelieving Jews, but that all the Jews in general, were by this Edict baniſhed both from Jeruſalem, and from the Region round about it. He placed a Band of Souldiers, which ſhould baniſh all the Jews from Jeruſalem, ſaith Sulpitius; and this he did, quia Chriſtiani ex Judæis, potiſſimum putabantur, becauſe the Chriſtians were thought to have their riſe chiefly from the Jews. Euſebius ſaith, that τὸ πᾶν ἔθνος, the whole Nation was baniſhed from Jeruſalem, and the Country round about, and not permitted to ſet one foot in it. And then adds, that (s) the City being after this manner emptied of the Jews, and wholly cleared of its Inhabitants, and made up of Aliens flowing in thither, it was made a Roman City, and Colony, and in honour of the Emperor was named Ælia. The ſame is ſaid by him in his (†) Evangelical Demonſtrations; and by (t) Tertullian, that not one Jew was permitted to ſtay there. Euſebius alſo adds, that (u) ἡ αὐτόθι ἐκκλησίας ἐξ ἐθνῶν συνεστηθείσης, the Church there conſiſting only of Gentiles, Marcus was the firſt Biſhop of it. So that here is no place for the Doctor's ſuppoſed Church, conſiſting both of Jews and Gentiles, or for the inhabiting of it by the Chriſtian Jews, and much leſs for his feigned many of them brought now to receive the Faith by emulation of the Gentiles. In a word, Epiphanius ſaith, that Hadrian the Emperor, travelling to Jeruſalem, found there only ἡ ἐκκλησίαν μικρὰν, one little Church and ſeven Synagogues, ſtanding like Cottages; and was this likely to be the Seat of two great Biſhops? So that I find nothing agreeable to the truth of Hiſtory in all which this Reverend Perſon ſaith upon this Subject, and much leſs any thing confirmed, either by Scripture or Authority.

What hath been thus diſcourſed, is abundantly ſufficient to confute the Expoſition of this Reverend and Learned Perſon, as being not agreeable to matter of fact; for when was there any ſuch Converſion made of the Jews at the times aſſigned by him, which can in any probability of conſtruction anſwer to the Phraſes uſed by the Apoſtle, that by it all Iſrael ſhould be ſaved; ungodlineſs ſhould be turn'd away from Jacob; God ſhould bleſs them by taking away their ſins; that they who who now were blinded ſhould have the vail taken away from before their eyes; they who now were diminiſhed ſhould have again their fulneſs; and they who now were caſt off; ſhould be again received? This could not happen in the very times when this Epiſtle was firſt endited: For though it be true that St. James mentions many thouſands or myriads of Jewiſh Converts, all zealous of the Law, Acts 21.20. yet were they all converted at, or before the time of writing this Epiſtle, and ſo belonged only to the Remnant according to the Election of Grace here mentioned, not to the Reſidue that were blinded, of whoſe Converſion the Apoſtle here ſpeaks from *v.*12. to *v.*32. Nor could their Converſion, and Salvation be a Myſtery to be then revealed to the Gentiles. That no ſuch Converſion after the blindneſs mention'd in this Chapter happened to them, upon their ſeeing the abomination of deſolation ſtanding in the holy place, or ſoon after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, hath been already ſhew'd; and that Juſtin Martyr ſaith nothing of any ſuch remarkable Converſion of them, hath been alſo proved.

That there might be ſome Converſion of them in the Reign of Trajan, is by ſome argued from the words of Euſebius; That (x) Juſtus, then Biſhop of Jeruſalem, was one of the many Myriads or Thouſands of the Circumciſion which then had believed. Yet is this Teſtimony of no force, as to this matter; For 1. Grammarians well know that μύρια and μυριάδες, when put indefinitely, do only ſignifie many; now if the πόσαι μυριάδες, the many Myriads mentioned by St. James, hindred not, but that the Jewiſh Converts might be only a little Remnant, in reſpect to the blinded Jews; this may be as true of the ὅσαι μυριάδες, the ſo many Myriads of Euſebius, eſpecially if we conſider that moſt of them might be the very Perſons mention'd by St. James he carefully informing us that the whole Church of Jeruſalem, under her fifteen Biſhops of Jeruſalem, of which this Juſtus was the eleventh, was made up of Believers who had continued from the Apoſtle's time till the Wars and Siege under Hadrian. And ſpeaking of theſe Perſons, not as Men believing then, but as πεπιστευκότες men who had before that time embraced the Chriſtian Faith. And hence (z) Ruffinus makes no mention of theſe ſuppoſed Myriads, but only ſaith, That Juſtus being one of thoſe of the Circumciſion who had embraced the Faith of Chriſt, was made their Biſhop. In a word, this very Euſebius concurring ſo exactly with the Sentiments of all the other Fathers, that the Jews were then rejected, and lay under a Curſe, and proving from this very Apoſtle, and from the words contained in the beginning of this very Chapter, that they ſhould generally fall and be rejected for their unbelief, σπανίων ἐξ αὐτῶν εἰς τ σωτῆρα ϗ κύριον ἡμῶν πεπιστευκότων, (a) a very few of them only believing; and that (b) after the coming in of all Nations to the Chriſtian Faith, they did not yet ſee, or underſtand; he cannot be ſuppoſed to mention any thing which anſwers to the Converſion of the Jews intended in this Chapter, but muſt, with us, refer that to that glorious time when the (c) Prophecies ſhall more fully, ſaith he, be fulfilled, i.e. the time when the fulneſs mention'd by the Apoſtle ſhall come in. This being therefore all that hath been pleaded for the remarkable Converſion of the Jews, after the writing this Epiſtle; and this all being almoſt nothing, and far from bearing any Correſpondence to the comprehenſive words of the Apoſtle on that Subect; I conclude that no Converſion of this Nature happened to them, between the writing this Epiſtle, and the times of Conſtantine.

And whereas it is ſaid that this Converſion ſhould be wrought in them by way of Emulation, and that they ſhould lay hold of the Faith, being provoked ſo to do by ſeeing the Gentiles believe, it is confeſt that the Apoſtle repreſents this as a fit means to work this Emulation in them; but yet it is as certain that it hath not yet had the deſigned effect upon them, they being ſo far from being provoked to embrace the Chriſtian Faith, by ſeeing the Gentiles admitted to it, that this was to them the great ſtumbling block, and they were Enemies to the Goſpel for their Sakes, v. 28. they being prejudiced againſt it, becauſe the Gentiles were admitted to the Bleſſings of it without Circumciſion, and obſervance of the Law of Moſes. See Note on Gal. 3.4. & 6.12. This is that Prejudice of the Judaizing Chriſtians which the Apoſtle labours to remove in moſt of his Epiſtles, but more eſpecially in that to the Galatians; and as for the unbelieving Jews, they could not endure to hear of any to be ſent for the converting of the Gentiles, Acts 22. 21, 22. but perſecuted the Apoſtles upon this account, forbidding them to preach to the Gentiles that they might be ſaved, 1 Theſſ. 2.16. And the ſame Enmity to the Chriſtians ſeems to continue to this day among them upon the ſame accounts.

Wherefore there having been as yet, ſo far as we are able to diſcern, no ſuch remarkable Converſion of the Jews ſince the enditing this Epiſtle, and no ſuch happy Emulation of the converted Gentiles, as did provoke them to embrace the Chriſtian Faith, this could not be, as here the Doctor doth ſuggeſt, a confirmation of the Faith to the Gentiles, and much leſs a means to bring them all to receive it, or to convert the Gentiles over all the World. And what Records and Hiſtories make the leaſt mention of any ſuch Converſion of the Gentile World, on the account of the remarkable Converſion of the Jews after the writing this Epiſtle? When came in ſuch a fulneſs of the unbelieving Jews as was the Riches of the World, v. 12. or ſuch a Reception of them to the Chriſtian Faith as was unto them life from the dead, v. 15? or how can theſe Aſſertions be reconciled to the words of the Apoſtle; for if the coming in of the fulneſs of the Gentiles be their receiving the Faith in thoſe times, then the partial blindneſs of the Jews muſt ceaſe in thoſe times alſo; for blindneſs, ſaith the Apoſtle, hath happened to the Jews in part, and that blindneſs is to continue only till the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall come in: If then the blindneſs of the Jews is not yet ceaſed, but they have generally continued, even from the time of writing this Epiſtle, to this very moment, in as much blindneſs and obduracy, as they then lay under, and as much branches broken off, as now they are, it follows that the fulneſs of the Gentiles mentioned by the Apoſtle, is not yet come in.

Laſtly, The Myſtery mentioned v. 25. cannot be this, that by occaſion of the infidelity of the Jews, the Goſpel was preached to, and received of Gentiles, for of this the Apoſtle introduceth the believing Gentiles ſpeaking thus, v. 19. Thou wilt ſay then, the branches were broken off that I might be graffed in, &c. this therefore could not be to them a Myſtery. Nor could it be this, viz. that this was done in mercy to the Jews, viz. that they by ſeeing the Gentiles believe might at length be provoked to do ſo too. For of this the Apoſtle had ſpoken twice, declaring it to be foretold by Moſes, ſaying, I will provoke you to jealouſie by them that are no people, Chap. 10.19. And in this Chapter, ſaying, Through their fall, Salvation is come to the Gentiles to provoke them to jealouſie, v. 11. It remains then, as the Apoſtle and the primitive Church from him declare, that it be this, That when the time for the fulneſs, i.e. for the Converſion of the ſtill Heathen Gentiles is come in, then ſhall the blindneſs of the Jews be removed, and ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, and then all Nations ſhall flow in unto them, and their reception ſhall be to the Gentiles as life from the dead.

I think I have ſaid what is ſufficient to ſhew theſe words cannot admit the ſenſe impoſed upon them by the Reverend Dr. Hammond, I proceed now more largely to diſcuſs the proper import of that phraſe, The fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall come in. This is by ſome interpreted thus, Blindneſs hath happened to the Jews, till the full number of the Gentiles, which God ſhall call, be compleated. But this ſenſe is contrary to the expreſs words of the Apoſtle, who declares there ſhall be a greater and more glorious converſion of the Gentiles, then that which hap'ned by occaſion of their fall, that their fulneſs ſhould be much more the Riches of the Gentiles, then their fall was, v. 12. and that their coming in, ſhould be unto the Gentiles, as life from the dead, and ſhould much more enrich them than their caſting off, v. 15.

Note therefore that there is a double fulneſs of the Gentiles mentioned in the Holy Scriptures:

1. That which is ſpoken of v. 12. in theſe words, If the diminution of them was the fulneſs of the Gentiles, and this conſiſted in the Preaching of the Goſpel to all Nations, and the imparting the glad Tidings of Salvation to them, and was in a great meaſure to be accompliſhed before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the ruine of that Church and Nation, according to our Lord's Prediction in theſe words, The Goſpel of the Kingdom ſhall be preach'd in all the world for a witneſs to all Nations, and then ſhall the end come, Matth. 24. 14. Mark 13. 10.

2*ly*, There is to be another fulneſs of the Gentiles by a more glorious Converſion of them, and a coming in of thoſe Nations which have not hitherto embrac'd the Goſpel, or have relapſed into Heatheniſm or Mahometiſm, to be effected when this rejection of the Jews ſhall ceaſe, and God ſhall ſend the Deliverer out of Zion to turn away iniquity from Jacob; and of this only can we underſtand thoſe words of the Apoſtle, v. 12. If the fall of the Jews hath been (already) the Riches of the (Gentile) World, and the diminution of them the Riches of the Gentiles, how much more ſhall their fulneſs, i.e. the time of their Converſion be the encreaſe and fulneſs of the ſame Gentiles. And v. 15. if the caſting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what ſhall the receiving them again be (to the ſame world) but even as life from the dead. And v. 25. Blindneſs in part hath happened to the Jews, till the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall come in. This blindneſs therefore ſtill continuing upon them, as much as ever, another fulneſs of the Gentiles is to be expected, when it entirely ſhall be removed from them, and ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved.

2*ly*, Jeruſalem is yet trodden down of the Nations, and the Jews are yet Captives in all Nations, whereas the Captivity, and the treading down of Jeruſalem is to ceaſe when the times of the Gentiles are fulfill'd; according to thoſe words of Chriſt concerning the deſtruction of the Jews, They ſhall fall by the edge of the ſword, and ſhall be carried captives into all nations, and Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down, till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled, Luke 21. 24. i.e. till the times when they ſhall have a plenary Converſion by the coming in of the Jews, and ſhall no more Lord it over them, as now they do, but ſerve them, and flow in unto them. And to this purpoſe let it be noted,

1. That if we conſult Ancient Prophecies concerning the vaſt extent of our Saviour's Kingdom over all Nations, we ſhall find reaſon to believe they have not yet had their full accompliſhment upon them, for he hath not yet had the uttermoſt parts of the earth for his poſſeſſion, Pſal. 2. 8. God hath not yet made all People, Nations, and Languages to ſerve him, and all Dominions to obey him, Dan. 7. 4, 27. he hath not yet filled the whole earth, or broke in pieces, and conſumed all other Kingdoms, Dan. 2. 34, 35. That ſeems not yet fulfilled which was foretold by Micah, that the Lord ſhould be King over all the earth, Mich. 5. 4. and by Zachariah, that there ſhould be but one Lord, and his name one, Zach. 14. 9. and by David, that all Kings ſhould fall down before him, and all Nations ſerve him; that all the ends of the earth ſhould remember, and turn to the Lord, and all the kindreds of the Nations worſhip before him, Pſal. 72. 8. Theſe, and ſundry other ſuch like Prophecies there are, which yet were never accompliſh'd according to the full import of them. For as (d) Brerewood obſerves, If we divide the known Regions of the World into thirty equal parts, the Chriſtians part is (only) as five, the Mahumetans as ſix, the Idolaters as nineteen; whence we have reaſon to conclude, that there is yet a time to come, before the Conſummation of all things, in which our Saviour will yet once more diſplay the victorious Banner of his Croſs; and like a mighty Man of War march on conquering, and to conquer, till he hath confounded, or converted his enemies; and finally, conſummated his Victories in a glorious Triumph over all the Powers of the Earth, and made all Nations, Tongues, and Languages to ſerve him.

2*ly*, That there is ſtill to be a glorious Converſion of the Jewiſh Nation, as it ſeems evident from the words of the Apoſtle here, who ſpeaketh of a time when the partial blindneſs which then had happened to the Jews, and ſtill continues upon them, ſhould ceaſe; when God would turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob, and take away (the puniſhment of) their ſins, which yet he hath not done; when not a little Remnant only, as at our Lord's firſt Advent, but all Iſrael ſhould be ſaved; when that Iſrael, whoſe Minds were then, and ſtill are blinded by the Vail that is upon them, ſhall have that Vail taken away by their turning to the Lord. But alſo from thoſe Prophecies of the Old Teſtament, which promiſe to that Nation ſuch Kindneſs, Favour, and Salvation, as either hath not been at all as yet, or but imperfectly fulfilled; as when he promiſeth to bleſs her with ſuch Bleſſings as never ſhould be taken from her, and to ſhew Mercy to her, ſo as never to forſake her more. To this effect are theſe Expreſſions; As I have ſworn that the waters of Noah ſhould no more go over the earth, ſo I have ſworn that I would not be wrath with thee, nor rebuke thee, (any more;) for the mountains ſhall depart, and the hills be removed, but my kindneſs ſhall not depart from thee, neither ſhall the Covenant of my Peace be removed, ſaith the Lord that hath mercy on thee, Iſa. 54. 9, 10. And the Redeemer ſhall come to Zion, and to them that turn from tranſgreſſion in Jacob, ſaith the Lord. As for me, this is my Covenant with them, ſaith the Lord; My Spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, ſhall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out the mouth of thy Seed, nor out of the mouth of thy Seeds ſeed from henceforth and for ever, Iſa. 59. 20, 21. I will make thee an eternal Excellency, a joy of many Generations. Violence ſhall no more be heard in thy Land, waſting nor deſtruction within thy borders, but thou ſhalt call thy walls ſalvation, and thy gates praiſe. The Sun ſhall be no more thy light by day, neither for brightneſs ſhall the Moon give light unto thee, but the Lord ſhall be unto thee an everlaſting light, and thy God thy glory. Thy Sun ſhall no more go down, neither ſhall thy Moon withdraw it ſelf; for the Lord ſhall be thine everlaſting light, and the days of thy mourning ſhall be ended, Iſa. 60. 15, 18, 19, 20. Everlaſting joy ſhall be unto them, and I will make an everlaſting covenant with them, Iſa. 61. 7, 8. Thou ſhalt no more be termed forſaken, neither ſhall thy land any more be termed deſolate, but thou ſhalt be called Hephzi-bah, and the land Beulah; for the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land ſhall be married, Iſa. 62. 4, 12. I will rejoice in Jeruſalem, and joy in my people; and the voice of weeping ſhall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying, Iſa. 65. 19. For as the new heavens, and new earth, which I will make, ſhall remain before me, ſaith the Lord, ſo ſhall your ſeed, and your name remain, Iſa. 66. 22. And I will give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me for ever, for the good of them, and of their children after them. And I will make an everlaſting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good, but I will put my fear in their hearts, that they ſhall not depart from me, Jer. 32. 39, 40. And they ſhall be no more a prey to the heathen, neither ſhall the beaſts of the land devour them; but they ſhall dwell ſafely, and none ſhall make them afraid. And I will raiſe up for them a plant of renown, and they ſhall be no more conſumed with hunger in the land, neither bear the ſhame of the heathen any more, Ezek. 34. 28, 29. And they ſhall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my ſervant, wherein your fathers have dwelt, and they ſhall dwell therein, even they and their children, and their childrens children for ever; and my ſervant David ſhall be their prince for ever. Moreover, I will make a covenant of peace with them, it ſhall be an everlaſting covenant with them; and I will place them, and multiply them, and will ſet my Sanctuary in the midſt of them for evermore. My Tabernacle ſhall be with them; yea, I will be their God, and they ſhall be my people, Ezek. 37. 25, 26, 27. I have gathered them unto their own land, and I have left none of them any more there. Neither will I hide my face any more from them, Ezek. 39. 28, 29. And I will plant them upon their land, and they ſhall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, ſaith the Lord thy God, Amos 9. 15.

Now it ſeems very evident, that ſcarcely any of theſe things can be applied to the Return of the Jews from their Captivity in Babylon. For ſince that time his kindneſs hath departed from them, and his covenant of peace hath been removed for above 1600 years; Violence hath been heard in their land, waſting and deſtruction within their borders, and their Land hath been made deſolate; the days of wrath, of mourning, and of weeping have been long upon them; their Sun hath been, according to our Lord's Prediction, darkened, and their Moon hath not given her light; their Sanctuary and Tabernacle hath been conſumed, and they have been a prey to the Heathen; they have long ſince ceaſed to be his People, and he to be their God.

Nor can we reaſonably confine theſe Promiſes to that little Remnant which believed in the times of the Apoſtles, for they were never gathered out of all Lands, nor did they inherit the Land for ever, but were baniſhed thence, as well as the unbelieving Jews by Hadrian; they can in no propriety of Speech be ſtiled the Houſe of Iſrael, the whole Houſe of Iſrael. Nothing indeed ſeems more unlikely, then that the time of the Caſting them off, the breaking of the Branches, the leaving them under a Spiritual ſlumber, the taking the Kingdom from them, and caſting them out into utter darkneſs, ſhould be the time of the Completion of theſe glorious Promiſes; and that this Senſe cannot accord with the Diſcourſe of our Apoſtle here, hath been already ſhew'd.

Nor 3*ly*, can we apply theſe Promiſes to the believing Gentiles; for ſure they could not be a prey to the Heathens, or bear their ſhame, or be the People whom God had led into Captivity, and after gathered into their own Land, and ſo planted there as never to be plucked up again; the Promiſe could not be made to them, that they ſhould ſuck the breaſts, and eat the Riches of the Gentiles.

4*ly*, I have already ſhew'd from Scripture Prophecies, That after this Converſion the Nations generally ſhall flow in to them, and walk in their light, and ſo their fulneſs (which ſignifies not their Incorporation into another Church, but as the oppoſite words, their fall, their diminution, their rejection, require, and as the Apoſtle doth himſelf interpret it, their reception to the Chriſtian Faith, and ſo into the Favour of God) ſhall be the Riches of the Gentiles, and as life from the dead to them; then the Gentiles ſhall come to their light, and Kings to the brightneſs of their riſing; and Nations that have not known them ſhall run in unto them, becauſe God hath glorified them. Then, ſaith God, I will gather all Nations, and Tongues, and they ſhall come and ſee my glory, Iſa. 55. 5. & 56. & 66. 18, 22. Then all Nations ſhall turn, and fear the Lord truly, ſaith Tobit, Chap. 13. 10, 11. And this I conceive to be that fulneſs of the Gentiles of which the Apoſtle here ſpeaketh.

THE PREFACE TO THE First Epistle to the Corinthians.

§ 1. THAT this was an Epistle written by St. Paul the Apostle, as is asserted v. 1. was never doubted in the Church of God; but whether this was the first Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, hath been a matter of dispute, because he saith in it, I have written to you in an Epistle, ch. 5. 9. which seemeth plainly to relate to some Epistle formerly by him writ to them: For this, saith Pseud-Ambrosius, was spoken de præteritâ Epistolâ quam ante hanc, quæ prima dicitur, scripserat. But as I have observed in the Note upon that Verse, No Fathers ever ascribed to St. Paul more then fourteen Epistles, including that to the Hebrews. Eusebius never mentions any third Epistle to the Corinthians, amongst the true, controverted, or spurious Writings which pass under his Name. No Christian Writer ever cited any thing from this supposed Epistle, all the Greek Scholiasts declare the Apostle speaketh in those words not of another, but of this very Epistle, which is sufficient to justifie the Version I have given of those words, I had written, or was writing in this Epistle. Moreover, his supposed Epistle to Laodicea is cited as a Book exploded by (a) St. Jerom, his Epistles to Seneca, are in like manner cited by (b) St. Jerom and St. Austin, the Acts of Paul are cited, and rejected by (c) Origen and Eusebius, but none of them make any mention of more than two Epistles to the Church of Corinth.

§ 2. That this Epistle was written by St. Paul whilst he was at Ephesus, and before he went thence to Macedonia, is clear from the very words of this Epistle: For Chap. 16. 8. he saith, I will tarry still at Ephesus till Pentecost; and adds, v. 19. The Churches of Asia, of which Ephesus was the Metropolis, salute you; Aquila and Priscilla salute you, with the Church which is in their House; now that they dwelt at Ephesus, we read Acts 18. 25. That it was writ before he went thence into Macedonia, these words informs us, ch. 16. 5. I will come to you when I pass through Macedonia; for I do pass through Macedonia. It is therefore generally agreed, that it was written in the 57*th, as Dr.* Pearson, or in the 55*th Year of Christ, as Dr.* Lightfoot hath it. As also may be probably concluded thus: In the 9*th Year of* Claudius, saith Orosius, in the 10*th say others, in the* 12*th saith Dr.* Pearson, the Jews were banished from Rome, and St. Paul coming to Corinth, finds Aquila and Priscilla, newly come from thence to Corinth upon that occasion, Acts 18. 2. He stays there a year and an half, v. 11. that is, till the 11*th of* Claudius, at Ephesus three years, Acts 20. 31. and at the close of these three years he writes this Epistle. If then you begin this Banishment of the Jews from Rome, as Valesius doth in the 10*th of* Claudius, these five years that Paul continued at Corinth and Ephesus will end in the first of Nero, A.D. 55. If with Dr. Pearson, you begin them only at the 12*th of* Claudius, they will end in the third of Nero, A.D. 57.

§ 3. That the Persons to whom it was written, were chiefly Gentiles, is evident from these words, Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away to these dumb Idols, even as ye were led, chap. 12. 2. That it was also written to the Jewish Converts then at Corinth, Estius conjectures, because he saith, chap. 10. 1. that all our Fathers were under the Cloud. But 'tis not necessary that should relate to their Fathers according to the flesh, but only to the preceding Church of God called before them out of Egypt, and partaking of like privileges with them: For the Apostle declares that not they who are the Children of the Flesh are counted for the Seed, but they who are the

§ 4. The occaſions of writing this Epiſtle we may beſt learn from the Ancients, and from the Epiſtle it ſelf.

Firſt then, The Ancients do inform us of this City, that it was full of (d) Rhetoricians and Philoſophers, and that they gave occaſion to moſt of thoſe Miſcarriages which the Apoſtle reprehends in this Epiſtle.

2ly, That there were (e) Judaizers crept in among them who magnified themſelves, and debaſed the Apoſtle as a great Boaſter, but of little worth, ſtiling him an Apoſtate from the Law, and commending the obſervation of it to them.

3ly, They add, That the City of Corinth was very (f) rich, and that ſome of them choſe themſelves Teachers out of the rich, as being moſt able to ſupport them, as others did out of the Philoſophers, as being moſt able to teach them more than the Apoſtle could do.

Scandal of Christianity, He reprehends this Vice in them, chap. 6. from v. 1. to the 10th. And having said all this by way of Preface, he begins, chap. 7. to return his Answer to the Questions they had sent unto him.

§ 5. There is one further Observation useful for, and worthy to be pondered by the licentious Persons of our Age, That because Fornication and Lasciviousness were Vices to which the Heathens were generally addicted; and their Philosophers, and perhaps some Hereticks, viz. the Nicholaitans, which were amongst them, maintain'd this was a thing indifferent, therefore the Apostle, both in the Epistles to the Corinthians, and to most other Churches, is very copious in shewing the destructive nature of this Sin. It is to be observed that Corinth was above all other Cities, even to a Proverb, infamous for Fornication and Lasciviousness, so that Κορινθία γυνὴ, a Corinthian Woman is in the Language of the Ancients, a whorish Woman, according to the Proverb, Ἡ Κορινθία ἔοι καὶ χορεσπαλίσειν (h), ut Corinthia videris corpore quæstum factura. 2. That it is truly grounded on the Scriptures, and therefore ought to be owned as an Article of Christian Faith. And

1. That it was certainly the ancient and received Doctrine of the Orthodox Professors of the Christian Faith, is evident

1. From the second Epistle of (l) Clemens Romanus, writ in the first Century: For there he doth expresly caution Christians against the denial of this Article, in these words, Let none of you say that this same flesh shall not be judged, for as you were called in the flesh, so shall you come in the flesh to Judgment, and in this very flesh shall you receive your reward. And in his first Epistle, to prove that God will raise them from the dead, who have served him in holiness, he cites these words from Job, chap. 19. 25, 26. ἀναστήσεις τὴν σάρκα μου ταύτην, Thou wilt raise up this my flesh which hath suffered all these things.

2ly, From (m) Irenæus, who in the second Century makes this one Article of Faith of the whole Church received from the Apostles, and kept, taught, and delivered in all places with the greatest care, and uniformity, viz. that Christ will come from Heaven in glory, ἀναστῆσαι πᾶσαν σάρκα πάσης ἀνθρωπότητος, to raise up all flesh of all Mankind. (n) Tertullian in the third Century, producing the Christians Creed as the Rule of Faith, which came from Christ, and was by his Companions handed down to the Church, the Institution of Christ, which all Nations ought to believe, makes this one Article of it, That Christ will come to judge the quick and dead, facta utriusque partis resuscitatione cum carnis restitutione, or, per carnis resurrectionem, by raising, and restoring of their flesh. Accordingly the Article of the Resurrection of the Flesh, or as the Aquileian Symbol hath it, hujus Carnis, of this Flesh; Or as other Confessions have it, of their Bodies, hath been received in all Christian Churches. And they have been condemned as Hereticks from the beginning of the second Century, who denied (o) σαρκὸς ἀνάστασιν, the Resurrection of the Flesh, & carnis (p) salutem, & regenerationem ejus, dicentes non eam capacem esse incorruptibilitatis, the life and production of the Flesh, saying, it was incapable of incorruption: As did the (q) Valentinians, the Basilidians, and the Marcionites, say the Fathers.

§ 7. I proceed secondly to shew, that this Doctrine of the Primitive Christians is truly grounded on the Scriptures, and therefore ought to be received, and owned as an Article of Christian Faith. This I prove

1. From all those places which speak of the Resurrection of the Body, these places I shall produce, for their sakes who do not remember in any place of the New Testament, any such Expression as the Resurrection of the Body, v. g. He that raised Jesus from the dead, ζωοποιήσει καὶ, shall also make alive your Mortal Bodies, Rom. 8. 11. that is, He shall raise them from the dead; for that ζωοποιεῖν and ἐγείρειν, to quicken and raise up, are, with relation to this matter, words of the same import; we learn from these words. As the Father, ἐγείρει τοὺς νεκροὺς καὶ ζωοποιεῖ, raiseth up the dead, and quickneth them, so the Son ζωοποιεῖ quickneth whom he will, Joh. 5. 21. Again, saith the Apostle, How are the dead raised up, i. e. the Bodies of the dead; for so it follows, καὶ ποίῳ σώματι, and with what kind of Bodies do they come forth of the grave, 1 Cor. 15 35. So v. 44. It is sown a Natural Body, it is raised σῶμα πνευματικὸν a Spiritual Body. And still more evidently, τὸ φθαρτὸν τοῦτο, This corruptible (Body) must put on incorruption, καὶ τὸ θνητὸν τοῦτο, and this mortal (Body) must put on immortality, v. 53. So when this corruptible (Body) shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal (Body) put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in Victory. If any one likes not my addition of σῶμα Body to the Pronoun, and Adjective, four times here mentioned, I desire him to find out, if he can, another Substantive; if he cannot, he must confess the Resurrection of the Body is here mentioned four times; for the Apostle argues thus The dead shall be raised up, διὰ τοῦτο, for this, corruptible (Body) must put on incorruption; and when this is done, then Death, which only hapneth to this corruptible mortal Body shall be swallowed up in victory.

It is said, That 'he who reads with attention 'this Discourse of St. Paul, where he speaks 'of the Resurrection, will see that he plainly 'distinguisheth between the Dead, that shall be 'raised, and the Bodies of the Dead; for it is 'νεκροὶ, πάντες, οἱ which are the Nominative Ca- 'ses to ἐγείρονται, ζωοποιηθήσονται, ἐγερθήσονται all a- 'long, and not σώματα, Bodies, which one may in 'reason think would some where or other have 'been expressed, if all this had been said to 'propose it as an Article of Faith, that the 'same Bodies shall be raised. The same manner 'of speaking the Spirit of God observes all thro' the N. Testament, where it is said, raise the dead, quicken, or make alive the dead, the resurrection of the dead, Joh. 5. 28, 29. Rom. 4. 17. Matth. 22. 27, 52. 2 Cor. 1. 9. 1 Thess. 4 16.

Answer. I hope the Instances produced already are sufficient to confute this Observation. I shall therefore go on further to observe, and prove, that the Resurrection of the Dead is by the Apostle used with plain relation to the Bodies of the Dead, so that he even proves the Resurrection of the Dead, because the Body is raised, and so doth not plainly distinguish betwixt the dead that shall be raised, and the bodies of the dead. This is evident enough from what I have observed already, that the Apostle proves οἱ νεκροὶ ἐγερθήσονται, the dead shall be raised, because the corruptible Body must put on Incorruption, &c. But it is still more evident from these words, So is also ἀνάστασις τῶν νεκρῶν, the resurrection of the dead; for it is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption, v. 42, 43. Where I desire to know, what is the Nominative Case to ἐγείρεται, it is raised, used three times here? If it be σῶμα, Body, I have sufficiently confuted this Criticism: If it be not, why doth the Apostle so expound it in the immediate ensuing words, It is sown a Natural Body, ἐγείρεται σῶμα πνευματικόν, it is raised a Spiritual Body.

I add that this appears almost from all the places cited, that the οἱ νεκροὶ and the πάντες ἀποθνήσκοντες the dead, and the all dying, hath relation to the Body only, which being that alone which is by death bereft of life, must be that only which, in propriety of speech, is said to die. Thus when 'tis said, 'These very words urged 'for the resurrection of the same body, run thus, 'πάντες οἱ ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις, all that are in the 'Graves shall hear his voice, and shall come 'forth; they that have done good, εἰς ἀνάστασιν 'ζωῆς, to the resurrection of Life, but they that 'have done evil, to the resurrection of Con'demnation. *And is then added, Would not a 'well meaning Searcher be apt to think, that if 'the thing here intended by our Saviour were 'to teach, and propose it as an Article of 'Faith, necessary to be believed by every one, 'that the very same Bodies of the dead should 'be raised, the words should rather have been 'πάντα τὰ σώματα ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις, i.e. all the Bodies that are in the Graves, rather then all 'who are in the Graves; which must denote 'Persons, and not precisely Bodies.

*To this I answer, (*1*st,) that the words* πάντες οἱ ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις, i.e. all that are in the Graves, and πάντα τὰ σώματα τὰ ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις, all the bodies that are in the graves, are plainly words of the same import. For what is laid down in the Graves, or Sepulchres, is it not σώματα τῶν κεκοιμημένων, the bodies of them that sleep only? Matth. 27. 52. And must it not then be these Bodies that come forth of them? May we not discern in the passage now cited, how the Holy Ghost passes immediately from the Bodies of the Saints that slept, to their Persons, saying, the bodies of the Saints that slept arose, καὶ ἐξελθόντες ἐκ τῶν μνημείων, and they coming out of their Graves, after this Resurrection, went into the Holy City, and appeared unto many, v. 53.

(2ly,) When God said to Adam, what was also true of his Posterity, In sorrow shalt thou eat thy bread until thou return to the ground, for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return, Gen. 3. 19. And the Psalmist of man in general, His breath (or spirit) goeth forth, he returneth to his Earth, Psal. 146. 5. Will any one be tempted from these personal demonstrative Pronouns thou, and he, to say that these words must denote the Persons, and not precisely the Bodies of Men? and thence infer that the whole Person of Adam was taken out of the Earth, and was but dust, and that the whole Person of Man returneth to his Earth; if not, why is it argued that the like Pronoun οἱ, they, must here denote Persons, and not precisely Bodies? Are we not told that the word Person stands for a thinking, intelligent Being that has Reason and Reflection, and can consider it self as it self? And can they who are in their graves do this? if so, surely they are not dead in them, but buried alive. If they cannot, why must these words οἱ ἐν τοῖς μνημείοις denote Persons?

But it is said, That 'according to this Inter'pretation of these words of our Saviour, no 'other Substance being raised but what hears 'his voice, and no other Substance hearing his 'voice, but what, being called, comes out of the 'grave; and no other Substance coming out of 'the grave, but what was in the grave, any 'one must conclude that the Soul, unless it be 'in the grave, will make no part of the Per'son that is raised.

Answer. To this I answer, That any one may reasonably hence conclude, that the Soul makes no raised part of him that is raised, or that it is not called, or raised out of the grave, as the Body is; but by what Logick can we hence conclude it makes no part of the raised Person? For instance; We profess in our Creed to believe that Jesus Christ died, and rose again, i. e. from the grave: and, saith St. Peter, This Jesus hath God raised up, having loosed the pains of death, because it was impossible he should be holden of it, Acts 2. 24, 32. Now because nothing can be raised from the dead, but that which died, nothing can be raised from the grave, but what was laid in it, shall we hence infer, that the Soul of the Lord Jesus, or his Spirit, (which he commended into his Father's hands, and which went to Paradise,) unless it died, and was in the grave, could make no part of the Person which was dead, and was raised from the dead, and out of the grave? When our Lord says, v. 28, 29. They that were in the graves shall come forth to the Resurrection of Life; And v. 25. the dead shall live. What can live again but that which was dead? What can have a Resurrection to Life, but that which had no Life, and was not that the Body only? Yea, are not these things said in purſuance of what went before; As the Father raiſeth up the dead, and quickeneth (or gives life) to them, even ſo the Son quickneth whom he will. Now what can be raiſed from the dead, but that which was dead? What can be quickned, or have life given to it, but that which had no life? If then that were the body only, muſt not the raiſing of the dead, and quickning them, import only the raiſing and quickning of the body, although this be performed compleatly by the Union of the Soul to the raiſed body.

Matth. 22. Mark 12. Luk. 20, 35, 36.

3ly, We read of God τῷ ζωοποιοῦντι τοὺς νεκρούς, quickning the dead, Rom. 4. 17. Now what doth he quicken, but what was dead? what doth he give life to, but that which ceaſed to have life, that is, the body?

4ly, St. Paul ſaith, We had in our ſelves the Sentence of Death, that we might not truſt in our ſelves, but in God, τῷ ἐγείροντι τοὺς νεκρούς, who raiſeth the dead, 2 Cor. 1. 9. Now what was this Sentence of Death? Did St. Paul, and his Chriſtian Companions, believe the whole man ſhould be kill'd by their Perſecutors? or, as their Lord had taught them, that they could kill the body, but could not kill the Soul, Matth. 10. 26. Doth he not ſay in their names, that that which periſhed, or was corrupted, was only ὁ ἔξω ἡμῶν ἄνθρωπος, our outward Man, 2 Cor. 4. 16. in oppoſition to the inward Man? that whilſt they lived they were at home in the body, and that at death they did ἐκδημῆσαι ἐκ τοῦ σώματος dwell out of the body, 2 Cor. 5. 6, 8. or as to the Soul, were abſent from it? And muſt not then the Sentence of Death they had in themſelves, be only this that their bodies might die by the hands of Perſecutors, that their outward man might periſh by them? And muſt not then their truſt in God that raiſeth the dead, relate to his raiſing their dead bodies:

5ly, The dead in Chriſt that ſhall be raiſed, 1 Theſſ. 4. 16. are they that ſleep, v. 13, 15. that is, that ſleep in the duſt, Dan. 12. 2. now is it not τὰ σώματα, the bodies of the Saints that thus ſleep Matth. 27. 52. and muſt not then the Apoſtle ſpeak of them only? Is not this ſpoken to comfort the Theſſalonians concerning them that were aſleep, v 13, 18. and were they troubled for the ſouls of them that ſlept in Jeſus? v. 14. or doth the Apoſtle ſay any thing to comfort them, but that which relates to the body only? And will it not hence follow, that what he there ſaith touching the Reſurrection of the Dead, concerneth their dead bodies only? Thus have I ſhew'd that all the places here cited, as ſpeaking of the Reſurrection of the Dead, refer to the Reſurrection of their bodies.

§ 8. But further, had not the Scripture ſo expreſly ſpoken of raiſing our Mortal Bodies, of raiſing that a Spiritual Body which was ſown a Natural Body, and proved the dead ſhall be raiſed, becauſe this corruptible ſhall put on incorruption, and could it not be proved, that raiſing of the dead, and of the bodies of the dead, were in import the ſame, this Article might be eſtabliſhed from other paſſages of Scripture, ſpeaking the ſame thing in effect, as v. g.

1*ſt*, We who have the firſt fruits of the Spirit groan within our ſelves, expecting υἱοθεσίαν the Sonſhip, even the Redemption of our Body, Rom. 8. 23. Now what is this Redemption τοῦ σώματος ἡμῶν of our body, but the delivery of it from the Bondage of Corruption? v. 21. What did they groan for? 'twas ſaith the ſame Apoſtle, that Mortality might be ſwallowed up of Life, 2 Cor. 5. 4, 5. which only is to be done when this Mortal Body ſhall put on Immortality, ſaith the ſame Apoſtle; this therefore was to be done to accompliſh the redemption of the Body ſpoken of, and is not then the redemption, and the reſurrection of the body in effect the ſame?

2. We expect that Saviour, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt from Heaven, who ſhall change τὸ σῶμα τῆς ταπεινώσεως ἡμῶν, our vile Body into the likeneſs of his glorious Body, Philip. 3. 20, 21. The body therefore to be changed is σῶμα ἡμῶν our body, the body of our humiliation, ſo ſtiled as Methodius ſaith, becauſe ταπεινοῦται ἀπὸ σφάλματος, 'tis humbled and made mortal by the fall; or as Irenæus, l. 5. c. 13. quod & humiliatur cadens in terram, becauſe it is humbled by falling into the Earth. This body is to be thus changed when our Lord cometh down from Heaven, that is at the reſurrection of it; for the Lord ſhall deſcend from Heaven, and the dead in Chriſt ſhall riſe firſt, 1 Theſſ. 4. 16. Is it not therefore manifeſt from theſe words, that our vile mortal bodies, fallen into the Earth, or laid in it, ſhall be raiſed, and by, or at the Reſurrection, ſhall be changed into the likeneſs of Chriſt's glorious body?

Now hence I argue for the Reſurrection of the ſame body thus; If the Scripture teacheth that there ſhall be a quickning, by raiſing up our mortal bodies, a Redemption, by the Reſurrection of our bodies, a changing of our bodies at, and by the Reſurrection, into the likeneſs of Chriſt's glorious body, It ſeems ſufficiently to ſay, there ſhall be a Reſurrection of the ſame body which before was mortal, and a change by it of the ſame body which was vile, or humble; and a Redemption by it from corruption of the ſame body which was formerly in bondage to corruption; for all this muſt be said of the same Body, or not of the same Body; if of the same Body, then the same Body must be raised; if not of the same Body, then of another; and how then is it said of our Body? How are these other Bodies, τὰ θνητὰ σώματα ὑμῶν; your mortal Bodies, Rom. 8. 11. the Redemption of them; the Redemption, τῆς σώματος ἡμῶν; the change of them, the change, τῆς σώματος τῆς ταπεινώσεως ἡμῶν, of our mortal vile Bodies.

2ly, When the Apostle saith, (s) This corruptible, this mortal Body, does he mean this Body of ours, or does he not? If he does mean this mortal, corruptible Body of ours, then he asserts of that, that it shall be raised immortal and incorruptible; if he does not mean it of ours, he must mean it of some other Body than ours, and how then is that raised a spiritual Body, which was sown a natural Body? how doth this mortal put on immortality? how are we concerned in the Resurrection of another Body? or what assurance doth it give us, that we shall rise from the dead, seeing when any of us departs this life, it is our Body that dies, and not anothers? Yea, why then doth he say, the dead shall rise, and we, that are living, shall be changed? we shall all be changed; i. e. our vile Bodies shall be changed into the likeness of Christ's glorious Body; our mortal Bodies into immortal; our natural Bodies shall be changed by being raised spiritual Bodies? Let any man try his utmost skill, and see if he can find any Nominative Case to σπείρει, it is sown, used here four times, but σῶμα, Body, or understand this of any other Body than ours, seeing then the same word is the Nominative Case to ἐγείρεται, it is raised, which was so to σπείρεται, it is sown, the Apostle must be supposed to say, this Body of ours is raised in incorruption.

§ 9. Argument 2. To proceed to other Scriptures of like import: All that are in their Graves shall come forth, saith Christ, ἐκπορεύσονται ἐκ τῶν μνημείων, they shall come out of the Graves in which they were, John 5. 28, 29. Shall they come forth with the same body which was laid in the grave, or with another? If with the same, then the same body must be raised; if with another, how come these graves to be called their graves, and how are the dead, and they that are in the graves, raised out of them, and not another?

Again, when it is said the Sea gave up the dead ἐν αὐτῇ in it, and Death and Hades (the place of the dead) gave up the dead in them, Rev. 20. 13. did they give up the same bodies which were laid down in them, or some others? The first is the thing contended for; if they gave up some others, how did they give up the dead that were laid down in them?

To say that a great part of these dead Bodies possibly may have undergone variety of changes, and entred into other Concretions, even in the Bodies of other Men, is to me no Objection against the raising of the same body, if God hath engaged so to do; for then, as he is able, so is his Providence concerned to prevent the entring of one body so into the concretion of another, as to hinder it from being the same body when raised, as it was when laid down in sea, or grave, and I know what he hath promised he is able to perform.

Lastly, Even the Phrase (t) the Resurrection of the dead, and especially the Resurrection ἐκ νεκρῶν from the dead, used Col. 1. 18. Rev. 1. 5. where Christ is stiled the first-born of those that arise from the dead, prove this. For the proper notion of a Resurrection consists in this, that it is a substantial change, by which that which was before, and died, or was corrupted, is reproduced the same thing again. I call it a change of that which died, or was corrupted disjunctively, because in the Resurrection of our Lord, and of Lazarus, and others whom he raised from the dead, the body was not corrupted. Hence it follows,

(1st.) That the Soul which is immortal and incorruptible, cannot be said to rise again, Resurrection implying a Reproduction; whereas that which after it was, never ceased to be what it was, cannot be reproduced; and so the (u) Resurrection of the Dead can only signifie the Resurrection of the Bodies of the Dead, with the re-union of them to those Souls to which they were before united, which makes this Resurrection advance into a Resurrection of Life. And seeing that which never fell, cannot be said to be raised up, that which did never die cannot be restored from death: Men cannot properly be said to rise again from the dead, but in respect to that part, or that state which had fallen and was dead. And as for a Man to be born at first, signifies the production, and union of the essential parts of an individual man, his body and his soul. So to be born again, or born from the dead, implies the restitution, and re union of his body and his soul; a man only by that becoming the same entire person which he was before. Seeing therefore it is acknowledged, that the same Persons shall be raised, yea, that there can be nothing plainer than that in the Scripture it is revealed, that the same persons shall be raised, and appear before the Judgment Seat of Christ, to answer for what they have done in the body; and the same person cannot be raised without the raising of his body to be united to his soul, much less be raised from the dead, without raising that of him which was dead, which only was his own, and not another body, which before was no part of him, it follows, that if the same persons be raised from the dead, that of them which was dead, or their own bodies must be raised; and so the meaning of the Scripture, when it saith, the same persons shall be raised, must be this, that their bodies, separated from their souls by death, shall be raised from the dead.

Moreover, by saying that the Resurrection is only of that which died, or was corrupted, it appears that I, with the Ancients, only assert the Resurrection of that Body which died, or was corrupted, and am not in the least concerned for any changes that it underwent before; and so the Scripture forces me to speak, when it stiles the Resurrection, the quickning the dead; the vivification of our mortal Bodies; the raising of those bodies which were sown in corruption; the coming forth of them which were in their graves; the awakening them that sleep in the dust of the Earth; and saith, that then the Sea, Death, and Hades shall give up their dead, allowing a Resurrection only to them that shall then be dead, and saying only of them that shall be found alive they shall be changed. And if this only be the true sense of the Scripture in this matter, and this only the Resurrection there intended, it cannot be concerned in the least in what the Philosophers say touching the change the body undergoes whilst living, though I am far from thinking, that to the raising of the same bodies, it can be requisite that these bodies should be made up wholly of the same Particles which were once vitally united to their Souls in their former Life, without the mixture of any other Particle of Matter; for were this necessary to the same living body, we could not have the same bodies for a day; and if it be not necessary to make the body continue still the same while we live, it cannot be necessary to make the raised body, the same with that which died.

That which here seems to me of greatest moment to be considered, is this, that the dead, being raised that they may be judged according to their works, Rev. 20. 12. and that every one may receive τὰ διὰ τοῦ Σώματος, the things done by the body, as the instrument of the soul, 'tis only requisite that the dying body, which is to be raised to the Resurrection of Condemnation, should be then united to a soul sentenced hereafter to Condemnation for the evils done whilst in the body, and by the body as its instrument, and not repented of, and reformed before its separation from the body. And that the body should be raised to the Resurrection of Life, 'tis only requisite that some time or other before its death, it should have been united to a soul that truly repented of all its past sins, and did from thence forward do that which was lawful and right, whilst they were thus united: Now seeing this is the state of all bodies which arise to the Resurrection of Life, or of Condemnation, 'tis only necessary to this last Resurrection, that it should be the raising the bodies of men dying in their sins, as in my Hypothesis it is; and that the bodies raised to the Resurrection of Life, should be the bodies of men dying in the favour of God; 'tis therefore only necessary their dying Bodies should arise. And now the Argument arising from these Scriptures, which teach that there shall be a Resurrection of the Dead, and so of their dead bodies, that every one may receive according to what he hath done in or by the body, will run thus:

Either the body is to be raised, and re-united to the soul, to receive rewards or punishments with it, or to be the instrument by which the soul shall be rewarded, or punished, or it is not; if not to any of these ends, why is it raised at all? Why do good men, by the direction of the Holy Spirit, expect the Resurrection of the body? or why is it propounded as their great encouragement to be stedfast, immoveable, always abounding in the fear of the Lord, 1 Cor. 15. 58. 1 Thess. 4. 18. and as a comfort to them that mourn for the dead? Why are the wicked to be punished with everlasting fire, or said to go away after the Resurrection into Eternal Punishment? Matth. 25. 41, 46. Or why doth our Saviour require us not to fear them who can kill the body, but can do no more, in comparison of him who can destroy both soul and body in Hell fire, Matth. 10. 28. and say that 'tis better one of thy members perish, then that thy whole body should be cast into Hell fire, Matth. 5. 29, 30. If it be to be raised for these ends, 'tis necessary the same body should be raised which sinned with, or was the instrument of the soul in doing good or evil, it being absurd to think that one body should sin, another should be punished for it; or that one body should suffer, another should be crowned for it. And, for any thing I can discern to the contrary, we might as well appear before Christ's Judgment Seat without any body at all, as without that which we deposited. Let it now be remembred, that the body in which the impenitent is to suffer, is only the same body which was laid down in the grave,

And then the arguments usually offered to invalidate his suffering in his own body, or in the same body in which he sinned, will be almost as strong to excuse a Murtherer from suffering in his body for a Murther committed Twenty years ago, as to the purposes they are used in this Case. Nay, I have met with nothing said in this affair, which does not prove as strongly that the body of our Blessed Lord, born of the Virgin Mary, after he had sucked and digested that Milk into Chyle, was not the same body which was born of the Virgin, as not having all the same individual Particles, and that when he grew in stature, he grew into another body, and so into a body which came not from the loins of Abraham, and was not of the Seed of David according to the flesh; and that when the Jews destroy'd his body, they destroy'd not that body of which he spake, when he said, destroy this body, because the body they destroy'd had by perspiration lost, and by nutrition gained many particles.

§ 10. I come now to answer the Objections against this Article, viz. 'The Appellation the 'Apostle bestows on him that enters into this 'Enquiry, Whether the dead shall have the 'very same bodies, or no, seems not much to 'encourage him in that Enquiry; nor will he, 'by the remainder of St. Paul's answer, find the 'determination of the Apostle to be much in 'favour of the very same body, unless the be- 'ing told that the body sown is not the body 'that shall be; that the body raised is as dif- 'ferent from that which was laid down, as the 'flesh of a Man is from the flesh of Beasts, 'Fishes and Birds, or as the Sun, Moon, and 'Stars are different from one another; or as dif- 'ferent as a corruptible, weak, natural, mortal 'body, is from an incorruptible, powerful, spi-'ritual, immortal body; and lastly, as a body that 'is flesh and blood, is from a body that is not 'flesh and blood; for flesh and blood cannot 'says St. Paul in this very place, inherit the 'Kingdom of God; unless, I say, all this 'which is contained in St. Paul's words, can be 'supposed to be the way to deliver this as an 'Article of Faith, which is required to be be- 'lieved of every one. Now to this I answer, 1st, That it seems to me a great mistake, to say the Apostle in that Appellation thou Fool reflects upon him that enquires, whether the same body which was dead should be raised, or no. He had already entirely dispatch'd that question against those Philosophers, who said (x) there is no Resurrection, v. 12. and that the Resurrection of the body was a thing impossible. v. 35. he begins the enquiry, not about the truth of the Resurrection, but about the manner in which it shall be made, and the qualities which the raised bodies should have, asking the question of (y) Philosophers, ποίῳ σώματι, with what kind of bodies, or with what qualified bodies do they come; for they conceiving that the body was the prison of the soul, and that it was her punishment to be tied to it, thought we could not be truly happy till by death we were delivered from it; they therefore judg'd it an unjust, and an unworthy thing for God to raise these bodies to be united to the souls of good Men; and therefore Celsus saith the hope of the resurrection of the flesh is the hope of worms, a filthy, and abominable thing, and so a thing which God neither will, nor can do. See all this proved from their own words in the Note upon this Verse. Now to this Objection the Apostle returns a full and satisfactory Answer, by shewing the happy change which will then pass upon the raised body and the (z) excellent qualities it shall then have, and which were wanting to it whilst it was on earth.

2ly, When the Apostle adds, v. 37. That which thou sowest, (when) thou sowest (it, is) not that body which shall be (again produced,) but bare (or naked) grain, it is evident he speaketh there, not of the body of man, but of the body of wheat, or of some other grain, and is there still pursuing the same question, With what kind of bodies do they come? Answering, as it was common with the Jews to do, by this very Similitude to a like question among them, viz. (a) Whether the Body should arise naked, or clothed upon? and therefore saith, thou sowest not the body which shall be, i.e. a body clothed with a shell, as in Peas, Beans, and Lentils, or with an Hull, or Chaff, as in Wheat, Rye, Barley, but γυμνὸν κόκκον, naked Grain, whereas God raises it up clothed, and so saith he, will it be with our bodies at the Resurrection, they will not be raised γυμνὰ, naked, but ἐνδυσάμενα, clothed upon, for this corruptible Body must put on Incorruption, 2 Cor. 5. 2, 3, 4. this being then the whole intendment of this Similitude, it ought not to be urged any further.

3ly, The same is evidently the Apostle's purpose in the following Verses, which in sense run thus.

Ver. 39. (And as) all flesh is not the same (manner or kind of) flesh, but there is one kind of flesh of men, another (kind of) flesh of Beasts, another of Fishes, and another of Birds.

Ver. 40 (And as there is a like difference in the qualities of bodies, for) there are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial; but the glory of the Celeſtial is one, and the glory of the Terreſtrial is another.

Ver. 41. (And as in the Celeſtial Bodies) there is one glory of the Sun, and another of the Moon, and another of the Stars (among themſelves) for one Star differeth from another Star in glory.

Ver. 42. So alſo is (it as to) the Reſurrection of the Dead (the Body raiſed being in qualities much different from that Body we now have, for) it is ſown in corruption, (frail, mortal, ſubject to putrefaction) it is raiſed in incorruption, &c. Now from the words thus paraphraſed, let it be noted,

1ſt, That the Apoſtle ſays not, That the Body raiſed is as different from that which is laid down, as the Fleſh of Man is from the Fleſh of Beaſts, Fiſhes, and Birds, or as the Sun, Moon, and Stars are different from one another, but only as the Fleſh of Men differs in qualities from that of Beaſts, Fiſhes, and Birds; and as the Sun, Moon, and Stars differ in their glorious qualities from one another, ſo do our raiſed Bodies differ in quality from thoſe earthly Bodies we at preſent have, as is evident from the enſuing words, in which he mentions this difference betwixt them in qualities. Note

2ly, That in the inſtances of Fleſh of Man and Beaſts, and of Celeſtial and Terreſtrial Bodies, and of Celeſtial Bodies among themſelves here uſed by the Apoſtle, there is not only a difference as to qualities, but alſo as to the ſubject matter, that being in them only ſpecifically, but not numerically the ſame, whereas it is not ſo as to our bodies ſown and raiſed, they differing only as to the qualities from the body ſown, but not as to the ſubject matter, it being this corruptible Body which muſt put on incorruption. As therefore the different qualities of divers Souls, good and bad, learned and unlearned, made glorious and miſerable, infer a difference in ſubſtance, becauſe the ſubject of thoſe qualities is not the ſame; but when the ſame Soul becomes vertuous, and learned, all this new Ornament of Grace and Knowledge, and even its advancement to a ſtate of perfect Happineſs and Glory, makes it not ceaſe to be the ſame Soul ſtill, ſo is it here as to the difference of glorious qualities the raiſed body hath above the Body ſown. I therefore 3ly, Grant that the raiſed Body is as different from the earthly Body we at preſent have, as a corruptible, weak, natural, mortal Body is from an incorruptible, powerful, ſpiritual, immortal Body; but then the ſubject of theſe different qualities being ſtill the ſame, this difference hinders not its being the ſame Body ſtill, ſince otherwiſe Chriſt's Body being alſo raiſed an incorruptible, powerful, immortal Body, could not be the ſame with that in which he ſuffered; and if his Body is ſtill the ſame that ſuffered and was raiſed from the dead, then a like change of our vile Bodies will not hinder their being ſtill the ſame.

But it is ſtill objected, That 'the Body raiſed 'is as different from the Bodies we at preſent 'have, and lay down in the Grave, as a Body 'that is fleſh and blood, is from a Body that is 'not fleſh and blood; for fleſh and blood, ſaith 'S. Paul, cannot inherit the Kingdom of God.

Anſw. To this I anſwer (1.) ab abſurdo, that if even this hinder the Body raiſed from being the ſame Body, our Saviour cannot now have the ſame Body with that which he ſuffered, or which was raiſed from the dead; for doubtleſs he is entred into, and doth inherit the Kingdom of God; if therefore fleſh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, and the Body which hath not fleſh and blood cannot be the ſame Body with that which hath fleſh and blood, our Saviour's glorified Body cannot be the ſame Body which was raiſed from the dead, or in which he ſuffered.

2ly, I anſwer, That fleſh and blood doth in the Scripture language denote the weakneſs, and the frailty of that which is compounded of them, as when 'tis ſaid, we wreſtle not with fleſh and blood, i.e. weak, frail men, Eph. 6. 12. See Matth. 16. 17. Gal. 1. 16. Hebr. 2. 14. Eccluſ. 14. 18. And thus it is true that fleſh and blood, that is, ſuch weak, frail bodies, as they are, which here conſiſt of fleſh and blood, unchanged into corruptible Bodies, or uncloathed upon with their Celeſtial Bodies, which will keep them from mortality, or a poſſibility of corruption, v. 48, 49. 2 Cor. 5. 1, 2. cannot inherit the Kingdom of God; and therefore the Apoſtle adds, That this mortal muſt put on immortality, this corruptible put on incorruption, and ſo it ſhall be changed, as to its qualities; but then I have ſhew'd, that this change from mortal and corruptible, to an immortal and incorruptible Body, hinders not its being ſtill the ſame Body, that is, the ſame in ſubſtance as it was before.

3ly, I think it is evident from the Apoſtle's words, that the Bodies of good men then living, ſhall have the ſame qualities with the Bodies of them who are raiſed from the dead, for they alſo ſhall inherit the Kingdom of God, they ſhall have ſpiritual, powerful immortal Bodies; their Bodies, ſaith he, ſhall be changed, for this corruptible muſt put on incorruption; and yet can it be thought that this change ſhall amount to the deſtruction of that Body they then had, and the production of another Body, as it muſt do, if they ceaſe to have the ſame Body which they had before this change? If it do not, it is hence evident that the Body may be ſtill the ſame body, notwithſtanding the great change which ſhall then paſs upon it.

In a word, what the Apoſtle ſays here evidently concerns only the Bodies of good Men, and ſo gives us no cauſe to think the Bodies of the wicked ſhall be changed at all; and if the wicked ſhall be raiſed with the ſame Bodies to the Reſurrection of Condemnation, why not the good with the ſame Bodies to the Reſurrection of Life?

A PARAPHRASE WITH ANNOTATIONS ON THE FIRST EPISTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAPTER I.

Verſe 1. PAUL called to be an Apoſtle, [or the called Apoſtle,] of Jeſus Chriſt, through the will of God, and Soſthenes our brother, a 2. Unto [a] the Church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are ſanctified in Chriſt Jeſus, called to be Saints, [or the Saints called,] b [b] with all that in every place c call upon the name of Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, d [yea] both theirs and ours.

e 3. [c] Grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

4. I thank my God always on your behalf, f [f] for the grace of God, which is given you by [or in] Jeſus Chriſt.

5. That in every thing ye are, [or have been] enriched by him, g [g] in all utterance [of tongues,] and in all knowledge [of Divine Myſteries, or in the Gift of Prophecy, 1 Cor. 14.]

h 6. [h] Even as [by theſe Gifts] the Teſtimony of [or Doctrine concerning] Chriſt was confirmed in you, [or eſtabliſhed among you.] i 7 [i] So that ye come behind [the other Churches] in no gift, waiting for the coming [or Revelation] of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

k 8. [k] Who ſhall confirm you to the end, that you may be blameleſs in the day of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

9. [For] God is faithful, by whom ye were called to the fellowſhip [or communion] of his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord; [i. e. that God by whom you are called, is faithful to perform his part in preſerving you blameleſs to that day, or to confer upon you the promiſed Inheritance.]

10. Now, I beſeech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that you all ſpeak the ſame thing, [owning and teaching the ſame Doctrine which you have received, 1 Cor. 11. 2. & 15. 1. Rom. 16. 17. in love and unity,] and that there be no diviſions [or Schiſms] among you, but [that] ye be perfectly joyned together [l] in the ſame mind, l and in the ſame judgment; [in the ſame belief, and in the ſame kind affections, one towards another.]

11. For it hath been declared to me of you, my brethren, by them that are of the houſe of Cloe, that there are contentions among you.

12. Now this, I ſay, [or mean, by charging you with theſe Contentions,] that every one of you ſaith, [one] [m] I am [a follower] m of Paul, and [another] I of Apollo, and [a third] I of Cephas, and [a fourth] [n] I of Chriſt.

13. [Why do not all ſay the ſame thing? viz. I am of Chriſt, Chap. 3. 23.] Is Chriſt divided? [was it one Chriſt that ſent, and enabled Paul; another that ſent Peter, to preach the Goſpel to you? Is not one and the ſame Chriſt preached to you by us all? or is his body divided? 2 Cor. 11. 4.] was Paul [or any other, but Christ Jesus,] crucified for you? [that you should be baptized into their death, as Christians are into the death of Christ,] or were you baptized in the name of Paul? [so as to be called the Disciples of Paul.]

14. I thank God, [whose Providence so ordered it,] that I baptized none of you, but Crispus and Gaius.

15. Lest any should say that I had baptized in my own name.

16. And I baptized also the household of o Stephanus: besides, o I know not whether I baptized any other.

p 17. For p Christ, [when he called me,] sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel [to the Gentiles, and that] not with wisdom of words, lest the Cross of Christ, [i. e. the Doctrine of Christ crucified,] should be made of none effect [by that means:]

18. For the preaching of the Cross, [or of a crucified Jesus in this plain manner,] is [only] to them that perish, [by rejecting it, because not attended with this Humane Wisdom,] foolishness; but unto us, who are saved [by it,] it is [evidently] the power of God; [we embracing this Faith because it is confirmed by Demonstrations of the Spirit and Power, Chap. 2. 4.]

19. [Whereas the preaching of it in the words of Humane Wisdom, would render it of none effect;] For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent: [Isa. 29. 14. as he hath already done; for]

q 20. q Where is [now the wisdom of] the wise [Philosopher among the Gentile?] where is [the wisdom of] the Scribe [the Interpreter of the Law, or Teacher of Traditions among the Jews?] where is the disputer of this world, [or the Searcher into the Secrets of Nature, or into the Sense of the Scripture?] Hath not God [by this Dispensation] made [or declared to be] foolish, the wisdom of this world?

r 21. r For [to begin with the Philosophers,] after that in the wisdom of God, [discernible in his Works of Creation and Providence,] the world by [all its] wisdom knew not [the true] God, [so as to glorifie him as God, and to be thankful to him for his blessings, Rom. 1. 21.] it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching, [as they think fit to stile it,] to save them that believe [in a crucified Jesus thus preached to them.]

22. [Which Salvation thus tendred, the wise men of the world, and the Jewish Doctors
s will not accept,] for the Jews require s a sign, and the Greeks seek after [profound] wisdom.

23. But [or nevertheless] we preach Christ
t crucified, [though his crucifixion be] t unto the Jews a stumbling block, and u to the u Greeks foolishness.

24. [For this he is to Infidels only;] But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, [he is] Christ the power of God, [in the signs and wonders which are wrought by faith in Christ for confirmation of this Doctrine, and so he gives the Sign the Jews require;] and the wisdom of God, [in the manifold and Divine Wisdom discovered in this Dispensation for the saving lost Man, v. 30. and so answers the Greeks request for Wisdom.]

25. [I say, the Power and the Wisdom of God;] Because the foolishness of God, [i. e. the way of God, which is esteemed foolishness by the Greeks] is wiser than [all the wisdom of] men; [and much to be preferr'd before it;] and the weakness of God, [i. e. that way of propagating Man's Salvation, which is weak in their eyes,] is stronger than [the power of] men; [For the weapons of our warfare are mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds, and confounding all the Strength, Policy and Wisdom of the World opposed against it, 2 Cor. 10. 3, 4.]

26. For you see [Gr. look upon] your calling, brethren, [and you will discern] how [agreeably to these things the Divine Wisdom hath so ordered it;] that w not many wise w men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are [either] called [by, or made use of to propagate the Gospel.]

27. But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world, [that simple way of instructing mankind which they call foolishness, and those unlearned Apostles whom they represent as Fools,] to confound the wise [Philosophers, so that they shall not be able to gainsay, or resist the Wisdom with which they speak, Acts 6. 10. Luke 21. 15.] And God hath chosen the weak things of the world, [unarmed Fishermen, Tent-makers, assisted with no Humane Force,] to confound the things which are mighty; [to break through all the opposition that the Kings and Rulers of the World do make against them to pull down the strong holds, cast down the Reasonings, level the Heights of the Philosophers, who do exalt themselves against the Knowledge of Christ, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5.]

28. And [he hath chosen the] base things of the world, x and things which are despi- x sed hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, [i. e. the Gentiles who are esteemed base, and looked upon as nothing by the Jews,] to bring to nought [Gr. to abolish,] things that are; [to become God's Church and People, and so to cause the Jewish Church and Oeconomy to cease, Rom. 11. 15, 17. Philip. 3. 3.]

29. That no flesh should [have cause to] glory in his presence, [either of their Wisdom, Birth or Privileges.]

a Verse 2. Τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ τῦ Θεῦ, the Church of God.] The sanctified in Christ Jesus, the Saints called, seem here to be words of the same import, denoting such as are called out of the World, and separated from others, through Faith in Christ, to be a peculiar People to God, as the Jews were before: All Christians being by virtue of this Calling, a Chosen Generation, a Royal Priesthood, an Holy Nation, a Peculiar People, 1 Pet. 2. 9. Though many Members of the Church of Corinth, and of other Churches, wanted the inward Sanctification of the Holy Spirit. So that the word Saints, in many places of the Acts, and the Epistles, is as large as the word Christians, and stands opposed not to the unsound Christians, but to the Heathen World; Acts 9. 13, 32, 41. & 26. 10. 1 Cor. 6. 1, 2. See here 1 Cor. 14. 33. & 16. 1, 15. 2 Cor. 8. 4. & 9. 1, 12. & 13. 13.

c Ibid. Τοῖς ἐπικαλυμένοις ὄνομα Κυείυ, that call upon the name of the Lord Jesus.] This in the New Testament is the Character of a Christian, that he is one that Calleth on this Name, Acts 9. 14, 21. & 22. 16. Rom. 10. 12, 13. 2 Tim. 2. 22. And that these words ought not to be rendred passively, viz. all that are called by the name of Christ, is evident from the Septuagint, who still translate the phrase יקרא בשם which is active, by ἐπικαλέσεται ἐν ὀνόματι Θεῦ, or ἐν ὀνόματι Κυείυ, i.e. he shall call on the Name of the Lord. See Gen. 4. 26. & 12. 8. & 13. 4. & 21. 33. & 25. 25. Psal. 79. 6. & 99. 6. & 116. 4. Isai. 65. 1. Lam. 3. 55. Zech. 13. 9. But when the phrase runs thus, שמך נקרא that is, thy Name is called upon us, or we are called by thy Name, it is rendred thus, τὸ ὄνομά συ ἐπικέκληται ἐφ' ἡμᾶς, Deut. 28. 10. 1 Kings 8. 43. 2 Chron. 7. 14. Isai. 4. 1. & 63. 19. Jer. 14. 9. & 15. 16. Dan. 9. 18, 19. Amos 9. 12. See the Note on Acts 9. 2. & 22. 16.

2*ly*, We are expresly told that the Disciples were first called Christians at Antioch, Acts 11. 26. Now before this time, we find not only Stephen ἐπικαλέμενον, calling upon this Name, and saying, Lord Jesus receive my Spirit, Acts 7. 59. and St. Paul bid to wash away his sins, calling upon the Name of the Lord, or ἐπικαλέμενῦ τὸ ὄνομα τῦ Κυείυ, Acts 22. 16. but we find this to have been the Character of a Disciple, or a Convert to the Faith of Christ, that he was one that called upon the Name of the Lord. Thus Ananias speaks to the Lord Jesus of St. Paul, He is one who hath received power from the High Priest to bind τὺς ἐπικαλεμένυς τὸ ὄνομά συ, all that call upon thy Name, Acts 9. 14. and of St. Paul converted, it is said, That he had destroyed τὺς ἐπικαλεμένυς τὸ ὄνομα τῦτο them that called upon this Name in Jerusalem, v. 21.

3*ly*, The Reverend Dr. Hammond, who here translates this Phrase passively, doth else where translate it actively, the Context forcing him so to do. So Rom. 10. 13. Whosoever shall call upon the Name of the Lord; i. e. pray and adhere to Christ, shall be saved. And Acts 9. 14. He hath authority to bind all that call upon thy Name, i. e. saith he, that publickly own the Worship of Christ, Acts 22. 16.

Ibid. Yea, both theirs and ours.] All the Greek Interpreters, Chrysostom, Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact, observe that the words, theirs and ours, are to be connected with the word, Lord, τὸ ἴδιον αὐτῶν τε καὶ ἡμῶν τῷ Κυείῳ σωτῆρι σσαι; and so the sense is this, The Lord, I say, both of me who write, and you to whom I write. d

3*d*. Χάεις ὑμῖν, &c.] 'Tis unadvisedly said by some, that this is a Wish, and not a Prayer. The full import of the Phrase is, as St. Peter, 2 Pet. 1. 2. and St. Jude, v. 2. and (a) Polycarp do cite it, viz. Grace and Peace be multiplied to you from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. Now is not this to desire for them Grace and Peace from God the Father, and consequently to pray for it? Why therefore is it not also to desire the same Blessings from God the Son? Are they not both the Givers of Grace and Peace to the Church? Doth not Christ know all the Necessities of his Church in this kind? Doth not he who searcheth the heart and reins, Rev. 2. 24. know the desires of his Servants? And why then should they only wish these things from I know e not whom, and not pray to him who is the Giver of Grace and Peace for them? Especially when they have St. Paul's example for it, in these words, For this thing I besought the Lord (Christ) thrice, and he said unto me, my Grace is sufficient for thee, 2 Cor. 12. 8, 9, 10. And again, The Lord Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who hath loved us, and given us eternal consolation, and good hope through grace, comfort your hearts, and confirm you in every good word, and work, 2 Thess. 2. 16. 1 Thess. 3. 11, 12.

f Ver. 4. Ἐπὶ τῇ χάριτι τῇ θεῷ, for the Grace of God.] Here the Context seems to restrain this Phrase to the Favour of God shew'd to the Corinthians, in vouchsafing these Spiritual Gifts, which is a frequent import of this Phrase in Scripture. So Rom. 12. 6. Having gifts differing according to the grace (of God) that is given to us; whether Prophecy, let us prophesie according to the proportion of Faith, &c. Eph. 4. 7, 8. To every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ. Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high he led Captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men, 1 Pet. 4. 10. As every one hath received the Gift, so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God, 2 Cor. 1. 12. Not in fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly to you wards. Our Preaching to you being not in the words of Humane Wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit, and in Power, 1 Cor. 2. 4. Thus, to sing with grace in the heart, Eph. 5. 19. Col. 3. 16. is, say the (b) Ancients, to sing using the spiritual Gift vouchsafed to them by the Holy Ghost. Which Interpretation is confirmed from the Spiritual Psalms, Hymns, and Songs there mentioned. See 1 Cor. 14. 15. Eph. 6. 18. And this is very suitable to the Language of the Jews, who when the Hebrew mentions חן Grace, do render it the Spirit of Prophecy. So Psal. 45. 2. Grace is poured into thy lips, Datus est Spiritus Prophetiæ in labiis tuis, saith the Chaldee.

g Ver. 5. Ἐν παντὶ λόγῳ.] Estius saith this ought not to be interpreted of the Gift of Tongues, because λόγος in Scripture never bears that sense. But (1.) it is certain from v. 7. that it is χάρισμα, a Gift; and it is joyned with Faith and Knowledge, which are Gifts, 2 Cor. 8. 7. and cannot well be referred to any other Gift vouchsafed then to the Church. And (2.) the word γνῶσις, relating to Prophecy, or the Knowledge of Mysteries, was usually attended with the Gift of Tongues. See Acts 19. 6. and though we find not the word λόγος absolutely put in this sense; yet λόγος σοφίας, the Word of Wisdom, and λόγος γνώσεως, the Word of Knowledge, are reckoned among Spiritual Gifts, 1 Cor. 12. 8. All this indeed with Mr. le Cl. passes for mear Niceties; and he saith it is more natural to understand by λόγος the knowledge of Religion, though that, as he confesses, is the import of the following word γνῶσις knowledge, so that according to this Exposition, the Apostle thanks God here, and 2 Cor. 8. 7. commends them for abounding in the knowledge, and in the knowledge of Religion. Besides, the Knowledge of Religion, cannot be called Grace in the sense given of that Phrase, v. 4. nor was the testimony of Christ confirmed to the Corinthians, v. 6. by that, but by the Gifts of the Holy Spirit.

Ver. 6. Καθὼς, even as.] This Particle h signifies sometimes when, as Acts 7. 17. καθὼς δὲ ἤγγιζεν ὁ χρόνος, but when the time drew nigh.

Ver. 7, 8. From these three Verses it is to i be observed, (1.) That the Corinthians were abundantly repleniſhed with the Gifts of the Holy Ghost, the Gifts of Tongues and Knowledge, v. 5. that they came behind the other Churches in no Gift, v. 7.

2*ly*, That they obtained these Gifts by Jesus Christ, and through Faith in him, v. 4.

3*ly*, That by these, the Doctrine of Christ, the Testimony of the Apostles concerning him, that he was raised from the dead, and become the Author of Salvation to them that believe, was confirmed to them, v. 6.

4*ly*, That by these Gifts, and by this earnest of the Spirit, they had encouragement to expect, or wait for the Second coming of the Lord.

Ver. 8. Βεβαιώσει ὑμᾶς, who shall also confirm k you to the end, &c.] These words are by the Ancients thus interpreted, viz. who in that Day of the Lord Jesus which you expect, will confirm you for ever blameless. And this is suitable to his Prayer, that Christians may be unblameable in the day of the Lord, Philip. 1. 9, 10. 1 Thess. 3. 12, 13. & 5. 23. for say they, God is faithful who hath promised to them that obey the Gospel υἱοθεσίαν, the Adoption, that is, the Redemption of the Body, Rom. 8. 23. or that they shall be partakers of that Kingdom and Glory to which he hath called them, 1 Thess. 2. 12. Others thus, He will do all that is requisite on his part, (c) quod suarum est partium, to render you unblameable to the end; So that you shall not fail of it through any want of Divine Grace necessary to that end, or any unfaithfulness on God's part to his Promise, who hath already reconciled you to himſelf, through the Death of Chriſt, to preſent you holy and unblameable and unreproveable in his ſight; if ye continue in the Faith grounded and ſetled, and be not moved away from the hope of the Goſpel, Col. 1. 21, 22, 23. See Philip. 1. 6. Hebr. 3. 6, 14. That the Apoſtle ſpeaks not here of any Promiſe of Perſeverance made to the Elect only among the Corinthians, is evident, (1.) Becauſe he plainly ſpeaks to the whole Body of the Church, to the Church of God which was in Corinth, to all that call upon the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. And (2.) he ſpeaks not only of their being preſerved from falling away finally, but of their being preſerved unblameable, whereas it is certain, the Elect are not always ſo preſerved.

l Ver. 10. Ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ νοΐ, that ye be perfectly joyned in the ſame mind and judgment.] (d) This can be no further the Matter of an Exhortation than it is in our Power to obey it; ſeeing then it is not in any Man's power to change his ſetled Judgment, or to think otherwiſe upon our Intreaty, becauſe our Exhortation gives no Conviction to the Underſtanding, it follows, that this Exhortation muſt only be to do what was in the power of the Corinthians, viz. 1. To prevail with them to lay aſide their Striſe, Envy, and Diviſions, 1 Cor. 3. 3. and the ſad Conſequents of them, Debate, Wrath, Backbiting, Whiſpering, Swelling, Tumult, 2 Cor. 12. 20. and to this the Reaſon of this Exhortation leads, Be of one mind and judgment, for I hear there be contentions among you, v. 11. And (2.) to engage them unanimouſly to own the Doctrine they had received, and he had preached to them, 1 Cor. 15. 1. which, if they were ſo minded, might eaſily be done, ſince they ſo lately had received it, the heads of it were ſo few, 1 Cor. 15. 3. and 'twas ſo eaſie for them to conſult the Apoſtle in their doubtings of the ſenſe of what he had delivered. But at this Diſtance of Time from the firſt diſcovery of the Chriſtian Faith, and after it is become a Syſtem of very many, and thoſe diſputable Opinions, for the Truth of which we have now no Apoſtle, no living and infallible Judge of Controverſies to conſult, if it be not ſufficient to preſerve Unity in the Church, that Men heartily believe all the Articles of the Apoſtles Creed, which are plainly delivered in Scripture, and live peaceably and quietly together, following after Peace and Charity with all that call upon the Lord Jeſus out of a pure heart, 2 Tim. 2. 22. and avoiding any Separations from their Brethren, where nothing ſinful is enjoyned to be believed, or done, to hold Communion with them, I doubt there will be little Union in the Church of God.

Ver. 12. Ἐγὼ εἰμὶ Παύλου, I am of Paul, &c.] m Of the Gentile part of the Church of Corinth; Some preferred St. Paul, as being their Spiritual Father, who in Chriſt Jeſus had begotten them through the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 4. 14, 15. Others preferred Apollo, as being an eloquent Man, and mighty in the Scriptures, Acts 18. 24. The Jewiſh Chriſtians preferring St. Peter, as the chief Apoſtle of the Circumciſion out of the Territories of Judea. That this is here ſaid, not by a Fiction of Names, or Perſons, under which the Apoſtle taxed the Heads of the Sects among the Corinthians; but that they really divided upon theſe Accounts, is evident, firſt, from St. Paul's thanking God that he baptized ſo few of them, leſt they ſhould have occaſion to ſay he baptized in his own Name, and ſo made Diſciples to himſelf: ſecondly, From thoſe words, Let no man glory in men, for all are yours, whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, Chap. 3. 21, 22.

Ibid. I am of Chriſt.] (e) Epiphanius obſerves of the Ebionites, that they pleaded for the Circumciſion of Chriſtians from the Example of Chriſt who was circumciſed, becauſe the Diſciple was to be as his Maſter, and ſo the import of theſe words may be this, Others ſay, I am for the Circumciſing of the Gentiles, that they may be like Chriſt. n

Ver. 16. Οὐκ οἶδα, I know not.] Therefore his Inſpiration or Divine Aſſiſtance in writing his Epiſtles, did not reach to an Information in ſuch things as theſe, but only to direct him into all Truth, he was to teach unto the Churches. See Chap. 16. 7. 1 Pet. 5. 12. o

Ver. 17. Οὐ γὰρ ἀπέστειλέ με Χριστὸς βαπτίζειν, p Chriſt ſent me not to baptize, but to preach, &c.] i. e. When he appeared himſelf, and after ſent Ananias to him, he expreſly ſent him to preach to the Gentiles, Acts 22. 21. & 26. 16, 17. to bear his Name before the Gentiles, Acts 9. 15. to be the Wineſs of his Reſurrection, Acts 22. 15. But in that threefold Rehearſal of his Commiſſion, there is no mention made of his being ſent to baptize; nor was it needful, after the General Commiſſion given to Chriſt's Apoſtles for that end, Matth. 28. 19. That was not, ſay the Greek Expoſitors, his great Buſineſs; for (f) to baptize is eaſie to any who is admitted to Sacred Orders; but to preach the Goſpel requires a Divine Revelation, and great Aſſiſtance of the Power of God. Hence Peter himſelf preaches to Cornelius and his Kinſmen, but commands them to be baptized by others, Acts 10. 48. And this Gospel he sent me to preach (not with the wisdom of words, lest the Cross of Christ should be made of none effect.) Men not ascribing the prevailing of it to the power of God, but to the perswasion of Humane Wisdom; God not approving, v. 19. and therefore not assisting the preaching of the Gospel in that way. Ἴσως γὰρ, εἰ κάλλει τῆς ὑπερβολῆς φράσεως, ὡς πὰρ' Ἕλλησι θαυμαζόμενα, εἶχεν ἡ γραφὴ, ὑπενόησεν ἂν τις ἡ τῆς ἀληθείας κεκρυπτῆσθαι τῶν ἀνθρώπων, ἀλλὰ τῇ ἐμφανομερεῖ ἀκολουθίᾳ, καὶ τῷ τῆς φράσεως κάλλει ἐψυχαγωγήσαι τὰς ἀκροωμένας. Orig. Philocal. p. 25.

q Ver. 20. Πῦ σοφὸς.] That is, what hath been done by the Wisdom of the Philosopher, or by the Jewish Doctors, or by the Searcher into Nature's Secrets, to bring Men to the true Knowledge of God, and of his Will? Hath not God discovered their Wisdom to be but Folly, in comparison of this way which he hath chosen to bring Men to the Knowledge of himself? The Disputer of this World is by St. Jerom rendred Causarum Naturalium scrutator, Com. in Gal 3. and so the Naturalists are stiled by the Jews חכמי המחקר (g) Sapientes Scrutationis, the Searchers into the Secrets of Nature; Tho' I conceive the Apostle here doth rather understand, the Midrashim, or the Disputers in the Jewish Schools, and Academies, touching their Traditions. That the σοφὸς, i. e. the wise Man mentioned here, refers not to the Cochmim or wise Men of the Jews, but to the Philosophers among the Gentiles, is evident; for that the Wisdom of the Wise, v. 19. is the Wisdom of the Heathen World, appears from v. 21. where it is said, the World through Wisdom knew not God; which is true only of the Gentiles, not of the Jews. 'Tis therefore reasonable to conceive the wise in the twentieth Verse should signifie the same Persons. So doth St. Paul interpret the wise in these words, I am a debtor to the Greek and to the Barbarian, to the wise and the unwise, Rom. 1. 14. So Chrysostom, (h) Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact upon the place, saying, That by the wise the Apostle understands the Man adorned with the Verbosity and Eloquence of the Greeks. I have not been solicitous to shew the Agreement of the words of St. Paul here, with those of Isaiah, Chap. 33. 18. because I find not that St. Paul intended here to cite them.

r Ver. 21. Here two things are to be learnt, (1.) That from the Creation, Beauty, Order and Grandeur of the World, and the Direction of all things in it to an end, and the fitting them with Parts, and Instruments adapted best to the obtaining that end, it might be known that the Creator of the World was God alone, and so was only to be glorified as God, Psal. 19. 1, 2. Rom. 1. 19, 20. Psal. 104. 24. & 136. 5. Jer. 10. 12. & 51. 15. (2.) That the Gospel was sent into the World, that they who did not know the true God acceptably by the Light of Nature, might do it by the Light of that Revelation which made such a bright and glorious Manifestation of the Power, Wisdom, Justice and Goodness of God, which they whom Satan had not blinded must discern, 2 Cor. 4. 4.

Ver. 22. Σημεῖον, a sign] From Heaven, s such as was that of Moses giving them bread from Heaven, John 6. 30, 31. that in the time of Joshua, when the Sun stood still, Chap. 10. 13. or of Elijah, who brought down fire from Heaven to consume the Offering, 1 Kings 18. 38. and to consume the Captains and their Fifties, 2 Kings 1. 10, 12. Luke 9. 54. the Son of Man being to come in the Clouds of Heaven, as he did at the Destruction of Jerusalem, Dan. 7. 13. Matth. 24. 30. and to give Signs from Heaven, Joel 2. 30. as he did at the day of Pentecost, Acts 2. 2. and as God did by a Voice from Heaven at our Saviour's Baptism, Matth. 3. 17. at his Transfiguration, Matth. 17. 5. at his Preaching, John 12. 28, 29.

Ver. 23. Ἰουδαίοις μὲν σκάνδαλον, unto the t Jews a stumbling block.] Your Jesus, saith Trypho, having by this fallen under the extreamest Curse of the Law of God, we cannot sufficiently admire that you should expect any good from God, who place your hopes in a Man that was crucified, ἐπ' ἄνθρωπον σταυρωθέντα. Dial. cum Just. p. 227, 249, 317. And again, We doubt of your Christ, who was so ignominiously crucified, for our Law stiles every one, that is crucified, accursed. Hence by way of Ignominy they still call our Saviour Talui (i) Suspensum, one hang'd upon the Tree.

Ibid: To the Greeks foolishness.] They count u us mad, saith (k) Justin Martyr, that after, the immutable and eternal God, the Father of all things, we give the second place ἀνθρώπῳ σταυρωθέντι *to a Man that was crucified. w Ver. 26. Οὐ πολλοὶ σοφοὶ, not many wiſe.] This ſeems to be ſpoken in a direct oppoſition to that celebrated Maxim of the Jews, That Propheſie reſides not, but upon a wiſe, a ſtrong, and a rich Man.

x Ver. 28. Καὶ τὰ μὴ ὄντα, &c.] To confirm the Explication of theſe words given in the Paraphraſe, let it be noted, Firſt, That the Apoſtle in this Chapter often ſpeaks conjunctly of the Jew and Gentile, inter-weaving them together in his Diſcourſe: So v. 20. he ſpeaks of the wiſe Men of the Greeks, and then of the Scribes among the Jews, v. 22. of the Jews requiring Signs, and the Greeks Wiſdom; of Chriſt crucified being to the Jews a ſtumbling block, and to the Gentiles fooliſhneſs. So here v. 27. he ſeems to ſpeak of the Goſpel preached by the Apoſtles in a plain familiar way, and by them deemed Weakneſs, and ſtiled Fooliſhneſs, as confounding all the Wiſdom, and the Power of the Greeks; and v. 28. of the Gentile Church ſucceeding, and aboliſhing that of the Jews. Note therefore,

Secondly, That the Jews looked upon themſelves as the only εὐγενεῖς Perſons of true Nobility, as being of the Stock of Abraham; even the pooreſt Iſraelite, ſaith R. Akibah, is to be looked upon as a Gentleman, as being the Son of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob. But the Gentiles they horribly deſpiſed, as the baſe People of the Earth, not fit to be converſed with by them, they being in their Law ſtiled οὐκ ἔθνος, not a Nation, Deut. 32. 21. οὐ λαὸς, not a People, Hoſ. 1.10. And it being ſaid by the Prophet, That all the Heathens are as nothing, and were accounted as nothing, Iſa. 40. 17. they ſtill accounted them as ſuch: Hence Mordecai is introduced as praying thus, Lord give not thy Scepter, τοῖς μὴ οὖσι, to them that are not, Eſther 4. 11. And Eſdras ſpeaking to God thus, As for the People which alſo came of Adam, thou haſt ſaid they are nothing, but like unto Spittle, and haſt likened the abundance of them to a drop that falleth from a Veſſel. And now, O Lord, theſe Heathens who have ever been reputed as nothing, have begun to be Lords over us, 2 Eſdr. 6. 56,57. Thus Abraham is ſaid to be the Father of the Gentiles before that God who calleth things which (n) are not as if they were, Rom. 4. 17. And (o) Clemens Romanus ſaith of the Gentile, He called us who were not, and would that of no being we ſhould have a being. So fitly are the Gentiles repreſented here by τὰ μὴ ὄντα, τὸ ἀγενῆ, τὰ ἐξουθενημένα, the things baſe, accounted as nothing, and the things which are not. See alſo 1 Cor. 6. 4. And this is the Ancient Expoſition of Origen, who ſpeaking of the Rejection of the Jews, and the Calling of the Gentiles, and God's provoking the Jews to jealouſie by them that were not a Nation, he confirms this from theſe words, (p) God hath choſen the baſe things of the World, and the things which are not, that he might aboliſh the things which were before, that Iſrael according to the fleſh might not glory before God.

y Ver. 30. Σοφία, &c. Wiſdom.] As being the Author of that Evangelical Wiſdom which far excels the Wiſdom of the Philoſopher and Scribe, and even that Legal Conſtitution which is called the Wiſdom of the Jews, Deut. 4. 6. The Authour of Juſtification, as procuring for us that Remiſſion of Sins which the Law could not give, Gal. 2. 21. & 3. 21. The Author of Sanctification, as procuring for, and working in us, not only an External, and Relative Holineſs, as was that of the Jews, but ὁσιότητα ἀληθείας true and internal Holineſs, Eph. 4. 24. wrought in us by the Holy Spirit. The Author of Redemption, not from Egyptian Bondage, or Babyloniſh Captivity, but from the Servitude of Satan, the Dominion of Sin and Death, and from the Bondage of Corruption, into the glorious Liberty of the Sons of God, or the Redemption of the Body, Rom. 8. 21, 23. They who ſay Chriſt is made our Righteouſneſs by his Righteouſneſs imputed to us, have the ſame reaſon to ſay alſo, that he is made our Wiſdom, by his Wiſdom, and our Sanctification, by his Holineſs imputed to us.

CHAPTER II.

Verse 1. AND I, brethren, [have acted suitably to what I told you, that Christ sent me not to preach the Gospel with wisdom of words, 1 Cor. 1. 17. for] when I came to you, [I] came not with excellency of speech, or of [Humane] wisdom, declaring to you a the testimony of God.

2. For I determined b not to know any thing among you, [i.e. to discover any other knowledge to you,] save [that of] Jesus Christ, and him crucified.

3. And I was with you c in weakness, and d in fear, and in much trembling; [or, in much fear and trembling.]

4. And my speech, and my preaching, was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but e in demonstration of the spirit, and of power; [the Power of God confirming what I preached with signs and wonders; Rom. 15. 19. 2 Cor. 12. 12.]

5. That your faith should not [seem to] stand in the wisdom of man, but in the power of God.

6. Howbeit, we speak the [highest] wisdom f among men that are perfect [men in Christ Jesus; i.e. fully instructed in the Principles of Christian Faith;] yet not the wisdom of the [Heathen] world, nor of the princes of the world, [the Jewish Magistrates and Doctors,] who come to nought, [and are to be abolished.]

7. But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, g even the hidden wisdom which h God ordained before the world, [to be revealed in due time,] to our glory; [i.e. to be the means of our happiness and glory.]

8. Which i none of the princes of this world knew; for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

9. But [God hath dealt with us] as it is k written, [Isa. 64. 4.] k eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entred into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10. But God hath revealed them to us by his Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep [and mysterious] things of God.

11. [And as it is among men, so it is here in reference to these things;] For what man knoweth the [secret] things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the [secret] things of God knoweth no man, [Gr. none,] but the l Spirit of God [which is in him.] l

12. Now we have not received the spirit of the world, [which suggests worldly wisdom,] but the Spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

13. Which things also we speak, not in the words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghost teacheth, m comparing spiritual things with spiritual. m

14. But n the natural man, [who acteth only by the Principles of Humane Reason, and of worldly wisdom,] o receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness to him, [as being destitute of his Humane Wisdom, Chap. 1. 23.] p neither can he know them, [by any study of his own,] because they are spiritually discerned; [i. e. by Scripture Prophecies, and by the Revelation of the Spirit; and therefore while he continues to reject this way of knowledge, he cannot receive them.] n o p

15. But he that is spiritual, [i.e. who hath the Revelation of the Spirit,] q judgeth, [or discerneth,] all things, [relating to this Mystery, v. 7.] yet he himself is judged of no man; [or discerned by none who hath no higher Principle than that of Nature to discern things by.] q

16. For who [without a Revelation] hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him, [or, which will and can instruct him in these things? Sure no man by Natural Principles;] but we [who are spiritual,] have the mind of Christ, [and so are able to discern and instruct others in it.] a Verse 1. Τὸ μαρτύριον τοῦ Θεοῦ, the testimony of God.] This is the reading of Chrysostom, Oecumenius, Theophylact, who intimate not in the least that they knew any Copies which read μυστήριον. The Testimony of the Apostles concerning the Messias, or the Son of God, his Death, his Resurrection and Exaltation to be a Prince and Saviour, is called the Testimony of God, 1 John 5. 9. because God testified to the truth of these Doctrines by Signs and Wonders, and divers Miracles, and Distributions of the Holy Ghost, Heb. 2. 4.

b Ver. 2. Οὐ ἐδίνατο τι, not to know any thing.] To act as one who knew nothing τὸ ἔξω σοφίας of the Eloquence, and Wisdom of the Greeks, but only to give you the knowledge of a crucified Saviour, which was to them foolishness, Chap. 1. 23. So Chrysostom.

Ibid. Ἐν φόβῳ καὶ ἐν τρόμῳ, in fear, and trembling.] By reaſon of the violent oppoſition which he found from the Jews, which made ſo deep impreſſion on him when he was at Corinth, that Chriſt ſaw fit to appear to him, and encourage him by ſaying, Be not afraid, but ſpeak, and hold not thy peace, for I am with thee, Acts 18. 6, 9.

e Ver. 4. Ἐν ἀποδείξει Πνεύματος, in demonſtration of the Spirit.] This is, ſaith (a) Origen, by demonſtration of the truth of what I ſaid concerning Chriſt out of the Prophets, who ſpake by the Spirit, and comparing ſpiritual things revealed to us, with ſpiritual things revealed to them, verſ. 13. Reaſoning with the Jews out of the Scripture, as St. Paul's manner was, Acts 17. 2. And ſaying no other things but thoſe which Moſes, and the Prophets ſaid ſhould come, that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, and that he ſhould riſe from the dead, and ſhould ſhew light to the Gentiles, Acts 26. 22, 23.

Others, as (b) Chryſoſtom, Theodoret, Oecumenius, Theophylact, underſtand by this Phraſe the miraculous Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt; only it muſt be noted againſt Mr. le Cl. that neither the word πνεῦμα is to be reſtrained to the Gift of Tongues, but comprehends all the internal Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt; nor muſt the word δυνάμις, Power, be reſtrained to healing Diſeaſes; but comprehends all the External Gifts ſhewed upon others, as caſting out Devils, raiſing the dead.

f Ver. 6. Ἐν τοῖς τελείοις, among them that are perfect;] i. e. fully inſtructed in the Principles of the Chriſtian Faith; that this is the ſenſe of the word perfect here, appears from the oppoſition of thoſe that are perfect, to Babes in Chriſt; as in thoſe words, You have need that one teach you which be the firſt Principles of the Oracles of God, and are become ſuch as have need of Milk, and not of ſtrong Drink; for every one that uſeth Milk is unskilful in the word of Righteouſneſs. Therefore leaving the Principles of the Doctrine of Chriſt, let us go on to perfection, Hebr. 5. 12, 13. & 6. 1. εἰς τὴν τελειότητα. Thus to that queſtion of the young Man, What lack I yet, Chriſt anſwereth, εἰ θέλεις τέλειος εἶναι, if thou wilt be perfect, i. e. fully inſtructed in the Conditions of Life required by the Goſpel, Go ſell all and follow me, Matth. 19. 21. So Philip. 3. 15. Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, i. e. fully inſtructed in our Chriſtian Liberty, mind this. See 1 Cor. 13. 10. Col. 1. 28. Strong meat is for them that are perfect, Hebr. 5. 14.

Ver. 9. For all the Prophets ſay the (c) Jews, propheſied only of the days of the Meſſiah, but as for the World to come, or the ſtate of things then, (as it is written) eye hath not ſeen, O God, beſides thee; where the Gloſs adds, The eyes of the Prophets could not ſee theſe things. Hence the Apoſtle adds in the following Verſe, But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit; whereas our future Happineſs is not yet revealed, ſaith St. John, 1 John. 3. 2. k and send thy Spirit from above, which knoweth and understandeth all things, Chap. 9. 17. v. 11. Whence it seems plainly to follow,

1*st*, That the Holy Spirit is Omniscient, as knowing all things, even the deep things of God. Wisdom is a loving Spirit, and will not acquit a Blasphemer of his words; for God is witness of his Reins, and a beholder of his Heart, and a hearer of his Tongue: For the Spirit of the Lord filleth the World, and that which containeth all things hath the knowledge of the voice, Wisd. 1. 6, 7.

2*ly*, That the Holy Spirit is with God, and in God, even as intimately as the Soul is in the Body, according to those words of the Book of Wisdom; She is μετὰ σε with thee, an assessor of thy Throne, and was present with thee when thou madest the World, Wisd. 9. 4, 9.

m Ver. 13. Πνευματικὰ πνευματικοῖς συγκρίνοντες, comparing spiritual things with spiritual;] That is, saith Mr. le Cl. speaking spiritual things to spiritual men. But where doth συγκρίνω signifie to speak, or why doth he limit what is spoken to the spiritual man, since the Apostles spake as well to the unbelieving Jew, and Gentile, as to the spiritual Man? And how doth it appear that ἄνθρωπος Man is here to be understood, because it follows in the next Verse, rather than πράγματα things, which is understood in the immediate foregoing words? The Interpretation of the Fathers is much more probable, viz. we speak these things in the words taught by the Holy Ghost, (d) comparing the things which were writ by the Spirit in the Old Testament, with what is now revealed to us by the same Spirit, and confirming our Doctrines from them. Moreover, from this and the preceding Verses, as also from the following, it is exceeding evident that the Apostles spake, and writ by Inspiration of the Holy Ghost, as did the Prophets of old time, and delivered only those things as from God, which God revealed to them by the Holy Spirit, according to those words of St. Peter, We preach the Gospel to you by the Holy Ghost sent down from Heaven, 1 Pet. 1. 12.

n Ver. 14. Ψυχικὸς ἄνθρωπος, the natural man.] By the natural Man, saith Mr. Cl. is not here meant the Man that makes use of nothing but Reason; but the Man that is wholly devoted, and enslaved to earthly things, and entirely taken up with the Concernments of this Life, like a brute Creature. The opposition made here between spiritual, and animal things, saith he, plainly proves what I have said. Whereas there is not a word spoken of ψυχικὰ, animal things, in the whole Chapter, but only an opposition betwixt ψυχικὸς the natural or animal, and πνευματικὸς spiritual Person, whom I shall prove to be a Person endued with a spiritual Afflatus, and by that confound his Notion. That the Natural Man here is the Man who rejects Revelation, and admits of no higher Principle to judge of things by, but Philosophy, and Demonstration from the Principles of Natural Reason, or in the words of (e) Porphyry, τὸ καλὸν τὸ λογισμῶν πειθοῦς ἐνεργοῦσης, of Perswasion to be found out by a rational Deduction, is the express Assertion of (f) Theodoret, (g) St. Chrysostom, Photius, Oecumenius, and (h) Theophylact upon the place; they therefore thought the word would bear this sense; And evident it is to to any one who considers the Chain of the Apostle's Discourse from Chap. 1. 17. to the end of this Chapter, that this must be the sense; for v. 17. he begins to declare he preached the Gospel, οὐκ ἐν σοφίᾳ λόγου, not in wisdom of words, or humane wisdom, here v. 1. that he did it not καθ' ὑπεροχὴν λόγου ἢ σοφίας, with excellency of Speech or humane wisdom; there the Persons which reject the Gospel are σοφοὶ, the wise men of the world; the 19, 20, 21 v. stiled σοφοὶ κατὰ σάρκα, wise men according to the flesh; the Greeks, that seek for wisdom, v. 22. they who esteemed it foolishness are the same Greeks, v. 23. here it is the ψυχικὸς natural Man who receives it not, and to whom it is foolishness. Who therefore sees not that the Natural Man is the same with the Wise Man, the Disputer, the Philosopher, the Greek there? There the Gospel rejected by them for want of this Wisdom, and accounted foolishness, is indeed the Power of God, and the Wisdom of God, v. 24. Here it is the Wisdom of God in a mystery revealed to the Apostles by the Spirit, v. 7, 10. i. e. the spirit, not of the World, or of Humane Wisdom, but the Spirit they had received from God, that they might know it, v. 12. and therefore they delivered it not in the Words of Humane Wisdom, in which the Greeks gloried, and which they sought for in the Gospel, but in words taught them by the Holy Ghost, v. 13. when then it follows, But the natural man receives not τὰ τοῦ Πνεύματος the things of the Spirit, must he not be the Man who receives not the things taught by the Revelation of the Holy Ghost? The Opposition which he bears to the πνευμᾶλλον, the Man who hath this Wiſdom revealed to him by the Spirit of God, demonſtrates this to be the ſenſe.

o Ibid. Οὐ δέχεται, &c. he receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God.] But counts them fooliſhneſs, Chap. 1.23. when propounded to him, becauſe he doth not ſee them proved from Principles of Natural Reaſon, by Philoſophical Deductions, which is the wiſdom he ſeeks after, v. 22. Hence again it is evident he is the Greek, and not the Senſual Perſon.

p Ibid. Οὐ δύναται γνῶναι, he cannot know them.] Viz. by that Wiſdom which alone he will be conducted by, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned, or by the Revelation of the Spirit, for being Myſteries, they are not knowable by Humane Reaſon, till God is pleaſed to reveal them.

Note alſo, That the Apoſtle doth not here diſcourſe of the Inability of an Heathen to underſtand the ſenſe of any Revelations diſcovered to him, for how then are they to be diſcovered to him, but only of his Inability to find out, and originally come to the knowledge of them by the meer Light of Reaſon; and from the denial of this, he infers the neceſſity of a Supernatural Revelation, that the hidden Wiſdom of God may be made known to the World. Nor doth he ſay, that the Natural Man cannot underſtand theſe Revelations when diſcovered to him, becauſe he wants further means to do it, but only that he cannot know them before they are diſcovered by the Revelation of the Spirit; and that he will not then receive them, becauſe they are not taught him, as the Wiſdom of the World is, by deductions from Principles of Humane Reaſon. The Jew, ſaith he, admits of Revelation, and ſo he only doth require a Sign to prove this Revelation; but the Greek ſeeks after Humane Wiſdom, and becauſe he finds not that in our way of preaching, he will not receive the Revelation, though it be confirmed by q Demonſtration of the Spirit and of Power.

Ver. 15. Ἀνακρίνει, judgeth all things.] The Paſſive ἀνακρίνεται is rendred diſcerned in the foregoing Verſe, and ſo ſhould have been rendred here; and the Active, ſearcheth or diſcerneth, as Acts 17.11. and here Chap. 10. 25, 27. & 14. 24.

Πνευματικὸς here, and in other places of this Epiſtle, is not the Man who is adorned with the Fruits of the good Spirit, much leſs, as Mr. Cl. ſuggeſts, the Man who reliſhes, or is affected with the Spiritual Doctrines of the Goſpel, but (i) ὁ ἐν τῷ πνεύματος χάριτος ἐκπωμάτῳ, the man who is endued with a ſpiritual Afflatus, and hath thoſe Gifts of the Spirit which are ſtiled the Word of Wiſdom, and of Knowledge, Chap. 12.8. for (1.) he is the Man who ſpeaks in demonſtration of the Spirit, v. 4. the wiſdom of God in a Myſtery, v. 7. to whom God hath revealed it by the Holy Spirit, v. 10. that he might know the things that are freely given us of God, v. 12. and who ſpeaks of them in words taught by the Holy Ghoſt, v. 13. and who by this Revelation of the Spirit hath the mind of Chriſt made known to him, v. 16. who ſpeaks πνεύματι Θεοῦ, by the Spirit of God, and by the Holy Ghoſt, Chap. 12. 2. Such were the Prophets in the firſt Age of the Church, who by this Afflatus performed all Sacred Offices in the Church, before they had ſtated Church Officers among them. See Note on 1 Cor. 14. 32. Whence the Apoſtle ſaith, If any man be a Prophet among you, or ſpiritual, let him know (i. e. acknowledge and diſcern by his Spiritual Afflatus) that the things which I write unto you are the Commandments of the Lord, 1 Cor. 14. 37. And to thoſe Prophets he writes thus, Brethren, if any man be overtaken with a fault, you that are ſpiritual reſtore ſuch a one in the ſpirit of meekneſs, Gal. 6 1. See the Note there. This is the conſtant Notion of the Spiritual Man in (k) Irenæus, who ſpeaking of thoſe Men who had the Prophetical Gifts for the Edification of the Church, ſaith, they are Men whom the Apoſtle ſtiles Spiritual. When afterwards Church Governors were appointed, they ſeem to have been choſen out of theſe ſpiritual Men, or to have had for a time together with their Ordination this Gift, which therefore he ſtiles the Gift of Truth. And from whom, ſaith he, the Truth is to be learned by others. If the Church of Rome would from this Chapter gather the Infallibility of their Doctors met in Councel, let them ſhew it by their Spiritual Gifts, or exhibit Chariſmata Veritatis, as (l) Irenæus ſpeaks.

CHAPTER III.

Verse 1. AND I, brethren, [though I speak the highest Wisdom among them that are perfect, yet] could [I] not speak unto you as to spiritual [Persons,] but as unto carnal, [by reason of those fruits of the flesh which still abide in you, v. 3. and your affection to those who are only wise according to the flesh, Chap. 1. 28. and] even as unto Babes in Christ.

2. I have fed you with milk, [the Principles of the Doctrine of Christ, Heb. 5. 12, 13. & 6. 1. See 1 Cor. 15. 2, 3.] and not with meat, [the higher Doctrines of Christianity,] for hitherto, [or, then] ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

a 3. For ye are yet a carnal; for whereas there is [yet] among you envying, and strife, and divisions, [which are the works of the flesh, Gal. 5. 20, 21.] are ye not carnal, and walk as Men [who have little of the Spirit in you? See Note on Chap. 9. 8.]

4. For while one saith [in opposition to each other,] I am [the Disciple] of Paul, and another, I am of Apollo, are ye not carnal?

5. Who then is Paul, and who is Apollo? [not Authors of your Faith,] but [only] Ministers by whom ye believed, [which Faith also they wrought in you,] even as the Lord gave [his Gifts] to every Man, [and his Blessings on their Labours.]

6. I have planted [the Gospel among you,] Apollo watered [the Seed sown;] but God [only] gave the increase [of it.]

7. So then, neither is he that planteth, [to be esteemed as] any thing, nor he that b watereth, b but [the glory of all must be ascribed to] God that giveth the increase.

8. Now he that planteth, and he that c watereth c are one, [in their design and ministry,] and every man [of them] shall receive his own reward, [from that God whose workmen they are;] according to his own labour.

9. [I say, according to his labour;] For we are labourers together with God, [his Grace assisting us:] ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building.

10. According to the grace of God which d is given unto me, as a wise d master-builder, [assisted by Divine Wisdom,] I have laid the foundation, [Jesus Christ, and him crucified, 1 Cor. 2. 2.] and another [coming after me] buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

11. For other [true] foundation can no man lay, than that [which] is laid [already by me,] which is [Faith in] Jesus Christ.

12. Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, [i.e. sound Doctrine, which will bear the trial of the fire;] wood, hay, stubble, [Humane Eloquence and Wisdom, Legal Rites, and Judaical Traditions, which will be abolished and vanish away;]

13. Every man's work shall be made manifest; e for the day [of Christ's Advent to e destroy the Jewish Temple, Church, and Nation,] shall declare it, because it shall be [Gr. it is] revealed by fire; [i. e. to be attended with great tribulation, Matth. 24. 21. πυρὶ φλογὸς παρεσομὴν, with burning for trial, 1 Pet. 4. 12.] and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is; [whether it be gold or silver, to abide the fire; or hay and stubble to be consumed by it;]

14. If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon; [as sound Evangelical Doctrine will, suffering nothing by, but being confirmed by the Conflagration which shall burn up the Jewish Oeconomy;] he shall receive a reward; [be approved as a wise builder, and shall be eminently preserved from the Evils of that Day of Trial, Matth. 24. 13.]

15. If any man's work shall be burnt, [as theirs must be, who build upon the foundation Legal Observances and Judaical Rites, for they must perish with that Church and Temple which is the foundation of them,] he shall suffer [the] loss [of all his labour,] but he himself shall be saved, f yet so as by fire; f

[i. e. not without great hazard and difficulty, as one snatch'd out of the fire.]

16. [Moreover, to pass from their false Doctrines, to the evil effects of them in your divisions:] Know ye not that ye [Christians] are the Temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you, [the Christian Church, as the Schechinah did in the Temple?]

17. If [then] any man g defile the Temple of God, [by dividing that Church which is his Temple, and in which one and the same Spirit dwells, into parts and factions,] him shall God destroy; for the Temple of the Lord is holy; [and therefore not to be prophaned by those divisions which render you carnal, 1 Cor. 3 1, 3.] which Temple ye are. g

18. [And because you break into these Divisions on the account of, or, are taught these practises by the Philosophers of this Age; Men in whom you glory for their Eloquence and Wisdom;] Let no man deceive himself. if any man among you seemeth to be h wise h in [the wisdom and learning of] this world, let him [embrace that Gospel, and Doctrine of Christ, which the World calls foolishness, and so] become a fool [to them] that he may be wise, [according to the wisdom of God, 1 Cor. 1. 24, 25.]

19. For the wiſdom of this world is fooliſhneſs with God; for it is written, [Job 5.13.] He taketh the wiſe in their own craftineſs; [cauſing one Sect of Philoſophers to deſtroy what another ſtabliſhed, and ſo ſhewing the uncertainty and vanity of their pretended wiſdom.]

20. And again, [Pſal. 94. 11.] the Lord knoweth the thoughts [and machinations] of the wiſe, that they are vain.

21. Therefore let no man [ſo] glory in men, [as to be induced by their eſteem of them to rend or divide the Church, or to indulge to thoſe vile Practiſes which corrupt the Temple of God,] for [i] all things [or perſons] are yours, [as being appointed for your ſervice.] i

22. Whether Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, [they have received their Apoſtleſhip for your ſakes; or the world, [as being made for you,] or life, or death, or things preſent, or things to come, all are yours, [as being all deſigned for your good.]

a Verſe 3. Σαρκικοὶ, carnal.] This word being here plainly applied to the Works of the Fleſh, ſeems to imply that the Spiritual Man oppoſed to him, ſhould ſignifie the Man endued with the Fruits of the good Spirit, or who walketh in the Spirit, not fulfilling the luſts of the fleſh, Rom. 8. 1, 4. Gal. 5. 16. And thus the Greek Interpreters do underſtand theſe words; hence noting, that it is poſſible for Men to have great Gifts, as the Corinthians had, and yet be carnal. Yet (a) Irenæus interprets the words thus, That they were carnal, becauſe the Spirit of the Father did not reſt upon them, i. e. becauſe he being the Spirit of Love, and Union, would not abide with them when they indulged to Envy, and Diviſions, or be unto them a Spirit of Inſtruction; and according to this Interpretation, he muſt deny them to be Spiritual, as the word ſignifies one who enjoys ſome Spiritual Gift; and receives ſome illumination from him. Whatever be the ſenſe, it muſt be noted that the Apoſtle doth not here ſtile them Carnal, in that worſt ſenſe in which the Carnal Perſon is repreſented as one who is not ſubject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be, Rom. 8. 7, 8. and therefore can do nothing pleaſing to God; and as it wholly doth exclude us from any intereſt in Chriſt, Gal. 5. 24. for he allows them to be Babes in Chriſt, v. 1. But as it imports Men, through the too great prevalency of their Carnal Appetites luſting againſt the Spirit, ſtill ſubject to ſuch things as ſhew'd ſome ſtrong remainders of a Carnal Mind in them.

But yet one great Difficulty remains ſcarce obſerved by any Interpreter excepting Crellius, viz. how the ſame Corinthians could be ſuch Babes in Chriſt, and have ſuch need of milk, and not of meat, and yet be inriched in all utterance and knowledge, 1 Cor. 1. 5. and abound in faith, utterance, and knowledge, 2 Cor. 8. 7.

I anſwer that theſe Encomiums muſt be reſtrained to ſome few of them, who were their extraordinary Church Officers, and enjoyed this Faith and Knowledge for the Inſtruction of the Reſt, and then, notwithſtanding this, it may be true that the Apoſtle could not write to the generality of them as ſuch, but rather as to Babes in Chriſt. Or, (2.) This Faith, Utterance and Knowledge muſt be reſtrained to the Gift of Miracles, of Tongues, and the Interpretation of them, which might be given for the Confirmation of the Goſpel, and the good of others, to them who were not Spiritual in the beſt ſenſe, but of very ſmall proficiency in the ſaving Fruits of the good Spirit. Hence we find them puffed up on the account of theſe Gifts, envying others who had them in an higher meaſure, and abuſing them to vain Oſtentation, and Confuſion in the Church, and not to Edification, which things ſufficiently evidence they were but Babes in Chriſt.

Ver. 7. Ἀλλὰ Θεὸς, but God, &c.] Whence it is b evident that there can be no cauſe why you ſhould run into Factions about, or deſire to be named from them, who have no excellency but from God, and do nothing but by his aſſiſtance.

e Ver. 13. Ἡ γὰρ ἡμέρα δηλώσει, for the day will declare it.] Here observe,

1*st*, That a day absolutely put, doth often signifie a day, or a time of Punishment; so they that come after him shall be astonished at his day, Job 18. 21. The Lord shall laugh at him, for he seeth that his day is coming, Psal. 37. 13. Remember, O Lord, the Children of Edom, what they did in the day of Jerusalem, Psal. 137. 7. So the day of Midian, Isa. 9. 4. Wo unto them for their day is come, the time of their visitation, Jer. 50. 27.

2*ly*, That in like manner the day here mentioned, is the day of our Lord's coming to destroy the unbelieving Jews, to burn their Temple, and to destroy the Jewish Oeconomy, will appear probable from the Description of that day, as a Refiners fire, Mal. 3. 2, 3. & 4. 1, 2. Joel 2. 1, 13, 30, 31. And as the fire of an Oven, burning up the Chaff and Stubble; for, behold, the day of the Lord cometh that shall burn as an Oven, and all the proud, and all that do wickedly, shall be as stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up.

But whether we understand these words of that day, or any other day of Judgment, this is certain that the Apostle cannot be here supposed to speak of the Roman Purgatory fire; (1.) Because the Fire the Apostle speaks of, as (c) Origen hath noted, is not πῦρ ὑλικὸν καὶ αἰσθητὸν, ἀλλὰ ξυμβολικὸν, fire properly, but metaphorically so called, as appears from these words, he shall escape as by fire. (2.) Because this Fire is to try every man's work, Paul, and Apollo's, as well as theirs who built on the foundation hay and stubble; and sure they will not say Paul and Apollo went to Purgatory. (3.) This Fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is: Now Purgatory fire doth not try every man's works, but punish them for them.

f Ver. 15. Ὡς διὰ πυρός, as out of the fire.] To be saved out of the fire, is a Proverbial Speech concerning them that escape with great danger out of a Calamity; so it is used in the Old Testament; I have plucked them as a firebrand out of the fire; Amos 4. 11. Is not this a brand pluck'd out of the fire? Zach. 3. 2. And in the New, Jude 23. Others save with fear, plucking them out of the fire. So L. Æmilius in (d) Livy saith, He escaped the popular flame half burnt: The Interpretation of Sir Norton Knatchbull, He shall be saved, but so as that he pass through the fire of Persecution with Constancy to the Faith, accords well with Christ's words, Matth. 24. 13. but not with the use of this Proverbial Expression. Now hence 'tis evident, that the Apostle speaks not of the Gnosticks, who denied the Resurrection, 1 Cor. 15. 14, 17. and so believed in vain, and taught that Christ might be denied with the Mouth in the time of Persecution, and so were then ashamed of him, and also were abominably filthy both in Doctrine and Manners; for of such the Apostle would not say, They should be saved, yet so as by fire; but as Jude and Peter do, they are of old ordained to condemnation, their judgment lingreth not, and their damnation doth not slumber, Jude 4. 13. 2 Pet. 2. 3.

Ver. 17. Εἴ τις τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ φθείρει, if any man corrupt the Temple of God.] I have in the Paraphrase followed the common Interpretation of these words, but the like words used Chap. 6. from v. 15—19 by way of dehortation from Fornication, and 2 Cor. 6. 16. from Communion with Heathens in their Idolatrous Rites, and evil Practises, and by way of Inducement to cleanse our selves from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, Chap. 7. 1. more naturally incline us to refer these Verses to the Corrupting of the Temple of God, by filthiness of the Flesh, Uncleanness, and Fornication, or by filthiness of the Spirit, i. e. Idolatrous Practises; both which the Corinthians did. See the Note on 1 Cor. 7. 1. and then the Connexion will run thus, I have declared you to be a building of God, v. 9. as being built up together for an habitation of God through the Spirit, Eph. 2. 22. If therefore you do not keep this Temple of God holy, but corrupt it by joyning the Temple of God with Idols, 2 Cor. 6. 16. or prophane and defile it by Uncleanness and Fornication, you may expect that these Sins by which God's Temple is destroyed, should end in your own Ruine and Destruction. g

Ver. 18. Σοφὸς εἶναι ἐν τῷ αἰῶνι τούτῳ, to be wise in the wisdom of this world.] That the Corinthians were induced to eat things offered to Idols in the Idol Temples by men pretending to great knowledge, See Chap. 8. 1, 2. That they also introduced among them the Doctrine of the lawfulness of Fornication, See Note on Chap. 5. 1. on Chap. 6. 16. on Chap. 7. 1. And to this sense of the two last Verses agree the Descants of the Ancients, who say the Apostle, v. 17. begins to speak περὶ τοῦ πεπορνευκότος of him that had committed Fornication, Chap. 5. 1. and against them qui turpiter viventes corpora sua violando corruperunt, who by filthy Practises had corrupted their Bodies, and violated the Temple of the Holy Ghost: These Teachers seem to have been the Nicolaitans, who received their Doctrines from the Philosophers. h

Ver. 21. Πάντα ὑμῶν ἐστιν, all are yours.] The Jews believed that the World was i made for them, aud that God deſpiſed the Gentiles, and looked upon them as nothing when he made it, 2 Eſdr. 6. 55, 59. The Apoſtle on the contrary affirms, the World was made for the Gentiles converted to the Chriſtian Faith: And adds, that the Apoſtles had re eived their Gifts and Authority for their ſakes, that if Life were continued to them under continual Perils, it was for their furtherance and joy in the Faith, Philip. 1. 25. or if we, ſaith he, be always given up to death, ſo that death worketh in us, it is that life may work in you, 2 Cor. 4. 11, 12. for we ſuffer all things for you, v. 15. 2 Tim. 2. 10. that things preſent, the Preſſures they now ſuffered; and things to come, the Proſperity and Adverſity they might afterwards be ſubject to, were for their ſakes; for whether we be afflicted, it is for your Conſolation and Salvation, or whether we be comforted, it is for your Conſolation and Salvation, 2 Cor. 1. 6.

k Ver. 23. Χριςὸς ὁ τῦ Θεῦ, and Chriſt is God's.] Here the Socinians cry out, Vide hic diſcrimen inter Deum & Chriſtum; See here the difference betwixt God and Chriſt. Hence it appears, ſaith Crellius, that Chriſt is in no wiſe God moſt high, as having another above him, as his head, on whom he depends, and from whom he is here manifeſtly diſtinguiſhed.

But the Fathers thought not ſo, who ſaw Chriſt is of God ὡς μεγαλύτερον χρῆμα, καὶ ὡς αἰτίαν ἔχων τὸν Πατέρα, as being begotten by him before all Ages, and having him for his Father, ἐξ ἄνω γεγεννημένος καὶ τὴν θεότητα, as receiving the Divine Nature from him. Others grant this of Chriſt as Mediator betwixt us and God, in which ſenſe he performing that Office as Man, or by virtue of his Humane Nature, in which alone he could be a Prophet ſent from God, or offer up himſelf to the Death for us, or intercede in our behalf, or be exalted to the Right hand of God, to be a Prince and a Saviour. He therefore was exalted thus to the glory of God the Father, and ſo depended on him in the exerciſe of that Office. See Note on 1 Cor. 11. 3.

CHAPTER IV.

Verſe 1. [WE are yours, I ſay, yet] Let a man [alſo] ſo account of us, as of the Miniſters of Chriſt, and Stewards of the Myſteries of God; [i. e. of thoſe Revelations of the Goſpel which are ſtiled Myſteries, as not being before revealed to the World. See Note on Chap. 2. 2, 7.]

2. Moreover, it [chiefly] is required in ſtewards, that a man [taking that Office upon him,] be found faithful.

3. But [whether it be thus, or not,] with a me it is a very ſmall thing, a that I ſhould be judged of you, or of man's judgment; yea, I judge not my own ſelf; [ſo as to acquieſce in that judgment.]

4. For I know nothing [of unfaithfulneſs]
b by my ſelf, b yet am I not thereby juſtified [at God's Tribunal,] but he that [further] judgeth me is the Lord.

c 5. Therefore c judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs, d and will d make manifeſt the counſels of the heart, and then ſhall every man have praiſe of God.

e 6. And theſe things, brethren, e I have in a figure transferred to my ſelf, [one rude in ſpeech, but not in knowledge, 2 Cor. 11. 6.] and to Apollo, [a man of eloquence, and wiſdom, Acts 18. 24.] for your ſakes, that you might learn in [the example of] us, not to think of [other] men above that which is written; [viz. that we are only Miniſters of Chriſt by which ye believed; Chap. 3. 5.] that no one of you be puffed up for one againſt another, [becauſe of the different Gifts vouchſafed to them.]

For f who maketh thee [what Doctor ſo-
f ever thou art,] to differ from another? and what [Gift] haſt thou, which thou didſt not receive [from God?] Now if thou didſt receive it, why doſt thou glory, as if thou hadſt not received it [from him?]

8. Now g ye [Corinthians] are full [of g ſecular wiſdom;] now ye are rich, [both in Wealth and in Spiritual Gifts, 1 Cor. 14. 26.] ye have reigned as Kings, [flouriſhing in the enjoyment of theſe things in all tranquility and honour,] without [any want of] us; and I would to God ye did reign [indeed, and not in conceit only;] that we alſo, [poor, perſecuted, and deſpiſed Apoſtles,] might reign with you.

9. For I think that God hath ſet forth us, the Apoſtles, laſt, [i. e. as the laſt, or the Meridian Gladiators,] as it were [Men] h ap-h pointed unto death; for we are made a ſpectacle to the world, and to angels, and to men.

10. We are [counted as] fools for Chriſt's ſake, but ye [who flouriſh in your eloquence, and wiſdom, are accounted,] wiſe in Chriſt; we are weak, [as to bodily preſence, 2 Cor. 10. 10. and bodily infirmities, 1 Cor. 2. 3. 2 Cor. 12. 9. and made ſtill weaker by our continual Wants and Perſecutions;] but ye are ſtrong, [and luſty,] ye are honourable, [for your gifts and wiſdom, which have gotten you a great name, and reputation among others;] but we are deſpiſed, [or in diſgrace, every where.]

11. Even

11. Even to this present hour, we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffetted, and have no certain dwelling place; [or, are in no certain condition.]

12. And labour, working with our own hands; being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it; [or, we bear, as weak persons, who know not how to escape, or help our selves.]

13. Being defamed, we intreat; we are i made as the i filth of the world, and [are] the off-scouring [or refuse] of all things to this day.

14. [But though I thus speak of your glorying in these things, with the neglect of us, v. 8.] I write not these things to shame you, but, as my beloved sons, I warn you, [to behave your selves hereafter more like dutiful Children towards me.]

15. For though you have ten thousand ink structers in Christ, yet have you k not many Fathers; [indeed not any besides me:] for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel.

16. Wherefore, I beseech you, be ye followers of me; [adhering to the Doctrine received from me, and walking as I do, and teach, v. 17.]

17. For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, who is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, who shall bring you into remembrance of my ways which are in Christ, as I teach every where in every Church.

18. Now some [among you] are puffed up as though, [because I have sent Timothy to you,] I would not [my self] come to you;

19. But I will come to you shortly, if the Lord will, and will know, [and examine,] not the speech, [and eloquence,] of them which are puffed up, but the power [and spiritual authority which attends their preaching, whether that be equal to the power God hath given us for edification.]

20. For the Kingdom of God is [confirmed, and propagated,] l not in [and by the wis- l dom of] word, but in [and by the] power [of the Spirit; which if they want, they cannot be sent from God, as we are.]

21. What will you? shall I come unto you m with a rod, [inflicting punishments m upon you,] or [will you so reform that I may come unto you] in love, and in the spirit of meekness?

Annotations on Chap. IV.

a Verse 3. Ἵνα ὑφ' ὑμῶν ἀνακριθῶ, that I should be judged of you.] Not that he was unconcerned, whether the Corinthians had a good esteem of him, or not, the contrary is evident from the whole drift of his Epistles, in which he labours to convince them of the truth of his Doctrine, and of his sincerity in the discharge of his Office, and rejoyceth greatly in their Affection to him, 2 Cor. 6. 17. & 7. 14, 15. & 18. 24. His meaning only is, that their Judgment is little to him, in Comparison of the final, and unerring Judgment of the Lord.

b Ver. 4. Οὐκ ἐν τούτῳ δεδικαίωμαι, yet am I not thereby justified.] Here also the Apostle doth not intend to say that he, and others, could have no good Assurance of their present justification and favour with God, from the testimony of an upright Conscience, which, saith St. John, gives confidence with God, 1 John 3. 21. for then farewel all Joy and Comfort in this World. He doth himself assure us, That their rejoycing was this, even the testimony of their Conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity they had their conversation in this world, 2 Cor. 1. 12. He adviseth all Men to approve their actions to themselves, and then, saith he, they shall have rejoycing in themselves, and not in another, Gal. 6. 4. his meaning therefore is, That our final Justification, or Absolution from Condemnation, depends not on the Judgment which we pass upon our selves, but upon that which God, the righteous Judge, will pass upon us at the last. Here also note in St. Paul another sense of Justification, as it relates to our Absolution from Condemnation, and our Approbation as Righteous at the last day, which will be, saith he, according to our Works, 2 Cor. 5. 10. and our Fidelity in Execution of the Trusts committed to us, v. 2.

c Ver. 5. Μὴ πρὸ καιροῦ τι κρίνετε, judge nothing before the time.] The Apostle doth not here condemn all Judgment, Civil or Ecclesiastical, of any Person's deeds or words, or bid us suspend our Judgment of things occurring to our Senses, till the Day of Judgment, but only forbids our Censures of things uncertain, of which no righteous Judgment can be passed, because we cannot be certain of the truth of that Judgment, and of things which it belongs not to us to judge of.

d Ibid. Ὃς φανερώσει τὰς βουλὰς τῶν καρδιῶν, who will make manifest the counsels of the heart.] Hence note, That Jesus Christ must have the Knowledge of the Secrets of the Hearts of all Men subject to his Judgment, and so must be that God who alone knows the Hearts of all Men, 1 Kings 8. 39. and is alone the Searcher of all hearts, 1 Chron. 28. 9.

to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doing, Jer. 17. 10. and therefore Chriſt expreſly aſcribes this Knowledge to himſelf, by ſaying, All the Churches ſhall know that I am he which ſearcheth the reins and the hearts, and I will give to every one of you according to your works, Rev. 2. 23.

e Ver. 6. Μετεσχημάτισα, I have in a figure transferred.] This ſeems not to refer, as moſt Interpreters conceive, to what the Apoſtle had ſaid Chap. 1. 10. viz. their ſaying, I am of Paul, I am of Apollo, I of Cephas, for here is nothing ſaid of Cephas, but it refers to what he had ſaid Chap. 3. 5, 6, 7, 8. that Paul and Apollo were only Miniſters by whom they believed; that therefore neither Paul nor Apollo were to be look'd upon as any thing, they doing nothing but by the Grace given them by that God, to whom therefore the whole Praiſe was due for the ſucceſs of all their Labours. And this Scheme of Speech I have uſed, ſaith he, touching my ſelf and Apollo, inſtructing you not to think highly of other Doctors among you, who have done leſs for the promoting your Faith then we have done.

f Ver. 7. Τίς σε διακρίνει; who maketh thee to differ?] The Apoſtle manifeſtly ſpeaking here of thoſe Gifts of the Spirit which were immediately infuſed without Humane Induſtry, and were diſpenſed by God, and by his Spirit, according to his good pleaſure, 1 Cor. 3. 5. & 12. 11. it cannot be hence argued that no Man doth any thing to make himſelf differ from another, in any Vertue, or pious Diſpoſitions. For to what purpoſe are Men continually exhorted, and ſtirred up by powerful Motives to all Chriſtian Duties, and particularly to excel in Vertue; if theſe Exhortations and Motives are not propoſed to engage them to exerciſe theſe Chriſtian Vertues, to chuſe the good, and refuſe the evil? and if one Man, upon conſideration of theſe Motives, doth chuſe to live a Pious Life, whereas another is not by the ſame Motives prevailed on ſo to do, doth he not differ from another by virtue of that choice? And though the Grace of God by way of excitation worketh in us thus to will, yet ſince our Faculties do firſt deliberate upon, and then comply, and chuſe to do that thing to which this Grace excites us; if to conſider, he to differ from him that does not ſo, and to comply with, and embrace the Call of God, be to differ from him who complies not with the ſame Call, it muſt be certain, that as God's Grace preventing and exciting, ſo my Faculties co-operating, tend to make me differ from another, though having alſo theſe Faculties from God, the Action may be well aſcribed, and the whole Glory of it muſt be due to him.

Seeing then no Act of Vertue, and no good habit is produced in us without a frequent and manifold Co-operation of our own Faculties to the ſame Action and Habit, whereas theſe Gifts of Tongues, Interpretation and Prophecy, were Gifts conferred upon Chriſtians in the Primitive Times, without any ſuch Co-operation of their Faculties, it cannot with like Reaſon be enquired of the former, as it may be of theſe Gifts, who made thee to differ from another in them? And though all ground, and even pretence of glorying, by this immediate infuſion of theſe Gifts, is evidently excluded, yet the Apoſtles do themſelves glory in thoſe good Actions which they choſe to do, 1 Cor. 9. 15, 16 2 Cor. 1. 12. & 11. 20. and ſay to others thus, Let every man try and approve his own work, and then ſhall he have καύχημα rejoycing, or glorying in himſelf, Gal. 6. 4.

Ver. 8. Κεκορεσμένοι ἐστε, ἐπλουτήσατε, ye are g filled, ye are rich.] All the ancient Commentators having noted in their Prefaces to this Epiſtle, that (a) Corinth was a City which abounded in wealth, and was full of Rhetoricians, and of Philoſophers, and that hence aroſe their Diſorders, Pride, and Vainglory, as well as from their Gifts; I thought fit in the Paraphraſe to take notice of both.

Ver. 9. Ὡς ἐπιθανατίους, as men appointed un- h to death.] Here the Apoſtle ſeems to allude to the Roman Spectacles ἐκ τῶν θηριομάχων, καὶ μονομαχίας ἀνδροφόνου, that of the (b) Beſtiarii and the Gladiators, where in the Morning men were brought upon the Theater to fight with wild Beaſts, and to them was allowed Armour to defend themſelves, and ſmite the Beaſt that did aſſail them; But in the Meridian Spectacle were brought forth the Gladiators naked, and without any thing to defend them from the Sword of the Aſſailant, and he that then eſcaped, was only reſerved for ſlaughter to another day; ſo that theſe Men might be well called ἐπιθανάτιοι, Men appointed for death, and this being the laſt appearance on the Theater for that day, they are ſaid here to be ſet forth ἐσχάτους the laſt. Of theſe two Spectacles (c) Seneca ſpeaks thus, In the morning Men are expoſed to Lions and to Bears; at mid day to their Spectators, those that kill are exposed to one another; the Victor is detained for another slaughter; the conclusion of this fight is death. The former fighting compared to this was Mercy; here is only Butchery; they have nothing to cover them, their whole Body is exposed to every stroke, &c. Hence (d) Tertullian cites the words thus, Puto nos Deus Apostolos novissimos elegit velut Bestiarios; I think God hath chosen us Apostles last, as Men to be exposed to wild Beasts.

i Ver. 13. Περικάθαρμα, περίψημα.] These words which we render filth and off-scouring, do probably relate to the Sacrifices which the Heathens used for the lustration of a City. The Athenians, saith (e) Phavorinus, nourished some very base and refuse People, and when any Calamity or Plague befel them, they sacrificed them for the Purgation of the City, and these they called καθάρματα. And (f) Suidas saith, they said of such a Man, Be thou our περίψημα, our Redemption, our Propitiation, and then flung him into the Sea as a Sacrifice to Neptune. Hence (g) Origen saith, that our Lord giving up himself for the Propitiation of our Sins, was made much more than his Apostles περικάθαρμα τῦ κόσμυ, καὶ πάντων περίψημα the Lustration of the World, and peculiar Sacrifice of all Men.

k Ver. 15. Οὐ πολλοὺς Πατέρας, not many Fathers.] The (h) Masters of Traditions among the Jews called them Children whom they instructed in their Traditions; and the Targum upon Numb. 3. 1. observes, that Nadab and Abihu are called the Sons of Moses, because he had instructed them, for he who teacheth another, is, as it were, his Father. Thus the Disciples of the Prophets are called the Sons of the Prophets. So Jonathan, These are the names of the Sons of Aaron, the Disciples of Moses, and the Sons of Israel, who were called by his name. And so both (i) Irenæus and (k) Clemens Alexandrinus do observe, That they were called Fathers, who taught and catechised others; and they Sons, who were taught by them.

Ver. 20. Οὐκ ἐν λόγῳ, ἀλλ' ἐν δυνάμει, not in word, but in power.] It is propagated, saith Theophylact, διὰ σημείων τῇ δυνάμει τῦ Πνεύματος γινομένων, by Miracles done by the power of the Spirit; for to convince Men of the truth of it, saith Chrysostom, 'tis not enough to use fine words, but the Dead must be raised, the Devils cast out, and other mighty Wonders must be wrought, for by these things the Gospel is established. 1

Ver. 21. Ἐν ῥάβδῳ, with a Rod.] That the Apostles had power of inflicting Corporal Punishments on some who did oppose the progress of, or who notoriously offended against the Rules of the Gospel, is the Opinion of all the Ancient Commentators, who instance in the Death inflicted by St. Peter on Ananias and Saphira, Acts 5. 5, 10. the blindness inflicted by St. Paul on Elimas, 13. 11. the delivery of Hymenæus and Alexander, and the incestuous Person unto Satan, 1 Tim. 1. 20. 1 Cor. 5. 5. ὥστε παιδεῦσαι τὸ σῶμα, so as to chastise the body of them, saith Theodoret, ἵνα νόσῳ αὐτὸν πέξῃ, that he might macerate him with some Disease, say Chrysostom, Oecumenius and Theophylact; and so they interpret these words, Shall I come unto you with a Rod? that is, ἐν κολάσει, ἐν πικρίᾳ, with Punishments and Chastisements. And this sense will appear highly probable, if we consider these words of the Apostle, I write unto you being absent, lest being present I should use sharpness, according to the power God hath given me for edification, and not for destruction, 2 Cor. 13. 10. For that these words cannot be understood only of the Power of Excommunication common to him with others, we may learn from the same words, 2 Cor. 10. 8. where the mighty weapons of his warfare able to remove every height exalting it self against, and to captivate every mind to the obedience of Christ, and to avenge all disobedience, being premised, it follows, For should I boast exceedingly of the power God hath given me for Edification, and not for Destruction, I should not be ashamed. m

CHAPTER V.

Verſe 1. IT is reported commonly, that there is fornication among you, and a ſuch fornication as is not [a] ſo much as nab med among the Gentiles, [viz.] [b] that one ſhould have his father's wife; [i.e. his ſtep-mother.] c 2. And [c] ye are puffed up, and [d] have not d rather mourned, [for the Scandal of this great Offence, nor taken care,] that he that hath done this deed, [ſo reproachful to the Society of Chriſtians,] may be taken away [and caſt out] from among you, [as he ought to be.]

3. For I verily, as [being] abſent in body, e but [e] preſent [with you, Col. 2. 5.] in, [and by the] Spirit, [exciting me ſo to do,] have judged already, as though I were preſent, concerning him that hath ſo done this deed; [that he ought to be removed from your Body, and delivered up to Satan]

4. [And therefore do command you] in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when ye are gathered together [in your Chriſtian Aſſemblies,] and my ſpirit, [ſupplying my abſence,]
f [f] with the power of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [is preſent with you.]

5. To deliver ſuch a one to [the buffettings of] Satan, for the deſtruction of the fleſh, [ſo laſcivient in him,] that the ſpirit may be ſaved in the day of the Lord Jeſus.

6. Your glorying [in ſuch a Doctor, or ſuch Wiſdom] is not good: Know ye not that g [as] a little leaven [g] leaveneth, [and ſowreth] the whole lump; [ſo ſuch a Member continued among you, will defile the whole Body or Society?]

h 7. [h] Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump; [foraſmuch] as ye are [by your Chriſtianity obliged to be] unleavened: for even Chriſt our Paſſover is ſacrificed for us [Chriſtians, and at that Feaſt, all leaven was to be put away out of their houſes, Exod. 12. 15.]

8. Therefore let us keep the feaſt, not with [the] old leaven [of our former uncleanneſs] nor with the [Phariſaical] [i] leaven of i malice, and [deceitful] wickedneſs, but with the unleavened bread of ſincerity and truth.

9. [k] I wrote unto you in an Epiſtle, [or, I k had writ to you in this Epiſtle, before I was fully acquainted with the ſtate of your affairs, by the coming of Stephanus, Fortunatus and Achaicus, 1 Cor. 16. 17.] not to company with fornicators.

10. Yet not [intending] altogether [to forbid you, any Converſation] with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then muſt ye needs go out of the world.

11. l But now, [ſince I heard of this great l miſcarriage, and have been more exactly informed of the ſtate of your Church,] I have [changed my ſtile, and] written to you not to keep company, if any man that is [m] called a Brother, be a fornicator, or covetous, m or an idolater, or a railer, [a contumelious Perſon,] or a drunkard, or an extortioner, [and that ſo ſtrictly as to charge you] with ſuch a one, [n] no not to eat. n

12. [o] For what have I to do to judge, [or o cenſure,] them alſo that are without [the Church? as heathen Fornicators, and the Step-mother of this Inceſtuous Fornicator are;] do not ye, [and all other Churches, and Societies,] judge them that are within [their Body?]

13. But them that are without God judgeth, therefore, [leaving them to the Judgment of God, cenſure them that thus offend within your Body, and you will, by ſo doing] put away from among your ſelves that wicked perſon.

words ὅλως ἀκούεται, it is every where heard of, do make it not improbable that this very thing might give the rise to that vile Objection against Christianity, especially if the Corinthians had the Foundation of this Practice from the Jews, from whom the Christians for some time were not distinguished.

b Ibid. Ὥστε γυναῖκα τινα τοῦ πατρὸς ἔχειν, that one should have his father's wife.] Either as his Wife, or so as to commit Fornication with her. Now this, saith Dr. Lightfoot, was done by them agreeably to the Jewish Doctrine concerning Proselytes, viz. that they were as Persons new born, and had lost all their Kindred they had before: So that by the Law, as (g) the Rabbins expounded it, they might marry their Mother and Sister. And to this (h) Tacitus seems to refer in his account of the Jews, when he saith, All things are by them deemed prophane, which to us are sacred; rursum concessa apud illos quæ nobis incesta, and what we account incestuous is with them lawful; and that they are first of all taught to contemn the Gods, Parentes, liberos, fratres vilia habere, and to have no regard to Parents, Children and Brethren. But considering that Corinth abounded with Philosophers, and that (i) Chrysippus the Stoick reckons the enjoyment of a Mother, Sister, or Daughter, as things blamed without reason. And that hence the (k) Nicolaitans and Carpocratians had their Doctrine of the Community of Women, not excepting Mothers and Daughters and Sisters; I think it probable that this Corruption might have had its rise from them; and that upon one or other of these accounts they so tamely indured him who had done this infamous thing; yea, they were puffed up, say the Greek Interpreters, on the account of the Eloquence and Wisdom of this very Man.

Ver. 2. Πεφυσιωμένοι ἐστέ, ye are puffed up.] Either in your Conceit, that you have got such a profound and Eloquent Teacher; or on the account of some high Wisdom; which makes you look on these things as indifferent.

Ibid. Καὶ οὐχὶ μᾶλλον ἐπενθήσατε, and have not rather mourned.] It was the Custom, both of the Jews and Christians, when any one was to be cut off from the Church, as a dead Member, to do it with Fasting and Humiliation, to shew their Sympathy with him, and to demonstrate their Sorrow for the Scandal brought upon the Society. The School of Pythagoras, saith (l) Origen, put Coffins in the room of them who deserted the Society, looking upon them as dead Men; and the Christians lament them who have been guilty of lasciviousness, or any other absurd Action, as persons lost and dead to God. And among the (m) Apostolical Constitutions this is one, with sorrow and mourning cut off from the Church the incurable Person; for, saith the Apostle, you shall put away from among you the evil Person; and to this custom the Apostle seemeth to allude, 2 Cor. 2. 1, 3. & 12. 21.

Ver. 3. Παρὼν τῷ πνεύματι, present in spirit.] That is, say the Fathers, not only with Mind and Consent, but (n) διὰ τοῦ πνεύματος χάριτος, by the Gift of the Spirit, by which I am enabled to discern what is fit to be done in this Case, even by the Spirit by which I am enabled, καὶ τὰ πόρρωθεν εἰδέναι, to discern things done at a distance, as Elisha did the Actions of Gehazi by his Prophetick Spirit, 2 Kings 5. 26. So Chrysostom and Theophylact. And so the Phrase seems to be used in these words; For though I am absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, rejoycing, and beholding your order, and the stedfastness of your faith, Col. 2. 5. since in his absence he could not behold their Order, and the stedfastness of their Faith by his own Spirit, but only by the Assistance of the Holy Spirit. So also do they interpret τῷ ἐμῷ πνεύματι my spirit, v. 4. by my spiritual Gift; so that the sense of these words, v. 3, 4. seems to run thus; I by the Spirit of Discerning, and the Authority God hath given me, have already judged that this Person ought to be delivered up to Satan; and therefore when you are gathered together in the name of Christ, and have my Spirit, who also presides in your Assemblies, and there assists you in the performance of your Christian Offices, and have the Power of Christ ready to confirm, and execute your Sentence, do you in his Name deliver such a one to Satan.

f Ver. 4. Σὺν τῇ δυνάμει, with the power of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.] The word δύναμις, power, hath ſtill reference to ſome miraculous and extraordinary Power, and is not uſed, that I know of, concerning any ſimple Act of Diſcipline, as when Chriſt anſwers St. Paul thus, ἡ δύναμίς μου, my Power is perfected in weakneſs; and the Apoſtle ſaith on that account; moſt gladly will I rejoyce in my weakneſs; ἵνα ἡ δύναμις τοῦ Χριστοῦ, that the power of Chriſt may reſt upon me, 2 Cor. 12. 9, 10. i. e. ſay the Ancients, that in the midſt of my manifold Infirmities, the Power of Chriſt enabling me to do all kind of Miracles, may more conſpicuouſly reſide in me. This miraculous Aſſiſtance is by the Apoſtle ſometime called ſimply, the Power, 1 Cor. 2. 4. & 4. 19, 20. & 12. 28, 29. Sometimes the Power of God, 1 Cor. 18. 24. & 2. 5. & 6. 14. 2 Cor. 4 7. & 13. 4. and ſometimes the Power of Chriſt, as in the place now cited. Now among the Powers of Chriſt, which attended the Preaching of the Goſpel, this was one of delivering Men for their Offences up to Satan to inflict Corporal Puniſhments on them for the deſtruction of the Fleſh. This Power ſeems to have been peculiar to the Apoſtles, and therefore here St. Paul preſcribes the doing of it, the Authority or Power of his Spirit being preſent with them. That this is indeed the import of delivering up to Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh, is evident not only from the concurring Expoſition of the Ancients, who all interpret it of ſome Diſeaſe to be inflicted on him by (o) Satan, but alſo from the end of that delivery to him, which is, ſaith the Apoſtle here, for the deſtruction of the fleſh; and in the Caſe of Hymenæus and Philetus, that they might learn not to Blaſpheme. Now bodily Afflictions plainly tend to mortifie the Fleſh, and to awaken Men as oft as they come thus from a miraculous Power, to conſider of their ways, and quit thoſe Courſes which thus ſubject them to the hand of God; whereas Excommunication hath no apparent tendency to thoſe ends, when no ſuch dreadful Iſſue follows from it; and therefore ſeems not to be all that is intended by this delivery up to Satan: Though I confeſs, the Jews expected ſome like effect of their Excommunication, called Cherem, which ſaith (p) Buxtorf, ran in this form of words, Sint ſuper ipſum plagæ magnæ, & fideles, morbi magni, & horribiles, let his ſtrokes be great, and his diſeaſes horrible. Moreover, the Apoſtle ſpeaks not this as of a common Act of Diſcipline which every Presbyter might exerciſe, but as that which required his extraordinary Preſence in the Spirit, and the Power of Chriſt aſſiſting them; and therefore ſeems to ſpeak of it as an Act which was to be attended with ſome miraculous Effect.

Ver. 6. Ζυμοῖ, leavens.] i. e. Sowreth and g corrupteth; So Jerom, totam maſſam corrumpit, it corrupts the whole Lump. Thus (q) Plutarch ſaith the Prieſt of Jupiter might not touch Leaven, becauſe ἡ ζύμη γίγνεται ἐκ φθορᾶς αὐτὴ καὶ φθείρει τὸ φύραμα μιγνύμενη, Leaven both ariſes from Corruption, and corrupts the Maſs it is mixed with.

Ver. 7. Ἐκκαθάρατε τὴν παλαιὰν ζύμην, purge h out the old leaven.] Here the Apoſtle ſpeaks of cutting off the inceſtuous Perſon, according to the Metaphor of the Jews, whoſe ſaying is, that as a little leaven leavens the whole lump, ſo Concupiſcence corrupts the whole man; and that by the Command to abſtain from leaven, Adultery is forbidden; this Impurity he calls the old leaven to be purged out, becauſe the Corinthians were infamous for it to a Proverb, as (r) Phavorinus, Heſychius, and Eraſmus ſhew. He alludes alſo to the Command to put away leaven out of their houſe, in commanding to put away the evil Perſon; and to the Paſchal Feaſt, in giving this reaſon why the old Leaven ſhould be put away, becauſe Chriſt our Paſſover is ſacrificed for us; which being done once for all, we Chriſtians muſt ever keep the Feaſt, by being always a new Lump, pure from Hypocriſie, which is the Leaven of the Phariſees, Luke 12. 1. from the Leaven of falſe Doctrine, and corrupting of the Word of God, which is the Leaven of the Phariſees and Sadducees, Matth. 16. 6, 12. and from the Leaven of Wickedneſs, and wicked Men, according to thoſe words of the Pſalmiſt, Deliver me out of the hands of the wicked, and from the hands of the cruel וחומץ and the leavened, Pſal. 71. 4. i. e. the ſowre, and the angry man who corrupts and depraves others.

Ver. 8 Μὴ ἐν ζύμῃ κακίας, not with the lea- i ven of that malice.] Which is uſually carried on with diſſimulation of Affection and Concern for Piety, and ſo is Phariſaical; nor with that wickedneſs which prompts us to deceive another to his hurt. Thus Theophylact here ſaith, he is κακὸς an evil man, who doth evil things; but he is πονηρὸς who doth them with profound ſubtilty, and deceitful, or hurtful, counſel. Thus πονηροὶ καὶ πλάνοι, evil men and deceitful are joyned together as deceiving and being deceived, 2 Tim. 3. 13.

But with the unleavened bread of sincerity, which Expression seems to allude to the import of the Hebrew מצות or azyma, which, saith (s) Bochart, signifies panes puros & sinceros, pure and sincere Loaves, free from all mixture of Leaven. And so this is an Exhortation to reject such false Apostles and deceitful Workers as this Doctor was, and others in the Church of Corinth, who transformed themselves into the Apostles of Christ, 2 Cor. 11.13. and yet were not ἐξ εἰλικρινείας, men of sincerity, 2 Cor. 2. 17. but corrupters of the Truth, who walked in craftiness, handling the Word of God deceitfully, 2 Cor. 4.2. and by their subtilty seduced them from the simplicity which was in Christ, 2 Cor. 11.3.

k Ver. 9. Ἔγραψα ὑμῖν ἐν τῇ ἐπιστολῇ, I had written to you in this Epistle.] All the Greek Commentators upon this place conclude he wrote this, οὐκ ἐν ἄλλῃ ἀλλ' ἐν ταύτῃ, not in another, but in this Epistle; So Chrysostom, Theodoret, Oecumenius, Photius and Theophylact on this place. And who ever heard among the Ancients of more than fourteen Epistles of St. Paul? or of one word cited from an Epistle of his to the Corinthians supposed to be lost? It cannot therefore be concluded hence, that any Epistle of St. Paul writ and sent to the Church of Corinth, is lost, but only that some things in this Epistle were changed by him, before he sent it to them. But saith Mr. Cl. there is a contrariety in this Interpretation to all the Rules of Grammar, which it seems none of the Greek Scholiasts understood so well as he. Moreover, it is the common Observation of Grammarians, that the Aorist is so called, because it is of an indefinite signification, and is sometimes used for the Perfect, sometimes for the Pluſquam perfect Tense. So Herod laying hold of John ἔδησαν αὐτὸν had bound him, Matth. 14. 3. He commanded his Servants to be called οἷς ἔδωκα τὸ ἀργύριον to whom he had given the silver, Luke 19. 25. Jesus ἐμαρτύρησεν had testified, John 4.44. ἐξέκλινεν, he had withdrawn himself, John 5.13. Annas ἀπέστειλεν had sent him bound to Caiaphas, Joh. 18.24. (2.) That τῇ, as Phavorinus saith, is put ἀντὶ τῆς ταύτῃ instead of this, he both confesses and proves from Coloss. 4. 16. 1 Thess. 5. 27. and where then is the Contrariety of this Interpretation to the Rules of Grammar?

Ver. 11. Νυνὶ δὲ ἔγραψα ὑμῖν, but now I have written to you.]

l Object. 1. This shews, saith Mr. Cl. that the Apostle here speaks of this Epistle, and in v. 9. of another.

Answ. This only shews that he speaks of this Epistle sent, and v. 9. of what he had writ in it, before he saw this cause to change his style.

Object. 2. But, saith he, he had no where, in the former part of this, admonished his Corinthians not to associate with Fornicators.

Answ. Nor is it to be wondred that he should no where say that which he had changed into these words, v. 11. And secondly, according to my Exposition, what he before had written is contained in the immediate preceding words, v. 10.

Ibid. Ὀνομαζόμενος ἀδελφὸς, called a brother.] m Some think the word ὀνομαζόμενος refers to the words following, and imports, that if any man be defamed, and noted for the Vices following, he is by the Apostle's Direction to be avoided: But the word plainly refers to the Brother, and imports, that if any one who hath professed himself a Christian, be found guilty of these Crimes, he is to be avoided. Now of all these Sins, some among the Corinthians were still guilty; of Fornication, 2 Cor. 12. 21. of Covetousness and Extortion, 1 Cor. 6. 8. 2 Cor. 11. 20. they were Idolaters, 1 Cor. 10. 7, 14, 20. Railers or contumelious Persons, 2 Cor. 10.2. & 11. 19. Drunkards, 1 Cor. 11. 21.

Ibid. Μηδὲ συνεσθίειν, no not to eat.] n According to the Jewish Canons, it was not lawful to eat or drink with one that was under their Cherem. Tertullian and Theodoret carry this further, and say, Cum talibus non vult nos cibum sumere, nedum Eucharistiam, with such we must not eat at our own, much less at the Lord's Table. But this being a matter of Discipline, can concern only those who are entrusted with the Government of the Church, not private Communicants; though doubtless, he who was by Excommunication separated from the place where this and other Sacred Functions were performed, was also separated from the Table of the Lord.

Ver. 12. Τί γάρ μοι καὶ τοὺς ἔξω κρίνειν, for what have I to do to judge them that are without?] o Here our Critick, Mr. le Cl. is too bold; 1. When he quarrels with St. Paul's Greek, asking what Construction this is, τί μοι κρίνειν? I answer none at all; but τί μοι μέλει καὶ τοὺς ἔξω κρίνειν, what concerns it me to judge them that are without? is both good Sense and good Greek. As in Latin, Quid mea refert? In English, What is it to me? So τί μοι ὄφελος, what profit (is it) to me? 1 Cor. 15. 32. τί γάρ, what is it, to the Truth of God? Rom. 3. 3. τί γάρ, quid enim refert? Philip. 1. 18. (2.) 'Tis horribly bold to add, without any, yea against all Copies, μανθάνω instead of κρίνειν καί, which have no affinity either in Letters or in Sense; the words need none of these Criticisms; they are taken from Deut. 13. 5. & 22. 21. and there they run thus, καὶ ἐξαιρεῖς τὸ πονηρὸν ἐξ

ὑμῶν αὐτῶν, ſo ſhall you put away the evil from among you; and the Greek Commentators read them thus, καὶ ἐξαρεῖτε τὸ πονηρὸν, and you will put away the evil. So the whole Senſe runs thus, κέκρικα, I have judged already of the Inceſtuous Perſon, v. 3. and I judge concerning all other Perſons; in profeſſion Chriſtians, but in practice Fornicators, &c. that you ought not to Communicate with them; but I ſay nothing of the Step-mother of this Perſon, who hath not owned the Chriſtian Faith; for what belongs it to me to judge of them who are without the Church? Do not you in your Church, and Civil Aſſemblies, judge them only which are of your Body? but them who are without the Church, God, who is the Governor of all Men, judgeth; and by thus judging thoſe that are within your Body, you will put away the evil, or this evil Perſon from you.

3. Know ye not [from Chriſt,] that we [endowed with the Holy Spirit] [d] ſhall judge, [condemn, and caſt out the Prince of this World, and his evil] Angels? how much more [worthy are we, by the aſſiſtance of the ſame Spirit, to judge of the] things that pertain to this life?

4. If then ye have judgments, [Controverſies, or Judicial Cauſes,] of things pertaining to this life; [do ye] ſet them to judge who [e] are leaſt eſteemed in, [and by] the Church? [i.e. the Heathen Magiſtrates.]

5. I ſpeak [this] to your ſhame; is it ſo that, [by this action you ſhould even confeſs, before the Heathen, that] there is not a wiſe man among you? no, not one that ſhall be able to judge between his brethren?

6. But brother goeth to law with [his Chriſtian] brother, and that before the unbelievers; [as if there were not among them one Believer ſufficient, to decide their Controverſies.]

7. Now therefore there is [f] utterly a fault, [or a defect,] among you, becauſe ye go to law, [about theſe matters,] one with another: why do you not rather take wrong? why do you not rather ſuffer your ſelves to be defrauded?

8. Nay, [ſo far are you from this Chriſtian temper, of bearing Injuries with Patience, that] you do wrong, and defraud, and that your brethren.

9. [And what will be the Iſſue of theſe evil Practices?] Know ye not that the unrighteous ſhall not inherit the Kingdom of God? Be not deceived, neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abuſers of themſelves with mankind,

10. Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners ſhall inherit the Kingdom of God.

11. And ſuch were ſome of you, but ye are waſhed, [by Baptiſm,] but ye are ſanctified, but [g] ye are juſtified, in the name of our Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12. [And whereas your falſe Teachers encourage you to eat things offered to Idols, in the Idol Temples, Chap. 10. 23. and to indulge unto exceſs, becauſe all Meats are lawful; I grant that,] All [theſe] things are lawful to me, but all things [lawful] are not expedient [to be done, eſpecially when tending to my Brother's ruin, or my own;] all things [of this nature] are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any, [ſo as that I cannot refrain from them in ſuch caſes.]

13. Meats [indeed are] for the belly, and the belly for meats; [nor have either of them any other uſe;] but [this is only for this preſent life, the time will come, when] [h] God ſhall deſtroy both it and them. Now [but whereas ſome extend theſe words, All things are lawful for me; to fornication alſo, know ye that] [i] the body is not [at all] for fornication, but for [the ſervice of] the Lord, [the head of the Body;] and the Lord for [the reſurrection, and glorification, of] the body.

14. And [accordingly] God hath both raiſed up the Lord, and will alſo raiſe up us by his own power.

15. Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Chriſt [your head? 1 Cor. 12. 12, 27.] ſhall I then [k] take the members of Chriſt, and make them the members of an harlot? [as I by fornication ſhall moſt ſurely do,] God forbid.

16. What? know ye not, that he who is joyned to an harlot, is one body [with her?] for two, ſaith he, ſhall [by that action] be one fleſh; [as doing that, by which, according to God's inſtitution, two are made one fleſh.]

17. But

17. But he that is joyned to the Lord, is one spirit [with him, as being partaker of his Spirit; for by one Spirit we Christians are all united to this Head; Rom. 8. 11. 1 Cor. 12. 13.]

18. Flee [therefore] fornication; [for] every [other] sin that a man doth, is without [the pollution of] the body; but he l that committeth fornication, sinneth l against [and polluteth] his own body.
m 19. What, know ye not that m your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you, [and] which you have of God, and you are not your own? [he having by his Spirit taken possession of you, and sealed you up as his own proper goods.]

20. [You, I say, are not your own:] for you are bought with a price, [even the precious blood of Christ,] therefore glorifie God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's, [by right of purchase and the possession of his spirit.]

a Verse 2. Κρίνεται ἐπὶ τῶν ἀδίκων, go to law before the unjust.] The saying of the Jews is this, that (a) he who goes to Law before the Tribunal of the Gentiles, prophanes the Name of God, and gives honour to an Idol; that he is to be accounted a wicked man, and as one that hath reproached and blasphemed, and lifted up his hand against the Law of Moses. Accordingly the Apostle here represents this Action in the Christian, as a reproach to the Society, and to the Spirit of Wisdom which was poured out upon the Church, v. 5, 6. and as that which gave occasion to the Heathens to observe in the Christians a Contentious Spirit.

b Ver. 2. Οἱ ἅγιοι τὸν κόσμον κρινοῦσι, the Saints shall judge the world.] We often read that even the best of Saints shall stand before the judgment seat of Christ; that they shall be Assessors with Christ then, we read not; the words of Christ, Matth. 19. 28. in what sense soever taken, prove it not; they being spoken not of all Saints, of whom the Apostle here speaks, but of the twelve Apostles only; these words must therefore admit of one of these two Senses, viz. that there shall be Christian Magistrates who shall be Governors, and so Judges of the World, according to the Prophecy of Isaiah, That Kings shall be their nursing Fathers, and Queens their nursing Mothers, Isa. 49. 23. and that of Daniel, Chap. 7. 18. The Saints of the most High shall take the Kingdom; or that they shall judge and condemn the World by the Faith preached for a Testimony to them, as Noah did, Hebr. 11. 7. (whence is the Gospel so often called the Testimony of Christ,) and by the Spirit given to convince the World of Sin, of Righteousness, and Judgment, John 16. 8. in which sense our Lord saith, Now is the judgment of this world John 12. 31.

Ibid. Κριτηρίων ἐλαχίστων, the smallest matters.] This word κριτήρια here, and v. 4. saith Grotius, doth not signifie Tribunals, but Controversies and Judicial Causes. Accordingly the βιωτικὰ κριτήρια Judgments concerning things of this life, v. 4. are by Photius rendred τὰ βιωτικὰ φιλονεικήματα, καὶ τὰς πρὸς ἀλλήλους δίκας καὶ ἔριδας, their Controversies, Contentions and Judicial Causes against each other, about these matters. c

Ver. 3 Ἀγγέλους κρινοῦμεν, we shall judge Angels.] i. e. Evil Angels, say all the Greek Scholiasts; and this the Christians gloriously did by expelling them from their Seats, and their Dominions, and forcing them to confess before their Votaries they were only Devils. See the general Preface, § 18. in which sense, saith our Saviour, Now is the Prince of this world cast out; the Prince of this world is judged, John 12. 31. & 16. 11. d

Ver. 4. Τοὺς ἐξουθενημένους, them who are least esteemed,] That the ἐξουθενημένοι are the Heathens, hath been shewed, Note on 1 Cor 1. 27, 28. Moreover, it is manifest that these words are to be read by way of question, as in the Paraphrase; or by way of Charge against them, thus, If you still retain your Secular Judicatures, or Tribunals, you set them to be Judges over you, who are despised in the Church. For the Apostle doth not here command them to do this, but sharply doth rebuke them for it, saying, I speak this to your shame: and this he doth, by shewing that this in effect signified, that there was not a wise man among them. e

Ver. 7. Ὅλως ἥττημα, there is utterly a defect] Among you, that you go to Law at all, it being either on the one side, want of Patience and Christian Contentment, that you do not rather bear some Injuries, than thus seek to redress them; or, on the other, Covetousness and Injustice, which moves you to do wrong to, and defraud your Brethren. f

So *Philem.*5. Hearing of thy love and faith which thou haſt towards the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and towards all Saints; i. e. which Faith thou haſt towards Chriſt, and Love to his Saints. Moreover, whereas Mr. Cl. here ſaith, That to be juſtified is the ſame thing with being waſhed, or ſanctified, and that to be ſo by the Name of the Lord, is to be ſo by taking upon them the Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Religion in Baptiſm, he is utterly out in both, for ſure I am, he cannot produce one paſſage in all St. Paul's Epiſtles, where δικαιωθῆναι to be juſtified, bears any ſuch ſenſe, but it ſtill ſignifies to be abſolved from the Guilt of Sin, and approved as Righteous, either at preſent, or before God's Tribunal. And ſo the Name of Chriſt, when we are ſaid to be juſtified by it, muſt ſignifie, not the Profeſſion of Chriſtianity, but Faith in Chriſt dying for us, and be the ſame with ἐν αὐτῷ in him, for in him ſhall all that believe be juſtified, &c. Acts 13. 32. Moreover, Juſtification here is aſcribed to the Name of Chriſt, i.e. to Faith in him; Sanctification, to the Spirit of God; which ſhews they cannot ſignifie the ſame thing; for where the Cauſe is different, the Effect muſt be ſo alſo.

h Ver. 13. Ὁ θεὸς καταργήσει, God ſhall deſtroy both it and them.] From theſe words that Opinion, not of Origen only, but of (b) Athanaſius, (c) St. Baſil, (d) Hilary, (e) Theodoret, and others ſeems to be confirmed, that at the Reſurrection, when we ſhall neither eat nor drink, marry, nor be given in marriage, Matth. 22. 30. there will be, as no Meats, the World being then burnt up, ſo no Belly, nec quæ ſunt ſub ventre, nor any difference of Sexes.

i Ibid. Τὸ δὲ σῶμα οὐ τῇ πορνείᾳ, the body is not for fornication.] The Hereſie of the Nicolaitans held that it was lawful to eat things offered to Idols, and to commit fornication, Rev. 2. 14, 15 as Irenæus, Clemens Alexandr. Theodoret and St. Auſtin teſtifie. See the Notes on 2 Pet. 2. and the Epiſtle of St. Jude. And therefore Theodoret introduces the words thus, τοῦτο λέγεις, this thou ſayeſt in defence of thy eating thus, and of thy fornication, All things are lawful for me.

k Ver. 15. Ἆρας οὖν.] Taking them then from Chriſt, ſhall I make them the Members of an Harlot? for, ſaith Hilary here, Membra adherentia meretrici deſinunt eſſe Membra Chriſti, the Members which cleave to an Harlot, ceaſe to belong to Chriſt.

l Ver. 18. Εἰς τὸ ἴδιον σῶμα, againſt his own body.] Other Sins pollute the Heart, and the Soul, but thoſe of Fornication and Uncleanneſs only do properly pollute the Body. Hence are thoſe Actions ſtiled always in the Scripture, Pollutions; for though all ſins, ſaith Hilary, render a man Carnal, yet is this more eſpecially, Deſiderium carnis quod ſordibus maculatam animam cum corpore tradit Gehennæ, Carnal Concupiſcence which expoſes to Hell the Soul, together with the Body, defiled by its filthineſs.

Ver. 19. Τὸ σῶμα ὑμῶν ναὸς, &c.] your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt.] Two things concur to make up the Notion of a Temple. m

1*ſt*, That the Divinity ſhould either dwell in, or give ſome ſignal tokens of his eſpecial Preſence there. Hence was the Temple of Jeruſalem called the Houſe of God's Habitation, and the Tabernacle, the Houſe where the Divinity or Schechinah dwelt in the midſt of them. Accordingly, I am with you, Hag. 2. 4. is there interpreted, *v.*5. My Spirit is in the midſt of you, or among you. Hence is the Tabernacle ſtiled, the place of the Habitation of God's Glory. Pſal. 26. 8. and from thence he is ſaid to ſhine forth, when he gave them a teſtimony of his gracious Preſence. Now the Holy Spirit being that in the New Teſtament which anſwers to the Schechinah in the old, he dwelling in the Bodies, and being preſent in the Aſſemblies of the Saints, doth make them a Spiritual Temple, or Habitation of the Lord, Eph. 2. 22.

2*ly*, That it be a place dedicated, and appropriated to his uſe: Hence were the Tabernacle and Temple ſo often ſtiled the Houſe and Temple of the Lord, and by him my Houſe, according to thoſe words of Chriſt, Wiſt you not that I muſt be ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός in my father's houſe? for as to be (f) ἐν τοῖς τοῦ Διὸς is to be in the Temple of Jupiter, ſo to be ἐν τοῖς τοῦ πατρός muſt ſignifie to be in my Father's Temple, and therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, you are not your own, as being dedicated, and appropriated to God's uſe and ſervice.

Excellent therefore is the Inference of (g) Tertullian, That since all Christians are become the Temple of God, by virtue of his Holy Spirit sent into their hearts, and consecrating their bodies to his service, we should make Chastity the Keeper of this Sacred House, and suffer nothing unclean or prophane to enter into it, lest that God who dwelleth in it, being offended, should desert his House thus defiled.

CHAPTER VII.

Verse 1. NOW [to speak] concerning the things whereof you wrote unto me; (viz.) [a] it is good for a man not to touch a woman, [i. e. to live unmarried, or without the use of a woman, or it is not good to marry, Matth. 19. 10. This I grant, as Christ did to him, who having the gift of Continency, can receive the saying.]

2. Nevertheless, to avoid [that] fornication, [which is so common at Corinth, and so freely practised by the Nicolaitans, under the pretence that matrimony is a thing indifferent,] let every man have [ἐχέτω, retain] his own wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3. Let [also] the husband render to the wife due benevolence; [i. e. the Conjugal duty;] and likewise also the wife to the husband.

4. [For] the wife [b] hath not power over her own body, but the husband; and likewise also the husband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

5. Defraud ye not [therefore] one another [of this benevolence,] except it be with [mutual] consent for a time, that ye may give your selves [c] to fasting and prayer, and [then] [d] come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

6. But I speak this [of marriage, v. 2.] [e] by permission, and not by commandment [of the Lord, enjoyning them matrimony; v. 12.]

7. For I would that all men were [unmarried,] even as I my self [am;] but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8. I say therefore [f] to the unmarried, and [to the] widows, it is good for them if they abide even as I [do.]

9. But if they [g] cannot contain, let them marry, for it is better to marry than to burn, [or be inquieted with filthy lustings;]

10. And to the married I command, yet not I [only,] but the Lord [also, Matth. 19. 9.] [h] let not the wife depart, [or separate her self] from her husband.

11. But if she depart, [Gr. ἐὰν δὲ καὶ χωρισθῇ, but if she be separated,] let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband; and let not the husband put away [or divorce,] his wife.

12. But to the rest [you mention to me, who are coupled with unbelievers,] speak I, not the Lord, [by any decision he hath made, [i] or any precept he hath given in this case, v. 25. as in the former instance;] if any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and she be pleased to dwell with him, let him not put her away.

13. And the woman which hath an husband that believeth not, and [yet] he be pleased to dwell with her, [k] let her not leave him.

14. For the unbelieving husband is, [Gr. hath been,] sanctified [l] by the [believing] wife, and the unbelieving wife is, [hath been,] sanctified by the [believing] husband; [m] else were your children [seminally] unclean, [and so not to be admitted to the Christian Covenant,] but now are they holy.

15. But if the unbelieving [person will] depart, [and so break off the matrimonial duty,] let him depart; a brother or a sister [n] is not under bondage, [Gr. is not enslaved,] in such cases, but God hath called us to peace; [and therefore we must give no occasion of quarrel with, or separation from, so near a Relative, or of disturbance of the Family.]

16 For what knowest thou, O wife, whether [by dwelling with him] thou shalt [not be a means to] save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt [not, by this dwelling with her, be a means to] save thy wife?

17. [o] But [whether this be so, or not,] as God hath distributed [the gift of Continence] to every man, [or not,] as the Lord hath called every one [to the Faith, married to an unbeliever, or Servant to them, or not] so let him walk; [doing nothing on his part contrary to those Relations:] and so ordain I in all Churches [which I have converted.]

18. Is any man called, being circumcised? [p] let him not [endeavour to] become [as one] uncircumcised: is any [man] called in uncircumcision? let him not be circumcised:

19. Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, [that renders us more, or leſs acceptable in the ſight of God,] but the keeping of the Commandments of God [is all in all.]

20. Let every man [ſtill] abide in the ſame calling, in which he was called [to the Faith, not thinking himſelf obliged by it to quit his calling.]

21. Art thou called, being a Servant? care not for it; but if thou canſt [lawfully] be made free, uſe it rather: [care not I ſay;]

22. For he that is called in the Lord, being a Servant, is the Lord's freeman; [being delivered by him from his bondage to ſin, Joh. 8.36.] likewiſe he that is called, being free, [nevertheleſs] is Chriſt's ſervant.

¶ 23. ¶ Ye are bought with a price, [Gr. have you been bought with a price from your ſlavery?] be not ye [again] the ſervants of men, [who are unbelievers, 1 Tim. 6. 2.]

24. [Otherwiſe] Brethren, let every man wherein he is called, therein abide with God.

25. Now r concerning virgins, I have no [particular] Commandment of the Lord; s yet I give my judgment, as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be [found] faithful, [in my Apoſtolical Function, by adviſing ſtill what is beſt and moſt expedient in thoſe caſes to be done:]

26. I ſuppoſe therefore, that this is good t for the preſent diſtreſs [of Chriſtians, daily ſubject to Perſecution,] I ſay, that it is good for a man ſo to be, [i. e. a Virgin ſtill.]

27. Art thou [then] bound to a wife? ſeek not to be looſed; art thou looſed from a wife? ſeek not a wife.

28. But if thou marry, thou haſt not ſinned; and if a Virgin marry, ſhe hath not ſinned; nevertheleſs, ſuch [in theſe times of Perſecution,] ſhall have [more] trouble in the fleſh: but I ſpare you, [not thinking it therefore fit to lay the yoke of Celebacy upon you.]

29. But this I ſay, brethren, [that] the time [of this life] is ſhort; it remains [then] that both they that have wives, be as though they had none;

30. And they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoyce, as though they rejoyced not; and they that buy, as though they poſſeſſed not:

31. And they that uſe this world, u as not abuſing it; [or as thoſe that uſe it not:] for the faſhion of this world paſſeth away.

32. But [this advice I give, becauſe] I would have you without carefulneſs [for the things of the world; now ſo it is that] he that is unmarried careth [only] for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may pleaſe the Lord.

33. But he that is married, careth [alſo] for the things that are of the world, [and is ſolicitous] how he may pleaſe his wife.

34. w There is [the ſame] difference alſo between a wife and a virgin: [for] the unmarried woman careth [only] for the things of the Lord, that ſhe may be holy both in body and ſpirit; but ſhe that is married, careth [alſo] for the things of the world, how ſhe may pleaſe her huſband.

35. And [of] this [difference] I ſpeak, for your own profit, not that I may caſt a ſnare upon you, [by reſtraining you wholly from marriage,] but for that which is comely, and that you may attend upon the Lord without diſtraction.

36. But if any man think that he behaveth himſelf uncomely towards his virgin, x if ſhe paſs the flower of her age; [Gr. if it be over aged,] and need ſo require, [or he thinks this ought to be done,] let him do what he will, he ſinneth not; let them, [who ſo think,] marry.

37. y Nevertheleſs, he that ſtands ſtedfaſt in his heart, having no neceſſity, but hath power over his own will, and hath ſo decreed, [or determined] in his heart that he will keep his Virgin, [i.e. virginity,] doth well.

38. So then, he that giveth [her] in marriage doth well, but he that giveth [her] not in marriage doth better. [Or thus, So that he that marrieth doth well, and he that marrieth not doth better.]

39. The wife is bound by the law, ſo long as her husband liveth, but if her husband be dead, ſhe is at liberty to be married to whom ſhe will, only [ſhe ought to do it] z in the Lord.

40. a a But ſhe is happier if ſhe [can, and therefore doth] ſo abide, after my judgment, and I think alſo I have the Spirit of God, [to direct me even in this judgment, δοκῶ δὲ κἀγὼ, I think that I alſo have the Spirit of God.]

a Verse 1. Καλὸν ἀνθρώπῳ γυναικὸς μὴ ἅπτεσθαι, it is good for a man not to touch a woman.] It was an old Philosophical Question, An uxor ducenda esset, whether a man should marry? In which many of them held the Negative, as (a) Bion and Antisthenes, who said, An handsome wife would be common, one deformed a punishment, ὁ λιπτὸν ἄρα, therefore we should have none. Hence that of (b) Menander ὁ γαμεῖς ἀνὴρ οὐκ ἔχεις, if thou art wise, thou wilt not marry. This was held out of different Sentiments, as v. g. by some out of good liking to that celebrated Doctrine of Plato, Κοινὰς μὲν γυναῖκας, κοινοὺς δὲ καὶ παῖδας, that Women and Children should be common; and this Doctrine was improved by the Nicolaitans into all manner of impurity, who therefore did ἀναιδῶς πορνεύειν commit whoredom without shame. But others of the School of Pythagoras refused to touch a Woman, as being an impediment to Philosophy, and that which defiled that Purity they aimed at. Hence (c) Apollonius the Magician is represented as a Man of so great Chastity, γυναικείας ὅτι καθαρὸν ἑαυτὸν μίξεως διὰ πάλαι ἦγεν, that he lived ever free from converse with Women. And (d) Porphyry saith that a Philosopher must not marry; that to live the intellectual life, we must abstain from Women, all use of defilement. The word γυνὴ which in this Chapter still signifies a Wife, seems to refer this Question to the first Opinion, but the Phrase γυναικὸς μὴ ἅπτεσθαι, inclines us to refer it to the latter; the first question being too gross to be propounded by the Corinthians to the Apostle, the second being a question then in vogue, on the account of which Apollonius, and the Pythagoreans obtained great repute.

b Ver. 4. Οὐκ ἐξουσιάζει, hath not power.] Here is a plain Argument against Polygamy; for if the Man hath not power over his own Body, he cannot give the power of it to another, and so he cannot marry another; nor could the Wife, exclusively to him, have the power of his Body, if he could give his Body to another.

c Ver. 5. Τῇ νηστείᾳ καὶ τῇ προσευχῇ, to fasting and prayer.] The Apostle speaks not here of ordinary Prayer, which is the daily work of Christians, but of extraordinary Devotions on some special Occasions; for daily Prayers, publick or private, needed no such consent of Parties, nor by them could either of them be defrauded of their due Benevolence: Vain therefore are the questions of St. Jerom, Quale illud bonum est quod orare prohibet, quare non ingrediuntur Ecclesias? as if the Bed undefiled could hinder Mens prayers, or their going to Church. Vain is his inference, Si Sacerdoti semper orandum est, ergo semper carendum Matrimonio, if the Priest must always pray, he must never marry; for to pray always, and without ceasing, is also the Duty of the Laity, Luke 18.1. *Eph.*6.18. 1 *Thess.*5.17.

Ibid. Καὶ πάλιν ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ συνέρχεσθε, and come together again.] This Chapter affords many Arguments against the Vow of Continence, and those perpetual Divorces from the Bed, which are so commonly practised by the Papists, on pretence of Religion: For (1.) the Apostle here admits of no Seperation of the Wife and Husband, but only with condition that they come together again to perform Conjugal Duties, as the word συνέρχεσθαι doth import, not allowing a perpetual Separation, no not that they may give themselves to prayer, and fasting; and that for a perpetual Reason, at least whilst an Age capable of Temptation, and which may be subject to Incontinence, remains. (2.) He declares the Gift of Continence not to be common to all, but proper to some only, as being the proper Gift of God, and therefore not to be gotten by our Industry: I would, saith he, that all men were unmarried, even as I my self am; but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that; He then that can receive it, Matth. 19. 12. saith our Saviour, let him receive it. Whence it is natural to conclude, that all Men cannot. (3.) Notwithstanding the present necessity which rendred it so desirable, that they might serve the Lord without distraction, and which made their Condition better and more happy who had the Gift of Continence, he abstains from laying any Obligation to Celibacy upon them, lest he should lay a Snare on their Consciences, v. 35. and bring them under a necessity of burning, v. 9. much less would he have urged young Men and Women to that Vow, which lays a greater Snare, and an absolute necessity upon them, rather to burn than marry. And lastly, he supposes that some cannot contain, v. 9. some have a necessity to d

f Ver. 6. Κατὰ συγγνώμην, by permiſſion, &c.] i. e. I intend not by this to lay a commandment upon all to marry, but only do permit it to all, as being a ſure Remedy againſt Fornication.

g Ver. 8. Ἀγαμοῖς, the unmarried.] The Apoſtle begins his Diſcourſe concerning the Virgin Man and Woman, v. 25. here therefore he muſt ſpeak of the unmarried, as comprehending, the Widower, or the Man looſed from a Wife, as v. 11. Ἄγαμος is the Woman who muſt not embrace a ſecond Marriage. And perhaps this only was St. Paul's caſe, as may, ſaith Grotius, be probably collected from this place, and may be argued from the Teſtimony of (e) Clemens of Alexandria, and the interpolated Ignatius, who both reckon St. Paul among the Apoſtles that were married; and from the ſtrictneſs of the Jewiſh Canons, which obliged all Jews to marry at twenty.

h Ver. 9. Εἰ δὲ μὴ ἐγκρατεύονται γαμησάτωσαν, if they contain not, let them marry.] Had the Apoſtle then known of any Vow of Continence, or any Eccleſiaſtical Law rendring it a damnable Sin, and a renouncing their firſt Faith to marry, though they burned, he could not ſo generally have propounded, and preſcribed Marriage as the Remedy of that Diſeaſe, but would have reſtrained his words as Eſthius here doth, Iis quibus conjugii contrahendi poteſtas eſſet, id eſt, qui à lege & voto continentiæ, ſunt liberi, to thoſe who were free from the Law, and Vow of Celibacy. But I believe he knew of none whom God's Law had placed under a neceſſity of burning; that is, ſay the Greek Commentators, of being ſubject to the inſults of Luſt.

i Ver. 10. Γυναῖκα ἀπὸ ἀνδρὸς μὴ χωρισθῆναι, let not the wife depart from her husband.] Note that the Apoſtle ſpeaks here of the married Perſons who had mutually embraced the Chriſtian Faith, forbidding them to divorce themſelves, except for cauſe of Fornication, as it was cuſtomary for Women; as well as Men to do, both amongſt the Jews, and Romans. Dr. Lightfoot on this place cites this Canon from R. Juchanan, the Wife hath power to put away her Husband; and he gives inſtances of it in Herodias divorcing her ſelf from Philip, and Druſilla from Azizas; and our Lord ſuppoſes this was practiſed in theſe words, If a woman put away her husband, and marry another, ſhe commits adultery, Mark 10.12. That this was common among the Heathens, is apparent from that ſaying of (f) Seneca, That none bluſhes at it, becauſe there was ſcarce a Marriage without it. Hence had they divers names for the Divorce of both kinds; for the Wife being after Marriage carried to the Houſe of her Husband, her Divorce was called (g) ἀποπομπὴ, a ſending her away from his Houſe; and becauſe the Woman, being not Miſtreſs of the Houſe, could not do this to the Man, but only leave his Houſe, her Divorce was called ἀπόλειψις, a leaving of the Houſe, tho' it was conceived in the uſual form, Res tuas tibi habeto. See Note on 1 Tim. 3. 2, 12. That here the Apoſtle condemns theſe Divorces, with our Saviour, is evident, becauſe he ſaith, he ſpeaks this by commandment of the Lord.

Ver. 12. Οὐχ ὁ Κύριος, not the Lord.] St. Paul doth not ſay this, to intimate that this direction was given by him only as a Man uſing his Natural Reaſon, to direct them to what he thought beſt, but not as delivering the mind of Chriſt; for he had before declared the contrary, ſaying, We have the mind of Chriſt, Chap. 2. 16. And after doth it in theſe words, If any man think himſelf a Prophet, or Spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things I write unto you are Commandments of the Lord, Chap. 14. 37. But he ſpeaks thus, to declare our Lord in his Diſcourſe touching Divorce, had not decided the Caſe, de imparibus Conjugiis, of the Marriage of a Believer with an Infidel, but left this to the Deciſion of the Apoſtles, by the Aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt, promiſed to lead them into all truth. k

Ver. 13. Μὴ ἀφιέτω αὐτὸν, let her not leave him.] This Caution was needful, becauſe the Primitive Chriſtians were ſometimes in doubt of this, as finding that the Jews did null all Marriages of the holy Seed with Infidels; and hence conjecturing that they alſo might be obliged to do ſo, and thinking it ἀσεβὲς an impious thing to cohabit with an Heathen, eſpecially if he were addicted alſo to unnatural Luſts, and that by being ὁμοκοίτοι bed-fellows to ſuch a one, they communicated with him in his Iniquity and Idolatry; and concluding, that as he who was joyned to an harlot, was one body with her, ſo ſhe that was joyned to an Idolater was one body l with him. Hence Justin Martyr saith of one of these Christian Women, not without seeming approbation of the Fact, that (h) τὸ λιβέλλιον παρ' ὑμῶν βεβίδιον δόσα ἐχωρίσθη, giving him a Bill of Divorce, she was separated from him.

l Ver. 14. Ἐν τῇ γυναικὶ, by the Wife.] Uxoris gratiâ, because of the Wife, i. e. he is to be reputed as sanctified, because he is one flesh with her who is holy. So ἐδούλευσεν Ἰσραὴλ ἐν γυναικὶ, καὶ ἐν γυναικὶ ἐφυλάξατο, Israel served for a Wife, and for a Wife he kept sheep, Hos. 12. 12. I desire that you faint not ἐν ταῖς θλίψεσί μου by reason of my tribulations, Eph. 3. 13. and that no Man be shaken ἐν ταῖς θλίψεσι ταύταις by reason of these Tribulations, 1 Thess. 3. 3. See Naldius in the 23d. signification of the Particle Beth. Or we may take these words in the sense of the Greek Interpreters, viz. the unbelieving Husband hath been sanctified to the believing Wife by his Consent to cohabit with her, and to have Seed by her.

m Ibid. Ἐπεὶ ἄρα τὰ τέκνα ὑμῶν ἀκάθαρτά ἐστι, νῦν δὲ ἅγιά ἐστιν, else were your children unclean, but now they are holy.] He doth not say, else were your Children Bastards, but now they are legitimate; but else were they unclean, i. e. Heathen Children, not to be owned as an Holy Seed, and therefore not to be admitted into Covenant with God, as belonging to his holy People. That this is the true import of the words ἀκάθαρτα and ἅγια will be apparent from the Scriptures, in which the Heathens are stiled the unclean, in opposition to the Jews in Covenant with God, and therefore stiled an holy People. So Isa. 35. 8. ὁδὸς καθαρὰ ἔσται ἐκεῖ, καὶ ὁδὸς ἁγία κληθήσεται, an high-way shall be there, and it shall be called the way of holiness, ἀκάθαρτος, the unclean shall not pass over it; but the redeemed of the Lord shall walk therein, v. 9. And Chap. 52. 1. God saith of Jerusalem the holy City, There shall no more come into thee ἀπερίτμητος καὶ ἀκάθαρτος, the uncircumcised and unclean. So Acts 10. 28. You know that it is unlawful for a Jew to keep company with a man of another Nation; but God hath shewed me that I should call no man common, or ἀκάθαρτον unclean. Whence it is evident that the Jews look'd upon themselves as δοῦλοι Θεοῦ καθαροὶ the clean Servants of God, Neh. 2. 20. and upon all Heathens, and their Off-spring, as unclean, by reason of their want of Circumcision, the Sign of the Covenant. Hence, whereas it is said that Joshua circumcised the People, Chap. 5. 4. the Septuagint say, ἐφεκάθαρεν, he cleansed them. Moreover, of Heathen Children, and such as are not circumcised, they say, they are not born in Holiness; but they on the contrary are stiled זרע קדש σπέρμα ἅγιον, an holy Seed, Isa. 6. 13. Ezra 9. 2. and the Off-spring from them, and from those Proselytes which had embraced their Religion, are said to be born בקדושה in holiness, and so thought fit to be admitted to Circumcision, or Baptism, or whatsoever might initiate them into the Jewish Church; and therefore to this sense of the words holy and unclean, the Apostle may be here most rationally supposed to allude, declaring that the Seed of holy Persons, the Off-spring born ἐκ τῶν ἡγιασμένων of Saints, as (i) Christians are still called in the New Testament, are also holy. And though one of the Parents be still Heathens, yet is the denomination to be taken from the Better, and so their Off-spring are to be esteemed not as Heathens, i. e. unclean, but holy, as all Christians by denomination are. So (k) Clemens Alexandrinus infers, saying, I suppose the Seed of those that are holy is holy, according to that saying of the Apostle Paul, the unbelieving Wife is sanctified by the Husband, &c. Hence then the Argument for Infant Baptism runs thus, If the holy Seed among the Jews was therefore to be circumcised, and be made federally holy by receiving the Sign of the Covenant, and being admitted into the number of God's holy People, because they were born in Sanctity, or were seminally holy; for the Root being holy, so are the Branches also; then by like reason the holy Seed of Christians ought to be admitted to Baptism, and receive the Sign of the Christian Covenant, the Laver of Regeneration, and so be entred into the Society of the Christian Church. The Substance of this Argument is in Tertullian de Anima, cap. 39. and in the Author of the Questions ad Antiochum, qu. 114.

n Ver. 15. Οὐ δεδούλωται, is not under bondage.] That is, saith (l) Hilary, The Christian in this case is free to marry to another Christian. He is free, saith (m) Photius, to depart, because the other hath dissolved the Marriage. If he depart, say (n) Chrysostom, Oecumenius, and Theophylact, because thou wilt not communicate with him in his Infidelity, be thou divorced, or quit the yoke; for it is better that thy Marriage should be dissolved, than thy Piety. These Fathers therefore plainly ſuppoſed, that the Laws which ſay, He that marries her which is put away committeth adultery, Matth. 5. 22. and that the Wife is bound to the Husband as long as he liveth, v. 39. Rom. 7. 1, 2, 3. concerned only equal Marriages, partly becauſe the Apoſtle ſaith, He had no commandment of the Lord to produce for the deciſion of this caſe; and partly becauſe he doth not here ſay, as in the caſe of equal Marriages, v. 11. ἐὰν χωρισθῇ, if ſhe be ſeparated, let her remain unmarried. It is the Opinion of (o) Mr. Thorndike, that the Apoſtle look'd upon Marriage, made by Perſons before they were Chriſtians, to lay no ſtricter Oligations on them, then the Laws which they were under when the Marriage was contracted deſign'd to lay upon them. But this ſeems not conſiſtent with our Lord's deciſion touching Divorce and Polygamy; for though they were allowed both by Jews and Gentiles, our Saviour pronounces them diſagreeable to the firſt Inſtitution of Matrimony by God; and theſe Laws binding all that were Chriſtians, no Chriſtian Convert could after his or her Converſion, do any thing on their parts oppoſite to them; and whatſoever liberty of Divorce the Laws of Jew or Gentile might allow of, the Apoſtle will not permit the believing Wife or Huſband to make uſe of them, by beginning the Separation, v. 12, 13, 15. If then theſe words, a Brother or Siſter is not in bondage in theſe caſes, do import they are not obliged to live unmarried, ſuch a total and perpetual Deſertion muſt diſſolve the Matrimony, and render the deſerting Perſon as dead unto the other. But though all the Romaniſts, and many of the Reformed allow of this Interpretation of the Fathers, it muſt be dangerous to admit of it without this Reſtriction. A Brother or Siſter is not enſlaved, after all means of Peace and Reconciliation have been in vain attempted, and the Unbeliever hath entred into another Marriage, or rather hath diſſolved the former by Adultery, as may well be ſuppoſed of thoſe Heathens, who thus ſeparated from their Chriſtian Mates. And this Interpretation ſeems to be confirmed from the former words relating to the caſe of the believing Wives and Husbands, if they depart, let them remain unmarried; it being not to be ſuppoſed that Believers would diſſolve the Bond of Matrimony by Adultery. Therefore the Apoſtle ſeems to grant this in the caſe of Unbelievers, departing from Chriſtians on the account of their Faith.

Ver. 23. Τιμῆς ἠγοράσθητε, have ye been bought with a price?] That the Charity of Chriſtians was employed to buy their Brethren out of Slavery, we learn from the Apologies of (p) Juſtin Martyr, and (q) Tertullian, who tell us, That the Offerings of Chriſtians at the Sacrament, were, amongſt others, employed for that uſe: And that theſe words ought to be rendred by way of Interrogation, is evident from the preceding Diſcourſe, which is ſtill by way of Queſtion. Is any man called, being uncircumciſed? v. 18. Art thou called being a Servant? v. 21. And that they are to be thus interpreted the deſign of the Apoſtle ſhews, which is to inform them that their Chriſtianity did not exempt them from their Secular Relations to Heathens, the Believer ſtill continuing in his Conjugal Relation, and in the ſame Relation of a Servant to his Heathen Maſter. Now to tell them they were bought with a price by Chriſt, and therefore ought not to be the Servants of Men, is plainly to contradict this deſign; but it is well conſiſtent with the foregoing advice, If thou canſt be made free, uſe it rather, to add, Are ye then bought out of Servitude by the Charity of Chriſtians? return not again to the Service of Unbelievers. q without exception, If a Virgin marry, she hath not sinned, v. 28. he adds, Nisi sit Virgo Christo dicata, i. e. unless she be a Virgin consecrated to Christ by such a Vow; both which Exceptions seeing St. Paul, assisted by the Holy Spirit, thought not fit to add, we may presume that he knew nothing of that matter.

s Ibid. Γνώμην δὲ δίδωμι, &c. but I give my judgment as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be found faithful.] This, saith the Apostle, is all that is required of a Minister of God, and a Steward of his Mysteries, that he be found faithful in administring the Grace of his Apostleship, 1 Cor. 4. 1, 2. And this Fidelity was still attended with the Power of Christ assisting them, as appears from these words, I thank Christ Jesus our Lord who hath enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the Ministry, 1 Tim. 1. 12. So that this Phrase doth not imply, as some imagine, that the Apostle had only an ordinary assistance in this Advice, such as any pious skilful Pastor may still expect, much less that this is a Counsel which might be disregarded without sin.

t Ver. 26. Διὰ τὴν ἐνεστῶσαν ἀνάγκην, for the present distress.] This Phrase plainly shews this cannot relate ad pacata Ecclesiæ Tempora, to the peaceable Times of the Church, for they are not Times of Tribulation, as the word ἀνάγκη often signifies. So Luke 21. 23. there shall be ἀνάγκη μεγάλη great tribulation, ἐν ἀνάγκαις, ἐν στενοχωρίαις, in afflictions, necessities, distresses, 2 Cor. 6. 4. ἐν ἀνάγκαις, ἐν διωγμοῖς, in necessities, in persecutions, 2 Cor. 12. 10. Nor can it signifie the Troubles common to this Life, for they are not always instant, or present. See v. 28. where the Phrase is θλῖψις ἐν σαρκὶ, trouble in the flesh.

u Ver. 31. Ὡς μὴ καταχρώμενοι, as not abusing it.] So this Expression is used in (r) Philo, This is anothers, do not covet it; this is thy own, use it so as not abusing it; hast thou abundance, give to others, for the excellency of wealth consists not in thy purses, but in helping those that want.

Note also, That they who interpret these words, the time is short, with relation to the troubles shortly to come at the destruction of Jerusalem; and the fashion of the world passing away, of a new Scene of things beginning to appear, seem not to give the true import of the Apostles words: For (1.) it is not easie to conceive what concernment the Corinthians then had in the Destruction of Jerusalem; what peculiar Troubles hapned; what loss of Wives, or of Possessions, they did then sustain, or indeed, what Persecution they then lay under, from which the Destruction of Jerusalem might free them.

2ly, The fashion of the world's passing away, seems plainly to refer to the Dissolution of it, or at least to our Passing out of it in a short time, according to those words of St. John, Love not the world, nor the things of the world, for the fashion of the world passeth away, and the lusts thereof, 1 John 2. 15, 17. Again, To have, and use these things, as if we had them not, or did not use them, is to be moderate in the Enjoyment of them; not to be much affected with them when we have, or much afflicted when we want, or lose them.

Ver. 34. Μεμέρισται ἡ γυνὴ καὶ ἡ παρθένος, there w is difference between a wife, and a virgin.] The Reading of the King's Manuscript is this, καὶ μεμέρισται, and is distracted. And then begins the 34th Verse thus, καὶ ἡ γυνὴ ἄγαμος, καὶ ἡ παρθένος ἡ ἄγαμος, and the unmarried woman, i. e. the Widow, and the Virgin careth for the things of the Lord: But though this Reading makes a good sense, it is not found in any of the Greek or Latin Interpreters. (2.) It makes too great a Variation from the Ordinary Reading, by adding καὶ before μεμέρισται, and by joyning ἡ γυνὴ ἡ ἄγαμος, which in all printed Copies, and ancient Interpreters, are separated. And (3.) it makes ἡ γυνὴ here to signifie the Sex only, and to be indeed a Virgin, or unmarried Woman; whereas in this Chapter it above twenty times signifies a Wife, and always stands opposed to the Virgin, or unmarried Person. So v. 1, 2. v. 3. twice; v. 4, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14 twice; 16 twice; 27 thrice; 29, 39. which observation is sufficient to destroy this Reading; especially seeing the Common Reading gives a good sense, and may be rendred thus, The Virgin, and the Wife are divided, or drawn several ways; the first looking only after Purity, the second after the Pleasure of her Husband also.

Ver. 36. Ἐὰν ἡ ὑπέρακμος, if it be over-aged.] x The (s) Jews from the Precept to increase and multiply, thought themselves obliged to marry at Twenty, and that they offended against the Law if they did not so; declaring that whosoever neglected this Precept was guilty of Homicide. The Philosophers say with (t) Hesiod, that γάμος ὥριος marriage was seasonable to the Woman about Thirty, to the Male from Thirty to Thirty five. By the Law of (u) Lycurgus, they who continued unmarried were prohibited to ſee the Games; By the Laws of the Spartans they were puniſhed; and by Plato they are declared unworthy of any honour: To either of theſe Opinions the Diſcourſe of the Apoſtle may relate.

y Ver. 37. Note, It is generally ſuppoſed that theſe three Verſes relate to Virgins under the power of Parents and Guardians; and hence the uſual Inference is this, Children are to be diſpoſed of in marriage by their Parents. Now this may be true, but it hath no foundation in this Text; for τηρεῖν ἑαυτοῦ παρθένον, is not to keep his Daughters, but his own Virginity, or rather his purpoſe of Virginity: for as (w) Phavorinus informs us, He is called a Virgin, who freely gives up himſelf to the Lord, renouncing Matrimony, and preferring a Life ſpent in Continency.

And that this muſt be the true import of theſe words, appears from this Conſideration, that this depends upon the purpoſe of his own heart, and the power he hath over his own will, and the no neceſſity ariſing from himſelf to change this purpoſe; whereas the keeping a Daughter unmarried, depends not on theſe Conditions on her Father's part, but on her own; for let her have a Neceſſity, ſurely the Apoſtle would not adviſe the Father to keep her a Virgin, becauſe he hath determined ſo to do; nor could there be any doubt, whether the Father had power over his own will or not, when no neceſſity lay upon him to betroth his Virgin. The Greek runs to this ſenſe, If he had ſtood already firm in his heart, finding no neceſſity, to wit, to change his purpoſe, and hath power over his own will not to marry, finding himſelf able to perſiſt in the Reſolution he hath made to keep his Virginity, he doth well to continue a Virgin; and then the Phraſe, If any man thinks he behaves himſelf unſeemly towards his Virgin, if it be over-aged, and thinks he ought rather to joyn in Marriage, refers to the aforeſaid Opinions of Jew and Gentile, that all ought to marry at ſuch an Age; if any think thus, ſaith the Apoſtle, let them do what they will, let them marry, for in ſo doing, they do not ſin: And then he concludes with thoſe words applyed to both Caſes, So then both he that marries, doth well, and he that marries not, doth better.

Ver. 39. Ἐν Κυρίῳ, in the Lord.] That is, z ὁμοπίστῳ to one of the ſame Faith, ſay Theodoret, Tertullian, St. Cyprian, and St. Jerom, declaring that all Marriage with Heathens is forbid to Chriſtians. Hence alſo it is evident that Second Marriages are allowable, See Rom. 7. 3. 1 Tim. 5. 14.

But theſe Men did not well conſider that the Apoſtle was writing to them, who were apt to queſtion his Apoſtleſhip, and required a Proof of Chriſt ſpeaking in him, 2 Cor. 13. 3. to whom it was proper to ſay, Whatſoever you may conceive of me, I ſuppoſe I have the Spirit of God. Or (2.) that δοκῶ is frequently an Expletive, and ſo δοκῶ ἔχειν may be here rendred, I have the Spirit of God. So ὁ δοκεῖ ἔχειν that which he ſeems to have, Luke 8. 18. is, ὃ ἔχει that which he hath, Matth. 13. 12. οἱ δοκοῦντες ἄρχειν, they which are accounted to Rule, Mark 10. 42. is οἱ ἀρχοντες they which Rule, Matth. 20. 25. So in this Epiſtle, ὁ δοκῶν ἑστάναι, is, he that ſtands, Chap. 10. 12. ὁ δοκῶν φιλόνεικος, he that is Contentious, Chap. 11. 16. and εἴ τις δοκεῖ προφήτης, if any Man be a Prophet or Spiritual, let him know that the things I write unto you are the Commandments of the Lord, Chap. 14. 37.

CHAPTER VIII.

a Verſe 1. a NOW as [for the Plea, mentioned in your Letter,] touching [the lawfulneſs of eating] things offered to Idols, we, [who abſtain from eating theſe things, to the ſcandal of others,] know [as well as others,] that [an Idol is nothing, for] we all have [this] knowledge, [yet] knowledge [when it is not joyned with Charity,] puffeth up [againſt,] but charity edifieth [our brother.]

2. And [therefore] if any man think he knoweth any thing, [and by reaſon of that knowledge deſpiſeth others, not regarding their welfare,] he knoweth nothing yet b as he b ought to know.

3. But if any man love God, [and, for his ſake, his brother, John 4. 17. uſing his knowledge to the glory of God, and the benefit of his Brother,] the ſame is known [and accepted] of him.

4. As concerning therefore the eating of thoſe things that are offered in Sacrifice to Idols, c Idols, we [also generally] know that c an Idol is nothing in the world, [of that it is esteemed by them that worship it, i. e. no Deity,] and that there is no other God but one.

5. For though there be that are called d Gods, whether in Heaven or in Earth, d as, [to the Heathens,] there are Gods many, and Lords many, [they having their Celestial and Terrestrial Gods, and Lords;]

6. But, [or, yet] to us [Christians,] there e is but e one God the Father, of whom are all things, and we in [or for] him, and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him.

f 7. f Howbeit there is not in every man this knowledge; for some with conscience of the Idols [being something,] unto this hour eat [what is offered to] it, as a thing offered to an Idol; [i. e. not as common meat, but as a sacred Banquet in honour of the Idol;] and their conscience being weak, [i. e. erroneous, subject to stumble and fall,] is defiled.

8. But [it is to be considered by us, that] meat commendeth us not to God; for neither if we eat are we the better, [for so doing in the sight of God;] neither if we eat not are we the worse: [you therefore ought not so to eat, as to give occasion to the fall of your weak Brother,]

9. But [rather to] take heed; lest by any means this liberty of yours become a stumbling block to them that are weak; [so as to provoke them to fall from Christianity, or to defile themselves with Idolatry.]

10. For if any man, [who with this erroneous Conscience goes to these Feasts,] see thee who hast knowledge g sit at meat in g the Idol Temple, shall not the Conscience of him that is weak be [the more] emboldned [by thy Example] to eat those things which are offered to Idols [in honour of the Idol, or as thinking it no hurt to worship Idols?]

11. And [so] through thy knowledge, shall the weak brother perish, h for whom h Christ died.

12. But [surely it deserves well to be considered, that] when ye sin so against the Brethren, and wound their weak Consciences, ye sin against Christ, [wounding, and murthering the Members of his Body, defeating the great end of his Death, and destroying them whom he designed to save.]

13. Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, [and so to perish,] i I will eat no i flesh whilst the world stands, lest I make my brother to offend, [and perish.]

a Verse 1. Περὶ τῶν εἰδωλοθύτων, now as touching things offered to Idols.] This is that other Doctrine of the Nicolaitans, Nullam differentiam esse, docentes Idolothyton edere, that things offered to Idols might be eaten without discrimination, which the Apostle here sets himself to confute, speaking of these things both in the general, Chap. 10. 23. to the end; and in particular, as they were eaten with relation to the Idols in the Idol Temple.

b Ver. 2. Καθὼς δεῖ γνῶναι, as he ought to know.] To know thus, saith (a) St. Bernard, is to know in what order, with what study and endeavour, and to what end we ought to know all things. In what order, as desiring to know that first which is most necessary to Salvation. With what study, as desiring most ardently to know that which is most vehemently to be loved, and most tends to produce love in us. To what end, viz. not out of Curiosity, Vain-glory, or filthy Lucre; but for the Edification of thy self, or of thy Brother.

c Ver. 4. Οὐδὲν εἴδωλον, an Idol is nothing.] This Aphorism, that an Idol was nothing, was usual among the Jews, who were taught by the Old Testament, that the Heathen Deities were הבלים and אלילים Vanities and Nothings. Thus in (b) Echa Rabboth, or the old Comment on the Lamentations, Rachel speaks thus to God, Why envies't thou an Idol which is nothing? And in the (c) Elle Shemoth Rabba, we have this Aphorism, There is nothing solid in an Idol. And hence their Rabbins concluded, saith Dr. Lightfoot, that it could have no power to pollute, and that whatsoever Worship was paid to it, if it were not worshipped under the Notion of a God, it was nothing; but whatever they meant of an Idol's being nothing, 'tis certain the Apostle only means, that it is nothing of a God; for he proves that it is nothing, because there is no God but one; and so all the Criticisms about the word εἴδωλον, Idol, are impertinent.

Ver. 5. Ὥσπερ εἰσὶ θεοὶ πολλοὶ, as there are d Gods many, and Lords many.] Here (d) Mr. Cl. translates the words thus, as really there are gods many, &c. and Magisterially saith, The Apostle hath no reference to the Gods or Idols of the Heathens; but by Gods in Heaven, are meant God and the Angels; in the Earth Magistrates, who are also called the Lords of the World. But he proves not a word of all this; yea, the contrary is not only ſaid by all the (e) Ancient Fathers and Commentators upon the place, who both aſſert and prove the contrary, but alſo is evident from the words themſelves. For firſt, when the Apoſtle had ſaid expreſly, We Chriſtians know there is no God but one; would he immediately add, There are really Gods many, what would this have been, but as Chryſoſtom and Theophylact ſay, τοῖς φανεροῖς μάχεσθαι, to ſpeak things repugnant, which to avoid, the Apoſtle adds, though there be οἱ λεγόμενοι θεοὶ, thoſe that are called Gods, by theſe words ſeparating them from him that truly is ſo; and ſhewing that they are only ſo in name, but not in reality; not in truth, but in word only. And this is evident from the words following; though (to them) there be Gods many, and Lords many, παρ' ἕλλησι θεοὶ καὶ κύριοι λεγόμενοι, yet to us (Chriſtians) there is but one God and one Lord. Laſtly, Whereas he ſaith, By Gods in Heaven are meant God and the Angels, let him ſhew any inſtance in the New Teſtament where Θεὸς is put for God and the Angels, or where both are thus mentioned under that one Name: Here to be ſure it cannot be ſo, for the Apoſtle had not only ſaid before, We Chriſtians know there is no other God but one, but ſaith after, This is he of whom are all things, i. e. whoſe Creatures the Angels are, could he then ſay, in the intermediate words, there really are many Gods in Heaven, God, and the Angels?

e Ver. 6. Εἷς Θεὸς ὁ Πατὴρ, one God the Father.] Hence the Arians and Socinians argue thus againſt the Deity of Chriſt; viz. As he who ſaith there is one Emperor, to wit, Cæſar, ſaith in effect there is no other Emperor but Cæſar; ſo he that ſaith there is one God the Father, ſaith in effect, there is no other God beſides the Father. Again, He who having ſeparately ſpoken of one God, proceeds diſtinctly to ſpeak of one Lord, to wit, Jeſus Chriſt, doth by that diſtinct Title ſufficiently ſhew Jeſus Chriſt is not that God.

Anſw. To the ſecond Argument the Reply is obvious, by retorting the Argument as do the Ancient Commentators, againſt this Arian Objection thus: That as the Apoſtle, by ſaying, there is one Lord, to wit, Jeſus Chriſt cannot be reaſonably ſuppoſed to exclude the Father from being alſo the Lord of Chriſtians, as he is often ſtyled in the New Teſtament; ſo neither by ſaying there is one God the Father, ought he to be ſuppoſed to exclude Jeſus Chriſt from being alſo the God of Chriſtians. So (f) Origen and (g) Novatian. Eſpecially if we conſider, (1.) that he is here ſtyled that one Lord by whom are all things, i. e. by whom all things are created, Eph. 3. 9. All things which are in Heaven, or in Earth, Coloſſ. 1. 16. for he that made all things is God, Heb. 3. 4. and by the work of the Creation is the Godhead known, Rom. 1. 20. And this is elſewhere made the very deſcription of God the Father, that it is he by whom are all things, Rom. 11. 35. Heb. 2. 10. (2.) That all things were created, not only by this Lord, but εἰς αὐτὸν for him alſo, Col. 1. 16. Now this is the very thing which the Apoſtle here aſcribes to God the Father.

2*ly*, To the other Argument I anſwer, That we and all the Ancients aſſert, as truly as they can do, the Unity of the Godhead; and that Chriſt Jeſus is not another God, but only another Perſon from the Father; and that the Application of the word God here to the Father, doth not neceſſarily exclude the Son from being God alſo, but only from being the Fountain of the Deity as the Father is. Thus when theſe words, I am Alpha and Omega, the firſt and laſt, Rev. 1. 17. & 2. 8. & 22. 13. are by St. John applyed to Chriſt, it cannot be concluded hence, that the Father is not alſo Alpha and Omega, the firſt and the laſt, as he is often called in the Old Teſtament: And though our Saviour be the proper Title of our Lord Jeſus, as his very Name informs us, yet is the Father in Scripture ſtyled our Saviour, 1 Tim. 1. 1. & 2. 3. and the Saviour of all Men, Chap. 4 10. The Primitive Fathers therefore considering God the Father as the Fountain of the Deity, and Jesus Christ as God of God, do frequently assert two things, which may serve to illustrate this Passage; viz.

1*st*, That (h) Christians acknowledg'd one God only, even the Father, and yet that Jesus Christ was truly God of the Substance of the Father.

2*ly*, That God the Father was the Creator of all things, and yet that all things were created by the Word.

f Ver. 7. Ἀλλ' οὐκ ἐν πᾶσιν ἡ γνῶσις, there is not in all this knowledge.] This contradicts not what is said v. 1. We all have knowledge; that being spoken of them who abstained from things offered to Idols, out of scandal to others only; this of them who through weakness did eat of them; the first, being well informed Christians, knew there was but one God the Father, and one Lord Jesus Christ to be worshipped; the weak thought there might be some Deastri, or Inferior Lords, to whom some Reverence was due.

g Ver. 10. Ἐν εἰδωλείῳ κατακείμενον, sitting at meat in the Idols Temple.] The Gentiles, saith (i) Josephus, offer Hecatombs to their Gods, ᾗ χρῶνται ἱερείοις ἀντὶ ἐυωχίας, and use their Temples for their Banquetting house; so we read Judg. 9. 27. Amos 2. 7. and in prophane Authors very frequently; when therefore, saith the Apostle, the weak Jew who abhorreth Idols, or the Gentiles newly converted from the worship of them, shall see thee doing the same thing which Heathens do in honour of their Idols, and that in places appropriated to their Worship, will they not be tempted, by the Example of such a strong and knowing Christian, to conclude, that either Idolatry is by Christians accounted no sin, or that the Idol deserves some honour, and so comply with them from these erroneous Principles in eating things offered to Idols.

Ver. 11. Δι' ὃν Χριστὸς ἀπέθανεν, for whom Christ died.] From this, and the like place, Rom. 14. 15. it is strongly argued, that Christ intentionally died for those that may for ever perish; for here the Apostle dissuades the Corinthians from scandalizing their weak Brethren, by an Argument taken from the irreparable Mischief they do to them, the eternal Ruine they may bring upon them by this Scandal; whereas, if it be as some assert, That all things, even the sins of the Elect, shall work together for their good, and that they can never perish; if the Apostle knew and taught this Doctrine to them, why doth he go about to fright them from this Scandal, by telling them, it might have that Effect which he before had told them was impossible? If you interpret his words thus, So shall he perish for whom in Charity you ought to judge Christ died, 'tis certain from this Doctrine, that they must be assured this Judgment of Charity must be false, or that their Brother could not perish. In the first case, they could not be obliged to act by it; and in the second, they could not rationally be moved by it to abstain from giving Scandal on that impossible Supposition. If you interpret him thus, So shall thou do that which in its nature tends to make thy Brother perish, and might have that Effect, had not God determined to preserve all for whom Christ died from perishing: Since this Determination renders it sure to me, who know it, that they cannot actually Perish, it must assure me there can be no cause of abstaining from this Scandal, lest they should perish by it. Moreover, by thus offending, saith the Apostle, you sin against Christ, viz. by sinning against them whom he hath purchased with his Blood, and destroying them for whose Salvation he hath suffered; deny now this intent of Christ's Death, and shew, if you can, in what Christ hath demonstrated his great Love to them that perish; how they can ever sin against Redeeming Love; or how by thus offending them, who neither do, nor can belong to him as Members of his Body Mystical, we are injurious to Christ.

being ſo nice in matters of that nature, this Neceſſity might ſometimes lye upon the Chriſtian to abſtain from all Fleſh, to avoid the offence of the weak Brother; and the Apoſtle here engageth rather to ſubmit to it, then to be an occaſion of his Ruine. See Theodor. H. Eccl. l. 3. c. 15. and Note on Rom. 14. 2.

Note alſo, That there is nothing in this Chapter which intimates that the Apoſtle diſcourſeth of a Conſcience doubting about things indifferent, but rather that he all along diſcourſeth of an Erroneous Conſcience, which from a falſe Perſwaſion falleth into Sin, for, ſaith he, ſome with a Conſcience of the Idol to this hour, eat it as a thing offered to the Idol, v. 7. Now ſo to do, is to act plainly, not from a doubting Conſcience about a thing indifferent, but from an erroneous Conſcience about a thing unlawful; and yet this is the Man whoſe Conſcience being weak, is defiled. And in this ſenſe are the words ἀσθενὴς, ἀσθένεια, ἀσθενεῖν, to be weak, and weakneſs commonly uſed in the Septuagint anſwering to the Hebrew כשל which ſignifies to fall and ſtumble. See Note on Rom. 5. 6.

2*ly*, Πρόσκομμα γίνεσθαι τοῖς ἀσθενέσιν, to be a ſtumbling block to the weak.] V. 9. Is not barely to offend them, or to induce them to do any thing with a doubting Conſcience, but to make them ſtumble at the Chriſtian Faith, or fall off from it, or periſh by Idolatry. For thus it follows, and ſo ſhall thy weak brother periſh: So Rom. 9. 32, 33. Iſrael ſtumbled at the ſtone of ſtumbling, as it is written, Behold I lay in Zion λίθον προσκόμματος, a ſtone of ſtumbling, 1 Pet. 2. 8. to them that be diſobedient; the ſtone which the builders diſallowed, is made λίθον προσκόμματος, a ſtone of ſtumbling.

3*ly*, To ſcandalize, or offend this weak brother, V. 13.] Is not only to do a thing ungrateful to him, or to cauſe him to ſin by acting with a doubting Conſcience, but to divert him from the Faith, or cauſe him to diſlike it, becauſe he ſees that Chriſtians ſo freely do communicate with Idols, or to encourage him to joyn Idolatry with the Profeſſion of it. That this is the conſtant ſenſe of the word σκανδαλίζεσθαι, ſee Note on Rom. 14. 13, 21.

Hence evident it is, that what Diſſenters ſay from hence againſt our Ceremonies, that they offend, or grieve them, that they cannot comply with them by reaſon of thoſe Doubts which they lye under, touching the Lawfulneſs of the uſe of them, is impertinent to the Apoſtle's Argument; if they would have the Apoſtle here to patronize them, they muſt confeſs that they are acted herein by a falſe Judgment, and erroneous Conſcience, as the weak Perſon mentioned by him was.

Nevertheleſs, this ſeemeth to preſs hard on them who believe the Schiſm of ſuch weak Perſons, will finally tend to their Ruine, and render them Exiles from the Flock of Chriſt, and yet for things indifferent, will in this dreadful ſenſe cauſe their weak Brother to offend, or to be ſcandalized, ſince this they do for that which commends them not to God, which doing they are not the better, or omitting, they are not the worſe, v. 8. For if Schiſm, and Idolatry, be equally damning ſins, and equally cauſe my brother to offend, and him to periſh, for whom Chriſt died, we are equally to take heed in both caſes, leſt ἐξουσία ἡμῶν, our power to do the thing indifferent, become a ſtumbling block to the weak, or the erroneous in their Judgment of theſe things. For let Men imagine what other Differences they pleaſe in the caſe, whilſt the ſad Iſſue or event is in general the ſame, to wit, the periſhing of my Brother, and my power to have abſtained from that which through his erroneous Conſcience gave occaſion to it, is the ſame, I fear the Guilt will be the ſame.

CHAPTER IX.

Apostles, and as the Brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6. Or I only, and Barnabas, have we not power to forbear working? [and to receive Maintenance of the Church as others do.]

d 7. d Who goeth a warfare at any time at his own charge? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? Or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock? [And shall we the Souldiers of Jesus Christ, 2 Tim. 2. 2. the Planters of his spiritual Vineyard, the Pastors of his Flock, Acts 20. 28. be debarred of this Privilege?]

e 8. Say I these things e as a Man [only, from Principles of Natural Reason and Equity?] or saith not the Law the same also?

9. For it is written in the Law of Moses, thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the Ox that treadeth out the Corn; doth God [say this only to shew, he] take[th] care for Oxen?

10. Or saith he it altogether for our f sakes? f For our sakes, no doubt, this is written, that [in this spiritual Husbandry, 1 Cor. 3. 9.] he that ploughs should plough in hope [of reaping some advantage by it;] and [that] he that threshеth in [that] hope, should be partaker of his hope.

11. If [then] we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap [some of] your carnal things? [Rom. 15. 27.]

g 12. If others be partakers of this g power over you, are not we rather [so, who laid the foundation of a Christian Church among you, 1 Cor. 3. 10. and have begotten you through the Gospel? 1 Cor. 4. 15.] nevertheless, we have not used this power [among you, 2 Cor. 11. 7, 8, 9.] but [chuse rather to] suffer [the want of] all things, lest we should hinder the [advancement of the] Gospel of Christ.

13. [And not to insist only on mystical Interpretations of the Law;] Do you not know that they who minister about holy things, [excoriating, washing and preparing a Sacrifice for the Altar, as do the Levites,] live of the [holy] things of the Temple, and [that] they which wait at the Altar are [according to the institution of the Law] partakers with the Altar? [for that consumes not always the whole Sacrifice, but leaves some Portion to be eaten by the Priests.]

14. Even so hath the Lord [Jesus in the Gospel, Matth. 10. 10. Luke 10. 7.] ordained, that they who preached the Gospel, should live of the Gospel.

15. But [yet] I have used none of these things, neither have I written these things, that it should be so done unto me; for it were better for me to dye [for want of food,] than that any man should make my glorying [in thus advancing the Gospel] void.

16. [I say my glorying;] For though I preach the Gospel, I have nothing to glory of [upon that account;] for necessity is laid upon me [by the command, and special call of our Lord Jesus Christ, so to do,] yea, wo is to me, if I preach not the Gospel; [because then I shall be guilty of Disobedience to the heavenly Vision, Acts 26. 9.]

17. h For if I do this thing willingly, [if h
I chuse to take nothing for preaching the Gospel, when I am under no obligation so to do,] I have a [special] reward, [and may glory in it,] but if against my will [I preach the Gospel; yet am I under a necessity of doing this, and therefore cannot glory in it, or expect any special reward above others for it; since] a dispensation of the Gospel is committed to me, [and so in that I only can discharge my trust,]

18. i What is my reward then? [or what is i matter of special reward and glory to me?] Verily [this,] that when I preach the Gospel, I may make the Gospel of Christ without charge, that I abuse not [or use not, See 1 Cor. 7. 31.] my power, [which is given me,] in the Gospel: [and this matter of rejoycing I have.]

19. For though I be free from all men; [as being a servant to none,] yet have I made my self [as a] servant to all, that I might gain the more.

20. And to the [unconverted] Jews, I became as a Jew; [circumcising Timothy for their sakes, Acts 16. 3.] that I might gain the Jew; to them that [in their opinion] are [yet] under the [obligation of the] Law, as under the Law; [purifying my self in the Temple, because they were zealous of the Law; Acts 20. 21—26.] that I might gain them that are under the Law.

21. To them that are without Law, [the unbelieving Gentiles, I became] as without Law; [discoursing to them from those natural Principles which they owned, Acts 17. rather than from the Law and the Prophets;] being not without Law to God, but under the Law to Christ, [or obedient to the Law of Christ, and taking care notwithstanding that I did nothing contrary to the Moral Law of God, and to the Rules of Christianity;] that I might gain them that are without Law.

22. To the weak [Converts among the Gentiles,] I became as weak, [by condescending to abstain from what might hurt their Consciences,] that I might gain the weak; I am made all things to all men [by my complyance with them in all lawful matters,] that I might by all means save some.

23. And this I do for the Gospel's sake, that I might be partaker of [the Promise, and Rewards of] it, with you.

out Charity, and a life ſuitable to the Precepts of it; for] know ye not, [among whom the Iſthmian Games are acted,] that they who run in a race, run all, but one [of them only] receiveth the prize? ſo [therefore] run [your Chriſtian race,] that ye may obtain [the Reward of it;]

25 And [then you will be moved to abſtain, as I do, from what may cauſe your weak brother to fall and periſh; for] every man that ſtriveth for the maſtery, [or is a wreſtler in theſe Games,] is temperate in all things; [i. e. obſerveth a ſtrict abſtinence.] Now they [who thus abſtain, that they may prevail in wreſtling,] do it [only] to obtain a corruptible Crown, [of Bays, or Olive;] but we [Chriſtians, by uſing this Temperance, ſhall obtain] an incorruptible [Crown.]

26. I therefore ſo run [this race,] not as uncertainly, [or not regarding whether I am within the Lines, or come firſt to the Goal, or not;] ſo fight I, not as one that beateth the Air, [i. e. not vainly, as you ſeem to do; for what advantage have you by going to the Idol Temples, or eating things offered to Idols, to the Deſtruction of your Brother?]

27. But I keep under my body, and bring it into ſubjection, [by denying my ſelf theſe liberties in things indifferent;] k leſt that by any means, when I have preached to others, I my ſelf ſhould be a Caſtaway, [as being not partaker of the Bleſſings of the Goſpel, v. 23.]

a Verſe 1. Οὐκ εἰμὶ Ἀπόστολος; am not I an Apoſtle?] The Apoſtle here, from his own Example in abſtaining from the Power which the Lord had given him to receive the Neceſſities and Conveniencies of Life from them to whom he preached the Goſpel, ſhews how much it concerned them in a matter unneceſſary, to abſtain from the exerciſe ἐξουσίας of their rightful Power granted by Chriſt, to avoid the Scandal of the Weak, and to promote Men's ſpiritual welfare. So Eſthius. This Condeſcenſion indeed was not in the exerciſe of his Apoſtolical Authority, but it was in that which he might have challenged as an Apoſtle of Chriſt, 1 Theſſ. 2. 6. Hence he ſpeaks thus, Am not I an Apoſtle? and therefore have I not ἐξουσίαν power to eat and to drink? yea, it was in that he might have challenged by the nature of his Office, v. 7. by the Preſcriptions of the Law, v. 8. and by the Ordinance of Chriſt, v. 14. And this Abſtinence he uſed not only in Achaia, but in Theſſalonica, 1 Theſſ. 2. 9. 2 Theſſ 3.8. that he might be an Example for their Imitation, v. 9. It was not therefore any private or perſonal Right which he here waved, but a Right of Office belonging to all who did officiate in things Sacred; See Note on 2 Cor. 9. 2.

b Ibid. Οὐχὶ Ἰησοῦν ἑώρακα, have I not ſeen Chriſt?] The Apoſtles being choſen to be Witneſſes of the Reſurrection, it was requiſite that St. Paul, being called to that Office, ſhould alſo ſee him riſen. Hence Ananias ſpeaks thus to him, The God of our Fathers hath choſen thee, that thou ſhouldſt ſee the juſt one, and ſhouldſt hear the words of his mouth, for thou ſhalt be his witneſs to all men of what thou haſt ſeen and heard, Acts 22. 14, 15. & 26. 26. accordingly we find that Chriſt was ſeen of him, 1 Cor. 15. 8. yea, oft appeared to him after his Reſurrection, Acts 18. 9. & 22. 18. and that he was taught the Goſpel by the immediate Revelation of Jeſus Chriſt, Gal. 1. 12. The Syriack, Arabick, and ſome MSS. read thus, Am I not free? Am I not an Apoſtle? Have I not ſeen Jeſus Chriſt our Lord?

c Ver 5. Ἀδελφὴν γυναῖκα περιάγειν, to lead about a ſiſter, a wife.] It is the Obſervation of Hilary Oecumenius and Theophylact, that as ſome Women attended on the Lord, when he was on Earth, to miniſter Neceſſaries to him and his Diſciples, ſo ſome rich Women converted by them followed the Apoſtles to provide Diet and other Neceſſaries for them; and they who ſo interpret theſe words, tranſlate them a Siſter-woman. This Expoſition Theodoret mentions, but ſeems not to approve; and indeed it ſeems to have had it's riſe from (a) Tertullian when he was a Montaniſt.

For (b) Clemens of Alexandria not only ſaith, that he that marrieth, εἰκόνας ἔχει τὰς Ἀποστόλους hath the Apoſtles for examples; and that St. Peter carried his Wife with him till her Martyrdom; but confutes the Enemies of Matrimony from theſe very words, Have we not power to lead about a Siſter, a Wife, as well as other Apoſtles; adding that οὐχ ὡς γαμετὰς, ἀλλ' ὡς ἀδελφὰς, περιῆγον τὰς γυναῖκας, (c) they carried their Wives about, not as Wives, but as Siſters, to miniſter to thoſe that were Miſtreſſes of Families, that ſo the Doctrine of the Lord might, without any Reprehenſion, or evil Suſpicion, enter into the Apartments of the Women. This Expoſition ſeemeth

(1.) most agreeable to the words which are not γυναῖκα ἀδελφὴν, but ἀδελφὴν γυναῖκα, which cannot well be rendred a Sister-Woman, there being no Sister which is not an Woman. 2. It is most agreeable to the Context, which plainly seems to speak not of such wealthy Women which could nourish the Apostles out of their abundance, but of such which were to be nourished with them by others. And (3.) to the Language of the Jews, who called their Wives, Sisters. Thus Tobit saith to his Wife μὴ λόγον ἔχε ἀδελφῇ, Take no care my Sister, Tob. 5. 20. And Clemens in the words now cited, saith, They were carried with them not as Wives, but Sisters. And lastly, This seems best to consult the credit and esteem of the Apostles, who could not without evil Suspicion carry about with them single Women, or the Wives of other Men. As for the Women who are said to have followed Christ, they were none of his Retinue, they attended not upon his Person, but upon his Doctrine, and so they ministred no such ground of Suspicion. But hence, I think it doth not follow, as Mr. Cl. saith, that St. Paul then had a Wife, but only that he, or Barnabas had one, or at least might have had one, no law then forbidding it. Tertullian saying, if not in his own sense, yet in the Person of the Orthodox, Licebat Apostolis nubere, & uxores circumducere. De Exhort. Castit. cap. 8.

d Ver. 7. Τὶς στρατεύεται, who goeth a warfare?] The Pertinency of this Instance will be more visible, if we consider that both in the Old and New Testament the Ministerial Function is represented as a warfare. See Note on 1 Tim. 1. 18. And the Levite, who was consecrated to the Service of the Tabernacle, is said to enter into the Host, Num. 4. 3. λειτουργεῖν to officiate, saith the Septuagint; to serve the service, saith the Chaldee. The Church of God is also represented as his Vineyard, Isa. 5. 1—5. Matth. 20. 1. & 21. 18, 33,—40, 41. Luke 13. 6, 7. and as his Flock, Isa. 40. 11. & 63. 11. Matth. 26. 31. Luke 12. 32. Acts 20. 28, 29. 1 Pet. 5. 1, 2. But then (d) St. Chrysostom and Theophylact observe, that he saith not, who goeth to warfare, and is not rich? who plants a Vineyard, and heaps not up Gold of the Fruits of it? who feeds a Flock, and makes not a Merchandize of the Sheep? teaching us that the Spiritual Pastor should be content with little, and seek only what is necessary, not what is superfluous.

e Ver. 8. Κατ' ἄνθρωπον, as a man.] This Phrase in the New Testament doth always signifie to speak, act, and live after the manner of a mere Natural Man, not yet acquainted with the Mind of God, not acting by the guidance of Divine Wisdom, or not assisted by the Holy Spirit. So Rom. 3. 5. I speak κατ' ἄνθρωπον as a man by mere strength of Reason would be apt to argue. 1 Cor. 3. 3. Are ye not carnal, and walk as men? i. e. as Natural, and not Spiritual Men, v. 1. 1 Cor. 15. 32. If κατ' ἄνθρωπον after the manner of men, i. e. the heathen manner, I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, Gal. 1. 11. The Gospel which was preached by me, was not κατὰ ἄνθρωπον after man, i. e. it was not the Product of Humane Wisdom, but received from the Revelation of Jesus Christ, Gal. 3. 15. Brethren, I speak after the manner of men, i. e. what is acknowledged in all Civilized Nations; See Note on 1 Pet. 4. 6.

Ver. 10. Δι' ἡμᾶς πάντως ἐγράφη, for our sakes this was written.] A like Expression occurs in (e) Maimonides, who having cited these words, Thou shalt not take the Dam with the young, saith, if God took such care for Beasts and Birds, how much more for Men? and R. Menachem on the same words saith, The Intention of the Command was not to shew mercy to Birds, sed propter homines hoc dicit, but he saith this to teach men mildness and commiseration; and (f) Philo in the beginning of his Discourse περὶ θυόντων, of those who offer Sacrifice, says, the Law took not care of Brutes, but of Reasonable Creatures, ὑ τῶν θυομένων ἀλλὰ τῶν θυόντων, by its Prescriptions that the Sacrifice should be perfect and without blemish, having regard not to the things offered, but to him that offered them, that he should be free from vile Passions, or evil Dispositions. So that these words do not import, that God takes no care for Beasts, for he saveth Man and Beast; Psal. 36. 6. and giveth to the Beasts their food, Psal. 147. 9. but only that the Commands he gives us to shew mercy and kindness to our Beasts, are especially designed to teach us greater kindness to our Brother Man. Thus the High Priest (g) Eleazar saith to Aristæus, That all the Precepts of this Nature delivered by Moses, had λόγον βαθὺν a profound sense; and that God did not make them, as being concerned about Mice, or Weasels, or such like Beasts, but that all these Laws were made for Righteousness sake, and the Information of our Manners.

Ver. 12. Ἐξουσίας ὑμῶν, power over you.] g So ἐξουσία πνευμάτων is power over unclean Spirits, Matth. 10. 1. ἐξουσία πάσης σαρκὸς, power over all flesh, John 17. 2.

h Ver. 17. Εἰ γὰρ ἑκὼν τοῦτο πράσσω, if I do this willingly.] This is the Interpretation of Oecumenius, and it ſeems beſt to ſuit with the ſcope of the Apoſtle: The other ſenſe mentioned by the Ancients, and followed by moſt Interpreters, is this, If I preached the Goſpel as a Voluntier, having no command from Chriſt to do it, I might expect a peculiar Reward; but having this Command from Chriſt, I execute it only in obedience to the Truſt committed to me, and ſo I cannot glory in, or expect a Reward for that above others.

i Ver. 18. Note firſt from v. 12,15,18. that our power in things indifferent and uncommanded, is not to be uſed to the hindrance of the Goſpel of Chriſt, and the Scandal of the Weak.

2*ly*, That there is καύχημα, or Matter of glorying in things done by the aſſiſtance of the Grace of God, and it is for the Glory of a Man to do them, v. 15,16. 2 Cor. 11.10. ἡ καύχησις ἡμῶν, our rejoycing, or our glorying is this, even the teſtimony of our Conſcience, 2 Cor. 1. 12. And again, Let every man approve himſelf to his own Conſcience, and then ſhall he have τὸ καύχημα, rejoycing in himſelf, and not in another, Gal. 6.4. The glorying therefore, or the καύχημα which the Apoſtle elſewhere doth reject, and exclude, is only that of the Merit of our Works, or their ſufficiency to procure the Juſtification of a Sinner, Rom. 3.27. & 4. 2. or that which doth exclude the help, or the aſſiſtance of the Grace of God in Chriſt, 1 Cor. 1. 29,31. Note,

3*ly*, That there may be ſome Actions eminently good which fall under no particular Command, I ſay, particular Command; for I believe this very Action of St. Paul, in which he glories, was done according to that Charity which ſeeketh not her own, but the things of Jeſus Chriſt, Phil. 2. 5. and that it was in the general his Duty to take care not to hinder the Goſpel of Chriſt, v. 12. and to cut off occaſion from others to glory, to the impairing of the Truth, 2 Cor. 11.12. to perform that which rendred him inſtrumental to gain the more, v. 19. and therefore he ſaith, v. 27. All this I do for the Goſpel's ſake, that I may be partaker of it with you. I think every Good Work, which reſpects our Duty towards God, falls under the General Command of loving God with all our Heart, our Mind, and Soul; and all the kindneſs we ſhew to our Brother under the Command of loving him as our own ſelves, and think no Action eminently good can be done by any Chriſtian, which is not comprehended under the general Precept of doing whatſoever things are true, honeſt, juſt, pure, lovely, and of good report, if there be any vertue, any praiſe. Philip. 4. 8. But yet this Action, as to the Subſtance of it, being under no Precept, but being a Refuſal to uſe the Power God had granted to him as much as others, and this Refuſal being done out of reſpect unto God's glory, and the good of Souls, was that of which he juſtly gloried, and for which, though he did not merit any thing, yet he might reaſonably expect from God, whoſe glory he promoted by it, an eſpecial Recompence, according to the Rule of his own Nation, (h) To him a Reward is given, who doth any thing uncommanded.

Ver. 17. Ἀδόκιμος, leſt I my ſelf ſhould be caſt-away.] i. e. One diſapproved of by God at the laſt: Excellent here is the Note of the Ancient Commentators, Εἰ ὁ Παῦλος τοῦτο ἐδεδοίκει, ὁ πάντας διδάξας, τί ἂν ἐποιμῶν ἡμεῖς, If Paul, ſo great a Man, one who had preach'd and laboured ſo much, dreaded this, what cauſe have we to fear leſt this ſhould befal us? k

Note alſo, That the Agoniſtical Phraſes mentioned in theſe four laſt Verſes, are fully and excellently explained by the Reverend Dr. Hammond, who informs us,

1*ſt*, That the (i) Iſtmian Games were celebrated among the Corinthians, and therefore the Apoſtle ſpeaks thus to them, Know ye not?

2*ly*, That of the five Games there uſed, the Apoſtle alludes only to two or three, Running, v. 24, 26. Wreſtling, v.25. Cuffing, v. 26, 27.

3*ly*, That he who won the Race by Running, was to obſerve the Laws of Racing, keeping within the white Line, which mark'd out the Path, or Compaſs in which they were to run, and was alſo to outrun the reſt, and come firſt to the Goal, otherwiſe he ran uncertainly, v. 24, 26. and was ἀδόκιμος, one to whom the Prize would not be adjudged by the βραβεῦαι, or Judges of the Games.

4*ly*, That the Athletæ Combatants, or Wreſtlers, obſerved (k) a ſet Diet, both for the Quantity and Quality of their Meat, and carefully abſtained from all things that might render them leſs able for the Combat, whence they are here ſaid to be temperate in all things, v.25.

CHAPTER X.

Verse 1. MOreover, Brethren, [to make you the more diligent in running the Christian Race, and to avoid those sins which will cause you to fail of the Prize you run for, I shall lay before you the Case of the Israelites, your Fore-runners, shewing what Privileges, and what Advantages they had, and by what Means most of them so unhappily miscarried: For to begin with their Privileges;] I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our Fathers, [the Church of Israel,] [a] were under [the protection of] the Cloud, and all passed through the Sea:

2. And [so] were all baptized into [the Covenant made with God, and the Doctrine taught by] Moses in the Cloud, and in the Sea.

3. And did all eat [b] the same spiritual meat, [that Manna which was a Type of Christ, the true Bread which came down from Heaven, John 6.]

4. And did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual rock that followed them, and that rock was Christ; [as typifying him, and the spiritual waters to be received from him, John 7. 37, 39.]

5. But [notwithstanding these Privileges and Favours, common to them with us,] with many of them God was not well pleased, for they were overthrown [by him] in the wilderness, [Heb. 3. 17.]

6. Now these things were [c] our Examples, [who succeed them in like Privileges and Favours,] to the intent we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted [after flesh, when they had Manna, food sufficient for them, Num. 11. 4.]

7. Neither by ye Idolaters, [by eating things offered to Idols, and partaking of the Table of Devils,] as were some of them; as it is written, [d] The people sat down to eat and drink [of the Sacrifices offered to the Golden Calf,] and [e] rose up to play.

8. [f] Neither let us commit fornication as some of them committed [fornication, at the Sacrifices of Baal Peor, Numb. 25. 16, 17, 18.] and [upon that account there] fell in one day [g] three and twenty thousand [of them.]

9. Neither let us tempt [h] Christ [our Lord,] as some of them also tempted [him,] and were destroyed of Serpents, [Numb. 21. 5, 6.]

10. Neither murmur ye, as some of them also murmured, [Numb. 14. 2.] and were destroyed [i] of the destroyer, [v. 37.]

11. Now all these things hapned to them for examples [to Posterity,] and they are written for our admonition, [k] upon whom the ends of the world, [the last of Ages, or the Christian Age,] are come.

12. Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, [and is in high favour with God, as they once were, and still think they are,] take heed lest he fall.

13. [And whereas the great inducement to symbolize with Jew or Gentile in their Rites is this that you may avoid Persecutions, you have no cause to doubt of Christ's Protection under them, for he hath so preserved you hitherto, that] there hath no temptation taken you, but such as is common to man [ἀνθρώπινος, supportable by the strength and resolution of a man,] but [moreover] God is faithful, [l] who will not suffer you to be tempted [at any time,] above that you are able, but will with the temptation also make a way [so far] to escape [it,] that you may be able to bear it.

14. Wherefore, my dearly beloved, flee from [the] Idolatry, [committed by the Participation of things offered to Idols in the Idol Temple.]

15. I speak as to wise men, [in what I am now offering to shew the idolatry of this practice;] judge ye [the reasonableness of] what I say.

16. [m] The cup of blessing which we bless, [or receive with thanksgiving to God for it,] is it not the [n] communion of the blood of Christ? [or that Rite by which we

Chriſtians do profeſs to hold Communion with, and own him as our Lord and Saviour, who ſhed his Blood for us?] the bread which we break, is it not [alſo] the communion of the body of Chriſt? [i. e. do we not by eating at his Table declare our fellowſhip with, and own him as our Lord, whoſe Body was thus broken for us?]

o 17. o For we being many are one bread, and one body; [or becauſe the bread is one, one Loaf being broken for us all, we who partake of it being many, are one Body, owning our ſelves thereby all Members of that Body of which Chriſt Jeſus is the Head;] for we are all partakers of that one bread; [and thus you ſee that, by partaking of this Chriſtian Sacrifice, we own our ſelves to have Communion with the Lord Jeſus, and with the whole Society of Chriſtians.]

18. Behold Iſrael after the fleſh, [and ſee if it be not ſo there alſo, for] are not they who eat of the Sacrifices, [the Peace-offerings, for of theſe only did the Peo- p ple eat,] p partakers of the Altar, [and ſo hold communion with him whoſe Altar it is?]

19. What ſay I then? [i. e. what need I then to ſay?] that the Idol is any thing, or that which is offered in ſacrifice to Idols is any thing, [which can of its own nature pollute?]

20. But [this] I ſay, that the things which q the Gentiles ſacrifice, they ſacrifice q to Devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye ſhould have fellowſhip with Devils, [or do ſervice to them, by partaking of things offered to them in the Idol Temples; for]

21. You cannot drink the Cup of the Lord, [and thereby declare your fellowſhip with him, and that you own him as your Lord, in oppoſition to all others,] and [yet drink] the Cup of Devils, [and ſo make the like acknowledgment concerning them;] ye cannot be r partakers of the Lord's Table, and r the Table of Devils.

22. Do we provoke the Lord to jealouſie? [by bringing Devils into competition with him;] are we ſtronger then he? [ſo that we need not fear the Puniſhments he may inflict on them who give his honour to another.]

23. [And whereas you plead thus for your ſelves;] All things are lawful for me, [i.e. all Meats may lawfully be eaten; be it ſo;] but [yet] all [lawful] things are not expedient [to be done;] all things are lawful for me, but all things edifie not, [as Charity doth, Chap. 8. 1.]

24. [For the Rule of Charity is this:] Let no man ſeek his own [only,] but every man another's wealth, [preferring the publick to his private good, and the good of Souls to that of his own Body.]

25. [Concerning then the eating of things offered to Idols in the general, and without relation to the Idol Temple, in which to eat them is Idolatry, I thus determine:] Whatſoever is ſold in the Shambles that eat [ye,] asking no queſtion for conſcience ſake, [as if you thought it matter of Conſcience, whether you might eat it, if offered to Idols, or not.]

26. For the Earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof, [and therefore you may eat of any Creature the Earth provideth for your food, without ſcruple of Conſcience, when others are not ſcandalized at it.]

27. [And again I ſay,] If any of them that believe not, bid [or invite] you to a feaſt, and you be diſpoſed to go, s whatſo- s ever is ſet before you, eat, asking no queſtion for conſcience ſake;

28. But if any man ſay unto you, This is offered in Sacrifice to Idols, [thinking that by thus partaking in ſuch Meat, you own the Idol, or concur in the Worſhip of it,] eat not for his ſake that ſhewed it, and for conſcience ſake; for the Earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof; [who therefore can repleniſh thee out of other Meats provided for thy food.]

29. Conſcience I ſay, [meaning] not thy own, but [that] of the other's, [who ſhewed thee this was offered to Idols;] for why is my liberty [ſo uſed by me as that I be] judged of, [and condemned by] another man's conſcience?

30. For if I by grace be a partaker [of God's good Creatures,] t why [do I uſe them t ſo as that] I am evil ſpoken of [by others] for that for which I give thanks [becauſe of benefit received by it?]

31. Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatever ye do, u do all to the glory of u God.

32. Give x no offence, neither to the [un- x believing] Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the [weak Members of the] Church of God.

33. [But walk] even as I [do, who] pleaſe all men in all [lawful] things, not ſeeking my own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be ſaved.

Annotations on Chap. X.

a Verse 1. Ὑπὸ τ νεφέλαν ἦσαν, were under the Cloud.] To understand the Allusion here, note, That to be under the Cloud, is to be under the Protection or Covert of the Cloud. For the Cloud of Glory, saith the (a) Tradition of the Jews, signified the Care and Providence of God, and his Presence with them day and night; and that accordingly it compassed their Camp, as a Wall doth a City. And therefore of the Feast of Tabernacles, which in the Hebrew is חג הסכות the Feast of Coverings, the (b) Jews say it was especially appointed to admonish them of the Divine Protection exhibited to them by the Cloud. And the Chaldy Paraphrast saith this Feast was instituted, that their Posterity might know that I made the Children of Israel to dwell under the shadow of the Cloud. And therefore (c) Philo styles it σκεπαστήριον a Covering. And so the Psalmist represents it, when he says, He spread out the Cloud for a covering to them, and a Fire to enlighten them by Night, Psal. 105. 39. And the Prophet, when he says, The Lord will create upon every dwelling place of Mount Zion, and upon her Assemblies a Cloud, and Smoke by day, and the shining of flaming Fire by night, for upon all their Glory shall be a Covering, Isa. 4. 5, 6. Πάντα τὸν περικύκλω αὐτῆς σκιάσει ἡ νεφέλη, the Cloud shall overshadow all her Circuits, saith the Septuagint. He was to them as a covering by day, and a light of Stars in the night-season, saith the Book of Wisdom, Chap. 10. 17. By these things Mr. Cl. may see we have good warrant for saying, The Cloud was a covering to them, and that they were under the Cloud, because it was over them; not only because it went before them, which indeed is a greater impropriety, than that which he charges upon others, that being indeed none at all; for what hinders the same Cloud from being at one time contracted into the figure of a Pillar, and at another expanded as a Covering? for do we not read that the Cloud covered the Mount, Exod. 24. 15. that it covered the Seat of the Congregation, Exod. 40. 34. that it covered the Tabernacle, Numb. 9. 15, 16. The Learned Bishop of Ely notes, that there were three several uses of the Cloud, (1.) To guide them in their Journeys, and this it did as a Pillar going before them. (2.) To preserve them from the heat of the Sun in the Wilderness; and then it was spread out as a Covering, Psal. 105. 39. and was a Cloud shadowing the Camp, Wisd. 19. 7. (3.) To defend them from their Enemies, that they might not assault them; and so it stood betwixt the whole Host of Israel and the Egyptians, and was a Cloud of Darkness to the latter, so that they came not near the Israelites, Exod. 14. 20. it therefore must be large enough to darken their whole Camp.

2*ly*, That they all passed through the Sea, so as to come to the opposite Shore, saith (d) Josephus; they went through it, saith (e) St. Paul elsewhere; through the middle of it, say the (f) Septuagint. I confess the Rabbins and many Commentators say, they only fetch'd a Compass like to an Half-Circle in the Sea, and came out again on the same side; because before they entred into the Sea, they were in the Edge of the Wilderness of Ætham, Num. 33. 6. And after they had passed the Sea, they go three days journey in the Wilderness of Ætham, Exod. 15. 22. But to this it is answered, that the Wilderness on each part of that Arm of the Sea, was called the Wilderness of Ætham, and beyond the Red Sea was the same with Shur, Exod. 15. 22. for the Hebrew word קצה which we render edge, is by the Septuagint forty times rendred μέρος, a part. And here, say they, they came to Butham, ὅ ἐστι μέρος τ τ ἐρήμου, which is some part of the Wilderness, Numb. 33. 6. intimating that beyond the Sea there was another part of the same Wilderness.

3*ly*, They were baptized into Moses in the Cloud.] i. e. into the Doctrine taught by Moses; for the Cloud was not only for Direction, but for a Covering over them; according to the words of the Psalmist, He spread out the Cloud for a covering, Ps. 135. 39.

And in the Sea.] For they were covered with the Sea on both sides, Exod. 14. 22. So that both the Cloud and the Sea had some resemblance to our being covered with Water in Baptism; their going into the Sea resembled the ancient Rite of going into the Water, and their coming out of it, their Rising up out of the Water. And this the (g) Jews do so far own, that they say they were baptized in the Deſart, and admitted into Covenant with God before the Law was given.

Note, Fourthly, that the Cloud had a bright ſhining ſide, as well as a dark ſide; ſo that their Baptiſm in the Sea, anſwered to that of Water; and their Baptiſm in the Cloud, to Baptiſm by Fire, or by the Holy Ghoſt; which, ſay the (h) Jews, was repreſented by the Schechinah, or the Cloud of Glory.

b Ver. 3. Τὸ αὐτὸ βρῶμα, τὸ αὐτὸ πόμα, the ſame meat and the ſame drink.] For though ſome Manuſcripts omit τὸ αὐτὸ, the ſame, in both theſe Verſes, yet is that word to be retained in both places; for ſo read (i) Irenæus and all the Greek Expoſitors. And whereas Eſthius interprets the words thus, They ate the ſame among themſelves, not the ſame with us; this Expoſition is contrary, not only to what (k) St. Auſtin and all the Greek Fathers teach; but alſo to the Scope of the Apoſtle, which is to ſhew that they had the like Spiritual Advantages and Privileges with us, which yet he doth not do, unleſs their Spiritual Meat and Drink ſignified, or typified to them Chriſt, as ours doth to us; that all of them were not Believers in Chriſt by Faith, but ſome of them were Unbelievers, is no objection againſt this ſenſe; for ſo it is with Chriſtians now; the Wicked not partaking of the Benefit of Chriſt by Faith, as the Fathers ſpeak, tho' they receive the Sacrament of his Body and Blood with their Mouths.

Note alſo, That St. Paul repreſents Manna as Spiritual Food; and the Rock as being Spiritual, and affording them Spiritual Drink, agreeably to the Deſcants of the Jews: For Manna, ſaith (l) Philo, is the Food of the Soul; it ſignifies the Law of God, and the Divine Logos, whence all permanent Inſtruction and Knowledge flows. And this is the Heavenly Food, of which Moſes in the Perſon of God ſpeaketh, ſaying, Behold, I rain down for you Bread from Heaven. The Food of the Soul, ſaith the ſame Philo, is heavenly, not earthly, as the Holy Scripture teſtifieth, ſaying, I rain down for you Bread from Heaven. He calls the (m) Manna put into the Ark, ἡ ὑρανία καὶ θεία τροφὴ τὸ μνημεῖον, the Memorial of the Divine and Heavenly Food; and ſaith that (n) Manna is the Divine Logos, the Cœleſtial and Incorruptible Nouriſhment of a Soul deſirous of Knowledge. The Jews alſo declare that (o) Manna was a Type of the Eternal Happineſs of Man; that it had its riſe from Heaven, and thence deſcended on the Earth, by opening the Gates of Heaven; that it is the Divine Light incorporated, the Splendor of the Glory of the Majeſty of God; the Bread of which Angels feed, and by which the Sons of the World to come are to ſubſiſt. And with theſe Repreſentations of it agree the words of the Apoſtle, ſaying, the Jews by eating of it did eat τὸ αὐτὸ βρῶμα πνευματικὸν the ſame Spiritual Food with us. But here Mr. Cl. ſaith, 'The word πνευματικὸς, 'Spiritual, is here oppoſed to φυσικὸς, Natu- 'ral, not to σωματικὸς, Corporeal; for Man- 'na was a Corporeal Food, which could not be 'Spiritual in any other reſpect, than as it 'was prepared, not by Senſible Cauſes, but 'by Spirits, viz. Angels, whoſe Bread there- 'fore it is ſaid to be, Pſal. 78. 2. I anſwer, here is nothing true, or at leaſt nothing certain: For (1.) the Chaldee Paraphraſt ſaith, it is called the Bread of Angels in the Pſalmiſt, becauſe it came from Heaven, the Habitation of the Angels, as the Pſalmiſt himſelf interprets it, ſaying, He opened the Gates of Heaven, he rained upon them Manna for to eat, and gave them Bread from Heaven; Bread of the Mighty did Man eat. (2.) Why doth he ſay, It could not be called Spiritual Food in any other ſenſe, then as it was prepared by Spirits? Is it becauſe it was Corporeal Food? and might it not be alſo the Food of the Soul? Are not Bread and Wine Corporeal Food? And yet may they not be alſo Spiritual Food? Yea, doth not the Apoſtle's Argument plainly require that the Manna ſhould be Spiritual? for how alſo did they eat the ſame Spiritual Food with us? And (3.) how abſurd is it to ſay, it is called Spiritual Food becauſe prepared by Spirits? Can he give one Inſtance of any Corporeal thing called Spiritual upon that account? was it not ſpiritual meat, as the water iſſuing from the Rock was ſpiritual drink, and was that ſo becauſe prepared by Spirits?

And this Rock was Christ.] i.e. It typified Christ; for as the Rock, being smitten, gave forth Waters, so our Lord being smitten, Water came forth out of his side; and the Holy Ghost, signified by this Effusion of Waters from the Rock, was poured forth as a River. By the solid Rock, saith (p) Philo, Moses understands the Wisdom of God, which is the Nurse, and the Instructor of all that desire the Incorruptible Life. He by a synominous word calls the Rock Manna, that is, the most Ancient of Beings, the Divine Logos. And again, The Rock cleft in the Top, is the Wisdom of which he makes the Souls that love him to drink; and being thus made to drink, they are also filled with the Universal Manna; for Manna is called π, which is the Progeny of all Things. Now the most General Cause of all Things is God, and the second the Word of God. By these things Mr. Cl. may be convinced, that the Jews might understand these Types by Tradition; and seeing them thus accomplished, might be induced to believe. And as for Christians, the Apostle here shews the influence they ought to have on them, viz. to preserve them from the like Offences, lest they became subject to the like Judgments to which the Jews were obnoxious, v. 5, 6. But Mr. Cl. denies that the words bear this sense, The Rock signified Christ, or represented him; and saith the import of these words, that Rock was Christ, is only this, That which may be said of that Rock in a carnal sense, may in a spiritual be affirmed of Christ: which is to expound the Apostle as speaking thus, They all drank the same spiritual drink, for they drank of the Rock that followed them: Now what may be said of that Rock in a carnal sense, may be said of Christ in a spiritual, i. e. they all drank the same spiritual drink, because they drank what was carnal. Moreover, we find many Phrases of the like nature, both in the Old and the New Testament; as when 'tis said, The three branches are three days; the seven kine, and seven ears of corn, are seven years; the four great beasts are four kingdoms; thou art the Golden Head; the Seed is the Word, the Field is the World, the Reapers are the Angels, the Harvest is the End of the World; the Heir is Jerusalem; this Bread is my Body, this Cup is my Blood. Now, in all these Instances, doth not is, import typifies, signifies, represents? why therefore should it not do so in the like Proposition, this Rock is Christ? Or what one Instance can Mr. Cl. produce, that any thing was ever said to be another thing, because what might be said of it in a carnal sense, might in a spiritual sense be said of the other? And is it not sufficient Prejudice against this παρερμηνεία, or uncouth Interpretation, that it hath no parallel Example? whereas our Exposition is confirmed from numerous Examples of like nature.

Ver. 6. Τύποι ἡμῶν, our Examples.] The Examples he here puts, saith Theodoret, exactly answer to the Sins of the Corinthians; for as the Jews lusted to eat flesh, so the Corinthians lusted to eat things offered to Idols, when they had other Meat provided plentifully by God for them; for the earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof, v. 28. c

Ver. 7. Ἐκάθισεν ὁ λαὸς φαγεῖν, &c. the people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.] When the Heathens had offered upon the Altar, and consumed that part which belonged to the God they worshipped, they banquetted in the Idol Temple upon the Remains, and so did Epulis accumbere divum, as (q) Virgil speaks, at long Tables prepared for that purpose, whence this is by the Apostle called partaking of the Table of Devils; and used very appositely, say the Fathers, to convince the Corinthians, that by eating Things offered to the Idols in the Idol Temple, they must be guilty of Heathenish Idolatry. d

Ibid. Rose up to play.] Here almost all the Criticks observe, That παίζειν, to play, bears an impure sense, importing their Fornication with one another; as when we say, such a one hath played the whore; but this Criticism seems here to be without foundation: For (1.) the Scripture often mentions their Idolatry, but never charges them with Whoredom then committed when they made the Golden Calf; all that God himself charges upon them is, that they had made them a molten Calf, and had worshipped and sacrificed to it, and said, these be thy Gods, Exod. 32. 8, 35. Neh. 9. 18. Psal. 106. 19, 20. Acts 7. 41. (2.) The Apostle speaks of Whoredom in the Verse following, as a distinct Sin, and therefore cannot reasonably be supposed to charge them with it here. e

(3.) The Exposition of the Ancients, that they rose up to Dance before the Calf, is confirmed by these words, and when Moses saw the Calf, and the dancing, he was wrath, Exod. 22. 19. And because this was done after the manner of the (r) Heathens, and was one of the Rites by which they honoured their Gods, the Apostle useth it as a Confirmation of their Idolatry. And this is all the Fathers seem to mean by saying, That to play, is used ἀντὶ τῦ εἰδωλολατρεύειν for committing Idolatry; and the Jerusalem Targum when it saith, they did ludere cultu Peregrino, play after the Heathen manner.

f Ver. 8. Μηδὲ πορνεύωμεν, neither let us commit fornication as some of them committed.] How prone the Christians of the Church of Corinth were to this sin, which made the Heathen Corinth infamous to a Proverb, we learn from these words of the Apostle, I fear when I come, I shall bewail many who have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness and fornication, and lasciviousness which they have committed, 2 Cor. 12. 23. See 1 Cor. 3. 16, 17. & 5. 11. & 6. 9, 13, 15, 16.

g Ibid. Εἰκοσιτρεῖς χιλιάδες, three and twenty thousand.] The number of the slain was Four and twenty thousand, Numb. 25. 9. and so Oecumenius saith some Ancient Copies read here; but of this Number One thousand was slain by the Judges, and that probably the day before the Plague; Three and twenty thousand by the immediate hand of God. Now the design of the Apostle here is only to mention them who fell in one day by the hand of God. See Bochart. Hieroz. l. 2. c. 34.

h Ver. 9. Τὸν Χριστὸν, Christ.] This Reading ought not to be questioned, for we find it not only in Hilary the Deacon, St. Chrysostom, Oecumenius, Theophylact, but in (s) Irenæus. Hence Primasius of old proved the Divinity of Christ, as being that God whom they tempted, Psal. 106. 14. and others his Præexistence before the Birth of the Blessed Virgin against the Socinians.

i Ver. 10. Ὑπὸ τῦ ὀλοθρευτῦ, of the Destroyer.] i.e. By a Plague sent by the hand of Samael, the Angel of Death, called ὀλοθρεύων, the Destroyer, Heb. 11. 28. Wisd. 18. 25. and him that had the Power of Death, Heb. 2. 14. Now the Corinthians murmured, saith Theodoret, because some of them had received only inferiour Gifts; say others, by reason of the Persecutions they suffered for the Christian Faith.

k Ver. 11. Τὰ τέλη τῶν αἰώνων, the end of the Ages.] This Phrase either signifies the End of the Jewish Age, as if the Apostle did intend to say, These things which hapned in the beginning of the Jewish Age, were recorded for Caution and Example to us, who are come to the Conclusion of it; or the last of the Ages of the World, i.e. the Christian Age; for the Jews, according to the Tradition of Elias, divide the Duration of the World into three Ages; The Age before the Law, the Age of the Law, and the Age after the Law, or that of the Messiah. Talmud. in Sanhedr. cap. Chelek.

l Ver. 13. Ὃς οὐκ ἐάσει ὑμᾶς, who will not suffer you.] i. e. Any of you, who do what in you lyes to arm your selves against them, to be tempted above what you are able, this therefore ought not to be restrained to the Elect; for the preceding words, no temptation hath hapned to you, are spoken to all the Members of the Church of Corinth; and God hath doubtless engaged to all that enter into Covenant with him, to enable them to perform the Condition of that Covenant; since a Covenant upon an impossible Condition, he knows, cannot be performed; and all are bound to pray in Faith, that God would not suffer them to be tempted above what they are able, by his strength, to bear.

m Ver. 16. Τὸ ποτήριον τῆς εὐλογίας, the Cup of Blessing.] The Paschal Cup being stiled by the Jews the Cup of Blessing, because they sanctified it, i. e. they gave thanks for it in these words, Blessed be thou, O Lord our God, the King of the World, who hast created the Fruit of the Vine; and being also stiled the Cup of Blessing of the Table, it cannot reasonably be doubted that the Eucharistical Cup was so called, for the same reason, and that it was Sanctified, or consecrated by Thanksgiving, to God for it.

n Ibid. Κοινωνία, the Communion.] This word Communion hath two significations; (1.) When the Subject spoken of may be distributed into parts, so that each Man may have a share of it, it denotes a Distribution and Communication of those Parts to the Community, or Body mentioned. Thus in the Case of Alms, seeing there is a distribution of our Substance to those that want, this is in Scripture stiled κοινωνία, and is sometimes rendred Contribution, Rom. 15. 26. sometimes Distribution, 2 Cor. 9. 13. Heb. 13. 16. and since there were διαιρέσεις Divisions and Diversities of Gifts, Ministrations and Operations vouchsafed to the Church; all which the Holy Spirit wrought, dividing to every Member of it severally as he would, 2 Cor. 12. 11. The giving these Gifts and several Operations to them, is called the Communion of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 13. 13. Phil. 2. 1. Thus because one consecrated Loaf was anciently distributed among all the Communicants, and they all drank their share of the same Cup of Blessing, therefore the Bread thus broken, and shared out, may be said to be the Communion, or Communication of the Body of Christ, as being the Communication of the Bread which represented his broken Body; and the Cup they severally drank of, may be stiled the Communication of the Blood of Christ, as being the Communication of that Wine which represented his Blood shed; and to this import lead the following words, because the Bread or Loaf is one, of which we all partake, we being many are one Body, for we are all partakers of one Loaf, according to the old Proverbial Expression εἷς ἄρτος καὶ εἷς σῶμα.

But where the Subject mentioned is not capable of such Division, or Distribution, but every one is to have the whole, or the same with another, it imports a Fellowship and Communion in the same thing; in which sense we are said to be called by God εἰς κοινωνίαν to the Fellowship of his Son, 1 Cor. 1. 9. to have κοινωνίαν a Fellowship in his Sufferings, to have κοινωνίαν Communion with God the Father, and the Son, 1 John 1. 5. and in the Apostle's Symbol, to believe the Communion of Saints; and in this import of the word the sense runs thus, Do we not by partaking of this Bread and Wine, consecrated in Memorial of Christ, giving his Body broken, and his Blood shed for us, hold Communion, or declare our Fellowship with Christ? Both these senses seem agreeable to the Scope of the Apostle, and the first infers the second.

o Ver. 17. Ὅτι εἷς ἄρτος, ἓν σῶμα οἱ πολλοί ἐσμεν, because the Bread is one, we being many are one Body.] These words, the Bread which we break, the Loaf or Bread is one, and we all partake of one Loaf, and therefore are one Body, shew how grosly the Church of Rome hath varied from Christ's Institution, in distributing to the Communicants severally an unbroken Wafer, so that they neither are Partakers of one Bread, or Loaf, or of Bread broken, as the Custom both of Jews and Christians was to do. It also deserves to be noted from the Testimonies of (t) Jamblicus and (u) Laertius, that anciently this was a Token of Friendship; and that Pythagoras forbad his Scholars ἄρτον κλᾶγνυεν to break their Bread, because that was not to be broken which made Friendship.

Ver. 18. Κοινωνοὶ τῷ θυσιαστηρίῳ, partakers of the Altar.] i. e. Do they not by Partaking of the Gift consecrated by the Altar, and of which one Part is consumed upon it, partake with the Altar, and own that they Communicate with, and Worship that God at whose Altar or Table the Meat was offered in honour of him? Mal. 1. 7. For as swearing by the Altar, is swearing also by him whose Altar it is, Matth. 23. 20. so having communion with the Altar, is having communion with him whose Altar it is. To illustrate this let it be noted, (1.) That in these שלמים or Peace-offerings, there was a threefold Participation; 1. God had his part offer'd him upon his Altar, viz. the Blood, and the Entrails; part was given to the Priest, viz. the Breast and the Shoulder, and part to the Offerer, viz. the Skin, and the rest of the Flesh; and this in token, say the Jews, of Friendship and Communion of the Party offering them, with God, and the Priest. And he by eating the Remainder, and feasting on it in the Temple, or the Holy City, became partaker with the Altar, or with God, who had received his share upon the Altar. Note (2.) that these Peace-offerings were offered either by way of Thansgiving for Mercies obtained, or by way of Vow, or of free Devotion; for this Division of Peace-offerings we find Lev. 7. Moreover, these being offered to the God of Israel, signified the owning him as that God from whom they received and expected all their Mercies. p

Ver. 20. Δαιμονίοις, to Devils.] Here Mr. Cl. saith, the word δαιμόνιον doth not necessarily signifie Devils or Evil Spirits; for the Heathens did not always sacrifice to evil Spirits, if we consider what were their true thoughts. But the Wisdom of God did not think fit to consider the Speculations of some of their Philosophers; but what was indeed their Practice, and what the Objects, and Directors of their Worship, were, and who was gratified by it; they pretended to own a Supreme Deity; but the Spirits which spake in the Oracles they consulted, which moved their Idols, and resided in them, and set up, and promoted their whole Idolatrous Worship, were doubtless evil Spirits, and so the Primitive Christians engaged to force them to (w) confess themselves to be, even before them who paid homage to them. ling down of this Idolatrous Worship is in our Saviour's Language, the casting out of the Prince of this World, John 12. 31. & 16. 11. The converting the Gentiles from this Idolatry to the Worship of the True God, is the turning them from the power of Satan unto God, Acts 26. 18. the delivering them from the power of darkness, Colos. 1. 13. who before walked according to the Prince of the Power of Darkness, Eph. 2. 2. and were led captive by Satan at his Will, 2 Tim. 2. 26. The Psalmist, according to the Septuagint, saith, ὅτι πάντες οἱ θεοὶ τῶν ἐθνῶν δαιμόνια, that all the Gods of the Heathens are Devils, Psal. 96. 5. And of the Jews who sacrificed to them, it is said they sacrificed to Devils, and not to God, Leshuddim, to evil, wasting, and destroying Spirits; the Jews said the same of the Gentiles, that they were θύσασιν δαιμονίοις sacrificing to Devils, and not to God, Baruc 4. 7. And so they are also stiled 2 Chron. 11. 15. Rev. 9. 20. And so all Christians ever did expound this place, and with good reason, it being absurd to think St. Paul is here dissuading Christians from having fellowship with good Angels.

t Ver. 21. Καὶ τραπέζης δαιμονίων, and of the Table of Devils.] This being the design of the Apostle, to shew that the Corinthians could not partake of the Idol Sacrifices in the Idol Temples, without being κοινωνοὶ τῶν δαιμονίων, Men who held communion with Devils; and the proof of this being taken from the Practice of Christians in partaking of the Eucharist, and of the Jews in partaking of Sacrifices offered at the Altar, it is evident that the sixteenth Verse must be interpreted suitably to this design; and so as to be a fit Medium to prove this Conclusion. 'Tis therefore evident,

1*st*, That κοινωνία, Communion, cannot here signifie the Real and Substantial Communication of the Body and the Blood of Christ, since that sense renders the Apostle's Argument infirm; for how doth it hence follow, that because Christians eat substantially the Body, and drink the Blood of Christ, therefore they who eat of the Idol Sacrifices are guilty of Idolatry, and hold communion with Devils? Moreover, the eating of things offered to Idols, could not in this sense make them that did it, Communicators of Devils, for sure they did not eat of the Substance of the Devils. This therefore cannot be the import of the words. Nor

2*ly*, Can the sense of them be to this effect; the Cup and Bread communicate to us the Spiritual Effects of Christ's broken Body, or his Blood shed for us; though this be in it self a certain Truth. For

1. These Spiritual Effects cannot be shared among Believers, so that every one shall have a part of them only; but the same Benefits are wholly communicated to every due Receiver. See Note on v. 16.

2. The Apostle here attempts to prove, not that the Corinthians, by eating things offered to Idols in the Idol Temple, received any Spiritual Influence from Devils, but only that, by that Action, they did partake of what was offered to them, and was a solemn part of their Religious Worship, as the eating these Sacrifices was still reputed, so that by it they must own themselves to be Worshippers of Idols, and then, by parity of Reason, he must by the Example of the Eucharist, intend to prove, not that the Christian did partake of the Spiritual Effects of our Lord's Passion; but that he did partake of what was consecrated in honour of him, and received as a Solemn Act of Religious Worship, and Communion with him. And this appears yet farther from the words which the Apostle useth, as the close of this Argument, and as the thing which answers to the two preceding Instances; for they do not run thus, By the things which the Gentiles offer they receive spiritual Influences from evil Spirits; but thus, this I say, to compleat this Argument, and to render the Sacrifice offered to Idols parallel to those of Christians, and of Jews, that as these are offered to the honour of Christ, and of the God of Israel, so the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to Devils, and I would not that ye should be partakers with Devils, viz. by feasting of the Sacrifices thus offered to them, and of which the Devils had a part; and that it was by the Act of Eating and Drinking of these Idol Sacrifices, that they became partakers of the Cup and Table of Devils, and thereby guilty of Idolatry, as the (x) Fathers declare; so it is evident from these words, ye cannot drink the Cup of the Lord, and the Cup of Devils; ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's Table, and the Table of Devils; it was therefore by these Actions that they held communion with them, and committed Idolatry.

Ver. 27. Πᾶν τὸ προτιθέμενον ὑμῖν ἐσθίετε, s whatsoever is set before you eat.] The Apostle had before discoursed of eating things offered to Idols in the Idol Temple, and shew'd (1.) The Scandal it might give to the weak Gentile Christian: And (2.) that it was indeed an Idolatrous Action: Here he begins his Discourse of eating at all, things offered to Idols, with respect chiefly to the weak Jewish Convert. And (1.) whereas by their Canons (y) an Idol, and all things appertaining to it, and whatever was offered to it, was wholly forbidden, the Rabbins pronouncing the eating, or possessing any thing of it forbidden, in these words, Thou shalt not bring an Abomination into thine House, Deut. 7. 26. the Apostle relieves the Conscience of the Christian in this case, letting him know that he might eat these things, when sold in the Shambles, without scruple of Conscience, v. 25. (2.) Whereas their Canons teach, That (z) if an Heathen make a Banquet for his Son or Daughter, a Jew is forbidden to eat of his Meat, because he is forbidden, if called, to eat of his Sacrifice, Exod. 34. 15. the Apostle exempts the Conscience of the Christian from this Obligation also, v. 27.

t Ver. 30. Τί βλασφημοῦμαι; why am I evil spoken of?] This is the Exposition of all the Greek Scholiasts, and it is confirmed by the parallel place, Let not your good be evil spoken of, Rom. 14. 16. i. e. let not your Faith, or the Liberty you take by reason of it, be used so as to minister occasion to others to speak evil of that Faith, as the Jews did of Christianity upon occasion of this Liberty; for they held the eating of things offered to Idols to be (a) Idolatry, and pronounced all Idolaters to be Apostates from the Law, and the Prophets; and this was one of their great Objections against Christians, (b) that they did eat things offered to Idols, and thought not themselves defiled by doing so; though in truth this was done chiefly by the Hereticks of those times, the (c) Nicolaitans, the (d) Gnosticks, the Followers of Basilides; but the True Christians, saith (e) Justin Martyr, will rather suffer death, than be guilty of Idolatry, or eating things offered to Idols.

Ver. 31. Πάντα εἰς δόξαν Θεοῦ ποιεῖτε, do all to the glory of God.] In things capable of honouring God positively, or proper to give glory to him, have always a general Intention of glorifying God in the doing of them, that in the virtue of that Intention you may proceed to particular Actions. u

In things not capable of honouring God positively, be careful that you act so, that the Name of God be not blasphemed, or his Doctrine evil thought, or evil spoken of by reason of your Actions. Yea do, and abstain from all things so, as to satisfie your own Conscience, and discover to others, that the honour of God, and the advancement of the Interests of his Kingdom, are much dearer to you than any Gratifications of your Carnal Appetites, or any Temporal Concern.

Ver. 32. No Offence] As by thus eating things offered to Idols in the Idol Temple, or elsewhere, being thus admonished of it, v. 28. you are like to do; for the Jew will be apt hence to conclude, that Christianity renders you Enemies to the Law and the Prophets; the Gentiles, that your professed abhorrence of Idols is not real; and that the Practice in which you comply with them, is not sinful; and the weak Christian will be tempted, by your Example, to eat these things with Conscience of the Idol, Chap. 8. 7. or to fly off from the Christian Faith. x

CHAPTER XI.

Verse 1. BE ye [therefore] followers of me, [in this Condescension for the good of others,] as I also am of Christ [in it, Rom. 15. 2, 3. Gal. 6. 2. Philip. 2. 5, 6. 2 Cor. 8. 9.]

2. Now I praise you Brethren, that you remember me in all things [I have taught you,] a and keep the Ordinances, [Gr. Traditions,] as I delivered them to you. a

3. But [I must further advertise you of some things which I had no occasion, when present, to take notice of, and therefore] I would have you know, that the head of every man is Christ, and the head of the woman is the Man, b and the head of Christ is God; [and so as Christ, as Mediator, acts in subordination to the Father, so must the Woman act in subordination to the Man.] b bears to God and Chriſt, for man ought not to cover his head, becauſe he is the Image and Glory of God, v. 7.]

5. But every woman that prayeth or pro-e phesieth e with her head uncovered, diſho-noureth [the man] her head, [whoſe glory ſhe is, as being put in ſubjection to him,] for that is even all one as if ſhe were ſhaved, [and ſo had removed the Token of Subjection to the Man, which Nature gave her.]

6. For if the woman be not covered, let her alſo be ſhorn; but if it be a ſhame for a woman to be ſhorn, or ſhaven, let her be covered. [See Note on v. 5.]

7. For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, [as a ſign of ſubjection,] foraſmuch
f as he is f the image and glory of God, [as having the government of the world committed by God to him;] but the woman [ought to cover her head, foraſmuch as ſhe] is the glory of the man, [as being taken from, made for him, and put into ſubjection to him.]

8. For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man.

9. Neither was the man created for the woman, but the woman for the man.

10. [Moreover,] For this cauſe ought the g woman to have g power, [a Veil] upon her head, becauſe of the [evil] Angels; [ſhe being tempted by the Prince of them to do that which is perpetual cauſe of ſhame to her, and which increaſed her ſubjection to the man, Gen. 3. 16. ought therefore to uſe this token of ſhamefacedneſs and ſubjection.]

11. Nevertheleſs, neither is the man without the woman, nor the woman without the man in the [wiſdom of] the Lord, [ordaining that one ſhould come out of the other.]

12. For as the woman is [taken out] of the man, even ſo is the man alſo [propagated] by the woman; but all [theſe] things [are] of God, [who made woman out of the man, and by his Benediction increaſeth men by the woman.]

13. Judge in your ſelves, is it comely that a woman pray [publickly] to God uncovered, [when God himſelf hath given her a covering by nature, to intimate to her, that ſhe ſhould be veil'd?]

h 14. h Doth not even Nature it ſelf, [which hath made man the image and glory of God, created him before the woman, and given him dominion over her,] teach you, that if a man have long hair, [the covering, and token of ſubjection of the other Sex,] it is a ſhame to him? [See Note on v. 5.]

15. But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her, [ſhe being fitted by it to repreſent the condition of her Sex,] for her hair is given her for a covering, [i. e. in token of ſubjection to her husband.]

16. But if, [after what hath been thus ſaid,] any man ſeem [ſtill] to be contentious, [I ſhall add only this, that] we have no ſuch cuſtom, i neither the Churches of God; i
[it being only cuſtomary in the Aſſemblies of Heathens for women to pay their Devotions to the Gods thus. See Note on v. 5.]

17. Now in this [other thing] that I [am about to] declare unto you, I praiſe you not [viz.] that you come together, [ſo as is] not for the better, but for the worſe.

18. For firſt of all, when you come together in the Church, I hear that there be k di- k viſions [Gr. Schiſms,] among you, and I partly believe it, [or I believe it true, κατὰ μέρος τι, of ſome part of you.]

19. l For [according to our Lord's ſaying, l
Matth. 18. 7.] there muſt be alſo Hereſies, [or Sects] among you, [the Fleſh, the World, and the Devil tempting to it, and the Wiſdom of God permitting it;] that they who are approved [of him] may be made manifeſt among you.

20. When you come together therefore [thus] to one place, this is not [acting as if you came] to eat the Lord's Supper, [the Feaſt of Chriſtian Charity and Communion.]

21. For in [your way of] eating, m every m one taketh before [the] other his own Supper, [not tarrying for, or regarding others, v. 33.] and [ſo it falls out that] one [who had nothing to bring] is [ſtill] hungry, n and n another [with his plenty] is drunken.

22. What, have ye not houſes to eat and to drink in [if need be before you come? v. 34.] or deſpiſe ye [thoſe poor Chriſtians who are Members of] the Church of God [as well as you?] and [put to] ſhame them that have not [what to eat, or drink?] what ſhall I ſay to you? ſhall I praiſe you in [doing] this? I praiſe you not.

23. [To come together thus, I ſay, is not to come as they ought to do, who aſſemble to eat the Lord's Supper;] For I have received of the Lord that which alſo I, [as I received,] delivered to you, that the Lord Jeſus the ſame night in which he was betrayed
o took bread; o

24. And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and ſaid [to them all,] Take, eat, this is my body which is broken for you, this do in remembrance of me, [giving my body to be broken for you all.]

Cup [i. e. the Wine contained in it,] is the [memorial of the] New Teſtament, [or Covenant ratified,] in my blood, this do ye as often as you drink it in remembrance of me, [confirming this Covenant with my blood.]

26. For as often as ye eat this Bread, and drink this Cup, ye do q ſhew, [by this me- q

s 28. But s let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that Bread, and drink of that Cup.

For he that eateth and drinketh t unworthily, [as they who make these Divisions, and Distinctions, and commit these Disorders, when they come together to eat the Lord's] u Supper, do,] eateth and drinketh u damnation [Gr. judgment] to himself, not discerning the Lord's Body, [to be given as an Indication of his equal kindness to all his Members, without any difference or distinction; and as a Symbol of their mutual Communion with one another, Chap. 10. 16, 17.]

30. For this cause, [the not discerning the Lord's Body, it is that] many are weak, and sickly among you, and many sleep.

31. For if we would [thus] judge [and discern] our selves, we should not be judged, [or thus punished by God.]

34. And if any man [pretend to do this out of] hunger, let him eat at home [before he come,] that you come not together to condemnation; and the rest will I set in order when I come; [or, as for the other things relating to this Ordinance, or your Letter, I will set them in order when I come.]

a Verse 2. "Ὅτι κατὰ πάντα μού μέμνησθε, καὶ καθὼς παρέδωκα ὑμῖν, τὰς παραδόσεις κατέχετε, that you keep the Traditions as I delivered them to you.] This Commendation must be restrained to the Generality, or founder Part of the Church of Corinth, or must be understood, as such general Expressions use to be, ὡς ἐπὶ τὸ πολύ, as for the most part, or excepting those few things in which afterwards I find reason to complain of your neglect, Chap. 15 3. and here v. 23.

Vain is the Note of Estbius on this Text, That it makes plainly for unwritten Traditions. For (1.) the word Tradition is common to things written and unwritten, to things delivered by word, and by Epistle, 2 Thess. 2. 15. The whole Christian Faith is a Tradition, Jude 3. the Doctrine of Christ's Death, Burial, and Resurrection is a Tradition, παρέδωκα γὰρ, for I deliverd to you these Doctrines, saith St. Paul, 1 Cor. 15. 3. and will the Romanists say that these things are not written in the New Testament? (2.) To prove Traditions extra scriptural, 'tis not sufficient to cite a passage out of Scripture speaking of Traditions not then writ by one Apostle, but it must be proved that these Traditions were neither then, when mentioned, in writing, nor afterwards committed to writing by himself, or any other inspired Person. (3.) The Traditions mentioned here, and 2 Thess. 2. 15. were Traditions immediately delivered to those Churches from the Mouth of an Apostle; and when the Romanists can make good this from like Authentick Testimony of any of their Fardle of Traditions, we shall be ready to receive them.

Ver. 3. Κεφαλὴ δὲ Χριστοῦ ὁ Θεὸς, and the Head of Christ is God] We are hence taught, saith Schlichtingius, that the Head of Christ is God, whereas the most High God can have no Head above him, so that Christ who hath this Head above him, cannot be most High. b

Answ. To this some of the Fathers answer, That God is here said to be the Head of Christ, as being the (a) Father of the Son, and so the Cause of him; but yet as the Woman is of the same Nature with the Man who is her Head, so is Christ of the same Nature with God the Father: They also add that the word Head is here used as a note of (b) Principality or Causality in the Father, but not of Subjection in the Son, which wholly enervates the Argument of Crellius from this place. And tho' the Schools seem not to allow of this Language, yet it is used by Irenæus in these words, (c) The Father is above all things, and he is the Head of Chriſt; The Word is through all things, and and he is the Head of the Church.

Others anſwer, That the Father is here ſtiled the Head of Chriſt, conſidered as Mediator, in which Relation he received his Kingdom and Dominion from him, John 17. 2. 1 Cor. 15. 27. Heb. 2. 8. and exerciſes it wholly to his glory, Philip. 2. 9, 10, 11. in which ſenſe the Father may be ſtiled his Head, becauſe he doth all things according to his Father's will, to his Glory, and by Authority derived from him: And this Interpretation is confirmed from thoſe words, the Head of every Man is Chriſt, he being Man's Head by virtue of the Power and Dominion given him over all Fleſh, Chap. 15. 27. John 17. 2. Eph. 1. 19. — 22. and that Power being given to the Man Chriſt Jeſus.

c Ver. 4. In the Church.] For that the Apoſtle ſpeaks not of Propheſying at home, as Mr. Cl. imagines, but in the Church, is evident from the Apoſtle's Argument, v. 16. againſt this Practice, in theſe words, We have no ſuch cuſtom, neither the Churches of God: His Argument to the contrary is anſwered in the Note on v. 6.

d Ibid. Τῶ κεφαλῶ ἀυτῦ, his Head.] That is (d) Chriſt; for (1.) he is the Head of the Man, v. 3. (2.) This ſeemeth moſt agreeable to the Reaſon aſſigned, why he ſhould be uncovered when he doth Service in the Church, viz. becauſe he is the Image, and the Glory of God. And (3.) did he diſhonour his own Head by covering it, he ought never to be covered; whereas if this only reſpects his Head Chriſt, whom he Repreſents in praying and propheſying in the Church, it is ſufficient that he is uncovered, when he thus acteth as his Miniſter. Laſtly, The Head the Woman diſhonoureth, is the Man, ſtiled her Head; and ſo the Head the Man diſhonoureth, is Chriſt, ſtiled his Head, v. 3.

e Ver. 5. Κατὰ κεφαλῆς ἔχων, with his head covered, ἀκαλυπτοκεφάλῳ τῇ κεφαλῇ, with her head uncovered.] For Explication of theſe words, let it be noted from [e] Theodoret, That the Men of Corinth, according to the Cuſtom of the Greeks, both wore long hair, and prayed to God with their heads covered in the Publick Aſſemblies. So alſo, ſaith (f) Plutarch, did the Romans; ſo ſaith (g) Lightfoot did the Jews; ſo did, ſaith (h) Servius, all that ſacrificed to any God, excepting Saturn. But the Heathen Woman paid her Devotion to the Gods, reſoluta comas ſeu capillos, with her hair looſe and hanging down; or in the language of the Poets, Crine jacente aut demiſſo. Note

2*ly*, That the Jews judged it τὸ αἰσχρὸν, a ſhameful and indecent thing for a Woman to be ſhaved, and permitted this only in the Caſe of (i) Whoredom, as a Token of their Shame. And among the Heathens it was indicium ultimi luctus, a token of the higheſt Grief. It is cuſtomary, ſaith (k) Plutarch, for Men to be ſhorn, and for Women to wear long hair, and therefore in times of mourning the Men let their hair grow, and the Women are ſhaved; this being contrary to cuſtom among the Greeks and Romans. It was alſo cuſtomary for the (l) Jewiſh Woman to go veil'd. Note

3*ly*, That the Apoſtle doth not here approve of the Woman's praying or propheſying in the Church, as is evident from 1 Cor. 14. 34. 1 Tim. 2. 11, 12. though here he ſays nothing to the contrary, as intending to rectifie that diſorder, when he ſpake of other Diſorders in the Caſe of Propheſying, Chap. 14. 34.

Ver. 7. Εἰκὼν καὶ δόξα Θεῦ, the image and glory of God.] True here is the Note of Theodoret, that Man is here ſtiled the Image and Glory of God, neither as to his Body, nor as to his Soul; for in reſpect of the Soul the Woman is equally the Glory of God, as to Spirituality and Immortality, and ſo is equally ſaid to be made after his Image, Gen. 1. 27. but κατὰ μόνον τὸ ἀρχικὸν, only as to Rule and Government, which is the proper glory of a man, according to the Pſalmiſt's words, Thou haſt crowned him δόξᾳ καὶ τιμῇ with glory and honour, and haſt ſet him over the works of thy hands, and haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet, Pſal. 8. 5, 6. f g Ver. 10. Ἐξουσίαν ἔχειν ἐπὶ τῆς κεφαλῆς διὰ τοὺς ἀγγέλους, a veil upon her head because of the Angels.] Here let it be noted, (1*st*,) That all the Ancient Interpreters agree in this, that ἐξουσία, which we render power, doth signifie a veil or covering, which being put over her head, compels her to hang down her Eyelids; and 'tis here, say they, called power, as being τὸ τῆς ἀνδρὸς ἐξουσίας καὶ κυριότητος ἐνδεικτικὸν, the token of the Power, and Dominion of the Man over her. Note

2*ly*, That the reading διὰ τὰ ἀγγελίας, by reason of her Revelations, as Mr. Cl. doth, instead of διὰ τοὺς ἀγγέλους, without consent of any Copy, or Version, is not to be endured. Moreover διὰ τὰ ἀγγελίας signifies barely by message, not by reason of her Revelations, that being properly in Greek, διὰ τὰ ἀγγελίας τὰ παρ' αὐτῆς. Note

3*ly*, That evil Angels are absolutely stiled Angels in these words of this Epistle, Know ye not that ye shall judge Angels, 1 Cor. 6. 3. and elsewhere, the Angels that sinned, 2 Pet. 2. 4. or that kept not their first station, Jude 6. Note

4*ly*, That among the nine Maledictions of the Women which the Jews reckon up, this is one, that (m) she is to have caput velatum instar lugentis her head covered like one that mourneth, and this, they say, she is to wear, not so much as a token of subjection, as of shame; whence (n) Philo calls the τὸ ἐπικάρσιον, cover of the woman's head, τὸ τῆς αἰδοῦς σύμβολον, the symbol of her shame; and this shame, say they, is due to her (o) because She brought the first sin into the world. It is with her, say they, as when one transgresseth and is ashamed, and therefore she comes forth with her head covered. She ought, saith (p) Tertullian, by her habit to resemble Eve, a Mourner, and a Penitent, ob ignominiam primi delicti, for the shame of the first sin: Hence he often interprets this Text of (q) Evil Angels.

Moreover, in the Judgment both of Jews and Christians, the Serpent which deceived Eve, acted by the suggestion of the (r) Devil, or of Sammael, whom the Jews stile the Prince of Devils. That therefore these words may be interpreted as in the Paraphrase, is evident not only from these observations, but especially from a place parallel to this, Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection. For I suffer not a woman to usurp Authority; for Adam was first formed, then Eve, (as here v. 8, 9.) and Adam was not deceived, but the Woman being deceived was in the Transgression, 1 Tim. 2. 11, 12, 13. where the same reason is assigned for her subjection, which I offer for explication of these words.

Others interpret the word thus; The Woman ought to act decently in the Church, and therefore to be covered, because of the Angels who are present in the Assemblies of the Saints, it being the Opinion, both of (s) Jews and Christians, that the ministring Angels are there present.

Ver. 14. Ἡ οὐδὲ αὐτὴ ἡ φύσις, doth not even Nature it self?] The Exposition given in the Paraphrase is so natural, and so well founded in the Words and Argument of the Apostle, and so agreeable to the Sentiments of all the Ancient Commentators on the place, that we seem not here to need the Industry and Learning the Criticks have so liberally spent upon this place, the Apostle here by Nature understanding not any inward Principle implanted in the Heart and Reason of a Man, but the first rise and constitution which Man and Woman have received from the God of Nature. It is against Nature, say the Fathers, for a Man to wear long hair, for by it he assumes the Habit of a Woman, καὶ ἔχειν πεχθεὶς τὸ τῆς ὑποταγῆς σύμβολον θεοδιδάκτως, and being made by God to rule, he takes upon him the Symbol of Subjection. Of the Criticisms upon the word κομᾶν they say not a word. h

Ver. 16. Οὐδὲ Ἐκκλησίαι Θεοῦ, nor the Churches of God.] Hence it is manifest, (1*st*,) That the Apostle here cannot be thought to have respect only to the custom of the Greeks, as Mr. Cl. imagines, for then why doth he plead the custom of all the Churches of God against this Practice? i

(2*ly*,) Hence note, That in things only respecting Decency, and in conforming to which there is no violation of the Command of God, the Custom of the Church should be our Rule, it being an Argument of Pride, and a contentious Spirit, in matters of so little moment to be singular, and to create disturbance to the Church of God.

Ver. 18. Σχίσματα, Schisms.] Here the word Schisms is used not of Men separating from the Church, but of them coming together in the Church, but yet eating the Lord's Supper separately, and so as not to joyn with the whole Assembly in that Ordinance; so the word also is used, Chap. 1. 10. not of a Separation from the Unity of the Catholick Church, saith Esthius, but of Sects and Divisions in the Church. k l Ver. 19. Δεῖ γὰρ αἱρέσεις εἶναι, for there muſt be Hereſies, &c.] This Neceſſity of Hereſies is not abſolute, or of God's making, but only on Suppoſition of the Pride, and Vainglory, Striſe, Envyings, and Contentions which are already in the Church of Corinth, 1 Cor. 3.3. and God's permiſſion that Men, ſo affected, ſhould act according to the corrupt Affections and Diſpoſitions of their Hearts, as the neceſſity of Diſeaſes in the Body ariſes from Men's Intemperance; nor is the Reaſon here aſſigned of them properly caſual, as if the Wiſdom of God deſigned there ſhould be Hereſies for this end, that they who were approved of him might be made manifeſt, but rather (t) Eventual; as if the Apoſtle had ſaid, whence it will come to paſs, that they who are approved will be made manifeſt.

m Ver. 21. Ἕκαστος γὰρ τὸ ἴδιον δεῖπνον προλαμβάνει, every one takes before his own Supper.] It is the opinion of Dr. Lightfoot, that the Apoſtle ſpeaks not here of the Agapæ, or Love Feaſts which accompanied the Euchariſt, as the Tradition of the Ancient Church ſuppoſed, but of the Paſchal Supper which theſe Judaizers did eat before the Euchariſt, as thinking that the Euchariſt, which our Lord inſtituted after that Supper, was only an Appendix of it, and that it was not inſtituted in Commemoration of the Death of Chriſt, but as a new form of their Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt, and that on this account the Apoſtle here repeats the Inſtitution of that Sacrament by our Lord, and ſo oft tells them that Chriſt appointed this Supper for the Commemoration of his Death, and that we might ſhew it forth till he comes, and charges them with not diſcerning it to be the Lord's Body, v. 29. But he ſeems to be miſtaken in both theſe Conjectures. For,

1*ſt*, It is very unlikely they ſhould miſtake the Lord's Supper celebrated then every week at leaſt, for that Paſchal Supper which was only to be celebrated once a year, and was then rather to be celebrated at home, in every Man's Family, than in the Church, and which, according to the Jewiſh Canons, could not be obſerved at all in Corinth, or out of Judea, whilſt the Temple ſtood.

2*ly*, Thoſe words of the Apoſtle in the preceding Chapter, viz. The Cup of bleſſing which we bleſs, is it not the Communion of the Blood of Chriſt? the Bread we break, is it not the Communion of the Body of Chriſt? And thoſe that follow, Ye cannot drink the Cup of the Lord and the Cup of Devils; ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's Table, and of the Table of Devils, do plainly ſhew that the Apoſtle there ſuppoſes, they well knew that in that Supper they were partakers of the Cup and Table of the Lord, and had Communion with his Body and Blood.

Dr. Lightfoot adds, That thoſe words, one is hungry, and another is drunken, refer not to the Poor and the Rich, but to the Gentile who came faſting to the Lord's Supper; whereas the Judaizing Chriſtian, according to his cuſtom, drank freely at his Paſchal Supper; and he concludes that the Apoſtle doth not here reprehend their manner of coming to theſe Suppers, but that he reprehends them for the very uſe of them. But here again he ſeems much miſtaken. For,

1*ſt*, 'Tis evident the Apoſtle reprehends them not for the Supper it ſelf, i. e. the eating and the drinking, but becauſe they did προλαμβάνειν take their Meat and their Drink before others, not ſtaying till they came, v. 21, 33. Hence, for a Remedy of this Diſorder, he ſaith not, abſtain from theſe Suppers, but only, when ye come together, tarry one for another.

2*ly*, That the hungry here were the Gentile Converts, who choſe to eat the Euchariſt faſting, is very improbable, not only becauſe it was then generally received at night; but becauſe the Apoſtle both here, and v. 34. allows all to eat and drink before they come, not taking notice of any that ſcrupled the doing this. Moreover, the οἱ μὴ ἔχοντες, the hungry here, are not Men who have no Houſes, but who have nothing to eat, or drink; for they were put to ſhame by this, that they had nothing to eat, or drink, as others had, nor were thought worthy to partake with them that had, in the Aſſembly of which they were a part; it being not the place where they aſſembled, which is called the Church of God, but the Perſons who aſſembled, for by the ſame Action was the Church deſpiſed, and they that had nothing put to ſhame: Now 'tis not eaſie to conceive how by this ſeparate meeting in a Church, they ſhould deſpiſe a Church, whereas by denying their poor Brethren any ſhare in their Banquet, they viſibly deſpiſed them. And

3*ly*, Theſe Agapæ or Feaſts of Charity, being mentioned by St. Jude, v. 12. by Ignatius Ep. ad Smyrn. § 8. by Clemens Alex. Pædag. l. 2. c. 1. p. 41. by Tertullian Apol. c. 39. by the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions l. 2 c. 28. and by (u) Julian the Apoſtate, it is very unreaſonable to call this Cuſtom in queſtion, or to imagine that St. Paul here rather referr'd to a Paschal Supper, than to this Appendix of the Supper of our Lord. When I call it an Appendix, I do not mean that it was eaten by them after the Lord's Supper, for the word προλαμβάνειν, to take before his own Supper, shews the contrary, viz. that this Banquet was celebrated before the Lord's Supper, but only that it was joyned to the Lord's Supper in imitation of our Lord, who celebrated the Sacrament after the Paschal Supper.

n Ibid. Ὃς μὲν πεινᾷ, and another is drunken.] This may either refer to the Gentile Converts among the Corinthians, retaining still their Heathen custom of drinking liberally after their Sacrifices, whence μεθύειν, to be drunk, is by Grammarians thought to have it's original from μετὰ τὸ θύειν, because of the free drinking they indulged to after their Sacrifices; or to the Judaizing Converts, who thought themselves obliged to drink plentifully at their Festivals, four large Cups of Wine, saith (w) Dr. Lightfoot, at the Paschal Supper, and to be quite drunk, saith (x) Buxtorf, in the Feast of Purim.

o Ver. 23. Ἔλαβεν ἄρτον, took bread, &c.] The Argument lyes thus; Christ gave an equal Distribution of the Sacramental Bread to every one at the Table, in token that he died equally for all; and he appointed them all to eat together of it at one Common Table, in remembrace of his love to them all, can you then eat every one separately his own Supper, excluding those to whom he equally distributed the Sacred Bread from any share of yours, leaving them hungry, and in want of Bread, and yet conceive you worthily eat the Lord's Supper, and duly participate of, and thankfully commemorate this great Feast of Love? But farther observe

1*st*, That this Bread is called in the Present Tense τὸ σῶμα κλώμενον, τὸ σῶμα διδόμενον, Christ's body broken, his body given, Luke 22. 19. even whilst he was alive, and so his Body was not actually broken, or given for us, it therefore could not be literally and naturally his broken Body, but only by way of Representation, as being then instituted to represent that Body which was shortly to be given, and broken on the Cross for us, so also it is said of his Blood, yet in his Veins, that it is τὸ αἷμα τὸ ἐκχυνόμενον, his blood shed, and this according to the usual Sacramental Phrase. Thus, before the Paschal Sacrament was celebrated, it was said, this πάσχα ἐστὶ τῷ Κυρίῳ is the Passover to the Lord, Exod. 12. 11, 13. i. e. this is that which is instituted to represent it; for this night I will smite all the first-born of Egypt, and will pass over you: And of Circumcision it is said, This is my Covenant, Gen. 17. 10. before that Abraham was actually Circumcised, v. 23, 24.

Luke 22. 20.

2*ly*, Observe that St. Paul calleth that five times Bread which they did eat of, which was to them the Communion of the Body of Christ, and by eating of which unworthily, they became guilty of the Body of Christ, not discerning the Lord's Body, 1 Cor. 10. 16, 17. & 11. 26, 27, 28. He therefore five times calls that Bread which was consecrated, and by our Saviour called his Body: Now is it not a wonder that one single Passage, mentioned by our Saviour whilst he was alive, should be deemed sufficient to make us all believe that his whole Body, and so his Hand was in his Hand, and that this living Christ was at the same time dead, and sacrificed, and that the same Body which was whole before the Eyes of his Disciples, was also broken for them at the same time, with many thousand Contradictions more, and yet that what the Holy Ghost, who knew the meaning of our Saviour's words better than any Romanist, hath said so often to inform us that this Element is, after Consecration, Bread, should not be thought sufficient to make us think it Bread, though it appears to all our Senses so to be?

Ver. 25. Ποτήριον, the Cup.] Note here p
two Reasons for the participating of the Cup by the whole Body of the Church of Corinth. 1. Because it is the Blood of the New Covenant, which belongs as much to the Laity as to the Priests; the Blood shed for the Remission of the Sins, not only of the Priests, but of the Laity. 2. Because by the drinking of this Cup they Remembred Christ's Blood shed for them, and shewed forth his Death. Now since these Reasons do equally concern all Christians, the drinking of the Cup, by which this Commemoration, by our Lord's Institution, is to be made, must equally concern them; for sure the means which Christ appointed for such an end, ought to be used by all who are obliged to pursue that end: And if the Apostle here reprehends the Corinthians for varying from the Tradition received from the Lord in Celebration of the Sacrament, he would have reprehended them much more, had they so varied from it as to neglect the Distribution of that Cup, which he had instituted for those sacred ends.

Commemoration of the Death of Chriſt during his abſence from us; if it was deſigned to be a ſtanding Memorial of his Sufferings till he came again to Judgment; the Obligation that lyes upon all Chriſtians to obſerve it is perpetual, and ought not to ceaſe till the World ends. Indeed, ſaith (y) Theodoret, after his Preſence there will be no more need of the Symbols of his Body, becauſe the Body it ſelf will then appear. Which words are a full Confutation of the Doctrine of Tranſubſtantiation.

r Ver. 27. Ἢ πὴν, or drink.] Here Walker's note is this, The Greek ἤ, or, that he might lead you to think there was ſomething in the Popiſh Argument taken hence to prove that whole Chriſt was contained in either Species, becauſe either by eating or drinking unworthily, Men become guilty of Profaning both the Body and Blood of Chriſt; but for Juſtification of our Verſion And, it may be noted that the Syriack, Arabick, and Æthiopick Verſions read And, and ſo does Clemens Alex. Strom. 1. p. 271.

2*ly*, That according to Phavorinus, ἤ κεῖται ἀντὶ τοῦ καί, that is ἤ is often put for And; So what is in the Hebrew אוֹ or, is in the Seventy rendred καί, and, Lev. 4. 23,28. Numb. 15. 8. Mal. 2. 17. So what is ἤ Luke 20. 2. is καί Matth. 21. 23. Mark 11. 28. So the Promiſe made to Abraham, καὶ τῷ σπέρματι αὐτοῦ, Gen. 17. 8. is the Promiſe made to him ἤ τῷ σπέρματι, or to his Seed, Gal. 3. 16. and eating and drinking going here before v. 26. and following after, v. 28, 29. this intermediate Verſe muſt bear the ſame ſenſe.

s Ver. 28. Δοκιμαζέτω ἑαυτὸν, let him examine himſelf.] Δοκιμάζειν is to diſcern or approve; ſo, δοκιμάζεις, thou approveſt the things which are moſt excellent, Rom. 2. 18. Happy is the man that condemneth not himſelf, ἐν ᾧ δοκιμάζει, in that which he approves, Rom. 14. 22. Δοκιμάζειν ἑαυτὸν is to approve himſelf to himſelf, or diſcern how it is with himſelf. So 2 Cor. 13. 5. ἑαυτοὺς δοκιμάζετε prove your own ſelves: Know ye not Jeſus Chriſt is among you, except ye be reprobates? Gal. 6. 4. Δοκιμαζέτω, Let every man approve his own work. And ſo here the ſenſe is, Let a man approve himſelf to his own heart, as a good Chriſtian, and one that comes to celebrate this Ordinance with a grateful Commemoration of the Love of Chriſt dying for him, and with true Charity, and unfeigned Kindneſs, to all thoſe for whom he did equally ſhed his blood, and give his body to be broken; And ſo he may repair to it with a true Chriſtian Spirit, and in an acceptable manner.

Ver. 29. Ἀναξίως, unworthily.] i. e. Not diſcerning the Lord's body; which words plainly teach us what it is to eat and drink unworthily, viz. to do it ſo as in that action not to diſcern the Lord's Body. Now this, as hath already been obſerved, cannot ſignifie not to apprehend the Sacrament to repreſent Chriſt's Body broken, and his Blood ſhed for us; for of this Ignorance had the Corinthians been guilty, the Apoſtle would have argued ex non conceſſis from things not granted by them, Chap. 10. 16, 21. It therefore ſignifies their behaving themſelves as if they had not conſidered that this Sacrament was inſtituted in thankful and practical Remembrance of Chriſt dying for them, and ratifying by his Blood the Covenant in which he promiſed to be merciful to their Iniquities, and remember their Sins no more; and as a Feaſt of Love deſigned equally for the Benefit of all his Members, and to knit them in the cloſeſt Bonds of Unity and Friendſhip to each other; when this was wanting they did not diſcern aright the Lord's Body, or the Sacrament of it, and ſo did eat and drink unworthily. In the Talmud, ſaith (z) Dr. Pocock, there is a diſtinction betwixt a Man who eats the Poſſover לשם מצוה in obedience to the Command (which was that they ſhould do it as a Memorial of God's paſſing over them when he deſtroyed the Egyptians, by reaſon of the Blood of the Paſchal Lamb, Exod. 12. 13, 14.) and he that thus eat it, was the juſt man that walketh in the ways of the Lord, mentioned Hoſ. 14. 9. and betwixt another who did eat it only as common Food, i. e. without reſpect to the Commandment, or the ends of it's Inſtitution; and he is compared to the Tranſgreſſor, there mentioned, that ſhall fall therein. So here, he that eateth this Holy Sacrament with a thankful Memorial of the Benefits conferred upon us, the Death from which we are delivered by the Blood of Chriſt, the true Paſchal Lamb ſacrificed for us, eats it worthily; but he that partakes of it only as common Bread and Wine, not conſidering the Ends for which it was deſigned, and the Benefits of Chriſt's Death it repreſented and conſigned, diſcerns not the Lord's Body, i.e. he putteth no ſufficient difference betwixt that and common Food, as the word διακρίνω doth import. See Note on Rom. 14. 23.

Ibid. Κρῖμα, damnation.] The word imports Temporal Judgments; as when St. Peter ſaith, the time is come ἄρξασθαι τὸ κρῖμα that Judgment muſt begin at the Houſe of God, 1 Pet. 4. 17. not damnation ſurely; and this is certainly the import of the word here, (1.) flicted on them for so doing were only Temporal, viz. Weakness, Sickness, and Death, v. 30. (2.) Because the Reason assigned of those Judgments, is, That they might not be condemned in the other World, or that they might not be obnoxious to Damnation.

CHAPTER XII.

Verse 1. NOW concerning spiritual gifts, [or Persons, v. 3.] Brethren, which is another thing in, and about the Exercise of which you offend; making them matter of contention, emulation and vain-glory,] I would not have you ignorant, [of what it concerns you to know of them, and your selves that exercise them.]

2. Ye know that [before your conversion to that Faith, by which ye received these gifts,] ye were Gentiles, carried away to [the service of] a those dumb Idols, [which could not speak themselves, much less enable you to speak,] even as you were led [by seducing Guides.]

3. Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus b accursed, [or Anathema;] and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, [and confirm that Doctrine with supernatural Gifts and Miracles,] but by the Holy Ghost.

4. Now there are c diversities of [these Spiritual] Gifts, but [it is] the same Spirit [which enables us to exercise any of them.]

5. And there are differences of Administrations, [or Offices in the Church, to which this diversity of Gifts belongs,] but [it is] the same Lord, [who hath appointed all these Offices, Eph. 4. 12.]

6. And there are diversities of Operations, [performed by these Officers in the Church by virtue of these Gifts,] but it is the same God, who [by giving them this Spirit] worketh [them] all in all.

7. d But the manifestation of the Spirit, [in the exercise of these Gifts,] is given to every man [not for his own private use, but] to profit [others] withal.

8. For to one is given by the Spirit, the Word of Wisdom, [to reveal that Faith to others, which is the Wisdom of God;] to another the Word of Knowledge, [to reveal Mysteries, 1 Cor. 13. 2. and understand the mind of God in the Old Testament for confirmation of that Faith,] by the same Spirit.

9. To another, Faith, [to enable him to believe firmly that he shall be empowered to do things most difficult,] by the same Spirit; to another the Gifts of healing [all manner of Diseases,] by the same Spirit.

10. To another the working of Miracles, [or powers, such as the raising the dead to life;] to another Prophecy, [enabling him to foretel things future, and speak by a Divine afflatus;] to another discerning of [the] Spirits [of others;] to another divers kinds of Tongues; to another the Interpretation of Tongues.

11. But all these [Gifts] worketh that one, and the same Spirit, dividing them to every man severally e as he will.

12. For as the [natural] Body is one, and [yet] hath many Members, and [Gr. but] all the Members of that one Body, being many, are one Body, [the Body is one still:] so also is [it in the Body of] Christ, [all whose Members, though they be many, and adorned with different Gifts, make but one Body mystical, united by the Spirit to their Head Christ Jesus.]

13. For by one Spirit f we are all baptized into [this] one Body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free, and [by receiving of that living water, we] have been all made g to drink into [or, of] one Spirit.

14. [All I say,] for [as] the [natural, so the mystical] Body is not one Member, but many.

15. If the Foot shall say, because I am not the Hand, I am not of the Body, is it therefore not of the Body?

16. And if the Ear shall say, because I am not the Eye, I am not of the Body, is it therefore not of the Body?

17. * If the whole Body were an Eye, where were the Hearing? if the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?

18. But now hath God set the Members every one of them in the Body, as it hath pleased him;

19. And if they were all one Member, where were the Body?

20. But now are they many Members, yet but one Body.

21. And the Eye, [the man endowed with the Word of Wisdom, or Knowledge,] cannot say to the Hand, [the Person employed in lesser Ministries,] I have no need of thee; nor again, the Head, [the Person placed in the highest Dignities in the Church,] to the Feet, [the Deacon, or Man imployed in the lowest Offices of the Church,] I have no need of you.

22. Nay, much more thoſe Members of the Body which ſeem to be more feeble are neceſſary; [Gr. but the Members of the Body which ſeem more weak are more neceſſary; viz. the Brain, the Stomach, and the Guts.]

23. And thoſe Members of the Body which we think to be leſs honourable, [Gr. more diſhonourable,] upon theſe we beſtow, h [Gr. put,] h more abundant honour, and our uncomely parts have more abundant comelineſs.

24. For our comely parts have no need, i but God i hath tempered the Body together, [agreeably to the condition of each Member,] giving more abundant honour, [or covering,] to that part that lacked; [placing them ſo, that even Nature may be a covering to them]

25. [And ſo hath he dealt alſo with the Body Myſtical, making the meaner Offices of them who attend upon the Poor more neceſſary, and to them more honoured who need their k help,] That there ſhould be k no Schiſm in the Body, but that the Members ſhould have the ſame care for, [and regard to,] one another.

26. And whether one Member [of the Natural Body] ſuffer, all the Members ſuffer with it [by ſympathy,] or one Member be honoured, [or adorned,] all the Members rejoyce with it; [i. e. if being indiſpoſed, it becomes ſound, being weak, it recovers ſtrength, all the Members are eaſed, and ſo may be ſaid to rejoyce with it.]

27. l Now ye are the Body of Chriſt, and l Members in particular, [or ſeverally are Members of that Body, and ſo ought to act in the Myſtical Body, as do the Members in the Natural, rejoycing with them that do rejoyce, and mourning with them that weep, Rom. 12. 15.]

28. m And God hath ſet ſome in the [body of the] Church, firſt Apoſtles, [to exerciſe the Gifts of Wiſdom,] ſecondarily Prophets, [to exert thoſe of Knowledge and Propheſy,] thirdly Teachers, [to labour in the Word and Doctrine,] after that, [Workers of] Miracles, then [they that have the] Gifts of Healing, Helps [to take care of the Poor,] Governments, [Rulers of the Church,] diverſities of Tongues. m

29. Are all Apoſtles? are all Prophets? are all Teachers? are all Workers of Miracles?

30. Have all the Gifts of Healing? do all ſpeak with Tongues? do all Interpret?

31. But covet earneſtly the beſt [and the moſt uſeful] Gifts, and yet ſhew I to you a more excellent way [of miniſtring to the welfare of the Church, and of your own Souls; even that of Charity.]

Ver. 4. Διαιρέσεις δὲ χαρισμάτων, there are diverſities of Gifts.] c. Theſe Gifts being in the nature of Spiritual Faculties, or Habits, are very properly aſcribed to that Spirit, who animates the Chriſtian, and by whom he lives the new Life; and theſe Miniſtries, as properly to the Lord Chriſt, whoſe Miniſters and Servants, the Apoſtles, Prophets, Teachers, &c. are in the Propagation of the Goſpel. Theſe Operations being miraculous, and far exceeding the Power of any Creature, as fitly are aſcribed to the Creator of all things. But whereas Crellius hence infers, that this third Perſon being diſtinguiſhed from the other two by the Title of, the ſame God, he only muſt be truly and properly ſo called, he might as well have argued, that becauſe the ſecond Perſon mentioned here is stiled the same Lord, he must be only so exclusively to the same God; and because the first is called the same Spirit, he must be so exclusively of the same God and Lord, who yet are equally Spirits.

d Ver. 7, 8, 9, 10. It is exceeding difficult to fix the true import of all these Gifts, I therefore shall only propose what follows by way of Conjecture, till I receive better information from more able Hands.

1*st*, Then by the Word of Wisdom I understand the Wisdom given to the Apostles to reveal the Gospel to the World; for that, in this Epistle, is stiled the Wisdom of God in a Mystery, the hidden Wisdom, 1 Cor. 2. 6, 7. and elsewhere the manifold Wisdom of God, Eph. 3. 10. Christ the great Teacher of it is also stiled the Wisdom of God, 1 Cor. 1. 24. and in him are said to be contained all the Treasures of Wisdom, Col. 2. 3. The Apostles, to whom this Gospel was committed, are called σοφοὶ wise men; Behold, I send unto you Prophets and Apostles, Luke 11. 49. and wise men, Matth. 23. 34. and they are said to teach this Gospel according to the Wisdom given to them, 2 Pet. 3. 15.

2*ly*, The Word of Knowledge being distinguished from that of Revelation, and of Prophecy, 1 Cor. 14. 6. & 13. 8. and being set by way of Apposition, or Explication with the Knowledge of all Mysteries, 1 Cor. 13. 2. seems to signifie the Gift of Understanding Mysteries, or Things concealed; such was the Mystery of Calling the Gentiles before it was revealed, Rom. 26. 25. Eph. 1. 9. & 3. 9. the Mystery of Re calling the Jews, Rom. 11. 25. the Mystery of Iniquity, 2 Thess. 2. 7. the Mystery of the Beast, Rev. 10 7. but more especially the Gift of Understanding the Mystical Sense of the Scriptures of the Old Testament. And in this sense St. Barnaby seems to speak of it, when he saith, Sect. 6. Blessed be God, ὁ σοφίαν καὶ νῦν δέδωκεν ἐν ὑμῖν τῶν κρυφίων αὐτοῦ, who hath given us the wisdom and knowledge of his secrets; and so it agrees with that Gift which the Fathers call προγνωσις, as when (d) Irenæus saith, Some have the knowledge of things to come, and visions, and prophetical sayings; and the Man thus gifted seems to be, in St. Clemens Romanus, the powerful man to utter knowledge.

3*ly*, That by Faith we are to understand a a miraculous Faith, enabling them to do things most difficult, seems highly probable from these words, Though I have all Faith, so as to remove Mountains, 1 Cor. 13. 2. But chiefly I would understand by it a peculiar impulse that came upon them when any difficult matter was to be performed, which inwardly assured them God's power would assist them in the performance of it. See Note on James 5. 15. whence it is often mentioned as a preparatory disposition to the working such Miracles, and is sometimes stiled the Faith of God, Mark 11. 22. sometimes Faith without doubting; Matth. 21. 21. and so it was a præ-requisite to the casting out stubborn Devils, Matth. 17. 20. and to the ensuing Gifts of healing and working Miracles; and hence perhaps it is that in the following Enumeration of them, v. 28, 29, 30. we find no mention of it.

4*ly*, Ἐνεργήματα δυνάμεων, the working of Miracles is by the Fathers referred to the power residing in the Apostles to inflict Diseases, and even Death it self upon Offenders, as in the Case of Ananias and Sapphira, Acts 5. 5, 10. and of Elymas the Sorcerer, Acts 13. 11. and of the incestuous Person, 1 Cor. 5. 4. where the Apostle makes mention of ἡ δυνάμις Χριστοῦ of the Power of Christ. And where he speaks of his Rod, he calls it the Power that God hath given him, 1 Cor. 4. 19, 20. 2 Cor. 10. 8. & 13. 10. But yet I doubt not but these words are truly rendred, the working of Miracles, for to them the word δυνάμις, power, generally relates in the New Testament: As when mention is made of the Miracles done by Christ himself, Matth. 11. 20, 23. & 13. 54, 58. & 14. 2. Mark 5. 30. Luke 4. 36. & 5. 17. & 6. 19. & 19. 37. Acts 2. 22. & 10. 38. and of the Miracles done by others in the Name of Christ, Mat. 7. 22. Mark 9. 39. Luke 9. 1. Acts 1. 8. & 4. 33. & 6. 8. & 8. 13. & 19. 11. 1 Cor. 2. 4. 2 Cor. 12. 12. Gal. 3. 5. 1 Thess. 1. 5. Hence it is frequently mentioned in conjunction with Signs and Wonders, Acts 2. 22. & 8. 13. Rom. 15. 19. Heb 2. 4. It is also here plainly distinguished from the Gift of Healing; and it as plainly distinguished from the Power of casting out Devils, in those words, In thy name have we propheſied, and cast out Devils, and done δυνάμεις πολλὰς many mighty works, Mark 7. 22. It therefore rightly seemeth in the Paraphrase to be restrained to the doing things beyond the Course of Nature, and wrought by an immediate Divine Hand; such as the supplying a defective Member, or the raising the Dead. Thus to the first order of the Successors of the Apostles, (e) Eusebius ascribes many strange Powers of the H. Ghost; and (f) Just. Mart. speaks of the powers done in his time done by the name of Christ.

5*ly*, The Gift of Prophecy is not to be restrained, as some do to Teaching, and the Interpretation of the Scripture, which it importeth only as that was done by a particular Inspiration of the Holy Ghost; for otherwise, as here the Prophets, and the Teachers, are two distinct Offices in the Church, so also are they reckoned as such in the Church of Antioch, Acts 13. 1. and they are reckoned as distinct χαείσμαλα in these words, Having Gifts different, whether Prophecy, let us prophesy according to the proportion of Faith; or Ministry, let us wait on our Ministry; or he that Teacheth, on teaching, Rom. 12. 6, 7. And so they are reckoned by (g) Justin Martyr, when he saith, one Man receives at Baptism the Spirit of Understanding, ὁ δὲ προγνώσεως, ὁ δὲ διδασκαλίας, another of Fore knowledge, or Prophecy; and another of Teaching; and this discovers to us another sense of Prophecy, viz. that it imports, as Irenæus saith, προγνωσιν τῶν μελλόντων, the Fore-knowledge, or Prediction of Things future, and that in order to the Exhortation to some Duty. Thus Agabus foretold by the Spirit the dearth that was to come on all Judea, Acts 11. 28, 29, 30. that other Christians might be moved, as they were, to send their Charity thither. Thus Judas and Silas, being Prophets, διὰ λόγου πολλοῦ, with many words they comforted the Brethren, and established them, Acts 16. 32. This Gift was exercised also by foretelling who would be fit Persons to do good Service in the Church. Thus St. Paul commits a Charge to Timothy, according to the foregoing Prophesies concerning him, 1 Tim. 1. 18. and saith, Neglect not the Gift that is in thee, that was given thee by Prophecy, Chap 4. 14. And that in this sense the Fathers understood it, is evident not only from the word πρόγνωσις, fore knowledge, by which they do express it, but from the Arguments they use against the Jews, to convince them that God had left their Church, and had own'd and embraced the Societies of Christians, because he had left them no Prophets, but had transferred that Gift to the Christians: And these Predictions being made by Revelation of the Spirit, ἀποκάλυψις, or Revelation, is accounted a part of this Gift; for to the Prophet is ascribed his Revelation, 1 Cor. 14. 26, 30. and the Revelation of St. John is the Book of his Prophecy; and to the Prophet is ascribed the Manifestation of the Secrets of Men's hearts, as in those words, If all prophesie, and there come in an unbeliever, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all, and thus are the secrets of his heart laid open, 1 Cor. 14 24. Thus of those Prophets, Irenæus l. 5. c. 6. saith, that they did not only explain the Mysteries of God, but also τὰ κρύφια ἀνθρώπων εἰς φανερὸν ἄγειν ὅτε τῆς συμφέροντος, manifest the secret things of men, when it was needful, or profitable for them, or the Church. See Origen against Celsus, l. 1. p. 34.

6*ly*. The διάκρισις πνευμάτων, discerning of Spirits, not only imports the Faculty of discerning betwixt the Impulse of False and True Prophets, which he that hath, seems to be stiled by St. Clemens, ὁ σοφὸς ἐν διακρίσει τῶν λόγων, a wise man in discerning words, and betwixt the lying Wonders and magical Operations of Evil Spirits, and the Powers of the Holy Ghost, as 1 Cor. 14. 29. 1 Thess. 5. 20, 21. 1 John 4. 1. but also a Judgment of discerning the Spirits of other Men, whether they were qualified for such an Office in the Church, and accordingly chusing them out for that Work. So the Spirit in the Prophets said, Separate me Barnabas and Paul for the work whereunto I have called them, Acts 13. 2, 3. And thus the Holy Ghost is said to have constituted the Bishops and Presbyters in Asia, Acts 10. 28. because as (h) Clemens R. saith, they Constituted Bishops and Deacons, δοκιμάσαντες τῷ πνεύματι, making trial of them by the Holy Ghost. And (i) Clemens of Alexandria, that St. John ordained to be of the Clergy, τοὺς ἀπὸ τοῦ πνεύματος σημαινομένους, such as were signified to him by the Spirit. (k) Ignatius saith of the Bishops of his time, that they were constituted, not by Men, but Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ γνώμῃ, by the Counsel of Christ Jesus. (l) St. Cyprian, that they were constituted, not only by the consent of the People, and the suffrage of their fellow Bishops, but also Judicio Divino, & Dei Testimonio, by the Judgment and Testimony of God. And lastly, This Gift seems also to imply a discovering of what was done inwardly, or in the Spirit of a Man; So Peter discerned the heart of Ananias and Sapphira, Acts 5. 3, 9. and of Simon Magus, Acts 8. 21, 23. St. Paul of Elymas, Acts 13. 10. and of the lame Man, seeing he had Faith to be healed, Acts 14. 9. And (m) Ignatius speaks of the Spirit in him that did foretel, and τὰ κρυπτὰ ἐλέγχειν, reprove things secret.

Ver. 11. Καθὼς θέλει, as he will.] Here c seems to be a plain Argument for the Personality of the Holy Ghost, because a will is here ascribed to him. (2.) Hence it is evident that he is no Creature, because no Creature can enable others to do these Works. (3.) That he is God; for as all this diver-fity of Operations is ascribed to the same God, v. 6. so is it here said, (n) All these worketh one and the same Spirit.

f Ver. 13. Εἰς ἓν σῶμα ἐβαπτίσθημεν, we were baptized into one Body.] Vain here is the Note of Mr. Cl. viz. That we are baptized that we might be called by one Name, be of one Society, the Church of Christ: For 'tis not by partaking of one Spirit that we are called Christians, but by professing Faith in Christ. The Apostle is plainly proving, that as the Natural Body is one, so is the Mystical: Now the Natural Body is one, as being informed by one Soul and Spirit united to it, and animating all the Parts of it, so is it, saith he, in the Mystical Body united together by one and the same Spirit received in Baptism, and from our Spiritual Head Christ Jesus, communicated to all the Living Members of his Body, to give them Spiritual Life and Motion. See Eph. 4. 16.

g Ibid. Εἰς ἓν πνεῦμα ἐποτίσθημεν, were made to drink of one Spirit.] So our Lord represents the Participation of the Holy Spirit, saying, If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink. He that believeth, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living waters. This spake he of the Spirit which they that believed in him should receive, John 7. 37, 38, 39. And the Apostle calls the Water, which was a Symbol of the Spirit, Spiritual Drink, 1 Cor. 10. 4.

h Ver. 23. Τιμὴν περισσοτέραν, more abundant honour.] The Cloaths God made to cover the nakedness of Adam and Eve, are stiled by Onkelos, Cloaths of Honour: And the word τιμὴ here rendred Honour, is in the Septuagint put to signifie a Cover; so behold, he is to thee a covering of thy Eye, Gen. 20. 16. is in the Septuagint εἰς τὴν τιμὴν τῆς ὄψεως σε, for an honour of thy Face.

i Ver. 24. Συνεκέρασε τὸ σῶμα, hath so tempered the body.] Agreeable to this is that of (o) Cicero, Principio Corporis nostri magnam natura ipsa videtur habuisse rationem, quæ formam nostram, reliquamque figuram in quâ esset species honesta, eam posuit in promptu, quæ autem partes corporis ad necessitatem datæ, aspectum essent deformem habituræ, atque turpem, eas contexit atque abdidit, hanc tam diligentem naturæ fabricam imitata est hominum verecundia, quæ enim natura occultavit, eadem omnes, qui sanâ mente sunt, removent ab oculis.

k Ver. 25. Ἵνα μὴ ᾖ σχίσμα, that there may be no schism in the body.] Of this Schism of the Members against the Body, see Menenius apud Livium, l. 2. c. 32. Max. Tyr. Diss. 5. p. 50.

Ver. 27. For illustration of this long Comparison betwixt the Body Natural and Mystical, observe (1.) That this Comparison is taken from the Jews, who teach that such order ought to be observ'd betwixt the Priesthood and the People, as in the Humane Body, in which there are Members Superiour, and others serving to the Rest; for all of them serve the Heart from whence Life proceeds; and so it is meet that the Levites should serve the Priests, and the People the Levites; Paulus Fagius in Levit. 3. 7. The Argument which the Apostle useth from the Comparison of the Natural with the Mystical Body, seems to consists in these Particulars: 1

1st, That the most inferiour Members of the Natural Body, are as much the Members of that Body as the most noble, so are the most inferiour Christians as much the Members of Christ's Body.

2ly, That there would be no perfect Natural Body without this Diversity of Members, and in like manner no Mystical Body without such diversity of Gifts and Offices as God hath ordered in his Church, v. 17, 19.

3ly, That the Members are placed in the Body according to the Wisdom, and the good Pleasure of God, v. 18, 24. and so it is in the Members of the Mystical Body, which therefore ought to acquiesce in the goodly Pleasure of his Will, in whatsoever Station and Condition his Wisdom doth see fit to place them.

4ly, That the Members which seem the weakest, and the meanest, are as necessary and serviceable to the Body as the other. Humane Life could not continue, nor Humane Kind subsist without them, v. 22. so in the Mystical Body, they that are employed in Works of Charity and Mercy to the Poor, and the Sick, those that serve Tables, are in their kind as necessary and serviceable as other Members of the Church, and had their χαρίσματα, or Spiritual Gifts, as well as others, Rom. 12. 6, 7, 8. 1 Pet. 4. 10, 11.

5ly, That as Nature had provided a Covering for the less honourable Parts, and taught us to imploy our Care in Covering and Adorning them; so was it also with respect to the less honourable Members of the Ecclesiastical Body, there were Helps, and Ministers particularly appointed to take care of them, to cover their Nakedness, and supply their Wants, and Promises were made to those who imployed themselves in such Acts of Charity, v. 23, 24.

6ly, That as there was no Division in the Members of the Natural Body, but all the Members took care of, and were imployed for the good of the whole, so God had ordered matters thus in the Body Mystical, that there should be no Divisions, no Separate Interests in it; but they should mutually regard the Interests of one another, sympathizing, and rejoycing together, v. 25, 26.

m Ver. 28. Note, for Explication of these Offices,

1*st*, That to Prophets I ascribe the Gift of Knowledge and of Prophecy, from these words, If I have Prophecy, and know all Mysteries and all Knowledge, 1 Cor. 13. 2. And as the first Gift, the Word of Wisdom, belongs especially to the Apostles, so it seems probable that the second, the Word of Knowledge, should belong to the second Office, that of Prophets. But whereas Mr. Cl. saith, That the Prophets did not teach by Inspiration, but only had been fitted to teach by Inspiration; that they spake as they saw fit themselves; and those things which they received from Christ, and his Apostles, they interpreted after their own manner. This seems to be confuted by these words of the Apostle, If any thing be revealed to him that sitteth by, let the first Prophet be silent, for the Spirits of the Prophets are subject to the Prophets.

2*ly*, The Teachers seem to be Men, who having received the Doctrine of Faith from the Apostles, preached it to others for their Conversion to the Faith, and so they are the Men who laboured in the Word and Doctrine, 1 Tim. 5. 17. They were, saith (p) Eusebius, Ἀποστόλων μαθηταὶ, the Disciples of the Apostles, who built up the Churches in the Faith which the Apostles had planted, promoting the preaching of the Gospel more and more, and spreading among them the Salutary Seed of the Heavenly Kingdom. And they of them who preached the Gospel to them who had not heard it, were called Evangelists, and sometimes Apostles. So Andronicus and Junia are called ἐπίσημοι ἐν τοῖς Ἀποστόλοις, Men of esteem among the Apostles, Rom. 16. 7. and of these St. John saith, For his Name's sake they went forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles; we therefore ought to receive such, that we may be fellow helpers to the Truth, Eph. 3. 7, 8. But whereas Theophylact, and Mr. Cl. say, that the Prophets indeed spake by the Holy Ghost, but these Teachers from themselves; this I cannot assent to, for διδασκαλία, teaching, is numbred among the Spiritual Gifts, Rom. 12. 6. and διδάσκαλοι, Teachers, among them to whom Christ had given these Gifts. See the Note on Eph. 4. 11.

3*ly*, The Helps seem to be the Deacons and other Officers, who ministred not only to the Sick and Poor, but in Holy Things also, in Baptizing and Distributing the Eucharist; for ἀντιλαμβάνεσθαι, whence comes the word Helps, signifies to take care of others; and these also, as before I noted, had their Spiritual Gifts. As then the Talmudists, saith Dr. Lightfoot, call the Levites, the Helps of the Priests, so may the Apostle call the Deacons, which answered to them, the Helps of the Apostles, and Bishops of the Church.

4*ly*, Governments are almost generally supposed to denote the Rulers of the Churches, planted by the Apostles, and who are sometimes stiled Bishops, Acts 20. 28. sometimes ἡγούμενοι, Guides or Rulers, Heb. 13. 7, 17. and sometimes προϊστῶτες, Presidents or Prelates, Rom. 12. 8. 1 Thess. 5. 12. But Dr. Lightfoot conjectures they were the Men who had the Gift of discerning Spirits, because κυβερνήσεις, which we here render Governments, signifies in the Old Testament, wise Counsels, and skill in giving Judgment of Things. Thus ὁ νοήμων κυβερνήσεις κτήσεται, a Man of understanding shall attain to wise counsels, Prov. 1. 5. οὗ μὴ ὑπάρχῃ κυβέρνησις, where no counsel is, the people fall; but in much counsel there is safety, Prov. 11. 14. and μετὰ κυβερνήσεως, by wise counsel thou shalt make war, Prov. 14. 6. It is not reasonable, saith he, to suppose no Office should be appointed for this so necessary Gift, and yet no other is here mentioned to which we can apply it. Let the Reader chuse which of these Interpretations he likes best.

CHAPTER XIII.

a Verse 1. a [FOR] though I speak with the Tongues of Men, and of Angels, [the Languages of all Nations, or knew how to converse with Angels,] and have not Charity, I am become as sounding Brass, or a tinkling Cymbal, [benefiting no man by my empty, and confused, and pleasing no man with my shrill, and noisy sound.]

2. And though I have the Gift of Prophecy, and understand all Mysteries, and all Knowledge; and though I have all Faith, so that I could remove Mountains, and have no Charity, I am nothing [worth in the sight of God.]

3. And though I bestow all my Goods to feed the Poor; and though I give my Body to be burnt [for the Faith,] and have not Charity [to Man, but do this rather out of vain-glory, or to be admired and praised of Men,] it profiteth me nothing [as to my eternal state.]

4. Charity suffereth long, and is kind: Charity envieth not; Charity vaunteth not it self, is not puffed up.

5. Doth not behave it self unseemly; seeketh not her own; is not easily provoked; thinketh no evil;

b 6. Rejoyceth not b in iniquity, [or falsehood,] but rejoyceth in the Truth.

c 7. c Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

8. Charity never faileth, [as to the proper and elicit Acts of it,] but [as for other Gifts,] whether there be Prophesies, they shall fail; whether there be Tongues, they shall cease; whether there be [the Gift of] Knowledge, it shall vanish away.

9. For [with all our Gifts] we know [still but] in part, and we prophecy [but] in part, [knowing but few things in comparison to our future knowledge.]

10. But when that [state of knowledge] which is perfect, is come, then that [knowledge] which is in part, shall be done away.

11. When I was a Child, I spake as a Child, I understood as a Child, I thought as a Child; but when I became a Man, I put away childish things; [and the like difference will there be betwixt us now and then.]

12. For now we see [only as] through a Glass darkly, but then we [shall see] face to face, [with the greatest nearness and perspicuity, which now we cannot; for no Man, saith God, shall see my face and live; Exod. 33. 20, 23. John Ep. 2. v. 12. Ep. 3. v. 14.] Now I know [but] in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known, [more fully and completely, seeing God as he is, 1 John 3. 2.]

13. And now abideth Faith, Hope, Charity, these three,] all great and excellent Vertues, and superiour to the Gifts now mentioned,] but the greatest of these is Charity, [both for duration, as continuing when Faith shall end in Vision, 2 Cor. 5. 7. and Hope in Enjoyment, Rom. 8. 23, 24. and for Perfection, as rendring us more like to God, and beneficial to Men.]

a Verse 1, 2, 3. NOte. Here is to be noted, That the Apostle in these Verses reckons up the things which were of highest value with the Jews, and which rendred their wise men the most celebrated. Thus of (a) R. Jochanan Ben Zaccbai, they say that he understood the Language of the Angels; and of (b) R. Azai that there was not in his days a Rooter up of Mountains like to him, or one that could do so great things as he did. The Man on whom the Spirit of Prophecy did rest, or who was fit to receive him, must, say they, be (c) a wise man, a religious man, a temperate man, and one that is indued with all probity of manners. Of Alms, they say, that (d) whosoever diminisheth any thing of his Substance to bestow in Alms, shall be dedelivered from Hell. And as for Martyrdom for the Law, they thought it sufficient to expiate, not only for their own Sins, but even for the Sins of the whole Nation. Hence (e) Josephus brings in Eleazar praying thus for the Jews, Let my Blood be an Expiation for them, and receive my Life for their Lives. And he saith of the Martyrs that ſuffered under Antiochus Epiphanes, That (f) the Divine Providence ſaved all Iſrael from the Evils they ſuffered, by the Blood, and the Propitiatory Death of thoſe Pious Men.

But here is raiſed a Diſpute, Whether the Gifts here mentioned were at any time, or could be exerciſed by them who wanted Charity? or ſuch profuſe Alms, and conſtancy in ſuffering to the Death, were ever, or could be ſeparated, from that Grace? To which I anſwer; It is true that the Apoſtle here ſpeaketh only hypothetically, that were theſe things performed without Charity, they would not profit to Salvation; but then that Suppoſition ſeems fairly to imply the thing it ſelf was not impoſſible; or that there was no neceſſary connexion betwixt theſe Gifts and Actions, and the Grace of Charity. Moreover, our Saviour ſeems plainly to inform us, that Men might Prophecy, and caſt out Devils, and do mighty Works in his Name, Matth. 7. 22, 23. and yet be workers of iniquity, and Perſons whom he would not own at the laſt day. He alſo teacheth that ſome may do their Alms to be applauded by Men, Matth. 6. 2. and therefore do them ſo as to receive no reward from God, and ſo informs us that Alms may be given without true Love to God, or to our Neighbour for his ſake. And laſtly, all the Fathers teach, that it is not the Suffering, but the Reaſon of it, that makes the Martyr; and that (g) when Men in Schiſm or Hereſie, thus give their Bodies to be burnt, they are not to be deemed true Martyrs, by reaſon of the want of Charity. And the ſame they ſay of them who Suffer for Vain-glory, viz. that (h) they ſhed their Blood in vain.

b Ver. 6. Ἐν ἀδικίᾳ, in iniquity.] That ἀδικία here ſignifies falſhood, the Truth, to which it is oppoſed, ſhews; ſo it ſignifies in the Old Teſtament above an hundred times, and the word שקר which in the Hebrew ſignifies a lye, is as often by the Septuagint tranſlated ἀδικία as ψεῦδος; ſo a right hand of Falſhood is δεξία ἀδικίας, Pſal. 144. 11. the way of lying is ὁδὸς ἀδικίας, Pſal. 119. 29. and he that telleth lies is λαλῶν ἄδικα, See Pſal. 101. 7. & 119. 69, 78, 86, 118, 128, 163. Pſal. 63. 11. Exod. 22. 7. Now Falſhood, and a Lye, in the Old and New Teſtament, do often ſignifie a falſe Religion; or a Religion containing a falſe Object of Worſhip. Thus the molten Image is a Teacher of Lyes, Hagg. 2. 18. and he that maketh it, is ſaid to have a Lye in his right hand, Iſa. 44. 20. he that goes after them walketh in lyes, Jer. 23. 14. and inherits lyes, ὡς ψεῦδος ἐκτήσαντο οἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν εἴδωλα; he turns the truth of God into a lye, Rom. 1. 25. believes a lye, 2 Theſſ. 2. 10, 11. See the Note on Rom. 3. 7. And the Truth in the New Teſtament is emphatically put to ſignifie the Goſpel, or the Chriſtian Faith: So 2 Ep. of St. John, v. 3, 4. I rejoyced greatly to find thy Children walking in the Truth. And Epiſt. 3. v. 3, 4. I have no greater joy than to hear that my Children walk in the Truth: So that the import of theſe words may be this, Charity will not permit us to rejoyce, but rather cauſe us to be troubled to find Men ſtill continue in their falſe Worſhip, as the Gentiles, or in oppoſition to the Goſpel delivered to them, as the Jews do; but it rejoyceth to ſee Men walking according to the Truth of the Goſpel.

Ver. 7. From theſe four comprehenſive c Verſes, we learn the Properties and Fruits of Charity. (1.) What it requires us to do to all. (2.) What it will not permit us to do to any. (3.) What it requires us to do, or will not permit us to do, to our offending Brother.

1. It is good, kind, and tender-hearted towards all; v. 4. The Lord make your Charity to abound to one another, and to all men, 1 Theſſ. 3. 12. For Charity requiring us to love our Brother as our ſelves, it muſt engage us to conſider him as we do our ſelves, and ſo extend the ſame kindneſs to him, when he needs it, as we ſhew to our ſelves, Gal. 6. 10.

2. It is active, and laborious, engaging us by love to ſerve one another, Gal. 5. 13, 14. to do them any ſervice we are able with good will, and without grudging; for there muſt be in us, ὁ κόπος τῆς ἀγάπης, the labour of love, 1 Theſſ. 1. 3. Heb. 6. 10.

3. It rejoyceth in the Truth, v. 6. that is, in Mens doing righteouſly, and living according to the Goſpel, which is called by way of eminence the Truth; it begets in us a Complacency, and inward Pleaſure to behold Truth and Righteouſneſs, Piety and Goodneſs prevailing in the World.

4. It makes us ready to believe all things, v. 7. that is, all the Good it hears, or can have any charitable ground to think of others.

5. It hopeth all things, v. 7. i.e. It inclines us to hope still the best concerning Men's Intentions and Actions liable to doubt; and if our Brother be at present bad, to hope, and not despair of his Amendment, and so still to endeavour his Reformation by all proper means.

Secondly, The Things which Charity will not permit us to do to any, are these, viz.

1. Charity worketh no evil to our Neighbour, in his Person, Estate, Good Name, Relations, Rom. 13.10. much less in Reference to his Soul: And therefore

2. It will not suffer us to scandalize, or to offend our Brother, by doing any thing which either may embolden him to Sin, or disaffect him to Religion, or discourage him in the Practice of his Duty; for if thy Brother be grieved with thy Meat, now walkest thou not charitably, Rom. 14. 15.

3. Οὐ λογίζεται κακόν, v. 5. It will not permit us to surmise, or to suspect that evil of others which we do not know, it imputes not evil to them, nor puts it to any Man's account beyond absolute necessity. It doth not censure their Miscarriages as done out of Malice, or with ill Intentions. So Theodoret.

4. It rejoyceth not in Iniquity, v. 6. in any Evil done to, much less by others; it permits no Man to be pleased with any deceit, or falshood spoken of, or done to others, or with any ill Stories, or malicious Insinuations concerning them.

5. It envies not the Happiness, or the Prosperity of others, but is well pleased with it, v. 4.

6. Οὐκ ἀσχημονεῖ, it behaveth not it self unseemly towards any, in words or gestures; it refuseth not to do the meanest Offices of Kindness to them, as if it were unseemly, or below us to be employed in them, v. 5. So Chrysostom, Theodoret, Oecumen. Theoph.

7. Οὐ φυσιοῦται, it vaunteth not it self, v. 4. It is not puffed up against our Brethren; it roots out of us all Elation of Mind, Ambition, Ostentation, Pride in over-valuing our selves, and despising others, Eph. 4. 2. οὐ προπετεύεται, 'tis not rash, heady, or precipitate in speaking of, or acting towards others. So Chrysostom and Oecumenius. It doth not curiously search into other Men's matters which belong not to us. So Theodoret.

8. It seeketh not her own Praise, Profit, or Pleasure to the hurt of others; but inclines Men to seek the good of others, 1 Cor. 10. 24.

9. Οὐ δάκνει, it bites not with the Tongue, Gal. 5. 14, 15. but cuts off all Strife, Contentions, bitter Zeal, Animosities, v. 21, 22. all Bitterness, Wrath, Clamor, Evil-speaking, Eph. 4. 31, 32.

Thirdly, The Deportment Charity requires to our offending Brother, expressed in these Particulars;

1. Charity beareth long, and causeth us to endure Provocations with much Patience, before we do conceive any Displeasure against others.

2. It endureth all things, though grievous to be born, without returning Evil for Evil; enabling us to forbear one another in love, Eph. 4. 2. Colossi. 3. 13. and will not cease from being kind and well affected to our Brother, by reason of any Provocation whatsoever.

3. It covers all things, i. e. inclines us to conceal the Evil that we know of others; and thus it covers a multitude of Sins, James 5. 20.

4. Οὐ παροξύνεται, v. 5. It is not highly exasperated, and breaks not forth into violent ungovernable Passions on any Provocations.

5. 'Tis easie to be intreated, ready to forgive, and full of Mercy, Colossi. 3. 13. Eph. 4. 32. James 3. 17.

CHAPTER XIV.

Verse 1. FOllow [therefore] after Charity [above all things], and desire [also] Spiritual Gifts, but rather that ye may Prophecy; [i. e. expound the Scripture, or reveal some Mystery to the Edification of the Church.] a 2. [a] For he that speaketh in an unknown Tongue, [not understood, nor explained,] speaketh not to [the understanding of] Men, for no man understands him, but to [the understanding of] God [only:] howbeit, [or though,] in the Spirit he speaketh Mysteries, [the profound things of God.]

3. But he that prophesieth [in plain intelligible words,] speaketh to [the profit of] men, [viz.] to [their] edification [by the Scripture he expounds,] and [their] exhortation [by what he teacheth,] and [to their] comfort [by his Revelation.]

4. He that speaketh in an unknown Tongue [b] edifieth himself [only,] but he that b prophesieth edifieth the Church.

5. I would that ye all spake with Tongues, but rather that ye prophesied; for greater, [because more beneficial,] is he that prophesies, than he that speaketh with Tongues, except he interpret [his Tongue, and the Myſtery he utters in it,] c that the Church may receive edifying [by it.]

6. Now [therefore] Brethren, if I come unto you ſpeaking with [ſtrange] Tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſhall ſpeak to you [alſo,] either by Revelation [of ſome ſecret,] or by knowledge [of ſome Myſtery,] d or d by propheſying, [i. e. foretelling of ſomething to come,] or by doctrine, [inſtructing you what to believe or practice?]

7. And [thus it is] even [in] things without life, giving ſound, whether [it be] pipe, or harp, [for] except they give a diſtinction in the ſound [to render it intelligible,] how ſhall it be known what is piped or harped?

8. For if the trumpet [for example] give an uncertain ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelf to the battel, [at the hearing of it?]

9. So likewiſe you, except you utter by the Tongue words eaſie to be underſtood [by your Auditors,] how ſhall it be known what is ſpoken [by you?] for [by ſpeaking what they know not,] ye ſhall [be as men who] ſpeak [only] to the air; [vain and unprofitable words, loſt in the ſpeaking, as the voice is in the air.]

10. There are, it may be, ſo many kinds of voices, [Languages and Idioms, as there be Nations, or as the Jews compute to the number of Seventy,] in the world, and none of them is without ſignification; [but this ſignification they have only to them that underſtand them.]

11. Therefore, If I know not the meaning of the voice, I ſhall be to him that ſpeaketh [as] e a Barbarian, [or one that underſtandeth not what he ſaith,] and he that ſpeaketh ſhall be [as] a Barbarian to me.

12. Even ſo ye, foraſmuch as ye are zealous of ſpiritual Gifts, [Gr. of Spirits, that you may not be Barbarians, and unprofitable in the uſe of them,] ſeek that ye may excel [in them which tend] to the edifying of the Church.

13. Wherefore let him that ſpeaketh in an unknown Tongue [in which he cannot edifie,] pray that he may f interpret; [i.e. pray ſo, as to interpret what he prays.]

14. For if I pray in an unknown Tongue g my ſpirit prayeth, [i. e. my ſpiritual Gift is exerciſed,] but my underſtanding is unfruitful [to others.]

15. What is it then? [i. e. what then is to be done?] I will pray h with the Spirit, [i. e. with my ſpiritual Gift,] and I will pray with the underſtanding alſo; I will ſing with the Spirit, and I will ſing with the underſtanding alſo; [i. e. ſo uſing my ſpiritual Gift in prayer, and pſalmody in the publick, as that I may be underſtood by others.]

16. Elſe when thou ſhalt bleſs, [i. e. give thanks to God,] with the Spirit [ual Afflatus not underſtood by others,] how ſhall he that i occupieth the room of the unlearned, [i. e. the Laick, or the Man who only knows his Mother Tongue,] ſay Amen, [or give his aſſent,] at thy giving of Thanks, ſeeing he underſtands not what thou ſayeſt? i

17. For thou verily giveſt thanks well [with thy ſpiritual Gift, i. e. piouſly,] but the other is not edified [by it.]

18. I thank my God I ſpeak with Tongues more than you all:

19. Yet in the Church [of God] I had rather ſpeak five words with my underſtanding, [ſo imployed] that by my voice I may teach others alſo, than ten thouſand words in an unknown Tongue.

20. Brethren, be not [like] Children in underſtanding, [chuſing what pleaſeth you, before what profits others,] howbeit in [freedom from] malice be you [as] Children, but in underſtanding be [and act as] men; [as perſons of maturity of judgment to know what is fitting to be ſpoken.]

21. k In the Law it is written, [by way of a ſign to a diſobedient and unbelieving People, thus,] with men of other tongues, and other lips will I ſpeak unto this People; and yet for all that will they not hear me, ſaith the Lord. k

22. Wherefore Tongues are for a ſign, not to them that believe, [and ſo not to be uſed in their Aſſemblies,] but to them that believe not, [they being deſigned for the more ſpeedy and effectual propagation of the Goſpel by this Gift, among thoſe Nations whoſe Languages they underſtood not;] but propheſying, [by teaching the Doctrines of the New, or expounding the Myſteries of the Old Teſtament,] ſerveth not for them that believe not [that Faith, or thoſe Scriptures,] but for them that believe [them.]

23. If therefore the whole Church be come together into one place, and all ſpeak with Tongues, and there come in thoſe that are unlearned, or l unbelievers, will they not [be tempted by hearing you thus ſpeaking to one another in unknown Languages, to] ſay that you are mad? l

24. But if all propheſie [one after another, v. 31.] and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced [or diſcovered] of all, he is judged [or diſcerned] of all [that propheſie.]

25. And thus are m the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt [by the Prophets Revelation of them,] and ſo falling down upon his face he will worſhip God, [the Searcher of the heart,] and report [from his own experience] that God is in [or among] you of a truth. m

26. How is it then, [or what is then to be done,] Brethren? [ſince] when you come together, together, every one of you [that is a spiritual, or a gifted Person,] hath a Psalm, [or] hath a Doctrine, [or] hath a Tongue, [or] hath a Revelation, [or] hath an Interpretation [of Tongues,] let all [these] things be done to edifying; [let them be managed so as best conduceth to the end for which they were designed, Chap. 12. 7.]

27. If any speak in an unknown Tongue, let it be [used only] by two, or at the most by three [at one meeting,] and that by course, [i. e. successively,] and let one [who hath the Gift,] interpret [what is spoken.]

n 28. n But if there be no Interpreter [present,] let him [that only speaks with Tongues,] keep silence in the Church, and let him [only] speak [mentally] to himself, and to God [in Prayer, and Thanksgiving, v. 15, 16.]

29. Let the Prophets speak two or three o [successively,] o and let the other [Prophets] judge or discern.

30. [And] if [whilst one Propheses,] any thing be revealed to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace, [or cease, before the other utter his Revelation.]

31. For [so] ye [that have the Gift] may all prophesie one by one, that [by your mutual discourses] all may learn, and all may be comforted, [or exhorted to good works.]

32. And [this is not difficult for you to p do, since] p the Spirits of the Prophets are subject to, [and therefore may be restrained by,] the Prophets.

33. [And God doubtless in this case would have the first to be silent;] for God is not q the Author q of confusion, [which yet would follow upon all the Prophets speaking together, so that one should confound the other,] but of Peace, as [may be seen by the regular exercise of these Gifts] in all the Churches of the Saints.

34. r Let your women keep silence in the r
Churches, for it is not permitted to them to speak [by way of Teaching or Prophesying, but only by joyning with the Church in Prayer and Psalmody,] but they are commanded to be under Obedience, as also saith the Law, [Gen. 3. 16.]

35. And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their Husbands at home, for it is a shame, [i. e. a thing indecent,] for women
s to speak in the Church. s

36. [And whereas in this matter you think fit to practice contrary to all the Churches of the Saints, even those in Judea, I ask] What? came the Word of God out from you [to all other Churches?] or came it to you only, [and not to other Churches, that you thus differ in your practice from them?]

37. If any man think himself to be a Prophet, or Spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things I [now] write unto you, are the Commandments of the Lord. [See note on Chap. 2. 15.]

38. But if any man [pretends to] be ignorant [whether they be so or not,] let him be ignorant, [at his peril be it, I shall not contend farther with him, or ἀγνοείτω let him not be acknowledged as a true Prophet, or spiritual Person.]

39. Wherefore, Brethren, covet to prophesie, and forbid not to speak with Tongues, [provided these directions be observed, but]

40. Let all [these] things be done t de- t cently, and in order.

Annotations on Chap. XIV.

a Verse 2. Ὁ γὰρ λαλῶν γλώσσῃ, for he that speaketh with an unknown Tongue.] That what is said in this Verse is spoken only by way of Concession, as Mr. Cl. imagines, cannot be true, because it is expressly said, that in the Spirit he speaketh Mysteries; for Mysteries, when the Apostle speaketh of Spiritual Gifts, hath still relation to some profound secret things, as 1 Cor. 2. 7. & 13. 2. And πνεύματι λαλεῖ cannot here signifie, as Mr. Cl. conceives, He speaketh to his own understanding; since the Apostle, through this whole Chapter, is speaking of Spiritual Gifts, which also he expressly calleth Spirits, saying, seeing you are zealous πνευμάτων of Spirits, i. e. of Spiritual Gifts; and the Afflatus or Inspiration here was to enable the Man to speak the Mystery, and not to use the unknown Tongue. For Explication of this whole matter, let it be noted.

1*st*, That the Gift of Tongues and Prophecy, in their Original Donation, did still go together; and they who spake with Tongues spake τὰ μεγαλεῖα τῦ Θεῦ, the great things of God, Acts 2. 11. & 10. 46. they spake with tongues and prophesied, Acts 19. 6. and the Reason seems plain, viz. because the Gift of Tongues was given as an help to Prophecy. Now these two things thus joyned by God, should not have been used separately by these gifted Men; yea, the Gift of Tongues was only to be used, when they were to speak to Gentiles in their own Language, which was one great design of the Gift of Tongues, v. 22. Nor should they have used the Gift of Tongues when an Afflatus came upon them, and some Mystery was imparted to them by which the Church was to be edified, unless they knew there was one present who had the Gift of

Interpretation of Tongues: This therefore was a great Abuſe of this Gift, that, when they had a Myſtery revealed to them, they did not utter it in a Language underſtood by the Aſſembly, but only by themſelves, and ſo they did not edifie the Church by it, though it was given, as all the other Gifts were, for Edification, Chap. 12. 7. Note

2*ly*, That the Gift of Tongues being imparted per modum habitus, as a permanent Gift, like to a habit, they who had received this Gift could always uſe it at their Pleaſure, and ſo could alſo uſe it when a Prophetical Afflatus came upon them; but the Gift of Prophecy, being an Afflatus in manner of a Revelation, could be only uſed when the Afflatus came upon them; ſo that the firſt Gift might at any time be uſed without any freſh Operation of the Holy Ghoſt, whereas the ſecond Gift always required that Afflatus.

b Ver. 4. Ἑαυτὸν οἰκοδομεῖ, edifieth himſelf.] He therefore underſtood himſelf as the Church did him that propheſied. And indeed, by ſpeaking what he himſelf underſtood not, he would have been as much a Barbarian, and unprofitable to himſelf, as he was to others. To ſay with Cajetan, The words were pious which he uttered, and he had pious Affections when he uttered them, is unſatisfactory; for what if the matter of them was ſo, ſince if he underſtood them no more than a Parrot, his Piety in ſpeaking of them could be no more than that of a Parrot; he neither could know they were pious, nor receive any Benefit by them, ſuppoſing they were ſo, whilſt he underſtood nothing of them; nor could any pious Affections be raiſed in him by words not underſtood. To ſay with Grotius, Sentit in ſe vim Chriſti, he perceives the Gift of Chriſt operating in him, if he perceived not the meaning of his own words, is to talk as unintelligibly as he ſpake; for that can only ſignifie, he knew he had the Gift of Tongues, which ſure could not much edifie him who formerly had uſed that Gift, and ſo could not be ignorant he had the Gift. Moreover, doth not the Apoſtle bid him, who ſpeaks with Tongues, not interpreted, ſpeak only to himſelf, and to God, v. 28. and can he ſpeak to himſelf more than to others, who underſtandeth not himſelf? or is it fit that he ſhould ſpeak to God he knows not what? However, it is certain that the Apoſtle not only diſlikes, but plainly forbids this way of ſpeaking in the Church, v. 28. and ſo, by parity of Reaſon, forbids the like way of ſpeaking to others in the Church of Rome.

c Ver. 5. Ἵνα ἡ Ἐκκλησία οἰκοδομὴν λάβῃ, that the Church may receive Edification.] Hence I gather, that in this unknown Tongue he uttered ſomething tending to, and by God deſigned for the Edification of the Church, though by uttering his Myſtery, v. 2. in an unknown Tongue, he fruſtrated that Deſign.

Ver. 6. Ἢ ἐν προφητείᾳ, or in propheſying.] d Though Propheſying in this Verſe, being diſtinguiſhed from Revelation, Knowledge, Doctrine, ſeems only to import, the foretelling of ſomething to come, yet doth the Apoſtle in this, and the foregoing Chapter, manifeſtly ſpeak of it in the whole Latitude of the word, as comprehending all theſe other things; as v. g. Revelation; ſo v. 24. If all propheſie, and there come in an unbeliever, and one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged by all, and ſo the ſecrets of his heart ſhall be made manifeſt: According to that other ſenſe we have given of this Gift, Chap. 12. that it was that which enabled them to manifeſt the ſecret things of Men. Hence to the Prophet is aſſigned his Revelation, v. 30. 2*ly*, Γνῶσις here rendred knowledge, viz. of the Mind and Will of God. So Chap. 13. 2. If I have propheſy, and know all Myſteries, καὶ πᾶσαν γνῶσιν and all knowledge. Whence to the Prophet belongs the λόγος γνώσεως the word of knowledge, mentioned Chap. 12. 8. And this is the ordinary Notion of it, viz. that it imports a Gift by which the Mind of God, or his Will, is by the Divine Afflatus diſcovered, for the good of others. And 3*ly Doctrine*; whence the Prophet is ſaid to ſpeak to the Edifying of the Church, v. 3. ſo that all may learn of him, be exhorted and comforted by him, v. 3, 31. And Prophecy in the Old Teſtament doth often ſignifie a Divine Afflatus, enabling him who had it to compoſe Hymns or Pſalms of praiſe to God, 1 Sam. 10. 5. 1 Chron. 25. 1. Accordingly the Pſalm here mentioned, v. 26. and the ſinging with the Spirit, v. 15, 16. are the Effects of the Prophetical Afflatus by which the Chriſtians of thoſe times taught and admoniſhed one another in Pſalms, and Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, Col. 3. 16. Eph. 5. 20. And the praying in the Spirit, v. 15. or in the Holy Ghoſt, Jude 20. ſeems to be praying by a like Afflatus of the Holy Ghoſt, helping their Infirmities, and teaching them what was proper to be asked for the good of the Church; See Note on Rom. 8. 26, 27. And therefore though when they came together, every man had a Pſalm, a Doctrine, a Tongue, a Revelation, and Interpretation for the Correcting their Miſcarriages in all theſe Things, the Apoſtle gives only Rules concerning Tongues, and Propheſying.

Ver. 11. Βάρβαρος, a Barbarian.] e It was not only the Greeks that called all other Nations Barbarians, according to that of the Apoſtle, I am a Debtor to the Greek, and the Barbarian: In which ſenſe

(a) Julius Pollux reckons up γλῶτται Ἑλλάδι, καὶ βαρβάροις, the Tongue of the Greeks and of the Barbarians; but almost every other Nation called Strangers, who understood not their Language, by that Name, as the same (b) Pollux noteth in these words, τὰς δὲ Βαρβάρους καὶ ξένους ἐκάλουν. So the Jews (upon those words, when Israel came out of Egypt, and the house of Jacob מֵעַם לֹעֵז λαοῦ βαρβάρου from a strange People) say, all Language that is not the Holy Language is barbarous. So the (c) Chaldæans stiled those who spake not Chaldee, and the Romans those who spake not Latin. Hence (d) Verres is in Cicero's stile, Linguâ & Natione barbarus, by Language and by Nation a Barbarian.

f Ver. 13. Προσευχέσθω ἵνα διερμηνεύῃ, let him pray that he may interpret.] Seeing it is evident from the 4th and 28th verses, that he who spake with Tongues, understood the meaning of his own Tongue; nor can he be said to have the Gift of Tongues, who only hath the Gift of Talking he knows not what; as the Phanatici did among the Heathens; nor can it be supposed the Spirit of God should assist Men in that useless manner; these words cannot be here understood as an Exhortation to this Linguist, that he should pray that he might understand, and so be able to interpret his own words, which he already could do, had he been as willing as he was able, and had not more regarded the vain ostentation of his Gift, than the Edification of the Church. Some therefore give the sense of the words thus: Let him rather pray that he may have the Gift of Interpretation, than that of Tongues; for covet, saith the Apostle, the best Gifts, Chap. 12. 31. Seek to excel in those which tend to the Edification of the Church, v. 12. Now this doth the Gift of Interpretation more than that of Tongues. But I rather chuse to interpret them thus, 'Let him (so) pray (with 'his Gift, as) that he may (by the words 'used in his prayer, or by explaining it in a 'known language) interpret, and impart to 'others, what the Afflatus hath imparted to 'him, and not out of vain ostentation ut-'ter it in a Tongue unknown. To strengthen this sense, let it be observed first, that the Apostle here plainly discourseth of speaking with an unknown Tongue in Prayer, and of praying also by the Afflatus of the Spirit, as is apparent from the illative words, For if I pray in an unknown Tongue, my Spirit prayeth, &c. (2*ly*,) Observe from Budæus, that the Particle ὅπως is sometimes elegantly deficient, of which he gives two Instances from Aristotle, to which add these from the New Testament, as in Heaven καὶ (pro ὅπω, καὶ) ὅπι ἐπὶ γῆς, so also upon Earth, Matth. 6. 10. Luke 11. 2. καὶ εἰ ὁ Σατανᾶς, for καὶ ὅπω εἰ, and so if Satan, Mark 3. 26. As my Father sent me, κἀγὼ for ὅπω ἐγὼ, so send I you; and with this Ellipsis the word runs thus ὅπω προσευχέσθω ἵνα καὶ, let him so pray, as that he also may interpret. Or observe from Noldius and Pasor that ἵνα signifies adeo ut, so as that: So the word was hidden from them, ἵνα μὴ αἴσθωνται αὐτὸ, so as that they perceived it not, Luke 9. 45. He will do greater works than these, ἵνα ὑμεῖς θαυμάζητε, so that you may marvel at the greatness of them, John 5. 20. Did I purpose according to the flesh ἵνα ᾖ παρ' ἐμοὶ so as that there should be with me yea, yea, nay, nay, 2 Cor. 1. 17. I rejoyced that you sorrowed according to God, ἵνα so as that you might be damaged by us in nothing; So Rev. 8. 12. & 9. 20. & 13. 13. and then the words may be rendred thus, Let him pray, ἵνα διερμηνεύῃ, so as that he may interpret.

Ver. 14. Τὸ πνεῦμά μου προσεύχεται, my Spirit g prayeth.] Here Mr. Cl. asks, What Mortal would have rendred τὸ πνεῦμά μου by my Gift? I answer, every one who knows the Apostle is here speaking of Spiritual Gifts: And (2*ly*,) he not only warrants, but constrains them to do so, by saying, v. 12. seeing you are ζηλωταὶ πνευμάτων, zealous of Spiritual Gifts, and v. 32. πνεύματα προφητῶν, the Spiritual Afflatusses of the Prophets are subject to the Prophets: and v. 2. πνεύματι, he by the Spirit speaketh Mysteries. And (3*ly*,) the word πνεῦμα never signifies the Mind in all this Discourse, or the Understanding, that being in the very next Verse νοῦς, the word opposed to πνεῦμα Spirit: He adds, What intolerable language is it to say, my Gift prays? I answer, Just such intolerable language as the Spirit intercedeth, Rom. 8. 26. for that is only the Gift of the Spirit intercedeth; and though that may pass for a Catachresis, yet to say my Gift is exercised in Prayer, or as v. 15. I pray with my Gift, is to give the true meaning of St. Paul's words; When he adds, that nothing is more ordinary than for the Spirit and the Body to be opposed to one another; This is (1.) impertinent; here being no opposition betwixt the Spirit and the Body, but only betwixt the Spirit and the Mind, i. e. according to Mr. Cl. betwixt my mind and my mind, and what Mortal would have so interpreted τὸ πνεῦμά μου? 2*ly*, The thing it self is not proved by him; See, saith he, Rom. 8. 23. where yet there is no such opposition at all, but only an assertion, that they who have the first fruits of the Spirit wait for the Redemption of the Body. Now what Mortal would have interpreted these words thus, We that have the first fruits of the Mind groan, waiting for the Body opposed to it? See, says he, Gal. 6. 15. where again is no opposition betwixt the Spirit and the Body, but only betwixt the Spirit and the Flesh, or rather betwixt walking in the Spirit, that is, according to the Conduct of the Holy Spirit and fulfilling the Lusts of the Flesh. See 1 Cor. 3. 1, 3. Rom. 8 1, 4, 5, 13, 14, 15. He might more pertinently have cited 1 Cor. 7. 34. James 2. 26.

h Ver. 15. Τῷ πνεύματι, with the Spirit.] I do not think that this Phrase, with the Spirit, relates here to the Gift of Tongues, but to an Afflatus enabling them to pray and sing by the Impulse of the Holy Ghost; the uttering what this Afflatus suggested in an unknown Tongue they had before received, was the great Fault the Apostle in this Chapter endeavours to correct, the Person speaking with an unknown Tongue, is ὁ λαλῶν γλώσσῃ; the Person speaking with an Afflatus, whether Mysteries, v. 2. Prayer or Psalmody, is, ὁ λαλῶν πνεύματι, He that speaketh by the Spirit.

i Ver. 16. Ὁ ἀναπληρῶν τὸ τόπον τοῦ ἰδιώτου, who fills up the place of the Idiot.] That is, ὁ λαϊκὸς, the Laick, say Chrysostom, Theodoret, Oecumenius, and Theophylact. (e) Buxtorf informs us this is a Phrase frequent among the Jews. And (f) Maimonides teacheth, that the word place is used to denote the dignity or estimation of any Man, it being frequent with their Rabbins to say, such a one fills up the Place of his Fathers in such a thing, that is, he resembles them. So (g) Epictetus in his Enchiridion saith, Ἢ φιλοσόφου τάξιν ἐπέχειν δεῖ, ἢ ἰδιώτου, Thou must either hold the Place of a Philosopher, or of one Unlearned. So that to fill up the place of an Idiot or unlearned Person, is to be one of them, or to be like them in want of understanding of strange Tongues. Ridiculous therefore are those Popish Commentators, who interpret this of the Clerk of the Congregation, there being no such Office then, either among Jews or Christians: But when the (h) Minister of the Synagogue said Prayers, all the People of the Synagogue answered Amen after him. It was the Custom in the Jewish Church, saith (i) Buxtorf, to say Amen to the Blessings or Cursings of the Priest. To his Curses; so the Woman suspected of Adultery, was to confirm his Imprecations by saying, Amen, Amen, Numb. 5. 22. So all the People answered Amen to the Curses pronounced from Mount Ebal, Deut. 7. 15—26. And to the Oath and Imprecation imposed upon them by Nehemiah, Neh. 5. 12, 13. To his Blessings; So when Ezra blessed the Congregation, all the People answered Amen, Amen, Neh. 8. 6. And this Practice was from them translated to the Primitive Church.

Ver. 21. Ἐν τῷ νόμῳ γέγραπται, in the Law it is written.] All Interpreters I have met with refer this to the saying of the Prophet Isaiah, Chap. 28 11. telling us, it is there mentioned as a Miracle shew'd to the People, that God would send Prophets to them in a Language they understood not; but I find no mention of any Miracle there; wherefore it may be noted that in the Law, properly so called, among the Curses threatned to them (k) for a sign and a wonder, this is one, that the Lord shall bring against them a Nation whose Tongue they understood not; and then 'tis intimated that yet they would not hear; To both these Places the Apostle may here refer. k

Ver. 23. Ἢ ἄπιστοι.] Here Grotius notes that Heathens and Unbelievers then used to come to the Assemblies of the Christians; and so we read they did, Acts 13. 44, 48. and whilst they Assembled in the Jewish Synagogue it could not be otherwise. l

Ver. 25. Τὰ κρυπτὰ τῆς καρδίας αὐτοῦ φανερὰ γίνεται, the secrets of his heart are made manifest.] For as Theophylact notes, ἡ ἀποκάλυψις εἶδός ἐστι προφητείας, Revelation is one Species of Prophesie; and though it be taken in a restrained sense, and so distinguished from Prophesie, v. 6. yet v. 30. 'tis supposed that Revelation belongeth to a Prophet; and the Doctrine, the Revelation, the Psalm, v. 26. do all seem to belong to the Prophet; the Speaker with Tongues, the Interpreter of them, and the Prophet, being the only Persons mentioned in the ensuing words, and in this whole Chapter; so that what cannot be ascribed to the one, must belong to the other. See Note on Chap. 12. v. 10. m

Ver. 28. Ἐὰν δὲ μὴ ᾖ διερμηνευτὴς σιγάτω, but if there be not an Interpreter, let him be silent.] The Apostle permits him to use his Tongue in the Presence of one who had the Gift of Interpretation of Tongues, because then the Church was not only edified by the Interpretation, but the Faith of the Hearers was confirmed by the Exercise of two Miraculous Gifts; but the Apostle permits him not to be his own Interpreter, though he could do it; because his speaking that first in an unknown Tongue, which he himself must afterward interpret in a known Language, served only for Ostentation, not for Edification; nor could it be known whether his Tongue was supernatural, or acquired only. n gest any falshood to him that had it, there can be no ground to judge him that had it, as (l) Grotius hath well observed upon this place. But, saith Theodoret, as the Devil raised up false Apostles to oppose the true Apostles, 1 Tim. 4. 1. so did he also false Prophets, 2 Pet. 2. 1. 1 John 4. 1. in opposition to those who truly were inspired, and of these, say the Greek Interpreters, the true Prophets were to judge. Or else διακρινέτωσαν, let them discern the Agreement of what they utter, with the dictates of the same Spirit in the Old Testament, comparing spiritual things with spiritual, 1 Cor. 2. 13. So in the Conference Acts 15. when Peter had given his Judgment in that matter, St. James adds, with this agree the words of the Prophets, as it is written, v. 15.

p Ver. 32. Πνεύματα προφητῶν, the Spirits of the Prophets are subject to the Prophets.] The common interpretation of these words, that the Spirits of the true Prophets are subject to the Judgment, Examination and Regulation of other Prophets, seems not agreeable to the Apostle's Affirmation, that he that is spiritual is judged of none, 1 Cor. 2. 13, 15. nor is there any ground for judging his Doctrine, who speaks by the Impulse of the Holy Ghost; nor doth the Apostle say, the Spirits of the Prophets ought to be, but ὑποτάσσεται it actually is subject to the Prophets. I prefer therefore the Interpretation of (m) Oecumenius and Theophylact, that this is spoken in opposition to the Heathen Prophets; for the Prophets among the Greeks receiving an Afflatus from the Evil Spirit, could not be silent if they would; but it was not so with the Holy Prophets; they had it in their power to speak, or to be silent: and to this the Apostle refers, by saying the Spirits of the Prophets, that is, their spiritual Gifts are subject to the Prophets; that is, 'tis in their power to restrain them, and consequently they may Prophesie the one after the other. And upon this account the Church rejected the Extatic Prophets of the Montanists, that they had an ungovernable impetus; for, say they, (n) they can shew no truly inspired Prophet in the Old or New Testament who was moved after this manner. Moreover, it is the opinion of Persons eminently Learned and Judicious, that in Corinth, and some other Churches, there were then no settled Pastors to perform the Publick Offices, but they were all performed by Prophets, and by gifted Men, excited to that work in the Assembly, Christ being thus in the midst of them, Matth. 18. 20. according to his Promise. And this they judge more probable touching the Church of Corinth, because there seems no order to be observed among them, and no Subjection of their Prophets to any Ruler of the Church, no direction of the Sentence to them when the Incestuous Person was to be delivered up to Satan, or when he was to be Absolved; but all seems to be done by the immediate Authority of St. Paul. They also from this Chapter do observe, that whereas all the Publick Offices then performed in the Church were Prayer and Psalmody, Expounding or Preaching the Word, and Thanksgiving, all these are here ascribed to Men endowed with these Spiritual Gifts; for that when they came together, some of them prayed, others composed Sacred Hymns by their Spiritual Gifts, we plainly read, v. 15. that their Prophets did then teach for Edification, Instruction, and Comfort, v. 3, 31. That they did also εὐλογεῖν bless, and εὐχαριστεῖν give thanks, we learn from v. 16, 17. that all, or any of these things, were done by stated Pastors, we never read in these Epistles: Now if this were so, the occasional Prophets might be subject to the standing Prophets mentioned Chap. 12. And thus these words may be interpreted by them, who like not the Exposition given in the Paraphrase.

Ver. 33. Ἀκαταστασίας, of Confusion.] This also confirms the Interpretation given of the preceding words; for the prophesying of many together would necessarily breed Confusion; whereas the neglect of judging of their Prophesies, could only be supposed to breed Error. q

Ver. 34. Αἱ γυναῖκες ὑμῶν, Let your Women be silent in the Church] In that of Corinth the Women not only prophesied in the Church, but they did it with the Head uncovered, 1 Cor. 11. 5. The latter Indecency he corrects there, and the first here; See 1 Tim. 2. 12. r

Ver. 35. Ἐν ἐκκλησίᾳ λαλεῖν, to speak in the Church.] So the (o) Hebrew Canon saith, a Woman must not read in the Synagogue for the Honour due to that Assembly. s

CHAPTER XV.

Verſe 1. MOreover, Brethren, I declare to you the Goſpel which I preached to you, which alſo ye have received, and wherein ye ſtand, [Gr. have ſtood.]

a 2. [a] By which alſo ye are [in the way to be] ſaved, if ye keep in memory what, [i.e. retain the Goſpel as,] I preached [it] to you; [which you will do] unleſs ye have believed in vain.

3. [I declare, I ſay, the Goſpel which I preached;] For I delivered to you firſt of all, [or among the Principal Doctrines of Faith,] that which I alſo received, how that Chriſt died for our Sins according to the Scripture.

4. And that he was buried, and that he roſe again the third day according to the Scriptures;

b 5. And that he was ſeen [after his Reſurrection] of Cephas, [Luke 24. 34.] then [b] of the twelve, [v. 36. John 20. 19, 26.]

6. [And that you may not depend upon their Teſtimony only;] After that he was

c ſeen of above [c] five hundred Brethren at once, of whom the greater part remain unto this preſent [day to teſtifie it,] but ſome are fallen aſleep.

d 7. After that he was ſeen [d] of James, then of all the Apoſtles [at his Aſcenſion.]

8. And laſt of all he was ſeen of me alſo

e [Acts 9. 17.] [e] as of one born out of due time [or ſhape.]

9. For I am the leaſt of the Apoſtles, [and one] that am not meet to be called an Apoſtle, becauſe I perſecuted the Church of God.

10. But by the grace [and favour] of God [notwithſtanding] I am what [now] I am, and his grace which was beſtowed upon me was not in vain; but I laboured more abundantly than they all; yet [it is it] not I, but the grace of God that was with me, [to which the fruit of all my labour is to be aſcribed.]

11. Therefore whether it were I, or they [who preach the Goſpel,] ſo we preach, and ſo ye [alſo] believed.

12. Now if Chriſt be [ſo] preached, that [all, who do ſo, unanimouſly affirm] he roſe

f from the dead, [f] how ſay ſome among you, that there is no Reſurrection of the dead?

13. But [or for] if [it be ſo that] there be no Reſurrection of the Dead, then is Chriſt not riſen.

14. And if Chriſt be not riſen, then is our preaching [in] vain, and your faith is alſo vain.

15. Yea, and we are [then] found falſe witneſſes of God, becauſe g we have teſti- g fied of, [or by,] God, that he raiſed up Chriſt, whom he raiſed not up, if ſo be that the dead riſe not [at all.]

16. For if the dead riſe not, then is not Chriſt raiſed.

17. And if Chriſt be not raiſed, your faith is vain, you are yet in your ſins, [not juſtified, not abſolved from them, ſeeing he died for our ſins, and roſe again for our juſtification, Rom. 4. 21.]

18. Then they alſo who have fallen aſleep in Chriſt, [and ſuffered for his Name,] are periſhed, [ſo as never to riſe up out of that ſleep, and ſo were truly miſerable.]

19. [For] h if in this life only we have hope h in Chriſt, we [Chriſtian Sufferers] are of all men moſt miſerable.

20. But now is Chriſt riſen from the dead, and become the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept, [who therefore ſhall follow after him thus riſen, as the whole Harveſt follows the firſt-fruits, v. 23.]

Ver. 21. For ſince by man came death, by man came alſo the Reſurrection of the dead, [the wiſdom of God ſo ordering it, that the ſame Nature which had loſt life and immortality, ſhould regain it.]

22. For as in [the Man] Adam, [and for his ſin in eating the forbidden fuit,] all [men proceeding naturally from him] dye, even ſo

i in, [and by, the Man] Chriſt, ſhall all i [partakers of his Nature and Spirit] be made alive.

23. But every man in his own order, Chriſt the firſt-fruits, afterwards they that are Chriſt's k at his coming [to judgment.] k

24. Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up, [Gr. deliver up,] the [Mediatory] Kingdom to God, even the Father, when he ſhall have put down all [other] Rule, and all Authority and Power, [both of Men and Devils which oppoſed his Church.]

25. [Which Kingdom till then he cannot deliver up,] For he muſt reign [according to the the Promise, Psal. 110. 1.] till he [who made this Promise] hath put all Enemies under his feet.

26. The last Enemy which shall be destroyed [by him] is Death.

27 For he [namely the Father,] hath, [saith the Psalmist,] put all things under his feet: but when he saith all things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted [from this subjection] who did put all things under him. [See Note on Heb. 2. 8.]

28. And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself [lay down his Kingly Office in governing his Church, and as Man] be subject to him that
l put all things under him, l that God, [the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost,] may be [immediately] all in all, [by a full Communication of himself to, and an intimate Union with all his Saints.]

29. [I say, in opposition to them among you who say, there is no Resurrection from the Dead, that Christ is risen, and become the first-fruits of them that slept;] Else what
m shall [will] they do m who are baptized for the dead, [as they must be, if he in whose name they are baptized be still dead,] if the dead rise not at all? [and so Christ himself is not risen,] why are they then [who hold this Doctrine] baptized for the dead?

30. And why stand we in jeopardy every hour [for a dead Jesus?]

31. I protest by your rejoycing, [i. e. by that rejoycing,] which I have [common with you under all our Sufferings, Rom. 5. 3.] in Christ Jesus our Lord, I [run the hazard to] dye daily; [or by that rejoycing I have in you, as my Children, and the fruits of my labours in Christ, 1 Cor. 9. 16. 2 Cor. 1. 14. & 7. 4. & 9. 2. Phil. 2. 16. 1 Thess. 2. 19.]

n 32. If n after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me if the dead rise not? [it will be then more reasonable to say,] Let us eat and drink, for to morrow we dye, [Isa. 22. 13.]

33. [But] be not deceived [with such Discourses, rather avoid them, for] evil Communications corrupt good Manners.

34. Awake to righteousness, and sin not, [which Advertisement is very needful,] for some [among you] have not the knowledge of [that Righteousness of] God, [which doth oblige him to render to men according to their works; 2 Thess. 1. 6. 7. Heb. 6. 10.] I speak this to your shame.

35. But some men will [yet] say, How o are the dead raised up [again?] o and with what [kind of] Body do they come?

36. Thou fool, [who makest an enquiry about a matter of which thou hast an instance in the very seed thou sowest, for] that which thou sowest is not quickned except [first] it dye, [and lie buried in the Earth.]

37. And [again,] that which thou sowest, [when,] thou sowest [it, is] not that Body which shall be [again produced,] but p bare, p [or naked,] grain, it may chance of wheat, or of some other grain.

38. But God giveth it a body [cloathed] as it hath pleased him, and [yet] to every seed [he giveth, with the cloathing,] his own [kind of] body.

39. [And as] all flesh is not the same [kind of] flesh, but there is one kind of flesh of men, another [kind of] flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds;

40. [And as there is like difference in the qualities of Bodies; for] there are also Celestial Bodies, and Bodies Terrestrial; but the glory of the Celestial is one, and the glory of the Terrestrial is another;

41. [And as in the Celestial Bodies] there is one glory of the Sun, and another glory of the Moon, and another glory of the Stars; for one Star differeth from another Star in glory;

42. So also is [it as to] the Resurrection of the dead, [the Body raised being in quality much different from the earthly Body, we at present have, for] it is sown in corruption, [frail, mortal, subject to death and putrefaction,] it is raised in incorruption, [not subject any more to death or dissolution.]

43. It is sown in dishonour, [with some dishonourable parts, 1 Cor. 12. 23. a vile Body, Philip. 3. 21. subject to filth and deformity,] it is raised in glory, [in clarity and splendor, shining like the Sun, Matth. 13. 43. and like Christ's glorious Body, Philip. 3. 21. free from all defect, or deformity of its Members, or from any dishonourable parts; 1 Cor. 6. 13.] it is sown in weakness, [subject to weakness by labour, to decays by age, to impotency and wasting by diseases,] it is raised in power, [nimble, strong, active, and that without venitency, or molestation, grief, pain, or lassitude.]

44. It is sown a q natural, [Gr. an Animal,] body, [having multiplicity of Organs, Muscles, Tendons, Arteries, Veins, Nerves, by which, by the Assistance of the Animal and Vital Spirits, it perceives, moves, and conveys nourishment to all its parts, and so wanting continual Recruits of Meat and Drink;] it is raised a spiritual Body, [possessed and acted by the Holy Spirit, and advanced so far to the perfection of Spirits, as to be free from grosness, ponderosity, from needing rest, sleep, or sustenance;] there is a natural [Gr. animal] body, and there is a spiritual body. q

45. And so it is written, The first Man Adam, [from whom we all derive our Bodies, and our Animal Life,] was made a living Soul; [Gen. 2. 7. whereas] the last Adam, [i. e. Christ,] was made r a quickning spirit; r [as having power to quicken, and confer eter- nal life on all his Members; or, as being the Giver of that quickning Spirit, by which we ſhall be raiſed from the dead, and made ſpiritual as his Body is.]

46. [I ſay there is an Animal Body, and there is a ſpiritual Body,] Howbeit that [Body] was not firſt which is ſpiritual, but that which is natural, [Gr. animal,] and afterwards that which is ſpiritual.

47. [For] the firſt man [Adam] is, [was,] of the Earth, earthy, [having a Body formed of it; and ſo the Animal Body derived from him muſt be earthy;] the ſecond Man is the s Lord [deſcending] s from Heaven [to raiſe our Bodies, and advance them to that place.]

48. As is [was] the earthy, ſuch are they alſo that are earthy, [and live in the Animal Body as he did,] and as is the heavenly, ſuch are they [to be] alſo that are [to have] heavenly, [immortal, and ſhining Bodies.]

49. And as we have born the image of the earthy [Adam, being begotten, after his fall, in his own likeneſs, with earthy mortal Bo- t dies, Gen. 5. 3.] ſo we ſhall alſo t bear the image of the heavenly, [partaking in our Bodies of his heavenly glory, he changing our vile Bodies into the likeneſs of his glorious Body, Philip. 3. 21.]

u 50. Now this I ſay, Brethren, that u fleſh and blood, [ſuch as ours is,] cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, neither doth, [or can,] corruption inherit incorruption.

51. Behold, I ſhew you a myſtery, [i. e. x a thing not known to you before,] x we ſhall not all ſleep, but we ſhall all be changed, [in our Bodies, before they enter into this Kingdom.]

y 52. y In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the laſt trump; for the Trumpet ſhall ſound, and the dead [in Chriſt] ſhall be raiſed incorruptible, and we [Chriſtians that are then alive] ſhall be changed, [as to this mortal Body.]

53. For this corruptible [Body] muſt put on incorruption, and this mortal [body] muſt put on immortality.

54. So when this corruptible ſhall have z put on incorruption, and this mortal ſhall z have put on immortality, then ſhall be brought to paſs the ſaying that is written, aa Death is ſwallowed up in victory; [i. e. aa is overcome for ever, ſo as never to have any ſtrength or power over our bodies any more.]

55. [So that Chriſtians may ſing triumphantly in the words of the Prophet Hoſea, Chap. 13. 14.] O Death, bb where is thy bb ſting? O Grave, where is [now] thy victory? [it is for ever ſwallowed up of life, 2 Cor. 5. 4.]

56. The ſting of death, [or that which cauſed death,] is, [was,] ſin, and the ſtrength of ſin [to ſubject us to it] is, [was] the the Law [threatning death for it.]

57. But thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory [over it] through [the death, and reſurrection of] our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

58. Wherefore, my beloved Brethren, be ye ſtedfaſt [and] unmoveable, [by any temptations from this Faith, and be ye] always abounding in the work of the Lord, foraſmuch as ye know, that your labour is not in vain in the Lord, [but ſhall be plentifully recompenced by him at the Reſurrection of the Juſt.] a Verſe 2. Δι' ὃ καὶ σώζεσθε, by which alſo ye are ſaved.] They who by imbracing the Chriſtian Faith were brought into that way, which leadeth to Salvation, and in which, if they perſevered, they would aſſuredly be ſaved, are ſtiled in Scripture, οἱ σωζόμενοι, the ſaved, Acts 2. 47. 1 Cor. 1. 28. and are ſaid σωζεσθαι, to be ſaved, Rom. 8. 24. 2 Tim. 1. 9. 1 Pet. 3. 21. See Note on Eph. 2. 5, 8. and on Tit. 3. 5. So here it ſignifies, you are at preſent in a ſtate of Salvation, and will aſſuredly enjoy it, if you retain, and live ſuitably to the Faith delivered to you.

b Ver. 5. Τοῖς δώδεκα, of the twelve.] i. e. Of the Society of the Apoſtles, conſiſting formerly of twelve Perſons, and therefore ſo called ſtill, John 20. 24. though in ſtrictneſs of ſpeech they were but eleven when Thomas was with them, and ten in his abſence, Matth. 28. 16. Luke 24. 33.

c Ver. 6. Πενταχοσίοις ἐφάπαξ, to five hundred Brethren.] Of whom he was ſeen in Galilee, where he had many Diſciples; for before his Reſurrection he told his Diſciples, that being riſen, he would go before them into Galilee, Matth. 26. 32. After his Reſurrection the Angel ſent this Meſſage to them, Behold, he goes before you into Galilee, there you ſhall ſee him, as he ſaid unto you, Mark 16. 7. Now it may reaſonably be thought that the eleven, who went themſelves into Galilee, to the Mountain which Jeſus had appointed, even after they had ſeen him at Jeruſalem, Luke 24. 33, 36. would acquaint the Seventy, and others who believed in Jeſus, where it was he appointed to be ſeen of them; and then, no doubt, their Curioſity, as well as their Affection to him, would induce them to repair to the place. Now that they who had believed in Jeſus were very many, will be evident, if we conſider how often it is ſaid in the Goſpels, that many believed on his Name, John 2. 23. & 7. 31. & 8. 30.

8. 30. & 10. 42. and that great multitudes believed on him, John 12. 42. & 4. 1. That many of the Rulers believed on him, that he baptized more Disciples than John, and that the Pharisees complained that the World was gone after him. If you say we only read of the eleven going to Galilee, Matth. 28. 16. I answer, that others might go with them, though no mention be made of them; or that the rest might be Inhabitants of Galilee, where most of Christ's Disciples dwelt. If you still object, that the number of the Names of Christ's Disciples after his Ascension, are reckon'd only one hundred and twenty, Acts 1. 15. it is answered by Dr. Lightfoot, that the number of one hundred and twenty are not to be accounted the whole number of Believers at that time, but only the number of those who had followed Christ continually, v. 21. to be sure they were not all the Disciples in Judea, but only in Jerusalem.

That this Appearance of Christ to them was before his Ascension, is evident, because this was in Galilee, Luke 24. 50. and saith Tradition, on Mount Tabor; his Ascension was nigh to Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives, Acts 1. 12. And Christ and his Angel giving them such timely notice of his going before them to the place, it is probable it was some considerable time before his Ascension.

As for the Note of some, That Christ was seen of these five hundred Brethren in the Air, because the Greek word is ἐπάνω, upwards, it seems very light; for that word joyned with Numbers still signifies plusquam, or more than, as doth our English word upwards, and the Hebrew מעלה so Mark 14. 5. ἐπάνω τριακοσίων δηναρίων, is more than three hundred pieces of silver; ἀπὸ πέντε καὶ εἰκοσαετοῦς καὶ ἐπάνω, from five and twenty years and upwards, Numb. 4. 3, 23, 30, 35, 39, 43, 47. Chap. 8. 25. ἀπὸ εἰκοσαετοῦς καὶ ἐπάνω, from twenty years and upwards, Numb. 1. 3, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28. Chap. 14. 29. 1 Chron. 23. 24. 2 Chron. 31. 17. Ezra 3. 8. ἀπὸ μηνιαίου καὶ ἐπάνω, from a month and upwards, Numb. 3. 15, 22, 28, 34, 39, 43. Chap. 26. 62.

d Ver. 7. Ἰακώβῳ, of James] the Just, the Brother of the Lord, saith the Tradition of the Church, and the Gospel of the Nazarens. See Dr. Hammond, and Jerom in Catal. Script. Eccles.

e Ver. 8. Ὡσπερεὶ τῷ ἐκτρώματι, as of one born out of due time.] Ἔκτρωμα, say Hesychius, Phrynicus and Phavorinus, is παιδίον νεκρὸν ἄωρον, a dead Child born out of due time, ἐκβολὴ γυναικὸς, one whom the Woman casts forth. St. Paul therefore having not seen Christ, of whom he was to testifie, till after his Conversion, and our Lord's Ascension, as the rest of the Apostles had, John 15. 27. Acts 1. 21, 22. speaks of himself as a Witness born out of due time.

Ver. 12. Πῶς λέγουσί τινες ἐν ὑμῖν, how say some among you?] That there were some in the Apostles time, who taught that the Resurrection was past already, we learn from 2 Tim. 2. 18. but that they were Jews, who of Sadducees had embraced the Christian Religion, as (a) Mr. le Clerc asserts, I find no reason to believe. The (b) Gnosticks taught not that the Resurrection was past already, but only that the flesh was not fit to rise, and that it was incapable of Salvation, and incorruption, and therefore they are generally said by the Ancients to deny the Resurrection, but none of them insinuate that it was past already. The (c) Marcionites are by Clemens Alexandr. said to have held this Doctrine, and to have renounced Matrimony, because in the Resurrection, saith Christ, they do not marry. But Marcion began his Heresie in the Second Century, and therefore could not infect the Church of Corinth with it in St. Paul's time. Menander indeed taught that they who received his Baptism were made partakers of the Resurrection by it, and that they should not dye; And he, according to many of the Ancients, was contemporary with St. Paul; See Note on 2 Tim. 2. 18. But haply St. Paul refers here to none of these, but only to the Philosophers among them, as St. Chrysostom thinks: For Corinth being an eminent City of Achaia, where the Philosophers and Wise men of the World abounded, who look'd upon the Resurrection of the Flesh as a thing both impossible, and absurd, (See here Note on v. 35.) and placed their future happiness in their Exemption from the Clog, and Prison of the Body, they might put a new Construction on the Doctrine of the Resurrection, saying, it only did import a Renovation of our Manners, or a Resurrection from the Death of Sin unto a Life of Righteousness, and so it was performed already in that Baptism in which we are raised with Christ from the dead, Coloss. 2. 12.

Ver. 15. Ἐμαρτυρήσαμεν κατὰ τοῦ Θεοῦ, we have testified of God.] It being very rare that κατὰ with a Genitive Case signifies de, i. e. of, these words may be rendred per Deum, by God; as, because he could swear καθ' ἑαυτοῦ by himself, Heb. 6. 13. & v. 16. Men swear κατὰ τοῦ μείζονος, by a greater. So Matth. 26. 63. I adjure thee κατὰ Θεοῦ, by God. So in the Old Testament, the Lord hath sworn καθ' ἑαυτὸν by himſelf, or, I have ſworn καθ' ἐμαυτὸν by my ſelf, Iſa. 45. 23. Jer. 49. 13. Amos 6. 6. See Iſa. 62. 8. Amos 4. 2. & 8. 7, 14. And then the ſenſe runs thus; We have pretended to be μάρτυρες ἀυτῦ, God's witneſſes in this matter, Acts 5. 32. and by the power of Miracles, and of the Holy Ghoſt, derived from him, to bear witneſs to the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and ſo muſt be falſe Witneſſes of God, if he hath not raiſed him from the dead.

h Ver. 19. Εἰ ἐν τῇ ζωῇ ταύτῃ, if in this life only we have hope.] The Apoſtle ſeems not here to ſay, That if there ſhould be no Reſurrection of the Body, the Chriſtian could have only hope in this Life; for if the Soul be immortal, and may be happy after it's ſeparation from the Body, this ſeems not to follow: But he argues thus, If Chriſt is not riſen for our Juſtification, we are yet under the guilt of Sin, v. 17. and if ſo, both Soul and Body muſt periſh after death, v. 18. and then the hope of Chriſtians muſt terminate with this life, which being more eſpecially to them a Life of Miſery, by reaſon of the Sufferings to which their Faith doth here expoſe them, they would of all Men be moſt miſerable.

i Ver. 22. Ἐν τῷ Χριστῷ, in Chriſt.] The Opinion of the Jews was this, That the Meſſias was the ſecond Adam who ſhould raiſe the dead: (d) His name, ſay they, is called Finnon, Pſal. 72. 17. for he ſhall raiſe them that ſleep in the duſt. And the laſt Man, or Adam, is the (e) Meſſiah, who ſhall be above Moſes, and above the miniſtring Angels: He ſhall take away the old Sin from whence Death came, and in his days ſhall be the Reſurrection of the Dead; and this God intended in the Creation of Adam, that he ſhould be immortal, but Sin brought Death upon him, therefore the Divine Intention, which was not fulfilled in the firſt Adam, was fulfilled in the King Meſſiah. Thus is the Doctrine of the Church delivered by (f) Irenæus, That Chriſt took our Nature upon him, and ſuffered Death in it; That as by Man vanquiſhed, Death fell upon all Mankind, ſo by Man conquering, we may aſcend to Life: That whereas we were all dead in the Animal Adam, we may be quickned in the Spiritual.

k Ver. 23. Ἐν τῇ παρουσίᾳ ἀυτῦ, at his coming.] This Chapter contains many Arguments againſt the Doctrine of the Reſurrection of ſome Saints before the reſt, to reign with Chriſt on Earth a Thouſand years: For, (1.) from theſe words, Every man in his own order, it might have reaſonably been expected that ſome mention ſhould have been made, as of Chriſt the firſt-fruits, ſo of the firſt, and ſecond Reſurrection; but yet we ſee, that when the Apoſtle is profeſſedly ſpeaking of the Order in which we ſhall ariſe, he hath nothing to ſay of this firſt Reſurrection, which it ſeems is to happen a thouſand years before the General Reſurrection; and nothing of a firſt or ſecond Advent of our Lord; one to reign on Earth a thouſand years, a ſecond to judge all the World; and yet this double Advent is as neceſſary, as is Chriſt's reign on Earth.

Moreover the end, and the delivery up of his Kingdom, are here made contemporary with his Advent; and the Reſurrection of all that are Chriſt's, is to be at this very Advent: But how can he deliver up his Kingdom, and yet reign on Earth a thouſand years? In a word, if all that are his muſt be raiſed at his coming to the final Judgment, then none before that coming, and then they muſt be all raiſed together, not ſome a thouſand years before the reſt.

l Ver. 28. Ἵνα ᾖ ὁ Θεὸς πάντα ἐν πᾶσι, that God may be all in all.] He ſaith not that the Father, mentioned v. 24. but that God may be all in all, and ſo he ſeems to lead us to this Interpretation of the Godhead, which comprehends Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt; and then the import of the Phraſe, That God may be all in all, will be this; That the Godhead may govern all things immediately by himſelf, without the intervention of a Mediator between him and us, to exact our obedience in his Name, and convey to us his Favours and Rewards, we being then to tender all our Duty immediately to him, and derive all our Happineſs immediately from him. So that as now Chriſt, Theanthropos, God-Man is all in all, Coloſſ. 3. 11. becauſe the Father hath put all things into his hands, does all things, and governs all things by him, when this Oeconomy ceaſes, the Godhead alone will be all in all, as governing, and influencing all things by himſelf immediately.

Moreover, the Jews ſay that (g) the Kingdom of the Meſſiah ſhall return to its firſt Author, and ſo ſaith the Apoſtle here; for, though it ſhall have no ſuch end as the preceding Monarchies had, Luke 1. 32, 33. by giving place to a ſucceeding Kingdom; for till the World laſts, ἡ παραλύσεται, it ſhall not paſs away, or be diſſolved by any other Kingdom, Dan. 7. 14. but ſhall be an eternal Kingdom in the ſenſe in which he is a Prieſt for ever, and hath ✝ Ἱερωσύνην ἀπαράβατον, a Priesthood that doth not pass away, Heb.7.17, 24,25. and so he is able to intercede for ever for us; Yet as that Priesthood must needs cease, when the Subject of it ceaseth, and he hath none to intercede for, so must his Kingly Office cease, when all his Friends have that Eternal Life conferred upon them, for which this Power was committed to him, John 17. 2. and all his Enemies are become his foot stool, Psal. 110.1. when there is no more an House of Jacob to reign over, or a Throne of David to sit on, Luke 1. 32, 33. Rev. 11. 15. And the whole Office of a Mediator must then cease, when God and Man are made completely and indissolubly one.

For farther Explication of this matter, let it be observed,

1*st*, That this Mediatory Kingdom was given to our Lord by the Father; for he hath put all things in subjection to him, v.27. and that after his Resurrection; for it was given as the Reward of his Sufferings, and so could not be given till they were accomplished; He humbled himself, and became obedient to the death, even the death of the Cross; Wherefore God hath highly exalted him, and given him a Name, which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow of things in Heaven, and on Earth, and under the Earth; And that every Tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father, Philip. 2. 8, 10, 11. Accordingly after his Resurrection, he speaks to his Disciples thus, All Power is given me in Heaven and in Earth, Matth. 28.18. But why this Reward should not cease when the work is done; Why, v.g. his Dominion over Death should not cease, when Death is destroyed; his power of giving Eternal Life, or Judging, when all are judged, and none are left to be crown'd, I confess I do not understand.

2. Seeing the Humane Nature only suffered, and seeing the Divine Nature is capable of no such Exaltation, or new Dominion, 'tis certain that this Kingdom could be given to Christ only according to his Humane Nature; for though the Godhead could alone enable him to execute his Kingly Office, yet was he thus exalted, this Power and Judgment was conferred upon him, because he was the Son of Man, John 5. 27. He intercedeth still in Heaven by virtue of his Blood, all Favours are granted to the Church through him, and God will judge the World by the Man Christ Jesus.

3. During this Reign of Christ, God the Father immediately judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment to the Son, that all men might honour the Son, (by owning his Authority,) even as they honoured the Father, John 5. 22,23. (by owning his Authority over them.) He made him Lord of all things, to punish and Reward according to his Wisdom, Will, and Pleasure; And so his Humane Nature, or Christ as Man, though subject to the Father, as his Vice-Roy, acting by the Authority of him who put all things into his hands, and set him over the works of his hands, Heb. 2.7,8. and doing all to the glory of God the Father, yet seems not now to be in the same order of Subjection to the Father, as are other Creatures; i. e. so as to act by his immediate Command in all particular Transactions, as the holy Angels do, obeying his Commands, and hearkning to the voice of his Word, Psal. 103. 20. They are all ministring Spirits, Heb. 1. 13, 14. but he is set down at the right hand of God in full possession of his mediatory Kingdom. Whilst he continued on Earth, and acted only as a Prophet sent from God, he always owned, that he could do nothing of himself, but as the Father gave him commandment, so he did, and so he spake, John 5. 30. & 8. 38. & 12. 49. But being once exalted to be Lord of all things, he acteth as a Lord in all things, which relate to his Kingly Office, over his Church, giving Laws to all, as being Lord of all, and rewarding, and punishing according to his Will.

4. The Exercise of this Authority he shall then lay down when all things are subdued to him, no other Kingdom or Dominion being to be exercised in the Celestial state, but what is essential to the whole Godhead. And though he shall ever so far reign, as to be still at the right hand of God, highly exalted in Honour, Dignity, and Beatitude, and to have still religious Respect, and Veneration from all Saints, who then are to reign with him, 2 Tim. 2. 12. and be owned by them as their King; and though the effects of this Kingly Power shall continue for ever, his Enemies being destroyed, and his Saints reigning in bliss for ever, yet the Exercise of that Kingly Power shall then cease, and he as Man shall be then subject to the Father, as other Saints and Angels will be, that so as Christ before was all in all, Col.3.13. with reference to his Church, and from his fulness did they all receive, so now the Godhead may be all in all, and fill all things immediately by himself. This is only my Conjecture of the Sense of this obscure place, from which, upon better Information, I shall willingly recede.

Ver. 29. Οἱ βαπτιζόμενοι ὑπὲρ τῶν νεκρῶν, who are baptized for the dead.] For that Jesus, who, according to their Doctrine, must be still dead. To strengthen this Exposition, let it be noted, m

1*st*, That it is absolutely certain, that all who received Christian Baptism were baptized in the Name of Jesus; but it is very uncertain whether any in the Apostle's time were were baptized for them who died without Baptiſm, or to fill up the place of thoſe Chriſtians who died after Baptiſm? There is no intimation of any ſuch thing in Scripture, or in Primitive Antiquity.

2*ly*, That the Apoſtle doth not ſay, What do they that baptize for the dead? but τί ποιήσουσιν οἱ βαπτιζόμενοι, what will they do who are baptized already, if the dead riſe not again? τί καὶ βαπτίζονται, why are they alſo baptized for the dead? we who believe otherwiſe of him, and preach ἐν τῷ Ἰησοῦ by this raiſed Jeſus the Reſurrection from the dead, Acts 4. 2. may well be baptized in the Name of Chriſt; but why are they ſo, who believe him dead? what will they do? what motive can they have to ſtand to their Baptiſmal Covenant, and own a dead Man as their Lord and Saviour? what inducement can they have to continue faithful to him to the end, but this, That if they ſuffer, they ſhall alſo reign together with him? What will they do for comfort againſt the fear of death, if when they fall aſleep they periſh, and ſhall not riſe again? Muſt they not be as well the worſt of Fools, as the moſt miſerable of Men, to ſuffer thus for a dead Man, who could not help himſelf, and therefore is not likely to give them any help in Life, or hope in Death. Note

3*ly*, That ὑπὲρ often ſignifies in gratiam, on the account, or for the ſake: So Rom. 1. 5. We have received Grace and Apoſtleſhip, &c. ὑπὲρ τοῦ ὀνόματος αὐτοῦ, for his Name's ſake, Eph. 3. 13. I deſire that you faint not at my Tribulations, ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν, which I ſuffer for your ſake, Col. 3. 24. ὑπὲρ τοῦ σώματος αὐτοῦ, for the ſake of his Body, 2 Theſſ. 1. 5. That you may be accounted worthy of the Kingdom of God, ὑπὲρ ἧς καὶ πάσχετε, for the ſake of which ye alſo ſuffer. See more Examples, both Sacred and Prophane, in Scmidius on the place, and Dr. Edwards in his Preface to the Authority, &c. of the Holy Scripture.

4*ly*, Obſerve that οἱ νεκροὶ is uſed in Scripture, when ſpeaking of one ſingle Perſon. Thus when Chriſt had raiſed the Widow's Son, he bids John's Diſciples tell him, that νεκροὶ the dead are raiſed, Luke 7. 15, 22. And ſo here v. 12, 13. If there be no ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν reſurrection of one ſingle Perſon from the dead, then is not Chriſt riſen; yea, the Reſurrection νεκρῶν of the dead in general, is thrice mentioned by this Apoſtle, when ſpeaking of the Reſurrection of Chriſt alone; thus, when he ſaith, God will judge the World by Chriſt, of which he hath given us a demonſtration, having raiſed him ἐκ νεκρῶν from the dead, Acts 17. 30, 31. It follows, that when they heard him aſſerting the Reſurrection of the dead ἀνάστασιν νεκρῶν they mocked; whereas he only had aſſerted the Reſurrection of Chriſt from the dead. Thus St. Paul ſaith twice, περὶ ἐλπίδος καὶ ἀναστάσεως νεκρῶν, for the hope and reſurrection of the dead, I am called in queſtion, Acts 23. 7. & 24. 21. and yet he was not called in queſtion, about the Reſurrection of the Dead in general, for that the Phariſees believed as well as he, but only concerning one Jeſus who was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive, Acts 25. 19. or riſen from the dead. And ſo the Apoſtle ſaith Chriſt was declared to be the Son of God with power, ἐξ ἀναστάσεως νεκρῶν, by his riſing from the dead, Rom. 1. 4. And here, if Chriſt be riſen, how ſay ſome among you, that ἀνάστασις νεκρῶν οὐκ ἔστιν, there is no reſurrection of the dead? And this import of the Phraſe ſeems to be confirmed by the word ὅλως, viz. if it be wholly, and entirely true of all that are dead, that they riſe not, and ſo Chriſt is not riſen, what avails it any, that they are baptized for the dead?

Ver. 32. Κατ' ἄνθρωπον, after the manner of men.] i. e. After the uſual manner of Heathens; that St. Paul thus fought with Beaſts indeed, and they would not touch him; they, ſaith (h) Nicephorus, who writ the Life of this Apoſtle, do affirm. Theodoret ſeems plainly to hint the ſame thing in theſe words, (i) In humane opinion I was made the food of Beaſts, but I was wonderfully preſerved from them: And this ſenſe will appear the more probable, n o Ver. 35. Ποίῳ σώματι, with what kind of Body?] This was the Question of the (k) Philosophers, whose chief Objection against the Resurrection of the Flesh, and of the Body, was this; That the Body was (l) the Prison and Sepulchre of the Soul; and that it was her Punishment to be tyed to it; that the Body was the great hindrance to the knowledge of the Truth, and that we could not be truly happy, till by death we were delivered from it: It was therefore judged by them not only an impossible thing, but even an unjust, unworthy thing, for God to raise these Bodies, to be united to those Souls, whose happiness consisted in being delivered from the Body, and whose punishment it was to be confined to it; that being according to their (m) Philosophy, not to make them live, but dye again. And therefore Celsus saith, The Hope of the Resurrection of the Flesh, is the Hope of Worms, a filthy, an abominable and impossible thing, which God neither will, nor can do. Hence probably it was that the Valentinians, Marcionites, Basilidians, the Followers of Saturninus, and other Primitive Hereticks, denied so stifly τὴ σαρκὸς ἀνάστασιν, the Resurrection of the Flesh, Just. Mart. Dial. p. 307=253. and said, non esse capacem carnem vitæ, that the Flesh was not capable of Life, Iren. l. 5. c. 41. because they held with the Philosophers, Corpus esse carcerem, the Body was the Prison of the Soul; Idem. l. 1. c. 24. Now to this Objection the Apostle here returns a full and satisfactory Answer, by shewing the happy Change which shall then pass upon the raised Body; and this he seems to do with some resemblance to the Ancient Philosophy of the Pythagoreans and Platonists, and to the Sentiments of the Jews.

1. From the Phraſe κατ' ἄνθρωπον, which ſignifies, as Men uſe to do, but never, according to men's purpoſes; or, to ſpeak after the manner of men. See the Note on 1 Cor. 9. 8.

2. From the place here particularly mentioned, Epheſus, which cannot refer to the Tumult there cauſed by Demetrius, for the Apoſtle ſuffered nothing in it: Had he intended a Combat with Metaphorical Beaſts, or Savage Men, that at Lyſtra, where he was ſtoned, and left for dead, Acts 14. 19. had been more properly mentioned; See the Note on 2 Cor. 1. 8, 9, 10. where he ſpeaks of ſuch Troubles that befel him in Aſia, as made him to deſpair even of Life; though as we read nothing in the Acts of this fight with Beaſts, ſo we read nothing of that trouble. 'Tis therefore no Objection againſt this Interpretation, that this fight with Beaſts is not recorded by St. Luke, or that St. Paul ſpeaks not expreſly of it in the Catalogue of his Afflictions, 2 Cor. 11. it is ſufficient that there he tells us, he was in Deaths often, v. 23.

p Ver. 37. Γυμνὸν κόκκον, naked grain.] Note here, that the (n) Jewish Rabbins use the same similitude of Grain in the Affair of the Resurrection, and speak also of a Cloathing of the Body raised, from the Example of Grain raised with a Covering. See the Note on 2 Cor. 5. 2, 3, 4. Note also that St. Paul is not discoursing of the Identity of the raised Body, but only of the Qualities with which it is raised.

Ver. 44. Σῶμα ψυχικὸν, an animal body.] q It seems hence probable that the word sown doth not relate to the Bodies being laid in the Earth, but rather to its Production into the World; for when it is interred, it is no more an animal Body, but a Body void of life; it is not only weak, but wholly destitute of power: And this appears yet further, from the following proof of these words, It is sown an animal body, for so it is written, The first man Adam was made a living Soul. The Apostle doth indeed, v. 36, 37. speak of Seed sown in the Earth, but then he speaks of it as still alive, and having its Seminal virtue, or animal Spirit in it, and after dying there; whereas our Bodies first dye, and then are cast into the Earth.

2*ly*, Hence it is also probable, that the Apostle discourseth not here of the different degrees of Glory which the Saints hereafter shall enjoy; for he speaks only of what is raised, that is, the Body, and of the Qualities belonging to all Bodies that are raised.

3*ly*, Certain it is that the Apostle in this Chapter discourseth only of the Resurrection of the Just, since 'tis alone their Bodies that shall undergo this happy Change.

4*ly*, Observe that there is another Sense of the 44th Verse, as good as that which I have given in the Paraphrase, viz. There is an Animal Body, i. e. a Body fitted for this lower sensible state in which we live at present; and there is a spiritual Body, that is, a Body fitted for our Spiritual and Celestial State; in this state we are forced to serve our Bodies, and to attend their leisure, and mightily depend upon them in the Operations of the Mind; in the other, our Bodies shall wholly serve our Spirits, and minister to them, and depend upon them, and therefore may be stiled spiritual. But

5*ly*, That our Bodies shall be then spiritual, thin and aerial, is neither a new Doctrine, nor proper to the followers of Origen, for so both St. Chrysostom and Theophy- laſt upon the place allow it to be. What incredible thing aſſert we, ſaith Iſidore (o) Peleuſiot, if we ſay the Body is ſmall and aerial? for by this we do not deny it to be the ſame body. And again, the Apoſtle calls our Bodies ſpiritual, διὰ τὸ κοῦφα καὶ αἰθέρια μέλλειν ἔσεσθαι, (p) becauſe they ſhall hereafter be light and etherial. And this which the Apoſtle here ſays, is ſuitable to the Philoſophy of the Pythagoreans and Platoniſts, who taught that good and pure Souls were by death delivered from thoſe groſs and earthly Bodies which preſs down the Soul, Wiſd. 9.15. and were after the diſſolution of the Body, ſaid they, will be at the Reſurrection of the Body, ſaith he, (q) inveſted with thin and aerial, with active and ſpiritual, with bright and ſhining, and laſtly, with celeſtial and eternal Bodies. Now to this plainly anſwers the Deſcription of our raiſed Bodies here given by St. Paul, in anſwer to the ſecond Queſtion of the Philoſophers at Corinth, With what Bodies do they come forth out of the Grave? declaring in their very terms, that this Body will be σῶμα πνευματικὸν καὶ ἐπουράνιον, a ſpiritual and celeſtial Body, v. 44, 46, 48, 49. 2 Cor. 5. 1. that it will be οἰκία αἰώνιος, an eternal Houſe, σῶμα ἄφθαρτον καὶ ἀθάνατον, an incorruptible and immortal Body, v. 53, 54. that it will be raiſed ἐν δόξῃ in glory, and ſo be αὐγοειδὲς a ſhining Body. The juſt, ſaith Chriſt, ſhall then ſhine as the Sun, and as the brightneſs of the Firmament, Matth. 13.43. and as the Stars, ſaith Daniel, Dan. 12. 3. And this anſwers to the σῶμα ἀεροειδὲς, which theſe Philoſophers mention as the ſame with their αὐγοειδὲς, ſhining Body. Laſtly, it is raiſed in power, and this is in ſenſe the ſame with their σῶμα εὐκίνητον, agile Body, and of quick motion. Indeed the Parallel is ſo exact, that ſeeing I find nothing of this Nature in the Life of Pythagoras, writ by Diogenes Laertius, or in Plato, but only in thoſe Writers who lived ſince Chriſt's time, and were profeſſed Enemies of Chriſtianity, Hierocles, Porphyry, Proclus and Jamblicus, I am apt to ſuſpect, that as in other things they apparently dreſſed up their Philoſophy and Morality anew, to accommodate it the better to the Chriſtian Philoſophy, that ſo there might ſeem leſs need of Chriſtianity; and particularly made the Felicity of Souls hereafter much like the Chriſtian Doctrine, that ſo they might deſtroy, or render needleſs the Doctrine of the Reſurrection; ſo they gave to the dying Souls of good Men this ὄχημα ψυχῆς, or vehicle of a ſpiritual, immortal, ſhining, heavenly Body alſo, from the Chriſtian Notion of the Change our raiſed Bodies ſhould then undergo.

Ver. 45. Πνεῦμα ζωοποιοῦν, a quickning Spirit.] All the Ancients, till St. Auſtin, by a Spiritual Body, ſeem to underſtand a Body poſſeſſed and acted by the Holy Spirit, as the Natural Body is by the Animal and Vital Spirits, and ſay that Chriſt was made a quickning Spirit, by the Seed of the Holy Spirit, which unites him to all his Members, and confers on them a new Life and Immortality. (r) Irenæus is very expreſs and copious in this matter, ſaying, That, as from the beginning of our frame in Adam, that inſpiration of Life, which proceeded from God, united to the Body, animated Man, and made him a reaſonable Creature; ſo in the end, the Word of the Father, and the Spirit of God united to the old ſubſtance of the frame of Adam, make a living and a perfect Man, receiving the perfect Father; that as we all died in the Animal, we may be all quickned in the Spiritual Adam; and that by the Spirit the Bodies riſing are made ſpiritual, as by the Spirit they have life eternal: It is called ſpiritual, as putting on the Spirit, ſaith (s) Tertullian. As receiving the whole Energy and Communion of the Spirit, ſaith (t) Methodius. And that the Reſurrection of the Juſt ſhall be effected by the Spirit of God, ſeems to be plainly taught by the Apoſtle in theſe words, If the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead dwell in you, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you, Rom. 8.10 And this agrees with the Opinion of the Jews, who aſcribe the Reſurrection to the Spirit, from Ezek. 37.10. and in particular to the Spirit of the Meſſiah. And from this differs not much the Opinion of Theodoret, and others, That Chriſt is made a quickning Spirit, becauſe he himſelf being quickned by the Spirit,

1 Pet. 3. 18. hath in himself the power to quicken, and raise the Bodies of his Servants to eternal Life; For as the Father raiseth up the dead, and quickneth them, so the Son quickneth whom he will, John 5. 21. and as the Father hath life in himself, so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself, v. 26.

s 47. Ἐξ οὐρανοῦ, from Heaven.] Not as some phancy, because Christ's Body was from Heaven, and not from the Virgin Mary; for the Scripture expresly teacheth, that he was begotten ἐξ αὐτῆς from her Body, Matth. 1. 16. Luke 1. 35. and was the fruit of her Womb, Luke 1. 42. that he was made ἐκ γυναικὸς, out of a Woman, and came from the Fathers τὸ κατὰ σάρκα, according to the flesh, Rom. 9. 5. And had his Body been derived from Heaven, it must have been immortal, as our Bodies will be when we bear the Image of the Heavenly Adam; both which things make it necessary to interpret the Lord from Heaven, as I have done in the Paraphrase.

F. 24. 1. read Portemus, which answers to the Greek φορέσωμεν, as reads St. Chrysostom, and as the Alexandrian and other Copies read. The other reading is owned by Origen against Celsus twice, l. 5. p. 243. and also by Methodius; and Theodoret and Theophylact well note that the words are not to be read by way of Exhortation, φορέσωμεν, let us bear, but φορέσομεν, as a Prediction of what we shall be; for the Apostle, from v. 42. to this verse, still passeth on from what we were, to what we shall be; and having said, as is the heavenly, such are (i. e. shall be) they that are heavenly; he proves this, because as we have born the image of the earthy Adam, so shall we bear the image of the heavenly.

Note also that Philo speaks much like the Apostle; for he saith (u) there are two kinds of Men, one made after the Image of God, and another made out of the Earth. The last he proves from the very words the Apostle useth to prove there is a Natural or Animal Body; the first from this, That God made Man after his own Image; which Image he stiles the Divine Word; and says he is the ἀστέρι θείῳ ἀρχὴ, the Heavenly Star, the Fountain of all sensible Stars. The last he calls the earthy and corruptible Adam; the first, the Adam made after the Image which is not, saith he, (x) earthy, but heavenly. The one is heavenly, as being made after the Image of God; and so uncapable of any corruptible, or earthy substance; the other out of Seminal Matter, which the Scripture calleth Earth. But then he saith, That the heavenly Man was formed first, and after him the earthy; and perhaps for the Correction of that Error, the Apostle might here say, That was not first which is spiritual, but that which was natural.

Ver. 50. Σὰρξ καὶ αἷμα, flesh and blood, &c.] u Most of the Fathers interpret these words of Flesh and Blood, not naturally, but morally taken for the corrupt Affections of the Flesh. But,

1. Though Flesh it self in Scripture sometimes bears this sense, yet Flesh and Blood joyntly, never seems to have this import in the Scripture.

2. It is plain, and confessed by (y) St. Austin, that the Apostle is not here speaking of the Requisites to make our Souls meet to inherit this Kingdom, but of the manner of the Resurrection of the Body.

3. The Apostle speaks of Flesh and Blood as subject to Corruption here, v. 52. or of such Flesh and Blood, as must be changed, and put on Incorruption, and so of Flesh and Blood naturally taken.

4. 'Tis evident to Sense that Flesh may be cut, and divided, and Blood let out, and so must, whilst they continue such, be subject to Corruption; and also that an heavenly, and a spiritual Body, an House from Heaven, cannot consist of such Flesh and Blood as we have at present.

It therefore must be said, that though the same Flesh and Blood may rise from the Grave, it will then, or afterwards, receive such a Change as will render it spiritual or incorruptible, and so perhaps, when it comes to Heaven, will not be Flesh and Blood; or that it will be cloathed with such an heavenly Body, as will keep it from a possibility of Corruption; and so the import of these words may be this; That Flesh and Blood unchanged, and uncloathed with its heavenly Body, cannot inherit the kingdom of God.

x Ver. 51. Πάντες μὲν οὐ κοιμηθησόμεθα, πάντες δὲ ἀλλαγησόμεθα, we shall not all sleep, &c.] This reading is much to be preferred before either of the other two, viz. we shall all rise, or, we shall all sleep, but shall not all be changed. As being

1. Not only the reading of Chrysostom, Theodoret, and Theophylact on the place, but also of (z) Origen, Theodotus, Apollinarius, St. Jerom, and of Pseudo Justin, qu. 61. and 109.

2. As being inforced from the next words repeated thus, and we shall be changed, from the like words, 1 Thess. 4. 17. and from the observation of almost all the Commentators on the place, that the Apostle in this Chapter speaks only of the Resurrection of the Just; and from the falshood of the other words, we shall not all be changed, seeing the Bodies of the wicked will certainly be changed by the Fire they go into; and lastly from the Sense, for what sense is it to say, we shall not be changed in a moment, and to add this reason of that saying, viz. for the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed?

Note also that it cannot be hence concluded, that he, and the rest of the Apostles should live to the General Resurrection; No, he elsewhere discovers his Expectation, That the same God who raised up Jesus, should raise them also from the dead, 2 Cor. 4. 14. He speaks this therefore, not in his own, but in the Person of all pious Christians that should then live; See the Note on 1 Thess. 4. 15, 17.

y Ver. 52. Ἐν ἀτόμῳ, in a moment.] It is the observation of (a) St. Jerom, that by these words the Apostle, cunctam primæ, & secundæ resurrectionis, excludit fabulam, destroys the Fable of the first and second Resurrection. He doth it sufficiently in the description of the state of all the raised Bodies of the Just. For though the Patrons of this Opinion would avoid it, 'tis certain that the old Assertors of it held, that they should be raised to enjoy the Pleasures of Meat and Drink, as (b) Irenæus speaks. Now can thin, spiritual, glorious, heavenly bodies, and such as are made like to Christ's glorious Body, eat and drink, and enjoy these sensual Pleasures? Moreover, who shall be changed? those that already have been raised a thousand years? if not, they must not be alive, for Christians then alive shall be changed; but if they must be changed, then must their Bodies be raised corruptible, and they must twice bear the image of the earthy, or the animal Adam.

Ver. 54. Ἐνδύσασθαι ἀφθαρσίαν, shall put on incorruption.] The Scripture, and all the Ancients, speak of a cloathing which our raised Bodies shall put on. Thus (c) Psellus in his Commentary on the Chaldaick Oracles, saith, the Chaldees give the Soul two Cloathings; one of the spiritual Body, weaved out of that which is subject to sense; the other a shining, thin body, not subject to the Touch, which they call the Superficies; and the Conjecture of the Jews is this, that it shall be a Cloathing of Light, or of a pure flame. So the ancient Book (d) Zohar saith, that the Bodies of the just shall be cloathed with the light of glory. R. Phineas saith, the blessed God will give to the Bodies of the Just עדיות an Ornament, according to that of Isaiah, ch. 58. 11. he shall satisfie the Soul בצחצחות with white or splendid things; and R. Levi, that the Soul, in the state of its glory, sustains it self by the superiour light, and when it returns to the Body, it shall come with this light, and then the Body shall shine as with the brightness of the Heavens. And this agrees with the Transfiguration of our Lord's Body, Matth. 17. 2. and with his appearance to St. Paul, Acts 9. 3. and to St. John, Rev. 1. 14, 15. and to the Descriptions made in the Old Testament, of the Just rising from their Graves, that they shall shine as the brightness of the Firmament, and as the Stars for ever, Dan. 12. 3. Wisd. 3. 7. And in the New, that they shall shine as the Sun in the Kingdom of the Father, Matth. 13. 43. and thus may they be salted, and preserved from Corruption by Fire, Matth. 9. 49.

z Ibid. Κατεπόθη ὁ θάνατος εἰς νῖκος, Death is swallowed up in victory.] Or, for ever, as εἰς νῖκος often signifies; So, shall the Sword devour εἰς νῖκος for ever? 2 Sam. 2. 26. And Chap. 8. 7. He will not forget their works εἰς νῖκος for ever: Nor is the Phrase εἰς νῖκος used in any other sense in the Septuagint. Though therefore Death is represented as the last Enemy to be vanquished, v. 26. and the Apostle asks, O Grave where is thy victory! and gives thanks to God, who giveth us the victory, v. 55, 57. yet seeing he hath given us this victory by swallowing Death up for ever, by swallowing up Death of Life Eternal, 2 Cor. 5. 4. Annotations on Chap. XVI.

a Verſe 2. Κατὰ μίαν Σαββάτων, upon the firſt day of the week.] So we read in St. Matthew, that our Lord roſe from the dead τῇ μιᾷ τῶν Σαββάτων upon the firſt day of the week, Matth. 28. 1. in St. Mark, that the Sabbath being over, Mary Magdalen and others came early τῇ μιᾷ τῶν Σαββάτων, the firſt day of the week, Mark 16. 9. and found Chriſt riſen from the dead; and in St. Luke, that they reſted on the Sabbath day, according to the Commandment, and that they came to the Sepulchre τῇ μιᾷ τῶν Σαββάτων, on the firſt day of the week, Luke 23. 56. & 24. 1. and ſo accordingly ſaith St. John, John 20. 1. So that this Phraſe doth certainly import the firſt day of the week, the day of our Lord's Reſurrection from the dead; and this the word μία uſually ſignifies in the Septuagint, when it is joyned with days, weeks, and months; as the evening and the morning were ἡμέρα μία the firſt day; So ἡμέρα μία τοῦ μηνὸς, is the firſt day of the month, Exod. 40. 2. Ezra 3. 6. & 10. 17. and μία τοῦ μηνὸς is the firſt day of the month, Lev. 23. 24. Numb. 1. 1, 18. & 19. 1. & 33. 38. Deut. 1. 3. Ezek. 26. 1. & 32. 1. & 45. 18. Hag. 1. 1. & 2. 2.

Moreover κατὰ μίαν may be rendred, every firſt day, as (a) κατὰ πόλιν, in every City; κατ' οἶκον in every Family; κατ' ἄνδρα viritim, man by man; κατὰ μῆνα every month; and κατὰ μίαν ſigillatim.

2*ly*, Obſerve that the Jews in every City where they dwelt had their (b) Collectors of Alms, who in the week days went about the City collecting Alms, according to the quality and wealth of every Jew; and in the evening of the Sabbath diſtributed to the Poor among the Jews, as much as was needful for the following week: And after this Example the Apoſtle ſeems to have ordained, that the Chriſtians ſhould lay up for the Poor, or make proviſions for them on the Lord's day.

3*ly*, Obſerve, That from the beginning the Chriſtians did aſſemble on the firſt day of the week, called by them the Lord's day, to perform their Religious Worſhip, (c) to read the Scriptures, to preach and celebrate the Lord's Supper. This day being the Lord's day, we keep it holy, ſaith (d) Dionyſius Biſhop of Corinth. On Sunday, ſaith (e) Juſtin, all Chriſtians in the City or Country meet together, becauſe that is the day of our Lord's Reſurrection, and then we read the Writings of the Prophets and Apoſtles; this being done, the Preſident makes an Oration to the Aſſembly, to exhort them to imitate; and do the things they heard; then we all joyn in prayer, and after that we celebrate the Sacrament.

4*ly*, Obſerve, That the Apoſtle gave order that here, and in the Churches of Galatia, Collections ſhould be made for the Poor on that day; and that all Chriſtians, in compliance with that Precept, ſtill offered their Alms upon that day. So (f) Juſtin Martyr; Then they that are able and willing give what they think fit, and what is thus collected is laid up in the hands of the Preſident, who diſtributes it to Orphans and Widows, and other Chriſtians, as their wants require.

5*ly*, Obſerve, That no good reaſon can be given why the Apoſtle ſhould limit the Collections of the Churches of Corinth and Galatia to the firſt day of the week, but this, that this day was appointed for the worſhip of our Lord, and ſo more fit for the Performance of thoſe Duties which concerned his diſtreſſed Members in thoſe times; for as the Works of Charity and Mercy are proper Duties of this day, ſo doth the Day contain a ſpecial Motive in it to enlarge their Charity, as being the day in which they were begotten to a lively hope, through the Reſurrection of Chriſt Jeſus from the dead, of an Inheritance incorruptible, 1 Pet. 1. 3. and in which they conſtantly participated of his precious Body and Blood, and therefore having received Spiritual things ſo plentifully from Chriſt, muſt be more ready to impart ſomewhat of their Temporals to his needy Servants.

Ver. 5. Μακεδονίαν διέρχομαι, I do paſs through Macedonia.] Not preſently, but after I have finiſhed my ſtay at Epheſus, v. 8. For that St. Paul writ this Epiſtle from Epheſus, and not from Philippi, may be gathered from the Salutation in the cloſe of it, not from the Churches of Macedonia, but of Epheſus. And b in this second Epistle he saith, He passed from Troas to Macedonia, and that there Titus came to him, 2 Cor. 2. 13. & 7. 5, 6. who was not come to him when he writ his first Epistle.

c Ver. 8. Ἕως τῆς Πεντηκοστῆς, till Pentecost.] It therefore was the following Pentecost that he hastned to be at Jerusalem, Acts 20. 16.

d Ver. 10. Ἐὰν ὁ ἔλθῃ Τιμόθεος, if Timothy come to you.] Hence it appears that this Epistle was not sent by Timothy, for then he must have come to them.

e Ver. 11. Προπέμψατε αὐτὸν, conduct him forth.] It is the observation of the Reverend and Learned Dr. Hammond, that the word προπέμπειν signifies not only to accompany one, and bring him on his way, as v. 6. but also to provide for the Necessaries of his Journey. But this seems not suitable to the Enquiry of the Apostle, Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I sent to you? Did Titus make a gain of you? 2 Cor. 12. 17.

f Ver. 12. Οὐκ ἦν θέλημα ἵνα νῦν ἔλθῃ, he was not willing to come now.] Perhaps because he would not countenance a Faction that was begun under his name, by his presence with them; which, saith Aquinas, shews he was not their Bishop, as some of the Ancients have represented him; for then he ought not to have left his Flock under so great disorders.

g Ver. 19. Σὺν τῇ κατ' οἶκον αὐτῶν Ἐκκλησίᾳ, with the Church in their House.] This Phrase doth not import that the whole Church of Corinth, &c. met in such a Family; for then this Salutation would be the Salutation of all the Christians in that place; but that this is not so, is evident from so many Salutations directed to other Persons and Families in the same place. So Rom. 16. 5. Salute Aquila and Priscilla, and the Church in their House. See the Note there. And then follow Salutations to many other Persons, and Brethren of the Church. So Coloss. 4. 15. Salute the Brethren in Laodicea, and Nymphas, with the Church in his house. See the Note there. So Philemon 2. we read thus, Paul a prisoner to Philemon — to Appio, to Archippus our fellow Souldier, and to the Church in thy house: And here, after this Salutation, follow the words, All the Brethren greet you.

It rather seems to signifie, as all the Greek Scholiasts, and Grotius say, a Family consisting wholly of Christian Converts, as was the Jaylor's house, Acts 16. 31, 32. and that of Crispus the chief Ruler of the Synagogue at Corinth, Acts 18. 8. For when it was otherwise, and the Family was not entirely converted, the Apostle alters his stile, and saith only, Salute them which are of Aristobulus's household, and of the household of Narcissus in the Lord, Rom. 16. 10, 11. Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, &c. and the Brethren that are with them, v. 14, 15. The Saints that are with them; They of the house of Cæsar salute you, Coloss. 4. 22.

Ver. 21. Τῇ ἐμῇ χειρὶ, with my own hand.] h He writing by an Amanuensis, Rom. 16. 22. still closed his Epistle with his own hand, as a Token that it came from him, 2 Thess. 3. 17.

Ver. 22. Ἀνάθεμα Μάραν ἀθά.] That Maranatha is a Syriack word, and signifies, (g) the Lord comes, most of the Ancient Interpreters inform us. Buxtorf gives us the full sense of it, saying, It is a Syrian word, by which they signified the utmost Anathema, by which a man, being excluded from all Humane Society, and obnoxious to greater Punishments than Man could inflict, was committed to the severest Judgment of the Divine Anathema, and to Eternal Destruction. As if those pious Men of old would have said, Let the Lord come, and smite him with Eternal Perdition; Let him be Reserved to the Coming of the Judge of the whole World, that he may perish by his Everlasting Curse. i

(g) Maran Atha magis Syrum est quam Hebræum, & interpretatur, Dominus venit. Hieron. Epist. 137. ad Marcel. Pseud. Amb. in loc. Μαραναθὰ τοῦτό ἐστ Ἑβραϊκὸν, ὃς τινες ὑπέλαβον, ἀλλὰ τῆ Σύρων ὀφὶ φωνῆς, ἐρμηνεύεται ὁ, ὁ Κύριος ἦλθε. THE PREFACE TO THE Second Epiſtle to the Corinthians.

THAT this Epiſtle was writ a year after the firſt, is probably collected from theſe words, Chap. 9. 2. Achaia was ready a year ago; for he having given Inſtructions for that Collection, he in theſe words refers to, only at the Cloſe of his firſt Epiſtle, they could not have the forwardneſs there mentioned before that time. Now that the firſt Epiſtle was written early in the Year 55, or 57. appears from theſe words in it, I will ſtay at Epheſus till Pentecoſt, Chap. 16. 8. For he ſtaid ſome conſiderable time in Aſia, after his purpoſe to leave Epheſus, and go to Macedonia, Act. 19. 21, 22. and yet making here his Apology for not wintering at Corinth, as he thought to do, 1 Cor. 16. 6. this Epiſtle muſt be writ after Winter, and ſo when a new Year was begun. It therefore ſeems to be written after his ſecond coming to Macedonia, mentioned Acts 20. 3. For (1.) it was written after he had been at Troas, and had left that place to return to Macedonia; now that was at his ſecond going thither; See Note on Chap. 2. 12. (2.) 'Twas written when Timothy was with him; now when he left Epheſus to go into Macedonia, Timothy went not with him, but was ſent before him, Acts 19. 22. but at his ſecond going through Macedonia, Timothy was with him, Acts 20. 4. (3.) He ſpeaks of ſome Macedonians that were like to come with him, Chap. 9. 4. Now at his ſecond going from Macedonia, there accompanied him Ariſtarchus, Secundus, and Gaius of Theſſalonica, the Metropolis of Macedonia, Acts 20. 4. And (4.) the Poſtſcript ſaith this Epiſtle was written from Philippi, as we find it in Theodoret and Oecumenius, where St. Paul was till the days of Unleavened Bread, Acts 20. 6. It therefore ſeems to be ſent from thence to them by Titus, and ſome other Perſon, not long before Paul's coming to them, which he ſpeaks of as inſtant, Ch. 13. 1. and that which he was now ready to do, Ch. 12. 14. and did, ſaith Dr. Lightfoot, in his Journey from Philippi to Troas; he ſailing about from Philippi to Corinth, to make good his promiſe; whilſt the reſt that were with him, Acts 20. 4. went directly the next Cut to Troas, and there waited for him.

A PARAPHRASE WITH ANNOTATIONS ON THE SECOND EPISTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAPTER I.

Verse 1. PAUL an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, and Timothy our Brother, to the Church of God which is at Corinth, with all the Saints which are in all Achaia. [See Note on 1 Cor. 1. 1.]

a 2. a Grace be [given] to you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

b 3. Blessed be God, even [our God, and] b the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of Mercies, and the God of all Comfort;

4. Who comforteth us in all our Tribulations, [by that inward peace, and earnest of the Spirit, he gives under them;] that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we our selves are comforted of God; [God's Servants never wanting his Comforts under all their Sufferings.]

c d 5. For as c the Sufferings of Christ abound in us, so d our Consolation also aboundeth by Christ.

6. And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which is effectual, [Gr. wrought,] in, [or by,] the enduring the same Sufferings which we also suffer, [and which by our Example you are encouraged to endure;] or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation, [which is accomplished by your patient perseverance under all your Sufferings, to which patience you are animated by the experience of that Consolation God affords his Servants under all their Sufferings, Matth. 5. 12. & 24. 13. 2 Cor. 4. 17. 2 Tim. 2. 11, 12. James 1. 12.]

7. And our hope of you is stedfast, knowing, that as you are partakers of the Sufferings [we endure, 1 Cor. 10. 13.] so shall ye be also of the Consolation [we enjoy, in all our Sufferings.]

8. [Our Sufferings, I say,] For we would not, Brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure, above strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life.

9. But we [therefore] had the Sentence of Death in our selves, that we should not trust in our selves, but in God that raiseth the dead.

e 10. Who [then] delivered us e from so great a death, and [daily] doth deliver [us,] in whom we trust that he will yet deliver us.

f g 11. f You also helping together by Prayer for us; that for g the gift bestowed upon us, [or the favour conferr'd on us,] by the means of many persons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

12. For [in all our afflictions] our rejoycing is this, the testimony of our Conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not h not with fleſhly wiſdom, but h by the grace of God, we have had our converſation in the world, and more abundantly to you wards.

13. [And of the truth of this you may reſt aſſured;] For we write no other things unto you [of it,] than what you read, [Gr. know, remember,] or i acknowledge; and I truſt you ſhall acknowledge, even to the end.

14. As alſo you have acknowledged us in part, [i. e. as to the ſounder part of the Church; See Note on Chap. 2. 5. Though ſome have repreſented us as walking according to the Fleſh, Chap. 10. 2.] that we are [juſt matter of] your rejoycing, even as ye alſo are [at preſent, and much more will be] ours, in the day of the Lord Jeſus.

15. And in this confidence [of you] I was minded to come to you before [this time,] k that you might have k a ſecond benefit, [or grace.]

l 16. l And to paſs by you, [though not ſo as to ſee you in that paſſage, 1 Cor. 16. 7.] into Macedonia, and to come again, [Gr. and again to come,] out of Macedonia to you, and of you to be brought on my way toward Judea.

17. When I therefore was thus minded, [or reſolved thus,] did I [afterwards] uſe lightneſs [in changing this Reſolution?] or things that I purpoſe, do I purpoſe [them] m m according to the Fleſh, [or carnal Intereſts,] that with me there ſhould be yea, yea, and [again] nay, nay? [i. e. inconſtancy and mutability to ſerve my Carnal Intereſts, ſo that you ſhould hence gather, that in preaching the Goſpel of Chriſt, I walk according to the Fleſh, Chap. 10. 2.]

18. [No ſurely,] But n as [ſure as] God n is true, our word towards you o was not o yea, and nay, [i. e. our preaching was not variable, we now ſaying one thing, anon another.]

19. For the Son of God, Jeſus Chriſt, who was preached among you by us, [even] by me, and Silvanus and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea.

20. p For all the promiſes of God in him p are yea, and in him amen, [i. e. are true and certain through him,] to the glory of God [demonſtrated in the confirmation of them] by us.

21. Now he that ſtabliſheth us with you in [the Doctrine of] Chriſt, and [who] hath anointed us [with the Holy Ghoſt] is God.

22. q Who hath alſo [thus] ſealed us [up to the day of Redemption, Eph. 4. 30.] and q given the earneſt of the Spirit [to be the pledge and aſſurance of it, 2 Cor. 5. 5. Eph. 1. 13, 14.] in our hearts. [See Note on 1 Cor. 1. 5, 6, 7, 8.]

23. Moreover [it was not therefore out of lightneſs, but] r I call God for a record upon r my ſoul, that [it was merely] to ſpare you, [that] I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24. [Yet this I ſay,] not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your Joy, s for by Faith you ſtand, [τῇ πίστει ἑστήκατε, for ye have ſtood in the faith.] s a Verſe 2. Χάρις καὶ εἰρήνη, Grace and Peace.] May that Grace and Favour of God, on which your Salvation and Happineſs depends, Tit. 2. 11. and that Peace which paſſeth underſtanding, Philip. 4. 7. and is the Effect of the Divine Favour, be continually with you, and derived from God the Father the Fountain of all Bleſſings, and from Jeſus Chriſt the Procurer, and Diſpenſer of them, 1 Cor. 1. 4. Eph. 1. 3. on you.

Annotations on Chap. I.

And from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.] See Note on 1 Cor. 1. 3.

b Ver. 3. Καὶ Πατὴρ, the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.] Why, ſaith Schlictingius, ſhould God be ſtiled thus, the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, if Chriſt be God equally with the Father, ſeeing by being thus diſtinguiſhed from, he ſeems to be denied to be God?

I anſwer, He is by theſe words denied to be God the Father, ſince that would render him Father to himſelf; but his being thus diſtinguiſhed from God the Father, hinders not his being God of God the Father, who by way of Eminency is ſometimes abſolutely ſtiled God, becauſe he is the Fountain of the Deity. For as the words, our Lord, aſcribed here to Chriſt, do not exclude the Father from being our Lord, ſo the word God aſcribed to God the Father, excludes not Chriſt from being what St. Thomas ſtiles him, our Lord, and our God, John 20. 28. And as God was under the Old Teſtament ſtiled the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, to confirm the Faith of the Jews in the Promiſes made to them, and their Seed; ſo is he uſually in the New Teſtament ſtiled the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to confirm to us his love in Chriſt Jeſus, his beloved Son, in whom he is well pleaſed; and to aſſure us that he is, as here it follows, the Father of Mercies in the Plural, to ſignifie according to the Hebrew way of ſpeaking, the greatneſs, and multitude of his Mercies; and the God of all Conſolation, as being the giver of that Paraclete, or Holy Spirit, whence all our Comforts are derived.

Ver. 5. Τὰ παθήματα τοῦ Χριστοῦ, the Sufferings of Chriſt.] The Sufferings of Chriſt's Members for his ſake are ſtiled his Sufferings, becauſe they are Evils inflicted on his Members out of Enmity to him, and by reaſon of c their their Myſtical Union to him, and the Sympathy he has with them in their Sufferings, Luke 10. 16. Acts 9. 4. Iſa. 63. 9. Hence is he ſaid συμπαθῆσαι to ſuffer with us in our Infirmities, Heb. 4. 15. But when the Greek Fathers add here, that (a) Chriſt ſuffered more in his Members than he did in his own Perſon; this ſounds harſh in the Ears of moſt Divines, and ſhews they had not thoſe thoughts of our Lord's Sufferings and Satisfaction which we have.

d Ibid. Ἡ παράκλησις ἡμῶν, our Conſolation] Abounds by Chriſt, becauſe as he promiſed, ſo he conferred the Spirit of Conſolation on thoſe who ſuffered for his ſake; ſo that though they received the Word with much Affliction, they did it alſo with joy in the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Theſſ. 1. 6. having the Spirit of Faith, 2 Cor. 4. 13. of Glory, and of God, reſting on them, 2 Tim. 1. 7. 1 Pet. 4. 14. See here v. 21, 22.

e Ver. 10. Ἐκ τηλικούτου θανάτου, from ſo great a death.] Moſt Interpreters refer what is ſaid in theſe three laſt Verſes to the Commotion raiſed againſt Paul by Demetrius at Epheſus, Acts 19. from v. 26. to the end of that Chapter. But we read not that in that Commotion any Hands were laid upon St. Paul, or that he ſuffered any thing. He therefore had no occaſion from it to ſay, that he was preſſed above meaſure, and above ſtrength, ſo as to deſpair of life; that he had the Sentence of Death within him; and that he was delivered from ſo great a Death, and as it were raiſed from the Dead: Theſe high Expreſſions rather ſeem to ſignifie that he indeed was put to fight with Beaſts at Epheſus, (as he ſpeaks 1 Cor. 15. 32. See the Note there,) and was by God delivered from them.

f Ver. 11. Συνυπουργούντων καὶ ὑμῶν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν τῇ δεήσει, you alſo helping together by prayer for us.] Hence note, that the more publick Prayers are, the more prevailing they will be; and alſo that God will be more glorified by the Thankſgivings rendred for the Succeſs of them. But whereas Eſthius hence pleads for Prayers to the Souls of Saints departed, the practice of the Apoſtle here, and elſewhere, is a ſtrong Argument againſt them: For he paſſionately intreats the Chriſtians living at Rome, to ſtrive together with him in their Prayers to God, Rom. 15. 30. the Corinthians to help together with him in Prayer, 2 Cor. 1. 11. the Epheſians to pray for him with all perſeverance, Eph. 6. 18, 19, the Coloſſians to continue in prayer for him, Coloſſ. 4. 1, 2, 3. the Theſſalonians to pray for him that the Word of the Lord might have free courſe, and be glorified, 1 Theſſ. 5. 25. and that he may be delivered from unreaſonable and wicked men, 2 Theſſ. 3. 1, 2. and the believing Jews to pray for him that he might ſooner be reſtored to them, Heb 13. 18, 19. But in all his Epiſtles, we have not one Petition of like nature directed to any Saint departed; whereas had he thought them capable of hearing him, and their Addreſſes more effectual for the ſame ends, we may reaſonably think his Zeal would have prompted him to put up his Requeſts to them, and leave us ſome Examples of this Nature.

Ibid. Τὸ εἰς ἡμᾶς χάρισμα, the gift beſtowed upon us.] The word χάρισμα in the New Teſtament always importing a Spiritual Gift, muſt be interpreted here of the Gifts beſtowed on St. Paul for the diſcharge of his Apoſtolical Function; and if the right reading here be ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν on our behalf, the ſenſe of this Verſe may run thus, We truſt that he will ſtill deliver us for the furtherance of the Goſpel, through the Aſſiſtance of your Prayers, that ſo the Gift being exerciſed by us through the joynt ſuffrage of many Perſons for the benefit of many, thanks may be returned by many for us. If ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν, on your behalf, as other Copies have it, be the right reading, the ſenſe runs thus; I hope to be ſtill preſerved by your prayers for the benefit of the Church, that ſo the Gift beſtowed upon us, being made uſeful to the Benefit of others by the prayers of ſo many, thanks may be given to God by many on your behalf. Which ſoever be the true reading, that he ſpeaks of the Spiritual Gift conferred upon him, will be evident from the following words, v. 12. g

Ver. 12. Ἐν χάριτι Θεοῦ, in the grace of God.] h Τέρασι σημείοις καὶ τεράσιν, ἅπινα χαρίσματα ὧν Θεοῦ, i. e. (b) by Signs and Miracles; that is, according to the Wiſdom of the Spirit, and the Miraculous Power given us by the Grace of God for the Propagation of the Goſpel; So St. Chryſoſtom. Which Expoſition, ſaith he, is confirmed from theſe words, and more abundantly to you ward; for the Apoſtle's ſincerity and care to walk according to the Rules of the Goſpel, was every where the ſame, but the powerful Operations and Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt ſeem to have been more abundantly exerciſed by him in, and vouchſafed by him to that Church in which he ſtaid ſo long, and of which he had ſo particular a Promiſe, that Chriſt would be with him in his preaching to them, Acts 18. 10, 11.

k Ver. 15. Δευτέραν χάριν, a ſecond benefit or grace.] I coming to eſtabliſh you, Rom. 1. 11. and to promote your joy, v. 24 Hence it appears that the Apoſtle had been only once with them, when he writ this.

l Ver. 16. Καὶ δι' ὑμῶν διελθεῖν εἰς Μακεδονίαν, and to paſs by you into Macedonia.] Interpreters Ancient and Modern, are much troubled how to reconcile theſe words with what the Apoſtle had ſaid in his former Epiſtle, I will come unto you when I have paſſed through Macedonia, 1 Cor. 16. 5. For there he expreſly declares, his purpoſe was to go firſt into Macedonia, and then to come to Corinth from thence. Here, ſay they, he declares he purpoſed firſt to come to Corinth, and then to Macedonia, and return again from Macedonia to Corinth; but the Apoſtle ſeems to ſay no more here, than he did there. There he declares that he would firſt go to Macedonia; but he adds alſo, that he would go from Epheſus, paſſing by them into Macedonia; ſaying alſo, that he would not then ſee them ἐν παρόδῳ, in his paſſage by them, v. 7. and here he only ſaith, he purpoſed διελθεῖν to paſs by them into Macedonia; but ſaith not, that he would call upon them in that Paſſage, but only when he came again from Macedonia, and intended to go to Syria; which he did not, partly by reaſon of Titus his abſence, who was not yet returned to him to give an account of their Affairs, but went again from Troas to Macedonia, 2 Cor. 2. 12. where he met Titus, Chap. 7. 5. 6. and partly by reaſon of the Jews, who way-laid him in his Paſſage to Syria, Acts 20. 3. And for this delay and non-performance of his purpoſe, that he came not from Macedonia the firſt time he went thither, to winter with them, he makes this Apology. See the Preface to this Epiſtle.

m Ver. 17. Κατὰ σάρκα, according to the fleſh.] Perhaps the Judaizers might object this, becauſe being in Greece, Acts 20. 2. and ſo near to Corinth, and having paſſed through Macedonia, he came not to go by them into Syria, becauſe the Jews laid wait for him by the way, but returned back to Macedonia without ſeeing them, v. 3. This, I ſay, they might interpret a Conſulting of his Carnal Intereſts.

Ver. 18. Πιστὸς ὁ Θεὸς, but as God is true.] The Phraſe πιστὸς ὁ Θεὸς, God is faithful, is uſed where there is no Oath intended; as 1 Cor. 1. 9. God is faithful by whom we are called; and Chap. 10. 13. πιστὸς ὁ Θεὸς, but God is faithful, who will not ſuffer you to be tempted above what you are able. But here the Phraſe being uſed abſolutely, ſeems rather to be a form of Swearing.

Ibid. Οὐκ ἐγένετο καὶ οὒ, was not yea, and nay.] i. e. It was not with any variance, but by his aſſiſtance we all ſaid ſtill the ſame thing, and promiſed the ſame advantages to thoſe that ſhould believe in Chriſt; or it was not the preaching of what was uncertain, but fully confirmed to you by the power received from him. That this is the true import of this Phraſe, yea, yea, nay, nay, we learn from the Jews from whom it is taken; for they ſay (c), There is a yea which is as nay, and a nay which is as yea; viz. when a Man aſſerts or denies a thing ironically; but (d) the juſt man's yea is yea, and his nay is nay; that is, whatever he affirms or denies is true and certain: When a man gives a Bill of Divorce to his wife, we try him, ſay they, three times (e) whether his nay be nay, and his yea, yea; that is, whether he continue firm in his Reſolution to divorce her. And whereas the Hebrew ſaith, when Elijah ſaid to the Jews, How long will you halt betwixt two Opinions? If God be God, follow him; if Baal, follow him; the People anſwered him not a word, 1 Kings 18. 21. the Jewiſh Gloſs runs thus, They would not ſay unto him, yea or nay, becauſe they were doubtful. And whereas Exod. 20. 1. we read thus, And God ſpake all the words ſaying, R. Solomon notes that the word לאמר teacheth that they anſwered to every yea, yea, and to every no, no; i. e. they engaged to do the Affirmative, and not to do the Negative Precepts. n

Ver. 20. Or, all the Promiſes of God made to you are true and certain, through Chriſt the Author of the New Covenant, eſtabliſhed upon better Promiſes, to the Glory of that God who made them by us. o this Seal; the Lord knoweth who are his, 2 Tim. 2. 19. and ſo the Jews made the Sepulchre ſecure, ſealing the Stone, Mat. 27. 66. In all which Senſes was the Holy Spirit given to Believers, as a Mark that they belonged to Chriſt, Rom. 8. 9. and were the Sons of God, Gal. 4. 6. as a Confirmation of the Covenant God had made with them, and of the Bleſſings promiſed, he being the Earneſt and Pledge of them, and ſo a Security to them againſt doubting of them; and alſo a Preſerver of them in the Faith againſt all Temptations, 2 Tim. 1. 7. 1 Pet. 4. 14.

1 Ver. 23. Μάρτυρα τὸν Θεὸν ἐπικαλοῦμαι ἐπὶ τὴν ἐμὴν ψυχήν, I call God to record upon my Soul.] The Apoſtle uſeth this form of Speech ſo oft in this Epiſtle, that I think it not amiſs to give an account of the reaſon of his doing ſo; which may be beſt done from the Conſideration of the Occaſion, the Reaſon, and the End of Aſſertory Oaths, which are the only Oaths he uſeth.

1*ſt*, Then, there muſt be ſome ἀνθιλογία, i. e. ſome doubting of, or contradiction to the thing aſſerted, which muſt give an occaſion to an Aſſertory Oath, Heb. 6. 16. there being no need to confirm, in this ſolemn manner, what no body doubts of. Now in the Church of Corinth, the Authority and the Sincerity of the Apoſtle was much doubted of, he being acknowledged of them but in part, v. 14. ſome ſeeking ſtill a proof of Chriſt ſpeaking by him, Chap. 13. 3. and others looking on him, as one that walked after the fleſh, Chap. 10. 2. this therefore gave Occaſion to the Aſſertory Oaths ſo frequent in this Epiſtle.

2*ly*, The end of an Oath is εἰς βεβαίωσιν for confirmation of the thing aſſerted, Heb. 6. 16. and if Oaths were allowed, and thought neceſſary in Civil Matters for this End, they muſt be more allowable in Sacred and Spiritual Matters, which concerned the Truth of the Goſpel, and the Salvation of Souls for the ſame end, which manifeſtly was here the Caſe.

3*ly*, The Matter thus confirmed by an Oath muſt be ſuch, as could not be ſufficiently confirmed by other Witneſſes of the Fact, he being only privy to them who doth thus confirm them; for where ſufficient Teſtimonies of the Matter of Fact can be produced, an Oath ſeems the leſs needful in the Caſe. And that this was ſo, in all the Inſtances in which the Apoſtle thus confirms his ſayings, will be eaſily diſcerned from the peruſal of the places in which the Apoſtle thus aſſerts the Truth of what he had affirmed, viz. Chap. 1. 18, 23. & 11. 10, 11, 31. & 12, 19.

Ver. 24. Τῇ γὰρ πίστει ἑστήκατε, for you have 5
ſtood in the Faith.] Τῆς μὲν πίστεως ἕνεκεν οὐδαμῶς ὑμῖν ἐπιμέμφομαι, ἢ γὰρ ταύτης ὑγίειαν ὠφείλετε, Theodoret; that is, I do not by this Threat challenge to my ſelf a power to exerciſe any Dominion over you on the account of your Faith, as I did upon Hymeneus and Alexander, 1 Tim. 1. 10. and intend to do upon ſome of your falſe Teachers, when your Obedience is fulfilled, Chap. 10. 6. for I acknowledge you have generally ſtood firm in the Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Faith, (though ſome among you once queſtioned the Great Article of the Reſurrection of the Body, 1 Cor. 15. 12.) but I deſire by it to excite you to Cure your Diviſions and Contentions, and reform your groſs Miſcarriages, Chap. 12, 20, 21. that ſo I might not be found towards you ſuch as you would not, nor create to you any further trouble, but may be a promoter of that joy, which you will find in ſuch a Reformation of your ſelves.

CHAPTER II.

Verſe 1. [AND indeed a helper of your joy I would gladly be,] but I determined this with my ſelf, that I would not come again to you in heavineſs; [i. e. ſo as to make you ſad, if poſſibly I could avoid it.] a 2. For if I [be conſtrained by your Diſorders to] make you ſorry, a who is he then that maketh me glad, but the ſame that is made ſorry by me? [i. e. whan can make me glad but the Reformation, and ſo the Joy of the ſame Perſons, the Apoſtle's chiefeſt joy being in the welfare of his Converts? Chap. 1. 14. Philip. 2. 2, 16. & 4. 1. 1 Theſſ. 2. 19, 20.]

3. And I wrote the ſame to you, [or this very thing have I written to you before my coming, to excite you to this Reformation,] leſt when I came I ſhould have ſorrow from them, of whom I ought to rejoyce, having confidence in you all, that [you ſtand ſo affected to me, that] my joy is the joy of you all.

4. [I ſay, leſt I ſhould have ſorrow;] For out b of much affliction and anguiſh of heart, b
I wrote unto you [my former Epiſtle] with many tears, [which yet I ſay,] not that you ſhould be grieved, [or made ſorry,] but that you might know the love which I have more abundantly to you.

5. But if any hath cauſed grief, [as the inceſtuous Perſon hath already done,] he hath d 6. Sufficient to ſuch a man is d this puniſhment which was inflicted by many.

e 7. e So that contrariwiſe, you ought rather [now] to forgive him, and comfort him, [by receiving him again into the Church, which is the proper Conſolation of one caſt out, than continue your averſation to him,] leſt perhaps ſuch a one ſhould be ſwallowed up with overmuch ſorrow, [and ſo fall into deſpair.]

8. Wherefore I [who commanded the inflicting this cenſure on him, do now] beſeech you that you would conform your love towards him, [by re-admitting him thus penitent, to your Society, for the Church ought, after the Example of God, to do ſo.]

9. For to this end alſo did I write, [ἔγραψα, have I written this,] that I might know the proof of you, whether ye be obedient [to me] in all things.

10. [And be aſſured of this, that] To whom you forgive any thing, I forgive alſo [it,] for if I forgive any thing [Gr. have forgiven heretofore,] to whom I forgive it, for your ſakes I forgave it, [though I did it]

f f in the perſon [i. e. by the Authority] of Chriſt.

g 11. g [And this forgiveneſs of the inceſtuous perſon I therefore preſs] leſt Satan ſhould get an advantage of us, [by hurrying him into deſpair, or repreſenting the Church Diſcipline as that which tendeth to mens ruine, and ſo tempting him to Apoſtacy,] for we are not ignorant of his Devices.

12. Furthermore, [that ye may know my great concernment for you] h when I came h to Troas to preach Chriſt's Goſpel, and a door was opened to me of the Lord [for the propagation of it there,]

13. I had [notwithſtanding] no reſt in my Spirit, becauſe I found not Titus my brother, [whom I had ſent to know the ſtate of your Affairs, returned] but taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia [hoping to find him there, where he arrived, and gave me a very comfortable account of you.]

14. Now thanks [therefore] be to God who always cauſeth us to triumph in, [and through,] Chriſt, and maketh manifeſt the ſavour of his knowledge by us in every place [where we come.]

15. For we are unto God a ſweet ſavour [in our preaching] of Chriſt, [both] in them that are ſaved, and in them that periſh.

16. To the one [viz. to them that periſh for rejecting Chriſt preached to them] we are i i the ſavour of death unto death, and to the other [who believe in him] the ſavour of life unto life; and who is ſufficient for theſe [great and weighty] things?

17. [We are, I ſay, very acceptable to God in this work;] For we are not as many, k k who corrupt the Word of God, but [act] as [men] of ſincerity, but, as [commiſſionated] of God [and as] in the ſight of God ſpeak we [in preaching] Chriſt [unto you.] a Verſe 2. Καὶ τίς ἐστιν, who is it then.] The Hebrew Vau, rendred by καὶ, is very often in our Tranſlation then. See *Gen.*13.16. & 24.41. & 28.21. & 31.8. & 42. 34,38. *Exod.*6.1. & 7.9,11. *Lev.*4. 3, 14, 23, 28. & 5.5. & 6.4. Numb. 5.15,21. *Deut.*6. 21. & 8.10. *Joſh.*1.15. & 24.12. 1 *Sam.*1.11. & 6.9. And thus alſo is καὶ tranſlated by us in the New Teſtament, Matth. 23.32. Mark 7.1. Matth.25.27. John 4.35. & 7. 33. & 14. 9. Acts 26.20. Rom.8.17. & 11.5. 1 Cor. 15. 29. James 2. 4. Rev. 22. 9.

Annotations on Chap. II.

b Ver. 4. Ἐκ πολλῆς θλίψεως, with much affliction, &c.] As the Apoſtle's zeal for the Good of Souls made him rejoyce at their welfare, v. 2. ſo alſo did it cauſe him to weep for their Miſcarriages, Acts 20. 19,31. 2 *Cor.*12.21. *Philip.*3.18.

c Ver. 5. Ἀπὸ μέρους, in part.] This Phraſe is commonly uſed by St. Paul for the diſtinction of one ſort of Perſons from another. So Rom. 11. 25. Blindneſs hath hapned to Iſrael ἀπὸ μέρους in part, as to the unbelieving part of them, Rom. 15. 15. I have written the more boldly to you in part ἀπὸ μέρους, i. e. as to that part of you who are Gentiles, declaring that I was called by Jeſus Chriſt to be the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, 2 Cor.1.14. You have acknowledged me ἀπὸ μέρους in part, i. e. as to the ſound part of you, and according to this uſe of the Phraſe, the words may be paraphraſed thus, He hath not only grieved me, but as to the ſound part you all; for there were ſome among them who grieved not for this Crime, but were puffed up, 1 Cor. 5.2. I therefore ſay in part, that I may not too much load that miſerable Perſon.

Ver. 6. Ἡ ἐπιτιμία αὕτη ἡ ὑπὸ τῶν πλειόνων, d
this puniſhment, &c.] Some learned Perſons, who exclude the Laity from having any ſhare in the Excommunication, or Abſolution of Publick Offenders, tell us this Puniſhment was inflicted only by the Clergy, or the Presbytery of Corinth in the Preſence of the Laity. But it ſeems clear in both theſe Epiſtles that the Apoſtle writes to the Church of Corinth in the general; For when he commands mands that the Inceſtuous Perſon ſhould be excluded from their Society, and be delivered up to Satan, he ſpeaks to all that were to aſſemble together, 1 Cor. 5. 4. to all that ought to have mourned for that fact, v. 2. to all that were obliged to abſtain from eating with him, v. 11. and aſſerts the Power they had of judging thoſe that were within the Church, v. 12. And here, ſpeaking of the Execution of that Sentence, he ſaith it was ἐπιτιμία a puniſhment inflicted, not ὑπὸ before only, but ὑπὸ τῶν πλειόνων by the Community: Hence he exhorts them all to forgive and comfort him, v. 8. adding v. 10. to whomſoever you forgive any thing, I forgive alſo, but there is not in this whole affair the leaſt mention of any of the Clergy ſeparately from the Church either executing, or relaxing this Cenſure. Indeed St. Paul here carries the matter ſo high, that he alone, by his Apoſtolical Authority, paſſeth the Sentence, ſaying ἤδη κέκρικα, I have already judged him, 1 Cor. 5. 3. and alſo that of Abſolution, ſaying here, v. 10. ἐγὼ κεχάρισμαι, I have forgiven him, committing only the Execution of each Senteuce to them; So that this Inſtance gives no colour to the Pretences of the Independants and other Sectaries, eſpecially if we add, what is highly probable, that the Corinthian Church had then no ordinary or ſettled Governours or Paſtors, but all their Offices were performed by Prophets, or Men enabled to perform them by the Gift of Propheſie; See Note on 1 Cor. 14. 29. And if ſo, it cannot be expected that the ſame practiſe ſhould continue when theſe extraordinary Prophets ceaſed, and Biſhops and Paſtors were every where appointed to Rule over their reſpective Flocks. In the Primitive Church, when any Perſon was to be Excommunicated, the Laity were firſt conſulted about the Fact, the Guilty Perſon pleaded in their Preſence, they judged of the Matter of Fact, as do our Juries in Criminal Cauſes, and by their Suffrage they conſented to his Condemnation, as (a) St. Cyprian doth oft inform us; but then he ſtill aſſerts, that neither they, nor the inferiour Clergy, could pronounce Sentence of Excommunication without the (b) Biſhop, who as the Preſident of the Aſſembly, ſtill pronounced the Sentence. They alſo conſented to the Re-admiſſion of them into Favour, and to the Communion of the Church, but then their actual admiſſion was performed by the (c) Impoſition of the Hands of the Biſhop and Clergy, the Power of the Keys, ſaith he, being given to them by Chriſt, ſaying, Thou art Peter, &c.

Ver. 7. Note. Hence it appears that in notorious Crimes, which give great cauſe of Scandal to the Church, and to Chriſtianity, the Conſolation of the Offender depends not only on his inward Grief, and Repentance towards God, but alſo on the Relaxation of his Cenſures by the Church; for it is certain that the Apoſtle is here ſpeaking, not as Grotius thinks, of the taking off the Diſeaſe which Satan had inflicted on the inceſtuous Perſon, but of reſtoring him to Communion by Relaxation of the Churches Cenſures: For (1.) the word ἐπιτιμία puniſhment, v. 6. refers to the Canonical Cenſures of the Church. (2.) He commands them not only χαρίζεσθαι to forgive, v. 7, 10. but alſo to confirm their love to him; both which Expreſſions plainly ſeem to intimate that he would have him reſtored to Communion, and this he would have performed according to the Diſcipline, now mentioned from St. Cyprian, with the conſent of the Pious Laity. e

Ver. 10. Ἐν προσώπῳ Χριστοῦ, in the Perſon of Chriſt.] That is, ſaith Theodoret, Chriſt beholding, and approving what was done, for as he delivered the inceſtuous Perſon to Satan in the Name of the Lord Chriſt, 1 Cor. 5. 4. ſo in his Perſon and by his Authority he relaxes the Sentence. This place teaches us, ſaith Slictingius, That the Providence of Chriſt reacheth to, and inſpecteth not only our Actions, but even our Minds and Thoughts. Hence then I argue for his Godhead, God alone being the Searcher of the Heart, and of the Secrets of it, 1 Kings 8. 39. f

Ver. 11. Note. Vain here is all the Diſcourſe of Eſthius concerning Indulgences, or the Remiſſion of the Satisfaction required by the Church; for the Apoſtle here ſpeaks only of the Remiſſion of his Excommunication, and hath not one word of any Satisfaction the inceſtuous Perſon had voluntarily undertaken on the account of his Offence, or any thing impoſed on him to do on that account, but only of a delivery of him to Satan, and an Excluſion of him from the Church, in both which he was Paſſive. g

Ver. 12. Ἐλθὼν δὲ εἰς τὴν Τρωάδα, but coming to Troas.] That this was not the firſt time of St. Paul's coming to Troas is plain, ſeeing we find him there long before, Acts 16. 8. h though then he ſeems to have ſtaid there but a night; it was not the time mentioned Acts 20. 6. for then he came from Macedonia to Troas, here he goes from Troas to Macedonia. It remains then that it was ſome intermediate time which all Interpreters I meet with, think was in his way from Epheſus to Macedonia, Acts 20. 1. but at his firſt journey from Epheſus to Macedonia he ſailed not by Troas, but by Corinth, though not touching there; See Note on Chap. 1. 16. It was then after, paſſing through thoſe Parts he came by Troas into Greece, and if ſo, this Epiſtle could not be written till after St. Paul's coming the ſecond time to Macedonia; See the Preface.

i Ver. 16. Ὀσμὴ ζωῆς, καὶ θανάτου, a ſavour of life and death.] Here is a continual Alluſion to the Phraſeology of the Jews, who ſpeak from the Prophets of סם המות (d) a mortal ſavour, or as the Chaldee ſaith דמתוא סמא Eſth. 1. 21. Jer. 11. 19. and of סם החיים a ſavour of life, or a vital unguent, and ſaying of the Law, that it is to Iſrael a ſavour of life, but to the Nations of the World a ſavour of death, of which the Apoſtle ſeemeth here to give the Reverſe, ſaying the Goſpel was to them, as being the Rejecters of it, the ſavour of Death, but to the Gentiles, who embraced it, the ſavour of Life.

k Ver. 17. Καπηλεύοντες τὸν λόγον, who corrupt the word.] Here is an Alluſion to thoſe Huckſters of whom the Prophet Iſaiah ſpeaks, ſaying, οἱ κάπηλοί σου μίσγουσι τὸν οἶνον ὕδατι, thy Vintners mix wine with water, Iſa. 1. 22. and ſo the meaning of the words is this, We do not adulterate the ſincerity of the Word as your falſe Apoſtles do.

Who theſe Corrupters of the Word of God were, we learn from Chap. 11. 22. where it is evident that they were not Samaritans, but Jews, not pretenders to be the Chriſt, or Miniſters of Simon Magus, but Miniſters of Chriſt, or ſuch as owned our Jeſus, not Simon Magus or Doſitheus, to be Chriſt; notwithſtanding a Reverend Perſon aſſerts that they were Gnoſticks; and to this Opinion he is inclined by two Paſſages in the Epiſtles of Ignatius: The firſt is in the Epiſtle to the Magneſians, where, ſaith he, ſpeaking of the Gnoſtick Judaizers, as Enemies of the Croſs of Chriſt, whoſe God is their Belly, who mind earthly things, Philp. 3. 18, 19. who were lovers of pleaſure, and not lovers of God, having a form of godlineſs, but denying the power of it, he adds, that they were οἱ χριστέμποροι, τὸν λόγον καπηλεύοντες, καὶ τὸν Ἰησοῦν πωλοῦντες, Merchants of Chriſt, huckſtering the Word, ſelling Jeſus. But

1. The Gnoſticks were ſo far from being Judaizers, that they denied the God of the Jews, declared that he was not of the Supreme God; and taught Men to deſpiſe the Law and the Prophets; See Note on Coloſſ. 2. 12.

2. All theſe Epithets or Characteriſticks agree perfectly to the Jewiſh falſe Teachers, they were the Men of whom the Apoſtle ſaith, their God is their belly, &c. as both (e) St. Chryſoſtom and Theodoret inform us. They were the Men who were lovers of Pleaſure more than lovers of God, and who had a form of Godlineſs, which the impure Gnoſticks had not; See Note on 2 Tim. 3. 5. The Jews alſo were the Perſons who bought Chriſt for thirty pieces of Silver; they corrupted the Word here, by mixing the Law and their Traditions with the Goſpel, and they made a Gain of Chriſt; See Note on 1 Tim. 6. 5. So that what is here cited from the Ninth Section of this Epiſtle, agrees exactly to them.

3. It chiefly is to be obſerved, That theſe words are not in the true Ignatius, but are the Additions of his Interpolator. And (2.) there is not a word in this place to ſhew that they belonged to the Gnoſticks, or to any other Perſons, who owning the Profeſſion of the Chriſtian Faith, corrupted it; but are expreſly ſaid to belong (f) to ſuch Enemies of Chriſt as denied him. Whereas the true Ignatius is plainly in this place ſpeaking of the (g) Jews, of whom we interpret this, and the ſame is alſo evident from the Interpolator.

The ſecond Paſſage is cited from the Epiſtle ad Trallianos, where he ſaith, there are ſome vain Speakers and Impoſtors, not Chriſtians, but Merchants of Chriſt, Ἀπάτῃ φερόμενοι τὸ ὄνομα τοῦ Χριστοῦ, καὶ καπηλεύοντες τὸν λόγον τοῦ εὐαγγελίου, carrying the Name of Chriſt for deceit, and huckſtering the Word of the Goſpel. 'And who theſe were, he ſpecifies in 'the Proceſs of the Epiſtle, viz. Simon the 'firſt-born of Satan, Menander, Baſilides, 'the unclean Nicolaitans, τοὺς ψευδωνύμους, 'thoſe that are falſly named, that is, the 'Gnoſticks. But here again

1. We have not the true Ignatius, but his Interpolator impoſed upon us.

CHAPTER III.

Verſe 1. DO we [by ſpeaking thus of our Sincerity, Chap.2.17.] begin a again to commend our ſelves, or a need we, b as ſome others [have,] b Epiſtles of Commendation to you, or Letters of Commendation from you [to others?]

c 2. Ye are our Epiſtle c written in our hearts, [you being always in our minds, and evidently appearing to us ſo to be, and] known and read of all men, [who have heard the fame of your Converſion.]

3. Foraſmuch as ye are [by this Converſi- d on] manifeſtly declared to be d the Epiſtle of Chriſt, miniſtred, [or penn'd] by us, written not with Ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in Tables of Stone, [as were the Ten Commandments,] but in the fleſhly Tables of the Heart.

4. And ſuch [confidence, or] truſt have we through [the grace and favour of] Chriſt to God-ward, [viz. that he will ſtill thus efficaciouſly aſſiſt our Miniſtry.]

5. Not [having any confidence in our ſelves] that we are ſufficient of our ſelves
e e to think any thing as of our ſelves, [to bring men to the faith of Chriſt by our own reaſonings, without the power and aſſiſtance of the Spirit of God,] but our ſufficiency [as to this matter] is of God [alone.]

6. Who alſo hath made us able Miniſters of the New Teſtament, [promiſed in oppoſition to the Old, Jer. 31. 33. and ſo] not of the Letter [only as was that of Moſes,] but of the Spirit [promiſed Ezek. 36. 27.] for f f the Letter [of the Law condemns the diſobedient, and ſo] killeth, but the Spirit [miniſtred by the Goſpel] giveth life: [for if the Spirit of him that raiſed Jeſus from the dead dwell in you, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal Bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you, Rom. 8.11.]

g 7. g But [then] if [that Law which is] the miniſtration of death, [and was] written, and engraven in ſtones was glorious, [in the miniſter of it,] ſo that the Children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly behold the face of Moſes, for the glory of his Countenance, which glory [yet was only ſuch as] was to be done away, [or vaniſh, as the Law was to do;]

8. How ſhall not [that Goſpel which is] the miniſtration of the Spirit, be rather glorious [both in its ſelf, and its Ambaſſadors?]

9. For if [that Law which was] the miniſtration of Condemnation, [by pronouncing the Sentence of Death upon all that did not perfectly obey it,] be, [or was attended with] glory, much more doth [the Goſpel, which is] the miniſtration of Righteouſneſs, [or of Juſtification to Life, Rom. 5. 18.] exceed in glory.

10. For even that [Law] which was made glorious [at the firſt adminiſtration of it, may be ſaid to have] had no glory in this reſpect, by reaſon of the glory [of the Goſpel] which excelleth, [and ſo eclipſeth it.]

11. For if that which is [now] done away, [and aboliſhed,] were glorious, much more that which remaineth [for ever] is [to be] glorious.

12. Seeing then that we have ſuch hope [of the glorious efficacy of our Miniſtry, and of the power of God ſo illuſtriouſly ſhining forth in it,] we uſe great h plainneſs [or bold- h neſs] of ſpeech.

13. And [act] not as Moſes [the Miniſter of the Law,] who put a vail over his face, [even that of Types and Shadows, ſo] that the Children of Iſrael could i not ſtedfaſtly i look to the end, [or the accompliſhment,] of that which is [now] aboliſhed.

14. But their minds were [then, and ſtill are] blinded; for until this day remaineth the ſame vail untaken away in the reading of of the Old Teſtament, which vail is [only] done away [by faith] in Chriſt.

Ver. 15. But [or whereas they not believing in him] even to this day, when Moſes is read, the vail is [ſtill] upon their heart.

16. Nevertheleſs [as when Moſes turned to the Lord, the vail was taken from his face, Exod. 34. 34. ſo] when k it, [the Jewiſh Nation,] ſhall turn to the Lord [Jeſus,] the vail ſhall be taken away [from them.]

l 17. l Now the Lord is [the giver of] that Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty, [and ſo the Law, which is as a yoke of bondage, Acts 15. 10. Gal. 5. 1. is taken away, and we obtain our Chriſtian liberty.]

m 18. m [And it is not with us as it was with the Jews, for they only ſaw the face of Moſes ſhining through the vail, but received no impreſſion from, or derivation of his glory upon themſelves;] But we all [under the Goſpel] with open [and unvailed] face, beholding as in a glaſs the Glory of the Lord [Jeſus,] are changed into the ſame Image [with him] from [his] glory to glory [derived on us,] as by the Spirit of the Lord, [or, as receiving it from the Lord and giver of the Spirit.]

a Verſe 1. Εἰ μὴ χρήζομεν, do we need?] Theſe Particles εἰ μὴ often ſignifie num in the Old Teſtament; εἰ μὴ ἔφαγες, haſt thou eaten of the Tree? Gen. 3. 11. See Gen. 4. 9. & 18. 4, 17, 23, 27, 38. & 30. 15. & 31. 14. & 41. 38. & 43. 7. So μὴ alſo ſignifies, 1 Cor. 9. 4. μὴ οὐκ ἐξουσίαν ἔχομεν, have we no power? and v. 8.

b Ibid. Συστατικῶν ἐπιστολῶν, Letters of Commendation.] That Commendatory Epiſtles were ancient in the Church we learn from (a) Tertullian, and (b) St. Cyprian. And that they had their riſe from the Teſſeræ hoſpitalitatis among the Heathens, is the Opinion of the Reverend Dr. Hammond on the place.

c Ver. 2. Ἐγγεγραμμένη ἐν ταῖς καρδίαις ἡμῶν, written in our hearts.] This is a frequent Phraſe in the Old Teſtament, and among the Jewiſh Doctors, importing (1.) the clearneſs and perſpicuity of what is ſaid to be thus in our hearts, Deut. 30. 11, 14, 15. Rom. 10. 8, 9. And (2.) our care to have it continually in our Minds, and upon our Spirits, Deut. 6. 6. Prov. 3. 3. & 7. 2. See this proved Note on Heb. 8. 10.

And thus the Phraſe is commonly uſed in Prophane Authors, both Greek and Latin. Thus Antiſthenes ſaith to one who had loſt his Regiſter, or Note-Book, Thou ſhouldſt (c) ἐν τῇ ψυχῇ ταῦτα γράφειν μὴ ἐν ταῖς χάρταις γράφων, write theſe things in thy Soul, and not in thy Papers. So (d) Seneca ſaith of Portius Latro, who made uſe of no Books or Notes, Aiebat ſe ſcribere animo, he ſaid he wrote all things in his Mind. So (e) Terence, Scripta illa dicta ſunt in animo Chryſidis; which in (f) Pindar is πόθι φρενὸς ἐμᾶς γέγραπται, it is written in my mind.

So that theſe words may be thus paraphraſed, We need no Letters of Commendation to you, for we well know, and have continually in remembrance, how powerfully God wrought with us for your Converſion, ſo that the Seal of our Apoſtleſhip are you in the Lord, 1 Cor. 9. 2. The Signs of an Apoſtle being wrought among you in all Patience, in Signs, Wonders, and in mighty Deeds, 2 Cor. 12. 12. So that you are our beſt Letters Commendatory to your ſelves. Nor need we Letters of Commendation from you to others, the Fame of your Converſion by us, and of the Gifts we, with the Goſpel, have imparted to you, being ſpread throughout the World.

Ver. 3. Ἐπιστολὴ Χριστοῦ, the Epiſtle of Chriſt.] His Commendatory Epiſtle declaring and commending his Power in your Converſion by ſuch Signs and Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt imparted to you, and exerciſed by us among you, as he enabled us to do. And this Epiſtle is written in the fleſhly Tables of your Hearts, i. e. in your Hearts made ſoft, pliable, and ready to obey the Word by the Operation of the Holy Spirit, according to the Promiſe, I will take away the ſtony heart from you, and give you an heart of fleſh, Ezek. 11. 19. & 36. 26. d

Ver. 5. Λογίσασθαί τι, to reaſon any thing as of our ſelves.] The Apoſtle in the ſecond Chapter of his firſt Epiſtle, contends that there was a Neceſſity of a Divine Revelation to enable them to make known to us the Truths contained in the Goſpel, becauſe Humane Reaſon without it, was not able to know, or to diſcern them, and therefore here alſo he diſclaims this Sufficiency as of themſelves without Divine Aſſiſtance for this Work; that is, without thoſe Illuminations and Powerful Operations of the Holy Spirit, which made them able Miniſters of the e

New Teſtament. This Text therefore is impertinently cited, to ſhew that no Man is ſufficient of himſelf to think a good thought, and might as well have been produced to prove him not ſufficient of himſelf to think at all.

f Ver. 6. Γράμμα ἀποκτέινει, the Letter killeth.] From the Expoſition of theſe words given in the Paraphraſe, it appears how vain are the Imaginations of thoſe Men who by the killing Letter underſtand, not the Law condemning to death, but the Literal and Hiſtorical Senſe of the Scriptures in general; and by the Life-giving Spirit, the Myſtical and Spiritual Senſe of them. Vain alſo are they who by the Letter underſtand the Law, as it was underſtood by the Jewiſh Doctors in a Literal or Grammatical Senſe; by the Spirit, the Mind of the Law giver; it being evident from the whole Chapter, that by the Letter the Apoſtle underſtands the Law engraved in Stones, v. 3, 7. the Law as delivered by Moſes, and as at firſt adminiſtred with an appearance of the Glory of the Lord; and by the Spirit, the Spirit of Chriſt, v. 17. or the Holy Spirit given to the Apoſtles to enable them to preach the Goſpel, and conferr'd on thoſe that believed it.

g Ver. 7—11. That the Alluſion here from v. 7. to the 11th, may be the better underſtood, let it be noted,

1*ſt*, That the Glory of God, or of the Lord, in the Old Teſtament, imports a bright Light, or Flame included in a Cloud, ſtiled the Cloud of Glory; and becauſe this, whenever it appeared, was a Symbol of God's glorious Preſence, it is ſtiled by the Jews (g) Schechinah, the Habitation; So Exod. 16. 7. In the morning ye ſhall ſee the Glory of God; and v. 10. The Glory of God abode upon Mount Sinai, and the Cloud covered it ſix days, and the light of the Glory of the Lord was like devouring fire, Exod. 40. 34. A Cloud covered the Tent of the Congregation, and the Glory of the Lord filled the Tabernacle, המשכן the Habitation of God. This Glory, ſaith the Author of (h) Coſri, is the Divine Light which God vouchſafeth to his People. By the Schechinah, ſaith Elias, we underſtand the Holy Spirit, as it is evident they do in theſe ſayings, The Schechinah will not dwell with ſorrowful or melancholy men. The Schechinah will only dwell with a ſtrong, rich, wiſe, and humble man. The Schechinah dwells with the meek. When ten ſit, and ſtudy the Law, the Schechinah dwells among them. See many other Inſtances in Buxtorf's Lexicon, p. 2396, &c.

2*ly*, Obſerve, That after the Covenant made with God at Mount Sinai, Exod. 24. 7, 8. was broken, and the Law given from Mount Sinai violated by the Idolatry of the Jews, in making and worſhipping the Golden Calf, Exod. 32. Moſes is again called up into Mount Sinai to renew it, Exod. 34. 27. and God there deſcends to him again in the Cloud of Glory, v. 5. and then was it that the ſkin of his face ſhone, to the terror of thoſe that ſaw him, ſo that he was forc'd to put a vail over his face, v. 29, 30. And the Alluſion here is chiefly to this Glory, or ſhining Brightneſs of the Face of Moſes, when he received the Law the ſecond time, as is evident from v. 7. and from the words here uſed by St. Paul, οὐ δεδόξασται τὸ δεδοξασμένον, that which was made glorious was not glorious; for they are the very words uſed by the Septuagint, concerning the ſhining of the face of Moſes, Δεδόξασται ἡ ὄψις τοῦ προσώπου αὐτοῦ, Exod. 34. 29. καὶ ἰδοὺ δεδοξασμένη ἦν ὄψις, v. 30.

3*ly*, Obſerve, That as the Glory of the Lord deſcended on the Mount at the delivery of the Law, ſo to enable the Apoſtles to be able Miniſters of the New Teſtament, the Spirit of God deſcended on the Apoſtles at the Day of Pentecoſt, in the likeneſs of Cloven Tongues, or Tongues of Fire, ſitting upon them, Acts 2. 3. and as the Tabernacle and Temple were filled with the Glory of God, ſo were they all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, v. 4. And as the ſhining of the Face of Moſes ſignified the Glory of that Law which he delivered to the Jews, ſo the Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt ſhining forth in theſe Ambaſſadors of Chriſt, ſignified the Glory of the Goſpel. Now, ſaith the Apoſtle, this Glory is more excellent than that which attended the Law given by Moſes.

1. Becauſe the Glory appearing on Mount Sinai made the People afraid of Death, ſaying, Let not God ſpeak to us any more leſt we die, Exod. 20. 19. Neither let us ſee this great fire any more, that we die not, Deut. 18. 16. And when the face of Moſes ſhone, the People were afraid to come nigh him, Exod. 34. 30. for the Law being the Miniſtration of Death and Condemnation, even the Glory of it ſtruck a terror into their hearts, and left a fear of Death upon their Spirits, and thus received they the ſpirit of bondage unto fear, Rom. 8. 15. whilſt we have given to us the ſpirit of power and love, 2 Tim. 1. 7. and the Spirit of Adoption whereby we cry Abba, Father; And to this difference the Author to the Hebrews alludes, Chap. 12. 18—24.

2. Moſes with all his glory was only the Miniſter of the Law, written in Tables of Stone; the Apoſtles of the Goſpel, written in the Hearts of Believers: He only gave to the Jews the killing Letter of the Law, they with the Goſpel gave the quickning the Spirit.

(g) Vide Buxt. Lex. p. 2398. (h) Part. 2. § 8.

3. The Glory which Moſes received at the giving of the Law, did more and more diminiſh, becauſe his Law was to vaniſh away; but the Glory which they received from Chriſt did increaſe from Glory to Glory, v.18. the Doctrine they delivered by it being to remain for ever.

h Ver. 12. Παῤῥησίᾳ.] This word ſeems to import openneſs and plainneſs of Speech. So, he ſpake this ſaying παῤῥησίᾳ openly, Mark 8. 32. If thou art the Chriſt tell us παῤῥησίᾳ plainly, John 10. 24. Having ſpoiled principalities and powers, he triumphed over them ἐν παῤῥησίᾳ openly, Coloſſ. 2. 15. See John 7. 4, 13. & 11. 14. & 16. 25, 29. & 18.20. And to this ſenſe the oppoſition in theſe words, We uſe great plainneſs of ſpeech, and do not put a vail before our face, as Moſes did, ſeems to lead.

i Ver. 13. Εἰς τὸ τέλος τοῦ καταργουμένου, to the end of that which was to be aboliſhed.] i. e. Either to Chriſt and his Goſpel, as the Body vail'd under theſe Types and Shadows, Col. 2. 16, 17. or they could not look unto that Chriſt, who is the end of the Law for Juſtification, Rom. 10. 4. that being only our Schoolmaſter to bring us to Chriſt, Gal. 3. 24, 25. And here is the Fourth Excellency of the Goſpel above the Law, that whereas that was vailed under Types and Shadows, the Goſpel was delivered with great perſpicuity and plainneſs of Speech; which is a great confirmation of the perſpicuity of the New Teſtament in all things neceſſary.

k Ver. 16. Ἡνίκα δ' ἂν ἐπιστρέψῃ πρὸς Κύριον, when it ſhall turn to the Lord.] The Apoſtle diſcourſing, v. 13. of the Sons of Iſrael, of thoſe to whom belonged the Old Covenant, and to whom the Law of Moſes was read, v. 14, 15. muſt be ſuppoſed to ſpeak here of the ſame Perſons; and then the Apoſtle here plainly taketh it for granted, that there will come a time when the Jewiſh Nation ſhall turn unto the Lord, or be converted to the Chriſtian Faith, and ſo looking on Chriſt as the End of the Law, and being enlightned by his Spirit, ſhall clearly diſcern the Spiritual Senſe of the Law, and the true meaning of their own Propheſies concerning the Meſſiah. Nor is it any Objection againſt this Expoſition that the word is ἐπιστρέψῃ in the ſingular, for as that anſwers well to Iſrael, or the Jewiſh Nation, ſo is it a known (i) Rule, that in the Hebrew Tongue a Verb of the ſingular Number is joyned to a Noun or a Participle plural.

l Ver. 17. Ὁ δὲ Κύριος τὸ πνεῦμα ἐστὶν, now the Lord is that Spirit.] The Æthiopian Verſion reads not ὁ δὲ, but ὅπου Κύριος, where the Lord is, there is the Spirit, which makes the ſenſe of theſe words clear; but this Reading hath no Authority from any Ancient Copy, or Chriſtian Writer. (k) Origen cites the words according to the common Reading, thrice; nor is it ſuitable to the Greek, which ſhould have been, according to that Reading, ὅπου Κύριος ἐκεῖ τὸ πνεῦμα. I therefore prefer the other Interpretation, which ſaith, The Lord is the Spirit, as he is the Way, the Life, John 14.6. the Reſurrection and the Life, John 11. 15. as being the Author and the Giver of them. He it is who baptizeth with the Spirit and Fire, Matth. 3. 11. who giveth this good Spirit to all Believers, and ſends him to them from the Father, John 7. 38, 39. & 15. 26. & 16. 7. He is ὁ Κύριος, the Lord who miniſters to his Church all the Gifts and Operations of the Spirit, 1 Cor. 12. 5. Eph. 4. 8. And this Interpretation is favoured by the laſt words of the Chapter, ἀπὸ Κυρίου πνεύματος, from the Lord of the Spirit, for through the New Teſtament wherever the Spirit of the Lord is mentioned, τὸ πνεῦμα is put before, but never follows the word Κύριος, as according to the common Interpretation here it doth.

Ver. 18. Here are two farther Excellencies m of the Glory of the Goſpel above that of the Law, viz.

5. That the Jews only ſaw the ſhining of the Face of Moſes through a vail; but we beheld the Glory of the Goſpel of Chriſt in the Perſon of Chriſt our Law-giver with open face.

6. They ſaw it through a Vail, which hindred the reflexion or ſhining of it upon them, and ſo this Glory ſhone only on the Face of Moſes, but not at all upon them; whereas the Glory of God, in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt, ſhines as in a Glaſs, which reflects the Image upon us Chriſtians, ſo that we all are transformed into the ſame Image, deriving the glorious Gifts and Graces of the Spirit, with the Goſpel, from Chriſt the Lord, and great Diſtributer of them, 1 Cor. 12. 5. and ſo the Glory which the Father gave to him, he hath given us, John 17. 22. It is therefore rather with us, as it was with Moſes himſelf, concerning whom God ſpeaketh thus; To whom will I ſpeak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark Speeches, and the Similitude τὴν δόξαν Κυρίου the Glory of the Lord ſhall he behold, Num. 12. 8. For as he ſaw the Glory of God apparently, ſo we with open face behold the Glory of the Lord; as he by ſeeing of this Glory was changed into the likeneſs of it, and his Face ſhone, or was δεδοξασμένη made glorious, ſo we beholding the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt, Chap. 4. 6. are changed into the ſame Glory. But then, though this may in ſome meaſure be enlarged to the Church in general, in which theſe Gifts were exerciſed, I think it chiefly, and more eminently refers to the Apoſtles mentioned v. 12.

(i) Glaſſius l. 3. tr. 3 Can. 52. p. 397. (k) Contr. Celſum l. 5. p. 271. in Matth. Ed. Huet. p. 219. & p. 253.

CHAPTER IV.

Verſe 1. THerefore ſeeing we have this [glorious] Miniſtry, as we have received mercy [from God in committing it to us, 1 Tim. 11,12. ſo] we [a] faint not [under the preſſures to which it doth expoſe us.]

2. But have renounced [b] the hidden things of diſhoneſty [or ſhame,] not walking in craftineſs [and guile,] nor handling the Word of God deceitfully, [as do your falſe Apoſtles and deceitful Workers, 2 Cor. 11. 13.] but by manifeſtation of the Truth commending our ſelves to every man's Conſcience, [as perſons acting] in the ſight of God.

3. [c] But if, [notwithſtanding this manifeſtation of the Truth,] our Goſpel be hid [from any to whom it is preached,] it is hid [only] to them that are loſt.

4. In, [or, among] whom [d] the God of this World hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, leſt the light of the glorious [e] Goſpel of Chriſt, who is the e Image of God, ſhould ſhine into them.

5. [I ſay the Goſpel of Chriſt;] For we preach not our ſelves, [as aiming at our own glory, or profit in this work,] but Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, and our ſelves your ſervants for Jeſus ſake.

6. [And this Goſpel I ſtile the Goſpel of the Glory of Chriſt;] For God, who [by ſaying, Let there be light, and there was light,] commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, hath [alſo] ſhined in our hearts, to give [f] [us] the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face [or perſon] of Jeſus Chriſt; [or into the hearts of us Apoſtles, to give us, and enable us to give to others, the light of the knowledge of God through Chriſt, whoſe Ambaſſadors we are. See v. 7.]

7. But we have this [glorious] Treaſure in earthen Veſſels, [i. e. in Bodies ſubject to be broken with continual preſſures,] that the excellency of the power [which preſerves ſuch frail Creatures under them, and enables them to do ſuch great things in them,] may [appear to] be of God, and not of us.

8. [For though] we are troubled, [and gripped,] ~~on every~~ ſide, yet [are we] not [ſo] diſtreſſed [as to be brought unto Extremities;] we are perplexed, but not [brought] in [to] deſpair [of help from God.]

9. [We are] perſecuted, [or purſued,] but not forſaken, [or caſt behind, ſo as to loſe the Crown we run for;] caſt down, but not deſtroyed [or killed by the fall. See theſe Agoniſtical Terms explained by Dr. Hammond.]

10. Always bearing about in the Body [a reſemblance to] the dying of the Lord Jeſus, that [g] the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our Body.

11. For we who [yet] live, are always delivered up to death for Jeſus ſake, [dying daily, or ſtanding in jeopardy of it every hour, whilſt we are miniſtring the Goſpel to you, 1 Cor. 15. 30, 31.] That the Life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our mortal fleſh, [ſtill expoſed to death by our Enemies, but ſtill preſerved in life by the power of Chriſt.]

12. So then [the] death [of Chriſt] worketh, [Gr. is wrought,] in us, [who fill up that which is behind of the Sufferings of Chriſt in our fleſh, 1 Coloſſ. 1. 24.] but [the] life [of Chriſt only] [h] in you.

13. [Yet] we having the ſame Spirit of Faith, [i. e. the ſame Faith wrought by the Spirit,] according as it is written [in the Pſalms, viz.] [i] I believed and therefore have I ſpoken; we alſo believe, and therefore [continue ſtill under all theſe Sufferings, to] ſpeak [and preach the Goſpel of Chriſt.]

14. Knowing that he who [k] raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall raiſe up us alſo by Jeſus, and ſhall preſent us with you, [to enjoy his heavenly Kingdom together.]

15. For, [or, and] all [theſe] things [we preach, and ſuffer] are for your ſakes, that the abundant grace [conferr'd upon you by our Miniſtry,] might, through the thankſgiving of many, redound to the glory of God.

16. For which cauſe we faint not [under the Tribulations we thus ſuffer,] but though our outward man periſh, yet the [l] inward man is renewed [with vigour and alacrity, in the performance of our duty,] day by day.

17. For [we know that] our light affliction which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal [m] weight of glory.

18. [n] [We faint not, I ſay,] while we look not at the things which are ſeen, but at the things which are not ſeen; for the things which are ſeen are temporal, but the things which are not ſeen are eternal.
